Cheney new defense secretary

WASHINGTON - The Senate unanimously confirmed Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., as defense secretary, filling the last spot in President Bush's Cabinet, vacant for nearly two months while John Tower's nomination collapsed.

Just one hour after the Senate voted 92-0 Friday to confirm him. Cheney — in his office on Capitol Hill — resigned from Wyoming's at-large House seat and was sworn in as the nation's 17th secretary of defense.

The oath was administered by David Cooke, director of administration and management at the Pentagon, who has sworn in every defense secretary since the agency was created in 1947. Cheney's wife, two daughters and parents were

FORT WORTH, Texas - A DC-9 airplane carrying explosives for the military took off early Saturday with its cargo door open, turned back in an attempt to make an emergency landing but crashed, killing both people aboard, officials reported.

Officials at Carswell Air Force Base withheld the names of the two crew members killed in the crash. They both worked for a civilian charter service, Evergreen International Aircraft in McMinnville, Ore., the Federal Aviation Administration reported.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - For the Lake Mary Rams, it was almost a perfect game.

With pitcher Alex Birle confounding the Lake Brantley hitters, the Rams scored just enough wins to beat the Patriots 3-1 in a Seminole Athletic Conference game played at the Lake Brantley High School Field on Friday night.

"I've got a tiger out there on the mound and eight scrappers behind himw ho won't give up." said an elated Allan Tuttle, coach of the Lake Mary Rams. "We played real well tonight."

He won't get any arguement from Lake Brantley. Whenever the right pitch needed to be thrown, Birle threw it. Whenever a defensive play needed turning, the Rams made it. And when a big hit was important, well, you get the

Power faces five life terms for Longwood rape, burglary

By BRAD CHURCH Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Robert B. Power Jr. faces five possible life terms after a Seminole Circuit Court jury on Saturday convicted him of 11 separate crimes stemming from 1987 burglary and rape in Longwood.

The jury deliberated for three hours following closing arguments Saturday before bringing in the verdicts, all related to the burglary and the rape of a 28-year-old

Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. ordered a pre-sentence report and said the date for sentencing would be set

Assistant State Attorneys Jeff Dees and Robert Flaher, who prosecuted the case, said Power, of Kissimmee, could receive five possible life terms for convictions of burglary using a deadly weapon and including battery on the victim of the apartment, two counts of sexual battery involving a deadly weapon. kidnapping, and aggravated assault with a weapon.

Power also was found guilty of aggravated battery, robbery using a deadly weapon, criminal mischief, theft, burglary to a conveyance (an automobile), and grand theft of an auto.

Power is expected to be tried next month for one of the four rapes of which he is accused in Osceola County. He also faces charges of rape and murder in Orange County in connection with the death of 12-year-old Angela Bare.

Power, who sat calmly at the defense table during the trial recording testimony on a portable tape recorder and conferring with his attorneys, showed little emotion during the reading of the verdicts. He only shook his head slightly when the guilty verdict to the first count of sexual battery was announced.

He was the first defendant in Seminole County to be convicted through the use of DNA samples. Those samples helped tie Power to the crimes.

The assistant director of a New York forensic laboratory testified Friday that DNA samples obtained from Power's blood matched those from semen stains on panties worn by the woman who was raped.

Dr. Kevin McElfresh, of the Lifecodes Corporation forensic laboratory in Valhalla, N.Y., said the chances ☐Sec Guilty, Page 2A

Shuttle makes 'textbook landing'

United Press International

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE — The shuttle Discovery, cheered on by a half-million spectators, glided to a triumphant touchdown Saturday, leaving a $100 million satellite in orbit and ending the first of seven shuttle flights for 1989.

With the Star Spangled Banner playing on airfield loudspeakers, commander Michael Coats and co-pilot John Blaha skillfully maneuvered their ship to a textbook landing at 6:36 a.m. PST - straight down the middle of a long concrete runway at Edwards Air Force Base in the high desert of California.

"Houston, Discovery, wheels stopped!" Coats radioed from the cockpit of the spaceplane, which looked in remarkably good condition after its flery re-entry.

"Well done, Discovery," astronaut Frank Culbertson replied from mission control in Houston. "That's one to be proud of. We felt like we rode through the whole mission with you. Great way to start the '89 schedule,

"You bet," Coats agreed. "First of a lot.

The morning sunlight glinted off the winged-orbiter as it banked overhead on final approach, thrilling the estimated 450,000 spectators who camped out overnight in mobile homes, tents and sleeping bags in the dusty Mojave Desert.

"Exhibarating was the word of the day, gushed teacher Bill Taylor of Visalia, Calif. Said Boy Scout Paul Hoeprich, 11, of Havasu City. Ariz.: "I've always wanted to watch it

For Coats, 43, Blaha, 46, and crewmates James Bagian, 37, Robert Springer, 46, and James Buchli, 43, landing capped a triumphant $375 million voyage, the third post-Challenger shuttle flight and the 28th in the program.

"Thank God for America," Blaha said. "We have a free country. We have a great educational system that produces engineering expertise that allows us to build something like this space shuttle. So we're very blessed. God bless you and Gold bless America.

Added Buchli: "This year's starting out just fantastic with one of the smoothest flights that I've ever seen. And I'm ready to do it again." The crew made their remarks before boarding a jet for a flight to Houston. For four laboratory rats that accompanied the fliers in orbit, however, the end came swiftly. The rodents were killed with an overdose of anesthesia four hours after landing so their deliberately broken legs could be examined in a student experiment to find out how weightlessness affects bone healing.

Rear Adm. Richard Truly, a veteran astronaut and chief of the program, said Discovery and its critical coating of protective tiles, came through the flight with flying colors, although results of a more detailed inspection were not expected for several days.

"The vehicle is as clean as any orbiter that I personally have ever seen." Truly said at a post-landing news conference. "There almost is no visible tile damage at all. A few minor chips here and there."

CAPE CANAVERAL - With Discovery back on the ground in apparently good shape, NASA officials are increasingly confident the post-Challenger space agency can meet an ambitious seven-flight 1989 launch schedule.

Engineers are gearing up to hauf the shuttle Atlantis to the launch pad Thursday for blastoff in just six weeks to carry a $530 million Venus probe into space.

"We've got a lot to do in the next year and in the future." Rear Adm. Richard Truly, associate administrator for spaceflight, said after Discovery's landing Saturday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. "But I think this flight of the shuttle, again, shows what a marvelous and capable vehicle it is. I'm extremely happy with where we are."

Atlantis, already bolted to an external fuel tank and a pair of solid-fuel boosters, is scheduled to blast off April 28 to ferry the Magellan Venus radar mapper into space in a flight marking the first use of a space shuttle to launch an interplanetary spacecraft.

Magellan, mounted atop a $45 million 'inertial upper stage" booster for the flight to Venus, was taken to a special "white room" at launch pad 39B Friday. The spacecraft was designed to map the aurface of Venus with a sophisticated cloud-piercing radar.

Atlantis is scheduled to be hauled to the firing stand early Thursday for final prepara-

Martinez, McCollum in El Salvador

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Bob Martines, named by President Bush to co-chair a delegation observing today's elections in El Salvador, says he hopes to see democracy strengthened in the war-torn nation.

Rep. Bill McCollum, who represents Seminole County, is a member of the delegation.

Martinez said, "The main thing is, this is the fifth or sixth election held since the new constitution was adopted (in 1983). If we can get another one under our belt on Sunday, there's a decent turnout and there's a transition of power from one president to another and it's done without revolt, then I think we've made a lot of progress.'

Martinez said he was appointed to co-chair the delegation last week, but withheld comment until the White House officially announced his appointment Friday. He will chair the 19-member delegation along with Sen. Mitch McConnell.

Chappell treated for cancer

Former Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla., who lost his re-election bid last November in the wake of his implication in the Peniagon scandal, says he is undergoing treatment for bone cancer at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

"I want all my friends to know I'm feeling fine and plan to see them back in the district soon," Chappell said.

He said he is anxious to return because he is planning to establish an active law practice in June.

Chappell was defeated in the November election by political novice Craig James by 732 votes, but he did not concede defeat until Dec. 16, 5 1/2 weeks later.

Chappell was a 20-year member of the House and had been linked to the Pentagon procurement scandal earlier in 1988. He was chairman of the House Subcommittee on Military Procurement and a staunch supporter of defense spending.

Chappell was named in several documents released last summer relating to the pentagon kickback and bribery scandal but was never charged and repeatedly said he did nothing wrong.

He was criticized for allowing several major defense contractors to help him out of a financial jam when they purchashed or arranged for the sale of several failing business interests over the past five years.

Eastern says plans are for sale

MIAMI - Eastern Airlines, pursuing plans to downsize the carrier, is exploring the marketplace to determine what interest there would be in buying some of its smaller planes, a spokeswoman said Saturday.

The airline, which entered the third week of its machinists union strike Saturday, telexed a bulletin to other airlines and to aircraft brokers around the world inviting offers for its narrow-body aircraft.

The Boeing 757s and 727s along with its DC9s make up most of Eastern's 230-plane fleet, but spokeswoman Karen Ceremsak explained that they are not all for sale.

"We have said all along we have to consider other asset sales to finance the building out of bankruptcy," Ceremsak said. "At the bankruptcy press conference we said we would probably emerge at 60-70 percent of previous size. If we're going to be two-thirds the previous size, obviously we're going to have

Teen murderer gets minimum 3 years

CLEARWATER — A 16-year-old boy who killed one educator and wounded two others in a caleteria shooting spree in February 1986 has been sentenced to 17 years in prison with a mandatory minimum of three years.

Jason Harless of Pinelias Park already has served 13 months in jail waiting for his trial and then his sentence, and could be released in two years.

Harless was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Pinellas Park High School assistant principal Richard Allen. But a jury found him guilty in January of the lesser charge of second-degree murder, a conviction that could have resulted in a sentence of 20 years.

Harless and Jason McCoy, also now 16, went to the high school with two loaded pistols they had stolen from the home of a friend. While they were in the cafeteria McCoy was approached by an administrator who had been tipped that the youth had a gun.

The testimony, considered the key in the state's case against Power, came in the fifth day of the trial, in which the first 21/2 days were spent picking the six members of the jury.

Alan Guisti, the person who actually performed the tests, also testified. He described himself as a forensic molecular biologist who formerly worked at the Lifecodes laboratory and is now employed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in research and development in the use of DNA as evidence in criminal trials.

DNA is found in every cell of every person and contains genetic material unique to that person. Scientists say identification by DNA sample is many times more accurate than identification by fingerprints.

The tests done in New York compared DNA from Power, from the rape victim and from Power's brother, William Gary Power, to the DNA from the Guisti told the jury that although the technology to perform such tests has been available since the mid 1970s, it has only been applied to crime-solving since 1985.

Evidence using DNA has been used in rape trials only in the past year. This is the first Seminole County trial in which such evidence has been introduced.

Power is charged with 11 separate counts, including two counts of sexual assault, kidnapping, robbery and grand theft of an automobile.

The 28-year-old victim of the assault testified Wednesday that she was attacked while sleeping on a couch in her sister's apartment in Longwood in September 1987. She said she was tied up while the victim ransacked the apartment, then he forced her at knifepoint to have oral sex, then raped her on the living room floor while holding the knife to her throat.

She said the man wore a mask over the lower part of his face and she could not identify him.

The assailant rifled the victim's purse, took her keys and stole her car, which was parked in front of the apartment. the victim said. The car was later found parked near Power's home in Kissimmee.

Guisti explained to the jury Friday the procedure used in breaking open blood and semen cells and separating DNA from other cellular material. He in 24 million; with four it is one explained how the DNA samples in 35 million;

The more replications of the test, using different synthetic DNA, the more accurate the test is, Dr. McElfresh said. He said with three replications, the chances of more than one person having DNA which would match is one Discovery's picture-perfect landing came 37 minutes after sunrise - and five days after its thunderous blastoff Monday from the Kennedy Space Center. Fla., to launch a $100 million Tracking and Data Relay Satel-lite - TDRS - to complete a globe-spanning NASA communications network.

Thanks to a similar TDRS parked 22,300 miles over the Pacific Ocean, ground controllers kept constant contact with Discovery during its re-entry "blackout" period, a first in the American manned space program, officials said.

The TDRS network was designed to allow ground controllers to stay in touch with shuttle crews and other satellites over at least 85 percent of each orbit. With the new satellite on station, NASA will be able to shut down five ground stations

With the successful flight of Discovery, America's civilian space agency faces six more shuttle missions this year rebuilding on the ashes of the crippling 1988 Challenger accident.

"Now the fun begins," Truly said, ticking off a list of projects, starting with the April 28 launch of the $530 million Magellan Venus mapper aboard the shuttic Atlantis.

Coats and Blaha had hoped to get in a crosswind landing on a dry lakebed runway at Edwards. but the desert winds were too light and Discovery was ordered to the concrete strip.

Shuttle brakes have had major problems during past landings and in the wake of the Challenger disaster, NASA managers decided to make them less susceptible to damage.

LONDON — Investigators have identified the luggage used to hide the bomb that blew up Pan American Flight 103 last December over Scotland but not the bomber, a senior police official said.

The explosive was hidden in a radio cassette player, a discovery that may be linked to West German warnings last November to British and American officials and airlines, including Pan Am and Trans World Airways.

The warning told the concerned parties to be on the lookout between Nov. 6 and Nov. 10 for a Toshiba Bombeat 453 radio-cassette player, packed with Semtex plastic explosives and rigged to detonate while an airplane was in flight, West German officials said Friday.

Pan Am Flight 103, en route from Frankfurt, West Germany, to New York, was blown into 4 million pieces by a bomb disguised as a radio-cassette player Dec. 21, killing all 259 people aboard and 11 residents on the ground at Lockerbie, Scotland.

In Edinburgh, Scotland's senior law officer, Lord Peter Fraser, said Friday that police determined the type of baggage that contained the bomb but not who planted it.

"It is not only known that the bomb was contained within a tape recorder of a cassette type, but the type of the item of baggage in which that tape recorder was contained is now known and that will allow the police to take a further step forward in the inquiries they are making both on a national and an international basis," Fraser

With relatives of the 270 victims pressing for action and British politicians complaining that the warnings of a possible attack were improperly handled, the U.S. Transportation Department announced meetings with European security officials to discuss anti-terrorism measures.

U.S. Secretary of Transportation Samuel Skinner said senior members of his staff will fly to the United Kingdom and West Germany this weekend to discuss security with other transportation officials.

"After meeting with representatives of the families who lost loved ones on Pan Am Flight 103 and after hearing of the recent developments in the United Kingdom and West Germany, I believe that more work needs to be done" to protect travelers from terrorism. Skinner said in a statement.

Skinner also said he will be in Europe next month to discuss anti-terrorist programs with his counterparts from England, France and West Germany, as well as the heads of major European and American airlines and security personnel.

Anti-smog plan adopted in California

CARSON, Calif. — A sweeping plan designed to clean up the smoggiest air in the nation by radically altering the lifestyles of car-crazed Southern Californians was approved Friday by two regional government boards.

regional government boards.

The 20-year plan — which must still meet the approval of the state Air Resources Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency — is seen as the most ambitious and politically volatile proposal to be advanced in the decades-long quest to bring blue skies to the area.

Opponents have criticized its many provisions — there are 120 in all — as draconial, while proponents say the payoff will mean that by 2008, every noxious air pollutant that endangers human health will be within limits allowed by the federal Clean Air Act.

WASHINGTON — An environmental group unfairly scared Americans by saying children face a health risk from pesticides on apples, Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said, urging schools to put the fruit back on their menus.

During a speech to a National Newspaper Association conference Friday, Yeutter strongly defended the government's food safety system and criticized the campaign to force immediate withdrawal of the pesticide Alar.

It was Yeutter's first comment on the controversial issue.
The Natural Resources Defense Council, in a report last

Chilean fruit ban lifted, new inspection plan adopted tions in place, we believe we can

United Press International

WASHINGTON - President Bush ended restrictions that had been placed on Chilean fruit because of a cyanide scare and officials announced a plan for stricter inspections to allow grapes and berries back on the market.

Chile will increase security on its fruit, and begin inspections and laboratory tests before fruit leaves for the United States, officials said Friday. A U.S. team, including an experienced inspector and a scientist specializing in cyanide, planned a trip to Chile to aid the Chileans.

There was no timetable for bringing larger fruit, such as melons, into the American food network. Frank Young, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, said it had not been decided how long the stepped-up inspection schedule would stay in effect.

At the same time, U.S. officials said a new threat had been made to the U.S. Embassy in Santiago, Chile, claiming that more fruit was being poisoned. Young said copycat threats are common after a tampering episode but added, "we have been advised it is probably the same person" whose threats led to the discov-

Pinochet blamed the Communist Party for the "economic terrorism" but also said the U.S. response was "unexplainable" and inflicted "severe damage."

The ban was imposed after two grapes in Philadelphia were discovered to have been injected with cyanide. Two anonymous telephone calls to the U.S. Embassy in Chile threatening the poisoning of fruit prompted increased inspection. Canada and Japan quickly followed with bans of their own.

Six hours after the United States lifted its ban, Canada announced it would do the same, although Chilean grapes, berries and vegetables will undergo an "enhanced program" of Inspection by Canadian officials.

Sergio Romero, vice president of the National Society of Agriculture, said the group of producers estimated losses this season of $400 million. But he said long-term damage could be much higher.

Unions and business organizations have said the ban that began Monday in the United States has cost at least 17,000 jobs and threatened thousands more.

Duarte calls on U.S. to limit amount of aid to El Salvador

United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador - President Jose Napoleon Duarte warned that political gains by rightists could endanger democracy in El Salvador and called on the Bush administration to impose conditions on U.S. aid.

"President Bush must set limits by which aid can be given, if these principal points are observed." Duarte said Friday in an interview with United Presa International. He said the principal points were democratic values such as respect for freedom and human life. Duarte, suffering from termi-nal liver cancer, repeatedly warned that a resurgence of right-wing repression in El Salvador would endanger the "nascent democracy" that he said was tile legacy of his presidence and pave the way for a takeover. I left-wing guerril-

Duarte said the next governformed by the right-wing National Republican Alliance, or ARENA, party, "could move together with the armed forces to a policy of repression." 'The level of persecution would be such a witch hunt that it would create a total confrontation between the people and the government." he said.

The consequences of such a confrontation, he said, would be the suspension of foreign aid, which in turn would create the conditions for a leftist victory.

Duarte's term of office ends June 1. National elections Sunday will elect his successor, and opinion polls indicate the likely winner will be Alfredo Cristiani of ARENA.

Asked whether he was referring to possible consequences under an ARENA government, Duarte said, "Yes, it could be ARENA or any other party." But he acknowledged "the right has a greater chance than the left" of taking power.

Asked if he was advocating that the United States use economic aid as a lever to prevent such a scenario, Duarte said: "I have tried to show how countries from abroad can help. ... It is logical that the United States try to export (democracy), and that aid be directed to strengthening democracy."

Diplomats and human rights monitors in El Salvador have warned that a victory by ARENA in Sunday's elections could spark a resurgence of death squads that killed thousands of suspected leftist sympathizers in the early 1980s.

Cristiani, a U.S.-educated businessman, has vowed there will be no such resurgence, but other ARENA leaders have spoken of the need to launch an all-out war against leftists.

Maj. Roberto d'Aubuisson, the ARENA founder, has been accused of masterminding death squad activities while he was an army officer earlier this decade.

Duarte, president of El Salvador since 1982, said the greatest achievement of his presidency has been to "reinforce the trend toward democracy."

But, he added. "The democratic child we have created is still very weak ... It needs to be pretected. That is the danger

Egypt's top police official calls Iran's Khomeini a 'pig'

United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt - Egypt's top police official called Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini a pig and criticized his death decree against British author Salman Rushdie.

interior Minister Zaki Badr made the comments Friday to foreign journalists during a tour of the village of El-Kom El-Ahmar, west of Cairo, where police and Moslem extremists clashed recently, resulting in the brief detention of 30 people.

Badr said he disagreed with

Khomeini's death decree against Rushdie, issued Feb. 14 because of the Indian-born author's novel. "The Satanic Verses." which Moslems consider blasphemous because of its parody of the Prophet Mohammed.

"You know that President Hosni Mubarak has said that of course it is wrong. This is not the system (method) to treat him. It is not the system to kill him or punish him for a book. It is not like so. Confront him by other means. Face him with facts, with opinions and so on," Badr sald speaking in English.

Asked for his opinion of the Iranian spiritual leader, he said: "Khombini is a dog. Pardon me, no, w, he is not a dog, he is a pig, for a dog is Moslems are strictly forbidden to eat pork and describing someone as a pig is considered deeply insulting.

Badr, who as interior minister is responsible for domestic security and has been at the forefront of Egypt's fight against Moslem extremism, said the growing influence of Islam in Egypt did not reflect support for Khomeini.

But he said extremist Moslem groups, led by the outlawed Moslem Brotherhood, "only want to seize power by force."

Members of the Brotherhood were elected to Parliament in 1987.

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates - Prince Charles of Britain withdrew from a scheduled polo match in the Persian Gulf port city of Dubai because of heightened security concerns in the wake of Moslem furor over "The Satanic Verses," officials said.

"There has been no specific threat but the government felt it would be prudent for Prince Chacles not it take part in the match for security consid-erations," a resian Gulf-based British diplomat said Friday.

Charles and his wife, Princess Diana, were in Dubai on the third leg of a gulf tour that included Kuwait and Bahrain. UAE officials said Diana has already left for London and Charles was scheduled to travel alone to Saudi Arabia before returning to Britain.

The heir to the British throne withdrew from the polo match Friday, a day after foreign ministers from 46 Moslem countries joined Iran in condemning British author Salman Rushdie as an apostate.

Iran had denounced the prince's visit to the gulf as an "insult to Moslems." The Islamic republic earlier severed relations with Britain, Rushdie's adopted country, for protecting the writer

Outrage over the book continued to ferment Friday in among Moslems worldwide.

In Bangladesh, about 40,000 Moslems rallied before the national mosque in Dhaka and then marched through the capital calling for Rushdie's death. Scores of police watched the peaceful protest but did not interfere.

The massive demonstration was sponsored by the Jamaati Islami, a fundamentalist Islamic political party, which said it organized hundreds of other protests around the country.
"We demand that Salman Rushdie be hanged in the same way as the British hanged many for blasphemy in the past."

Jamaati Islami leader Abdul

In Sudan, several thousand people marched through Khartoum demanding a break in diplomatic ties with the United States and Britain to protest their publication of the novel.

In Malaysia, the Home Ministry banned two magazines from a death decree issued by from carrying extracts of "The Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Satanic Verses." The government last month joined other Moslem states in prohibiting publication of the book.

In Beirut, a pro-Syrian magazine magazine said the con-troversy over "The Satante Verses" disrupted a deal aimed at freeing three British hostages held in Lebanon, including Anglican church hostage negotiator Terry Waite.

Rushdie, who was born a Mosiem in Bombay, India and necame a British citizen, went into hiding after Khomeini issued the order for his death Feb. 14. His book contains a dream sequence that many Moslems regard as an insulting parody of the Mohammed.

British officials in Dubai in the United Arab Emirates said Prince Charles was reluctant to withdraw from the polo match but did so at the advice of the British Foreign Office. The match took place without him.

There is a large Iranian community in Dubai, a port opposite the southern Iranian mainland. and Tehran radio earlier this week called the royal tour through the Gulf "an insult to Moslems" because of the Rushdie affair.

In Beirut, Ash Shiraa magazine, best known for disclosing the secret U.S.-Iran arms-forhostages deal in 1986, quoted what it called "British political sources" as saying Iran's Parliament speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani and the British Foreign Office exchanged several letters concerning the fate of the hostages shorthly before the Rushdie saga.

The Red Cross spokesman, Alberto Ferreira, said an explosion destroyed a police truck carrying civilians in downtown San Salvador. He said five of the seven victims treated by the Red Cross were hospitalized and two released, but that others were taken to hospital in private cars.

The grenade attack was typi-cal of the FMLN campaign to paralyze the country through attacks aimed at intimidating voters into staying home on election day, a campaign that has placed the country under a siege atmosphere but whose success remains unclear.

The government has launched a nationwide effort to persuade voters to go to the polls, turning the military out in massive deployments to protect civilians from attack, manning public buses with army drivers to defy the transport ban, and bombarding Salvadorans with radio, television and sound-truck messages.

Car bomb explosion takes fifteen lives

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon - A car bomb exploded in front of a crowded East Beirut bakery only yards from the British consulate, killing 15 people and wounding at least 140, police said.

The car, laden with 110 pounds of TNT and flammable liquid, was parked in a yard facing the bakery, which is located only 50 yards from the consulate in the commercial area of Jal El Dib.

A police spokesman said 15 people were killed and at least 140 were wounded Friday in the blast. Most of the casualties were people lined up in front of the bakery to stock up on bread in anticipation of a resumption of fighting.

The blast, heard miles away, damaged the British consulate and shattered windows of shops and offices within a half-mile radius. At least 15 cars were destroyed and five were set ablaze by the explosion.

Christian radio reports said the bomb may have been aimed at the British consulate. Pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem groups in Lebanon have threatened to strike at British interests because of British author Salman Rushdie's novel, "The Satanic Verses," which Moslems have condemned as blasphemous.

A British Embassy spokesman refuted that report.

Financial fortune worrles Schott

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) - Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott believes baseball's escalating salaries might be endangering the future of the game in smaller markets.
"Right now I'm a little concerned about baseball when we see what the players are getting," Schott said Saturday. "But I don't blame the players."

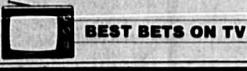

Schott, speaking at the Ohio UPI Broadcasters' Association convention, said she wonders if franchises in smaller markets like Cincinnati and

Milwaukee will be able to compete against teams paying higher salaries because of lucrative local cable contracts in major markets. "I just hope we get some financial responsibility in baseball, because our areas (like Cincinnati) need it." Schott said. "I'm very concerned about whether cable will work in a small area."

There's obtaining information from college coaches, verifying handicaps for the amateurs playing, making sure that the donated prizes are on hand, typing thank-you notes, checking rules sheets, putting together a program that includes

"You set time frames for certain things, but I've got to be honest with you," said Austin. "It all (preparations) comes together in the last two weeks. It's sort of scary. It takes a bunch of time and lots of patience."

Thirteen teams, together with Rollins' three individuals, participate in today's co-am (sponsors and players) before embarking over a back-breaking 36 holes Monday culminated by Tuesday's 18 holes.

The field has made all Austin's work worthwhile.

The University of Missouri returns to defend its title and is favored along with San Diego State. Central Florida and Methodist College of North Carolina are expected to challenge.

Individually, Rollins' Bettina Walker and San Diego State's JoAnne Walker are the best bets to win this prestigious event followed closely by Methodist's Joy Bonhurst and Holly Anderson. Bettina Walker, a senior, captured the NCAA Division II-III title last May. Her namesake from

With pitcher Alex Birle confounding the Lake Brantley hitters, the Rams scored just enough wins to beat the Patriots 3-1 in a Seminole Athletic Conference game played at the Lake Brantley High School Field on Friday night. Tve got a tiger out there on the mound and eight scrappers behind himw ho won't give up," said an elated Allan Tuttle, coach of the Lake Mary Rams. "We played real well tonight." He won't get any arguement from Lake Brantley. Whenever the right pitch needed to be thrown. Birle threw it. Whenever a defensive play needed turning, the Rams made it. And when a big hit was important, well, you get the idea. The Patriots, playing before a full house at their beautiful complex, reached Birle for a run in the second

Jason Varitek opened with a single that Ram right flelder Shane Stufflet played into a double. After Birle struck out Chris Knutson. Dalton Reed hit a ball that Lake Mary shortstop Jason Sewell mishandled.

It looked like Lake Mary would dodge the bullet when third baseman Nell James took a ball hit by Shawn Burke and trapped Varitek off third. But Mitch Shatto. the Patriot designated hitter, delivered an rbi single to put Lake Brantley up 1-0.

That was as much as the Patriots could do against Birle, despite loading the bases with one out in the fourth inning and having runners at second and third with two out in the sixth. In the fourth inning, Birle worked his way out of the Jam with a strike out and a ground ball while killing the sixth inning rally with a pair of strikeouts.

New law to fight plastic pollution

the books which can have some dramatic impact on boaters and fishermen who are unaware of Beginning Jan. 1, 1989, disposing of anything plastic in waters where the U.S. Coast Guard has jurisdiction became a federal offense. Fines are very hefty - up to $25,000 in civil offenses and $50,000 fines and five years in jail for criminal offenses. These statistics should grab the attention of the most careless boater.

Plastic pollution is a serious problem because plastic is not bio-degradable and remains inthe environment for many years. posing a threat for both wildlife and fishes.

Fishermen and boaters can aid in reducing plastic pollution, and also avoid some gigantic fines. by retaining monofilament line. rupe, balt bags and other plastic products for proper disposal on shore; storing galley and other wastes for disposal at port; retrieving debris; and informing others about how harmful plastic debris canb e to the marine environment.

To me, nothing is sadder than to be on a crystal-clear waterway, away from it all, and see the bottom strewn with plastic debris and aluminum cans. The beauty and innocence of nature is too often ruined by the thoughtlesness and carelessness of man. We are part of the problem, but we can easily be part of the solution. It is a simple matter to place your boating and fishing debris in a 5 gallon bucket or a plastic garbage bag for disposal on shore. By performing this casy task, you will eliminate clutter in your boat and do your part to beautify our waterways and to protect wildlife and fishes.

Shupe's Scoop Old fishing line can easily be removed from reels by ataching a plastic spool to an electric drill and using the rapid revolutions of the drill to quickly strip the line. Pishing forecast Bass fishing is above average in the Puszle Lake area. Fish jetties is the best spot.

areas that are in the main channel and use plastic worms and Rapalas for the best results. Specks are still hitting in Lakes

Harney and Jessup. Steve Gard at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports that the specks are in the Shallows and that anglers are having to work for their catches. The average size of bass is up, but anglers are finding that the fish are scattered. Fish run-offs and Hard sand bars for the best results.

Snook are hitting at Sebastian Inlet. Jigs and large swimming plugs such as Rapalas or Rebels are catching most of the fish. Redfish, a few flounder, and bluefish are rounding out the action. Captain Jack at Port Canaveral is hoping for calm seas this weekend. Hopefully the ocean will clean up after the last big blow. King mackeral, dolphin, wahoo and cobia will be ready to cooperate when the seas subside. Give Jack a call at (407) 783-3694 for the latest information before you decide to take off. Inside the Port, flounder and sheepshead are providing most of the action. Trout and reds are starting to move back onto the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers with the warmer eather

Half-ounce gold spoons are deadly for both species, but you can alos have a lot of fun with topwater plugs. Sheepshead, drum, tedfish and some whiting are hitting solidly at the New Smyrna jetties. Life shrimp fished on the bottom with a small weight is a sure bet for a big stringer of fish. The north side of the north

Watson disputes PGA ruling on Ballesteros

United Press International

PONTE VEDRA - Tom Watson took issue with the PGA Tour Saturday over its refusal to allow Spaniard Seve Ballesteros to play as many tournaments as he wants in the United States.

"We're keeping out one of the premier golfers in the world," Watson said of the Tour rule that foreigners must play in at least 15 U.S. events or have their play in this country restricted to about half that many.

Watson said that while he agrees the Tour needs rules, "an exception should be made for Seve because he has won five major championships." Ballesteros won the British

Open for the third time last summer and has won the Masters twice. Because of his unwillingness to commit to at least 15 regular Tour events each year, he's limited to five of those plus the major championships, which are not under PGA Tour jurisdiction.

"If I were commissioner, I'd let him have a special sponsor's exemption every week." Watson said. "American players can play overseas whenever we wish. but we don't extend that same privilige to foreign players." Watson, who has won eight major championships, including five British Opens, but no tournament since 1987, insists he still has the same desire to win at age 39 that he had when he was one of the top golfers in the world. "I still have the fire, yes I do,"

he said. "I still want to play like I did 10 years ago. But my priorities are a bit different now because my family comes first, golf. "It could be my body is saying 'no more," Watson said. "But I could come back. My career is atill golf. That and betting on NCAA basketball."

This week's Players Championship, where he was far off the pace after shooting 1-under par golf through the first three rounds, was Watson's seventh tournament of the year. And the $8,631 he had won so far was far off his normal pace during a 19-year career in which he has earned nearly $5 million.

"I'm not as good from tee to green as I used to be, but putting is the thing," Watson said. "It's hard when you're' not putting well."

This past Thursday, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell, the two front-running teams, posted impressive wins. At Lake Mary, second baseman Michelle Davis and the un-defeated Lady Patriots erased Tara Calvin (on the ground) and the host Lady Rams 6-2. At Lake Howell, Diann Lowe (No. 19) and the Lady Silver Hawks beat Oviedo 11-1. Lake Brantley (which has beaten the Lady Hawks once already this year) and Lake Howell will meet in what may be a winner-take-all confrontation on April 4 at Lake Howell.

Rutzebeck, a freshman left fielder from Leesburg, was a one-man wrecking crew for the Raiders. He was 2-5 on the afternoon, including Seminole's fourth grand slam of the year, a long shot to left center in the fifth. He also drove in run No. 8 with a single in the eighth and robbed a Dundalk player of a home run in the ninth, crashing into and reaching over the left field fence to make the catch.

Bynum threw an excellent game, giving up only two runs and scattering six hits through six innings before tiring in the seventh. He had struck out four and walked none, but in the seventh he gave up two runs on three hits and a walk before being relieved by Steve Clemente. who got out of the inning without any further

There weren't many errors in Friday night's baseball game between Lake Mary and Lake Brantley and even those that were committed were quickly corrected. For example, Lake Mary's Todd Christensen (running) was safe at first when Lake Brantley first baseman Jim Morse couldn't catch up with an errant throw by shortstop Brad Schectman. But on the next play, Morse erased Christensen by turning a line drive into an unassisted double play.

He kept making the right pitch. He's a battler.'

While Lake Brantley misfired, Lake Mary capitalized on the one opportunity that Patriot pitcher Mark Gabrovic allowed them. After managing just two base runners (one on an error, the other via a walk), the Rams opened the top of the third with an bad-hop single by Stufflet and a clean single by Birle.

Derek Wolfe then laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt, moving the runners up one base, setting up Greg James' rbi sacrifice fly to tie the game. Todd Christensen gave the Rama the lead with a double up the alley in

It was almost a shame that Gabrovic had to take the loss. having matched Birle pitch for pitch with one exception.

"The first time around, he had them confused," said Smith of Gabrovic's early success against the Rams. "He changed speeds and was moving the ball around. He just made one mistake."

Friday's loss continues a slight tailspin the Patriots have found themselves in lately, having dropped from a No. 6 ranking in the state polls to a 6-7 record (3.2 in the SAC) going into their game at DeLand.

Lake Mary, meanwhile, has run a few wins together and was 8-3 going into its game at Deltona on Saturday. In conference play, the Rams are 4-0, just one-half game behind the surprising Lyman Greyhounds.

See if you can answer this question...There's a man who was once voted the Most Valuable Player in the NCAA tourney when he played for Princeton in the Final Four that year...Today, Bradley is a U.S. Senator from New Jersey.

Eurprisingly, one of sports' most famous teams has a nickname that is gramatically wrong...What team is that?...It's the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League...The usual plural of "leaf" is "leaves" — not "leafs" — so they should really be the Toronto "Maple Leaves" instead of "Maple

Here's an oddity...There are some sports in which the ball is sideline - and there are other sports in which the ball is out-ofbounds when it hits that line...The ball is "in" when it hits the line in baseball and tennis — and it's "out" when it hits the line in basketball and football.

Duke reaches 'Sweet 16' again

United Press International

GREENSBORO, N.C. - Defense has Duke on another march in the NCAA Tourna-

The No. 7 Blue Devils held No. 19 West Virginia to two points in the final 3 minutes Saturday, beat the Mountaineers 70-63 and advanced into the final 16 for the fourth consecutive season.

"It was an outstanding defensive game," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We had to fight like hell to win it."

Freshman Christian Laettner had 6 straight points down the stretch, then the Blue Devils made their defensive stand. The final margin was the largest of the second half.

Duke, 26-7, will play Friday in the East Regionals at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., where they carned trips to the Final Four in 1986 and 1988.

Danny Ferry scored 20 points to lead Duke, and Lacttner finished with 14, including 12 in the second half. Robert Brickey added 10. Duke shot only 43.1 percent but made 11 more free throws and forced the usually sure-handed Mountaineers into 22 turnovers.

"It was good for us to get into a battle like that," said Ferry, who drew a charge with 39 seconds left and Duke protecting a 66-63 lead. "But we're fortunate we don't play in two days. We need a rest."

Minnesota 80, Siena 67

GREENSBORO, N.C. - In a battle of runs. Minnesota had both the longer and the last one Saturday.

The Gophers put together a 16-1 spurt shortly after Siena had scored 13 straight points and went on to down the Saints 80-67 and move into the final 16 of the NCAA Tournament.

"We struggled with their press and they hit some 3-pointers, but we were able to regain our composure, suck it up and make the clutch baskets." Minnesota Coach Clem Haskins said. "I thought our guys played with a lot of determination."

Jim Shikenjanski made a jumper and free throw with 7.50 left to spark the decisive run and give the Gophers a 61-57 lead. After a Siena free throw, Minnesota followed with 11 straight points to pull away.

The Saints had only 12 points after they had taken a 55-54 lead with 9:43 to play by scoring 13 points in less than two minutes.

"It just took too much out of us," Siena Coach Mike Deane said of his team's surge. "After that run, we got complacent. We gave them shots and hoped they would miss crather than playing defense and making sure they missed:

Oklahoma 124, Louisiana Tech 81

NASHVILLE. Tenn - Oklahoma scored an NCAA Tournament-record 124 points Saturday and won with defense

Shaken out of their lethargy by an opening-round scare, the filth-ranked Sooners advanced into next week's NCAA Southeast Regional semifinals with a 124-81 rout of Louisiana Tech. Oklahoma built a tournament since 1985. 55-31 halftime lead and Mookie Blaylock emerged from a horrendous shooting slump to score 24 of his 34 points after

Blaylock's 3-point bank shot from midcourt at the buzzer pushed Oklahoma's total past the previous record of 123 points set by North Carolina against Loyola-Marymount

The catalyst for Oklahoma's 18th 100point game of the season was defense ... trapping, fullcourt pressure reminiscent of last year's Sooner team that reached the NCAA final. Louisiana Tech, so poised in an 83-74 triumph against LaSalle Thursday, committed 29 turnovers and shot just 36

The 30.5 Sooners, the top seed in the Southeast, move on to Lexington, Ky., while Louisiana Tech finished at 23-9.

"I think we got back to playing Sooner basketball," said Coach Billy Tubbs. "Our defense did the trick today. Anytime we're hyper on defense, good things happen. Today was refreshing to say the least. Sometimes you play to keep from losing today we played to win."

Virginia 104, Middle Tennesse 88

NASHVILLE, Tenn. - Vi.ginia sophomore John Crotty is turning the NCAA Tournament into a seminar on point guard

Crotty and backcourt partner Richard Morgan registered their second consecutive superb performance and Virginia never lost its poise despite a hostile crowd Saturday. advancing to the semifinals of the Southeast Regionals with a 104-88 victory against Middle Tennessee State.

Virginia, 21-10, will face No. 5 Oklahoma Thursday night in Lexington, Ky. The Sooners trounced Louisiana Tech 124-81, setting an NCAA Tournament single-game

Morgan registered his second straight 33-point effort and freshman forward Bryant Sith added 26 points, hitting all 12 of his free throw attempts. But the unquestioned Virginia standout has been Crotty, a 6-foot-1 floor general who followed Thursday's brilliant effort against Providence by scoring 25 points and handing out 14 of Virginia's

Tve had two straight career highs, so I can't complain," said Crotty, who hit 9-of-10 shots from the field against Providence while adding 10 assists. "I wish we could play the rest of our games here."

Illinois 72, Ball State 60

INDIANAPOLIS - Third-ranked Illinois Saturday moved as close to the NCAA basketball title as any team in the school's 13 tournament appearances

Nick Anderson scored 24 points and lilinois sank its first 10 shots from the field en route to a 72-60 victory over Ball State in a second-round game at the Hooster Dome. The Midwest region's No. 1 seed will play again Friday at Minneapolis in a third-round game, the farthest the Illim have been in the

"Nobody on this team has been past the second round," senior Kenny Battle said. "It will be a great feeling for us. It will be a challenge to see if we can play better than we did in the first two rounds."

The Illini have never won more than two games before being eliminated from the title hunt in 12 previous NCAA tournament appearances. In seven visits since 1981, the Illini were among the top 16 seeds but lost twice in the first round, three times in the second round and twice in their third game.

The triumph lifted the Illini to 29.4 while ending Ball State's 16-game winning streak. which was the nation's longest.

Illinois' quickness and pressure defense were the major factors in the game, both coaches said.

Louisville 93, Arkansas 84

INDIANAPOLIS - Pervis Ellison dominated under the boards, LaBradford Smith devastated with clutch baskets and the Louisville combination was more than Arkansas could stand Saturday.

Smith, a 6-foot-3 freshman guard, scored a game-high 26 points, half of them in the final 10:33. Ellison added 21 points and a game-high 15 rebounds and the Cardinals advanced to the Midwest Regional semifinals with a 93-84 triumph over Arkansas in the NCAA Tournament.

"LaBradford played one of his greatest games," Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson said. "Pervis did a great job on the boards. He's such a strong kid. They did the things you have to do to win."

Louisville, 24-8, will meet Illinois, 29-4, next week in Minneapolis. The Illini, the region's top seed, climinated Ball State 72.60 in Saturday's first game at the Hoosier Dome.

"I have no idea how matchups will be," Louisville Coach Denny Crum said. "I haven't been worrying about Illinois. They're a great team. It's a great challenge and we're looking forward to it. They finished the season on a roll. We're the underdogs and we love it like that."

Nevada-Las Vegas 85, DePaul 70

BOISE, Idaho - David Butler scored 23 points and Nevada-Las Vegas pulled away early in the second half Saturday to defeat DePaul 85.70 and carn a borth in the semifinals of the NCAA West Regional.

The Runnin' Rebels, 28-7, will face the winner of the Clemson-Arizona game in the West Regional next week in Denver.

The Rebels, paced by Butler's 14 points in the first half, grabbed a 30-20 lead on a jump shot by Butler with 6:57 left. But DePaul, 21-12, outscored the Rebels 20-10 for a 40-40 tie at the intermission UNLV outscored the Blue Demons 16-4 to open the second half and the closest DePaul could get in the second half was 9 points with 6:53 remaining

Butler, a 6-foot-10 junior, dominated playinside. He made 8 of 19 from the field and 7 of 10 free throws. Olympic forward Stacey Augmon added 17 points and 11 rebounds for the Rebels

NIT continues its long, proud heritage

United Press International

The National Invitation Tournament may have lost its prestige in the growth of the NCAA Tournament, but at least one coach is happy to be playing longer than some of the NCAA entrants.

"There are only 48 teams left playing (now 40, incluing NCAA Tournament teams) and we're one of them," Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote said after his team's firstround victory over Kent State. "I feel pretty good."
Michigan State will be one of a dozen NIT survivors that begin second-round play Monday night, when the Spartans host Wichita State. Five other second-round games are scheduled Monday night, with two more set for Tuesday night.

Michigan State, one of the smallest teams in the Big Ten. was in the unaccustomed position of holding a height advantage in its 83-69 triumph over Kent State. "We had a size advantage probably for the first time all year," said Steve Smith, who scored 28 points against Kent

However, the Spartans won't be able to enjoy the same advantage against the Shockers, who are led by 6-foot-10 center Sasha Radunovich and 6-8 forward Steve Graver.

On Friday night, Oklahoma State completed the draw for the second round with a 69-55 victory over Boise State. The Cowboys next will face St. John's on Tuesday night in New York.

The Redmen will be playing the game in memory of sports information director Katha Quinn, who died of cancer on Friday, one day before her 35th birthday.

"It's a great, great loss," St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca said. "You can't put it into words. What you'd like to think about is how much she meant to the Orogram, how good she was to the kids. They were like her own kids."

In other second-round games Monday night. Villanova plays host to Penn State. Alabama-Birmingham visits Richmond, California is at Connecticut, Nebraska visits Ohio State and Wisconsin plays host to St. Louis. On Tuesday night. Pepperdine visits New Mexico.

Alonzo meets Laphonso is a storybook match-up

United Press International

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - The meeting of Alonzo and Laphonso sounds like the premise for a Dr. Seuss story. Instead, it promises to be a spectacular showdown in Sunday's Georgetown Notre Dame NCAA tournament game.

Alonzo Mourning is the Hoyas' 6-foot-10 freshman center and outstanding shot-blocker. LaPhonso Ellis is the Fighting Irish's powerful 6-foot-9 freshman forward.

Ellis has studied Mourning's game and said Saturday, "He likes to play near the basket and plays strong there. I think that's where he's most effective."

Mourning also knows his opponent's abilities, saying of Ellis. He's an extremely mobile player who can play as well at center as he can at forward. Last year, they met as high team won 56-53, although Ellis had 26 points, 19 rebounds and 2 blocks versus Mourning's 20 points, 10 rebounds and 8

No. 2 Georgetown, 27-4. advanced to the second round of the East Regional by escaping with a 50-49 victory over Princeton. Mourning scored 21 points, including the Hoyas' final three on free throws, and blocked the Tigers' last two shots in the final seconds

Ellis, who appears fully recovered from a finger injury, played only 25 minutes in Notre Dame's 81-65 triumph Friday over Vanderbilt. In that time he grabbed 18 rebounds, scored 17 points and blocked 3 shots.

Mourning appears to have the finer supporting cast, especially with guard Charles Smith, the Big East Player of the Year

Her grading ministers to prisoners

Beatrice Norton jots encouraging notes on the tests she grades for Good News Jall and Prison By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Beatrice Norton is going strong at 72. Until recently, she spent nearly 14 hours a week grading and recording test results from a prisoners' Bible course.

The course is voluntary, given to prisoners in the Seminole County jail as part of the Good News Jail and Prison Ministries

And Norton's time is volunteered. In fact, her work with an average of 12,899 tests annually has earned her the honor of being named the ministry's Volunteer of the Year.

"I'm real happy to have gotten the award, but it's not just me," Norton is quick to say. "There were people who helped me with grading.'

In addition to her part-time job in the mail room of Sanford's International Headquarters of the New Tribes Mission (unrelated to Good News Ministries), her volunteer hours kept her days full. Almost too full. Norton has been a part of the Good News Jall and Prison Ministries for nearly a decade. She recently resigned her position as chief grader to devote more time to her other activities, including knitting, sewing, crocheting and a trio of granddaughters. She said she plans to remain with the ministry as a grader, but she has left the record-keeping responsibilities to someone else.

"It was a lot of paper work," she said. "I loved the grading, but the time that's consumed by the record keeping was getting to be too much."

She and her husband, Dale, lived for many years in the cold of Minnesota before he retired from a career with IBM.

They decided to spend their golden years with a son who had settled in Louisiana. It was a warm climate and there would be family nearby.

"But then the New Tribes Mission called and asked Dale if he'd come to their new headquarters and help them set up their computer system." Norton said.

When they were younger, the Nortons had been involved with New Tribes Mission, a non-denominational Protestant ministry that travels to remote areas of the world teaching the gospel to the natives.

That's how we got to Sanford," Norton said. After settling in Sanford, she got involved with the jail ministry through friends at her church. Sanford Bible Church, who previously had been

While Norton doesn't visit prisoners herself, she feels she is helping the inmates find spiritual comfort.

'On each test, I write comments on how they're coming along and encouraging them to keep up the good work," she said.

She said she usually has no idea for what crime the inmates are incarcerated. Sometimes an Inmate, comforted by her words of encouragement, will write a note to her explaining his situation, but Norton said everything between herself and the prisoners is strictly anonymous.

'Doo Wah Diddy' dancing was the cat's meow

By DORIS DIETRICH Herald correspondent

LAKE MARY - Dancers of Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole traded their ballet slippers and tutus for Oxfords, crinolines and poodle skirts at the guild's annual performance, "Doo Wah Diddy," this past weekend when they performed in three shows at Lake Mary High School.

But ballet buffs were not entirely left out. Some serious classical ballet was featured during rehearsal for a big community production at the play's dance studio.

Those who didn't attend missed a good show that was rocking 'n' olling with action and activity. 'Doo Wah" opened on the Starlite Drive-in with the gang dancing to "Rock Around the Clock," and ended with a finale that commanded a standing ovation.

A cast of 80, including 42 BGS company dancers, kept the cute little production hopping on stage.

The fast-moving story centered on a group of really good kids whose hearts belonged to dancing when they weren't goofing off at the Starlite Drive-In. There, the groovy Jivin' Jack, played by Bob Meyers, broadcast the goings-on from his radio shack high above the action-packed restaurant parking lot. Jivin' Jack tells the radio audience "about the mixed-up bunch who are out to lunch."

The scenario goes like this: Bifffootball hero, tennis acc, baseball white and track team star-played by Church Pastore, is another Astaire-Kelly-Travolta rolled into one. And he's just wild about Muffy, played by Heather Hoffman, a very rich teen-ager whose stuffy and dotting parents are portrayed by Sandy Orwig and Ed Korgan.

The drive-in crowd is also rehearsing for a big production at Rudolph Cavortski's Dance Studio. Mr. Cavortski, played by David ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - Temperatures were in the low 80s on Feb. 28 when Jerry Lowery finished his day's work at Lake Brantley High School, Altamonte Springs. and headed for home.

Lowery was driving on State Road 46 toward the Wekiva River Estates area in eastern Lake County when, about about 4:10 p.m., he saw a fan of smoke rising from his destination.

Turning down Wekiva River Road, the business math teacher saw a brush fire, only a half mile from his home. Lowery watched as the fire, feeding on dry trees in low humidity, crossed Wekiva River Road from open pasture to a housing area. Ed Spann, division chief for Lake County Fire Department, said the fire wouldn't have been anything more than an average fire, except that the wind turned. "It just happened that there were houses in its direct path. The wind turned and started toward the east, toward the houses." Spann said.

Lowery's concern centered on the mobile home nearest the fire, at the corner of Wekiva River Road and Wacassa Trail. He didn't know who lived there, but he found out they weren't home

He knew the fire extinguisher in his trunk was uscless. He grabbed a shovel, which also proved uscless against the large blaze. Then he found a garden hose in the yard and watered down the house as best he could.

A shed 10-15 yards from Lowery on the property sheltered a motorcycle, a rider and fuel tanks. As the fire reached it, the shed exploded.

Unharmed and undeterred. Lowery began clearing away what surrounded the house. In removing a bamboo fence around the home that was burning, he saw that it sheltered what he thought to be a propane tank. His heart skipped a beat to see flames were licking about the tank, which he later discovered did not hold propane.

A young house sitter had come out the home and was trying to get Lowery to rescue the family's fenced in dogs. Lowery braved the "Beware of Dog" sign and tried to free the dogs, who were too petrified of the fire to budge.

As the heat and smoke were taking their toll on Lowery. firefighters arrived on the scene. Coughing with sore lungs, Lowery looked on as the firefighters hosed down the area and extinguished the flames. Tractor plowers cut a firebreak to effectively seal off the

Young career explorers cried 'Eureka'

A week's worth of careeroriented activities at Milwee Middle School in Longwood gave its students the chance to dream, learn, think and plan about their futures.

The Kick-Off Rally for the week, which was to include a balloon release, took place Feb. 27 minus the release. The cancellation was due to how balloons sometimes drift into bodies of water thousands of miles away and cause the death of animals.

"We turned the cancellation into a learning experience for the students," said Barbara Witt, career education chairman and a business teacher at Milwee. The balloons were used to decorate the school.

The week's events ended with Career Fest '89, which took place in the school gymnasium on March 3.

Several local businesses participated in Career Fest with displays and booths. Students could chat with representatives from banks, hotels, hospitals, modeling agencies, a police department, the division of forestry, restaurants, artist and photography studios, and local utilities.

There's a lot of scare out there about the pesticides used on our fruits and vegetables. That's why Carolyn Taylor, the first vice president and program director of the Heathrow Women's Club, arranged for the program "Nutrition for a Vital You" at the March 13 meeting at Heathrow Racquet Club.

Phyllis Freeman of Bio-Nutrition Alternatives in Winter Park was the guest speaker. Freeman gave a one-hour presentation teaching the women how to change their families diets by preparing food differently.

"Everyone panicked when she (Freeman) gave directions for a wash for fruits and vegetables," said Shan Annette, the women's club president.

Dancing in the street

Twisting the night away were the members of the Sabai Point Women's Club and their spouses at the Sabai Point Street Dance in Longwood on the night of March 4. An Italian dinner followed by dancing was held in the parking lot of NTS, a development company.

Hot Wax Production played the music for all the rock 'n' rollers. Everyone was kept busy with hula hoop contest, a "twisting" contest, a game of musical chairs and lots of dancing songs from the '50s and '60s.

The champion hula hoopers were Linda Stamp, JoAnn Bowers and Linda Tompkins. The three women, who hulaed for the longest times, were cheered on by the audience.

Lynda Dennis and Nancy Guadagnino were the only two left standing over one chair at the end of Musical Chairs. Jack Smith was not about to give up a chair to anyone; however, Lynda Dennis managed to squeeze in under him and get one of the last two seats.

The chairmen of the event were Lynda Dennis and Shelley Ferguson. Susan Lock coordinated the lasagna, salad and bread sticks for the dinner.

Anne Starr, president of the women's club, thanked everyone for coming. The club hopes to have another street dance next year.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 19, 1989

Some very important changes in your basic lifestyle may transpire in the year ahead. Several of them might be unsolicited on your part, yet, col-lectively, they should all turn out rather beneficial.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you might not be too cooperative, especially to those for whom you care the most. Oddly enough, you may feel they are the ones at fault, not you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Concentrate on the task at hand today, especially if you're working with unfamiliar tools or materials. If you do things in a hasty manner, without first reading labels or instructions, problems could result TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Long shots might be more appealing to you today than the sure things. If you're hoping to reap big rewards the easy way, you may just be whistling Dixie.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Your boiling point might be a bit lower than usual today and things that wouldn't normally faze you may stir you to a frenzy. Make an extra effort to keep your temper in check.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Instead of searching for nuances or hidden meanings, take companions' behavior at face value today. Don't read more into what transpires than they intended.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Financial conditions could be a bit tricky for you today, so move carefully in this area. Before you make any commitments, its better for you sleep on them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You must be able to distinguish today between acceptable assertiveness or aggressive behavior. Coming on too strong could prove self-defeating. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Usually you're pretty good about forgiving and forgetting, but today you might not diplomatically handle a situation with someone with whom you've crossed swords in the past.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby East's pre-emptive jump raise

of his partner's overcall is a bid favored by many experts, since it robs the opponents of bidding room and makes it hard for them to get to the best contract. After East's three spades, South was not strong enough to bid four hearts immediately, but was happy to do so after North continued with four clubs.

West led the spade king and then switched to a trump. Declarer played low from dummy and won East's queen with his ace. Already counting his overtricks, he played to dummy's heart king and back to his diamond king. He cashed his heart jack and then the diamond ace. East rufled. Now the de-tually got a club trick for down one. Of course it was true after the trump shift that 12 tricks would be easy if both hearts and diamonds divided nicely. But it was also true that South had bid only four hearts, not six. After winning the heart ace he should immediately play A-K of diamonds. Although East can ruff, he cannot prevent declarer from getting to dummy enough times to set up the diamonds by ruffing. Nor can East do better by refusing to ruff the second high diamond. Now declarer can simply play to dummy's heart king and lead the jack of diamonds, throwing a spade. Then the defenders would make only a trump trick, a spade and the diamond queen.

Crumity recognized for donating time, talents to education

We seldom stop to recognize the person who always gets little thanks for the many little things they don't ever forget to do for others, or help make a project successful. Elaine Crumity, an active member of Evergreen Temple No. 321, lends her many talents to the Elks as district directress of education for Jewel Council No. 109 of the Elks of the World.

Crumity also is an ardent worker at her church, St. John Missionary Baptist Church, where she serves as church clerk.

She may be seen going about her record-keeping and other duties as FTE Clerk at Seminole High School.

Whatever role she may play, her clerical work for community events can be seen throughout the area, because she is not one to often say no to those who need her skills.

Bernard D. Mitchell recently dozen roses for her local dedicated work to the cause of better education for our children

Mitchell is chairman of the local education committee of Celery City Lodge No. 542 and Evergreen Temple No. 321 Order of the Elks of the World. He also gives of his time to promote the cause of education and scholarship for the education and improvement of our youth of today.

He can be seen busy in the community as he is an ardent member and trustee of Trinity United Methodist Church, where worships with his wife and family of three children.

He is employed as funeral director at Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary.

VIEWPOINT

Why are college athletes victims of two-faced rules?

I've never much cared for John Thompson. The often controversial basketball coach at Georgetown University always struck me as being an overly vociferous know-it-all, and I have no use for that kind of person.

I had even less use for John Thompson after the U.S. basketball team lost to the Soviet Union in the final round of the Olympic Games in

Thompson blew it. He over-coached that team. He had the most impressive array of talent of any team in the Games. You don't have to do a whole lot of coaching when you've go names like Vernell 'Bimbo Coles,' Hershey Hawkins and Danny Manning on your roster. About all you have to do is show up. Just sit on the sidelines and let them play

But, for some reason, Thompson didn't see it that way. He was more interested in polishing his own reputation instead of bringing home the gold medal. I could have coached that team and won the gold. Jethro Clampett could have coached that team and won the gold.

But as much as I dislike John Thompson, I do have to agree with him on his latest beef. When the NCAA, a governing body rich in stuffed shirts and often short on common sense, announced it was considering yet another academic-eligibility restriction on freshmen recruits. Thompson sat out a few games in protest.

I don't blame him.

Why do faculty members in general and the NCAA in particular paint athletes as half-witted. muscle-bound incompetents? Why is there a doube standard when it come to academic requirements for athletes and academic requirements for the rest of the student body?

Oklahoma basketball coach Billy Tubbs perhaps presented the best picture. If coaches are required to produce a 100 percent graduation rate, then the rest of the faculty should be required to produce a 100 percent graduation rate. If 80 percent of student athletes are required to graduate, then the Math department, English department and Science department should also have to produce an 80-percent graduation rate.

That is Tubbs' theory and I wholeheartedly agree with him.

Most faculty members would whine, and cry, and chew on their bowties and leather briefcases if that were actually the case.

I'm all in favor of academic guidelines for student athletes. I am not at all in favor of those academic requirements when they discriminate against students who just happen to be able to jump higher, run faster and play sports better than the nerdy double-major intellectual kid who shows up for classes each day with a slide rule in one hand, a portable computer in the other and two dozen colored markers jammed into his pocket protector.

It's not easy being on the road for three games a week and still post good grades. Let's give these students athletes some credit. It's not easy to sleep the night before an athlete faces a must-win game and a Calculus exam two hours

The brutal truth about the matter is that most faculty members couldn't live with that kind of pressure, yet they somehow justify the theory that a 19-year-old kid can handle that kind of pressure. Who are we kidding here?

If the academic departments were required to enter competitions against other schools, then I'm reasonably sure some of the whining would stop. The English professor who so solidly supports academic guidelines for athletes would probably decrease his criticism a bit if his classes were getting their butts kicked by the rival college across fown. Gee, do you think he might dump some of the less brilliant students and start trying to find some really sharp ones? I'm pretty sure he would eventually adopt a Just-win-baby attitude if his job depended on the number of contests he won or the quality of competitors he was able to lure to his school.

See what I mean. The academic guidelines proponents are preaching a do-as-l-say-not-as-l-do theory that must be abolished.

Most schools have no problem with athletes getting their diplomas.

Notre Dame has an outstanding record when it comes to graduation rates for athletes. Likewise, the University of Virginia is an exemplary case when it comes to scrutinizing graduation rates for athletes.

Sure, college athletics is still a source for a number of serious problems. A couple of years ago, I had just played 18 holes of golf in Charleston with a fellow who played football at a nearby college. I asked him if he wanted to play some more but he said he couldn't because he had to go back to the dorm and give his roommate his steroid injections. Then there's a number of coaches who give college athletics a bad name simply by their presence. The University of Indiana is probably the only college in the free world where Bobby Knight could keep his job after the chair-throwing incident and after setting the womens rights movement back 50 years last year on a TV show with his sexist comment comparing rape to losing basketball games. There is no cure-all for the problems facing college athletics.

But setting double standards for student athletes is not the salve for the the wound.

SANFORD - Residents of County Road 427 near County Home Road say their yards are becoming hold-

The residents say strays frequently run in the area surrounding the Humane Society of Seminole County at the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and County Home Road. They say stray cats and dogs are getting killed regularly on C.R. 427 and U.S. 17-92 near the shelter.

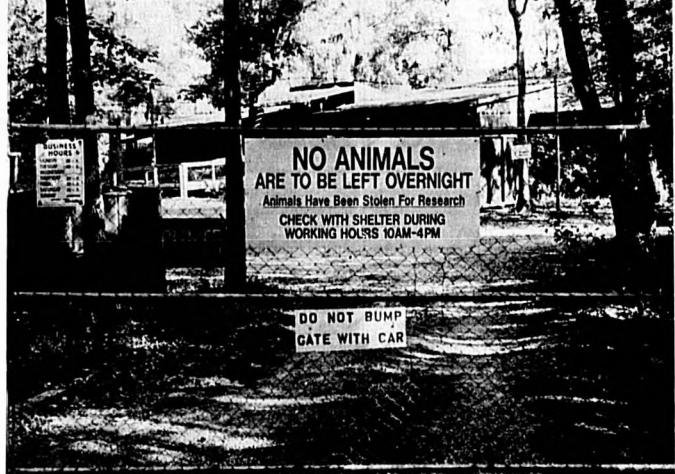

And the residents are quick to blame the Humane Society for their problems. They say the Humane Society should move away from their location of eight years to a less-populated area.

'We've had the problem since the Humane Society came here," said Mildred Harris, a 20-year resident of 5001 CR 427. "We didn't have anything like this before."

"I don't think that's a real fair statement," said Trish Scott, society director. "Seminole County is growing and so are animal abuse cases. (The stray problem) was here before we came and it will be here after we go.

"You can't blame the Humane Society because they're there," agrees Tom LaCross, chief animal control officer for the Seminole County Animal Control Department. "The blame lies with the public."

When they can, Harris says she catches the strays in her fenced yard and calls Animal Control.

The scramble is on for a piece of the county's tourism tax pie

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD - Municipalities, civic groups and non-profit agencies in Seminole County are vying for funds generated by a county tourism tax that went into effect this year.

At a meeting April 13, the Tourism Development Council will begin reviewing applications for funds generated by a two-percent tax on temporary rental housing in Seminole County. which went into effect Jan. 1.

Seminole County voters favored the tourism tax 10-to-1 in an Oct. 4 referendum. The referendum places a two-percent tax on transient rental housing - motels, hotels, and rooms or apartments with a six-month or shorter lease.

The Central Florida Zoological Park will receive 25 percent of tourism tax revenue. The money will be used for capital improvements at the zoo.

But the estimated $375,000 remaining after the zoo takes its cut is up for grabs. The City of Sanford, the Sanford airport authority and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce have all expressed interest in taking a piece of the Sanford City Commissioners will discuss projects in the city that may be eligible for the funds at a workshop tomorrow. Commissioner Whitey Eckstein asked the commission to consider applying for a grant during a regular meeting this week.

Mack LaZenby, Sanford Regional Airport aviation director, this week asked the airport authority to apply for funds to build a welcome center at the airport.

The tourism development council will review the applications and recommend projects to Seminole County commissioners, who will ultimately decide which ideas will be funded.

Applications for funds will be judged on these eriteria: how the project will attract tourists, the soundness of the proposal, the stability of the organization who proposes the project, and the uniqueness of the proposal.

A primary purpose of the council is to improve cultural programs for Seminole County residents. Young said.

Elleen Higgs of the county office of management and budget said 18 agencies have requested applications, and that county commissioners have been distributing additional forms to groups who may be eligible. She said local chambers of commerce, community service agencies and festival committees have asked for applications, which are due April 10.

Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, said he has met with the chamber tourism committee to determine what projects to sponsor. The committee came up with this list of proposals:

Restoration of beachfront on the north end of the marina to better accommodate sail boating and regattas on Lake Monroe.

actually be a part of the water."

Kay Bartholomew, a member of the St. Lucia festival committee, said the committee will be applying for assistance with the first such celebration being planned for downtown in December

The Florida legislature passed the Local Option Tourist Development Act in 1986. The act gives counties the option of adopting by referendum a tax up to two percent. Three years after the tax is adopted, the tourist development council may recommend to the county commission an increase to three percent.

Young said the county has opted for state collection of the tax until systems for collecting are in place.

Child abuse

The rising incidence of child abuse in the United States has highlighted an age-old dilemma for society: Who should bear the responsibility for atopping it?

Recent cases have shown that child abuse could have been curtailed, if not prevented in the first place, by timely intervention. In some cases, school teachers should have been alerted to home abuse by signs of physical violence on a child. In others, reports to school officials were never followed up. Too often, the shocking abuse of defenseless toddlers, and even infants, is allowed to continue despite the obvious signs.

A sensational trial in New York has focused public attention on child abuse, increasingly perceived to be a national problem. Witnesses testified at the trial of Joel Steinberg that there were physical signs which should have alerted teachers of 6-year-old Elizabeth, his illegally adopted daughter. Steinberg was found guilty of intentionally causing her death. One of Lisa's teachers did, in fact, notice that the child had a black eye and bruises. But her reports to school officials were ignored.

The Steinberg trial and numerous other cases across the country illustrate the ethical dilemma that confronts social service and law enforcement agencies: How to protect children from abuse without violating the privacy of the family. When should authorities intervene in family affairs? Who decides at what stage disciplinary punishment becomes physical abuse?

To assert that no one has the right to interfere in private family affairs is to ignore the reality that children are being abused every day in families of all kinds. Child abuse ranging from incest to murderous violence cuts across the boundaries of race, religion, education, and wealth.

Nationwide, there were 2.2 million cases of child abuse reported in 1988. The shocking reality is that 1,200 were killed by abuse or neglect during 1987. And initial tallies indicate that the 1988 toll will be even worse.

Some authorities in this field believe the percentage of persons abusing their children has not risen in recent years. They maintain the incidence appears to have risen because more people are now reporting abuse in response to a community perception that such behavior is intolerable.

But facts and figures regarding abuse are notoriously difficult to pin down. What is certain is that millions of cases of child battering and neglect are never reported for one reason or another, even when there is ample cause for alarm.

That defenseless children should be subjected to physical and mental brutality in a supposedly civilized country such as ours is truly scandalous. The horror must be squarely faced: It is happening. What recent publicity has done is to develop public awareness of the need to be alert to child abuse and to report it to the appropriate authority at the first opportunity. Relatively helpless children should have first call on society's protection.

In unity there is weakness

PHILADELPHIA — Only one prepared paper was presented here at the recent annual meeting of the Democratic Leadership Council. Its final paragraph is a gutsy marching call that should be recited by serious Democrats concerned about the Jesse Jackson problem and looking to promote both partisan victory and the national

The paper, "Rebuilding a Presidential Majority," was written by Dr. William Galston of the University of Maryland. Galston, a former issues director for Walter Mondale, lays out the current sad estate of the national Democratic Party.

The problems include geography and ideology. The reapportionment of electoral votes for 1982 will move more president-picking power to states that are already Republican (mostly Southern and Western). Voters see the Democrats as weak on defense. Voters feel that America has gone through "a severe breakdown in moral stan-dards." And, says Galston, "for too many Americans ... Democrats are part of the problem, not the solution. ... We have become the party of individual rights but not individual responsibility: the party of self-expression but not self-discipline; the party of sociological explanation but not moral accountability." Democrat-to-Democrat, in public, that is tough stuff. But Galaton concludes on a yettougher note, a call to combati "The changes we need cannot come from policy commissions or midterm conventions or party functionaries. They can only come from leaders - candidates for the presidential nomination — with the courage to challenge entrenched orthodoxics. ... This will mean debate, controversy, even conflict. But it is far better than a barren and spurious unity. ... We Democrats must at long last set aside the politics of evasion ... it is the only way to rebuild a presidential majority for our party...

The DLC and Galston showed courage.

Political organizations of elected officials don't often come out for conflict and against unity. That violates every partisan tradition. But, says the DLC, these are not traditional times. The Democrats specialize in losing the presidency.

Only a victorious public fight for the soul of the party can turn the tide.

If it is hard for an organization to preach intramural combat, it is harder still for politicians. Most of those in attendance at Philadelphia did not. Indeed, many advocated old-fashioned, mindless unity. [One exception was Sen. Charles Robb, who engaged in a pointed exchange with Jackson.)

Will the politicians of the tough Democratic center have the brass to draw a line in the political sand? We shall see. "This was a good beginning, but only a beginning," says Alvin From, executive director of the DLC. "The debate should grow more specific and tennocium!

Indeed, the Democrats have a great opportunity to move this adversarial dialogue to centerstage. The opportunity has a name: Jesse Jackson. He has come to personlfy Democratic hyperliberalism. He has become an international superstar, gathering bushels of headlines wherever he alights.

Cheney is the right man for the job

WASHINGTON — Here are three things to understand about Rep. Dick Cheney (R-Wyo.). which will explain why President Bush made such a superb choice in naming him as secretary of defense following the John Tower flasco. Cheney is smart, he is tough and he is totally trustworthy.

Put those qualities together, and you have a man who will bring real strength and rare judgment to the administration. At 48, Cheney already has proven himself exceeding competent in both the executive and legislative branches of government, performing admirably as President Ford's White House chief of staff and then rising in very few years to the second-ranking leadership position of House Republicans.

His brain is as good as anyone's in town, and he is unafraid to voice his convictions in any company. From the time I first encountered him as a University of Wisconsin Ph.D. candidate working on the staff of an equally brainy young congressman, the late Bill Steiger, he has displayed qualities that command the respect of people much older than he

- and often of very different policy views. Though he is a conservative by conviction and a staunch partisan Republican, he is admired by dozens of Democratic colleagues. He has a particularly close relationship with House Majority Leader Tom Folcy (D-Wash.), a man of similar talent and temperament. Like Foley. Cheney downplays his own importance and concests his shrewdness behind an engaging Western humor.

Cheney and his wife, Lynne, the head of the National Endowment for the Humanities, are perhaps the most literate couple in town, individually turning out highly readable essays and, jointly, a fine book on leaders of the House. But Cheney's true calling is government and, in that field, there are few

Although Cheney's career roots are in Congress, his viewpoint is almost always that of the President's man. No one fought harder during the post-Watergate period and in the Iran-contra affair against measures he though would inhibit future Presidents from exercising their full powers as commander in chief and negotiator in chief. An essay Cheney wrote for an American Enterprise Institute conference this week, on what he calls "congressional aggrandizement" in the national security area, criticizes "aggrandizers" as varied as Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) and Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas) and doubtless will provoke questions at Cheney's confirmation hearings.

But Cheney is totally consistent in his view, favoring a strong President — even if it's a Democrat. He told reporters in a 1987 interview that he would far rather see the Democrats nominate Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.). the Armed Services Committee chairman and architect of Tower's defeat, than "a governor with no foreign-policy experience," like Massachusetts' Michael Dukakis. Nunn would have a far better chance of beating the Republican nominee, Chency allowed. But that was more than offset, in his view, by the prospect that if Nunn won, the nation would get what he considered a highly qualified President.

The Cheney nomination demonstrates, once again, that George Bush has quick recuperative powers and the ability to do well with his second efforts. Bush showed that earlier by winning the prealdency on his sec-ond try and, in that second effort, recouping in New

His brain is as good as anyone's in town

Hampahire what he had lost in the opening contest in lowa.

Recovery skills are about as useful a trait as a President can possess. No way will the occupant of the Oval Office go through four years, or eight, without bumping into adversity. The ability to come back from such a blow, to shake off the after-effects and think clearly about what needs to be done, is what distinguishes the political survivors from those who contribute, willy-nilly, to their own political demise. Bush is a survivor.

In choosing Cheney, Bush has completed what may well be the most skilled, politically sophisticated trio of national security officials Washington has seen in decades. Along with Secretary of state James A. Baker III and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft, he forms a team of highly competent, compatible lieutenants, with the capacity to adjust policies to a changing world and defend those policies in the domestic political arena.

Scoweroft is the old pro of the trio, the retired general who served as deputy to Henry A. Kissinger and then established his own model of reticence, probity and professionalism in the national security adviser's post under President Ford.

Baker is the old smoothie in the bunch, the well-bred Texan who can deflect criticism as deftly as he can maneuver to reduce the opposition to impotent frustration. He is the consummate operative, perhaps the most impressive unelected official the capital has seen since Clark Clifford.

Woman hurt in post office denied justice

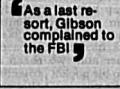

WASHINGTON — If you want to assault someone, do it in a post office. Chances are, you can walk away through a bureaucratic

At least, that's the way Nora Gibson sees it. The 58-year-old woman says she was knocked to the floor in a scuffle for a place in line at the post office and now the federal government refuses to go after the man she says bullted her out of line and into the hospital.

Last Dec. 20, Gibson walked into a post office in Bethesda, Md., to mail a certified letter. When the clerk said, "next," Gibson started toward the counter. A tall, retired Navy officer cut in front of her. When she protesteds Gibson claims the man shoved her to the floor. She banged her head against a counter and landed on the floor, unconacious.

Police arrived and sent her to the hospital in an ambulance. A doctor diagnosed her injury as a severe concussion. When Gibson came to, she expected that her alleged assailant would be strung up by his thumbs. But she hadn't counted on the federal bureaucracy. Although the scuffle had taken place in a crowded post office and the police had responded, Gibson discovered the inci-dent was not being investigated.

A police officer had scrawled the name of her alleged assailant on a paper and handed it to Gibson in the hospital. The rest, apparently, was up to her. County police would not investigate because the post office is federal property. U.S. Postal Service investigators claimed it was the county's responsibility.

As a last resort, Gibson complained to the FBI. Almost two months after the incident, a postal investigator showed up on her doorstep to get her side of the story. He later told her the U.S. attorney in Baltimore had decided not to press charges against the man because of "a lack of criminal intent."

Gibson wanted to hear that excuse in person, so she went to the U.S. attorney's office. An assistant state attorney there told her that the most he could do was write a nasty letter to the man, and he suggested that Gibson get a lawyer and sue her nemesis in civil court.

Our associate Jim Lynch called the U.S. attorney's office in Baltimore and asked why a woman who says she was bounced on the floor and knocked unconscious in front of witnesses can't get any justice. An assistant attorney on the staff listened and said the office is now "reopening the case."

The retired Navy officer is vacationing, and we couldn't reach him for his explanation of the scuille, but sources close to the case say that he claims Gibson grabbed his elbow and that he accidentally bumped her when he tried to shake free of her grip. Gibson's daughter and other witnesses back up her version of the imbroglio.

Gibson's head was jangled, but her sense of outrage is intact. She says she will sue the man if criminal charges aren't filed.

Promise of Passover and Easter

We live in a world of paradoxes. Millions throughout the nation will attend their respective places of worship this Passover-Good Friday-Easter season.

Themes of suffering and sacrifice, death and darkness, discouragement and despair overshadowed by contrasting ones of resurrection and new life, triumph and victory, hope

These serve as symbols of the deepest fears and tragedies of life, which can be overcome by the greatest hopes and promises religious faith can arouse.

Our ideals are often higher than our accomplishments. Human fraility and weakness have limited our capabilities in fulfilling our aspirations. In our penitence and contrition we pledge renewed sacrifice, - of time, of money, of talent, of

Often we experience a rebirth, a resurrection of latent talents and dormant capabilities. Religious faith becomes deeper, stronger, more vital in impacting upon our personal and social life, as well as on our work-a-day world.

Of such faith the American nation was born. The freedoms of democracy, the rights of humankind, emerged from this foundation of religious faith and practice. They flowered into a constitutionally-based republic, with a triune government of executive, legislative and judicial powers. They mushroomed into a union of 50 sovereign states, united as the greatest

These religious keynotes have been translated into our historical heritage. By sacrifice we have preserved our independence in time of conflict.

By dedicated commitment we have achieved victory against our common foes. By didigent preparation we maintain military strength to deter would-be agressors.

In world relationships and in national affairs, concepts of freedom from tyranny and oppression, as well as equal rights and opportunities for minorities and the disadvantages, are of prime importance. Compassion for the unfortunate, for the victims, for the unliberated hopefuls of many lands are added

Elimination of terrorism and war is a prime necessity if the world is to survive. Assured peace with justice and security, pointing towards understanding and trust between opposing world blocs, is a major goal to achieve.

Passover and Easter remind us that religious faith and values can overcome the barriers, can promise results. The greatest needs of our times can only be met with a resurgence of those ideals as they are translated into actions which make an impact upon the world in which we live.

Passover and Easter! May they bring new life and hope to both our religious faith, and to our national goals and ideals.

Outdated methods cost Florida money

Florida does not receive its fair share of federal grant dollars. At a time when our state is experiencing tremendous growth, federal agencies are using outdated census data to allocate important resources.

That's just not fair. Florida is penalized by a bureacratic methodology that does not factor in current data. As a result, we rank last of all 50 states in the grant dollars awarded — receiving just 62.5 cents for every $1 we sent to Washington.

I have introduced a bill in the Senate that would require federal agencies to use annual census figures when calculating federal grants to states. This would ensure that Florida receive

In addition, I have asked GAO to update a 1987 study that identified over four dozen federal programs that use outdated census figures. Funds should be targeted to areas of greatest

Over the next few months, I will work to gain support for this important legislation among my colleagues. Together with your support. I believe that we can bring about a fair return on the taxes that Floridians pay to the federal government.

Sports coverage complimented

It has become evident to me that your coverage of the Lake Mary High School soccer season was quite thorough.

I wish to compliment you for your in depth reporting of the games. Your viewpoint far exceeded those found in other media. I especially enjoyed your "Rams Conquer Killian"

Hopefully this type of coverage continues for a long time. Thank you very much.

More praise for Herald coverage

I received the Sanford Herald ever day and I really enjoy reading it. It reports on more high school sports played right here in our Seminole County high schools than the Orlando Sentinel. It is nice to be aware of what is happening every day around us. And you staff does a very good job of showing us

The Sanford Herald gives the best local coverage of our county. It might be a small newspaper but it gives me, even as a high school student, the local news, weather, and sports.

I compliment the staff for their great work on putting this paper together. Keep It up.

Beware of Congressional Democrats

President Bush has said that his defeat by Congress over (John) Towers' appointment as secretary of defense is past history and we should move on with other business and not dwell on it.

He is right of course, but the voters should remember the things we have learned about Congress.

General columnists criticed the hypocrasy of the Senate but Chuck Stone in his column "when ex-drunks fall out, U.S. suffers" (March 8) gave valueable proof.

How many voters knew that Sen. (Sam) Nunn. Towers flercest critic once crashed his car back in 1964 and left the scene of the accident when he (supposedly) was drunk!

Chuck Stone also reminds us that "most Senators are captives of special interest groups." We have had an example of that right here in our own county. Remember the $14.5 million given a multimillionare for a county road by Bob Graham? We must not forget that Democratic members of Congress are trying to take over the powers of the executive branch of government and if we don't find some way to stop them there won't be any checks and balances the writers of the Constitution were so determined to have in our government. Congress will control both the President and the Supreme Court.

Education is key to employment

Traditionally, the role of American education has been to prepare youth for their assumption of adult roles as productive citizens. If this role of the educational establishment is to be perpetuated, an analysis is needed of the changes that will directly affect the repetoire of jobs available and the education required.

It has been noted that economic development in industrialized nations appears to follow a pattern. The intitial economy is based on agricultural enterprises. This changes to a manufacturing economy, where the bulk of employment revolves around manufacturing.

Projections for future employment indicate that both of these sources will continue to decline and the service industry will emerge as the one with the most growth

The differing skill requirements for service jobs will create a wide discrepancy in income among participants. Service industries range from fast food workers and hospital orderlies to those cited above.

Among the new jobs to be created between now and the year 2000, it is estimated that more than one-half will require some post-secondary education and almost 33 percent will be filled by college graduates. Today, 22 percent of all occupations require a college degree. By the year 2000, the median years of education required will be 13.5.

Occupations in which continuing decline is projected include: blue collar supervisors. hand workers, assemblers and fabricators, machine setters, operators, farmers, forestry workers and fishermen.

Another significant factor, in addition to the emergence of the service industry as the prime provider of future jobs, is the incredible advance in technology.

Computer technologies and biotechnologies, coupled with other advances. will make possible still further changes in work and education.

Massive digital telecommunications networks will connect most businesses and many homes. This will increase the possiblility of remaining at home to work. The future may also permit secondary and college students to attend classes less frequently and to do their work at home with telecommunications equipment Teachers working as teams would devise individual educational plans for each stu-

We need better leaders and tax reform

By CHARLES J. ZWICK

My basic message is straightforward. The world has changed drastically. And, to compete in this new environment, our nation, our states and out local governments must promptly adapt to the new world and forego "business as usual" attitudes and actions.

In this new highly-dynamic world economy, the old rules no longer apply. How do we progress in this new world? The first question we need to ask is what kind of businesses can we and do we want to attract?

To preserve our high quality of life, we need the producers of the highest value-added goods and services sold in the international, national and statewide markets. I'm talking of goods like super computers. sophisticated communications devices and robotics, and medical and financial services, just to

To compete successfully, Florida - like other aspiring competitive states - must strive to be, not cheaper, but better.

The keys to winning the comeplition—in—the late 20th century are:

· A capable, motivated, well-educated work force that is the product of a top-notch education system.

 Highways, roads, bridges, hosptials, libraries, parks, utilities, sewers and water lines.

• In order to be the best place quality of life that is attractive to employees and their families. That involves less crime, a clean, well-managed environment and a cultural climate.

· Finally, we need fiscal stability, characterized by reasonable tax rates and prudent spending policies.

Because Florida is a state with boundless economic potential, adding more than 325,000 residents each year, it has special needs.

These needs plus the varied human services required by our expanding population have put Florida on a collision course with painful realities that must be faced - now.

Simply put, Florida urgently needs investments in its infrastructure to compete in the new global world. We know what we need. We know what we want. (But) we have yet to accept that the way we finance state and local government in Florida is definitely "broke" and needs fixing.

Our leaders must face facts. Florida is in need of fundamental tax reform. We elected our leaders to figure out how to pay for what Florida needs and get on with the job:

• It will take an additional $52.9 billion to assure that Florida can effectively compete in this global economy. That breaks down to $35 billion at the state level, and $17.9 billion for local governments.

• Florida antiquated tax structure needs revision. It was designed to suit "old" Florida. to do business, we need a high and not our 'new,' "beliwether" state.

Our needs have arrived when the federal cornucopia has run dry. For better or for worse, eight years of federal budget cuts in domestic programs have left state and local governments largely on their own.

Simultaneously, state governments have responded to the federal dry-up by pushing down more responsibility on local governments to finance their won infrastructure needs. Local governments all over the country have had to absorb about half of the loss of federal funds.

Two-thrids of Florida's general revenues come from its sales tax on goods. The state has a "boom to bust" tax structure because it taxes goods and not services. State revenues go up during good times, and plummet when needed the most. Businesses cannot adequately plan and flnance long-term capital investments with a feast-or-famine revenue stream. And, neither

In Florida, we face another fundamental need. Despite the state's constitutional mandate for a balanced budget, we are engaging in the functional We have not been providing a revenue stream sufficient to finance infrastructure on a pay as in Florida, the further the financing for infrastructure has lagged behind.

There are several lessons from the Florida experience that are relevant nationwide.

I recommend the state comprehensive plan approach. This executive officer of Southeast Banking Corp.

process is good at defining the needs, offering funding alternatives and performing consensus building because of the wode array of public and private sector representatives that can get involved.

Secondly, the process can be used to educate the public that infrastructure is not part of some "wish list," but a necessity if states and local governments are going to compete in the new world environment. If I could do one thing differenly with the State Comprehensive Plan Committee, I would put a loi more emphasis on this education process.

Finally, the third and, perhaps, the most inportant lesson. Unless our elected officials are willing to behave as true leaders, we will fail.

Our elected representatives are running scared. They want everyone else to take the lead in proposing any new taxes. But, I continue to have faith that people, properly informed, will consent to pay specifically for infrastructure to maintain their quality of life.

Finding the right tax was not equivalent of deficit financing. casy. Florida voterentin my opinion, will not accept a state income tax. They will also rebel at hikes in levies that tax their you grow basis. The faster we go wealth. Simply put, that leaves taxes on transactions - like the sales tax on services - as the best source of a broad based revenue for Florida. The other alternative is a gross receipts tax, which is a sales tax in disguise.

Higher minimum wage spreads American dream

By LEON DANIEL

WASHINGTON - Who do the working poor who want the minimum wage raised think they are - members of Congress?

These greedy workers need to understand that our lawmakers are among the nation's top 1 percent of earners for a very good reason. It's because they're so smart.

resisted raising the minimum was Congress that generously wage in order to avert massive gave them a raise in the unemployment.

But for suppressing such an inflationary demand the lawmakers must share credit with former President Ronald Reagan, a champion of the overdog.

Some of the smartest members of Congress have warned us that forcing fast-food joints to pay burger flippers better could bring back the Great Depression.

Still, some ingrates evidently Congress, after all, wisely has already have forgotten that it only eight years ago.

Now they're already back again to wheedle more from the lawmakers, who only recently nobly dented themselves a modest annual raise from $89,500 to $135,000. The whiners should know that the minimum wage totes up to a whopping $6,968 a year, which is only $4,600 below the poverty line for a family of four.

Now, let's get real. And let's hope Congress and the president do too. Quite seriously, it's high minimum wage to $3.35 an hour—time for them to agree on a new and livable minimum wage.

> Some lawmakers want to raise it to $4.65 but Bush says he will veto any increase over $4.25. And the administration is pushing a subminimum "training wage" of $3.35 an hour for six months for new workers.

America's working poor should not have to listen to arguments about such roadblocking schemes as the truly named subminimum pittance. They need help now.

Women must always be ready for danger

Women are abducted, raped and killed so often that sometimes I think we are numb to the suffering; that is, unless it happens too near our own assumed safe harbors. We read, we might feel momentary outrage or grief, but it's forgotten almost by the time we've finished the paper.

Kelli Patricia Hall's death was one that stayed with me. She was abducted in St. Charles, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, on Feb. 9. They found her nude body almost two weeks later; she had been strangled to death, and tests may determine she was also raped. She was 17 years old.

St. Louis is 200 miles away from where I live, so Kelli's death didn't really threaten my safety zone. But I can't seem to shake the horror of her death any easier than I can forget her abduction, and for the same mystlfying reason: The night Kelli was taken, she was minutes from getting off work at the Mobil station where she was a cashier. Her boyfriend was waiting nearby in a warm car for her to finish her final task of the night: checking the tanks to see if they needed to be refilled. A few yards in the other direction was the station, and customers. Just a scream, a dash away. Yet witnesses saw Kelli get into a Chevy Blazer with two men it in it. Why?

Police speculate that one of the men held a gun on Kelli. If that is true, chances are very good that if she'd run toward the station or her boyfriend's car, screaming

How many times do you hear of someone with a gun shooting an intended victim from a car because they WON'T get in? Even though Kelli Hall didn't have the presence of milid to reason through her situation and take the route that would have saved her life, very few women do when we see a gun pointed at us. We see a gun, we freeze. We do what we're told. Would a 17-year-old boy have gotten into a car, that close to safety, just because a gun was pointed at him? Not any of the ones I know.

Since Kelli's death, I've been asking other women what they would do in her situation. Most of them said their reaction would have been to do what they were told, out of fear they'd be shot if they didn't. They couldn't get beyond that point in their thinking process, unless pressed. The only woman who gave me a quick "Not on your life!" was a friend who teaches awareness classes in conjunction with a local rape-victim support group. Then she gave me a little quiz about what I'd do if faced with a few hypothetical threatening situations they talk about in her classes. All I could do was stammer. "Well, I guess I'd ....

She knew exactly what she'd do; they were actual plans of action that are second nature to her now.

We make a great hoopla out of the possibility that we may sometime need to administer CPR to someone. We sponsor classes at our workplaces, and recertify ourselves periodically. I've had three CPR classes in my 37 years, and I've never known anyone personally who has ever had to use it. I've never had a class in basic safety awareness for women; yet four women I know quite well - my niece, my best friend, a college roommate and a co-worker - were all assaulted. One of them

We don't have to scare ourselves to teach reality: "You might find yourself in a dangerous situation, and here's what you should do. Here's hoping you don't, but an ounce of prevention..." # Plastic textiles well-suited here

United Press International

APOPKA — Gary Gale's father sent him off to European textile schools with a mission: Find a product to expand flat sales at the family's $500,000-a-year knitted baby-wear business in Australia.

"We needed something that was technology-based, not labor-based," Gale said. "And I came up with plastic textiles."

Gale, now 36, never received a degree from any of the four schools he attended in Germany and England.

But his observations of such things as plastic net sacks commonly used to carry spuds, along with the bits of information he bsorbed at school, pushed the family into a line of woven and knitted polyethylene products.

'We just sophisticated the idea," Gale said. "But at the same time we kept it a very simple process with just two steps, extrud-ing the material and then weaving and packaging the product at the same time.

Plastic textiles were made into such disparate products as snow fence, sun screen, crop protection and child restraint. They transformed Gale Pty. Ltd., the Melbourne, Australia, company Harry and Barbara Gale started before son Gary was born, into an international concern.

During the past four years annual sales have increased from $2 million to $30 million, right on target with the husiness plan Gale predicts will push sales to more than $225 million by 1993.

After a successful five years with plastic textiles in Australia, Gale brought the business into the U.S. market in December

He established Weathashade Corp. and Its international headquarters in Apopka.

Florida is not yet one of the better markets for Weathashade products, but the area has attributes more immediately crucial than Centra Florida has a cheap labor supply drawn largely from citrus workers and other mainly agricultural laborers. They leave the groves for job stability, better pay, health insurance and factory work they can perform with minimal training.

Also, the area's strong business climate and family image, fueled by nearby, Walt Disney World and dozens of other attractions, make it easy to attract management employees to a growing business.

"We have a hard time getting people to relocate to Melbourne, Australia," Gale said. 'We have no trouble getting people to come to Orlando.'

Inside Weathashade's 40,000-square-foot Florida plant, soon to be expanded by 50 percent, fabrics division President Waynne McDonald explained that the company has modified most of its standard textile equipment to be more efficient and flexible.

They can produce bright orange barrier fences for Exxon or deep green netting to keep birds from eating the apples in a North Carolina orchard.

"We have the advantange of being in a position that if a customer needs something slightly different than what we have we can modify to meet their needs," McDonald said. Rolls of knitted product are marked along the edge to show at a glance their "shade

Apple juice makers fight Alar

United Press International

Apple Juice makers, worried they will be dragged down by public fear of the apple chemical Alar, are preparing ad cam-paigns and special stickers to assure consumers their products are virtually Alar-free.

Juice makers say they do not have any use for Alar, which brings out the color in fresh red apples and makes them firmer. Apple juice and applesauce companies joined together in 1986 to stop accepting apples treated with the chemical, which has been linked to cancer.

The Processed Apple Institute is planning an industry-wide campaign to put out the apple juice industry's side of the story, but some companies have taken matters into their own hands.

Very Fine apple juice of Littleton, Mass. ran a quarter-page ad in Wednesday's New York Times proclaiming itself Alar-

S. Martinelli & Co. of Watsonville, Calif., California's second largest brand-name seller of apple juice, is printing half a million special labels to assure consumers that its products do not contain the controversial chemical.

Some juice makers feel these companies are only confusing the issue, however. For one company to say it is Alar-free implies that others are not.

The Processed Apple Institute is working to come up with a campaign to tell the juice makers' story. The trade group expects to hire a public relations firm later this week and begin a media campaign costing "sever-al hundred thousand" dollars. possibly including advertising.

by early next week.

Apple juice makers say it is too early to tell how badly sales will be affected by the Alar scare, but they are receiving hundreds of calls a day from consumers worried about the issue.

"It's a tidal wave and we would like to stop it as soon as possible," said PAI spokesman Keith Keeney.

The apple juice industry is not the only one worried. Since a report was released Feb. 24 that linked Alar to increased cancerrisk, particularly among children, several school districts, including Los Angeles, Chicago and San Francisco, as well as several Florida districts, have banned the fruit from their they are assured it is safe.

Seminole County schools, after fruit supplier that its apples were not treated with Alar, have not banned the fruit.

The apple industry is worried that the growing public concern over Alar will cripple the apple business. The Washington Apple Commission said last week it will spend $1.6 million on advertising to counter the Alar scare, with much of the campaign focused on cities that have banned apples from schools.

Martinelli, known for its sparkling elder and appleshaped juice bottles, said it is worried the current uproar over Alar will ruin its 120-year-old family-owned business.

"All we make is apple juice," said S. John Martinelli, vice president and general manager of the company. "If apple Juice takes a dump, we're obviously going to be part of that."

Martinelli said supermarkets and discount chains have said their apple juice sales dropped 20 percent since the National Resources Defense Council report came out.

The company has gotten 30 calls a day and 15 letters from consumers worried about the situation.

Seneca Foods Corp. of Pittaford, N.Y., the largest maker of frozen apple juice, said it is still weighing its options, but does not currently have plans for an ad campaign of its own.

of the infected sinus tissue is removed through an incision between the top of the nose and the eyelids. The procedure is major surgery performed under general anesthesia, and normally is followed by a five-to-six-day hospital stay, a slow and painful recovery, and disfiguring scars.

An endoscope is a slender fiber-optic tube that provides an unobstructed view of internal structures, either directly or on a television monitor.

"The biggest difference between endoscopic sinus surgery and traditional surgery is in the reasoning behind the procedure," said Dr. Scott Stringer, an ear, nose and throat surgeon at the UF clinic.

"In the past, car, nose and throat specialists felt chronic sinusitis resulted from problems within the sinus itself. The obvious answer seemed to be to remove it entirely."

Doctors now believe the problem lies with the openings of pain, swelling and congestion the sinus into the nose. When those openings are blocked, the sinuses become infected.

"Our current approach is to remove diseased tissue from the openings, and rely on the body itself to heal the remainder of the sinus infection.

"We're working primarily with the openings to the ethmoid sinuses, which lie deep within the nose between the eyes," Stringer said. "Using the endoscope allows us to view and operate on these deep-scated structures with relative ease." Endoscopic sinus surgery takes 45 minutes to two hours, and can be performed under local or general anesthesia. It usually is conducted on an

The Long Dark Ten-Time of the Soul 'By Douglas Adams (Bimon and Schuster, 251 pp., $16.95)

Douglas Adams, master of cosmic comedy and interstellar irony, returned to Earth with his book about the exploits of holistic private eye Dirk Gently.

There is also an Asgard full of passe and ignored Norse gods, one of whom prefers to live out his immortality in a private sanitarium, not to mention an obstinate heroine - and of course, Gently himself, who is quite simply a major league piece of work.

This book, like Adams's "Dirk Gently's Holistic Detective Agency," is admittedly a notch down in sheer lunancy from his delightfully insane "Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy" series.

By Michael Moorcock (Harmony Books, 496 pp., $19.95)

Fantasy writer Michael Moorcock's 100th book is a lyric tale, evoking London in much the same manner as James Joyce brought

Dublin to life in "Ulysses."
"Mother London" purports to tell the story of three survivors of the World War II bombings on the British capital - Josef Kiss, a mind reader whose talents were used to identify the buried but living during the Blitz; Mary Gasalee, who miraculously walked out of the inferno that was her house; and David Mummery, an urban anthropologist also miraculously saved.

The three, all psychics who hear others' minds, officially meet and become fast friends - the two men gentle rivals for Mary's love at a mental clinic. Moorcock patches their stories together in seemingly random jumps of time, flitting back and forth from 1940 to 1985, as their lives intersect, sometimes knowingly, sometimes in ignorance.

Often, however, those lives are secondary to Moorcock's real heroine, London, vehicles that enable him to invoke strings of street and neighborhood names, bus lines, subway sta-

A serial killer has murdered between 30 and 40 young women in four eastern states, and Carol Warren is sure her brother isn't the murderer no matter what an investigator says.

Nicholas Conde describes Carol's search for the real killer in his taut, suspense-filled novel, "In the Deep Woods."

Carol, an author and illustrator of children's fantasy books about escaping from monsters. is drawn into the search after one of her best friends becomes a victim and a man claiming to be a private investigator says her brother. Tom, is one of 70 or so suspects.

But, as Carol discovers, the mysterious "investigator" Paul Miller doesn't always tell the truth. Nor does she believe her brother is capable of doing what the killer - nicknamed "Woodsie" by police - has done.

Conde draws upon material about real-life serial killers, such as Ted Bundy, and the still unsolved string of 40 slayings in the Pacific Northwest attributed to the "Green River Killer," to bring a sense of ugly reality to his Conde keeps the reader guessing to the final pages, and provides a glimpse into the real truth, that anybody, anybody at all, can become the killer in the woods.

Indeed, he has ambitious hopes of adopting a higher profile than his predecessors and advising Bush on policy matters ranging from AIDS to health care financing and the future of the medical profession.

It would be a sharp departure from past practice. Arm although Lee will be new to the political ways of Washington, he claimed in a telephone interview this week to have no delusions about his place in the corridors of

"Since it hasn't been done this way before, I can't predict what shape it will take or what success I'll have," he said. "It's a superheated place, the White House. No one wants to see their toes atepped on and I don't want to step on any."

What he wants to do is expand the role of a job traditionally thrust into the limelight only during times of presidential injury or infirmity, which could cause some discomfort to others in formal policymaking post-

With that background, he has strong views and "a lot of ideas" about what the government can and should do in these areas, convinced the daily nuts-and-bolts routine of the White House medical unit, with its current staff of military physicians, can be left to other professionals.

Indeed, when he first expressed interest to Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, a 40-year friend and a close adviser to Bush, about joining the administration. Lee had his sights set on a policymaking job.

When approached about becoming White House physician, he saw the opportunity to advise Bush from a position of almost unrivaled access, with the "relative freedom" of opinion that would be impossible "somewhere in the bureaucra-

First and foremost, Lee, who served on the AIDS advisory commission established by President Reagan, believes physicians, researchers and patients "are looking to me to be a conduit to President Bush on the AIDS issue."

To that end, he intends to involve first lady Barbara Bush in the issue and hopes to put to rest complaints that AIDS has not been accorded a high

On the AIDS panel, Lee also proved to be a vocal advocate for the National Institute of Health. In the White House, he similarly plans "to make a lot of noise" about the need for "a better deal" for NIH.

"These are big issues," he said, "and there's no lack of need for additional input. I'm not duplicitous. I'm not going to try to run circles around anyone. I just was to contribute."

That is not to say Lee will give secondary importance to his medical duties as presidential physician. He wants to keep his skills sharp by spending time at local hospitals and receive formal appointments at least to the staffs of Bethesda Naval Hospital and Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

in the hopes of not repeating the mistakes of the past, Lee also has devoted considerable study to "the massive difficulties that have cropped up in almost every previous administration."

Recalling the confusion that ensued after Reagan was shot in March 1981, when medical judgments were subordinated to political ones in deciding on a transfer of power to then-Vice President Bush, Lee said one of his first priorities will be to make sure we have all those ducks in a row way in advance of any problems."

"If you look at the history books, chances are Bush will be enough priority in the White sick or hurt at some time in his House. Last year, Bush broke presidency." Lee said. "You with Reagan in endorsing a key can't stick your head in the commission recommendation for sand, so I'd like to make sure we anti-discrimination laws to pro- have all that set ahead of time."

Stress-related heart problems among young women increasing

United Press International

WASHINGTON - When doctors wanted Lyn Frederickson to "whip into shape" female patients with "imagined illnesses," the cardiovascular nurse instead decided to investigate the health complaints of the women.

Frederickson's diligence paid off and today she directs the nation's first and only Mitrval Birmingham, Ala.

Mitral valve prolapse or MVP is a heart condition that afflicts up to 10 percent of the population. But two-thirds of the victims are healthy women, usually between the ages of 17 and 39, who complain of having a variety of symptoms. Take Jane, for example. Frederickson said the "attractive redhead in her 50s with a twinkle in her eye and a lovely amile" suffered fatigue, chest pains and other illnesses that forced her to cut back on numerous community activities. Or, the male disc jockey who could barely work because he would have "panic attacks" when he sat in his booth. Anxiety attacks also struck another patient while grocery shopping, forcing her to run out of the store. "It is not a life-threatening condition, but I do refer to it as a lifestyle threatening condition because it can be so unpleasant that (sufferers) avoid the things in life they really enjoy," said Frederickson, who is on a 20-city tour to promote her book about

"It seems to cross every socio-economic group. About one-third of the patients are men. I think sometimes when men have it, it can be even worse because our culture doesn't allow them vague sort of symptoms that we allow women." During the Civil War, men with MVP were often described as having a "soldier's heart," said Frederickson, explaining that the condition is considered hereditary and "triggered by a major life event or stress."

MVP sufferers have a slight variation in the shape or structure of the mitral valve of the heart, one of a number of valves that control blood flow between the four chambers. When the one-way valve that lies between the left filling chamber and left pumping chamber does not close fully, it sometimes cause a small amount of blood to leak back into the filling chamber from the pumping chamber.

Along with this minor structurai problem often comes - for unknown reasons - an imbalance of the autonomic nervous system, which regulates such involuntary functions as breathing and digestion.

MVP symptoms usually come in combinations, with fatigue being a key trait. There can be chest pains, irregular heart beat, migraine headache, anxiety, depression, aches in the neck. back, arm or leg, bowel trouble or memory problems.

Frederickson said panic attacks afflict about 60 percent of all patients she treats.

The word panic is really sort of a loaded word," admitted Frederickson. "It implies neurosis and that's not the case. It's a blochemical storm that occurs in the brain... that sudden rush of adrenaline. They can experience it up to seven times a day for about 30 minutes. It's just terrifying. They think they're dying or worse, crazy."

Research also has found about one-third of women with MVP have undergone hysterectomics and 60 percent report severe problems with pre-menstrual syndrome.

Frederickson said the MVP center at Baptist Medical Center Montclair is the first and only center to offer comprehensive treatment of the condition. The center opened in April 1987 and has treated about 3,000 patients from 25 different states.

The patients undergo a battery of tests to determine the extent of the problem. Then they are put on "sensible diets that get rid of all caffeine and sugar." Specific medication also is recommended, as well as "low resistance repetitive" exercises.

"We believe that once we stabilize that roller coaster, get it back in balance, get them on the right diet and exercise program. (the symptoms) tend to stabilize and we can take them off medication," and they can again use sugar and caffeine in moder-

The center offers a 24-hour telephone line for people suffering from MVP-related problems, public forums and newsletters.

Frederickson is credited with starting the center, along with Phillip Watkins, a cardiologist at BMC Montclair - after the idea was rejected by several other hospitals. She said the idea came about seven years ago when she worked for a large university medical center in Alabama.

"For reasons I will never understand, physicians started referring to me young females with (MVP) for exercise," she said. "(The doctors) said put these girls in shape. I started listening to what they were telling me and they couldn't keep up with the cardiac patients who were 50 years older than they were.

"At that time, there was a lot of negative thinking about these girls," she said, noting most MVP sufferers spend years going from doctor to doctor seeking remedies for their problems.

organization is not the cause of the problems in the neighborhood. "The problem of animals roaming the streets around there from people dropping them off is a minor problem," said Bo Simpson, society president. "The problem is people aren't responsible for their animals." Simpson said because pet owners don't spay or neuter their animals and let them roam, those pets will breed with other pets resulting in more cats and dogs. "People just don't know what to do with them." Simpson said. Those kittens and pupples often become strays, he said.

The Humane Society has been at their current location since 1982 on a dollar-a-year lease from the county, Simpson said.

Until last summer, the society had a night drop box for unwanted animals but it was removed because of problems. If animals would be taken in for adoption. More often, the animals were taken to Animal Control and cuthanized.

Scott said people were placing aggressive dogs in the box, even If a cat was already in it. Pit bulls were placed in the box with other animals: mauled animals were often found the next day.

Another problem was pit buil breeders would steal animals out of the drop box to use for balt for their dogs. Scott said. Some medical laboratories in the central Florida area would also for experiments, based on letters Scott said she's received from former employees of the laboratories.

After the drop box was taken away, people would throw the society had room, the animals over the eight-foot shelter fence into the society Continued from Page 1D compound. "Quite a few sustained serious injuries as a 32-page instruction book for the same of least result," Scott said.

The Humane Society is not reponsible for strays or unwanted animals. They are responsible for injured and abused animals - their care and the prosecution of their abusers. Animal Control is responsible for
