Five eat poison mushrooms

PORTLAND, Ore. — One of five people who ate poison "death cap" mushrooms at a dinner party underwent a liver transplant in San Francisco as a nationwide search began to find livers for three other victims.

Glenda Sabolyk, 41, of Clackamas, Ore., underwent 4½ hours of surgery Thursday at the University of California-San Francisco Medical Center.

"The operation went fine," said Dr. Nancy Ascher, the surgeon and chief of the UCSF liver transplant program.

Whales trapped again

BARROW, Alaska — A Soviet icebreaker worked much of the night to carve another escape route for a pair of California gray whales trapped for three weeks in a prison of jagged arctic ice that slashed open wounds in the giant mammals.

When last seen late Thursday night, the whales were surfacing in the last of a series of breathing holes chainsawed into the ice by Eskimos — just 1,000 feet from open water.

With temperatures plummeting to 19 below zero and a wind-chill of 40 below, the U.S. rescue coordinator overruled an Eskimo decision to resume cutting air holes and decided to let the Soviets make a risky night assault on the remaining 1,000 feet of ice because of fears the 220-mile-long clear channel to the North Pacific would freeze. The Eskimos were ordered to leave the area as the ship moved in.

Lohr leads by three

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Those chasing Orlando's Bob Lohr going into today's third round of the Walt Disney World Classic are beginning to wish he'd opted for a baseball career back in college at Miami of Ohio.

Lohr, 27, continued to put distance between him and his closest pursuers Thursday, posting a five-under-par 67 on the heels of Wednesday's first round 62. Not only does his 129 total give him the best 36-hole start in the 18-year history of this tournament, but increased his advantage to three shots.

Knights face Ga. Southern

ORLANDO — The moment of truth has arrived for the UCF Knights football team.

Last Saturday at Valdosta (Ga.) State, the Knights were ranked No. 10 in the NCAA Division II polls, and were looking to improve their playoff chances with a win over the Blazers. Instead, they lost in a blowout, 48-19.

"Now we have to win two of our last three games to have a chance to get into the playoffs."

Those were the words of Head Coach Gene McDowell as the Knights, out of the Division II top 20 polls this week for the first time since 1986, try to regroup Saturday night at the Florida Citrus Bowl when UCF (6-2) faces their toughest test this season, the Georgia Southern Eagles (5-2), the No. 6 team in the country this week in Division I-AA.

Local voters set record

Seminole County figures up 11 percent since August 6

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County voters have increased their ranks by nearly 11 percent between August and October, newly-released registration figures show.

At the close of the voter registration books Oct. 8 for the Nov. 8 general election, the county had a record 112,499 registered voters, an increase of 10,705 over the Aug. 6 closing registration of 101,794 for the primaries.

The increase represents a 10.5 percent change and continues the historic trend set on Aug. 8 when county voter registration topped 100,000 for the first time.

Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard says there were 11,828 first-time voters registering between August and October, although 1,123 former Seminole County voters registered in other counties or states and were removed from the county registration books.

The county has a current estimated population of 267,108, meaning 42 percent of the county's population is registered to vote in the election.

Republicans continue to increase their stronghold on Seminole County. A total of 59,926 people are registered as Republicans, with 44,082 registered as Democrats.

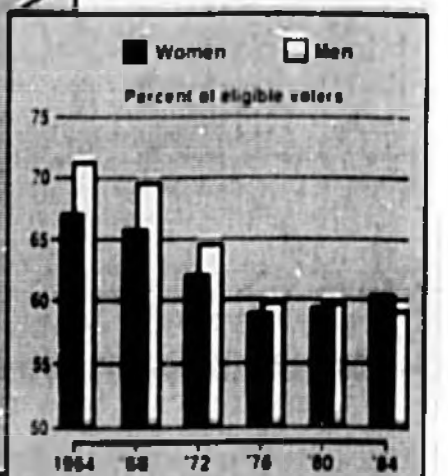

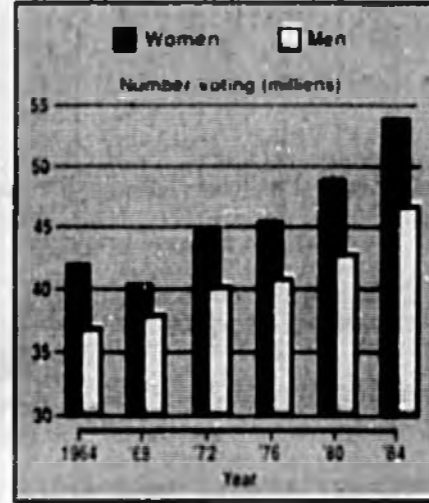

Republicans now total 53 percent of the registered voters, up from 52 percent on Aug. 8. Democrats slipped from 40 percent on Aug. 8 to 39.2 percent on Nov. 8.

Goard says her records show that many of the new Republicans are former Democrats. She says many Democrats purged last year for not voting during the previous two years are switching to the Re-

Boating weather

For our neighbors to the north, this is the time of year when we can participate in a little bragging when it comes to matters involving the weather. While Illinois, New York and Michigan have already experienced snowfall this year, things are still bright and warm in central Florida, as evidenced by this photo of boats at the Sanford Marina. This weekend, while some are shoveling snow and digging out heavy coats, local residents will still be boating, fishing and goating.

Building statistics fluctuate

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — The value of residential and commercial building here is up during the first three quarters of this year over last year but industrial building for the same period is down.

According to the latest statistics from the city, 1,785 permits were issued from January through the end of September — including buildings as well as accessory buildings and additions, signs, and permits for electrical, plumbing and other construction work — amounting to $14,369,475.

However, that represents a decrease in overall value compared to the same period last year when some 1,400 permits were issued for a value of $18,019,957.

Last month, the building department issued 162 permits for housing units, compared to 116 at the same time last year.

The total value of single family homes for which permits were issued this year is $5,744,685 for an average of $36,950 each. This

More bond money may come for expressway

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County Expressway may be eligible for more money from bonds because a nearly-complete study shows traffic between Volusia and Orange County is about double previous estimates.

A draft of the study released this week shows that by the year 2010, 81,400 cars are expected to travel south daily from Volusia County into Seminole County and beyond to Orange County by way of Interstate 4 and State Road 415.

Previous estimates showed only 43,000 cars would travel the two routes daily by 2005.

The as yet incomplete portion of the study counts traffic flowing south on U.S. Highway 17-92, used by a large number of Orange City and DeLand resident commuters. Consultants expect to complete the survey in about a month. They will also analyze how much of that traffic will potentially use the expressway.

Gerald Brinton, executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority, says the study may mean the authority will eligible for a larger bonding percentage for the expressway. The amount could be more than the current 60 percent rate, he said.

The portion of the expressway starting a half mile north of the Orange-Seminole County line to U.S. Highway 17-92 is expected to cost $152 million, Brinton said. At 60 percent, the authority may receive only $91 million towards the project. The rest will have to be sought from the state or other sources.

The first half-mile of the expressway north from the Orange County line is expected to be completed Dec. 15, Brinton said.

If the design is completed and funding in place, Brinton said construction on the four-lane toll road is

Morris to seek Sanford mayor's seat

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — John G. Morris, a member of the city planning and zoning commission and a former city commissioner today ended months of speculation when he filed papers to run for mayor.

Morris, 51, is challenging Mayor Bettye Smith, the city's first woman mayor. She took office in January 1985 and is finishing her first term.

Morris served on the city commission from 1970 to 1980.

He served nine and one-half years before resigning. He said at the time he wanted to remain involved in city government. He was appointed to the planning and zoning commission in 1980.

"I think in the next six years Sanford will have to decide whether it wants to remain a small town or grow into a quality place to live," he said today.

"There are many important decisions the city has to make and I don't see the leadership in the present administration to push the commission down the proper course," he said.

Others have mentioned Morris' name as a possible candidate to run against mayor for months. However, he had remained noncommittal about his political

Couple settles false arrest for $1 million

MIAMI — A Davie couple whose $2.25 million jury award was set aside in a false arrest case involving a Zayre department store have settled the claim for $1 million. Kenneth and Alina Geringer agreed to the lower amount because they needed the money and did not want to go through a lengthy appeal in an attempt to get the original award reinstated, said their lawyer, Thomas Morgan. "It was going to be paid immediately rather than be something you're going to have to litigate for two or 2 1/2 years," he said. "If you win, you win big. So the question was, did you want to win big two or 2 1/2 years from now?" Zayre lawyer Charles Sinclair said the company also benefited from an early settlement, rather than running the risk of having to pay out more later.

Teen shot saying no to drug dealer

MIAMI — A teenager police first thought to was murdered in a drug turf war say he apparently was not into drugs and got killed trying to force a crack cocaine dealer out of his neighborhood. Dalton Reneau, 17, died Thursday of bullet wounds to his chest. He also was shot in both legs. Police were looking for Francola "Dread" Valmer, 31, in the youth's 1st-degree murder. They said it first appeared that the two were caught up in a territorial dispute between drug dealers on a corner in northeast Miami. "That's what I thought last night, but the victim appears to be straight," homicide detective Ron Ilhardt said Thursday. "All the young men hanging out there work.... They don't appear to be that type. They were trying to keep the neighborhood clean."

Farmer puzzled by two-week cow kill

CHUMUCKLA — A man who has raised cows in northwest Florida for more than 50 years said Thursday he does not know what killed nearly a dozen of his cows over a two-week period, but the problems seems to have ended. Lamar Campbell, who has owned his Santa Rosa County farm since 1931 and has had cows ever since, said this is the first time anything like this has ever happened to him. "I lost four one time standing up by a fence and lightning struck a post. But to outright die like this is the first time it's been really noticeable," Campbell said. Campbell's cows started dying off in late September after he returned from a weekend trip to Alabama. When the first two animals died early in the week he chalked it up to a lightning strike. "While we were burying those two, I found three more dead," Campbell said. By the weekend two more cows died. Technicians from a state animal diagnostic laboratory in Kissimmee were asked to study specimens from both dead and live animals as more cows died. L.D. Kintner, a chemist at the laboratory, said the cows appeared to have died from a toxic reaction or poisoning. But precisely what might have caused it was still uncertain.

Group ready to fight redfish rule

TALLAHASSEE — Commercial fishermen say they are ready to battle a proposed state Marine Fisheries Commission recommendation that the popular redfish be designated a gamefish, a move that would bar commercial harvesting. "If the recommendation has become the battle ground," says Joan Butler, deputy director of the Organized Fishermen of Florida, an organization that represents about 2,000 commercial fishermen in the state. Taking of redfish by either sport or commercial fishermen has been barred in Florida waters since Dec. 31, 1987. The ban was ordered after it was determined an inordinate number of juvenile fish were being taken, thus hampering reproduction. The fish leaped to popularity in the early 1980s on restaurant menus across the South after chef Paul Prudhomme began serving blackened redfish at K-Paul's, his restaurant in New Orleans. Pressured by environmental and sportfishing groups, the redfish already has been designated a gamefish in Texas, Alabama and Louisiana, thus barring commercial harvesting, Butler said. Bill filed to kill legislative 'slush funds' TALLAHASSEE — Rep. Carl Carpenter, D-Plant City, has filed legislation to eliminate the leadership funds top lawmakers use to help their supporters get elected. Carpenter, who is trying to wrest the House speakership from Speaker-designate Tom Gustafson, D-Fort Lauderdale, also on Wednesday filed a bill that would prevent lawmakers from accepting contributions from political action committees during the annual legislative session.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Group wants DeSillers estate money

By ANDREW RUBIN
United Press International

MIAMI — A group for sick children joined the battle Thursday over funds donated for the late Ronnie DeSillers, claiming leftover money should go to a dying south Florida toddler who needs an intestine-liver transplant.

John Shean, spokesman for the Children's Organ Transplant Association, based in Indiana, criticized Monday's ruling by Dade Circuit Judge Francis Christie. Christie awarded money leftover from disputed funds donated to Ronnie DeSillers to the Governor's Transplant Lifeline for Children fund.

The TLC fund helps pay the bills for children who need transplants. But an intestine-liver transplant is considered experimental and the program is barred from paying for experimental transplants, officials said.

"We don't make these decisions independently. We have an advisory council made up of physicians who review... those procedures that are to be listed experimental and non-experimental," said Dr. William Ausbon, director of the state Children's Medical Services. "There are not enough dollars to do everything."

Calvin Oliveira, who spent much of his life

The order to turn over the estate's leftover funds was made as part of the agreement with the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, which forfeited a $31,000 claim as part of the pact.

hospitalized, will die without the transplants, said his pediatrician, Dr. Larry Adams.

Virtually all of his small intestine was removed at birth, making it necessary to feed him intravenously. That in turn caused cirrhosis of the liver, Adams said.

Shean said his group has had trouble raising funds for children, including the $300,000 Calvin needs, because of adverse publicity Maria DeSillers received.

Ronnie died last year at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh while awaiting a fourth liver transplant. It was later disclosed that his mother used some of the $690,000 donated to pay for his medical care for personal items, including jewelry, furs and a BMW car.

The judge approved a settlement between Ronnie's estate and the hospital and state, both of which provided hospital care. The order to turn over the estate's leftover funds was made as part of the agreement with the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, which forfeited a $31,000 claim as part of the pact.

Curator Karen Gievers said there is about $30,000 left in the estate. But the estate is suing a bank, claiming it improperly allowed donated funds to be withdrawn from the account. Gievers said settlement negotiations have begun to try recovering about $260,000.

"I'm not here to defend Maria DeSillers," Shean said, demonstrating on the Dade Courthouse steps near where Maria DeSillers and others protested Christie's decision.

He said COTA has been turned down by some potential donors because of suspicions raised in the DeSillers case.

"We're not spending money on jewelry, furs and BMWs," he said. "We're spending money on legitimate things."

Shean, who said his 11-month-old son died three years ago while awaiting a liver transplant, said the DeSillers funds should be divided equally between his group and the TLC program.

Audit criticizes Revenue Department

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Department of Revenue has not complied with recommendations made by the state Auditor General's office, including purchasing procedures, account reconciliations and penalty billings, according to a report released Thursday.

The report, prepared by state Auditor General Charles Lewis, also noted the Revenue Department had violated state statutes by failing to add penalties to delinquent taxes until last month.

The audit also cited a number of management deficiencies, including the failure to reconcile sales tax registration fees with the number of certificates issued.

The audit period ran from February 1986 to January 1987, with selected areas being audited through March of this year.

Revenue Director Katie Tucker said in an Oct. 20 letter to Leater's office that the problems addressed in the audit either had been corrected or were in the process of being corrected.

"We anticipate the system, once fully implemented, will make possible more efficient and effective controls in many areas noted in your report," Tucker wrote.

Lewis' team also said the Revenue Department had not established an adequate data entry control system to enter taxpayer account numbers into an overall control mechanism.

The absence of such a system, the report said, could result in "inaccurate taxpayer account numbers and reporting periods, thereby precluding ready identification of delinquent taxpayers."

The audit team also found individual tax refunds were not recorded in individual taxpayer accounts, something that would affect the department's "ability to detect duplicate or fraudulent tax refunds" in a timely manner.

Flies to fight mole crickets

United Press International

BRADENTON — One hundred red-eyed flies from Brazil will be unleashed today against the mole cricket, whose appetite costs Florida $44 million in damage and control, University of Florida officials said Thursday.

It is the third time the fly will be used as a biological control for mole crickets, which cost Florida $44 million a year in control and damage on golf courses, lawns, pastures and agricultural crops, said Howard Frank, coordinator of the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences mole cricket project.

Harmless to all Florida creatures except the mole cricket, which feeds from the soil, the fly makes its living by eating the mole cricket's mating call, and lays living larvae on or near the mole cricket. The larvae burrow into the mole cricket and his mates, eventually killing them, and emerge 10 days later as red-eyed flies.

The first two fly releases were in April and June in Gainesville.

The IFAS Gulf Coast Research and Education Center in Bradenton was chosen as the second release site because researchers have studied mole cricket populations there for many years. In addition, IFAS researchers are not absolutely sure the red-eyed fly will make it through Gainesville's winter and opted for a warmer site for comparison in their studies.

Mole cricket damage to cow pastures near Bradenton led to funding for mole cricket biological research, but officials say the greatest economic benefit, said IFAS mole cricket researcher Tom Walker.

Court upholds state regulation of co-generators

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court upheld Thursday the authority of the state Public Service Commission to regulate small co-generation power plants that serve single industrial customers.

In a 6-1 ruling, the court said oversight by the PSC is justified to prevent duplication of services that could boost power costs for millions of other residential and commercial customers of large utilities.

Justice Parker Lee McDonald dissented, saying state law grants the PSC authority only over utilities that sell power to the general public and not those that deal with a single customer.

But the court majority, in an opinion by Justice Stephen Grimes, said the entire regulatory scheme for power companies and other utilities in Florida was at stake.

The case involved PW Ventures, a corporation that proposed a co-generating plant to serve the Pratt and Whitney aerospace complex near West Palm Beach.

"What PW Ventures proposes is to go into an area served by a utility and take one of its major customers," Grimes wrote.

Grimes feared other power companies could evade PSC regulation by entering into individual contracts with industrial complexes that use large amounts of electricity — leaving a dwindling customer base to carry regulated utilities' generating costs.

"The utility goes bankrupt, or the rates for other customers rise to cover that stranded investment" in power plants, transmission lines and other facilities, said Joe Jenkins, director of the PSC's Division of Electric and Gas.

The case pitted FPL Energy Services, Inc., which originally owned a half share in PW Ventures, against Florida Power & Light Co., the utility serving the area. Both are sister corporations in the FPL Group, Inc. FPL Energy Services sold its share in the venture after the PSC asserted regulatory authority.

The case was being watched by Tampa Electric Co., which has asked the PSC to block plans for a co-generating plant at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa.

The Air Force has asserted a national security prerogative in the MacDill case which Jenkins said might override the state's regulatory authority.

The base is headquarters of the Special Operations Command, which oversees elite Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine commando units and focuses on global hot spots like the Persian Gulf.

Herald city editor

SANFORD — A representative of the Federal Bureau of Prisons will be in Sanford next week to explain to city officials, business owners and members of the general public the Bureau's interest in locating a federal prison on city-owned property near Lake Jesup.

Meetings are scheduled before the city commission on Monday afternoon, for the general public Tuesday night, and at a chamber of commerce luncheon

Wednesday at noon.

A Bureau of Prison Facilities Relocation team will make its presentation to the city commission at a workshop in City Hall at 4 p.m. Monday. The meeting will be in the commission meeting room on the first floor and is open to the public.

The prison officials and city officials are expected to discuss a proposed memorandum of agreement between the two bodies, formally offering 275 acres in the 2,200-acre property the city owns near Lake Jesup.

Car shooting suspect turns self in to police

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man suspected of accidentally wounding a DeLand driver who was waiting at a traffic signal here yesterday afternoon, turned himself in to city police last night after hearing broadcast pleas to surrender.

Police identified the suspect as Joseph Hartley, 22, 643 Dory Lane, Altamonte Springs.

He turned himself in about midnight and made a statement that he had fired a 9 mm semi-automatic weapon, according to police.

Robert Chapman, 25, a Tri-City Electrical Contractors employee, told police he was stopped at a red light in a company truck at about 4:03 p.m. yesterday afternoon at State Road 436 and Essex Avenue near Altamonte Springs Mall. He said he heard a gunshot and realized he had been shot in the lower right leg.

He told police he saw a man getting out of his two-tone brown Ford Bronco. Chapman reported the man re-entered his truck and left the scene, according to police.

The bullet penetrated the driver's door, striking Chapman in the leg. He was transported to Florida Hospital-Altamonte where surgery was performed on his leg late Thursday.

Worried residents fear killer 'still out there'

United Press International

GREENFIELD, Mass. — Police today combed the countryside for a suspect in the mutilation murder of a coed, while terrified residents trembled at reports the killer faced himself as the villain in the horror movie Friday the 13th.

Heavily armed state and local police using a tracking dog were tracing every lead and tip in their hunt for Mark Branch, 18, of Greenfield, who is sought in Monday's stabbing death of Sharon Gregory, also 18, and of Greenfield.

"We are searching every nook and cranny in this county. We've got every available officer searching everywhere," said Greenfield Police Chief David McCarthy. "We're covering a lot of territory as fast as we can, working 18-hour days."

The grisly killing sent waves of fear through the community as residents locked their doors and listened nervously to news reports.

"I have the shakes," said Suzanne Charron, who lives next door to the suspect's house. "It seems hard to imagine anyone murdering anyone. I can't picture anyone having that in them."

Veterans, elderly deserve attention

The establishment of a department of veterans affairs and a department of elderly affairs is proposed under constitutional Amendment No. 9. The effect would be to consolidate the responsibilities for each subject into a cabinet-level department. An amendment is necessary because the state's constitution limits the number of executive agencies to 25, and that many state agencies already exist.

If the amendment passes, the legislature will be empowered to create the two departments. The legislature retains the option of acting or not. If the legislature does create one or both departments, it must provide for the structure and financing.

Presently, veterans affairs are scattered among the executive office of the governor, the department of administration, and the department of education. The legislature studied the creation of a separate department for veterans affairs and most of the enabling legislation has been formulated. It would appear that such consolidation will not increase costs but will result in a more efficient operation. There are 1.5 million veterans in Florida and the number is increasing by approximately 3,000 per month as the result of people moving here from other states.

The state has more than 2 million elderly residents, more than any other state except New York and California. The elderly population here is projected to grow even more.

The elderly have special needs, yet no clearly defined state policy has been developed. Primary responsibility for elderly affairs now rests with a program office of the HRS, the state's largest department.

If the amendment passes, the legislature must enact the necessary structure and financing. Based on its experience with the veterans affairs proposal, costs should not increase. However, efficiency in functions and responses by the department to the increasing needs of elderly citizens should be greatly enhanced.

The Herald recommends a yes vote on amendment 9 to demonstrate to the veterans and elderly that Florida is committed to providing the services needed for self-sufficiency among these valuable citizens.

Relieve dockets

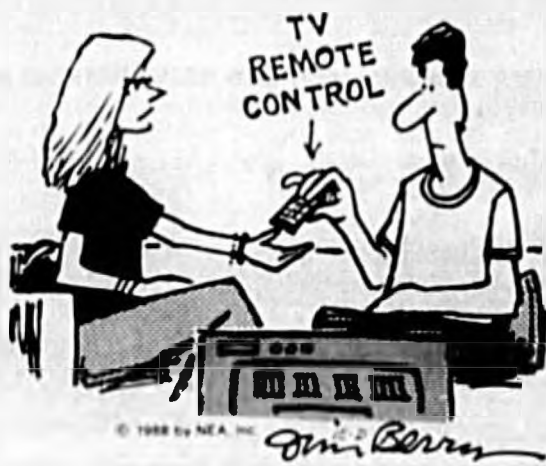

Proposed amendment No. 8 would authorize the Legislature to establish a civil traffic hearing officer to hear civil traffic offenses. The effect would be to relieve the dockets of county judges in non-criminal traffic cases. This would be a streamlining of the justice system, especially in those areas of the state where county judges are severely overburdened.

Currently, judges in Palm Beach, Broward and Dade counties face the largest backlog. To reduce the backlog 12 1/2 of the projected 18 1/2 hearing officers are slated for South Florida. Hearing officers would be paid substantially less than county judges, so their use will probably lessen the need for large increases in the number of county judges.

Since the effect of the amendment would decrease costs and, at the same time, decrease crowded dockets, thus streamlining the overcrowded court system, the Herald recommends a yes vote on proposed Amendment No. 8.

"THE PASSING OF THE POWER" RITUAL —

VINCENT CARROLL

This would be a fiery case for the ACLU

I've got just the job for the American Civil Liberties Union: Find a newly hired police officer or firefighter in Massachusetts and sue that state for regulating private lifestyles.

Shouldn't civil liberties include the right to engage in legal behavior in one's own backyard? The strait-laced commonwealth governed by Michael Dukakis disagrees. It recently became the first state (although not the first local jurisdiction) to implement a law prohibiting new police and firefighters from any smoking at all — not only on the job, mind you, but away from work, too.

As with most assaults on freedom, the smoking ban is beguilingly well-intentioned. Massachusetts law presumes that heart and lung disease among police and firefighters is related to stress, however obvious that it's often caused by heavy smoking. Taxpayers thus find themselves helplessly liable for staggering disability payments.

So why not simply change the law? Because the unions object. Their members prosper under automatic disability. And lawmakers would rather conspire against personal freedom than risk inciting a powerful interest group.

Most Americans, including myself, have no objection to police departments, restaurants, airlines or other businesses banning smoking from their premises. After all, employers can dictate whether or not we'll wear jeans to the office or snack at our work stations.

Yet most of us would bridle if a company ordered us to church on Sunday or demanded we give up beef at dinner. Why should smoking at home be treated differently? It's unhealthy, of course, but it's still legal.

Arguments for banning off-the-job smoking fall into one of two categories: the pragmatic (it saves tax revenue and promotes a healthier work force), or the suffocatingly paternalistic (people must be told what's best for them). A potential loss of liberty rarely enters the equation.

"We think it's a good idea that people shouldn't smoke," says Robert B. McCarthy, president of the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts, as if anyone disagreed. The trouble with good ideas, though, is that there's no end to them. It's a good idea for people to exercise daily, to avoid fatty foods and too much booze, to volunteer time to charity, to watch beautiful sunsets, to stop quarrelling with their spouses, to read the classics. Good ideas multiply like crabgrass. Yet when written into law by busybodies, they also choke off spontaneity and individual choice.

Fortunately, Massachusetts may have left an opening for a successful challenge to its smoking ban (which is where the ACLU could enter the picture). While new police and firefighters won't be permitted to smoke, current employees who smoke will be exempted. Hence the principle of equal protection under the law may be at stake.

Even the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 10th Circuit, which last year upheld a slightly less restrictive law in Oklahoma City, noted that the plaintiff firefighter in that case failed to raise the equal-protection issue. The implication: A final verdict on such laws has yet to be laid down.

As someone who has never smoked a cigarette in his life, I welcome the prospect of a tobacco-free society.

Q WHICH LITTLE BLOND KID DO YOU FEEL IS MOST QUALIFIED IF SOMETHING HAPPENS TO PRESIDENT BUSH?

DAVID S. BRODER

Separation from Dukakis

SAGINAW, Mich.—Time was when Bob Traxler was at the center of a great national political struggle. That was the spring of 1974. The 42-year-old state representative was carrying the Democratic banner in a special congressional election for a vacated seat in the House of Representatives here in the traditionally Republican "Thumb" of Michigan.

Richard Nixon, who had appointed the Republican incumbent to the federal bench, was under relenting pressure from the Watergate disclosures. Attempting to bolster his eroding political support, Nixon came here to campaign for Traxler's GOP opponent, James Sparling, Jr., a onetime White House assistant. The national Democratic Party mobilized on Traxler's behalf, and when he won by a scant 51-49 percent margin, he was the hero of the party.

Since then, Traxler has entrenched himself in the customary manner of congressional incumbents. He has moved up the ladder on the House Appropriations Committee and has used his seniority on two key subcommittees to secure help for flooded farmers and pollution-plagued cities. His nickname is "Dingo Bob," carried over from his days as a state legislator who carried church-bingo legalization bills. Traxler has had an increasingly easy time getting re-elected: In the last five elections, he has averaged almost 72 percent of the vote.

This year, his mid-October financial report showed his campaign with $224,245 on hand, compared to $2,886 for his Republican opponent, weekly newspaper publisher Lloyd F. Buhl.

Last spring, before the Michigan presidential primary, Traxler endorsed Michael S. Dukakis. Traxler had not met Dukakis, but the governor was recommended by several members of the Massachusetts delegation, including Rep. Edward Boland, chairman of one of Traxler's appropriations subcommittees. As a "super-delegate" to last July's Democratic convention, Traxler voted for Dukakis, even though he was severely criticized by delegates for Jesse L. Jackson, who had swept the district in the primary.

This fall, however, Traxler has been saying no to a number of requests from the Dukakis campaign and signaling his independence from the top of the ticket. On the night of the last presidential debate, a local television station asked Traxler and neighboring Republican Rep. Bill Schuette to comment on the performances. Schuette raved about George Bush, giving him "a perfect 10." Traxler said, "I'd give them both a 7.5."

That incensed some Democratic loyalists. Headquarters volunteer Jean Shaft told a reporter, "I'm surprised at Traxler's nerve in showing up (at the Dukakis rally here last week) after what he said on television."

But it is no surprise to others.

State Rep. Roland G. Niederstadt (D), a Traxler ally, was more understanding. "One of the young Dukakis workers asked me why he couldn't get Bob Traxler to take the lead in rebutting some of the charges (the Republicans have made) against Dukakis," Niederstadt said. "I told him that Traxler would probably win with 68 or 70 percent of the vote this time, but he's put a lot of years into building this strength, and he's not going to sacrifice it for a candidate he doesn't think is going to win. That's hard for an idealistic young person to understand."

The "idealistic young person" is Doug Maguire of Washington, D.C., a graduate of St. Alban's School and Duke University. Maguire arrived here "flushed and excited," as he described himself, in August to coordinate the Dukakis campaign, "and immediately started pushing hard" for help from local Democratic officials like Traxler.

Maguire said Traxler declined to request to "turn loose some of his staff people," but has been cooperative on other things, including the appearance at the Dukakis rally.

As for Traxler, he says he can't understand "why Dukakis has all these field representatives across the country, these nice kids out of college...I'd be thrilled if they got that nice young man out of my hair, so I don't have to keep saying, 'No, don't do that please,' and put the money they're paying him into television. That's how you win in the 1980s."

Among the 300-plus Democrats in Congress, some are putting more of their political capital into the Dukakis campaign than Traxler is; but many are offering less. The reality for virtually all of them is that their own political fate is entirely separate from the president nominee's.

Probe links a Bush aide

WASHINGTON — George Bush didn't have to go to Boston Harbor to find an environmental scandal. His own right-hand man appears to have been wading in the Rita Lavelle-Superfund quagmire.

Craig Fuller, now Bush's chief of staff, was a "worker bee" running messages between the White House and Lavelle at the Environmental Protection Agency during the Superfund scandal of 1982 and 1983, according to Lavelle.

In an interview with our associate Stewart Harris, Lavelle said that Fuller was well aware of the scheme to funnel Superfund cleanup money to the states where it would help Republican candidates. But she said Fuller, then secretary of cabinet affairs, did not engineer the scheme. The Superfund was authorized by Congress to clean up hazardous waste.

Lavelle says she frequently informed Fuller about matters in the Superfund program, including a briefing about apparent political manipulation of the program.

To this day, Lavelle maintains her innocence in the scheme, and claims she protested the alleged manipulation. Lavelle served a prison term for lying to Congress about the issue.

"All I can say is the truth," she says of Fuller's contacts with her. "They were not directional calls. They were informational calls."

But many believe someone at the White House was giving Lavelle her marching orders. Former EPA head Anne Gorsuch Burford said as much in her book, "Are You Tough Enough?" Burford, who was fired as a result of the scandal, writes that she suspected the White House of guiding Lavelle.

Numerous congressional investigators believe that the White House claimed "executive privilege" over documents so Congress would not find out who was responsible for the mess.

It was Fuller's job in the early 1980s to act as a liaison between the White House and executive offices such as the EPA. We asked Fuller if he had ever talked to Lavelle about political manipulation of Superfund money. Fuller's response, through a spokesman, was "no."

Fuller has repeatedly characterized his contacts with Lavelle as "infrequent and related to EPA or Cabinet affairs business," according to spokesman Steve Hart.

But Fuller and Lavelle communicated more often than Fuller seems willing to admit. Three of Lavelle's secretaries told congressional investigators that she and Fuller talked as often as every other week. They used chaperoned messengers to trade sensitive packages, sealed with tape and marked "eyes only."

One weekend when Fuller was moving into a new apartment, he ran into a Superfund attorney helping the former resident move out. That attorney told congressional investigators that Fuller said, "Oh, you work for Rita Lavelle. I know her well." Fuller added that he spoke to Lavelle frequently, the attorney said.

Even former Attorney General Edwin Meese linked Fuller and Lavelle. Meese was asked about Lavelle in his confirmation hearing. "I do not recall ever talking with her about any particular toxic waste site. I suspect she may be confusing me with Craig Fuller in that testimony."

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 24.35 Thursday, was up 9.43 to 2150.25 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 537-223 among the 1,195 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 8,763,000 shares.

Stock prices closed sharply and broadly lower in active trading Thursday after Wall Street became worried about the future financing of takeovers and leveraged buyouts.

Dollar drifting higher; gold up, silver mixed

United Press International

The dollar drifted higher today in light trading on major world money markets. Gold moved higher.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar rose slightly against the Japanese yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market, closing at 126.08 yen, up 0.18 yen from 125.90 on Thursday.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.78 West German marks, up from Thursday's close of 1.7695.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.4958 Swiss francs, up from 1.493, in Paris at 6.0715 French francs, up from 6.0445, in Brussels at 37.59 Belgian francs, up from 37.4250, and in Milan at 1,324.75 lire, up from 1,319.50.

In London, the British pound opened at $1.766 compared with $1.769.

In early New York trading, the dollar edged slightly higher against key foreign currencies in thin trading.

Currency traders in New York noted the dollar moved higher in the absence of key economic or spot news.

On the bullion markets, gold opened unchanged in Zurich at $407.50 an ounce, and was unchanged in London at $407.75.

The London morning gold fixing was $407.30, off 45 cents from Thursday's close.

In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed out the week at $407.75 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up 25 cents from Thursday's close.

Silver began the day 5 cents an ounce lower in Zurich at $6.20 an ounce and held steady London at $6.21 an ounce.

Analysts attributed the sharp drop in prices to two main things: a proposal made Wednesday by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, asking the Senate Banking Committee to change the tax law to discourage corporate borrowing; and First Boston Corp.'s postponement of a major junk bond offering.

First Boston Corp. Thursday announced it would delay pricing the $1.15 billion offering of Federated Department Stores junk bonds, which would provide long-term funding for Campeau Corp.'s acquisition of the company earlier this year.

The price delay suggested to some analysts that First Boston was having trouble attracting investors.

Lewis: Be wary of penny stocks

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Consumers should check carefully before buying penny stocks, Comptroller Gerald Lewis warned Thursday, because of an alarming increase in fraudulent sales of the inexpensive stocks.

Fifty-six percent of the actions his office took against securities dealers last year dealt with penny stocks, Lewis said, even though penny stock dealers make up only a small percent of the securities dealers in Florida.

Penny-stock dealers represent only 3 percent of all the securities dealers in Florida," he said. "But they make up nearly 25 percent of all the complaints filed with our office."

The Comptroller's Office took action against 254 securities firms and dealers last year. Of those, 141 concerned penny stocks.

Electing Bush, Dukakis or Truman

United Press International

Telling supporters an Election Day upset remains possible, Michael Dukakis is stressing the case of fellow Democrat Harry Truman. Trouble is, his opposition appears willing to use the historical comparison for Republican purposes.

Where Dukakis draws a parallel with the underdog presidential candidate who stunned his favored GOP rival forty years ago, a former Democrat named Ronald Reagan sees a fellow chief executive who similarly would have switched parties by now — to vote, if he were alive, for Republican George Bush.

This battle for Truman's mantle has unfolded in his home of Missouri, where Dukakis arranged to campaign today before heading back to Massachusetts via Michigan while Bush moved from California to Nebraska to Illinois.

At a town meeting in Truman's birthplace of Independence, Mo., Dukakis told voters Thursday night that he resembles their favorite son in several ways.

"He and I are about the same size," quipped the 5-foot-8 Massachusetts governor, "and neither one of us had much pretension — Harry Truman's passion came from his public service, and I'd like to think, in some small way, I am the same way."

Dukakis speculated about how Truman would have fared in a modern presidential race. "In this age of communication and negative campaigning," but said he had no doubts about one thing: "If he were around today, I wouldn't imagine him supporting George Bush. He would be foursquare for the Democratic ticket."

Not so, according to Reagan, who rushed to fight on the same field.

"Harry Truman's party believed in working Americans and in keeping America's defenses strong and, yes, in 'one nation under God,'" the president told an airport rally in Springfield, Mo., just a few hours before Dukakis's event.

"Today," he told cheering supporters, "the party that believes in that is stronger than ever. It's called the Republican Party."

Sounding another point made by Dukakis, who insisted again Thursday that the election "is up for grabs," Reagan said, "Yes, the election is up for grabs."

Despite polls showing Bush ahead, now is not the time for Republicans to get overconfident, he explained. "So win just one more the Gipper" and "do some negative campaigning of your own" by voting against the Democrats.

The latest NBC News-Wall Street Journal poll released Thursday showed Bush maintaining a 9-point lead over Dukakis. The survey of 1,285 likely voters Monday through Wednesday gave the vice president 51 percent to the Democrat's 42 percent with 7 percent undecided. The error margin was 3 percentage points.

The survey also showed Bush capturing 56 percent of the so-called Reagan Democrats compared to 37 percent for Dukakis. The rivals were about evenly split among blue-collar workers.

Bush spent Thursday on the West Coast, and in California he charged Dukakis has tried to scare blue-collar voters by inciting a fear of foreigners with protectionist arguments on trade issues.

"It doesn't make sense to stick our heads in the sand as some in the other party have suggested and try and build walls around America," Bush said at the Applied Materials Corp. in Santa Clara, Calif. "It doesn't make sense to launch a trade war and plunge America and the world into a recession, and it is beneath the dignity of the presidency and of the voters to try to incite fear of foreigners as a cheap means of winning a few votes."

Dukakis, countering with a television blitz in the last two weeks of the campaign, was interviewed live on the "CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" Thursday night.

expected to begin by late 1989 and be completed in two years, although the section between State Roads 436 and 434 is expected to be completed by late 1990.

The segment between U.S. 17-92 and I-4 is currently not scheduled, Brinton said. But the road, currently estimated at $114 million, could be completed by the mid-1990s, he said.

He said another possible outcome of the study is substantiation of the need of an expressway spur, possibly north of Lake Jessup, to SR 415. Preliminary results of the study show a large portion of the south-bound traffic from Volusia County uses SR 415 that might use the expressway to travel south into Orange County.

Brinton said the spur might connect to the Lake Mary Boulevard extension east of U.S. 17-92, currently under construction, Brinton said.

Mike Durak, Seminole County transportation planner, said earlier studies have suggested the need for the SR 415 spur. Durak said the expressway destination study advances future county road planning by including Volusia County-generated traffic, which has a major impact on Seminole County roads.

publican party. "A lot of the re-instatements are changing from Democrat to Republican," Gaard said.

Still, Democrats have 2,593 new members in their party ranks. The Republican gain is 7,168 new party members.

James Ocuque, chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, says the switch to Republicans shows acceptance of the Reagan administration.

"It shows the policies of the Reagan administration have come into line with the people of Florida," Ocuque says. "Also, people are seeing more races are being decided in the primaries. As long as there are good, responsible Republicans running, I think that's OK, although I'm not advocating a one-party system."

The head of the county Democrats isn't concerned about the trend.

"The demographic make-up of the county tends to lend itself to Republican," says David McIntosh, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee.

McIntosh sees a continued trend in the Republican direction, but then an equaling of party registration.

"It's a matter of the electorate seeking that balance," McIntosh says. "My crystal ball's been broken for years. But I think we'll see a swing back to a more centrist position."

McIntosh says factionalizing in the Republican party may also cause a leveling of the two-party system in the county. He says several years ago, when Democrats represented 85 percent of the county voters, infighting and subgroups caused a swing towards Republicans.

Permits for seven industrial buildings with total value of $1,038,000 have been issued this year compared to four at this time last year with total value of $2,207,195.

He has been a resident of Sanford for 20 years. He and his wife Bernice live at 210 Dogwood Dr. They have two children, ages 15 and 13.

Smith already has filed for re-election to a second term.

Morris' candidacy assures Sanford voters of a choice in all three municipal positions to be filled in the December election. The deadline for filing for the election is noon Tuesday.

Two candidates have filed for election to the two seats on the city commission which are up this year.

John Y. Mercer, who now represents District 1, is not running for re-election. James Sweeting III, a Sanford attorney, and Jay Malone, a vice president of Southeast Bank, have both filed for the District 1 seat.

In District 2, Bob Thomas Jr., an employee of the Seminole School District, has filed for re-election to a second term, and Storm Richards, a planner with an engineering consulting company, has filed to oppose him.

Raises for air traffic controllers

In an attempt to lure controllers 2,000 are given 20 percent raises

United Press International

In an attempt to lure experienced air traffic controllers to high-traffic airports, the federal government has agreed to grant 20 percent pay hikes to some 2,000 controllers in the Chicago, New York and Los Angeles metropolitan areas.

The pay raises will not be implemented until May, but Transportation Secretary James Burnley said the bonus program could be expanded to other Federal Aviation Administration facilities around the country if it proves successful.

"This project should make it possible for the FAA to achieve full staffing at facilities where living costs, highly complex operations or other factors have made them less attractive for employees to move to," Burnley said Thursday.

"This project will enable us to recognize on a limited basis what private companies do when relocating employees, namely, that you have to pay people more if you expect them to transfer to facilities with complex operations or in areas with high living costs," he said.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who has been seeking the pay raises for controllers at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport to achieve safer conditions, praised the announcement. This year there have been a record 30 reported air traffic controller errors at O'Hare, the world's busiest airport.

"If you're a controller in Wichita, Kan., why should you come to Chicago and get basically the same pay?" Simon said. "When you have more responsibility, you ought to have more pay."

"The O'Hare tower is the toughest assignment in the national air control system," he said. "This is only one step of many we need to solve the problems at O'Hare, but it addresses the central problem — too few controllers and too little experience behind the radar screens."

Simon and fellow Illinois Democratic Sen. Alan Dixon have asked the FAA to add 37 controllers at O'Hare, which now is operating under an FAA-imposed limit on flights because of recent near-collisions. The Illinois senators on Wednesday sharply criticized an FAA report that called for adding only five more controllers to active duty at O'Hare.

Simon's office announced on Thursday that the FAA promised the senator it would make more specific proposals to improve safety at the world's busiest airport during a briefing in Washington scheduled for this afternoon. The FAA is expected to release a list of several dozen steps, the costs of those proposals and a timetable for implementation.

"I'm gratified to see that the wheels are starting to turn," Simon said.

Simon and Dixon co-sponsored legislation ordering the FAA for a timetable of steps to improve overall safety and end emergency safety rules that have caused dozens of flight delays daily at the Chicago airport.

The decision to approve the raises for controllers at 10 "difficult-to-staff facilities" in the three metropolitan areas was announced in Washington by Burnley and Constance Hornor, director of the Office of Personnel Management.

A majority of the 2,000 employees due to receive the 20 percent pay hikes will be controllers, with the remaining raises going to airway facilities technicians and aviation safety inspectors.

The affected FAA facilities include air route traffic control centers in Aurora, Ill., and Ronkonkoma, N.Y.; the O'Hare and Los Angeles International airport tower cabs and Terminal Radar Approach Control facilities (TRACONS); the New York TRACON at Westbury.

Study: compensation to crash victims' families inadequate

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — The airline industry paid an average of $364,000 to the relatives of people killed in plane crashes, a figure that represents less than half the families' estimated economic losses, a RAND Corp. study shows.

"Given the death-damage principle for deterrence, the compensation paid falls far short of imposing effective financial incentives to invest in airline safety," said economists James Smith and Elizabeth King, who helped write the study.

The study of more than 2,200 death cases from 28 major U.S. airline accidents between 1970 and 1984 revealed that the average payment represents 48 percent of the average $749,000 in estimated economic losses, according to the study, which calculated the payments using the value of the dollar in 1986.

The rate of compensation to loss, however, rose dramatically over the 14-year period of the study, reaching 59 percent of beneficiaries' losses during the 1980s, the study said.

Results of the study released Thursday were first published in May when The National Law Journal obtained an advance copy.

Some lawyers who handle aviation cases agreed with the conclusions, but others complained they were too broad and that compensation is much higher today.

Smith and King concluded that compensation in airline wrongful death cases is neither "fair" nor "adequate."

"If we take $53 million as the average value of life, the compensation to airline victims is less than 7 percent of the true economic cost of a damage," they said. "That is, for every dollar of true economic cost, defendants are paying only 7 cents."

FAA ordering rivet work on 737s

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government is taking a broad and costly step by moving to require the replacement of 7,200 rivets on each older Boeing 737 to prevent a repeat of last spring's accident in which a jetliner ripped open in flight.

The Federal Aviation Administration proposal would affect 291 airplanes at an estimated cost of $800,000 and 2,018 hours to replace the rivets on each.

The proposal was issued Thursday, just three weeks after Continental Airlines discovered 30 previously undetected cracks, including a 12-inch fissure, on a 19-year-old Boeing 737 when paint was stripped off during routine maintenance.

The FAA decision is open to a period of public comment before it would take effect next year, requiring airlines within three years to replace all rivets along the upper row of the fuselage lap splices, which run the length of both sides of the aircraft. New rivets also would be required in the area where the Aloha Airlines 737 tore open in April over Hawaii, killing a flight attendant.

In conjunction with the proposed regulation, the FAA released two final rules Thursday making permanent an emergency directive issued in May after the Aloha incident. Airlines must conduct visual inspections of all 737s with more than 30,000 takeoffs and precise electronic studies of those with more than 50,000.

The FAA put out a schedule to get 737s with the highest number of takeoffs worked on first. For example, those with 70,000 takeoffs would need to have new rivets within six months of the three-year period.

The rivets used in older 737s, manufactured with a "cold bonding" process to seal layers of fuselage skin together, are believed to allow skin cracking as a result of corrosion from the stress of the hull expanding and contracting during pressurization and depressurization.

In addition, flying through corrosive environments, such as over salt water, can increase the chances of cracks. The Aloha 737 had 90,000 takeoffs, many in the salty air of Hawaii, when the 18-foot section of its fuselage tore off at 24,000 feet.

Immediately the FAA issued the order requiring emergency inspections. The Continental 737, which had 55,000 takeoffs, was inspected May 20 under the order but somehow the cracks were not found until the routine repainting.

The final rules released Thursday expanded the 737 inspection requirements to mandate that paint be stripped off.

Release of data on nuclear weapons workers considered

United Press International

NEW YORK — The Energy Department is reviewing its decision to block outside researchers from reading the health records of more than 800,000 workers at federal nuclear weapons plants.

Several public health organizations have requested the records, which are believed to comprise the nation's most detailed information on the long-term health effects of radiation.

Energy Department spokesman C. Anson Franklin told the Times that department officials have written, but not mailed, a letter denying a recent request by the Pennsylvania-based Three Mile Island Public Health Fund for access to the materials.

The records, stored in an intricate computer system at key weapons plants in New Mexico, Washington, and Tennessee, include extensive information on the medical histories, job classifications, incidences of exposure to radiation, and causes of death of the 300,000 plant workers.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Flynt murder plot 'just a joke'

LOS ANGELES — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt gave a soldier of fortune a check for $1 million as a joke, not as part of a plot to kill Frank Sinatra and three famous publishers, Flynt's lawyer said.

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department had said Wednesday that Flynt gave the check to Mitchell WerBell III in 1983 as part of a plot to kill Sinatra, Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, Penthouse publisher Bob Guccione and Walter Annenberg, the former publisher of TV Guide and a close friend of President Reagan.

But Flynt's lawyer, Alan Isaacman, said Thursday the $1 million check was "just a joke and not part of any such bizarre plot."

Isaacman said Flynt handed out $1 million checks as a joke to six guests at a dinner party in November 1983, including WerBell, a 65-year-old soldier of fortune who ran a paramilitary training camp in Powder Springs, Ga.

As soon as WerBell left the house, sheriff's homicide Capt. Robert Grimm said Flynt's business manager called the bank and stopped payment on the check.

WerBell died of a heart attack a month later, never having tried to cash the check, Grimm said.

Reagan credits Bush on foreign policy

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan, repeatedly invoking George Bush's name on the Republican campaign trail, had another chance today to give his deputy some credit for the administration's foreign policy successes.

In an address to the World Affairs Council, a group focused on such concerns, the president was expected to focus on the status of global policy, superpower relations and arms control that he will leave his successor in January.

The idea, then, was to continue the theme Reagan expressed in support of the Republican ticket as arrived in California Thursday to a rally that drew about 10,000 cheering fans to the San Diego Sports Arena.

The two-term president accused the Democratic Party of opposing stronger U.S. defenses, the 1983 "liberation" of Grenada and the 1986 bombing of Libya.

"George Bush and I did all these things, and I tell you proudly right now we'd both do every single one of them over again," he declared.

The president plans a brief weekend respite at his Santa Barbara mountaintop ranch before more campaign appearances in California, Nevada, Wisconsin and possibly Ohio next week. He returns to the White House Wednesday.

Reagan appears to be enjoying what has been billed as his "last hurrah" extended campaign swing. He attended rallies Thursday at Little Rock, Ark., and Springfield, Mo., urging the GOP faithful to "win one for the Gipper."

Hahn's ex-wife charged with tax evasion

ALBANY, N.Y. — The Rev. Gene Profeta may not have made direct, physical threats to Jessica Hahn by telephone, prosecutors say, but they still want the fiery preacher to stay away from their star witness in the tax evasion case against him.

An 18-count indictment unsealed Thursday accused Profeta, Hahn's one-time boss at the Full Gospel Tabernacle Church in Massapequa, of evading taxes, taking church funds and intimidating Hahn in a bid to change her grand jury testimony about him.

Hahn said in a September 1988 Playboy magazine interview she loved Profeta and had been involved with him before her sexual encounter with PTL's Jim Bakker that led to Bakker's downfall and eventually bankrupted the multimillion-dollar television ministry.

Profeta, 51, entered an innocent plea to the charges at his arraignment Thursday before Albany County Court Judge Joseph Harris.

Profeta's wife, Glenda, 44, also was indicted, but was ill and did not appear at the arraignment, said his lawyer, John Gross. Harris scheduled her arraignment for Nov. 10.

Investigators recorded two telephone conversations between Hahn and Profeta on Oct. 19 and Oct. 21, 1987, in which the minister allegedly tried to make her give false testimony about fur coats, jewelry, casino trips and other gifts she had received from him.

From United Press International reports

Report: Units needed for preschoolers

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Elementary schools should create new units for the special needs of preschool children and then should encourage partnership with parents and local early childhood programs, an education commission said today.

In a report titled "Right from the State," the Task Force on Early Childhood Education, composed of state and public school officials and academic experts, put forth recommendations based upon public hearings and visits to schools and preschool sites in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco.

The centerpiece of the report, prepared for release in Chicago today at the annual conference of the National Association of State Boards of Education, is the suggestion that public schools develop new units to serve children between the ages of 4 and 8.

Dick Owens, the task force leader and NASBE president, said his panel "heard some disturbing testimony about the harmful effects of increased testing on young children, about class sizes of 33 children in kindergarten, and about the difficulties Head Start parents encounter as they try to continue active involvement in their children's public education."

Instead of simply imitating high school reforms at the preschool level, the commission wrote, "Our recommendations will require changes in classroom and school practice, in local policies and organizational relationships, and in state-level regulations and resources."

An early childhood unit should include a curriculum based on the typical development of children within a particular age range, assessment through observation and recording of student progress, and teachers who respond to cultural and linguistic diversity of young pupils, the panel explained.

In keeping with its central proposal, the task force advised schools to develop relationships with outside early childhood programs and community agencies "to build and improve services for young children and their parents."

According to the report, both those recommendations would help schools and other community outlets to serve more children, to make better use of public funds and to improve the quality of programs.

Other problem areas, the experts determined, are low salaries for early childhood teachers, turnover of 40 percent among child care workers, and limited and uneven public funding for early childhood programs.

The task force said there is a serious need to address "the whole child."

New embassy may cost $300 million

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Early estimates of the cost to raze and rebuild the U.S. Embassy in Moscow range to $300 million, with at least $3 million right away for another study of the site that the Soviets have compromised once already.

Government officials acknowledge they do not have a final price tag, and Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, President Reagan's national security adviser, notes that the demolition and construction details must be worked out with the Kremlin.

"It's not like building a tract home," Powell remarked as the administration announced its plans Thursday. "We don't know how expensive yet."

Nevertheless, in Reagan's words, "We have no choice. There's no (other) way to rid it of the many listening devices that have been built into it. So we're going to start over and have an American-built one."

The new eight-story embassy building — nearly completed after more than 10 years of work at a cost of about $190 million — was constructed largely with Soviet materials by Soviet laborers merely under U.S. supervision.

Work stopped in 1986 when security officials found hundreds of electronic listening devices, some of them even embedded in the concrete castings from a Soviet construction yard. One study later concluded the entire framework of the building was made to act as a giant eavesdropping and transmitting device.

The Washington Post reported today that the administration has sought at least some compensation from the Kremlin, presenting a claim for $29 million for shoddy workmanship and delays. Further bills for damages from "Soviet penetration" are being considered, according to the newspaper.

Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., the chairman of a House subcommittee on international operations who led a study of the situation, said Thursday he is in "absolute agreement" with the decision to start from scratch — except Reagan "didn't finish the job" by ordering immediate negotiations for full Soviet reparation.

"This would make some of James Bond's ploys look like child's play," Mica said of the Soviet espionage. "It's a very advanced technology."

According to congressional researchers, Mica said, the cost of a completely new embassy is "$160 million minimum to over $300 million, but we could get by with $200 million."

Reagan made the decision to start over based on recommendations of Secretary of State George Shultz, rejecting a 1987 study led by former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger that suggested scrapping only the top three floors and using the rest as a non-secure office space.

Schlesinger said Thursday Reagan's decision was not inconsistent with his view, which stressed "that any part of the embassy we wanted to be secured would have to be demolished and rebuilt."

50 whales saved in New Zealand

United Press International

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — Fifty pilot whales trapped in shallow water headed out to sea Friday after 250 volunteers, including schoolchildren, struggled throughout the night to save them.

But another 40 whales died of exhaustion on the shore at Mangawhai, 50 miles north of Auckland.

The stranding was the worst since 1978, when 170 whales died after swimming ashore in Auckland's Manukau Harbor.

Conservation officer Paul Irving said local volunteers spent the night in waist-deep water supporting the mammals.

"Each of the whales had a group of between eight and 10 people supporting it while it waited for high tide," Irving said.

"The rescuers had to stop the whales from rolling on their sides, which would have prevented them from breathing through their blowholes.

"As the tide came in the rescuers guided and urged the whales out to sea, but as they moved away they left a trail of dead lying on their sides," he said.

Children from the local school helped in the rescue. Teacher Adrian Batterby said some of the younger children were beginning to feel the effects of hours spent in the water.

"It's very cold and if people haven't got wetsuits they could suffer from hypothermia," Batterby said.

Irving said whale beaching is a regular occurrence on the New Zealand coast.

"But why whales, particularly pilot whales, beach themselves on shore is unknown," he said.

"Speculation includes the theory that they accompany a sick whale into shallow water and are unable to leave when the tide goes out.

"However, experience has shown that even when the tide comes in, the whales need much urging to leave," Irving said.

Japanese trading companies fined for selling detecting gear to China

United Press International

TOKYO — A Tokyo judge has fined two Japanese trading companies for selling sensitive detecting devices to China in violation of an international ban on exports of military-related technology to communist countries.

In handing down his decision Thursday, District Court Chief Judge Teruaki Inada said the defendants' acts in ignoring the international convention were "extreme," and the effect of the violations "within and outside the country cannot be ignored."

The court fined Kyokuto Shokai Co., a Tokyo-based trading firm, $16,000 and penalized a second Tokyo trading company $1,600.

Yoshihiko Ono, 45, former executive director of Kyokuto Shokai, was given a one-year suspended jail sentence while Teruko Takuchi, 44, a former head of the company's trading section, was given an eight-month suspended jail term.

The companies and officials earlier pleaded guilty to selling digital memory devices and other sophisticated detection equipment to China on six occasions between June 1985 and June 1986.

Company workmen and others carried the devices, worth $480,000, into China aboard planes in their carry-on luggage.

The equipment reportedly could be converted for military use, including submarine detection and missile guidance.

The sales violated trade rules established by the Coordinating Council on Multilateral Export Controls, or COCOM, a Paris-based watchdog group of Western nations charged with regulating exports of military equipment to communist nations.

The case was the second Japanese violation of the COCOM rules in less than a year.

Last spring, Toshiba Machine Co., a subsidiary of electronics giant Toshiba Corp., was found guilty of selling sophisticated milling machinery to the Soviet Union which reportedly enabled Moscow to build quieter submarine propellers.

The Toshiba case drew the ire of the U.S. Congress which retaliated by banning the sale of Toshiba Machine equipment in the United States for three years under provisions of the recently passed trade bill.

Many white South Africans shifting to right

UPI analysis

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Mayfair West, a white working-class suburb of western Johannesburg, sent an important message in Wednesday's municipal elections to President Pieter W. Botha about his limited racial reform policies.

Old-fashioned apartheid, the voters said, is a better bet than a black neighbor.

Mayfair West voters elected Hendrik Claassen of the right-wing Conservative Party as their representative on the Johannesburg City Council, knocking out the National Party candidate in a campaign that honed fears of having non-white neighbors.

A number of Indians and mixed-race persons reside in Mayfair West, and thousands of blacks live in the nearby suburb of Hillbrow despite racial segregation laws that decree both neighborhoods for whites only.

In white politics, the election confirmed that while Botha has gradually edged the National Party considerably to the left of its stance 40 years ago when it instituted legal racial segregation, many white South Africans are sticking with apartheid and voting for the opposition Conservatives.

In black politics, however, the outcome was murkier. Only a small percentage voted, leaving in question the government's efforts to find credible, moderate black leaders to negotiate a limited national role that would reassure whites and keep them from fleeing to the Conservatives.

Botha's government painted the best picture possible of the results Thursday, hailing them as an endorsement of reform, appearing unbothered by Conservative gains among the white working class and insisting it was satisfied with voter turnout among the black majority, which can vote only in local elections.

But against the backdrop of a massive crackdown on dissent and a 28-month-old state of emergency that outlawed campaigning for a boycott, the government failed to persuade a substantially greater number of blacks to vote in urban areas than it did in 1983.

In 45 percent of black constituencies there were no elections at all, either because candidates stood unopposed or refused to run. Less than 10 percent of the country's 28 million blacks are registered.

"How can there be a solid mandate when half the seats for blacks in the country were not even contested for lack of interest? How does the 10 or 12 percent poll in Soweto constitute a solid mandate?" asked Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, referring to Johannesburg's huge black satellite city.

"There's a definite swing to the right where apartheid looks more attractive," a Western diplomat said. "There's a growing uncertainty about the future."

WORLD BRIEFS

Iraq: No concessions to Iran

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq will make no territorial concessions to Iran at forthcoming U.N. sponsored peace talks in Geneva, Iraqi diplomats and news reports said.

"The Iranian side should know that Iraq will not relinquish its rights or national sovereignty over its lands, water and border," the Baghdad government newspaper Al Jomhuriyah said in an editorial Thursday.

Peace talks between the two former combatants began Aug. 25th but remain deadlocked over the disputed Shatt al Arab waterway, which runs along the Iran-Iraq border.

Iraq claims sovereignty over the channel, its only outlet to the sea, but Iran insists the international border between the two states should run down the middle of the Shatt.

Scores detained in Czech crackdown

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — The 70th anniversary today of the founding of modern Czechoslovakia was marked by the detentions of scores of dissidents in one of the largest nationwide police sweeps in recent memory.

Police had picked up more than 60 people — many of them members of the human rights organization Charter 77 — by early today and 30 more were unaccounted for, dissident sources said.

Many people also had their homes searched under Article 100 of the Czechoslovak code, a broadly interpreted law that deals with "incitement" against the state, said the wife of one of those detained.

Representatives of five dissident groups — Charter 77, the Independent Peace Association, the Democratic Initiative, Czech Children and the Society of Friends of the U.S.A. — had announced plans to hold their own demonstration today in Wenceslas Square following Thursday's official commemoration.

Ariane puts French satellite in orbit

KOUROU, French Guiana — The European space program marked its eighth success in a row with the launching of an Ariane 2 rocket carrying a powerful but controversial French television satellite.

"What a beautiful liftoff!" exclaimed a commentator in the control room as the 162-foot three-stage rocket thundered skyward Thursday night from the European Space Agency's jungle launch complex on the northern coast of South America.

Nineteen minutes and 22 seconds after liftoff, the 4,699-pound TDF-1 communications satellite perched atop the Ariane's third stage was successfully ejected into a safe preliminary orbit, officials said.

The satellite, operated by Telediffusion de France, was designed to beam television programs directly to home antennas across France and central Europe.

Systematic failure cited in ferry sinking

MANILA, Philippines — A Senate committee investigating the sinking of the ferry Dona Marilyn today blamed the ship's captain, the coast guard and local weather forecasters for a "systemic failure" that led to the tragedy.

Five rescue ships scoured the island-dotted Visayan Sea for more survivors from the ferry, which capsized Monday during Typhoon Ruby, leaving at least 300 people dead or missing.

The Coast Guard said 203 of a reported 501 passengers and crew have been rescued and another 32 bodies were recovered, Sulphin Lines, the ship's owners, reported 205 had been saved.

But many of the 138 tattered survivors who arrived in the central island of Leyte for tearful reunions with relatives were not listed on the official manifest, lending credence to claims by some of the victims that there were many more than 501 people on the ship.

The four-man Senate committee headed by Sen. John Osmena blamed the tragedy on a maritime system that permitted the Dona Marilyn to sail from Manila without regard to weather conditions at Tacloban, its destination on Leyte island, about 360 miles to the southeast.

From United Press International reports

One killed, 21 wounded in Israel

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Soldiers killed a Palestinian teenager and wounded at least 21 other people during widespread clashes in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, Palestinian sources said.

Ziad Sabet, 16, a resident of the U.N.-run Nuseirat refugee camp, was killed Thursday by two gunshot wounds in the chest, the sources said. The circumstances of the shooting were not immediately clear because the camp has been under curfew for several days, the sources said.

At least 288 Palestinians have been killed since the start of the 10 1/2-month-old uprising against 21 years of Israeli occupation. Three Israelis also have been killed since the uprising began

Dec. 9.

The latest violence came as the army released an autopsy report on the death of a 3-year-old Palestinian girl from the Gaza Strip. The girl's parents claimed she died Wednesday night from tear gas inhalation following disturbances near her home in Khan Younis.

An army spokesman said the autopsy report found that Nisreen Nawjha had a heart defect and was suffering from pneumonia. She died from a combination of the two medical problems, the spokesman said.

The girl's death triggered clashes in Khan Younis Thursday, Palestinian sources said. At least seven Palestinians were wounded by army gunfire, including five women, the sources said. The army confirmed three wounded in Khan Younis city and refugee camp.

At least 14 other Palestinians were wounded during violence in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, Palestinian sources said.

In Gaza City, two youths were wounded during a confrontation between soldiers and high school students, Palestinian sources said. The clash came as students protested the death of a 14-year-old girl who was shot by soldiers Tuesday. Authorities closed three schools after Thursday's protests, the sources said.

Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, head of the army in the West Bank, cited an officer Thursday for his courage and initiative in uncovering a Palestinian group that assassinated three people in the West Bank's largest city.

An army spokesman said during a routine patrol Lt. Sefi Ben Zvi discovered an empty house in the Nablus marketplace where weapons were stored.

Latin presidents ask for economic aid

United Press International

PUNTA del ESTE, Uruguay — Latin American presidents are asking for a unified front in dealing with the United States to halt capital flight from their region and end economic stagnation.

"Now is the time to ask, without pretension and arrogance, for an equitable and dignified dialogue with the North American government, a rational dialogue on the great problems of our hemisphere and our continental relations," Peruvian President Alan Garcia said Thursday at the opening of the three-day, seven-nation Latin American summit dealing with the foreign debt, regional security and the illegal drug traffic.

Garcia, one of the seven presidents to give speeches opening the summit, said Latin America should make its proposal for a dialogue before the U.S. elections. He said no matter who wins, the new American president "will have to pay attention to the future of world markets, to the proposals of Latin America, and to our common needs."

Argentina's President Raul Alfonsin, in his address, said Latin America's relationship with the United States should move into a "new stage."

He said the region was "a net exporter of capital, while in a decade our growth rate has been lost. The gap has widened and has become untenable."

Alfonsin said the Latin summit leaders should become more assertive in taking steps to equalize world wealth.

He was not specific, but a Latin American adviser at the meeting said the seven-nation bloc will try to counteract the current U.S. policy of dealing with each nation separately rather than on a multilateral basis.

Brazilian President Jose

Sarney, speaking in an indoor stadium in the city of Maldonado, 6 miles from Punta del Este, took a slap at the United States when he protested trade sanctions for alleged dumping.

"We are at the mercy of threats and the imposition of unilateral (trade) reprisals... without recourse to international law and multilateral agreements," he said.

The summit ends Saturday when the presidents will put their proposals into a declaration to be known as the "Act of Maldonado." Maldonado is the Uruguayan administrative district that includes both the cities of Maldonado and Punta del Este, a beachside resort where the presidents are holding their working sessions.

The other presidents attending the summit are Julio Maria Sanguinetti of Uruguay, Jaime Lusinchi of Venezuela, Virgilio Barco of Colombia and Miguel de la Madrid of Mexico.

A preliminary draft declaration, made available to United Press International, proposes that Latin America concentrate on ending capital flight and courting investment.

Meagher sparks Blues

Rick Meagher shadowed Mario Lemieux so well Thursday night some scoring touch must have rubbed off on the St. Louis center.

Meagher, a 34-year-old veteran, not only held the league's leading scorer to two assists, but also scored twice to spark the St. Louis Blues to a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins. Meagher's second goal came with the Penguins at a man-advantage.

"Micky (Meagher) continues to amaze me," St. Louis Coach Brian Sutter said. "He really played a great game ... Plus he scored a couple of goals."

Lemieux had scored eight points in a 9-2 romp over St. Louis earlier this year, and Sutter was determined that kind of performance would not be repeated.

In other games, Philadelphia whipped the New York Islanders 5-2, and Boston crushed Quebec 6-2.

TENNIS

McEnroe routs Annacoe

PARIS — John McEnroe took advantage of Paul Annacone's inconsistent serve to overpower his American compatriot 6-3, 6-2 Thursday night and advance to the quarterfinals of the $1.1 million Paris Open.

Also moving to Friday's quarterfinals were Americans Aaron Krickstein and Brad Gilbert, Israel's Amos Mansdorf and Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union.

The quarterfinal matchups will feature Mansdorf against Krickstein, McEnroe facing Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland, Gilbert playing Frenchman Guy Forget and second-seeded Tim Mayotte of the United States against Chesnokov.

McEnroe never lost his nerve against Annacone and profited from seven double faults by Annacone, many on crucial points. Annacone double faulted on the last point of the sixth game, giving McEnroe the only service break he needed in the first set.

CROSS COUNTRY

SAC championships today

The Seminole Athletic Conference cross country championships will be held today, beginning at 4:30 p.m. at Lake Mary High. Girls junior varsity kicks off the meet followed by boys JV at 5, girls varsity at 5:30 and boys varsity at 6.

In the boys meet, Lyman, Lake Howell and Lake Brantley are all in the running for the title with Seminole the darkhorse. In the girls meet, Lake Brantley, Lake Howell and Lake Mary are all shooting for the top spot.

BOWLING

Bumgarner, Rottinghaus lift SHS

Chris Bumgarner and Chris Rottinghaus came up with big performances as Seminole took over first place in the Seminole Athletic Conference bowling standings with a 12-3 victory over DeLand on Wednesday.

Bumgarner had high series for SHS at 545 while Rottinghaus rolled a high game of 198. Jeff Casteel's 464 series and Rupert Hawks' 197 game led DeLand. Seminole now has a total of 36 points compared to 35 for DeLand.

Lake Mary's Dennis Otten was the hottest bowler of the day as he rolled games of 203, 176 and 234 for a 613 series, leading Lake Mary over Lake Howell, 12-3. Brian Patterson had a 459 series for Lake Howell and Jason Bragg a 190 game.

Lyman defeated Oviedo, 10-5, led by Danny Fournier (204-584) and Rob Craig (204) while Charles Miller (203-532) paced Oviedo.

In girls action, Seminole edged DeLand, 9-6, led by Adele Lopez (465) and Heather Schaffer (187) while Jill Graves (178-462) led DeLand.

Oviedo had good efforts from Julie Moss (484 series) and Tisha Lloptz (198) in an 11-4 win over Lyman. Kim Mackey (163-449) led Lyman.

'Noles battle unbeaten Lions

SHS at Oviedo in big 4A-7 matchup

By CHRIS FIBER
 Herald sports editor

Talk about role reversals. A year ago at this very time, Seminole High was riding an impressive win streak and looking to sew up a district title while Oviedo's Lions, hobbled by injuries, were trying to play the role of spoilers.

In 1988, though, it is Oviedo that is unbeaten and on the threshold of a district crown while Seminole, hurt by some key injuries, tries to be the spoiler.

The two Seminole Athletic Conference foes meet tonight at 7:30 at Oviedo High in the biggest District 4A-7 game of the year. Oviedo (8-0, 1-0) can clinch the district crown while Seminole (2-4, 1-1) can throw a monkey wrench into the Lions' postseason plans.

"This is the first time in a long time that we've had a chance to win the district," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "It's a big, big game for us. And we've only beaten Sanford one of the last four times we've played them."

The main thing Oviedo has going for it this season is the ability to rise to the occasion with the game on the line. The Lions have won several games either by late offensive surges or defensive stands. They have also won twice in overtime.

"Oviedo has played mistake-free so far," Seminole coach Emory Blake said. "But you never know when it might fall apart."

Teamwork is what has kept Oviedo together through the first six weeks of the '88 campaign. The Lions may not have the biggest team, or the most talented, but they play well together as a unit and are willing to sacrifice individual stats for team success.

Oviedo's teamwork is evident on offense where the Lions have a very balanced attack led by running back Frank Diaz (722 yards) and quarterback Matt Blanton. Preston Dames and Chad Duncan have also been big-play men for the Lions while the offensive line has played superbly thus far.

Defensively, senior linebacker Willie Pauldo leads the county in tackles while defensive back Hector Diaz has three interceptions in the last three games. Like the offense, Oviedo has received a balanced effort defensively, playing well against the run and the pass.

That pass defense will most likely be put to the test tonight as Seminole has put the ball in the air a lot the past two games. Sophomore quarterback Kerry Wiggins gains confidence in each game and balls that were dropped earlier in the year are now being caught by his receivers. Wiggins passed for over 200 yards in a 34-22 loss to Leesburg two weeks ago.

Seminole's Kevin Richardson tries to shake off a Dr. Phillips tackler in action earlier this year. The 'Noles try to play the role of spoiler tonight when they go to Oviedo for a District 4A-7 game.

"We want to continue to improve like we have the last couple weeks," Blake said. "We have been plagued by injuries and inexperience, but we see positive things each week."

While the offense is coming on, defense is where Seminole needs the most improvement. The Tribe, after giving up only 12 points in the first two games, has allowed 123 the last four.

"Being 6-0 does not mean you can't be beat," Blake said. "If we play mistake-free, we'll be in the ballgame."

Up for some air

Lyman's Cindy Pruitt gets a dose of oxygen while competing in the 100 butterfly. Pruitt will compete in the Seminole Athletic Conference Championships this Saturday at the Lyman High pool. The meet, which begins at 10 a.m., will feature some of the elite swimmers in the state. Lyman and Lake Mary's boys are expected to duel for the boys crown while Lake Brantley is the girls favorite. For a preview, see Page 2B.

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Those chasing Orlando's Bob Lohr going into today's third round of the Walt Disney World/Oldsmobile Golf Classic are beginning to wish he'd opted for a baseball career back in college at Miami of Ohio.

Lohr, 27, continued to put distance between him and his closest pursuers Thursday, posting a five-under-par 67 on the heels of Wednesday's first round 62. Not only does his 129 total give him the best 36-hole start in the 18-year history of this tournament, but increased his advantage to three shots.

Before Lohr teed off at Lake Buena Vista, Robert Wrenn was already in with his consecutive 66, winding up at 132 and a shot ahead of former U.S. Open and Bay Hill champ Fuzzy Zoeller. The fivesome at 10-under 134 features Ken Heading a list of six at 135 are 1988 Bay Hill champ Paul Azinger and defending Disney champ Larry Nelson, whose 63 at LBV was Thursday's low score. Out of the top 14 on the leader board, only David Edwards (135) still has a shot at the shorter LBV course, statistically easier than the other two courses.

UCF hosts Ga. Southern

By DAVID CORCORAN

ORLANDO — The moment of truth has arrived for the UCF Knights football team.

Last Saturday at Valdosta (Ga.) State, the Knights were ranked No. 10 in the NCAA Division II polls, and were looking to improve their playoff chances with a win over the Blazers. Instead, the lost in a blowout, 48-19.

"Now we have to win two of our last three games to have a chance to get into the playoffs."

Those were the words of Head Coach Gene McDowell as the Knights, out of the Division II top 20 polls this week for the first time since 1986, try to regroup Saturday night at the Florida Citrus Bowl when UCF (6-2) faces their toughest test (this season, the Georgia Southern Eagles (5-2), the No. 6 team in the country this week in Division I-AA.

A loss to the Eagles will all but eliminate UCF from the Div. II playoffs this season. The Knights who were also 6-2 at this stage last year when they made the Div. II playoffs, won two of their final three games to gain the playoff berth.

But instead of playing Liberty, Florida A&M, and Morrisville as they did last season, the Knights have the Eagles, Liberty (greatly improved with a 5-2 record this year), and powerhouse Eastern Kentucky (5-2), all I-AA teams that will give the Knights fits.

And to make matters worse for the Knights, their starting quarterback, Shane Willis, suffered a slightly separated left shoulder, and is "doubtful" for the game according to Knights' receiver Coach Rick Stockstill.

If Willis (184-310-2-248-11TDs-11 int.), second in the nation in total offense in Division II with an average of 268.9 yards per game, does not play, then backup QB Rudy Jones, a redshirt freshman from Miami will start.

Jones (3-7-78-0TDs-0 int.) has played in limited action this season, but played most of the fourth quarter of the Valdosta St. game last week when the game was getting out of hand for the Knights.

Against the Blazers, Jones was 1 of 3 for 13 yards, and ran for 52 yards on 5 carries (including a 50

W. Nassau clips Wolves, 14-13

DELAND - Brett Green made a diving catch of a Keith Roberts pass in the end zone on fourth down and time running out to tie the game, and Robert Land kicked the extra point to give the Warriors of West Nassau High School of Callahan a 14-13 comeback victory over the Wolves of Deltona High School Thursday night before 2,241 fans at Spec Martin Stadium in DeLand.

The win moves West Nassau to 2-6 on the season while Deltona falls to 4-2. Deltona plays its inaugural homecoming game next Thursday night against the DeLand Junior Varsity Bulldogs at Spec Martin Stadium. Game time is 7 p.m.

After a scoreless first quarter Deltona finally drew first blood. After a Warrior punt the Wolves took over on their own 25. Robert Reese carried twice for eight and one yard, respectively. Les Hewitt ran for two to get Deltona's first first down of the evening. Then Hewitt ran for 16 and another first down. Scott Stevens then caught a Tony Nelmes pass for 30 yards down to the 18 yard line. On first down Reese ran for one. Hewitt finished the drive when he ran around left end for 17 yards and the touchdown. Jon Slusser added the extra point to make it Deltona 7, West Nassau 0 with 4:12 left in the half.

Deltona got the ball back with 2:07 left when, while lined up to punt, a West Nassau snap sailed over the punter for a 23 yard loss and the Wolves took over on the West Nassau 14. After an incomplete pass, Hewitt ran for ten and a first down at the four yard line. But on first down a touchdown run by Hewitt was called back when the Wolves were caught holding. After three plays netted nothing, a 26 yard field goal attempt was blocked by the Warriors' Corey Smith and recovered by Andra Rochay at the 36. The half ended with Deltona leading 7-0.

Deltona took the kickoff to start the second half. Hewitt took it from his own four out to the 47 yard line. After three plays lost four yards the Wolves lined up to punt. Punter Keith Fedigan was roughed on the play and Deltona got new life at the Warrior 36. Hewitt was tackled for a six yard loss but West Nassau was called for a 15 yard personal foul to give the wolves a second and one. Reese got the first down on a four yard run. On third and ten Nelmes threw an eleven yard pass to Dominik Scorpio. After two runs got five Nelmes found Cedric Brown in the end zone for an eleven yard touchdown pass. The extra point try was wide left.

But West Nassau came right back to make a game of it. After Brian Wright returned the kick 22 yards out to the 33. Land ran twice for three and eight. Wright carried for fourteen and nine. Land carried for nineteen and three before Wright ran it in from ten yards out with 2:55 left in the third quarter. Land kicked the extra point to make it 13-7 Deltona.

After a fumble by Deltona was recovered by Bo Johns at the Warrior 43 they ran the ball right down the field. Land ran for two yards. Wright carried twice for 19 and five, before Roberts ran for five. Wright carried for 12 and Land for three down to the 11. Roberts ran around right end and into the end zone, but the play was called back on a holding penalty. The next three plays netted nothing and Deltona took over with 6:50 left in the game.

Deltona then did a great job of running the ball down the field and taking time off the clock. The big play in the drive was a 19 yard run on a delayed hand off to Brown. The Wolves had run the ball from their own 21 down to the West Nassau 25. But in the process of trying to get more yardage Hewitt was stripped of the ball and it was recovered by Shawn Morris at the 28 with 1:01 left.

On first down Roberts completed a 26 yard pass to Shane Raybon. Roberts ran around left end for 18. Roberts then passed 16 yards to Wright to give West Nassau a first down at the 12. Three passing attempts fell incomplete in the end zone and it was fourth down with two seconds left. Roberts rolled right and as the horn went off he threw it just out of the reach of a couple of Deltona defenders and Green made the diving catch.

Lyman's Steve Jerry looks for running room while Oviedo's Kevin Gutch moves in for the tackle. Jerry hopes to help Lyman stay in the hunt for the district title as it hosts Daytona Mainland tonight.

'Hounds in the 5A-4 hunt Lyman hosts Mainland in crucial district game

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

LONGWOOD — Lyman High School will look to continue its run for the District 5A-4 title tonight when it hosts Daytona Beach Mainland in a crucial matchup between the schools.

The Greyhounds are 4-2 overall and tied for the district lead with a 2-1 mark. The Buccaneers are 1-5 and 0-3 in the conference and are in a spoiler roll in the district.

"Mainland is a much improved football team over last year," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "They have only won one game but they should be 3-3. They have good speed and have two very good quarterbacks."

Lyman, though, has its share of offensive weapons in quarterback Steve Jerry, running back Cedric Bouey, fullback Mike Davis and wide receiver Octavius Holliday.

The Greyhounds have also benefitted from a strong effort by their offensive line who have been very key to their teams success so far this season. The line played a strong game last week against Spruce Creek and helped put Lyman back in the district chase.

"Our line played a strong game last week and our final drive right before the half was as strong of drive as I've seen in awhile," Scott said. "If we pick up where we left off we should do fine, but if Mainland comes in fired up and ready to play we might be in for a game."

Lyman, who has not played at home for four weeks, will return to its home turf for two weeks before traveling to DeLand in another important district contest and finishing the season with Lake Brantley.

"It looks like the district race is going to go down to the final game of the season," Scott said. "We need to play the same way we did against Spruce Creek in the second half to be successful."

The Greyhounds must be careful and not take the Bucs lightly to remain in the District race. The Bucs have a strong defensive unit and Lyman must be prepared to play.

"They have a strong group of linebackers that gave us trouble last year," Scott said. "We'll have to mix it up and not let them dominate our offensive attack."

Lyman has had a rough week in practice with a tragedy at the school and Scott is hoping his players can come in mentally prepared tonight.

"It's a real tough situation on everyone," Scott said. "It has really hurt us this week, we haven't been able to practice very much and a lot of kids are going through a tough transition. It's tough to say how we'll react, this is a real dangerous type of situation for us."

Deltona sweeps N. Smyrna

By MARK BLYTHE

DELTONA — Deltona's Lady Wolves used a strong team effort and whipped New Smyrna Beach, 15-6, 15-4, Thursday night in volleyball action at Deltona High School.

The Lady Wolves improved to 7-4 overall with their third straight win and will return to action Monday against Father Lopez. Deltona will then play in District 3A-7 in the schools first year of competition.

"We played very well as a team today," Deltona coach Jan Stevens said. "We've been playing well as of late and we have a real good feeling going into the district tournament."

In the opening game Joy Clover, Shawna Streetman and Jennifer Dekoski played strong at the net and served well for Deltona as it completely dominated the Lady Barracudas.

The Lady Wolves continued to control the match in the second with Streetman serving 10 points in the match to give her team early command. Tanya Gwynn, Sandy Bradley, Clover and Dekoski all added strong support to lead their team to a quick victory.

"We've said all along that it's the district tournament that counts," Stevens said. "It's a good feeling to know that we've beaten two teams in the district already. We also know about two other teams and have some confidence going in."

OVIEDO ROUTS DELAND

Oviedo's Lady Lions closed out the regular season with a 15-1, 15-7 rout of DeLand's Lady Bulldogs Thursday in Seminole Athletic Conference action at DeLand.

Oviedo, 19-2, opens play in the 3A-6 District Tournament Tuesday at 4 p.m. vs. St. Cloud at Kissimmee Gateway. The Lady Lions finished second in the SAC at 10-2.

Oviedo's junior varsity also won in two games Thursday and finished the season with a superb 19-1 record. JV players Amy Heise and Mimi Tran will be moved up to the varsity for the district tourney.

SAC meet draws elite swimmers

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

Saturday's Seminole Athletic Conference Swimming Championships will have a little bit of everything for the passive fan as well as the avid sportsman.

For the spectator who would like to gamble on a sure thing then this is the meet to bet on the Lake Brantley Lady Patriots, however on the guys side, a roll of the dice is the game — 7 for Lake Mary, 11 for Lyman, either way it's a winner.

Lake Brantley, which is currently the top team in the state, will try and defend its girls SAC title against competition which just isn't at the same level.

"There's no question who's going to win the girls meet," Lake Mary head coach Walt Morgan said. "They're awesome. I don't think that anyone in the state can touch them right now. We're just hoping we can take second like we have the past two years."

Clay Parnell's Lady splashers are the heavy favorites to repeat. As a matter of fact, the only way they could possibly lose is if they get lost on their way to Lyman High School or if they decide to take the weekend off after studying so hard for their nine week exams. However, the Lady Patriots will definitely be at Lyman for the 10 a.m. start and they will be ready and in force to show their power.

"We're using this meet to finalize who will swim what when districts roll around," Parnell said. "It's basically a last look at some people to see what they can do. We always swim well in high school, but right now we're going a little faster than I had hoped."

Leading the Pat attack will be Kristen and Ryann Pauley, Kristen Camino, Jodee Lake, Dani Ohnsman, Beth Rosenbluth, Manda Davis, and Jennifer Moon.

The Lady Rams of Lake Mary will look to their big guns in Kelly Wise and Stasi Bojanowski. However, some of the younger squad will be heavily looked upon to score big points. Among the youngsters will be Mary Jo Connell, Helen Padgett-Wilkes, Leisha Dowson, and Kris Kostowicz.

For Seminole, the lone hope of an upset comes from junior Cissy Burgess who swims the 100 butterfly and the 200 free. Burgess will be joined by other possible point suppliers in Mindy Bogue, and Kristi and Jenni Meriwether.

The Lady Greyhounds of Lyman will turn to Nicki Mabry, Cindy Pruitt, Lisa Strayer, and Rhonda Ricketson to keep the host team in the pack.

In the boys meet, the defending champion Lake Mary Rams will have their hands more than full in repeating as the Lyman Greyhounds are hungry and on a mission to take back the title which was stripped from them a year ago.

For Lake Mary, Karl Kuchma, Chris Snively, Zach Simecek, Rob Baker, and Barry Heim will have to put it into high gear if they plan on raising the victor's cup once again.

However, Lyman's Chuck Reimighaus, Bandy Brothers (Jim and Dave), Nick Radkewich, Kevin Scott, Jon Metzdorf, and John Jones, along with diver Todd Brooks have different plans in mind for the visiting Rams.

Seminole will rely on scolar Scott Lewis who looks to score well in the 100 fly and the 100 backstroke. Lewis has been a key link to the success of the Seminole boys with the absence of ineligible swimmers who will return to action at districts.

Even though the Lake

Brantley eyes will be on the girls squad, someone forgot to tell Scott Rowe who will place highly in the 100 free and the 100 backstroke.

Oviedo has a shot at a conference champion in Mike Winkler as he is seeded first in the 50 free with a time of 22.44.

Crunch time for Evans, Winter Park

From staff reports

It's crunch time, Part I. Two of the top three teams in prep football's 5A District 5 will go up against each other tonight with the third waiting for its crack the following two weeks.

But first things first, tonight, Evans and Winter Park, both ranked in the state's top 10, will do battle at Winter Park's Showalter Field. Both teams are undefeated. No. 5 ranked Winter Park boasting a 7-0 overall mark and a 4-0 record in the district while No. 8 Evans is 6-0 and 4-0.

Apopka, which is also 4-0 in the district but 4-2 overall, will meet Winter Haven tonight in a non-district contest (see related story).

"Every year, Evans is right up there at the top of the district," said Winter Park head coach Larry Gergley. "This year's no exception. It ought to be a good one."

Without a doubt, this game, which will start at 7:30 p.m., matches two different styles of offense: Evans' big play attack and Winter Park's ball control scheme.

"Winter Park's always been a real strong team," said Bill Gierke, coach at Evans. "They've very sound fundamentally. They always have been."

W. HAVEN AT APOPKA

Apopka High School's football team has what could be a tough assignment tonight.

Then again, maybe not. It all depends which Winter Haven team shows up for tonight's 5A non-district clash between the visiting Blue Devils of Winter Haven and the homecoming celebrating Blue

Darters of Apopka. "They're a real good team," said Apopka coach Chip Gierke of Winter Haven. "It will be a real test for us."

LAKE MARY AT DELAND

When the Lake Mary Rams and the DeLand Bulldogs play Friday night, it will be a game with two different styles.

For the Rams, it will be playing the "spoiler" role for the first time in several years since Harry Nelson been the coach there. And for the Bulldogs, they can improve their chances in District 5A-4 with a win. Kickoff is 8 p.m.

For DeLand coach David Hiss, the biggest worry this week is not the Rams, but the flu bug.

After the Bulldogs 27-23 upset win over Lake Brantley last week, half of the team fell ill "and we may have only half our players suited up Friday night," according to Hiss who was coughing over the phone Wednesday night.

DR. PHILLIPS AT BRANTLEY

For some teams a good loss is just what the doctor ordered in preparation for the next game. Fred Almon's Fighting Lake Brantley Patriot football squad knows just what that is like after losing to a fired up DeLand team 27-23 last week.

The Patriots have had the entire week to correct their untimely mistakes against the Bulldogs in preparation for the 5-1 Dr. Phillip's Panthers at Lake Brantley High tonight at 8 p.m.

"We've had a great week of practice," Almon said. "We need a win to gain momentum going into the last two ballgames. We're ready for them and we'll definitely be after them this week."

yarder, the longest run of the season for the Knights).

Stockstill said. "The team has great confidence in Rudy. The kid had a great week of practice, and he can get the job done."

McDowell feels that the team learned a great lesson from the Valdosta St. game because, "a good team will bounce back and I think we are a good team. We got some upset players that want to pay back on someone, and that someone is Georgia Southern."

"We have no fear of them."

The Eagles are coached by Erk Russell, now in his seventh season as the leader of the Statesboro Ga. team that won NCAA Div. I-AA titles in 1985-86 the first ever to win back to back titles), and lost in the semifinals last season.

Russell, who has a record of 61-20-1, feels "the team is scared to death to face a great team like UCF that got embarrassed last week, and to face them in a hornets nest. We have to be ready to play Saturday night."

The Eagles' past three weeks ago played Florida State, the No. 6 team in the country in Division I, and led 10-7 with about 8 1/2 minutes left in the game, but the Seminoles rallied with three TDs to prevent a major upset and win the game, 28-10.

Russell said "the only reason FSU beat us was because of the depth factor late in the game. We just ran out of gas."

Tracking the roots of genital warts

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been housed in extended lockdown for three months. Yesterday I discovered warts around my penis. I've engaged in prison sexual activities in the past. Do these warts just appear on their own or are they due to sex from three months ago?

DEAR READER: Venereal warts are caused by viral infection that is spread from one person to another. In all likelihood, you got the warts from one of the sexual partners you had three months ago. Ask the prison doctor for treatment and tests to make sure that you did not contract other sexually transmitted diseases.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my health report, "Where to Find Sex Information."

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son had severe bleeding of both lungs, which the doctors could not contain despite draining, antibiotics and steroids. He died. The doctors suspected that the toxic materials at work were responsible but the autopsy was inconclusive. Naturally, neither my son's employer nor the manufacturer are helpful. What's our next step, or should we just accept his death and let the matter drop?

DEAR READER: If the authorities suspected that your son died from exposure to chemicals or substances in the workplace, they should have performed a toxicological analysis at the time of the autopsy. Ask your own doctor to act as a patient advocate and obtain the autopsy report.

This document will tell him what was analyzed — and what was not. If your son was not checked for toxic compounds, someone made a serious error and the case should be reopened and resolved. If he was thoroughly checked, you should try to accept his death. In either case, you have a right to know the cause of death.

Fatal pulmonary bleeding is an unusual situation. I think that you deserve some answers. An "inconclusive" autopsy is not good enough. Your doctor can help you get to the bottom of this tragic matter.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could you provide a listing of health lectures from teaching hospitals or medical schools that would be helpful to the lay reader?

DEAR READER: Many teaching hospitals publish health reports. These newslet-

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

A skillful declarer finds ways to improve his chances of making his contract. Howard Weinstein, Grand National Teams finalist in 1988, worked out the best way of playing six hearts after he had received a favorable lead.

Although the South hand was minimum in high-card strength, the seven-card suit made it a good hand for an opening bid by anyone's standards. When South chose to freely rebid three hearts after East's two-spade overcall, it became easy for North to ask for aces and bid the slam.

For the defense, an opening diamond lead would have been the killer, but West cannot be faulted for leading his partner's suit. Weinstein won dummy's spade ace and quickly played the AK of clubs, pitching a spade. Then he ruffed a club with his seven of hearts. He could now give up a diamond and then play ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond, eventually banking on a successful heart finesse, but he saw a much better play. He simply led the jack of hearts from his hand. If hearts split 2-1, he could give up a trick to the heart king and then get to dummy with the queen to ruff one more club. Then the lowly six of hearts in dummy would be an entry to run the clubs, on which he would get rid of his diamond losers. And so it was. West won the trump king but that was the only trick for the defense.

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
October 29, 1988

Your chart indicates that there will be beneficial changes in your financial position in the year ahead. However, you must be patient, because these alterations may be slow in developing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Getting involved with the wrong people could be an expensive experience today. Be wary of those who would try to make a profit from the assets you possess. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you seek advantage to the detriment of others today, you may attain what you seek, but the wine will turn to vinegar. Be fair.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pride may lead you to attempt a task or an assignment today that is beyond your talents and abilities. Don't let ego get you into something over your head.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your inclinations to take chances today could be pronounced. However, it's best not to gamble on a long shot. In fact, even sure things could misfire.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be an attentive listener today or else when you later try to remember something important, the facts could be jumbled.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might not be as competent at mental gymnastics today as you perceive yourself to be. You won't lack enthusiasm, but you may lack breadth and vision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Continue to be careful in your financial dealings today. The limb on which you're sitting could bend or break if shaken too hard.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Don't do anything today that could alienate partners or associates. They're more important to your future success than you may realize.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The way you handle others today is critical to your success. If you rub people the wrong way, what you're attempting to achieve could fall far short of its mark.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have to deal with someone socially today who is equally as strong-willed as you are. Don't be inflexible, it's better to give an inch and keep a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Underestimating your competition could lead to your undoing today. Evaluate anyone who contests you realistically and deal with them accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be open-minded today and hear others out before drawing your conclusions. If you're overly critical you might miss good ideas without giving them a fair hearing.

Calabazas look like the result of crossing orange pumpkins with watermelons.

Calabaza—the unsung pumpkin

The Spaniards call Halloween "Noche de brujas," and they call their favorite pumpkin the calabaza.

Calabaza is a name commonly given to any one of several of the many strains of pumpkins and squashes grown in the tropics. However, in Florida, Calabaza refers to the Cuban pumpkin (Cucurbita moschata), also called Cuban squash. Unlike regular Halloween pumpkins, the calabaza is used primarily for food, not as a "jack-o'-lantern." Some use it boiled or mashed like a winter squash, and some use it baked or as a dessert in pies. It is high in vitamin A and C, plus a good source of potassium.

Calabaza grows on a very long vining plant similar to other winter squashes. Leaves are a mottled grayish-green in color.

Fruits are variable in size, shape and color due to crossing and strain selection. The typical fruit weighs about 5-7 pounds, round but flattened a bit on top and bottom. Its colors are mottled gray and buff-cream. The light yellow-colored interior is firm, meaty, and relatively thin due to a fairly large central cavity. Like all *moschata*s, the seeds are rather small for squash, with the dried matted pulp fibers at the seed edges, giving the seeds a somewhat ragged appearance.

GARDENING

CELESTE WHITE

Calabaza tolerates hot weather conditions as well or better than other members of the cucurbit family. It is a tender crop easily injured by frost and freezes. It should be planted early in the spring as soon as the danger of frost is past. In frost-free areas of the state, the calabaza may be planted from August through March.

Calabaza is started from seed, which is often saved from the fruits of a preceding crop. Since plants tend to be excessively vining, rows should be spaced 6-9 feet apart, with plants spaced 4 feet apart, resulting in a need for a considerable amount of space to grow a calabaza.

Cultural practices such as fertilization, liming and soil preparation are similar to those for other more common kinds of squashes for a given area. Due to the wide plant spacing, gardeners would be advised to place a gallon or two of well-rooted compost on animal manure under each planting site before seeding. Mix the organics well with the soil.

About three months are required from seeding to harvest of the calabaza fruits. Like other cucurbits, bees are needed to transfer pollen from the male to the female flowers of the calabaza. The crop is not without typical squash pest problems; foliage diseases are the most serious.

As the name implies, most calabazas in Florida are grown by Latins living in South Florida. This group also uses most of what is grown there, cooking the storage-type squash in a variety of ways according to Latin recipes. Like other winter squashes, Calabaza keeps well for several weeks if stored in a dry, reasonably cool situation.

Seeds of calabazas are seldom found in seed company catalogs. A gardener wishing to try out a few hills probably should try to obtain a calabaza in a south Florida market, then save the seeds. Of course, considerable variation in plant characteristics from these seeds should be expected.

No-show clients has stylist tearing out hair

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I've never seen in your column. I am a hairdresser and today I was stood up again. People call and make appointments but never call to cancel, and the time I've booked for them is wasted unless I get a "walk-in." I'm especially mad right now because this lady was booked for a perm, which takes twice as long as a regular set, so I'm really out two appointments.

I am very accommodating. I've come in early and stayed late, and even come in on my day off for some clients. Some people are so inconsiderate, it's maddening. I've had women come in half an hour early while I'm eating my lunch, and they expect me to hurry up so they can get out early.

Sorry I got so carried away. Abby, I just want to know how other hairdressers handle no-shows. Some physicians have started charging patients for an office visit if they don't call and cancel 24 hours ahead of time. I would love to do something like that.

How do other hairdressers handle this problem?

GETTING ULCERS

DEAR GETTING: It all depends. The busy hairdressers who are always booked can afford to be independent. They can (and do) charge a "no-show," and I think they should. In fact, a "no-show" should insist on paying the hairdresser for the time wasted.

However, the average hairdresser lacks the courage to charge for the hole in his book—which also puts a hole in his pocket. It's not fair, and this is a plea for women to be a little more considerate. No-show? Pay the dough.

DEAR ABBY: Every time you advise someone to seek professional help, I cringe. I don't think you realize that even with

ADVICE

"sliding fees," the cost is still out of reach for some people.

My daughter, who is 10 years old, desperately needs psychiatric treatment. Out insurance covers only 10 visits a year, and the psychiatrist said she needs at least two visits a week for three years! He offered me a special rate of $50 per session. Abby, I make $275 a week and I can't afford even one session a week.

When will insurance companies realize that mental illness is just as serious as physical illness? My daughter's problems are not going to go away if left untreated. Her father deserted us, so I am alone.

POOR WORKING MOM

DEAR MOM: A great tragedy in these enlightened times is that some still fail to recognize emotional illness is just as important as physical illness. Please don't give up because you cannot afford the professional help your daughter needs. Contact your county or state mental health services. The United Way will make referrals for free or low-cost mental health care. There is low-cost counseling available through some local YWCAs. Treatment within your ability to pay is available. Good luck.

SOAPS UPDATE

ALL MY CHILDREN: Tad and Barbara talked with Allison's father, Cameron, who insisted that Sean give Allison a lethal dose of pills because he wanted her money. When Tom asked Sean if he killed Allison, Sean denied that he was a murderer. A detective, Peyton, told Barbara and Tad that he believes Allison committed suicide. Angie lied and said that she's falling for Remy, who caught her snooping in his desk. Juliet warned Cindy to be careful after she checked out a Dr. Hampton, who treats his patients with herbal cures. Dave (Steven) managed to duct out of sight when Travis arrived at the boarding house to talk to Erica. Mark convinced Travis to return to Pine Valley. Remy tried giving Nico money to keep his nightclub open. Ellen said she'd accept Palmer's offer to let her run Cortland Electronics but the insisted that things be on the up-and-up.

ANOTHER WORLD: Mac and Rachel were surprised to see Mac's long lost daughter, Miss Carrington Wheeler. Iris agreed to stay at Mac's mansion. Rachel, though, doesn't get along with Rachel. Iris told Mac that her birth certificate shows that she's his natural daughter, not his adopted daughter. Jamie rushed Vic to the hospital after she suddenly collapsed. Jason asked Vic to invest some of her fortune in Flame Construction company. Sam was stunned when Iris disliked his art work. Sherlene threatened to tell John all about the feud between Jason and Rachel if Jason doesn't tell John first. Caroline has her heart set on taking Cass away from Nicole. Mitch was happy that Matthew attended. Mitch and Emily Raman convinced Kayla to take him to see Benny in hopes that the bar can shed light on Roman's forgotten past. Anjelica confronted a frightened Meg after her doctor blabbed to Tom that he's not the father of Meg's baby. Elizabeth told Jarrod about her sordid past. Elizabeth turned when Jarrod felt sorry for her and vowed to see that she's monetarily compensated for the years that he neglected her. Kira, who is now against Lucinda's plot to get her hands on Emma's land, gave Caleb the money to repay the loan. L. Kristen agreed to be Margo's friend.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Patch and Marcus rescued Kayla from Harper's getaway plane. Later, Jo refused to rat on Jack (Billy) for helping to arrange Harper's prison escape. Kayla told Jack (Billy) to get lost when he thanked her for saving Harper's life. Diana kept mum to Roman that she received a note that he was in on Harper's escape plot. Roman followed the mysterious woman who has been keeping tabs on Diana and Roman. Everyone was stunned when Anjelica and Neil announced that they're engaged. Ethan moved away from Salem, but Calliope didn't go with him. Emilio was cleared of charges that he was in on Harper's escape plot. Roman performed more surgery on Remy, but she's still in a coma. Rocco finally told a devastated Katie that he cares about her, but he loves Donna. Margo showed no sympathy for Clarke, who treated that Kristen will learn that he fathered Margo's baby. Adrienne and Justin are still at odds over her feelings for Emilio. Raman convinced Kayla to take him to see Benny in hopes that the bar can shed light on Roman's forgotten past. Anjelica learned Victor got to Harper's money. GENERAL HOSPITAL: As Olivia ordered, Tim cut the cables on the elevator to Duke's penthouse apartment, but Olivia turned when Anna, not Duke, was injured when the elevator smashed to the ground. Olivia panicked when a supposedly dead Julian arrived on her doorstep and said that he knows she tried to kill him. Julian didn't believe Olivia, who said she had tried to kill Duke, not Julian. Olivia had her henchmen kidnap Cheryl. Robert arrested Tim just as Olivia's hired hit man was about to shoot Tim, but Tim was arrested and later admitted he works for Olivia. After Anna miscarried her baby, a nurse overheard Anna threaten to kill Olivia. Anjelica decided to consult Tom about her headaches after she learned that he had helped Colton remember his past. Lord Ashton decided to stay with the Quartermaines a little longer. Ned went out with Melissa. Terry decided to break her relationship with Gregory.

GUIDING LIGHT: Alan arrived at Cross Creek in a helicopter to rescue Reva and Marah. Josh abandoned Alan on the island and took off in the helicopter, taking an unwilling Reva and Marah with him. Later, in Venezuela, Josh and Reva met Mrs. Ybarra, who thinks that Marah is her baby. Will, Josh and Reva didn't believe Mrs. Ybarra, who said that Sonia is dead. Rick went through with the wedding ceremony even though he knew that Meredith wasn't carrying his baby. When Rick asked if Phillip fathered the baby, Meredith lied that a salesman got her pregnant. Solida (Sonnli) lied to Will that he had once raped her, then she tricked him into taking some pills that will prevent him from regaining his memory. LOVING: A distraught Trisha blindly dashed out into the street after Jeff told her that their romance is over. A man, Trucker, rescued a dazed Trisha. Ava secretly tailed Clay (Alex), then suspected he is having an affair with Egypt when she saw his car parked outside Egypt's apartment. Dan learned Alex (Clay) that Ava is looking for information about his past. Charles pressured Dan to continue his search for Jeff's long lost mother. Ava is suffering from abdominal pains.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Michael's private scientist, Cavanaugh, released a viral substance into the air ducts at the Holden Towers Hotel. Michael secretly gave Cavanaugh an antidote for the virus after she passed out and was hospitalized. A recuperating Gabrielle didn't tell anyone what Michael had done. Michael found the time capsule that Victor buried in the hotel. Renee brought Vic back from New York City, where she'd gone in search of her long lost daughter. While in New York, Vic and Renee befriended Amy, a girl who lived on the streets. Amy later showed up at Asa's mansion. Cassie was stunned to catch Jonathan, who stole a black book that Rob had hidden in his pad. Later, Cassie learned that the black book contains records of the money that Rob has been laundering for organized crime figures.

SANTA BARBARA: Everyone in town, including the video rapist, attended a costume party thrown by C.C., who hoped to use the party to lure the rapist out into the open. Andrea, who returned to try to patch things up with Cain, was attacked on the beach by the rapist. Andrea recognized the rapist "Sonny" (Mason) panicked when Julia set a November wedding date. After a lousy start, "Sonny" and Bunny became good chums. Boswell is keeping tabs on Lydia, who is determined to prove that Cain is the video rapist. After Toni cautioned Arthur that he's going about reconciling with Heather and Michael in the wrong way, Arthur told Heather that he's the best father he knows how to be. Scott returned from London. Ted is suspicious of Phillip, who is obsessed with gathering information about the rapist. "Sonny" is still arguing with his Mason personality.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Paul was stunned when George asked him to father a child with Cassandra so that George would have an heir. Cassandra's feelings were hurt when Paul turned down George's request. Lisa told Tracy she was married, but didn't say she was married to Brad. John was upset when his friends refused to associate with him after they learned Jessica has AIDS. Jack and John discussed Ashley, who is traveling around the Caribbean. Jack later told Neke that he suspects Ashley may have gone off somewhere with Victor. After Danny told Cricket that little Phillip wasn't dead, Cricket and Danny broke the good news to Nina and Phillip, who were planning the infant's funeral. Lauren guessed that Lisa has been harassing Brad. Brittany suspects there's trouble in George and Cassandra's marriage. Copyright, 1988, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

COMMUNITY

Amid snow-laden hills the village nestles around its church. In a cold world—a symbol of community. Probably the most positive trend in our changing culture is this new emphasis on community.

Naturally the Church is at the center of community: It teaches that we are all children of God. And when the Church calls us together each Sunday it reminds us of our common need—and of our shared responsibility.

After a decade: John Paul at 10

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

"By definition," writes Peter Hebblethwaite, the savvy Vatican watcher for the Independent National Catholic Reporter, "all popes have this conservative role" of being the upholder of tradition.

And 10 years into his papacy, the role of upholder of tradition seems the most dominant of the many roles the one-time student actor who now leads the world's 500 million Roman Catholics has played.

Oct. 16 was the 10th anniversary of the landmark election of Karol Wojtyla, the Polish-born pontiff, to the Throne of St. Peter — the first non-Italian elected to four centuries — and occasioned a number of assessments of the first decade of John Paul's rule over an oft-unruly church.

Prominent among the reflections is the perception of John Paul as a complex person. He combines a call for radical secular change with an ecclesiastical conservatism, and that sometimes confuses Vatican observers and the faithful alike.

Indeed, Hebblethwaite sees this complex person playing out 10 different roles in the 10 years of his papacy, including that of ecclesiastical conservatism, the upholder of tradition.

"But there is tradition and traditions," Hebblethwaite writes in NCR. "and, in John Paul's case, the emphasis has been on the reiteration of established traditions."

In the United States, this has caused a certain discomfort as John Paul appears to be slamming shut the windows opened by his namesake, Pope John XXIII, at the Second Vatican Council.

Even before John Paul began his pontificate, Roman Catholicism in the United States was forging something of its own identity. The much-debated "American church" broke, in practice especially, with official Vatican teaching on such issues as birth control and other issues of human sexuality.

John Paul, however, has made it plain, during both his 1979 and his 1987 trips to the United States and through a series of well-publicized disciplinary actions against a bishop, theologians and nuns, that he will not brook dissent on these matters.

At the same time, however, John Paul has adopted what Hebblethwaite calls a "populist" role, making himself "the voice of those who have no voice" that progressive and liberal Catholics champion, much to the discomfort of conservatives who applaud his stance on sexual ethics.

In this role, the pope has sharply condemned the excesses of capitalism, especially its worship of commodities and commercialism and its perceived exploitation or exclusion of the poor.

In yet another, but related role, the pope has emerged as one of the most vocal defenders of human rights, both in the Third World and in the communist bloc countries.

One of the most complicated — yet potentially far-reaching — of the pope's role is that of a worldwide ecumenical leader and it is in that role that many find the pontiff most contradictory.

He has made some dramatic gestures toward Christian unity and interfaith understandings and his dramatic visit to a Rome synagogue was one of the most visible.

At the same time, however, despite a great deal of progress in theological dialogue between Catholics and other Christians — progress many feel could lead to some degree of mutual recognition of ministries or sharing in Holy Communion — John Paul's rhetoric of support has not been matched by the reality of action.

The next 10 years, however, are likely to be as complex and as interesting as the first 10.

Episcopals support gay marriages

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Northern California Episcopal Church officials ignored official church policy to announce their support of marriage ceremonies between homosexual couples.

Delegates to the church's annual diocesan convention, meeting over the weekend, voted 189-147 in support of the controversial resolution calling on the Episcopal Diocese of California, which oversees the northern part of the state, to "support liturgies for the open blessings of committed, loving couples of the same sex."

Proponents of the new church ceremonies said the AIDS epidemic has forced the church to encourage long-term, monogamous relationships among homosexuals as well as heterosexuals. However, opponents of the ceremonies said the marriage vows would violate church teachings.

Bishop William Swing, who has publicly opposed such marriages, said the new resolution does not allow him to violate national church policy and authorize new liturgies.

"Locally, there is a lot of support for the church to affirm same-sex couples," said Swing, but he pointed out that both the Episcopal Church in the United States and the Anglican communion worldwide were overwhelmingly against the idea.

"The church is very clear about its understanding that marriage is between a man and a woman," he said.

The Rev. Robert Cromeo of San Francisco's Trinity Episcopal Church said the action was a big step in the right direction. He said church blessings of homosexual unions "will only be done on the national level after experimentation on the local level."

Cromeo, whose congregation is about 60 percent homosexual, said the resolution "gives Bishop Swing more latitude."

A festival of fun

A pretty day led to a pretty large turnout for the festival at St. Mary Magdalene Church in Altamonte Springs Saturday. Fair attendees were treated to good food, good games, and good times all day long.

Detroit Catholics plea for fate of 43 city churches

United Press International

DETROIT — Members of 43 churches in the city slated to be closed because of declining membership and Sunday contributions are pleading with the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy to save their spiritual homes.

In a letter to be sent to Cardinal Edmund Szoka of Detroit, church members quoted a two-year-old report by Catholic leaders that praised "small, viable, multicultural communities" of faith in America's inner cities.

The correspondence, made public Monday, also quoted the 1986 National Conference of Catholic Bishops' pastoral letter on the U.S. economy that sharply criticized companies for closing factories without allowing their workers to participate in such decisions. The church should heed its own advice before announcing closings, the letter says.

About 900 Catholics attended a meeting Monday night along with 33 priests at St. Gregory the Great Church. The letter wants Szoka, who is in Rome, to meet with the priests "in a manner which will initiate a process of reconciliation and mutual understanding and begin to heal the divisions which currently plague the church of Detroit."

The 43 churches to be closed, some more than 100 years old, represent one third of all Roman Catholic Churches in Detroit and the enclaves of Hamtramck and Highland Park. No suburban church is among those to be closed.

In an announcement Sept. 28, Bishop Patrick Cooney said that churches were expected to have a minimum of 500 households in the city. The Catholic Church faces a nationwide priest shortage and Cooney said the 500-household goal was set to fairly distribute priests.

The meeting was called by the Detroit Catholic Pastoral Alliance. Its founder, the Rev. Norman Thomas, said, "We wouldn't be bothering with this if there wasn't a chance and a very good chance. We want you to know this struggle will continue."

Eve, Black Sox, Johnson forgot maxim

On the same day I saw "Eight Men Out," the movie about the Black Sox baseball scandal, the newspapers were publishing news that Olympic hero Ben Johnson had been stripped of his gold medal in Seoul, South Korea. Tests showed he had set his world record in the 100 meters with the help of drugs. Disgraced, he returned to home in Canada.

A week earlier, a Big Ten football star told a federal grand jury in Chicago that he had illegally accepted money from some fast-talking sports agents.

Suddenly 1919 didn't seem so long ago and far away. Times hadn't changed, only the dates on the calendar.

Even the excuses of the accused followed a predictable pattern going back to the Garden of Eden.

"The woman you gave to be with me, she gave of the tree," said Adam to the Lord God. Eve countered with, "The serpent deceived me."

RELIGION

GEORGE PLAGENZ

Ben Johnson's improbable story was that someone had spiked his Gatorade.

And the football player said: "I wasn't thinking of myself when I took the money. I was thinking of my two younger brothers. I wanted them to have the things we used to wish for when we were kids."

Nearly 70 years earlier, eight players of the American League champion Chicago White Sox (forever after known as the "Black Sox") conspired with gamblers to throw the 1919 World Series to the Cincinnati Reds. Some of them faulted Chicago owner Charles Comiskey. He was a miser, a skinflint who paid starvation wages to his players.

After the deal, some of the players had second thoughts about the fix. But it was too late to get out.

With the Reds leading the Series four games to three (it was best-of-nine that year), Claude "Lefty" Williams was up to pitch for Chicago. He had thrown the second game. If he lost the crucial eighth game (as planned), the Series would be over.

The day before Williams had found $5,000 in a sack under his pillow in his hotel room. He had expected 10 grand. But if he was thinking of returning the double-cross, he promptly reconsidered when the gangsters approached him before the game that afternoon and threatened to kill him if anything went wrong.

It didn't. Williams quickly gave Cincinnati five runs in the first inning and the Reds went on to win, 10-5. The Series was over.

Williams was one of the players who signed confessions after the details of the fix were exposed a year later. But the confessions were stolen from the Illinois attorney general's office and the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty." The unrepentant players celebrated with a wild old time at an Italian restaurant on Chicago's West Side.

But their merriment would be short-lived. All eight of the players involved in the fix were banned from baseball for life by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was elected the game's first commissioner in the wake of the scandal.

Like Olympic star Ben Johnson and the Big Ten football player in this story (as well as Adam and Eve), the Chicago players had time to think over their choices before they acted. But they forgot a simple, five-word maxim that can save us from a similar fate: "When in doubt, do right."
