GUILTY PLEA

SANFORD — Erik Eriksen, 19, of Winter Springs, pleaded guilty Wednesday in Seminole County Court to one count of falsely impersonating a law enforcement officer.

Deputies arrested Eriksen on April 27, charging him with three counts of falsely impersonating an officer, in connection with incidents in the Casselberry and Winter Springs areas.

Citizens said a man claiming to be a police officer stopped their vehicles and threatened them with a ticket. At one time, said sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, he handcuffed a 14 year old girl.

During the arrest, deputies reportedly confiscated a siren control box, green rotating light, and a pair of handcuffs from Eriksen.

McDonough said the guilty plea yesterday was the result of a plea bargain between Eriksen and the State Attorney's office.

Eriksen is to be sentenced at 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 9 at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility by Circuit Court Judge Leonard Wood.

Net ban financial help

The state Department of Community Affairs is preparing to start a Net Ban Emergency Assistance program for Florida's commercial fishermen and their families who may have been financially affected by the Net Ban Constitutional Amendment.

The amendment limits the use of all gill and trammel nets and trawls in near-shore and inshore Florida waters. It became effective July 1 of this year.

Maximum assistance allowable per household is $250. It may be used for unemployment insurance assessment fee or fee reimbursement, mortgage, rental or utility payments, food, clothing, and other needs.

While there is no requirement for matching funds, the money is limited and available on a first-come basis.

The Net Ban Emergency Assistance Program will be administered by non-profit agencies and local government.

No specific contact has been established in Seminole County. Fishermen are asked to contact the nearest program manager, which for Seminole County is being managed by Volusia County. The phone number is (904) 736-5955.

Housing authority probe ends

Former director's alleged wrongdoings discussed tonight

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford Housing Authority attorney Clay Simmons has concluded his investigation into alleged wrongdoings by former executive director Phyllis Richardson and will present his findings to the authority board tonight.

Actions the board may consider are to accept Richardson's resignation submitted Tuesday, report the matter to the United States Attorney and/or State Attorney and advertise the vacancy seeking applications for another executive director.

Richardson resigned Tuesday citing health problems. She was suspended with pay earlier this month following an interim investigation report by Simmons which indicated housing authority procurement policies had been violated. Individuals had received money for work not done and family members and friends of

Students organize moments of prayer

SANFORD — Nearly three dozen young people stood on the fenced basketball court across the dusty road from the gymnasium at Lakeview Middle School.

At Seminole High, a similar group made a circle around a planter in the main courtyard.

And at Sanford Middle they gathered quietly between classroom buildings.

Across the country yesterday, teens met a commitment to one another and to their religious faith to gather at school to pray for themselves, for their schools and their teachers, for their schoolmates and for their world.

The event, called Meet Me At The Pole by the national organizers, is put together by the teens with some guidance from various church youth ministers. In many schools students meet at the flagpole for the show of spiritual unity. In Seminole County, most groups chose to meet on campus to be away from traffic that is often near the flagpole.

"This is something the kids want to do," said Sidney Brock, youth minister at the First Baptist Church of Sanford. "They look forward to it."

While Brock leads the teens spiritually, it is the students themselves who most get through the

Pastor: Spaziano witness told me he lied

Staff and Wire Reports

Two years before Tony DiLisio publicly recanted his story which sent Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano to death row for a Seminole County murder, he told his pastor his testimony was a lie.

"He said there was a man, he didn't tell me exact details, but he said a man was accused of killing a girl and taking her to a dump," retired pastor Elmer Leidig said Wednesday.

"Tony said somebody said the man took him to the dump, but he didn't. The police took him there."

Spaziano, a member of the Outlaws Motorcycle gang, was convicted in 1976 in the slaying of Laura Harberts, an 18-year-old hospital records clerk. Her body was discovered in an Altamonte Springs dump.

DiLisio, who testified after police secretly hypnotized him, was the only witness linking Spaziano to the crime. Seminole County Judge Robert McGregor overrode a jury recommendation of life and sentenced Spaziano to death.

In June, DiLisio said he'd lied about seeing two decomposed bodies in the garbage dump in 1973. The second body was never identified. DiLisio also admits he continued to lie after testifying, bragging and elaborating on the story.

Spaziano has survived five death warrants — the last signed by Gov. Lawton Chiles after he ordered a Florida Department of Law Enforcement investigation of DiLisio and his recanted story.

The Florida Supreme Court issued an indefinite stay of execution Sept. 12 and ordered an evidentiary hearing Nov. 15.

Leidig, 82, was interviewed by phone at his Pensacola home. He remembers the story, he says.

Man charged with 2403 counts

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — A Canadian man has been charged with 2403 counts of illegally making, possessing and transporting explosives, police said Wednesday.

Peter Palmer, 33, was arrested Tuesday after undercover agents arranged to buy $10,000 of explosives from him. Police found thousands of small, cylindrical explosives ranging from 3 to 9 inches in his van.

Thousands more explosives were found stockpiled at a nearby storage warehouse where Palmer allegedly made them. The homemade devices were filled with gun powder.

"It was extremely volatile," Hollywood Police spokesman Todd DeAngelis said Wednesday. "If that van had been in an accident it would have been a terrible catastrophe."

Palmer was charged with 2500 counts of making a destructive device — one for each explosive — two counts of possession of explosives and three counts of transporting explosives without a license.

DeAngelis said number of counts was expected to increase when police account for the number of explosives Palmer had in the warehouse.

Ringling president to retire

SARASOTA — Ariand Christ-Janer, the president of Ringling School of Art and Design for 12 years, plans to retire as soon as a replacement can be found.

Arthur J. Ferguson, chairman of the school's board of trustees, said a national search for Christ-Janer's replacement was underway.

Christ-Janer and his wife, Sally, moved to Sarasota in 1983 with the intention of retiring. But he accepted a position at the Ringling school, helping transform it from a three-year studio program to four-year institution offering a bachelor of fine arts degree.

Founded in 1931, the school is a fully-accredited four-year college of professional visual arts offering degree programs in six majors — computer animation, fine arts, graphic design, illustration, interior design and photography.

Florida, Catalonia enter cultural pact

TALLAHASSEE — Florida and Catalonia, a northeastern region of Spain, entered an agreement Wednesday to expand economic and cultural ties.

Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Catalonia President Jordi Pujol hope the "sister-state" status will promote tourism, agriculture, technology, education and sports activities between Florida and Catalonia, which is located on the Mediterranean Sea. Its capital is Barcelona.

"This agreement is an important economic development tool that will help our businesses gain greater access to the European market," Chiles said.

Chiles and Pujol signed the agreement at the governor's mansion.

Chiles declares 'Meat Loaf Week'

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles is so crazy about meat loaf he decided to declare Sept. 18-24 "Meat Loaf Week."

"I like meat loaf," he said Wednesday when asked about the proclamation.

"To me, two out of three ain't bad," he joked, quoting lyrics from a song by performer Meat Loaf. "Meat Loaf has been a star as long as I can remember."

Chiles signed the Meat Loaf proclamation at the request of the Boston Market restaurant chain.

The proclamation, in part, reads: "Whereas, meat loaf is an American icon — one that has been a part of our lives for many years; and

"Whereas, it is a mounded or molded dish, usually baked, with its major ingredient being ground beef or a combination of meats; and

"Whereas, many, many favorite meat loaf recipes exist and have been traded among friends; and

"Whereas, meat loaf is one of those foods that takes us back to the carefree days of childhood — of dinner time with the whole family gathered around the table."

How to reduce classroom disruptions

TALLAHASSEE — Unruly and abusive students should be removed from Florida classrooms and turned over to state juvenile authorities for discipline.

That's the recommendation of Pat Tornillo, president of the Florida Education Association/United, a teacher's union.

Tornillo is urging lawmakers to pass legislation next year that would reduce disruptions.

"Teachers cannot teach and students cannot learn in an environment of disorder, disrespect and fear," Tornillo told the Senate Education Committee.

The idea would allow schools to turn disruptive students over to the Department of Juvenile Justice, which would determine when a student could return to school, he said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Insurance rates hiked 'Sticker shock' may accompany increases

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Homeowners who rely on a state-created property insurer should brace for "rate sticker shock" as it pumps up its premiums, the House Insurance Committee chairman said Wednesday.

The residential Joint Underwriting Association, created after Hurricane Andrew blew away or damaged many insurers in August 1992, is planning at least two rate increases by Jan. 1 and may consider another next summer to ensure it doesn't have a large deficit.

"One of the central issues that we're going to have to look at next session is rate sticker shock. How much can Floridians pay?" said committee Chairman John Congrove, D-Miami, whose home was destroyed by Andrew. He was insured by the JUA about a year before finding private coverage.

Congrove said he is developing legislation that would reduce premiums up to 25 percent for homeowners and allow insurers to increase deductibles to 10 percent.

He said past efforts to dramatically increase deductibles would have left policyholders with hefty financial exposures. For instance, a 10 percent deductible on a $100,000 house would cost a homeowner $10,000 in a major loss.

Under Congrove's proposal, financial institutions could finance the 10 percent deductible as a loan. The arrangement wouldn't cost the homeowner anything unless a major loss occurred but it could reduce premiums substantially, he said.

"Our citizens can only pay so much," Congrove told the committee Wednesday. "The whole discussion about just raising rates, raising rates, raising rates — old world of insurance. We are not going to deal with the old world. We are going to deal with the new world."

Lawmakers created the JUA to provide property insurance to homeowners who couldn't find conventional coverage after Andrew. It has ballooned into the state's third-largest insurer behind State Farm and Allstate with more than 800,000 policies.

Rep. Joseph Arnall, R-Jacksonville Beach, said the state needed to ensure JUA rates reflect the level of risk, such as coastal areas where the JUA insures many homeowners.

"It's time to put out more honesty in terms of rate structure," Arnall said. "It may not be news they want to hear."

On Oct. 1, an average 15.5 percent increase will take effect in the JUA.

In Dade County, policyholders will pay an average of $1,161 a year on a framed house with $75,000 replacement value and a $250 deductible, according to the Department of Insurance. Private policies for the same coverage range from $428 to $1,465.

In Broward County, the average JUA policy will cost $933, while the highest private policy is $1,228. In Palm Beach County, the JUA policy will cost an average of $864 compared to $1,077 for the most expensive private policy.

7 of 102 abuse cases under care of HRS

By JACQUE MALLOPAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Seven of the 102 children who were the victims of fatal child abuse two years ago were supposed to be kept safe by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

In 31 percent of the 102 fatal abuse cases, families had at some point in the past received services from HRS.

Linda Radigan, assistant HRS secretary for children and family services, gave the Senate HRS Committee an overview of the latest year's statistics Wednesday. The most recent data covers July 1993 through June 1994.

The oldest of the seven was a 4 year old, who died of blunt trauma to the bowel. All the others were younger than 2. The youngest victim was 2 days old and died of cocaine addiction.

One child was in foster care; the others were under "protective supervision." That's when a caseworker is assigned to the family to monitor the safety of the children and try to get the parents services to help them treat their children better.

During 1993-94, HRS had responsibility for nearly 25,000 children in foster care or protective custody.

In the seven fatal cases, one father pleaded no contest to manslaughter, one mother was sentenced to one year and a day in prison, and one father pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

One live-in boyfriend was acquitted of first-degree murder and no charges were filed in the other three cases.

"It's extremely easy to kill a child and get away with it," Ms. Radigan said.

Sen. Bill Bankhead, a Ponte Vedra Beach Republican who chairs the committee, asked Radigan what HRS is doing to keep children safe.

POLICE

QUAD Squad arrest

A man who officers said refused to identify himself, was arrested as John Doe Monday, in the 1800 block of W. 13th Street. Members of the Sanford police QUAD Squad were investigating the area for possible drug activities, when they said they saw a man sitting on a moped, blocking the sidewalk. When they told him to move, he reportedly began circling the area on the moped blowing the horn and swerving on and off the sidewalk area. Officers said he appeared to be a threat to customers coming out of a nearby store. He was arrested on charges of reckless driving, and obstruction.

Suspect collared

Thomas Wade Junior, 32, 131 Academy Blvd., was arrested by Sanford police Monday at a retail store in the 3800 block of Orlando Drive. He reportedly attempted to take three dog collars, with a total value of $22.80 from the store without paying. He was charged with retail theft.

Levi Jones III, 23, of 1403 Roosevelt Avenue, was stopped on Terrace Drive Monday by Sanford police. He was charged with unlawful altering of a tag, and three counts of possession of a controlled substance (marijuana). Fender bender

Sanford police were called to the parking lot of Seminole Center Monday when the owner of a vehicle reported that another car had bumped into it. The officer said five minutes after he had left the area, he was called back to the parking lot where he reported finding the woman driver of the vehicle which is believed to have bumped the car, in a verbal confrontation with two persons in the other car. During an arrest attempt, police said the woman attempted to take the police radio microphones from the officer, Jessica Sandra Schnur, 42, of 2218 Sanford Avenue, was subsequently arrested on charges of resisting an officer with violence, battery to a law enforcement officer, and depriving a law enforcement officer of communication.

Change scam

Another change-scam was reportedly made Tuesday at a business in the 200 block of E. 25th Street. According to the incident report, a man went to the clerk with a $50 bill and a $10 bill, and asked for change in various denominations. When the clerk gave the man change, he produced a $10 bill and a $1 bill, telling the clerk that he had been given incorrect change. The clerk then gave the man additional money, after which he reportedly left the store. A subsequent check of the cash register reportedly revealed that the store had been billed out of a total of $60.

Similar incidents have been reported at two other businesses in Sanford in recent times.

Hidden hazards Cancer group names 'dirty dozen' consumer products

By BARBARA SUPERVILLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Beef frankfurters, talcum powder and toothpaste are among the thousands of cosmetic, food and household products that could be endangering consumers' health, authors of a new buyer's guide said today.

But representatives of government and the various industries involved insisted that the products named in "The Safe Shopper's Bible" are safe and sharply criticized the work of authors Dr. Samuel Epstein and David Steinman.

Epstein, chairman of the Cancer Prevention Coalition, said consumers do not know the products may be harmful because manufacturers do not list on the labels which ingredients may be cancer-causing or toxic.

"We label for cholesterol, but not for carcinogens," he said.

Epstein was teaming with consumer activist Ralph Nader at a news conference today to urge industry to begin giving the information to shoppers. They also released their list of the 12 worst products.

But Betsy Adams, spokeswoman for the Food and Drug Administration, said consumers should not worry about any of the substances the book's authors say are in products regulated by the agency.

"We believe that all of these products are generally safe under conditions of normal use," Adams said.

Jeff Nedelman, spokesman for the Grocery Manufacturers Association, which represents the makers of 11 products on Epstein's list, dismissed the findings as "book tour publicity."

"Consumers know these products are safe. They buy them every week," he said. "This is scientific nonsense and America's consumers know it."

Epstein said research for the book was based on reports filed with various government agencies, including the departments of Labor and Agriculture, and reviews of industry, consumer and toxicological reports.

The book discusses various categories of cosmetic, food and household products and identifies potential hazards. It also includes tips for using products safely and lists suggested alternatives.

Crest Tartar Control Toothpaste is on Epstein's list for containing saccharin, the sugar substitute known to cause cancer in laboratory animals. Other major toothpaste brands also contain saccharin.

Crest's maker, Procter & Gamble Inc. said the FDA has "carefully reviewed" Crest and has judged it to be safe. "We're not aware of any scientific evidence which associates normal use of Tartar Control Crest with larly dust themselves with talcum powder have a higher risk of developing ovarian cancer and that the product should be labeled accordingly. He suggested cornstarch powder as a safer alternative.

"What is particularly galling about the 'Dirty Dozen' is that these toxic chemicals don't have to be there," Nader said. "Yet these corporations continue to expose people to health hazards unnecessarily."

But Johnson & Johnson Inc. said a workshop co-sponsored by the FDA that reviewed a number of studies last year found no evidence supporting Epstein's claim. The New Jersey-based company said its powder contains "pure, high-grade cosmetic talc" that is free of impurities and not carcinogenic.

Educating kids for work

When someone issues what may be considered unnecessary criticism, especially announcing it to all the world, it hurts. It may be true or untrue, but nevertheless, it hurts.

We believe such an example are comments made during the Southern Governor's Association conference in Biloxi, Mississippi recently. Business leaders warned the governors of southern states to clean up public school systems, or watch an otherwise rosy economic forecast falter.

The top official of Georgia-Pacific said schools aren't producing qualified workers. The head of a major computer company said southern public schools "push people into mediocrity."

We believe Florida should not be put into this category, and the school system cannot be made to hold the entire blame. While we must suspect some of the problems are an overabundance of bureaucracy on the part of the state system, individual counties and schools are virtually knocking themselves out in providing industrial and business education.

We have many business and industry courses in our high schools. And certainly, who could question the business courses offered by Seminole Community College, the University of Central Florida, and other higher education institutions?

It doesn't matter what profession or type of employment a person is in or plans to undertake, our schools offer courses.

They not only help people set up particular businesses, but teach others how to be the best possible employees in their chosen professions.

At the high school level, it is nothing new that classes include on-the-job training in such areas as automobile repairs, brick laying, metal work, wood working, and others. Our schools, especially in more rural areas, have been providing this service for decades.

Back in the 20s, 30s and 40s, there were "trade schools" to attend beyond high school, for persons wanting to learn a trade but not being able to afford college.

How dare these business leaders tell our governors that our schools are doing nothing to turn out better employees and workers. From where are they drawing their opinions?

Are they visiting our schools, or are they possibly basing their judgments on the actual workers they hire? Aha, could this be the answer?

If that is the case, then if there truly is a problem, perhaps we know who is really to blame. Are students today ignoring vocational and business educational offerings in our schools? Even if they become involved, are they really diving head-long into it, or merely looking at the classes as an easy college credit?

Certainly, if there is fault with our school system in teaching business education, something should be done. But before we even look at that, let's re-examine the people they teach.

Let's get to the facts. We have too many people just waiting to graduate so they can seek any job they can get. Wouldn't it be better to undertake educational offerings for a particular profession? We believe it's worth considering.

LETTER

Last open house

I have gone to my last public school "open house." Each one was better than the last. I have gone to well over 30. After an introduction, the teachers would present their objectives for the year. They always put students' needs first, and are proud of their profession. You see this was my last open house because my last child is a senior in high school.

I met all of my daughter's teachers at Seminole High School, all very impressive. Each one thanked me for coming and for taking the time to attend. But I would like to thank all the teachers everywhere for all of your time and all that you do for our children, our future. You are truly appreciated.

Sadly, this was my last open house.

Thinking about changing careers?

When I first became a nurse I enjoyed the job very much. As time went on I realized the job was not for me. At first I was mad at myself for spending all the time required to get the needed education. Then I became very grateful that I did go into the nursing field because it made me aware of who I wasn't. After that I became totally lost with who I am. I also felt a loss of direction in my life. Totally confused with what to do to with my future I sought advice and was recommended Life and Career Planning by a counselor at Seminole Community College.

Through some of the studies I realized that I was not alone. Many people make changes because of loss of job, not being in their chosen career due to raising a family, or realizing the job they currently have is not for them.

The instructor informs students of the importance of making their own decisions due to the amount of time required in a particular job. So much of who you are is related to your career. Each career has its advantages and disadvantages. Each job requires certain strengths and abilities. This course helps you see your strengths and interests through a series of tests. Through these tests you see what areas you are interested in as far as subjects, tasks required for the job, and the subjects you are gifted in.

One assignment required for the course is to be a job shadow. A job shadow chooses the career they are interested in and contacts someone working in that field and follows them for a day asking questions to see if the field is what they expected. Other assignments are researching a career to find out qualifications, pay, job duties, required education, and job outlook for the future.

Due to advances in technology many careers are being deleted. Also new technology has opened up new careers. These new jobs will be given to those who are qualified through education. That is why it is important to never stop learning new skills and knowledge. The days are gone where a high school diploma can ensure a good job. Even those with college degrees are not ensured a job in today's market due to the advancements made in technology.

When I got out of nursing I realized my skills were not enough to find a job I would enjoy and would provide the income needed to make a living.

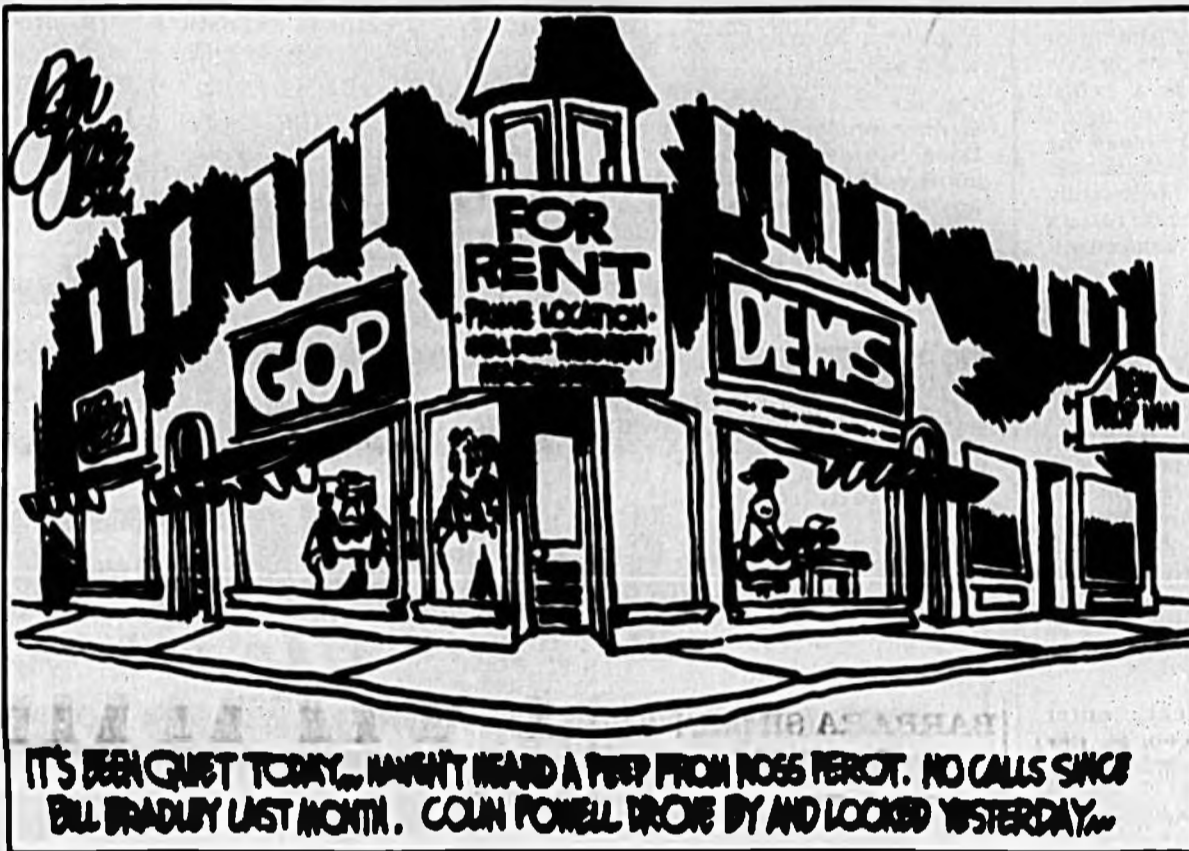

I hope if you are beginning college that you take a course in career planning so you can see the future in your job choice or find a career that would satisfy you. If you are looking to change careers, it's not too late to begin a new search. Consider taking this course. Condemning election coverage

As news organizations gear up to cover the 1996 campaign, an exhaustive new study condemns 1992 coverage -- convincingly -- as trivial, sensational, negative and biased.

Talk shows, suggests the report, have developed into a more dependable source of political information than newspaper stories.

Shows such as CNN's "Larry King Live" provided "more substantive information and a more positive and balanced portrait of the candidates than the 'establishment' media did," according to the study by Robert Lichter and Richard Noyes of the respected Center for Media and Public Affairs. Based on perhaps the most extensive review ever of newspaper stories, TV clips and candidates' speeches, the study will be published soon as a book titled "Good Intentions Make Bad News: Why Americans Hate Campaign Journalism" (Rowland and Littlefield).

The "good intentions" in the title refers to the determination by newspaper editors and TV producers after 1988 not to allow presidential candidates to set the political agenda, but to set it themselves on behalf of the public. The media consensus about 1988 was that George Bush had won by concentrating on trivial, negative issues like patriotism and Willie Horton.

The remedy, including "ad watch" features, ended up putting journalists' judgments more than ever at the center of so-called "news" reporting in 1992, angering the public and giving rise to "new media" outlets such as talk shows.

The authors rightly suggest that it's time for journalists to "narrate" the presidential campaign instead of trying to "arbitrate" it -- that is, drop editorializing and get back to reporting.

Preparing its study, the center reviewed 7,500 print and TV news stories, 183 hours of TV news coverage, plus comments by candidates, hosts and callers on five talk shows, including the networks' morning shows.

Among the center's key findings: To their credit, the mainstream news media did devote somewhat more space and time to "substance" -- issues and the candidates' records -- in 1992 than in 1988. However, the heavy emphasis in most coverage was on the election "horse race" and personalities.

On television, CNN PrimeNews had the best "substance" percentage with 53 percent, followed by MacNeil-Lehrer with 48, CBS was 74 percent non-substantive; NBC, 71 percent; and ABC, 66 percent. The study singled out ABC's segment "American Agenda" and MacNeil-Lehrer as models for issue coverage.

Among newspapers, stories in The Wall Street Journal were 63 percent substantive, while those in the New York Times were 39 percent and the Washington Post, 36 percent. "Fewer than one-fourth (24 percent) of the evaluations reported in the traditional news media focused on the candidates' issue proposals (13 percent) or records (11 percent)," the study found.

"Substantially more attention (41 percent) was paid to their poll standings, prospects for election or general viability. Talk shows reversed this order, spending twice as much time on each candidate's issues and record (42 percent) as on his status in the horse race (19 percent)."

"The national media's coverage of the 1994 midterm election campaigns was even more superficial than in 1992," with "barely one out of five assessments of the candidates focused on the substance of their records or proposals... In spite of the Republicans' much-publicized 'Contract With America.'"

The average TV network "soundbite," in which candidates are heard in their own words, shrank from 42.3 seconds in 1988 to 9.8 seconds in 1988 and down to 7.3 seconds in 1992. "Short soundbites are the mechanism that allow the reporter, not the candidates, to have the final say."

On TV talk shows, by contrast, candidates "did most of the talking" and set a far less negative tone than TV networks did in selecting soundbites to play on the news. On talk shows in 1992, President Bush said something positive about himself 82 percent of the time, while on TV news, he was shown criticizing Bill Clinton 72 percent of the time. Clinton was 56 percent positive on talk TV, 73 percent negative in the news.

The center checked campaign speeches and found them much less negative than TV reports, suggesting that "the candidates actually comported themselves much better than their abbreviated nightly news appearances suggested." News reports also condemned the quality of the campaign and the candidates, the study said, and "such relentless negativism does not simply reflect public alienation, it intensifies it."

The center did not say that the press should abandon its watchdog role over politics, but rather that it should quit getting in the way of the campaign and let candidates speak more for themselves.

Talk shows have developed into a more dependable source of political information than newspaper stories.

JACK ANDERSON

Fugitive learned his trade at CIA

WASHINGTON -- Former CIA operative Frank Terpil has long been comfortable in the arms of dictators. But now it appears dictators are no longer comfortable with him.

The renegade Terpil, who fled the United States in 1980 while under investigation for illegal arms dealings, was convicted in absentia of his crimes and sentenced by a New York court to 53 years in prison. In recent years, Terpil eluded justice by hiding out in such outlaw hot spots as Cuba, Libya and Lebanon.

But according to published reports, Terpil is now being held under house arrest by Cuban authorities pending an investigation into his activities, making him the second American fugitive this year who's fallen out of favor with Fidel Castro. Terpil apparently annoyed the Cuban government after his questionable dealings with Canadian businessmen threatened to tarnish Cuba's efforts to expand its business ties with the outside world. It remains doubtful that Terpil will be extradited to the United States.

If this is indeed the end of the road for Terpil, it will mark the end of one of the darkest chapters in the annals of U.S. intelligence. For it was the skills that Terpil learned at the hands of his CIA mentors that helped him launch a career as a terrorist for hire, a mercenary who crossed paths with some of the world's most notorious dictators.

Along with partner Ed Wilson, also a former CIA man, Terpil helped supply Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi with arms and other terrorist devices, and also helped train Gadhafi's men in the dark arts of terror. He allegedly supplied weaponry and explosives, including boobytraps disguised as ashtrays, lamps, alarm clocks, flower vases, radios and books to world terrorists.

Terpil apparently knew how to use his U.S. intelligence contacts to his full advantage. Although Terpil wasn't criminally charged until 1980, it's possible that the CIA knew about, and perhaps even condoned, his terrorist activities in Libya. According to top-secret Justice Department files reviewed at the time by our associate Dale Van Atta, there are several leads that indicate CIA connivance but which could never be followed up. The agency cooperated with investigators on some questions, but stonewalled inquiries that threatened to hit too close to home. Among the leads found in the files:

— Two men, who "had been involved in the development and design of Special Force-type devices," were recruited by Wilson and Terpil to work for Gadhafi. According to the files, "They were highly skilled technicians from China Lake, Calif." (where super-secret weapons systems were made). Both men were "working on classified CIA concealed weapons systems" when they were hired to impart their expertise to the Libyans.

— In September 1978, Terpil and Wilson made an astonishing proposition to three CIA contacts. The agents were asked to kill a Libyan "traitor" whom Gadhafi wanted eliminated and to train the dictator's own assassins. When Terpil and Wilson cited their CIA credentials, the three men flew to London and Geneva to discuss the deal. They declined the offer after learning they would be working for Gadhafi and wouldn't have the "protection" of the CIA.

A notorious braggart, Terpil loved to tell stories about his exploits, and he often advertised connections and relationships that he didn't have.

Former CIA operative Frank Terpil has long been comfortable in the arms of dictators.

administrative paths that will allow them to gather.

"Really, they're very supportive of us," said Sheena Gracey, a Lakeview Middle School student who put together the event at her school. "We didn't have any trouble at all."

According to Gracey, the young Christians have not met any opposition from their peers or from the educational establishment.

Through a network of Christian clubs at the school, most prominently Lifeguard and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Gracey said the students have established their commitment to the school and to their peers.

"In Lifeguard we meet about once a week and pray for some of the other kids in school that we think need to be prayed for," she said. "We talk to them and invite them to the parties we have."

Through that program, they have become well-known and accepted throughout the school.

Gracey said no one bothered those who gathered to pray on campus as part of the national celebration yesterday.

At Seminole High, school officials did not even notice the peaceful group that gathered on their campus.

"I didn't even notice them," said activities director John Cullum. "I think I would have noticed them if there was a problem."

In Lake Mary... Budget to be finalized

By NICK PPRIPAPU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Tonight is the night. It's the second and final reading of Lake Mary's fiscal year 1995/96 city budget as well as the setting of the millage rate. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Although the proposed ad valorem millage rate is 3.7648, the same as the city has maintained for many years, it is 2.43 percent above the roll-back rate determined by the Seminole County property appraiser. The roll-back rate of 3.6754 is determined to be the rate by which the same amount of taxes can be obtained by the city as this past year.

With increases in property appraisals and the addition of more taxable property within the city limits, the city believes that maintaining the previous millage rate will enable it to obtain additional taxes with which to work on a number of projects.

Nonetheless, by not accepting the roll-back rate, the millage expected to be approved, is considered an increase. It will not however, increase the amount of taxes which have been paid by property owners, barring increases in property appraisals.

During the public hearing, a report is to be given regarding the proposed increase and an explanation for the proposed increase over the roll-back rate. The general public will be allowed time to speak and ask questions prior to final adoption of the millage rate.

When the matter came up for first reading two weeks ago, it was approved by a unanimous vote from the city commission.

Also scheduled for second and final reading and adoption this evening, is the fiscal year 1996 city budget. The general fund revenue budget has been balanced at $5,628,925.

In broad terms, the general government expenditures are estimated at $1,032,090. The police department will have a budget of $1,828,728. Public works is earmarked at $563,194. The Parks and Recreation budget is $563,194 and the fire department is set at $713,257.

Prior to this evening's commission meeting, a workshop has been called for 5 p.m. to discuss drainage issues. The regular meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., or as soon thereafter as possible.

The budget approval and millage setting items are both scheduled for final hearings during the regular commission meeting.

Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road.

The meeting will also be telecast on TCI cable channel 2.

Boating and drainage

By NICK PPRIPAPU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary has asked Seminole Community College to voluntarily cease boating activities on Little Lake Mary. The lake is located between Lake Mary Boulevard and the college campus.

The city has reportedly received complaints about boating and water skiing activities being conducted on the lake by the college.

In a letter submitted on Sept. 15th to SCC official Andrew Vavrick, Lake Mary Senior Planner Susan Delms explained that water levels of the lake are unusually high with some homes that have water lapping at their back doors.

"Apparently the wake and rippling effects of the waves caused by the boats has immediate potential of causing structural damage to a few of the homes," she said.

She suggested, "To alleviate these property owners' concern over damage that boat traffic may cause, the city is asking that boating activities be curtailed in Little Lake Mary until such time as the water recedes."

While the letter has been sent as a request, City Manager John Litton said he has asked the city attorney for an opinion regarding what the city could do to officially restrict the use of motorized water craft on the lake.

The matter of boating and water skiing on the lake is expected to be brought up in connection with other drainage issues to be discussed during a workshop meeting this afternoon beginning at 5 p.m., and again during the city manager's report during tonight's regular city commission meeting.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Simmons will submit his report to the housing board tonight at the 7 p.m. board meeting in the Redding Gardens community room.

The report concludes Richardson tampered with waiting lists for public housing and rent assistance program (Section 8), falsified records and caused records to be destroyed or altered.

Since his initial report, Simmons has taken two additional sworn statements, participated in an unsworn interview of Richardson, reviewed phone records for two cellular phones owned by the housing authority, bank and credit union statements.

Simmons participated in the interview with Richardson along with H.U.D. inspector general special agent Glen Wirtanen, according to the report. Contacted earlier this month in his Tampa office, Wirtanen, in accordance with policy, would neither confirm nor deny an investigation was being conducted.

Richardson denied that she directed individuals be placed ahead of others on waiting lists for housing assistance or that she used housing authority personnel for her own use.

Simmons notes the report is a summary of statements and documentary evidence. Transcripts of the statements have not been produced in an effort to curtail expenses.

Simmons report states: "Based upon all of the statements taken and the documentary evidence reviewed, there is probable cause to conclude:

1. The Executive Director has used her position to place her son and daughter-in-law in Section 8 housing when they were neither eligible nor in line for such housing.

2. The Executive Director has used her position to sell her son a Sanford Housing Authority vehicle at a price at least $4,500 below fair market value in violation of Sanford Housing Authority procurement policies.

3. The Executive Director has diverted other monies under suspicious circumstances without appropriate contemporaneous justification.

4. The Executive Director has falsified the official records of the Sanford Housing Authority and caused records to be destroyed or altered.

5. The Executive Director has falsified the official records of the Sanford Housing Authority and caused records to be destroyed or altered.

6. The Executive Director has permitted Sanford Housing Authority property (cellular phone 333-6506) to be used for unofficial purposes."

because he heard it while DiLisio was going through a divorce in 1993.

"It was quite a while back, well before all this came out this summer," said the former pastor for The Church of the Nazarene in Pensacola.

Leidig says DiLisio told him he thought he was just one of many witnesses who incriminated Spaziano.

In the mid-70s, Leidig retired from his job as a territorial manager for Whirlpool and started his own business servicing commercial sewing machines. That's how he first met DiLisio, who sews upholstery as part of his classic car renovation business.

Leidig still visits DiLisio twice a week.

"He's heart-bound that something will occur to prove to them that he's telling the truth," Leidig said. "I'd like to see somebody in authority talk to him and believe him."

Spaziano was to have been executed today.

Parties war over Medicare, GOP unveils plan for savings

By DAVID BOPP
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Standing toe to toe, Democratic Rep. Charles Rangel and Republican Rep. Jim Nussle debated Medicare in a style more reminiscent of an asphalt playground than the House.

"You must be pretty weak to bring up your grandmother," New Yorker Rangel barked at his Iowa colleague, who had just mentioned his two grandmothers — neither of them rich, he said — to rebut the argument that the GOP wants to curtail Medicare to finance tax cuts for the wealthy.

"Would you like to meet my grandmothers, Charlie?" Nussle retorted, adding he would invite them to Washington for a meeting.

Nussle laughed later, saying he and Rangel had debated one another numerous times and enjoyed the repartee.

Still, this exchange, just outside the House chamber Wednesday evening, underscores the increasing polarization of Congress as lawmakers enter a critical phase of the GOP budget-balancing drive.

From targeting huge programs like Medicaid and student loans for savings to opening portions of an Alaska refuge to oil and gas exploration, Republicans are scouring the budget for the money they need to redeem their pledge of a balanced budget in seven years.

Democrats are fighting them across the board, sometimes in unusually strong terms.

"You're a bunch of dictators, that's all you are," Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., shouted Wednesday as he stormed, red-faced, from a meeting after Republicans denied him the right to speak. "I had to fight you guys 50 years ago," said Gibbons, who fought in World War II against the Nazis.

After months of political and policy preparation, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., arranged today to unveil the biggest — and politically riskiest — element of the Republican program, a plan to save $270 billion from Medicare.

Republicans say the savings are necessary to restore the solvency of the program that provides health care to 33 million elderly. In general, the plan would provide incentives designed to persuade seniors to give up their current Medicare coverage in favor of cheaper alternatives such as HMOs. Premiums would rise and doctor and hospital payments would be reduced under the GOP program.

Even before Gingrich stepped to the microphone, the two parties were waging political war over the issue.

"We need to save the trust fund," President Clinton said Tuesday in Florida. "But don't you be fooled into thinking that it costs $270 billion to save the trust fund; it costs less than half of that."

Democrats, hoping to spark a rebellion among senior citizens, released a videotape in which well-known actors caution senior citizens that Republicans will cut their benefits and restrict their choices of doctors.

The GOP countered Wednesday with television commercials attacking President Clinton and "liberal Democrats" for ignoring the crisis in Medicare.

Medicare aside, Republicans moved ahead with mixed success Wednesday on other elements of their deficit-reduction program.

A proposal that would impose a fee on colleges equal to 2 percent of loans received by their students was stalled in one Senate Committee.

In a House committee, Republicans pushed ahead with their proposal to save $182 billion from Medicaid over seven years by letting the states run health care for the poor with few federal strings attached.

The proposal would end the federal guarantee of health coverage for needy children and adults and the disabled and give the states broad discretion over providing health care.

Across the Capitol, Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota pledged a fight to the end. "If we have to shut the place down, we'll do it to stop the draconian and extraordinarily devastating consequences that the extreme right is proposing when it comes to Medicaid in the next few weeks," he said. "We'll do what we have to."

"We don't have to wreck the (Medicaid) program and throw families into abject insecurity to balance the budget," Clinton said Wednesday during a speech in Denver.

Republicans also announced plans for a stopgap spending bill that would permit the government to remain open without disruption when the new fiscal year begins on Oct. 1.

None of the regular 13 spending bills needed to finance the government has passed, but Gingrich and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the interim measure would provide financing at a reduced level through November, to give lawmakers and the White House time to agree on permanent legislation.

Birthday present for Hot Shoe

By PAUL BARSSOLA
Special to the Herald
SAMBULA - Gary "Hot Shoe" Balough celebrated his birthday Saturday night at New Smyrna Beach Speedway by winning the Late Model Triple Crown.

Anderson won the first leg of the triple crown, while Balough finishing in the runner up position. Friday night at Orlando Speedworld, Balough took top honors in the second race of the triple crown, with Anderson finishing second. Anderson, with another second place finish Saturday night, finished second overall in the points chase for the big trophy.

pressure on. This old car just keeps on ticking. We freshen it up, and it's always ready to race." Anderson, who set the evenings fastest qualifying time, took the checkers less than a car length behind Balough. "They don't call him hot shoe for nothing," Anderson said. "My dad raced him for 16 years, and now as a second generation driver, I'm racing him. Age doesn't bother Gary. He's still a tough competitor. I can't take anything away from my crew. They gave me a great car all three nights. We finished second in points, but we're still winners." Chasing Anderson to the flag stand were David Rogers, Bills and Jeff Rule, a newcomer to the late model competition. The race took 58 minutes to complete, there were four yellow flag periods and one caution that put the race under a red flag for 16 minutes.

The incident that brought out the red flag came on a lap 52 restart when David Russell and Bills made contact going into turn four. Russell rebounded off Bills' car and smacked the outer retaining wall. Also collected in the fender bender were Tony Newsome and Mark Hinkoff. Bills was the only driver to return to competition. Other feature winners were Barbara Pierce in sportmen, Bobby Sears in limited late models, Dwayne Waddell in bombers, Wayne Heckle in modifieds, Ted Vulpus in ministocks and Ron Adams in the Action Performance run-abouts.

Jerry: Powell has chance at presidency

DEAR MR. STEWART: What do you feel about retired Gen. Colin Powell running for president during the '96 election year?

JERRY STEWART

SAM DELTONA DEAR SAM: Surprisingly, this man has a chance! It's not even that he's black that makes any difference. He has the qualifications, his views are on track with society's needs and he seems to be a man "of the people."

While many will not agree with everything about him, there seems to be something there for all of us. Unfortunately, you can't please everybody in every way. There are those who like and dislike things he has to say about abortion, gun control, welfare, and other social programs. What it comes down to is a matter of choices that will be made on Election Day '96. Why, there's even something there for me too ... "He's part Jewish and speaks Yiddish."

DEAR MR. STEWART: With everything "going on line" these days from pizza to wine to ordering almost anything one wants, how long will it be before you go on line too doing out psychic advice?

1686 SANFORD

DEAR 1686: I assume you mean some kind of service similar to those 900 and 976 lines. I'm just, right now, looking into "my first computer" and trying to decide what would be best for me. I want something that I can learn to use fairly easy, maybe with a word processor and some other programs loaded into it as well. I can't believe that my "old typewriter," "my fax machines," and my answering machine will now be incorporated into something that will allow me to play my CDs, watch TV, answer the phone, communicate with others, send E-Mail, and even print up my own letterheads.

Why, now I can even go to the mall shopping on a computer. In practical terms though, I don't think that all of the features that are now available are going to be used as often as people think they might. In one area, people should be careful when they go on line as many are running up high bills on the Internet just "surfing" from point to point, just looking and browsing. At least the whole body got exercise when we went to the mall and shopped whether we made a purchase or not.

DEAR MR. STEWART: I have lost my engagement ring when I set it down to do some cleaning last week. Did I lose it, throw it away, or where is it? I have been going out of my mind trying to find it. I can't tell my husband an-er, "my fax machines," and my answering machine will now be incorporated into something that will allow me to play my CDs, watch TV, answer the phone, communicate with others, send E-Mail, and even print up my own letterheads.

SARAH SANFORD

DEAR SARAH: No you have not lost it forever, look down on your carpet and into the deep pile fibers. It will be just a short distance from where you had put the ring on the table while cleaning. Let me know if you find it!

DEAR JERRY: Is there going to be any kind of a life for me after the O.J. trial. I have been hooked for months and now that the trial is about over, I feel that I'm being left out in the cold ... alone!

HERMAN LAKE MARY

DEAR HERMAN: Meet me at the sidebar, and without the court reporter.

Modern drug therapy gives hope to woman

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the letter about depression from the woman in Contra Costa, Calif. As a depressed person who has gone the route of counseling and medication, I couldn't have said it better than she did.

I am a senior citizen and only wish that some of the latest medications had been available 40 years ago. Life could have been lived with so much less pain. My thinking is clearer, and I feel like a more whole person with the aid of the new drug. Thank God for research and discovery!

Counseling was helpful, but it could not supply the chemical my brain needed.

To those good people who tell the depressed that "It's all in your head," or, "If you trust in the Lord, your troubles will be over." I would like to say that is not helpful. Many of us do trust the Lord, but we can't make our bodies produce the chemicals we lack. We need medication just like a diabetic does.

For the depressed who are afraid of medication, or about their reputation, I would like to say, hold your head high with expectation as you walk through the door of your physician's office to ask for the chemical you lack in your system. There is hope.

OREGON WOMAN DEAR OREGON WOMAN: Thank you for a letter that will be appreciated by many who have benefited from one of the modern medications prescribed for depression.

DEAR ABBY: My name is Remi Nair. I am 14 years old and live in Ann Arbor, Mich. I found this great poem on a postcard in an antique store marked "Hell's Half Acre, Wyoming." I don't know who the author is. It is titled "The Hell You Say!" Just what is meant by the word "hell"? They sometimes say, "It's cold as hell." Sometimes they say, "It's hot as hell." When it rains hard, "It's hell," they cry. It's also hell when it's too dry. They hate like hell to see it snow. It's a hell of a wind when it starts to blow. How in the hell can anyone tell What in the hell they mean by "hell"?

"This married life is hell," they say. When he comes home late, there's hell to pay. When he starts to yell, it's a hell of a note.

It's hell when the kids you have to tote.

It's hell when the doctor sends his bills For a hell of a lot of trips and pills. When you get them, you'll know real well Just what is meant by this word "hell."

"Hell yes," "Hell no," and "Oh, hell," too. "The hell you don't," and "the hell you do!" And, "what in the hell," and "the hell it is." "The hell with yours," and "the hell with his!"

Now, "Who in hell," and "Oh, hell, where?" And, "What in hell do you think I care?" But the hell of it is, it's sure as hell We don't know what in the hell is hell.

DEAR REMI NAIR: I don't know why, but the poem intrigued me, too.

DEAR ABBY: I have enjoyed your column for at least 30 years, and have used it many times as the basis for journal responses with my college sociology students. Ordinarily, I don't take the time to write, but you missed a grand opportunity when you responded to the woman whose husband got out of bed after being awakened at an early hour one Saturday and went to help his neighbor re-roof his house.

You suggested that everyone should have neighbors like them. How about "everyone should try to be a neighbor like them?" If we were all good neighbors, we would all have good neighbors. Idealistic? Yes, but generosity is just as contagious as resentment, and as the Good Book states, we generally reap what we sow.

Please do not print my name.

STATESBORO, GA. DEAR STATESBORO: Your point is well-taken. Thank you for the reminder that the Golden Rule remains untarnished.

Diet doc gets mixed reception from other heart researchers

By PAUL RABURN
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK — The extremely low-fat diet that has made Dr. Dean Ornish a celebrity is not on the menu of most other heart-disease experts. Nobody disputes the results that Ornish has produced by personally coaching small groups of patients. The latest study, published Wednesday in The Journal of the American Medical Association, showed again what Ornish has reported before: that the gruelling diet, combined with yoga and regular exercise, stops the narrowing of clogged arteries and sometimes slightly reverses it.

The problem is that few people can maintain the tough regimen without the cheerleading Ornish looking over their shoulders, some doctors say. Furthermore, the same benefits can be obtained more easily with cholesterol-lowering drugs, they say.

"The proportion of patients who really would be able to follow this diet is a couple percent," said Dr. Thomas Pearson, a heart-disease researcher at the Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital in Cooperstown. "The diet is hard."

Many of his patients, he said, would rather be on a more modest diet and exercise regime and take medication.

Dr. Neil Stone, a cardiologist at the Northwestern University School of Medicine in Chicago, warned the public to be wary of fad diets.

"The chief ingredient of fad diets is baloney," he said. "The crucial issue with diet to prevent heart disease is lowering saturated fat."

Many of the benefits of the Ornish diet can be obtained with a far less restrictive diet that combines weight loss with a reduction in saturated fat from meats, butter and saturated oils, said Stone, a former chairman of the American Heart Association's nutrition committee.

Ornish recommends that heart disease patients follow a vegetarian diet that is high in carbohydrates and contains no more than 10 percent of calories from fat. He also prescribes an hour of yoga or other stress reduction techniques each day, and three hours per week of mild to moderate exercise.

His book, "Eat More, Weigh Less," was a best seller, and it helped make Ornish a celebrity diet guru, able to command high fees for his services. He is the director of the Preventive Medicine Research Institute in Sausalito, Calif.

The American Heart Association requires a more modest diet for heart disease patients, with fewer than 30 percent of calories from fat, Stone said.

Dr. Ronald Krauss of the University of California, Berkeley, the current chairman of the heart association's nutrition committee, said there is newly emerging evidence that suggests that diets like Ornish's that are very high in carbohydrates can paradoxically boost the heart disease risks of a certain segment of the U.S. population.

Mysterious aches, pains diagnosed

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm very depressed because I can't remember when I have felt good. It seems that ever since I took a dive off my porch onto a cement patio during an ice storm, I've had problems. I was diagnosed with fibromyalgia more than 10 years ago. I'm also under a lot of stress since transferring to a new job in a new location. I have pain in my left side from my stomach to my shoulder. Tests are negative, yet the pain persists. My legs hurt and keep me awake at night. My joints ache and my legs and arms tingle. When I walk I get short of breath. I'm under the care of a very conscientious internist, but it's become very frustrating for both of us because I seem to be getting worse. Counseling for the past year hasn't been totally successful. What's going on?

DEAR READER: With your plethora of medical problems, I'm delighted to learn that you are under the care of a "conscientious internist." Nevertheless, despite good medical attention and your full cooperation, your diagnosis is still in question. Could your aches and pains be caused by fibromyalgia? Yes, indeed. The origin of this disorder is not understood but its symptoms - primarily muscle tenderness and pain - are often worsened by depression. Predictably, your ill health is associated with depression, which may be either a cause or an effect. I cannot explain your shortness-of-breath, which ordinarily could indicate heart or lung problems.

When faced with a diagnostic dilemma, most good doctors waste no time seeking help. You don't say what tests you have undergone, but you certainly need blood tests for a variety of conditions (including lupus), a chest X-ray and, probably, a cardiac work-up, including a stress test. If I were your personal physician, I'd refer you to a diagnostic clinic in a teaching hospital. In such a setting, where super-

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Always remember, when defending, that the declarer cannot see your cards - unless, of course, you hold them badly. Even if you anticipate that the declarer is about to get home, try to find a play that gives him a losing option. You never know; it might be your lucky day and you defeat a "laydown" contract.

Holding five trumps, West's double of four spades was debatable but understandable. West led the club jack; ace, six, queen. Declarer played a spade to his queen, East discarding the club five. After winning with his king, how should West continue?

East has carefully played two middle clubs. This should say that he holds neither red-suit king. If East had, say, the heart king, he would have played the club nine and club eight. Similarly, with the diamond king, East would have played the club three and club two.

So, if West continues with another club, South will ruff and play four rounds of trumps. As West doesn't have a third club, declarer will win the red-suit return and run dummy's heart suit.

Is there any chance? Just one: West must switch to a low diamond. True, South can play dummy's jack and sail home. But he might not. If he does play low, East's 10 drives out South's king. Then, when West gets in with his second trump trick, he can cash the ace-queen of diamonds.

As Queen Victoria nearly said, we should not be interested in the possibilities of defeat at the bridge table.

YOUR BIRTHDAY Sept. 22, 1995

More time and effort than usual might be spent on self-improvement in the year ahead. The results should be what you desire and give you pride in the new you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to act pompous or pretentious just to impress others today. If you're not accepted for who and what you are, it's their loss, not yours. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could be very successful in your endeavors today, but not necessarily on the first try. If you suffer a setback, regroup and go again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not build your castles upon sandy foundations in this cycle. If you hope to do something big today, make sure its base is sturdy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In career developments today, try not to be too serious, too tense nor too frivolous. The extremes are what could impede your progress and do you in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For the sake of your self-esteem, don't try to pass off onto others the things you should be taking care of yourself today. Stand up and be counted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It would be best not to advise friends on financial or business matters today. Your intentions may be good, but your suggestions will be erroneous.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An opinion you feel strongly about might not be well-received by others today. Do not try to impose your views on the un-receptive.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you've been feeling a trifle sluggish lately, it could be due to your sedentary lifestyle. Try something today that stretches both your mind and your muscles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It will be important today to guard against overindulgence. Too much of a good thing could prove very harmful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not make any major decisions today without consulting your mate, especially if it pertains to a matter on which your views are diametrically opposed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are usually a reliable person upon whom others can depend, but today your promises might lack substance and fall to honor commitments.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Additional self-discipline might be required today to cope with your extravagant whims. If you're wasteful now, you'll regret it later.
