

How A Miss Can Be Taught Not to Miss What She Shoots At

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Feature Writer, 21.

The first three shots went wild. "The World's Best Shot said: "Maggie, a pistol in your hands is a dangerous thing. I'd never teach you how to shoot." And he did.

So, come closer, Mister Hitler, and I'll tell you my military secret:

Yesterday, like a lot of other American women, I'd never had a pistol in my hands before. Yesterday, had I known it, I would have been an ace!

Today this man who has out-shot representatives of the "mister race" and all other challengers, says:

"Maggie can shoot a man."

He means it, he can. Besides, he says, the average American woman can learn to shoot in two hours with a little preliminary instruction and 50 shots. Learn to shoot to kill!

He's taught quite a few women to shoot. He's even taught some wives of military men, and admits they won't turn out to be better shots than their husbands. He hasn't been doing any official Army instruction recently. Right now he's in one of those confidential jobs at Third Service Command Headquarters, which you don't mention much. Later he will be closer to the ranges.

He'd like to see every American learn to shoot effectively right this minute. He'd love to teach WACs to shoot that don't tell his wife. His reason he'd like to see WACs learn to shoot is to allow more men for combat duty and let the girls mind the home firing but mind well!

This man is Capt. William P. Schweitzer, who in 1938 shot 200 birds in an hour's record. One man, Col. James P. Wharton, once outshot him (but not in tournament). The only man who ever outshot Colonel Wharton was Gen. Ike Eisenhower. It happened at Fort Meade, Md., back in the twos.

Colonel Wharton and Captain Schweitzer put me through the pistol paces like this:

West Side Primary

Our school has finished our book "Report to the Nation." It has been turned in to Mr. Lawton to be sent to the President. It was divided into three divisions, "Save, Serve, Conserve." All illustrated with stick figures.

The following is from our book: John's diary written by Mr. St. John's first grade.

Bright and early one morning in Feb., Carol came tripping in with a handful of beans. She wanted us to plant a garden because her Daddy had planted a garden. This idea was welcome, so we all agreed, in fact all the children were ready to leave school at once and go out doors to dig up a place to plant the garden. This handful of beans led to the discussion of seeds, soil, fertilizers, sunshines, etc. We planted several corn and bean seeds in a glass and put a blotter between the seeds and the soil. Thus by keeping the soil wet, the seeds could sprout against the blotter and we could watch the development of the plants as it grew. We used a small shovel of ground back of the school and plant a garden. We planted potatoes, corn, beans, peas, lettuce, cabbage, radishes and turnips. From this small garden and in interest in it, the children natural turned to the study of fruits and vegetables. This is our small contribution towards doing our part in the "War Effort."

Junior Red Cross Miss Stokes' second grade

Each year our school has joined the Junior Red Cross, but this year when we handed in our membership dues the children felt they had a definite share in the War Program.

When the Red Cross tags came, each child bought one member and was doing his part to help. The children filled the kit bags they were given and sent them off to the Red Cross. We have certain days that we observe airplanes and work at the ration board. Our newest venture is in the study of tools. We are all enrolled in the Food Course prepared by the United States Government. Our efforts have inspired the children to the study of food and the importance of eating nourishing foods to build healthy strong bodies.

Stamps and Bonds—Miss Chapman's third grade.

Our school of only 117 pupils have bought $450 in stamps and bonds since the drive began. The bonds are well held and very enthusiastic over filling their stamp books. Every Tuesday morning a grade mother comes over and collects the money that has been brought in. She goes to the Post Office and holds the money until the four grades in the school compete with one another to see which one can buy the most stamps on Tuesday morning. Every Monday morning the children take their War Saving Stamps Chart and decide what they want to do for that week's work towards that goal. In this way the children know what their money is buying and they are kept interested.

"We love this land of ours so free. We want it ever thus to be, By buying Defense Stamps we can see. We'll keep it safe for our country and our sons. Drive Mrs. Watt's Fourth grade.

Last Fall all of the schools in Seminole county took part in the National Drive for scrap material, to help make necessary war equipment in this present emergency. Our County School Superintendent, Prof. T. W. Lawton, came over to our school the day we launched our drive. He gave us a wonderful pep talk that inspired the four teachers and the 117 pupils. Miss Stokes, our principal, introduced a very attractive class early in the drive. They had hot button badges for volunteer workers printed at the top with beautiful ribbon badges to be awarded those who could bring in the required metal or scrap within two weeks. At the present time we have a grand total of 20,000 pounds.

The following are the letters that were chosen to go in our "Report to the Nation".

Scrap

Our Country is at war. I had three Uncles in the last World War. Now I want to help by getting scrap.

My Uncles have done their part now. I'm doing what I can.

I have collected 480 pounds of scrap with the help of my Dad, Aunt Lee and Uncle Tom.

With all the old scrap we collect, now we know we can lick these dirty Japs. "Lookout Mr. Jap, here comes our scrap".

"Working To Win"

Since the bombing of Pearl Harbor our boys have been joining the Army, Navy and Marines, and fighting for us. The women have been doing Red Cross work. The men began buying stamps too, but we wondered what else we could do.

One morning here at West Side Primary School our teachers told us that our Government had decided that we could help most by getting scrap to build guns tanks, ships and planes.

That very afternoon we all started looking for scrap metal and old rubber things.

Before we knew it, it was the last day of the scrap drive. All together our school brought over 20,000 pounds in.

We are glad that we could help this war that we can soon win this war.

Tom Lieb Completes One Physical Program

GAINESVILLE, Feb. 24.—Coach Tom Lieb and his physical fitness training crew at the University of Florida have at last completed the mammoth task of compiling results for the first two months of the physical fitness program at the State University.

Improvement has been noticeable in all phases and as a result an excellent record has been made.

In instances, 98.1 percent of those completing the difficult obstacle course did it in less than three and one-half minutes. When the program was inaugurated a lot of these same men could not touch the course. Charles McDowell, Gainesville, set a record of one minute, 40 seconds that still stands.

In the matter of push-ups, 651 students improved five or more, 188 ten or more, and 19 improved 15 or more. Improvement in climbing ranged from one time more to five times more for 517 students. In the rope climb 212 improved five feet or more, 12 improved 10 feet or more, and 32 improved 15 feet or more. A total of 28 improved to climb 30 feet. Among them was one student of a trio who improved by 15 feet.

Similar records of improvement were made in swimming, leg lifts, broad jumps, and the 220-yard dash.

Despite Weather, Reds Sweep Along Entire Battle Front

Soviet Shock Troops Capture Two More Towns In Advance West Of Kharkov

Russian troops are sweeping ahead along the entire front in the face of enemy counter-attacks and despite deep snows in Orel and Kursk provinces and thick, sticky mud in the Ukraine and northern Caucasus, field dispatches today said. Aerial activity also increased.

The Soviet High Command said Red shock troops captured two more large towns in a drive west toward the Dnieper River while a night beyond the border was seized in hand-to-hand fighting.

The Russians said those two battalions now were being annihilated after refusing to surrender.

Heavy German counter-attacks with tanks and plane support were acknowledged in the Donets Basin. While claiming the repulse of most of these, the Russians admitted German units had driven a wedge into their lines southwest of Krasnodar. The town is about 50 miles above Stalingrad where the Nazi escape railway runs out of the Donets Basin.

Thirteen German tanks were destroyed in the fighting, but the battle did not tell the final outcome.

The locality, said west of Kharkov was not identified. Nor did the Russians mention the progress of their troops driving toward Dnieper-sputters on the Dnieper River bank. Those units had been reported about 100 miles from the river in an effort to trap the Nazis in the Donets Basin, far to the east.

In the Stalingrad sector, 100 miles southwest of Krasnodar, the Russians were fighting for position of the Donets and had taken about 100 tanks and killed 300 more Germans. Progress in this area was an unknown in yesterday's midday communiqué.

Dispatches said a thaw was beginning in the Ukraine, and the comparative vagueness of the Soviet midnight bulletins indicated that no real results might be slackened Red Army operations.

Several more occupied places were captured in the Western Caucasus as the Russians drove from Krasnodar toward Novorossiysk, the bulletin said. Russian units last were reported 40 miles east of Novorossiysk.

Thus dispatches said "The offensive in the Donets Basin is gradually coming to a head," and that "the final outcome is nearing the Caucasus" where German troops are pinned into a narrow pocket based on Novorossiysk Black Sea port.

More Babies Born In 1942 Than Any Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. — More babies were born in the United States in 1942 than in any previous year in history, the Bureau of the Census reported yesterday.

The bureau estimated that there were 3,000,000 births in 1942, compared with the previous record of 2,950,000 in 1941 and 2,718,000 in 1940.

The number of registered births in 1942 was estimated at 5,000,000, or 20.2 per 1,000 of population. The rate was thousand for 1942 was the highest since 1925.

In general, the birth rate increased most in the areas which had the largest increases in population, such as the West Coast, the South and the Northeast.

The bureau forecasted that there would be an increase in the birth rate in 1943, but that the rate would be lower than in 1942.

Courageous China

Has any other great nation ever preserved its national life so long a time, against such great obstacles, as China? Reduced to a mere trickle of normal life, industry, trade, and all other things that make an operative community, with two thirds of her useful territory gone, her natural resources nearly all in the hands of the enemy, her sea front closed, and fed militarily with mere bits of fighting stuff brought to her by air as Elijah of old was fed by the ravens, China fights on.

It might be said, to use a biological term, that China is a low order of life, therefore with great natural power of survival. That is the political, social and economic organization of the Chinese people is far simpler than in western countries. Cities, towns and villages are more loose and independent, less tied together with a thousand forms of life and activity than our own communities. Roads are few. The people are more primitive, nearer to the soil, more self-contained. Even so, there has been very great suffering with millions dying of disease and starvation and tens of millions suffering from lack of food, clothing and shelter.

In character and talent the Chinese are inferior to no nation. With their enemies swept out and their national energy released, and modern tools and methods available the Chinese might rise to greatness and power. They have a much to give we term nations as the latter have to give them.

Literacy In Congress

Whether the chattering and belligerent congress-woman
Clare Boothe Luce is a stateswoman or just a clever writer is evident that male congressmen will have to watch their grammar and rhetoric while she's on the job.

The other day for instance when she got into an argument on the floor with a member who has been a college president and has four college degrees, she complained use of the English language. In his speech, she complained he had accused her of "uttering" something or other. I interred nothing," she said tartly. "I implied." And that was that.

And according to language experts, the lady was right to insist to draw a definite conclusion from something she had drawn no conclusions. She had only suggested indirectly by implication that so-and-so was true. Most speakers nowadays seem to make the same error. But they won't get away with it while the fair and literate lady is around to clarify congressional speech.

Large Maps

Look at large maps! This was the advice of Lord Salisbury, who for many years combined the offices of British prime minister and the headship of the Foreign Office, corresponding to our State Department. He was relying to the alarmists who, whenever Russia annexed
two more square miles in Central Asia, shouted that India was in danger. These timid souls failed to consider Asiatic distances, which must be covered before an invader could be said even to approach India.

The same advice applies, with rather less force, to the Russian guns. They are great indeed, and bid fair to be even greater; but they have by no means made up for the even larger gains made by the Germans in the summer and Fall of 1941. Rostov is lost to the Germans, and Kharkov also; but not till Smolensk and Kiev, far nearer the Russian border, are regained, will the balance of territory lost and won begin to tip in Russia's favor. And till that time it will be wise to keep optimism well under restraint.

You Sweethearts, Wives, Mothers!

Are you going to keep on playing cards and giving and attending parties while such messages as "Killed in Action," "Missing in Action" and "Wounded in Action" may be expected to be received here almost daily from now on?
Who knows, the next may be your son, your husband, brother, sweetheart or close friend. The horrors of war are sure to come home to all of us... and you women can HELP and HELP MIGHTILY by working daily at the surgical dressing rooms. Montgomery county is pitifully behind in its quota, and unless the women of Mt. Sterling and other communities throughout the nation rally to this great Red Cross work, thousands of our boys are going to die needlessly for lack of proper dressings. The time for frivoly-ty has passed. There is no worthwhile business now but war, and the sooner we realize these cold, brutal facts, the sooner
the war will be fought to a successful conclusion. Mt.
Sterling (Ky.) Advocate.

Government, and salaried from the Government will, of course,
make that they will be completely and entirely subordinate to the Government, and they will then be even more drastically curtailed or suppressed in the dissemination of factual and unbiased news to the American people." We must not under any circumstances permit
the little weekly newspapers published by the men of the Government to generally buy their newspapers on a hand-to-mouth basis, to be put out of business. That would be a calamity second only to the complete stifling of the larger and smaller dailies." This proposed legislation of the newspaper industry and the entire economy
I do not know. But one thing is certain, if we control the press of America, we are playing right into the hands of those who are up to no good. This bill, however, is similar to the House resolution, and another measure to get at the facts in all the continuing standardization and regimentation programs."

Paying tribute to WPA Print
Division executives, Representative of South Dakota, a weekly address should be drawn between the OPA people who are setting up these regulations and issuing some of these regulations and the people who are expected to administer them.
Board, I have found a very fine representative in the office of the Publishing Business in the office of the Chief of that Board, William Chandler. I find, however, that they are circumvented and limited by unintelligent officials and by the unintelligent rules that have been adopted by the OPA.
Representative Snader, (of Michigan)
informed the House, "I understand from very reliable sources that certain elements in that administration are talking about cutting down the consumption of printing paper, newsprint as well as book stock, down to about 50 percent of 1942 consumption. I want to see the men who are doing these planning and scheming questioned by a committee of all the printing business."

Because some of our most beloved tourist in Great Britain
found the newspapers in England
practically driven into bankruptcy because of the war is no reason at all for anyone wishing a like fate
to the press of the United States
if we were to implement that proposal. Yes, and even more so, because the curtailment of newspaper production is directly traceable to the hopeless hunting of the manpower problem and the peculiar mental gymnastics
by which OPA established priorities and not as yet done enough to make it clear what has been done for the press of the United States.

PAPEL SAVING BY CURB-
ING GOVERNMENT PROPO-GANDA—Representative Louis
Ludwig (of Indiana) and Representative Frank B. Keeler (of Wisconsin) have a general criticism of every growing government publicity. Ludwig, high ranking majority member of the House Appropriations Committee, had a bill controlling publicly expenditures pending. Keeler argued that it is time to end the indefensible farce of curbing newspaper print use by newspapers and at the same time extend the elaborate and costly government publicity.
Pending for parts of government propaganda releases, Mr. Keeler stated, "There is one opportunity that every small town in this country has been clamoring for, I have letter after letter, on my desk from people throughout the country who say, 'I am sick and tired of having my place of business cluttered up with all this government propaganda material from Washington. For God's sake do something about it.'

According to the Wisconsin Representative, people cannot see how it is that every newspaper

using the same kind of paper,

much better grade of paper."

Two Forrests Are Fighting Men In Pages Of History

By JAMES THOMAS
AP Features

FORT WRIGHT, WASH. Feb. 25.—The statue of General Nathan Bedford Forrest stands in Memphis, Tenn. A tight-jawed Army chief of staff pilots bombers at this Army air base.

There is a link between the statue and the pilot. Both are Forrests—and fighting men. The man on horseback, Lieut. General Nathan Bedford Forrest, famous Confederate cavalry leader, was the great-grandfather of the chief of staff, Brig. General Nathan Bedford Forrest.

The old general was a dreaded rider for the South during the War Between the States. General Forrest II is a staunch admirer of his unorthodox forbear.

"He was not bound by tradition. He moved at the occasion demanded," says the airmen. "He sides, he was a master at the art of deception and surprise. He hit and ran, nearly always against superior forces. He was the real predecessor of modern blitz warfare, insofar as his equipment would permit."

Old General Forrest likewise was the first cavalry leader to use his horsemen as modern cavalry is used, his 37-year-old descendant explained. Horses were used for mobility, but when the fighting began the men dismounted and operated from whatever cover was available—really mounted in fancy.

His famous slogan, "Get there fastest with the mostest," is the motto of the blitz legions of 1942, but, says his great-grandson, he probably never said it like that at all. Letters and papers show that the first General Forrest, a student, expressed himself well.

Another famous saying of the general was the order given to the general was the order given to "charge both ways" when he was hemmed in by Federal troops. The contradictory order worked and Forrest's troops fought free in the face of superior Federal forces.

Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest (the second), a modern soldier and a youngish man with wrinkles around his eyes from squinting at the sun, has been in the Air Force since he graduated from West Point in 1928. He has more than 4,000 hours flying time in his belt and has served with every type of combat unit from fighter to heavy bomber.

He came to Fort Wright when the Second Air Force was activated in 1941 as executive officer of the 5th bombardment wing. Successively, he was executive officer of the 2nd bombardment command and G-3 officer of the Material Air Force, then chief of staff.

Lieutenant Saves Glass Being Used Life Of Comrade In Equipment For With Amputation U.S. Armed Forces

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT, Feb. 18. (Delayed.) (AP)—Flight Lieutenant Walton Goodwin, of Hutchinson, Va., directed an abandonment of his wrecked tank, amputated a wounded comrade's leg with a pocketknife and then carried the wounded man across the battlefield commanded by enemy machine guns.

Apparently even the Germans respected his courage, for their machine guns ceased fire long enough for Goodwin to carry his burden to safety.

Goodwin's platoon of light tanks was well ahead of other American units in last week's battle for Seneh when two of the machines were knocked out by German antitank fire. Goodwin's own tank hit a mine and was wrecked.

Goodwin used smoke grenades to hide his movements from the enemy gunners and then remained behind, attempting to repair the crew's self-propelled gun while it ran to a nearby wood car. The others had barely reached the car when it was struck by a German mortar shell and two men were killed. A third man aged to crawl twenty yards with his leg nearly severed.

Goodwin crawled through a rain of fire to the wounded man and decided the shattered leg had to be amputated before he could be rescued from the field. He shouted for a knife and Sergeant Alfred A. St. Germaine, a full-blooded Sioux Indian from Cincinnati, Ohio, whose father served in the World War, ignored enemy by bullets to run across the field with a pocketknife.

From a first-aid kit, Goodwin administered morphine and applied sulfamamide to the wound and then amputated the leg. He put the wounded man on his shoulder and started to run for cover. Suddenly the German guns were silenced and fire was withheld until he had crossed the brow of a hill and was out of range.

The commanding colonel of Goodwin's platoon announced to day that Goodwin had been made commander of the company. Goodwin is 31 years old and a former track supervisor for the Southern Railway.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25. (AP)—American fighting men will live in partly glass houses, fight in glass-insulated planes and ships, fly in planes equipped with glass shields to keep the light directed downward. Major Hubert D. Keiser, of the War Department's Services of Supply, told the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. The institute held its annual meeting at the Engineering Societies Building, 22 West Thirty-first Street, where a walk continues through Thursday.

Major Keiser described fibrous glass as having a heat tolerance of 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit and weighing less than half a pound a cubic foot.

Military barracks and bath prefabricated and site-built houses for war workers have absorbed large quantities of fibrous material, Major Keiser said, and will apparently continue to take all production available after more critical uses are satisfied.

Fortunately, fibrous glass is a non-combustible material plentiful in the United States. Major Keiser said shortages could develop only in accessory materials and in such necessary adjuncts as transportation and labor.

Made into rigid boards, the glass product is being used by the Navy. Major Keiser said, as insulation on decks, bulkheads and bottoms of ships. And from efficiency of the material as a non-combustible lining, its use eliminates the aluminum sheathing formerly used and Major Keiser estimated 50,000,000 pounds of that critical war material had been saved in seven months of naval construction enough to build 200 four-masted lumbermen.

The weight of fibrous glass endures from the airplane manufacturers, according to Major Keiser, and blankets of glass fiber are used in hulls and cabin exhaust pipes are shielded with glass tapes. Glass cloth is used in conjunction with self-sealing gasoline tanks.

But perhaps the most spectacular use is as shields for parachute flares, which Major Keiser described as important. One of about 1,000,000 candle power is intended to illuminate the objectives of a bombing attack with "almost the brilliance of daylight."

Nazis Admit Loss • Of Initiative In Tunisian Battle

High Ground Around Kasserine Pass Is Also Captured By The Allied Troops

(By Associated Press) Hitler's high command today tacitly admitted the loss of the initiative in this battle of central Tunisia, reporting "our offensive operations have been concluded," and a bulletin from Allied headquarters announced that the strategic Kasserine Pass is in Allied hands.

The held ground northeast and southwest of the Pass was also captured, the communiqué reported, and noted that Allied troops, pushing the counter-offensive, had advanced 10 to 15 miles in other areas to the northeast.

Allied warplanes across the whole front and bombed Gafsa, 63 miles south of Kasserine, toward which the Germans appeared to be retreating. The British, meanwhile, were reported to have penetrated the Marsh Line in developing a pluses against the Axis.

Allied troops on offensive with strong air cover in both Western and Southern Tunisia clashed through the Axis rear guard in Kasserine Pass last night and penetrated advance positions on the edge of the Marsh line. Under the field command of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British and American forces were declared to have launched the long-awaited double squeeze on the Axis bridgehead in North Africa: Kasserine Pass, from which Marshal Erwin Rommel has suddenly threatened to break into Algeria, and Sidi Bouzid, where the last Axis defenses while to the east Allied planes leased a deadly air barrage on the enemy's rear, striking his airfields, supply dumps, and transport columns.

The numbers of troops and supplies, Canadian press correspondents reported from field headquarters. He said an American pilot patrolling the Sicilian Straits saw large enemy convoys steaming toward Tunisia and that the pilot had seen 50 large German transport planes landing troops at Sbeitla.

Allied tank columns and infantry were reported threatening German positions at Sbeitla and Oued Soltan above the Kasserine gap.

Thus, instead of Rommel assuming a dominating position on the Algerian frontier, dashes had been made by the Germans to pull back his shattered forces toward the coastal corridor in Eastern Tunisia.

In the South, his Marsh line appeared to suffer a large-scale attack from the British Eighth Army, veterans of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

French headquarters announced that the Germans had been beaten on back west of Oued Soltan and driven toward the coast to launch an attack. Prisoners were taken.

The German base at Sbeitla was being menaced by strong Allied patrols operating from the vicinity of Sibla to the northeast; French troops coming out of the mountains west and south of the Oued Soltan valley had come after another of what was perhaps the beginning of a determined Allied drive in that sector.

Edgar Biggers, Jr. In Army Air Corps

Edgar Biggers, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Biggers, left Tuesday for Miami Beach to begin pre-flight training as an army aviator candidate.

A native of Lakeland, young Biggers was graduated from Seminole High School and attended the University of Florida where he became a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity. He is the Exalted Order of the Lions, and a member of the Young Companions during the summer months.

Explorations To Be In Groceries

"Explorers" have been appointed for local stores here to conduct their first explorations for the first year. The stores will be open to customers and visitors during the summer months.

The Motor Vehicle Department, he said, states that the majority of people have shown a fine spirit in purchasing their groceries early, and have made it possible for school teachers to be paid without much delay, as the fund due for the purpose of carrying out the program of saving money for the war effort has been exceeded so far that it is unusual for stores to be open to customers and visitors.

He said that the stores are open to customers and visitors.

American Planes Raid Northwest Part Of Germany

R.A.F. Blasts Industrial Center And Port Of Naples

(By Associated Press)

A strong force of American bombers attacked northwest Germany today after the R.A.F. blasted the industrial center of Nuremberg. The Port of Naples in Italy also was again target.

Canadian bombers carried out their greatest attack of the war Thursday night on the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven and returned without loss after setting large fires in the third raid there within a week.

The R.A.F. bombed targets in western Germany and some British units went along with their Canadian teammates in the bomber command to Wilhelmshaven, but authorities said the R.C.A.F. constituted nearly all the attacking force. It was the largest assault in the history of the Canadian bomber group formed at the start of the year.

The Canadians had already operated in force in the R.A.F. attack on Wilhelmshaven last Friday night and the R.A.F. attacked the base last Thursday, Monday night, the Germans pounded Bremen. Observers noted with satisfaction that the eager youngsters from North America were taking over a growing share of the night attack on enemy arsenals. The operations last night were the 16th against Germany this month and it appeared likely that February would be the month in which the heaviest weight of bombs has been dropped on the Axis war potential.

Wilhelmshaven was shrouded in thick clouds but the fire and smoke from the burning oil tanks and refineries caused by the Halifax and Wellingtons soon started a glare that pierced the fog. The Canadians said this indicated substantial fires had been set.

One of the Halifaxes was hit in the wings and fuelled by a Meissner 1000 night fighter but it dove and returned home. That was the nearest the Germans came to inflicting a loss.

The lists of names, as compiled from the various sources, will be forwarded to Mr. McAttee today.

These names will be arranged alphabetically and by towns from which the men in the service came.

It was determined that there was not sufficient space on the directory board on the side of the auditorium for all the names.

Therefore, Mr. McAttee will furnish a separate directory board for the colored people which will be placed in a suitable location in Sanford as soon as it arrives.
