National Crime Victims Right Week is April 25 through May 1. During this commemorative week, the Office of the State Attorney wants to promote greater public awareness about the rights and needs of crime victims. The theme of this year's observance is "Victim's Voices: Silent No More."

The State Attorney's Office in partnership with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office is hosting a luncheon on April 27, with guest speakers Claudine and Donald Ryce. Their son, Jimmy Ryce, was abducted and murdered in south Florida in 1995. They were active in seeking legislative change on limiting the release of violent sexual predators following their criminal sentence.

The community will also have an opportunity to hear from Joanne Tortora from West Palm Beach whose daughter Carmen was murdered leaving behind a husband and two small daughters. In addition, Lt. Sammy Gibson from Seminole County Sheriff's Office will discuss the impact on his family following his shooting during the homicide of Deputy Gene Gregory this past year.

For more information call the State Attorney's Office and speak to Debbie Rehder at 665-6112.

Help not on the way in Longwood

By Bill Kerns

LONGWOOD - Residents of Longwood with a water leak will need to wait to receive help from the city.

Before adopting a water leak policy providing relief to customers with excessive water and sewer bills, the City Commission is debating whether to make the policy retroactive for up to seven residents with excessive bills.

"The issue is two-fold," Commissioner Steve Miller said. "What are you going to do in the future, and what will we do about the past?"

Under a proposed policy passed on first reading April 5, customers with a leak must have been in good standing at the residence where the leak occurred the previous 12 months.

The City would provide a credit adjustment based on the difference between the excessive consumption and the average consumption rate for the previous 12 months.

"I just don't want this to become a problem," Miller said. "When someone has a leak, it's incumbent upon (them) to pay the bill."

Customers would be provided with a credit adjustment for one billing period per occurrence. Relief would be provided to a customer no more than once per year, or twice within ten years.

Seven people are paying the City for excessive water bills, City Administrator John Drago said.

Mayor Rusty Miles said taxpayers should not pay for residential water leaks.

"Whatever bill is there, you pay," Miles said. "It's not a real fun policy. It's not one I like having to adhere to. But, it's fair."

Miles said that so long as the meter is working properly, the See Longwood, Page 6A

County gangs up on gang violence

The is the second of a three-part series examining gang activity in Seminole County, as well as violence and drugs in Seminole County schools. Today's article focuses on the county's gang activity. Part three, examining what can be done if a child may be involved in a gang, will run on Wednesday.

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Shattered glass lies in the driveway where the car was parked the night before.

Auto theft is a leading sign of street gang activity in Seminole County. Some gangs lean toward burglary, and others foment public disturbances and violence. A small number of gang members practice satanic rites.

The majority of gang-related crimes occur in the Casselberry and Winter Springs areas. The gangs in these areas tend to engage in vehicular and residential burglaries, according to the Seminole County Sheriff's gang suppression unit.

Investigators are tracking two gangs in the Sanford-Lake Mary area whose habits are still hard to define. One of the gangs is showing a tendency for violent offenses and causing disturbances.

"They have not been around long enough to establish a pattern," Investigator Tony Diaz, the head of the gang suppression unit, said.

Gang-related activity in the Lake Mary area is decreasing, Diaz said.

A small number of gang members in the Oviedo area practice satanic rites.

"It's not that frequent," Diaz said. "But, the person is usually extremely involved by the time it gets to us."

There are 14 known gangs and about 400 admitted gang members in the county. The gang suppression unit tracks three different types of gang members, ranging from casual membership to hard-core leadership.

"The numbers are very small for each gang," Diaz said. Diaz said gang activity in the county is mobile and disorganized. Gang members generally range in age from 13-21, although some are as young as nine.

Graffiti is a sign of gang activity in the area. If some graffiti is crossed out, replaced by different graffiti, there is more than one gang in the area, Diaz said.

Malls, arcades and street corners are popular hangouts for gang members.

The rules are pretty clear at Seminole High School. No drugs, guns or any other violent behavior will be tolerated.

Case of the 'Inflatable Snowman'

By Russ White
Staff Writer

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Wonder where your tax dollars go?

On Tuesday, the Board of Seminole County Commissioners are going to talk about litigation concerning an inflatable snowman.

Robert Dance and Bob Dance Dodge, Inc. v. Seminole County Code Enforcement Board is about the snowman - not the Abominable kind but the inflatable kind that the car dealership likes to use to advertise at Christmas time.

The county wants $23,000 in fines.

On Dancer. On Prancer and Blitzen. We're suing you, Seminole County.

County Attorney Anne Colby is requesting authorization to defend the county's position against the car dealership.

Robert Dance is seeking a Writ of Certiorari overturning the "alleged decision" of the Code Enforcement Board's levying a fine against the plaintiffs for a violation of a county sign regulation.

Dancer says these regulations of inflatable advertising and display of balloon pennants, banners, flags and similar devices are unconstitutional.

County Commissioner Grant Maloy, for one agrees.

"Why the fuss?" Maloy asked Friday. "Why take this to court? Why take the money. Let the attorneys work it out. The $23,000 in fines seems

Coming to America: homes wanted

By Kellie Werner
STAFF WRITER

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive very soon for academic program home stays and there may not be enough homes for them.

Pacific Intercultural Exchange (PIE) has students ready to come to the United States for the coming school year. All that is needed are host families to open their homes.

Most host families are either families that have hosted before or families of children who have gone abroad for a year of study.

Unfortunately, the ratio of students wanting to come to America to those who actually go abroad is 98 percent inbound to 2 percent outbound," explained PIE Executive Director John Doty. "It's sad that more American students don't take advantage of this opportunity and also that foreign students don't get to even if they want to because there aren't any families to take them in."

Participation in the program is actually very simple.

Of course, there could be an exchange of an American student for a foreign one.

That's the most simple and ideal.

It isn't a necessity, however. If a family wants to open their home, there are many students just waiting to come. And the definition of family is very broad. Of course there are certain guidelines and qualifications for becoming a host family, but that has nothing to do with family type.

Any type of family from single parent or a childless couple to a retired couple or large family can open their homes and hearts.

According to Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. PIE currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging from a semester to a full academic year where the students attend local high schools.

"The benefits of hosting an exchange student are immeasurable," Doty said. "First of all, learning about other cultures can only enlighten people to how wonderful and different this world really is.

Also, students from other countries can also be a very good influence, as they have terrific study habits and do very well in school."

PIE area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match.

Love breeds love; hatred breeds hatred

This week in Littleton, Colorado students with the joys of life in front of them struck down perhaps 15 students, faculty and staff.

American soldiers are saying good-bye to families and entering the crisis in Serbia.

The prize in war may be territory, but unrelenting terror is at the heart of war. The hatred that sparked the first world war in 1914 never died.

A man and woman may be marrying today. He looks in her eyes and sees love beyond words. Her voice cracks with the words "I do" in joyful terror, knowing she is with the man she wants to be with for the rest of her life.

Babies are born to love. They learn to hate. Watching parents fight, they learn the skills of war. The same two people that fell in love may forget to love.

Law enforcement officers say that youth who join street gangs usually feel unloved at home, suffer from low self-esteem, and have a hard time communicating with others. Their view of the world becomes distorted.

A few hours with a child can make a difference. A child with confidence and a sense of love can accomplish anything. Hate breeds hate. Love brings love.

Showing patience with a child will teach the child how to be patient. Patience one day leads to wisdom.

Couples will fight. Friends at times stop talking. They can also forgive each other. The same two people now yelling at each other may in time become friends.

Karen Nunez moved to America from Peru with her family when she was 11. She spoke only a limited amount of English. This spring, at age 18, she will graduate as the valedictorian of her class at Seminole High School.

Karen is a tribute to her parents, Adolpho and Bernice Nunez. She has the wisdom to realize that "as long as you keep trying, you can accomplish anything."

Students from Seminole High School this week spent a morning fishing with residents of the Healthcare and Rehabilitation Center in Sanford. Students and senior citizens both gain from the experience.

What matters most in life? Ask the soldiers leaving family and friends behind to enter a world of terror.

Soup kitchen not good for neighbors

I feel that any proper debate about Jean Metts' proposed soup kitchen in the historic district should include an investigation as to how Jean Metts obtained the building located at Fourth Street and Elm Avenue in the first place. The building at that location was previously owned by the Seminole County School board. The school board voted to give the building to Seminole County and the county then voted to give the building to Jean Metts' charity for free. Did the county do an appraisal of the building? Why didn't the county offer to sell the building to the public or offer it to other charities? Is a soup kitchen the highest and best use of that building? I personally talked with Realtor Barbara Farrell and was told that she could have sold that building 10 times over. Barbara Farrell lives in the Sanford Historic District and knows the market for buildings in this area very well. I also talked with Bob Kinney who is the president of the Make A Wish Foundation for Central Florida. Bob said that the Make A Wish Foundation would have been delighted to use that building as their headquarters. Is the county in the habit of just giving buildings away for free that were paid for by taxpayer dollars.

I talked with Jeanne Morris of the Seminole County school board and asked her why no public notice was given with regard to giving the building to Jean Metts' charity. She said she would get back to me. I called her six more times and she never returned my calls. School board member Bob Goff returned my call in less than 10 minutes and told me that the issue was put on the fast track for Jean Metts. Bob also told me that no appraisal was done and questioned why the school board was giving away taxpayer dollars. He was the only one that voted against the project.

When Jean Metts opened her first distribution center at that building in the Sanford Historic District I asked her if any criminals were going to be there in any way, shape or form. She said absolutely not. I was shocked a few weeks later to find an entire crew of prisoners in their orange jumpsuits distributing free food to people outside the building. Jean did not keep her promise. Can you imagine a prospective homebuyer riding past and seeing a scene like that? If an emergency vehicle had to get through Jean Metts' free food line of cars, they would have a very difficult time.

I also asked Jean Metts how her soup kitchen would differ from the soup kitchen at the Episcopal Church in the historic district. Jean stated that she would never allow that to happen at her kitchen. I asked Jean how her soup kitchen would compare to Mother Weaver's social services building in Goldsboro. Jean told me that Mother Weaver operates a 24-hour unsupervised party where the homeless do as they please and that she would never allow that. Residents who live near Jean's distribution center have already complained how Jean's clients have urinated in their yards, slept under their houses and stole property from their porches. Do we really need another soup kitchen?

The point is that the building at Fourth Street and Elm Avenue is in the middle of a residential neighborhood and should not be used as a free food distribution or soup kitchen. It is obvious that Jean Metts, who doesn't live in Sanford, cares nothing about the historic district here. A friend of mine called Jean Metts to complain about the negative impact on his neighborhood. This homeowner told Jean that he had spent a great deal of money restoring a home in the district and didn't appreciate the litter that her clients were throwing in homeowners' yards. Jean basically told him that he was a fool for spending a large sum of money in the district and that if he had a problem with her clients littering that he should call the police.

Where have all the children gone?

Like most, I watched, listened and read about the unfolding events at Columbine High School in Colorado with a sinking sense of familiarity and a brooding contempt for those responsible. But who are they?

Certainly, the explosive-draped gunmen bear full and final culpability for the senseless deaths of their classmates and teachers. But we cannot seem to escape the collective culpability of a culture more understandable or more menacing than children who look like our own.

In short but seemingly endless hours that passed between the first shot and the last, a profile had already emerged of members of the so called "trench coat Mafia." And we've heard it all before. Loners, outcasts, haters, neoneozis. But still we ask what would lead some so young to commit atrocities so large. Could this be payback for being unpopular? For being picked on? For being slight in stature or short on athleticism? Were they ignored? Bullied? Abused? Ridiculed? Probably. Perhaps there are darker forces at work—depression, paranoia, schizophrenia?

Whatever the etiology of Tuesday's massacre, there exists a common thread between Littleton, Col., Springfield, Oregon, Jonesboro, Ark., Bethel, Ak. And countless other communities: A desensitized, isolated culture where kids are too often left to fend for themselves, absent a prescribed moral compass from adults.

A 1995 Carnegie Council on Adolescent Development report concluded that "if the nation continues to neglect this age group, millions of young adolescents will become lifelong casualties of drug and alcohol abuse, teen pregnancy, AIDS, suicide, violence and inadequate education." More to the point, a similarly timed Justice Department study concluded that juveniles have become the driving force behind violent crime, drawing what Attorney General Janet Reno described as a "road map to the next generation of crime." So true. So sad.

Like it or not, many teens today live in schools disconnected from society; in homes disconnected from community; in rooms disconnected from family. In important ways we have become desensitized to each other. Perhaps out of fear, we willingly build walls around ourselves and our children, and they build walls around each other and us. Our humanity suffers the consequence.

Much of the behavior reported in most any morning paper suggests that at least some of what transpires in schools everyday transcends the normal vagaries of adolescence. It goes beyond the detachment and rebelliousness of the teenage who greets his family and his world with a bemused grin and an eerie disinterest.

Headlines fairly scream something is wrong: Unwed teen loses newborn out window.

Youth, 14, accused of child rape.

Youngsters suspended for popping Prozac.

Witness says boys joyful after stabbing.

It has been estimated that about every five seconds of the school day, a student drops out. Every seven minutes a child is arrested for a drug related crime. Every five minutes a child is arrested for a violent crime. Every four minutes a child is arrested for an alcohol related crime. And every four hours a child commits suicide. Consider that some 90 percent of high school seniors surveyed had recently consumed alcohol.

That some 64 percent of 6th graders say it's easy for them to get booze. Or that suicide among male teenagers has tripled since the 1960's.

As one Massachusetts teen put it, "just being happy has fallen lower on the priority list." Indeed, survival—physically and emotionally—seems to be the name of the game.

If it any wonder that we find ourselves asking, "Where have all the children gone?" That what we often see when we look around are kids who no longer look like kids, but rather miniature versions of adults? That schools that seem to have fewer children and more metal detectors, condom machines and drug sniffing dogs?

In his book, "Who's Raising Whom?" Michael Thomas notes that "many high school students are now mimicking the behaviors of college-aged kids, drinking, drugging, sexual promiscuity and acting out." No surprise there. But where did all this killing come from?

Parents, schools, television, movies and the Internet are all the subject of much speculation and finger pointing. Whatever the source, or sources, there seems little doubt that exposure to seemingly endless violence, questionable values and mixed messages about everything from marijuana to sex often leaves children facing a distinct dichotomy between what they are taught by parents and the actions of those they also look to for examples of how best to live life.

There are no easy answers to what happened at Columbine High School. Nor are there easy answers to what happens every day in every school in this country. We can take some refuge, however, in the reality that throughout America a preponderance of adults and young adults make it their business, day in and day out, to build stronger families, schools and communities. Collectively, though words and deeds, they reinforce the simple pillars of humanity that ultimately can win the war against anger, helplessness and hate.

Not much solace when children lay dead across a schoolyard. But perhaps a little.

Seat belts make sense

The substitution of force for reason is behind one suspects every budding police state. The idea being that people are bad or stupid and therefore simply reasoning with them is of no avail - they have to be forced to do what is right. One would think that the idea begins simply, then slowly is executed, and then expanded upon.

Let us use for example the law mandating seat belt use. It was passed, to use one instance, in Florida some years ago, but the law did not allow police to stop a motorist simply because they were unbelted. For several years, Florida's House of Representatives then passed a "primary enforcement" bill, which would allow police to arrest motorists who are unbelted, hoping to join 13 other states in making it law. Every year it failed in the state Senate.

This year it is up for judgment again. Those who support the law point to safety and cost as reasons for its passage: The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that a "primary enforcement" law, would save 158 lives and prevent 4,109 injuries a year in Florida. The Florida Department of Transportation estimates seat belt use would rise by 15%.

It is reasonable to suggest wearing seat belts. However government deals in force. The Florida legislature is going to vote on whether reason is enough—or is it necessary to use force to require people to wear seat belts? Obviously, vigorous seat belt enforcement would save lives, and lessen injuries. There is another argument used by the seat belt enforcement Proponents that they hope will offset that old freedom argument: "that if it doesn't hurt anybody else it's a personal decision." The last argument on whether or not an individual should be forced to use seat belts is: Not using a seat belt DOES hurt others, proponents say—in the pocket-book.

Consumers pay that cost in the form of higher insurance premiums."

However, if law, rather than reason, makes us safer we might also consider:

"If motorists wore crash helmets, head injuries could be avoided, lives would be saved and consumers spared.

"Smoking tobacco causes death, illness and even harms non-smokers through second hand smoke. Studies, used to collect billions from tobacco companies, suggest the consumer would save, gigantically, if tobacco was banned.

"A child exposed regularly to second hand smoke, and/or an automobile ride with a seat belt, is in danger. If a child is in a car, unbelted, and the driver is smoking, using "primary enforcement," which directs police to look at persons, rather than license plates, registration stickers or radar guns, and using the same argument used to support seat belt laws, police could ticket motorists who smoke.

"If all American motorists wore seat belts, one study shows 9,500 lives would be saved annually. Smoking kills an estimated 450,000, alcohol over 100,000. If, like seat belts, drug use is not a matter of personal preference, then two legal drugs, the biggest killers—alcohol and tobacco—could be banned. Lives would be safer and consumers would save."

"A study published in the New England Journal of Medicine indicates banning the use of cellular phones while driving might save lives. Brooklyn, Ohio, the first to pass a seat belt law, in 1965, because, in 1999, the first to enact the "Mobile Telephone" law—banning phone use while driving, 12 other states are considering it.

"Radios played louder than sirens or horns, eating while driving (holding a sandwich in one hand, holding the steering wheel with the other, a soda between the legs and munching away), changing CD's or cassettes while driving, (you might have to take your eyes off the road), or even women putting on makeup while driving possibly jeopardize other's safety. If proper studies could be fashioned they would prove that these activities are worse than driving unbelted. Driving unbelted does not to my knowledge cause accidents.

"A University of Minnesota study revealed gluttony caused heart illness. A Harvard study showed bacon was a risk. If police observed, through "primary enforcement," diets, consumers would be safer and spared considerable expense.

The natural progression to law over reason simply requires us to acknowledge that if the government believes it is right it must be right and it is the government's duty to reason for us on issues that make us safer.

Force over reason so necessary for a police state deadens the sensibilities of the people. Today they can't be free to choose seat belts—because it is safer, and must be forced to comply. Are we so sure this premise will not be used as a precedent for further government force?

Board considers policy to set school districts

By Walter Goffman
STAFF WRITER

The Seminole County Board of Education will discuss a proposed policy change that will establish clear school attendance zones.

The proposal will be presented at the 7 p.m. Seminole County Public Schools board meeting Tuesday. It authorizes Diane Kramer and her facilities planning staff to facilitate an advisory committee of stakeholders to address future planning and funding options.

Kramer's team has redrawn maps numerous times based on input from an array of stakeholders, not just parents, but current development zone planning excludes the land.

Recent rezoning debates have occurred when Tuakawilla parents fought to keep their children at Keeth Elementary and helped prompt the proposal to keep the vacant land unzoned until the platting and permitting process.

School officials point to numerous parent complaints that some developers, builders and real estate agents guarantee student placement in certain schools. Many parents said they didn't know to question these guarantees.

Larry Furlong, school board chairman, said during recent public hearings that the district is basically acting to participate in the zoning process more efficiently. This particular item is one that officials as parents have faced themselves, according to Furlong.

"Developers, builders and home owners assume that school districts are cast in stone, but they are not. If we can redistrict existing subdivisions, we can do so with undeveloped property as well," explained Furlong.

If the proposal is adopted, vacant, unplatted parcels with more than 50 individual homes would be designated with a "to be determined" School Attendance Zone. The developer would apply for school zone designation at the time of plat or final site plan approval, allowing the board to "more evenly distribute enrollment without constant rezoning," said Kramer.

The new policy would affect only development of parcels with more than 50 homes, allowing lone vacant lots and parcels developed for less than 50 units to be included in existing attendance zones.

The school attendance policy also relates to compliance with federal Department of Justice (DOJ) requirements for approval of land acquisitions, school attendance zones and various other mandated actions.

Her job is keeping all us kids happy

Sooner or later, just about everyone who lives in or near Sanford will get to know and find a true friend in Lisa Jones.

Some are 6 or 7 when they meet Ms. Jones. Others are 80 or 90 or even 100.

Lisa Jones's specialty is being kind and gentle and trying to make life fun for others as it surely appears to be for her.

In a few weeks, Jones will supervise the activities of 100 children in the City of Sanford's Summer Playground '99.

In November, she and Kim Sosnowski will oversee the 25th Annual Golden Age Games, the oldest and grandest of senior athletic and artistic competitions.

Mike Kirby, Lisa's boss at City Hall, said he realized the day she came to work as a part-timer that she was a rare find. "Everyone loved her. She always had a smile on her face," Kirby said.

"No matter what the job was, Lisa knew how to do it and she did it well. She was self-motivated. A go-getter. Full of energy."

Kirby said he receives letters often from those who were impressed by Lisa Jones. One was from the parents of a seven-year old who had the best summer of her life. Another came from a 94-year-old man grateful for the curtains rendered to him at last year's Golden Age Games.

Kim Corso was so delighted at the summer camps she attended that she applied to be an assistant at this year's camp. "That really pleased me," Jones said. "Kim wanted to be part of our camp team. That means we are making summers better for the kids."

Among the most poignant moments at recent Golden Age Games activities are the Talent Shows at the Sanford Civic Center. A chorus line of senior Rockettes wearing fishnets and dancing shoes performed last year. And there were comedians, singers and a 17-piece swing band.

Lisa Jones always serves as the emcee for the show, sprinkling gentle humor and complimenting each act. Her favorite moment, she says, was watching Harriett Boyd vacuum her cat in one of the talent shows. Naturally, Harriett and her cat were awarded gold medals.

"I consider myself fortunate to spend so much time doing things I love to do and being with beautiful people," Jones told me Friday. "My parents helped me develop a sense of humor, a sense of living a good life."

What Jones does in her work for the City of Sanford is to reach out to others as if they were her own flesh and blood. One of three children, she is now a big sister to hundreds - all of whom she treasures as family. Few children serve their own parents as well as Lisa Jones serves the Golden Agers.

Long, long ago I went to a YMCA Summer Camp in Arlington, Va. I was 8 or 9 years old. I remember spending time in the swimming pool and playing baseball. And I remember a young woman who taught me to play chess.

I'm sorry to have forgotten her name.

For the last three years, I've participated in the Golden Age Games. I've not won a single medal and probably never will unless they give medals for "Name That Tune."

But I have had a wonderful time observing how Lisa Jones and the other City of Sanford employees help make the bunch of us feel young again.

City has fulfilled its responsibility.

"What's up for grabs here is the ability of your tax dollars to forgive a water leak," Miles said.

The proposed policy is based on similar policies in Winter Springs and Altamonte Springs, Drago said.

"The issue is how far back do you go," Drago said.

City Attorney Richard Taylor said a water leak policy would need to be "reasonable and non-discriminatory" because the City could face legal challenges.

On April 5, the commission gave preliminary approval to making the water leak policy retroactive for Jayne Sims, who had an $820 water bill in February that she says is due to a mistake by the City.

Sims said there is no way she could have used 527,000 gallons of water for two people in her 1,400 square-foot Georgia Avenue home. She has spent $4,000 in legal fees trying to fight the water bill.

The meter at Sims' home was tested twice. City Administrator John Drago said the meter was not misread.

Sims' account at 840 Georgia Avenue goes back to mid-November, 1998. In both December and January, there were 4,000 gallons used at the home, city officials said.

Sims said she filled her 20,000 gallon swimming pool once in February.

Commissioner Steve Miller said that if there is a torn liner in the pool, water could be escaping into the ground.

Sims said there is no sign of water leaking into the ground.

Violence

Many members of Seminole County gangs adopt physical characteristics such as slashes on the skin, closely cropped hair, tattoos, and rolled up pant legs.

Diaz said investigators regularly pick nights during the week "to do proactive enforcement" on street gang activity.

"Not all of our street gangs operate in the same way," Diaz said. "You have to be very creative."

It is difficult for investigators to place boundaries on where a street gang originates.

"We could have information about a gang that commits crimes in Sanford and Altamonte Springs," Diaz said.

Youths charged with murder in Florida and indicted by a grand jury will be tried as an adult regardless of age. It is against the law in Florida for a minor to possess a gun except for hunting or supervised activities. Juveniles cannot possess a gun in a school or in the surrounding area.

On April 14, 31 people were arrested for buying and selling crack cocaine and marijuana in an on-going sweep of people connected with the Forest City Mob.

Nine high students were among those arrested, including six from Lake Brantley High School. None of the people arrested were members of the street gang.

Officers began investigating the Forest City Mob in the fall of 1998, tracking fighting between street gangs over territory. The gang once supplied the majority of drugs to area schools. But, arrests of 18 members on Sept. 4, 1998 crippled the gang, investigators said.

"The Forest City Mob itself is now out of the picture," Diaz said.

There have been no complaints on street gangs in the Lake Brantley High School area in more than eight months, Diaz said.

Once the matches have been made and the students come to stay with their new families, PIE provides constant counseling and support for the families and students.

The need is so demanding in the Seminole County area because of its proximity to and distance from a large metropolitan city. The students are best suited for areas that have more of a small-town America feel while being near to a city that offers them a wider experience of American culture. Doty said that they students have the best experience in smaller areas and are able to feel more unique.

For the upcoming programs, PIE has students from Spain, Germany, Poland, Russia, Finland, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Paraguay, Australia, Sweden, Yugoslavia, China, Belgium, Ghana and many other countries. PIE has also been invited to participate in a special government-funded program to bring scholarship students from the newly independent States of the former Soviet Union to the United States.

PIE is a non-profit educational organization that has sponsored more than 18,000 students from 40 countries since its founding in 1975. The organization is designated by the United States Information Agency and is listed by the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel.

Doty encourages families to contact the program immediately, as it will allow the proper time for the students and hosts to get to know one another before they actually meet for the first time.

Seminole County families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call PIE too free at (800)831-1818. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

The woman exited Fifth Street onto Lake Mary Boulevard in her 1994 Honda four-door, into the path of a Chevrolet pick-up truck carrying two adults.

Picklesimer said that he does not believe either vehicle was speeding.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Florida is adding a new area code.

The 407 Central Florida Region* needs new phone numbers. Numbers for the kids, numbers for the office, numbers for pagers, faxes, and cell phones. And don't forget about computer modems. Each one needs a number, and there are only so many to go around. It's just a mathematical fact. So to open up a few million more, the 407 Central Florida Region is adding a new area code: 321.

The 321 area code will overlay the existing 407 Central Florida Region effective December 1, 1999. Existing numbers will not be affected, because only new numbers will receive the new area code. With the addition of the 321 area code, local calls within the overlay area will require ten-digit dialing.

If you have any questions about 321, visit www.bellsouth.com/areacode. Or call us at 1 800 964-7941.

Lacrosse ride ends too soon for Rams

LAKE MARY - Moral victories don't get you a state championship.

In fact, sometimes, it makes a season end far too soon.

The Lake Mary boys lacrosse team suffered a 12-7 loss to state power Winter Park Thursday to end a season that could only be described as Six Flags Over Lake Mary.

The roller coaster started early with a pair of losses to Lake Brantley and Oviedo.

Nothing wrong with that. The Patriots should give Seminole County a shot at the state title next week after knocking off Flagler Palm Coast Friday, and Oviedo came into the season expecting to battle for the county title.

After that, the Rams came around. Adam Kurir, Bobby Link and Brian Montgomery formed one of the county's strongest attack units and Kurir and Montgomery battled Lake Brantley's Grant Shellhammer and Darryl Hogan for county supremacy as the best one-two combination.

The Rams went on a winning tear, then were beaten by Bolles of Jacksonville and pounded by Winter Park before playoffs.

The Winter Park loss was ugly. It was 16-6 and could have been worse.

The Wildcats are easily the favorites to emerge from Walt Disney World, site of the state championship, with the crown, and have taken all challengers.

In fact, prior to the first Lake Mary game, Winter Park traveled to Atlanta and became one of the first teams ever from the state to win a nationally-rated tournament.

So with the Rams on a losing streak and Winter Park rolling right along, Lake Mary took the Wildcats on for a second time Thursday evening.

It could have been ugly, but, behind one of the most vocal lacrosse crowds of the year, and at a neutral site nonetheless, Lake Mary gave Winter Park a game.

In fact, the Rams almost won. It was the third time this year that a Seminole County team has taken the supposedly unbeatable Wildcats to the wire.

At the start of the year, Lake Brantley led Winter Park by seven goals going into the fourth quarter before losing by a point.

Lacrosse isn't soccer. No deficit can't be wiped out quickly.

Oviedo was within a goal of Winter Park throughout its Senior Night two weeks ago before Winter Park pulled away. The Lions' defense baffled Winter Park throughout and Oviedo had a shot at winning at the end.

But it was the Lake Mary effort that was almost inspirational. The Rams could have folded under another attack from Winter Park.

Instead, the Rams dug deep and gave an inspired effort.

Goalie Todd Cherner stopped point blank shots all night and the Lake Mary defense hung tough even though the Rams were getting dominated on face-offs.

Kurir and Montgomery weren't hooking up like normal, so Link, along with middies Ken Ho, David Sloane and Rob Rauch took over the load.

Critics of the Rams have accused Lake Mary of being a two-man team all year, but they were proven wrong during the Winter Park game.

Give a lot of credit to Lake Mary coach Jim Marino. He was brought in just prior

Chase for the crown begins

County diamond teams in district tourneys this week

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - Can the Lake Mary softball team repeat or can a hot Lake Brantley, Lake Howell or Oviedo squad knock them off?

Is the Seminole High School softball team ready to step up and play with the elite in the state?

Can the Winter Springs softball team give the county's newest school a second state championship?

Or can one of the surprising baseball programs give the Seminole Athletic Conference yet another state crown?

These and other questions will begin to be answered this week when the district baseball and softball tournaments are contested.

The Lake Mary softball team was amazing in rolling to the 1998 Class 6A State Championship and had a 15-game winning streak earlier this season before hitting a lull the last couple of weeks that allowed Oviedo to overtake the Rams for the No. 1 seed in the district tournament.

While the Lions have been outstanding since getting off to a slow start this season, they and Lake Mary are far from the only teams playing well, as both Lake Howell and Lake Brantley have been winning consistently of late and both have pulled off some impressive upsets.

But the finals of the Class 6A-District 3 tournament, which will be held at Lake Mary High School starting on Tuesday, still figures to come down to Lake Mary, with pitchers Halle Sowards (8-3) and Sarah Smith (10-1), and Oviedo, with pitchers Tanya Howard (10-1) and Sarah Reeber.

The Seminole High softball team finished around the .500 mark but has been almost unbeatable against Class 5A competition. And with tournament tested senior Maria Duvall on the mound, the Fighting Seminoles, which will host the 5A-District 5 tourney, figure to have a good chance to advance.

The Winter Springs softball team advanced to the Great 8 last year, and with everyone back, should have a chance to go farther. The Bear's Class 3A-District 13 tournament, which only has three teams, will be played later in the week at a

STAFF WRITER

LAKE MARY - Now that the load has been lifted, Megan Dontrich can worry about returning to the state championship game with her Lake Mary High School softball team instead of where she's going to college.

Dontrich has decided to attend Florida International University, where she will play softball on scholarship.

FIU is a second year program, recruiting for the first time, that should allow Dontrich to play immediately and add her outfield talents to a building team.

The decision wasn't a completely easy one for the senior center fielder, as she had three schools to choose from. Austin Peay State and Rollins College were interested in her as well.

"I chose FIU because I liked the school and the area," Dontrich said. I wanted to be close to home but far enough away that I felt like I was on my own. I plan to major in sports psychology and FIU has a good program for my field."

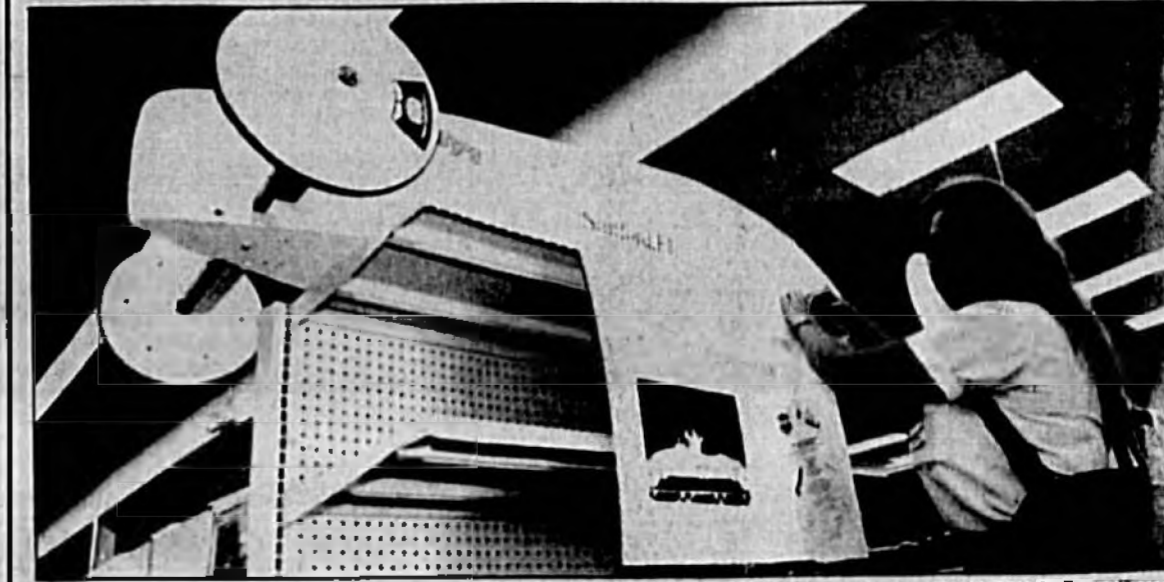

Dontrich has made a name for herself through her impressive play with Lake Mary, but also gives credit to her summer league team in addition to the help she has received from her high school coach, Jeannie Fisher.

Dot Richardson and Bob Pinto took the summer team to Colorado for a tournament, which gave Dontrich improved exposure. That combined with their coaching talents helped her to achieve her goal of playing softball in college.

Fisher has her for one more year, however, and is not looking

WIN A SOAP BOX RACER

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - A local youngster between the age of nine and 18 will have a chance to build and drive a Soap Box Derby racer, like the one being set up by Scotty's cashier Cathy Jones (above), in the upcoming Central Florida Soap Box Derby if he or she writes the best paper on why they should be the lucky winner.

Entries must be submitted to the Sanford

Recreation Department by May 12th and the winner will be notified on May 14th.

Entrants must also be available to run in the local race on June 26th and if he or she wins, must be able to travel to Akron, Ohio to compete in the All-American Soap Box Derby on July 31st.

This special giveaway is sponsored by Scotty's, the Seminole Herald and the Sanford Recreation Department.

For more information, call (407) 330-5607.

ing forward to next year's season without the superb outfielder.

"Megan has been a four year starter with us and is vital to our team," Fisher said. "She is the type of player who has worked hard to improve all levels of her game. This year, her main asset is that she has been consistent. She can go to FIU and really make a difference."

Dontrich is also close with her parents, Penny and John, which is another reason she decided to accept the offer from the Florida school.

"I am so glad that Megan is going to FIU," her mother said.

"They will get to do a lot of traveling, which will be great for her. Plus, they play in Tampa a lot so we can get some breaks in traveling."

to the season and withstood the early losses to turn the Rams into winners. He played for Army and knows the game. Lake Mary didn't go all the way although they battled back from several deficits to keep a possible blowout close until the final minutes when Winter Park ripped off five straight goals in the final five minutes.

The Rams proved that they could fight back and overcome a slow start to a season that ended up much better than anyone might have expected.

Last Second Shot: Why is everyone predicting doom and gloom for the Orlando Magic? Listening to local talk shows, you'd think they were in the hunt for the lottery instead of a top seed in the NBA playoffs. There's still time left.

Districts

place and time to be announced.

There were more question marks than answers when the baseball season opened, but with Oviedo, Lake Mary and Seminole all winning over 20 games and the rest of the county also fielding young, but talented, and competitive teams, a state champion or two would not be a surprise.

The Lions, with pitcher Paul Lubrano and a home run hitting offense, the Rams, with pitcher Tony Corrao and hitting machine Jose Tormoa, and the Fighting Seminoles, with pitchers Chaz Lytle and Brian Nielsen, would figure to be the best bets at winning it all.

The biggest drawback for the baseball teams is that they will have to win on the road, in Volusia County to be exact, as the Class 5A-District 5 Tournament will held at the brand new field at Daytona Beach Community College and the Class 6A-District 3 Tournament will be contested at the beautiful brand-spanking new Melching Field at Conrad Park in DeLand.

Winter Springs will take part in the three-team Class 3A-District 13 Tournament that will be held at a place and time to be announced later in the week.

Dr. Roof: Quality repairs by quality roofers at quality prices

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

While the name "Doctor Roof" presents different thoughts to people, it almost always brings a smile, because of its name resemblance to the sex therapist Dr. Ruth. Thinking a little more practically, it would seem to describe one who is in the roofing business and who fixes roofs, right?

That's right to a degree, only we have gone even further to separate our mode of operation from that of the "typical roofing company." First and foremost we do roof repairs and roof maintenance only. This is what our reputation has flourished on because of our success in not just correction, but elimination of roof leaks. Quality roof repairs allow the repaired area of the roof to function with the surrounding areas, gaining the intended life of the system.

We more accurately refer to ourselves as problem solvers, for the simple reason that we will not walk away from a water infiltration problem just because it does not originate from the roof. Let me give you some prime examples of what we have dealt with in real circumstances.

1) We found a plumbing pipe leak coming from the third floor wall, and showing up through a door opening header on the first floor.

2) Leakage originating from the vertical walls of chimney structures, many times problems which had previously continued for as many as 10 years, believed to be and repaired as roof leaks.

3) Plumbing pipe leak, originating from a cracked pipe or fitting.

4) Air conditioning condensation leaks, a tremendously common problem in which we will document and not charge the customer for a service call unlike many other companies.

Other common examples are windows, weathervanes, second floor door sills, and many more. We also are aware of points of entry from rodents into the attic. We have pest control companies who refer us because of our success in eliminating this.

This business format has been developed and refined by Jim Parks, the founder of Doctor Roof, who has been a licensed general contractor for 18 years and a roofing contractor for 10 years. The knowledge gained through the first 16 years of his working life in the construction industry as a carpenter and a contractor has given him the advantage of hands-on experience, enabling him to dissect a building from the ground up. This allows him also to understand how and from where a problem can and will originate. This experience and knowledge is being taught to his employees, so well in fact that in the past two years, two of the employees have secured their roofing unlimited licenses.

Doctor Roof's office headquarters is in Vero Beach. There is also an office in Brevard County and they are presently establishing an office right here in Seminole County. Realizing how absolutely important customer service is, each location services only a limited area. Only when the proper individual is groomed from hands-on experience of fixing roofs, will they continue to expand to serve the overwhelming demand for quality roof repairs.

Selecting a roofing contractor:

It is very hard for the home owner to select a contractor to do the best job for the best cost, or simply stated to attain the most cost effective repair. There are many items combined which will determine cost effectiveness but without a detailed written proposal it becomes impossible. You will find that we will not only provide detailed written proposals, we strongly encourage our customers and potential customers to carefully read our proposals, make notes and then call and ask for clarification of any items from the person who presented it to them. When selecting a contractor to meet with you to view and discuss your problem you will find many companies advertise themselves as leak specialists, but the also do re-roofing. While most may be well intentioned as to whether your present roof can be repaired or replaced, with Doctor Roof you don't have to wonder because we do repairs only. This means no re-roofs or new roofs. Should our diagnosis determine that you should install a new roof, in most instances we can offer you to a reputable, quality roofing contractor who knows the referral is coming from a very reliable source and will more than likely contact you with a rapid response. The determination of a new roof recommendation is based on our evaluation that either the roof can not be repaired and guaranteed or possibly we feel that the entire roof does not warrant the expenditure required to complete the necessary repairs, in which case we will recommend that you secure a cost for a new roof so that you can determine if it is economically feasible to invest in the repairs.

Dr. Roof employees take pride in being the most courteous staff around. One of the reasons they take such pride in their work is because each is given the opportunity for employee ownership. All employees and owners are under the jurisdiction of a Drug Free Workplace.

Financial Focus

Article 3: Goals and Objectives

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

Last week we talked about setting goals when we invest. In determining our investment goal - safety, income or growth - it's vital to consider our own personality and temperament. Are we self-assured and comfortable in making our own decisions, or are we prone to be swayed by the opinions of others?

An individual who owns and operates his or her own business, regardless of size, is usually more comfortable making an investment decision than someone whose major activities are confined to the management of a home. The business person makes investment decisions daily - how much inventory to hold, where and when to issue credit, and so on. Therefore, making an investment decision, weighing the risk-reward and applying it to his or her situation is not entirely unfamiliar.

On the other hand, there are those who will jump at the first suggestion of another, regardless of his or her investment acumen. Try to explain it? We can't. It's just human nature. Remember the adage of two people looking at a partially filled glass of water? One sees it as half full, the other half empty. The optimist sees a stock that's dropped some in its market value as just correcting itself for a giant move forward - another buying opportunity. The pessimist sees the drop in price as the first step toward a total loss. A pessimist might be uncomfortable with an aggressive growth stock that makes radical moves up and down. Thus, he or she should invest in something less risky.

Also important is how much time one has to devote to investment. Investment situations are constantly changing and the investor must be aware of these changes and be ready and willing to react. If your time is limited and your investments must be unattended for long periods, perhaps professional management is the answer. In any case, you can see the necessity of considering your personality before establishing an investment program.

Sanford professional athletes Lonnie Johnson of the Kansas City Chiefs and Tim Raines of the Oakland A's are supporters of the annual Camp Challenge event. This year it will be held May 1.

Going hog-wild for Camp Challenge; event on May 1

By Susan Wenner
HERALD STAFF WRITER

Since 1961, Camp Challenge has served the needs of children and adults with physical disabilities. In an effort to continue this mode of assistance local supporters are again hosting the Annual Hog Roast & Auction.

For the 19th year, May 1 beginning at 10 a.m., those interested in the care of the physically challenged are coming together with the common goal of raising funds to keep the Camp functioning at optimum levels.

Located near the Wekiva River on State Road 46, the Camp is nestled among wildlife, tall pines and lush landscape. Camp Challenge is the only Easter Seal Camp in Florida. With demands for programs and growth, auxiliary members feel the necessary to put forth an extra effort to make this year's event even more of a success than years gone by.

Lynda Moneriel, second vice president of the auxiliary, shared, "This auxiliary has been a dream for years. We really want to make this camp work. One of the main focuses of the auxiliary is to provide scholarships for those who want to go to camp. We want people to know that the camp prides itself on emphasizing ability rather than disability."

Moneriel further spoke of the Hog Roast & Auction itself and others locally that are involved. Kathy Krasnoff, Amelia Royster and Kathy Shaw are all helping with the country store. Baked items are needed for sale in the store.

According to Moneriel, Leslie Wilber, of Wilber Farms, now has her animals at Camp Challenge and part of the days events will include a petting zoo and tours by hayride to visit the barn crew and the new twin goats. Wilber will also handle plants sold throughout the day.

Leigh Moneriel, Lynda's daughter, has been a camper for 16 years. She is also an avid cheerleader for the good that the camp has accomplished and is a regular at the annual roasts.

The trash and treasures has something for everyone and an arts and crafts section will also be featured. A $20 charge per table is requested for participation with arts and crafts. Clowns cheerfully painting faces will be among the crowd too.

Tom, Cindy, Stacy, George and Jeannette Stifley will conduct the auction that begins at 2 p.m. Stifley said that she encourages everyone to "come and support the camp." Donations for the auction will be retrieved by the Stifley's by calling (407)322-8234.

Auxiliary members are hoping for a good turnout not only for the campers but to encourage new Director, Mike Currence. He was previously a counselor for years and was a previous director at another Easter Seal camp out of state.

Interested parties may also support the camp by becoming an auxiliary member at the cost of $10. This will entitle you to a free T-shirt which will be available at the Hog Roast on May 1.

Raffles will be conducted throughout the day. Yet, regular attendees boast of the "greatest smoked hog and chicken in history."

Meal tickets are a $5 donation and parking is $1.

Camp Challenge is located on Highway 46 in Mt. Plymouth just eight miles east of Mt. Dora and 10 to 15 minutes from I-4 in Sanford.

Roe vs. Wade to take center stage at Saturday banquet

By Susan Wenner
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The Sanford Crisis Pregnancy Center invites the public to attend its 1999 Annual Benefit. The event will take place on Saturday, May 8 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Central Baptist Church, 3101 W. SR 46 in Sanford.

The theme for the evening will be "Won By Love" with Norma McCorvey as the featured speaker. With limited seating supporters have noted that this should be "a sell-out."

"My motive for asking Norma McCorvey was to bring an awareness to the community about the pro-life movement and what the crisis pregnancy center does. She is the marquee."

-Director
Andrea Krazeise

Norma McCorvey is known by most as the "Jane Roe" of the Roe vs. Wade case that made landmark news in 1972. Yet, although she was instrumental by signature in legalizing abortion she now considers herself a "Jesus Freak" and a born again Christian.

She is now noted as one of the strongest pro-life advocate personalities and no longer supports abortion rights but is vocal as an anti-abortion activist. Her ministry "Roe No More," encourages a sharing of the new conviction she has for her life.

During the course of the banquet's evening attendees will hear the testimony of McCorvey. She will speak of her days as "Jane Roe" and her journey through lifestyle changes, a focus on the world's views, work at an abortion clinic and her transformation into a new life in Jesus Christ.

Director, Andrea Krazeise, enthusiastically spoke of the coming day. "My motive for asking Norma McCorvey was to bring an awareness to the community about the pro-life movement and what the crisis pregnancy center does. She is the marquee."

Krazeise said that she feels McCorvey is an authority on the subject of abortion because of what she has experienced. "She's an incredible testimony of how Jesus can change your life. She recognizes that human life begins at conception. In all she does she gives all the glory to God."

The true excitement of the night will be McCorvey circulating and mingling with the crowd. She will have her books available and be ready to sign autographs.

Elaborating on McCorvey, Krazeise said, "The whole Roe vs. Wade was based on a lie. That's the terrible thing about what she went through. Her attorney told her to lie and say she was raped. Even through it all, Norma is such an incredible lady. She's led a rough life but she now serves the Lord and she speaks about her love of the unborn and of Jesus."

Tickets for the event may be purchased at the Sanford Crisis Pregnancy Center at 1002 French Avenue in Sanford or Laet'are (Bookstore) at 111 Magnolia Avenue also in Sanford. For $15 per person one may enjoy a buffet reception, fellowship and an expanded program. Tickets may be purchased by mail or in person at the above locations and will be available through April 30.

For more information call the Pregnancy Center at 323-3384 or the bookstore at 302-5000.

Father Al Fornier of All Souls Catholic Church and Andrea Krazeise of the Sanford Crisis Pregnancy Center invite the public to attend its 1999 annual benefit. The theme for the meeting will be "Won for Love," and will feature Norma McCorvey.

Bill of rights released for children with asthma

Fairfax, VA—The school year is often a time of excitement for children and parents alike. However, for the estimated 5 million children with asthma, going to school can be a frightening experience. Asthma is the leading cause of school absenteeism due to a chronic illness. This translates into $6.21 billion in direct and indirect costs including medical fees, lost workdays for parents and missed school days for children. Most of these lost days can be prevented by proper education and appropriate health care.

To help parents, school staff and child care providers protect children with allergies and asthma and reduce the 10 million lost school days each year, the Allergy and Asthma Network • Mothers of Asthmatics, Inc. (AAN*MA), has released a Bill of Rights for Children with Allergies and Asthma. According to AAN*MA, a child with allergies and asthma and his/her family has the following rights.

- To be presented with the proven scientific facts about asthma and allergies clearly and thoughtfully, discussing appropriate concerns without creating needless anxiety.
- To be cared for by a supportive physician who provides a plan for preventive management of asthma and allergies as well as treatment for acute episodes.
- To live in a smoke-free environment, making reasonable attempts to eliminate relevant allergens.
- To have full access to appropriate medications and medical devices so uncontrolled asthma or allergies do not limit potential scholastic, athletic, and social achievements.

• To learn healthcare self-management skills to minimize dependence on medical personnel, emergency clinics and hospitalizations.

To expect teachers, school nurses, coaches, camp counselors, and other adults entrusted with children's care to understand the enlightened handling of those with asthma and allergies.

"The key to keeping kids in school is keeping them healthy and a Bill of Rights for Children with Allergies and Asthma will help clear up some of the stress and confusion for parents and school administrators by providing guidelines for everyone to follow," commented AAN*MA president and founder, Nancy Sander.

Allergy and Asthma Network • Mothers of Asthmatics, Inc., a nonprofit organization, assists the more than 50 million Americans who have allergies and asthma and their families so they can better manage these diseases in their daily lives. For a copy of A Bill of Rights for Children with Allergies and Asthma, information on AAN*MA's services and member benefits and to receive a sample newsletter call 800-878-4403. Order A School Information Packet that includes practical, medical and legal information for school administrators and parents of student's with asthma for only $8.95 plus shipping and handling.

287,529 people in Seminole County face air cancer risk

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

Government estimates of toxic chemical concentrations in local air indicate that 287,529 residents of Seminole County live in neighborhoods where the additional cancer risk from toxic chemicals in outdoor air was more than 100 times higher than the goal set by Congress a decade ago, the Environmental Defense Fund (EDF) announced last week.

The newly released government figures are based on 1990 data and represent the first-ever estimate of which toxic chemicals, in what amounts, are in local communities' air. EDF took the government figures and calculated the associated health risks for each community. The 1990-based government estimates come with official cautions about their use, and several accuracy checks showing close comparability with measurements as recent as 1997.

"The numbers show that cars, trucks and small businesses tend to be responsible for much more of the air's toxicity than is generally recognized," said EDF attorney David Roe. Of the air cancer risk calculated by EDF for Seminole County, 77% came from mobile sources and 23% from small-business "area" sources, with the remainder coming from industrial "point" sources.

"The surprise is that up to now, lack of information has meant lack of attention to some of the biggest causes of toxic air," Roe said.

EDF is using its widely acclaimed Scorecard website (<http://www.scorecard.org>) to put this information on air toxics on the internet.

"For the first time since the Clean Air Act passed 30 years ago, people can now learn about toxic chemicals in their own local air, and can see how well the law has or has not been protecting them," said EDF scientist Dr. Bill Pease, Scorecard's creator and chief designer.

Simultaneously, EDF has also added local information on the six so-called "criteria" air pollutants (ozone, sulfur dioxide, particulates, etc.) to its Scorecard website. The local health implications of those pollutants are shown as well, based on the 1998 measurements. Visitors to the website simply type in a zip code to get the local facts.

The unprecedented information about air toxics at the local level comes from the US Environmental Protection Agency's Cumulative Exposure Project (CEP), which made estimates of the concentrations of 148 separate chemicals in the air of every census tract in the continental US. (A census tract is a small area with 4000 to 5000 residents. The US includes over 60,000 census tracts.) EPA released the CEP results to a limited public in December 1998, after EDF and others requested it under the Freedom of Information Act. EDF then added health risk calculations and incorporated all the data into Scorecard.

EPA has cautioned that CEP results are based on modeling rather than direct measurements, and that the modeling uses 1990 data. Comparisons with the handful or more recent, measured results for air toxics that are available from eight states, some as recent as 1997, show that CEP estimates are generally comparable, with underestimation a bigger problem than overestimation. Scorecard shows all comparisons.

"EDF's cancer risk calculations are screening-level risk assessments that are intended to give a perspective on the air toxics problems we face today," Dr. Pease emphasized. "The CEP estimates from EPA cast a lot of light onto what's been a very dark subject, but they aren't the ultimate word."

The Environmental Defense Fund, a leading, national, NY-based nonprofit organization, represents 300,000 members. EDF links science, economics, and law to create innovative, equitable and economically viable solutions to today's environmental problems.

Celebrating the millennium

Woman's club salutes Y2K with art exhibit, fashion dramatization

Princess Andrea will model an outfit that a Timacuan Indian woman might have worn 1,000 years ago.

Frances Mitchell is all dressed up with plenty of places to go in this dressy suit and flattering wide-brimmed gold hat.

"An Evening to Remember" promises pomp, pageantry, the past and the present when the Sanford Woman's Club celebrates the millennium in drama and fashion.

The exciting evening, a two-part presentation, will begin at 6 p.m. on Friday, May 14, with a "Meet the Artists" segment in the annex of the First Presbyterian Church at Fourth Street and Oak Avenue. Among the local artists exhibiting are: Ashby Jones, Troy Ray, Helen Hickey, Linda Silsby Hill, Faye Siler, Katie Jacobs and Bettye Reagan with photographer Lou Venturolo displaying some of his photos. Linda Hill has donated a painting to be raffled off during the evening.

Also, during the artist, fabulous desserts will be served followed by patrons strolling to the adjacent woman's club for a fashion show that incorporates the development of Sanford and the history of the 86-year-old organization. Club members will serve as narrators, commentators and models assisted by their families and a host of other community supporters.

DORIS DIETRICH
Senior Editor

A replica of a Timacuan Indian's attire from 1,000 years ago will be modeled by Princess Andrea followed by a parade of fashions from the turn of the century to the present date. The finale will be club members in dazzling gowns at the millennium ball to welcome the Century 2000. These gowns will be supplied by Sharon Koning, owner of Petite and Pretty, Slim and Sassy and Bigger and Better, who will also provide other fashions.

The show will open with Liz Aviles, a professional model playing the role of Disney's Princess Jasmine in full regalia. Wearing dazzling Miss America-type attire, Jennifer Roche will preside over the show as the "Year 2000 Millennium Fashion Show Princess, the Lady on the Lake." The late Mr. Robert Carnie wrote a song, "Sanford on the Lake," which will be sung during the show by Sylvia Gray.

As the extravaganza gets under way, in honor of military veterans, a navy uniform from World War II will be shown and the Girls ROTC from Seminole High School will present a precision demonstration. Sanford children, Chelsea Smith and Ted Donaldson, will portray Gen. and Mrs. Henry Shelton Sanford. Another child, Art Terwilliger, a descendant of Dr. Seth French, will be cast in this role. Among the other children to be featured are: Ashley Morgan, Ashley Tuttle, Julie Frank, Kack Tuttle, Jenny Permetti and Susan Williams.

Cpl. Rick Poovey, of the Sanford Police Department, will be honored for his work with D.A.R.E., a drug and violence awareness program in Seminole County Schools, which he will explain.

ner. (Seated, clockwise from left): Betty McKee Kieppe, Betty Lewis, Faye Clark, Betty Erickson, Paulette White, Peggy Lawrence, Kay Leo and Pat Lergen.

Congress tells women to know themselves

Every Black Women Should Wear a Red Dress" held its seventh annual workshop Saturday, April 17, at the Holiday Inn, Altamonte. The International Black Women's Congress of Region Four set forth an Impoverishment Workshop to prepare women for the new millennium.

Over 70 women gathered to receive and share from various speakers. Nubian Queen Mother Corine Wilson, president of the local chapter of IBWC and Nubian Queen Ida Boston made all of the attendees welcome.

A wealth of information flowed to the group from the keynote speaker, Dr. Joyce Morley-Ball who serves as a professor and clinical supervisor at the Psychological Studies Institute in Atlanta. Her subject: "Together We Climb." She has written her first book of poetry, "Weary But Not Worn" A Spiritual Reawakening, a book of poetry geared to black women.

Elizabeth Callen-McGhee also one of the speakers spoke to the group on the topic "Counting All Your Blessings".

Women uniting at meeting of Central Florida Chapter Black Women's Congress

The luncheon entertainment was performed by "Nu-Look Performers" who performed a unique African dance.

IBWC President of Youth Executive Council did selected verses of poetry, and a dozen red roses were presented by Keisha Talbot on behalf of IBWC Adults and Youth of region four to President Nubian Queen Mother Corine Wilson.

Dr. Adetokunbo Borishade, president and CEO of Nubian Network Community Health and Education Institute, Inc., Jacksonville, was the lunch speaker. She reminded the women that women are divine mothers and God is holding women responsible for the mess men have created. He said the way to clean up this mess, women must know themselves and be a divine feminist.

We were reminded that Moses was a spiritual African priest, and the African holy ghost is still moving in our society. The speaker stated, "Thousands of years ago there were female priests. Women should always be a part of the decision-making of the church, home, community in which we live. Yes women, you are somebody, you women take responsibility for the reproduction of life." Dr. Borishade says if we are to be a complete human being, one must demonstrate being a God-head and have spiritual commitment to change this world of disaster. Women are to put on the full armor, spiritual armor of God.

"Women should have a new image of themselves. Men have put women on the back burner. Remember the divine holy ghost is moving, women are sharing their knowledge and are taking control of this world," he said.

Special thanks to Dr. Celia Kay Nelson a general surgeon at Leesburg Regional Medical Center, spoke to the African Women on health needs.

To close out a day of joy and educational inspiration, President Wilson reminded those attending that the "New Millennium" is just a breath away and asked that we commit ourselves as women to making a change

Lake Mary Teacher of the Year honored

How do you know when you've made a good teacher? The 5th grade students of Shirley Carr know. Mrs. Carr was named Teacher of the Year for Lake Mary Elementary School.

On Monday, April 19, Mrs. Carr's students and room mothers surprised her with cake, ice cream and presents. At her congratulatory party, Mrs. Carr expressed a little fear that all the students had signed all certificates and a majority took Debbie Shaffer out of the room mothers' had secretly talked to the students and asked them to turn in pictures from the year and letters stating why they thought Mrs. Carr would be Teacher of the Year. This is an especially close-knit class. At the beginning of fourth grade last year, these students knew they would be having Mrs. Carr as their teacher for two years. Here are some of the letters the students wrote.

Beginning appropriately enough, with the ABC's:

"I think Mrs. Carr deserves to be Teacher of the Year because she is Amazing, Inez and Bob Parsell recently donated funds for a new exhibit at the Central Florida Zoo. This exhibit of zoo animals is captured in designer shirts which will be modeled by several children introduced by Jayna Fox of the zoo.

The late Mrs. Leola Stewart, a beloved Sanford resident, was well known for the exquisite Christmas dresses she hand-crafted and adorned with yards of delicate hand-made tatted lace. Mrs. Stewart was the mother of Dorothy Williams whose children are lending their collection of these fine dresses to the fashion show.

According to Jane Williams Morgan, chairman of the event and script writer, a beaded gown belonging to a Puerto Rican VIP, is expected to arrive in time for the show. Jane also mentioned that Michele DeLora of Orlando will model that stylish little black dress from the 40s and a haindo from that era.

Then comes the wedding scene plus a lot more.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the club's scholarship program. Tickets, at $12.00 each, are available from any woman's club member. There will be no tickets sold at the door. For ticket information, call Fran Mitchell, 323-9640.

SORORITY REUNION
 When Faye Stetson Clark of Westchester, Pa., let some of her sorority sisters know of her intentions to come back to Sanford for a visit, Mona Walker said, "We called in the troops and decided to have a reunion."

Past and present members of Theta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi put their heads together and decided to have a reunion luncheon at Oters Riverside Restaurant. Members came from far and near to re-quite and some members had not seen each other for 30 years.

"We had a fantastic time," Mona said. Many brought snapshots and other memorabilia and the group relived the nostalgic days of many years back.

Joining the sorority sisters were two Lake Mary school teachers, Margaret Inghram and Ette Jane Keogh.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER BANQUET SET
 United Methodist Women of Sanford's First United Methodist Church are sponsoring a Mother-Daughter covered dish banquet on Monday, May 3, at 6:30 p.m. in the church social hall.

A program will follow the dinner. For information, call the church.

Monster behind the wheel gives his wife nightmares

DEAR ABBY: Every time I pick up a newspaper, or see on the evening news a story about "road rage," I can't help but fear that my husband could be the next victim. "Alex" is an otherwise intelligent, caring individual who becomes the terror of the highway whenever he gets behind the wheel. He is somehow convinced that he's the only person who understands the rules of the road, and it has become his mission in life to educate other drivers.

His aggressive behavior includes slamming on his brakes — even on the interstate — when he thinks the car behind is tailgating. When he feels cars in the fast lane are going too slow, he cuts in on them and gives them the finger. Anyone who doesn't "step on it" at an intersection is in for a long blast on the horn to "wake them up." I'm afraid when our 15-year-old son gets his license, he'll think he can drive the same way.

enclosed item will motivate anyone who has a drinking problem to run, not walk, to AA before it's too late. I can testify that life is better without the bottle. It doesn't matter if people come from Yale or jail — we in AA want them to join us. Their life will get better. I promise.

"MUMPS" MOM

I've tried to point out to him that this type of behavior could get us killed, but when he's behind the wheel, he's like a maniac. When Alex gets home and calms down he always apologizes for getting carried away, but it's the same story all over again the next time we're in the car.

Abby, I can't avoid riding with him because we have only one car. What can I do to convince Alex how stupid and dangerous this really is?

A ROAD WARRIOR'S WIFE
IN RHODE ISLAND

DEAR "MUMPS" MOM: Congratulations on your 10 years of sobriety. May you be able to celebrate every single year.

I hope the item you sent will inspire those with an addiction to alcohol to join you in recovery through AA. Read on:

- "I drank for happiness and became unhappy."
  - "I drank for joy and became miserable."
  - "I drank for sociability and became argumentative."
  - "I drank for sophistication and became obnoxious."
  - "I drank for friendship and made enemies."
  - "I drank for sleep and woke up tired."
  - "I drank for strength and felt weak."
  - "I drank for relaxation and got the shakes."
  - "I drank for courage and became afraid."
  - "I drank for confidence and became doubtful."
  - "I drank to make conversation and it sturred my speech."
  - "I drank to feel heavenly and ended up feeling like hell."
- ANONYMOUS

DEAR WIFE: The next time "Alex" begins apologizing, let him know in no uncertain terms that you are taking over as the designated driver for the family until he takes a defensive driving course and seeks counseling to rechannel his anger.

Since your son is nearing the age when he too will get behind the wheel, the three of you could sign up for defensive driving classes as a family. In addition to driving schools, which are listed in the telephone directory, defensive driving classes are often available at community colleges and through your local automobile club. Please write again and let me know what impact this has on Alex's driver attitude. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 6-foot-tall woman who has also experienced the smashed knee, pinned in place-for-the-duration-of-the-flight situation that your reader wrote about. As you suggested, I have tried to get bulkhead seating, but it goes fast. You usually have to take regular seating.

On a trip to Chicago this past spring, I was pinned in place, unable to move the entire flight. We changed planes in Detroit, and I vowed to my companion that I wouldn't suffer any more. When we boarded the next flight for the hop over Lake Michigan, a man took the seat in front of me, and proceeded to recline it. I braced my knees and he couldn't move. He pushed and I pushed. He turned around and angrily said, "Is there a suitcase behind my seat?" I just as angrily replied, "No, it's my knees!" His jaw dropped.

I was feeling a little guilty. Thinking he was probably traveling all the way to L.A. on the continuation of the flight, I reasoned that he could recline after I disembarked from the 20-minute flight to Chicago. When we landed, I stood to leave, and Mr. Recliner stood to disembark as well. He gave me a nasty look, and I said, "You got a problem, bud?" Since I was a head taller than he was, he said, "No."

I admit, I may have been rude, but how rude was he? I'm tired of being physically crushed by inconsiderate people. If that means I must be inconsiderate, too, so be it. Nonsmokers have rights. Handicapped people have rights. Obese people have rights. Even short people have rights. I say it's time tall people had rights, too.

TALL IN FLORIDA

DEAR TALL: I realize that many travelers are fed up with being crammed into aircraft like sardines. The most effective way to resolve the problem would be to write the president of the airline, vent your feelings and request something be done about it at the corporate level. Since Americans are growing taller and bigger with each passing decade, something must be done to accommodate reality.

GENIE (May 21-June 20) Chances are you won't read people well today. You might end up catering to the wrong types in hopes of furthering your career. Only seek out those who aren't completely self-involved.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) A lack of self-discipline regarding certain health procedures you know you should be following could lead to later regrets. You'll think better of yourself" if you don't get less. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to receive, you first need to be a giver, so if you want people to pay attention to you or do something nice for you, set the example.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's never a good day to try to transform someone into your own image, so don't attempt to do so today. Family members will especially be resentful, and they'll let you know it.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A compassionate heart does not ask anything back in return when helping the needy. Remember it takes humility by the recipient, so don't put those you help on the spot by making them feel obligated.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could overlook some really neat people who have a lot of friendship to offer if you Judge others today by what they have rather than who they are. Get your head on straight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Getting along with others might be somewhat of a chore today. It doesn't matter whose fault it is, it only matters how you handle your dealings with others. Be understanding and tolerant.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A sloppy mind produces sloppy talk, so take heed of your mental focus and watch your tongue. Thoughtless remarks that are offensive to your listeners reflects right back at you.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It'll work both ways today. If you challenge someone's self-worth or they challenge yours, it makes one feel battered. If the truth be known, everyone is better than the next person at something.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Show respect for those you have dealings with today and in turn, they will honor you: Being argumentative or unsympathetic could cause a lack of consideration for you.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Problems on the job will be able to be traced back to a lack of communication today. Clearly what needs to be done, as well as the procedure needed for the task.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The book, or the man?

The Senior Life Master stood in front of his group of students. "Finally the warmer weather is arriving," he observed. "And to greet it, a grand slam on my first sheet."
 Everybody looked at the North-South hands and the auction from today's deal.
 Against your seven-heart contract (continued the SLM), West opens with the spade five to dummy's queen. You lead the heart three, East putting in the jack. What next?
 The SLM gave them some time to choose their next move.
 First, note the bidding. When South bid five no-trump, he announced both that their side held all four aces and that he was seriously considering a grand slam. North, who liked his source of tricks in diamonds, was loath to show his two kings. If he did that, by replying six hearts, perhaps his partner would pass. So he jumped to seven.
 At trick three, declarer played a heart to dummy's nine. When this won, he was soon claiming.

 Now, that play in trumps isn't recommended, because East should play the jack from J-10 or J-10-x. But South was Maurice Harrison-Gray, one of Britain's best-ever and most astute players. He had noticed East pause over North's seven hearts. Presumably he was thinking of sacrificing in seven spades. And in those days, you could go 11 down doubled and nonvulnerable, yet still show a profit against a vulnerable grand slam. (Here, it would be minus 2,100 instead of 2,210.) Under the sensible new scoring law, East-West must go only eight down to show a profit.
