Rebuilding goes on; Red Cross closes school shelters

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - A decision to close schools used as shelters for victims of Hurricane Andrew pumped new life into military tent cities that had gone wanting for tenants.

To help south Florida Inch closer to normality, Red Cross officials decided the 11 schools should be closed Sunday so they can be readied for the start of classes.

That prompted hundreds of people to move into tent cities set up last week by the Army, raising the population of the five camps from 1,000 to more than 2,000 people, said Army Lt. John Buckley. The camps have a capacity of about 3,800.

At the Harris Field camp in Homestead, the new arrivals eroded the already scant privacy campers had in the 16-by-32 foot tents, which hold 14 cots each.

"It gets pretty crowded in here," said Lorenzo Walker, 30. "There are people snoring, people talking in their sleep. You're sleeping with 14 strangers. I don't like it very much, but I guess they feel the same

Earlier Sunday, the Army announced it would not build any more tent cities because the existing camps were not filled.

Nancy Retherford, a Red Cross spokeswoman, said the schools, some damaged by the storm, need to be repaired and cleaned in time for classes to start next Monday, two weeks later than originally acheduled.

"We feel it's real important that the kids get back into achool. It will put a normal pattern back into their lives," she said.

The storm left an estimated 250,000 people homeless. Many are staying with friends or relatives or living in the ruins of their houses rather than move into the Dan Eastman, 32, arrived Friday night after driving 26 hours from Enfield, Conn., with a load of tarpaulins for emergency roofing. He discovered a roofer's heaven, with prices matching the demand for an estimated 50,000 new roofs.

"Every roof I've seen has damage. I've never seen anything like this," he said. He said a new roof that cost $3,500 before the storm was priced at about $5,500 now.

He said most roofers had seen their costs driven up by wage demands — skilled laborers earning $8 per hour in the depressed pre-storm construction market were asking up to $15 now, he said.

"These guys are in such a hurry to get to work that they pass along the cost to the customer," he said.

"I've talked to two local roofers, who I'm not going to name, who think they'll make enough to retire within two years."

An estimated 3,300 Florida Power & Light workers restored power over the weekend to the Florida Keys, Miami Beach and most of north Miami.

About 114,000 customers remained blacked out, compared with more than 1 million without power after the storm.

Census accuracy

One of these decades, in the interest of greater accuracy, the one-by-one population counts conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau will have to yield to statistical correction. Why not now?

The bureau itself urged such correction last year after confirming that its 1990 nose count had missed about five million Americans. But the commerce secretary turned down the recommendation — supposedly because the corrected figures might result in a less accurate distribution of population.

Some allege, however, that the real reason was politics — a move by a Republican administration to prevent major cities and other Democratic strongholds from gaining population and, therefore, congressional and legislative representation.

But now comes another issue that Census Bureau officals insist is purely a matter of policy: Should corrected census figures be used in determining the distribution of about $10 billion in federal funding each year to state and local governments?

The problem, says Peter Bounpane, assistant census director, is that adding in estimates of people overlooked in the 1990 census would make national and state counts more accurate while making the counts for cities less accurate.

So the question, says Bounpane, is which are more important: state users or local users? The bureau will decide in mid-September.

The more basic policy question, however, is whether the Census Bureau will remain wedded to a population-counting approach that is becoming increasingly more difficult to carry out and therefore more prone to error.

Or should it begin using modern statistical techniques to make its population figures more accurate. — potentially at the local as well as state and national levels?

Bounpane suggests the answer when he points out that altering the census figures won't affect the dollar distribution all that

The effects in general," he said, "will be much smaller than people anticipate."

If so, then distrubting federal aid to state and local governments on the basis of corrected census figures should be a relatively painless and a political way of easing into their eventual use, as well, for congressional and legislative redistricting — perhaps beginning with year-2000 census. It has to start sometime; why not now?

The drunk tent

America courts are at last treating felony drunken driving as the serious offense it is. often meting out prison sentences for repeat offenders who cause death or serious injury. That's as it should be, but one wonders if Arizona hasn't gone a tad too far.

Faced with bulging prisons, corrections authorities have set up tents near Phoenix and Tucson to house nearly 300 DUI recidivists — this in a place where summer temperatures often top 110 degrees and "drop" to around 90 at night. Electric fans and ice water are available, but that didn't satisfy one prisoner who filed a class-action suit asking that he and his fellow inmates be housed in air-coonditioned buildings - just like murderers and rapists. This, he seemed to suggest, was taking the idea of drying out drunks a little too far.

Officials say they had no choice — that the Legislature dragged its feet in appropriating funds for new construction and that, for security reasons and because drunken drivers must be isolated from hard-core criminals. tents seemed like a good idea.

Some lawmakers accuse prison authorities of grandstanding to put pressure on the Legislature. If so, it worked: 843 million has been carmarked for new cells, but they won't be ready until next year.

In the meantime, civil libertarians says that forcing anyone to live in tents during an Arizona summer is cruci and unusual punishment. One lawmaker more or less agreed but told the Los Angeles Times that the tent-bound prisoners aren't any worse off than many Arizonans: "I mean, living in Arizona is like being halfway to hell as it is.

The cost of Supreme Court victory

Ed Cleary, a solo practitioner in St. Paul, Minn., made his first appearance before the U.S. Supreme Court this past term. He hit a home run. In R.A.V. v. City of St. Paul, the court unanimously declared that city's "hate speech" ordinance violated the First Amendment.

Then five of the justices ruled for the first time that although some speech is unprotected by the First Amendment — "flighting words," for instance — government may not select for punishment only those "fighting words" that the state considers demeaning to particular groups. In St. Paul, for example, the ordinance punished racist expressions but not "hate speech" directed at the handicapped.

The decision cuts down just about all college speech codes and most "hate crime" legislation in many states because both outlawed speech directed against particular groups. Justice Antonin Scalia's opinion in parts of the ruling tracked the written and oral arguments by Ed

Cleary was a court-appointed attorney for a skinhead, Raymond Viktora, who was charged with burning a cross in the small hours of the night in the front yard of the only black family in a working-class neighborhood. From the start. Cleary said publicly that it was a reprehensible act and that there were a number of client could be punished if the county attorney proved Viktora had burned the cross All the way to the Supreme Court, Cleary's argument was that the city had instead decided to prosecute Viktora under its "hate crime" statute which was so broad that it included all kinds of speech protected by the First Amendment. (The law punished expression arousing "anger, slarm or resentment in others on the basis of race, color, creed, religion or gender." A pro-choicer attacking the Catholic Church in a sign could be convicted.)

At debates in St. Paul, Cleary kept trying to show that "the ordinance — not the crossburning - is on trial before the Supreme Court.

Hardly anyone was listening. Although Cleary had defended some highly unpopular black clients, he was now shunned by a number of black lawyers and civil rights activists — as well as by indignant white liberals.

Furthermore, he was accused of costing the taxpayers more than $100,000 for defending the cross-burner. Actually, there were no public funds available for Viktora's appeal to the high court after the Minnesota Supreme Court had invented a way, or so it thought, to construe the 'hate speech" ordinance as being constitutional. So, from August 1990 to the conclusion of the case in June 1992. Cleary - and Michael Cromett, a lawyer helping him — donated the time they spent on the case.

All along, there were threats — at work and also on Cleary's home phone. Said one anony-mous caller: "You can't trust lawyers. They should burn on the cross. You're going to burn on your cross.

Part of the continued confusion has been caused by such groups as the NAACP, which strongly supported the St. Paul ordinance. One of its officials said privately after the Supreme Court decision came down that he was relieved.

Campaign has absurd drama

If you think of the presidential campaign of 1992 either as a soap opera, a country song or the lead story in the National Enquirer, it the lead story in the rational Enquirer, it helps. Otherwise, what has been going on is utterly inexplicable, an absurdist play in which the lead characters talk past each other, and the set, constructed for drama, clashes with the nonsense downslage. Or perhaps what we have been enduring is simply a try-out tour through the provinces during the dog days of summer, with September and October finally offering a finished product for the voters'

Whatever else it has been, this past month has been a vivid reminder of something the great reporter and writer David Halberstam once noted while he was covering the bloody conflict in the Congo 30 years ago. "One thing is certain," he wrote a friend. "If you go away from the Congo for a few weeks, and then come back, nothing will have changed, except for the worse." After a long working vacation in a television-free zone in Maine, upon return I find Halberstam's comment doubly applicable to the presidential race.

Bill Clinton, "the Arky of the New Covenant" as one wag dubbed him after his acceptance speech, used Biblical allusions, so George Bush and the Republicans tripled the ante. The legions of the Religious Right, up from their deathbed of 1988, sneered and snarled their way through the GOP Convention in Houston like so many Count Draculas. Pat Robertson livesi Jerry Falwell, born again for political To mangle an old joke, the Christians assembled at Houston knew that Jesus Christ believed in forgiving his enemies, but they also knew that He was wrong.

George Bush, who worked in subservient harness with that former adulterer, Ronald Reagan, for eight long years, gave the high aign and "family values" became the party's official motif -- if only for a few weeks. It was a little awkward, since it came almost in tandem with open allegations about possible sexual escapades by the president in years gone by. but modern politics is a shameless profession and the press is its equally shameless pimp. You say it, we'll show or print it, and the devil take the hindmost. That's the banner under which the men and women of the modern American media go off to work each day.

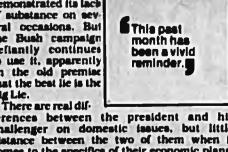

As best I could understand from reading the newspapers put out by my fellow totlers in that journalistic vineyard, the Republicans assembled in Texas expressly believed that good women stay at home, raise the children.

ferences between the president and his challenger on domestic issues, but little distance between the two of them when it comes to the specifics of their economic plans. Generalizations and vague promises take the place of detailed programs. It's not easy to be enthusiastic about a new-boy challenger when he doesn't seem to be any more willing to bite the fiscal bullet than the known, though shooworn, incumbent.

But underneath it all, the voters are intensely serious. So are the problems the next president must confront. The campaign has been a farce; elements of the national condition are a tragedy. The best thing to do is pretend that the past six weeks were a bad dream. Let the real campaign now begin, just as it always used to do. on Labor Day week.

Trauma centers overflow crime

WASHINGTON - By 9:30 on a recent Saturday night, the only public hospital in the murder capital of the country closed its trauma care doors to new patients.

A half hour earlier, the emergency room staff at D.C. General scrambled to ready the operating room for a new wave of arrivals: three young men who had been wounded by gunfire at a nearby intersection. By 9:15, the men were safely behind the door of an operating room, which is run by doctors and nurses with the awesome efficiency of an auto assembly line.

When a patient who had overdosed on narcotics was rushed into the emergency room at 9:30, this state-of-the-art trauma center had reached its threshold and sent word out to emergency services personnel all over the city that D.C. General was closed for the evening. Patients would have to be rerouted to nearby hospitals.

"When we're full, you don't have time to be frustrated," says J. Duncan Harviel, a trauma surgeon at Washington Hospital Center, where some of the overflow from D.C. General wind up. "But it bothers me that the trauma never stops, that hospitals such as D.C. General and us need to close down because we're overwhelmed by trauma."

At the same time that this city's weekend warriors were closing down the public hospital, the FBI was weighing in with what almost seems the obvious: Violent crime is out of control. The latest annual FBI surveys show that the juvenile arrest rate for violent crime in the United States surged 27 percent in the last decade, or that the violent crime rate overall reached a record high last year.

In this election year, when Republicans are trying to turn law and order into a "wedge" issue, it's fronic that the Bush administration has repeatedly sought to slash funding for juvenile justice programs, funding that Congress has fought to restore. But there's plenty of congressional culpability, including the failure to pass the best trauma care legislation ever invented. It's called the Brady Bill, and it would simply establish a national waiting period on handgun purchases so they don't get sold to felons.

Since the Senate last acted on the bill, some 17,000 men, women and children have been killed by handguns. That includes 489 murders in Washington D.C. last year and 293 so far in 1992.

You couldn't convince residents who are caught in the nightly cross-fire, but Washington is actually lucky. There are five hospitals in the 62-square-mile city classified as level one trauma centers. Compare that with the state of Virginia, which has five certified trauma centera serving the entire state, or with Houston, where one trauma center is responsible for a 620-square mile area.

"We have more trauma centers in D.C. than most states do," says Dr. Robert Bass, the District's new director of Emergency Medical Services, who has won wide praise during his eight-month tenure.

A total of 60 of America's 370 designated trauma centers closed in the five years prior to 1991. Since most trauma patients are young, and the bulk of gunahot and stabbing victims (about 80 percent) are uninsured, trauma care is causing a financial hemor-rhage for most hospitals. Community hospitals are shutting down their units, leaving public and teaching hospitals to fill the void.

"The last thing you hear as a complaint by physicians who handle trauma patients is that they haven't paid their bill." says Dr. Nabil Atweh. director of trauma care at Bridgeport Hospital in Bridgeport. Conn.

tion with Seminole County Election Supervisor Sandra Goard. Friday afternoon, Goard said, "Our of-fice will be closed Monday for the holiday, so we'll be working Saturday, and we hope to get the names verified at that time."

Another question already set for the Lake Mary ballot, in whether or not the citizens want a revised City Charter. The auggested revisions were the result of several months of work by a Charter Review Committee. and discussions by the Commission.

The proposal for the run-off however, was removed from the suggested revisions by a four to one vote of the City Commission. and therefore is not included in the revised charter on which the citizens will vote.

Thursday night, Julian explained two proposed ordi-nances submitted for approval by the City Commission. "They might look similar," he said. "but they deal with two completely separate questions."

Regarding the first ordinance he said. "If the citizens petition item is approved by the voters in November, it would only call for placing the run-off election provision into the existing City Charter." He continued, "If the citizens vote in favor of the changed charter, the citizens petition, if aproved, would no longer be valid because it is for the existing Charter."

'The second ordinance." Julian said, "Would add the requirement for the run-off election in the revised charter, if it is approved on the ballot."

"By having these two ordinances," he concluded, "no matter whether the revised city charter passes or fails in November, you will have the run-off election go into effect."

double ordinances however. Both Shella Sawver and her husband Robert, questioned Julian as to what happens if certain items are approved while others are rejected in the elec-

"I think it's very simple."
Julian said. "If the citizens petition referendum passes, do you only want it to be in the present city charter or do you want it included in the proposed city charter as well." He added. "If you want both, you should vote in favor of the petition referendum, and in favor of both of these items I'm presenting."

City Manager John Litton proposed that information regarding the four issues be sent to all citizens of Luke Mary in the quarterly newsletter sent by bulk mail to all homeowners and businesses in the City.

Julian said. "The way I have written these matters in two separate ordinances is to prevent any litigation, in case we have a problem with run-off elections in the future."

Shella Sawyer recommended the Commissioners table the matter. "It will give me time to research the City of Oyledo and Several citizens questioned the find out whether they have had any difficulty with a similar proposal they have been working on." Deputy Mayor Paul Tremel, presiding over the meeting in the absence of Mayor Randy Morris. asked Sawyer, "Is it your opinion we should not place either of these ordinances on the ballot?"

She suggested it be tabled until the petition is verified.

The Commissioners however. called for a vote, and approved the placement of the two ordinances on the ballot by separate but unanimous votes.

"What this amounts to."
Tremel said, "is that if the citizens want the run-off election issue to come about, they should vote in favor of all three of these issues."

The same two ordinances will be presented for second reading and final approval during the next Lake Mary City Commission meeting, scheduled for collection in the monthly base charge, which now varies according to the hauler.

Sept. 17. County Election Supervisor Goard said, "Whatever they decide, the City has until October 2 to get me the information they want placed on the ballot in November."

And commissioners wanted the haulers to do all that for $13.50 per month or less - an amount that would include the probable doubling of the county dumping fee. The fee would be reviewed annually for a cost-of-living-type raise, plus any increases in the county dumping fee. The annual "refuse rate index" index would not apply to the dumping fee, said Rabun. After weeks of discussions, the haulers first said they would not consider any changes without a five-year extension of their contract, now due to expire on Sept. 30, 1995. Next, they said they agreed with the rural-urban plan, but said they wanted to retain the $1 per bag yard waste charge for rural residents.

Also, the haulers want the county to install a debagging machine at the county dump to empty yard waste from plastic bags. If not, they asked for the ability to take the yard waste to an approved private dump.

No pricing details have been finalized, said Rabun.

Faculty, friends say good-bye

luncheon in the auditorium at Lake Mary Elementary, faculty and friends said their good byes to assistant principal Dr. Ron Pinnell.

Dr. Pinnell, an Orlando native, attended Conway Elementary and Howard Junior High, both in Orlando. He moved to Daytona and graduated from Daytona Mainland High School and went on to the University of Florida, where he was a member of the varsity wrestling team.

After graduation from UF, Dr. Pinell taught at his former high school for two years and then moved on.

When the new Spruce Creek High School opened I went there as head wrestling coach, assis-tant football coach and I taught health science and biology." Pinnell said. He stayed at Spruce Creek for three years and then went back to the University of Florida for a master's degree and was assistant wrestling coach at UF for two years.

Dr. Pinnell married his wife. Julie, in 1980. She is now an attorney. The couple moved to Seminole County where Dr. Pinnell took a position at Rock Lake Middle School, where he taught for five years in Health Education, Biology, Physical Science, and physical education for one year. He coached with Doug Peters at Lake Mary High School and served as wrestling coach at LMHS.

'I then took a position as dean and assistant principal at Lake Mary High School for three years and was hired by Don T. Reynolds."

Dr. Pinnell loves the school environment and loves to teach and has moved to the various levels in the educational system because he wanted the "whole range of school experiences." He loved being at Lake Mary Elementary because he "feels that elementary is such a critical age. because it lays the foundation and because the dye is not cast and you can still reach children."

This was very important to Dr. Pinnell and he was very appreciative of the former principal, Beverly Perrault, for giving him the opportunity at Lake Mary Elementary as the assis-tant principal and to work on this elementary educational level.

Dr. Pinnell has been at Lake Mary for three years. He started when former principal Casey began her final year. He felt very fortunate to be able to learn from both Perrault and Casey, as both have very similar philosophies. They put the child first.

Dr. Pinnell said that he had a goal of working on the university level and the opportunity pres-ented itself to do so at Stetson University. That is why he is leaving Lake Mary.

He will surely be missed by staff, students and parents. He will begin at Stetson in DeLand as assistant professor in the Division of Education in the College of Arts and Science.

"I will be supervising interns in education in their senior year of internship," Pinnell said. He is looking forward to the challenge and will be teaching some classes on both the graduate and undergraduate level.

"I am very excited to be doing this and about teaching again," he said "I am still a teacher at

There were also lines of parents in the corridors buying Lake Mary T-shirts and/or signing up for P.T.A. along with sign up sheets for Y.M.C.A. after school programs. There were snacks set out for the new little kindergarten students.

FSU wins ACC opener

TALLAHASSEE - Fifth-ranked Florida State didn't have much trouble overpowering Duke in its Atlantic Coast Conference opener, but the Seminoles' inconsistency left coach Bobby Bowden with plenty of worries.

The Seminoles, starting 10 underclassmen on offense, overcame five turnovers by new quarterback Charlie Ward and 16 penalties to defeat Duke 48-21 in their ACC inaugural.

Ward, a two-year starting point guard in basketbail, turned in an uneven albeit spectacular debut at quarterback. He amaned 353 yards offense, fired four touchdown passes and ran for another. On the debit ledger, Ward threw four interceptions and fumbled once.

distractions caused by Hurricane Andrew, which ravaged South Florida and damaged or destroyed several homes of the coaches and players, by stomping lows 24-7 Saturday.

Miami's swift, aggressive defense kept lows from mounting any consistent drives Saturday night. The Hawkeyes didn't score until Jim Hartlieb threw a 31-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jasper with 5½ minutes left. Prior to that, lows's longest play had been 19 yards.

Playing behind an inexperienced offensive line, quarterback Gino Torretta still completed 31 of 51 passes for 433 yards and two touchdowns. He broke the previous Kinnick Stadium record of 420 yards set by lowa's Chuck Long against Northwestern in 1983.

Waitrip outlasts rain

DARLINGTON, S.C. - Darrell Waltrip wasn't apologizing to anyone, despite the way he finally won the Southern 500.

Waltrip was victorious in the oldest of NASCAR's superspeedway races with the help of a late-afternoon rain that cut short Sunday's event at Darlington Raceway 69 laps short of its scheduled 367.

He had taken the lead on lap 293, just two before the rain began pelting down, inheriting the top apot when Ricky Rudd pitted during a series of green flag stops by the leaders.

Mark Martin was the leader when the final round of pit stops began. He started it on lap 289, giving up the lead to Dale Jarrett, who in turn gave it up to Rudd on lap 290.

When the race was stopped, Martin was second, series point leader Bill Elliott - who had driven most of the second half of the race with no brakes — was third, Brett Bodine fourth and Davey Allison fifth.

'New look' Bucs open with win

By PRED GOODALL AP Sports Writer

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers are determined to make a season-opening victory over the Phoenix Cardinals a beginning, not an end, to their 1992 highlight film.

The Buca officially launched the Sam Wyche era Sunday with a 23-7 victory that left the first-year coach with a positive feeling about what lies ahead for a team that hasn't had n winning record since 1982.

"We've got a lot of new faces on this team and I told our guys we're not going to as sharp early as we're going to be late. We're going to get better and better and better." Wyche said.

"If we can win some early, when we know we've got improvement ahead of us, just think how much fun this season is going to be."

Tampa Bay wasn't perfect but controlled the game by playing relatively error-free football (no turnovers, three penalties) while holding the Cardinals, who lost quarterback Tim Rosenbach in the second half, to 181 yards.

Vinny Testaverde threw for 167 yards and che touchdown, Reggie Cobb scored on a 1-yard run and Ken Willia kicked three field goals in a turnabout from a disappointing performance in the last preseason

Phoenix (0-1) trailed 13-7 but had a chance until Rosenbach was blindeided by Tampa Bay's Santana Dotson and left the field on a stretcher with 5:29 remaining in the third quarter.

Cardinals team doctor Wayne Kuhl said the third-year pro, who missed all of last season after undergoing major knee surgery. ras knocked unconscious for about 30 seconds. When he came to, Rosenbach complained of lower back pain and a severe headache.

Will additional fields create diamond glut?

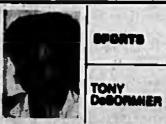

On Tuesday night, the fall adult recreational softball season cranks up in Seminole County. From now until Thanksgiving, softball diamonds around the area will be busy five nights a week and most days. Sanford, two leagues were Senford, two leagues were In Banford, two leagues were planned for Tuesday and Wednesday nights with one league playing on Monday, Thursday and Friday on Leagueod will play one nights. Longwood will play one league a night at Candyland Park. At Red Bug Lake Park, Seminole County will once again offer three longues a night, five nights a week.

Altamonte Springs and Cassel-berry are also expected to offer their traditional share of leagues. You'd think that'd be enough.

Apparently not. Within the next 12 months, Lake Minin the next is months, Lake Mary will be playing softball five nights a week at the field at its new athletic complex. Winter Springs is just about ready to open Central Winds Park on State Road 434. And the county is planning to build another quintet of fields at Sanlando Bark.

That's another 10 fields. If all follow the six-team, three-game a night format that seems to be the lard, that means that an additional 300 teams could be accomodated Monday through Friday nights. Given that most teams carry a minimum of 12 players, that's 3,600 men and women hitting. throwing and catching.

Then there's Saturday. It seems inconceivable that there it issems inconceivance that there is that kind of demand for playing fields. But Reg Sigmon, the league coordinator at Red Bug Lake Park, said that their leagues were filled up almost before they were opened and the waiting list to get into the leagues will reach 100 teams. During an interview last month. Sigmon told the Sanford Herald that if the Sandlands fields were open now, that he could fill all the available spots in all the lengues every night.

This would be a good time to oint out that there aren't 500 different teams playing in the estimated 80 leagues in Seminole County this fall and that all 300 else's roster.

Players 'who participate in two different leagues at different parks during a given week are probably more common than those men or women who play just one night a week. There are entire teams that make the rounds during a week. Even so, will there be enough players, enough teams to fill an additional 10 fields?

Sanford, Longwood and Cassel-berry may feel something of a pinch, if for no other reason than their parks, while being fine fields in their own rights, will suffer in comparison to the newer facilities. Central Winds Park, for example, is already a physically beautiful facili-ty. It remains to be seen how its four Reids will play. Will a team want to play at Pinehurst Park in Banford if they can get in at Central Winds. Saniando or Lake Mary? Assuming that the Saniando and Lake Mary facilities are as nice as Central Winds, which meets the standards set by Altamonte Springs' Merrill Park and Red Bug Lake, it's not a hard choice.

Even so, those fields will only be able to accomodate 80 teams a night. And considering that the appeal of playing on their new fields will be so high, will the I size Marv partments open up their leagues to residents within their city limits first? If so, will there be any room left for anyone clee?

rhaps the competition for teams will dictate an improvement in the quality of other facilities, resulting in better lights, parking facilities, field maintenance and other ameni-

Then again, maybe there are enough teams that it won't matter. Maybe there is the demand for more fleids. It could be that all the new fields and the existing fields will be filled to reasonable capacity and there'll still be waiting lists at Red Bug Lake or wherever.

Also, I have the anealing suspicion that the trappings of the new facilities will probably be more appealing to spectators than to the players. Much like the indiscrimi-nate tasts of a hyena, most softball players aren't really concerned with where they're playing as long as where they're playing as long as they have a place to play.

Besides, until road construction catches up with softball field development, many players will have to sacrifice quality of playing fields for convenience. What's the point of signing up to play at in a league that starts play at 6:30 p.m. when you can't possibly get to that park before 7 p.m.?

Turfgrass versus ground cover

Many herbaccous and woody plants can be used as ground covers to save energy, reduce maintenance and provide an alternative to turfgrasses. Horticulturists are not always in complete agreement as to the exact definition of a good ground cover. As used here, the term "ground cover": refers to any low growing plant which can be used to cover areas where turf is undealrable or will not grow. Ground covers can help reduce energy use in the landscape by substituting for energy intensive grasses and by providing a cooler microclimate.

Much time, energy and money is spent maintaining top quality turf areas, which must be frequently mowed, fertilized. watered, and treated for pests. Turf is difficult and/or dangerous to mow on slopes, near traffic. and in out of the way corners. and grows poorly in dense shade and in extremely wet or dry areas. Many ground covers are more adaptable to these situations than turf. However, use of outdoor living space should be considered before replacing turfgrasses with ground covers. Turfgrass is still the best choice for recreational areas for areas with heavy foot traffic.

In addition to saving time and energy, ground covers can provide a more beautiful and comfortable environment. Ground covers create interesting contrasts in texture and color and are often the unflying element in a total planting. Ground covers can moderate the climate around buildings by absorbing and dissipating heat rather than reradiating it to people or buildings. Paved surfaces store and radiate heat even after sundown, keeping the area warmer for a longer period of time and making hot periods hotter. Under sunny conditions, researchers have shown temperatures to be 15.25 degress cooler immediately over planted areas than over asphalt or concrete. There is also evidence that taller ground cover can provide even more cooling than mowed grass.

If the proper ground cover is selected for a site, very little maintenance will be required. Plants native to woodlands will out perform grass in heavily shaded areas. There is also appropriate ground covers which will tolerate a wider varicty of soil conditions than most turfgrasses. A ground cover such as lippia (Lippia (Phyla) nodifiora) tolerates wet soils much better than most turfgrasses. Watering can also be reduced by using a drought resistant ground cover, such as

It may take up to two years to establish a ground cover area. and during this period weeding. watering, fertilizing and mulching will probably be required. Once established most ground covers require only an occastional weeding and trimming to maintain them in bounds.

Ground covers used correctly can reduce maintenance cost. save energy, and provide a more pleasant environemnt. Ground covers also enhance the beauty and usefulness of the landscape.

Garden of the Month

A camphor tree ringed with caladiums and impatiens in the center of the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Taylor, 3104 S. Park Ave., earned them the Garden of the Month. A paim tree encircled with caladium, crotons and special grass next to the malibox is another eye-catcher. Roses blooming along the walkway make a colorful entrance. Bpider plants in hanging baskets are another accent. The yard was chosen by Mrs. William Foster of the Camellila Circle for the Garden Club of Sanford.

Right and wrong crux of speech

DEAR READERS: In my Aug. 9 column, I quoted from the speech Gov. Zell Miller of Georgia gave at the Democratic National Convention. In the interest of equal time, here's one from the Republican National Convention. Credit senstorial candiate Alan Keyes of Maryland with one of the best speeches given in Houston. He said, in

"When the Republican Party the right to do what is wrong!" was founded in 1854, this country faced a moral test. This party took a stand against slaverv. which eventually crystallized into the words and deeds of our first Republican president, Abraham Lincoln.

"While politicians like Stephen Douglas declared that justice is a matter of choice. Lincoln announced resoundingly that where justice and human rights are concerned, 'You cannot have

ADVICE

"That was the spirit of Lincoln's Republicanism. It is the spirit that makes me pround to be a Republican, one who supports the courage of George Bush. Like him, we must take a stand on tyranny, especially when it crushes the hopes of people abroad. As we did in Desert Storm, we must protect small states from belligerent bullies. You cannot have the right to do what is wrong!

'In the name of this party, we must oppose racism, anti-Semitism and group hatred whether it parades openly in the garb of the Klan, or masquerades beneath the soft accents of sophisticated power. You cannot have the right to do what is wrong!

DEAR ABBIT Your response to "Non-Smoker" sounded as if you are employed by a tobacco industry. Abby, aren't you aware of the dangers of side-stream smoke to non-smoking individu-

Suggesting that five nonsmokers give up their right to a amoke-free environment just because three chain smokers wanted to sit in the smoking section of a restaurant appears very unjust to me. Even if the guest of honor was one of the smokers, the basic health of all should be the primary consideration.

Please, Abby, reconsider your advice on this one.

MARY ANN BLOCK D.O. TEXAS COLLEGE OF OCTROPATHIC MEDICINE, FORT WORTH, TEXAS DEAR DR. BLOCK: Consider my advice reconsidered. That wasn't one of my better answers.

DEAR READERS: I'm still hooked on limericks. My readers have been sending me some "dillies." Here's one from Hueytown, Ala., compliments of Ann Ricci:

Mea culpa.

A decrepit old gas man named

While fooling around a gas

heater Touched a leak in his light And he rose out of sight

And as anyone who knows anything about poetry can tell. he also ruined the meter.

DEAR ABBY: Before our baby was born, we knew it was a boy. so we decided to name him 'Robert II' after my husband, that the baby should be "Robert Junior" -- that my son's son will be the "II."

Abby, that doesn't sound right to me. What is the correct way

SHARON M. DEAR SHARON: The "many people" are correct. The use of "Il" indicates that he bearer of that name is a cousin, grandson or nephew of the original holder of that name.

DEAR ABBY: I am a longtime reader of Dear Abby and am constantly amazed at the people who sign themselves, "UN-LOVED, SAD, LONELY, UN-WANTED, FORGOTTEN, DESPERATE," etc.

I am no "Dear Abby," but I do know that these people need to get involved with others, and oftentimes the way to solve one's own problems is to try to give a little happiness to someone else.

Some time ago. I called a nursing home and asked them to send me a list of patients who seldom, if ever, received mail, packages, cards or visitors. When the list arrived, I was first amazed, then saddened. I expected perhaps three or four names, but their list had 21 names on it! Because the list was so long, obviously presents were out, as my means are limited, so I started sending inexpensive greeting cards to my 21. There are many opportunities during the year to send them a bit of cheer. Birthdays.

Christmas, Valentine's Day Easter, or even just a "friendship" card.
I sign it "Your friend" to let them know that someone cares. It lifts their spirits and doesn't cost much, and it doesn't take much time.

If clubs, churches or other organizations would adopt this plan, more people could be reached. These older folks have little in their lives other than memories. They live for today, so let's put a little sunshine into their lives.

CAMILLE DEAR CAMILLE: Thank you for a beautiful suggestion. If this idea catches on, you'll have started something that will bring inestimable happiness to thousands. Bless you.

Here is the treatment for auto-immune disorder DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss Sjogren's syndrome.

DEAR READER: Sjogren's

syndrome is a chronic, auto-immune (self-allergy) disorder. marked by inflammation of various body organs, causing dry eyes, dry mouth, poor diges-tion, arthritis, chest pain and kidney disease. The diagnosis is made by blood tests and special X-rays. Treatment relieves symptoms (with eye drops, for example); more severe cases require cortisone.

DR. GOTT: I am entering menopause and have many questions. Is it essential for a woman to take estrogen? How long does menopause last, and how can I tell when the risk of pregnancy has passed?
DEAR READER: Menopausal

women do not need to take estrogen. However, hormone therapy will relieve the symptoms of menopause, such as hot flashes, fluid retention and moodiness. Also, many specialists advise women to use estrogen to prevent osteoporosis. At this point, most doctors leave the decision to the woman, depending on the severity of her menopausal symptoms and risk of osteoporosis.

Menopause may barely affect some women, who merely stop menstruating and have few symptoms. On the other hand. some women suffer the tortures of the damned: years of incapacitating mood swings. sweats and so forth. The majori-ty of women fall within these extremes. The severity and duration of menopause are variable and unpredictable.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from a dropped uterus, for which have seen two physicians. The first wants to do simple surgery to repair it, the second wants to perform a hysterectomy. Since I'm 65 and sexually inactive, I'm unsure which physician to turn

DEAR READER: As a general rule in medicine, do the simplest thing first. In your case, this may mean absolutely nothing.

The uterus is normally suspended by tissue within the abdominal cavity. As a woman ages - especially if she has had children - the uterus may tend to fall (by gravity) lower into the pelvis. This can cause a sensation of pressure and "pulling." If the uterus "drops" (prolapses) far enough out of position, intercourse may be difficult, even painful. In advanced cases of mal-position, the uterus will actually protrude from the

The inaugural Pan American Championships were held June 5-14 in Corpus Christi, Texas. Players from 26 nations competed over the 10 days, with the United States making a clean sweep of the gold medals. The winners of the Championship Pairs were Eric Rodwell and Doug Simson. They played today's deal against the runners-up. Gabriel Chagas and Marcelo Branco from Brazil.

The auction is characteristic of Rodwell's approach to pairs events: very aggressive bidding in competition. Sitting West, he overcalled one spade with only a four-card suit when his primary suit had been opened on his right — hardly a textbook bid. Then, after his partner showed a maximum pass with three-card spade support, via the twodiamond cue-bid, Rodwell went for the jugular, doubling three diamonds for penalties.

Rodwell led his singleton heart. The declarer, Branco, won with dummy's king, finessed his club queen successfully, cashed the club ace and ruffed his club loser in the dummy. Next came a low spade to the queen and king. Rodwell returned a spade to his partner's ace and received a heart ruff.

West exited with the spade jack, forcing South to ruff. How-ever, now Branco knew the lie of the cards and was able to restrict West to only two more trump tricks. However, one down, plus 100 to East-West, gave the champions almost all the mat-chpoints — far more than their final winning margin of three points.
