Death thought to be suicide

SANFORD — Brian Bentz, who was found dead in the doorway of his house at 677 LaSal Drive, rural Altamonte Springs, at about 4 p.m. Sunday, probably committed suicide, Seminole Sheriff's Sgt. Greg Barnett said today.

Investigators initially thought Bentz might have been the victim of a homicide, but Barnett said evidence to support that has not been found. Bentz reportedly was having emotional and family problems. He left behind a note, but Barnett said he doesn't consider the note a suicide note.

An autopsy performed in Sanford Tuesday showed Bentz was stabbed once in the chest with a kitchen knife found within a few feet of his body, Barnett said. Bentz was apparently at home alone when he died, Barnett said. Results from lab tests related to the autopsy won't be available for a few weeks.

It's summer vacation...

SANFORD — School's out for summer! While most of the students will be gone from the classrooms until the fall, some high school and middle school teachers and students will be back for summer school beginning June 18.

"Some people are really already on the year 'round calendar," joked Dr. Robert O'Dell, district coordinator of year 'round schools.

While many parents have greeted the suggestion of the modified school calendar with some apprehension, O'Dell said the teachers have voiced little opposition to the possibility.

"But, really, we haven't introduced the new calendar and students will be off for three months after today," he said.

Most schools have chosen not to make "a big deal" out of the last day, though many elementary school teachers had their own parties in their classrooms over the last week.

"We're trying to keep the craziness to a minimum," said Caren Gager, principal at Hamilton Elementary School, 1501 E. 8th St., Sanford. "The children are excited enough."

At Wilson Elementary, 985 Orange Blvd., Sanford, it has become a tradition for the teachers to send their students off at the end of the day by assembling outside the school and do "the wave" as the buses pull away from the curb for the final time.

Many teachers face the day with mixed emotions. While summer brings a needed respite from the hectic rat race, they find themselves saddened by the "loss" of their class.

"It's like losing someone close to you," said Debbie Carl, a first year teacher at Seminole High School, 2701 Georgia Ave., Sanford. "You'll never have this particular group of kids together again and that's sad."

Hazel Perichief, who teaches fifth grade at Lake Mary Elementary School, 132 Country Club Road, Lake Mary, said she has been teaching for nearly a quarter of a century, but she is still sad on the last day of school.

"It's hard to see them go," she said.

The high school students left quietly over the last two days as they wrapped up their exams but SANFORD — Four Seminole County high schools will be sending their graduates on their way this evening with graduations and parties.

At 7 p.m. at Central Baptist Church, Pastor Freddy Smith will spiritually prepare those students and their families who wish to attend for tomorrow's graduation. Tommy Jacobs, pastor of Pinecrest Baptist Church, and Ron Merthie, pastor of New Word Life Church, will also speak to the graduates.

"The schools are not sponsoring baccalaureates any more," said Gail Stewart, a parent who helped organize the service, "but a lot of the parents and the graduates wanted it."

At 7:30 p.m. commencement ceremonies kick off at Lake Howell and Oviedo high schools. At 8 p.m. students at Lake Mary and Lake Brantley high schools will collect their diplomas.

All the graduations will be at the schools' stadiums. Lake Howell students Jason Clark, Brian Acton and Jodi Maternowski will address their fellow graduates. See Graduation, Page 5A

THE ENVIRONMENT

Several states, such as Pennsylvania, have invested in special equipment to be used in cleaning up toxic waste sites. At least 1,200 such sites exist, including one in north Miami.

Environmentalists want bills vetoed

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's leading environmental groups Wednesday urged Gov. Bob Martinez to veto several bills they say will undermine general environmental and growth management laws.

Most of the bills are local items that environmentalists say will gradually chip away at larger, more significant environmental legislation.

The most damaging bill to the environment would be a change in growth management laws designed to benefit Florida's less-populated cities and inland counties.

The measure would allow cities with a population of less than 3,500 people or inland counties with fewer than 25,000 people to reduce the scope of their growth management plans. But environmentalists said the plan was environmentally unsound.

"That bill represents a significant undermining of growth management," said Jim Murley, president of 1000 Friends of Florida.

THE AX, PLEASE

Environmentalists want the governor to veto the following local bills that they said undermine state environmental and growth laws.

• A bill allowing a section of land annexed by the city of Deerfield Beach to fall under Broward County's comprehensive plan.

• A bill that would exempt parts of St. Johns County from coastal construction laws.

• An appropriation of $6 million from the Pollution Control Recovery Trust Fund to help clean up a toxic waste dump in North Miami that's on the federal Superfund list. Environmentalists said the appropriation would wipe out the trust fund.

• An amendment to a Senate bill making it a second-degree misdemeanor to intentionally harass a hunter or a fisherman on public wildlife management areas or waters. Environmentalists said all lawful outdoor activities should be protected from harassment, not just hunting and fishing.

City to redefine current two-clerk store ordinance

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

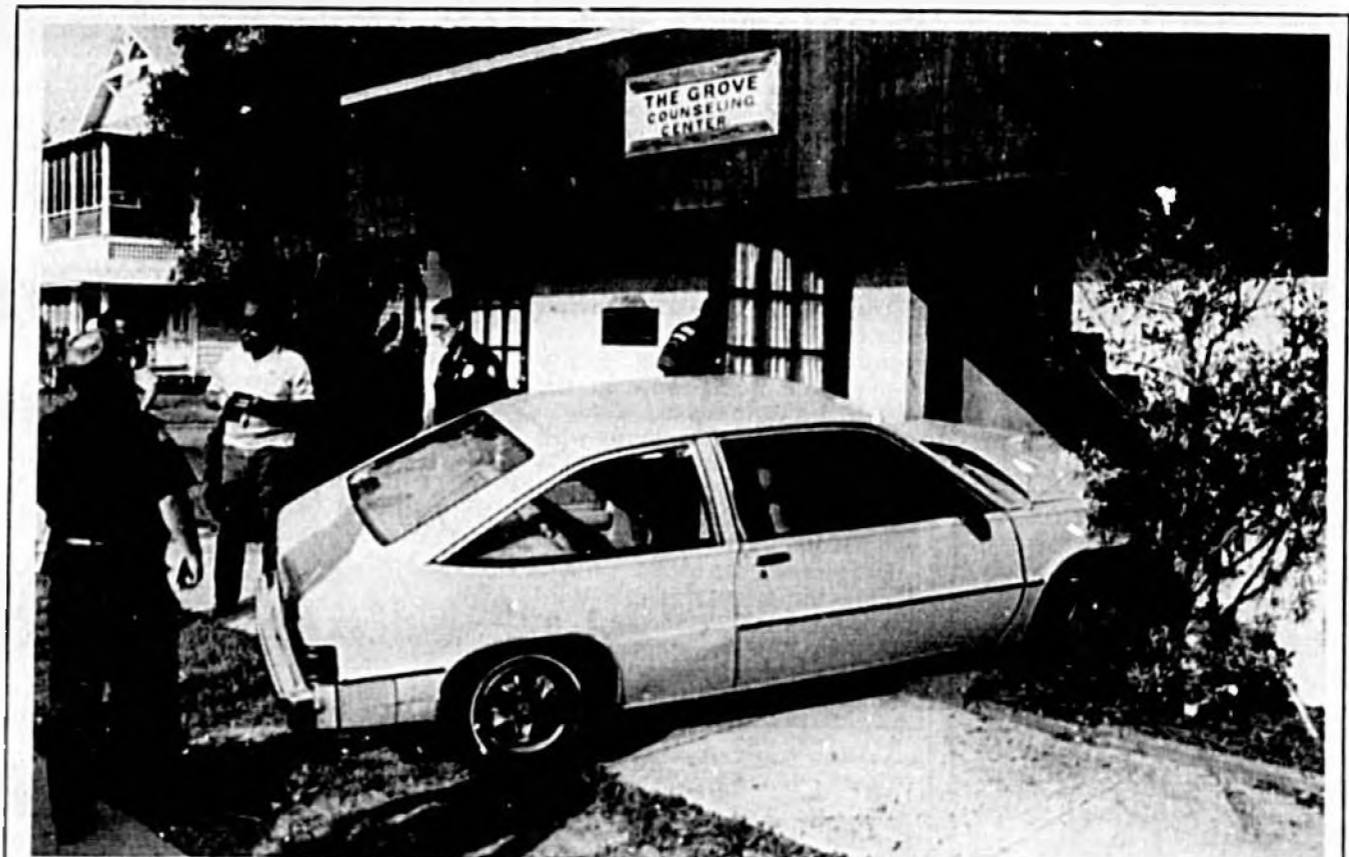

SANFORD — In an effort to make businesses less susceptible to burglary and robbery, the city will be redefining its definition of convenience store at the city commission meeting Monday, said a city official.

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said by rewriting the definition to include businesses that sell groceries and that are open for business during late-night hours, retail stores such as Circle-K and 7-Eleven would be included in the definition and would thus be required to have two employees in the store between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. Harriett said the businesses would also be required to have some kind of security system such as alarms or surveillance cameras.

Harriett said he had asked the Sanford city attorney to review the city's definition of convenience store to suggest a revision that would make the stores safer during late-night hours, which is when robberies are most likely to occur.

Harriett said that requiring two clerks to be on duty late at night

Bold burglars hit lawyer's office

MILTON — Proximity to the sheriff's department did not help a lawyer as burglars stole thousands of dollars worth of equipment and ransacked his office this week, police said Wednesday.

The office of attorney Dan Stewart, which is less than a block from the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Department, was burglarized Monday night. The suspects apparently entered the building through a back window, Milton police said.

The floor of the office was littered with clothes, books, furniture, paintings and files. Several thousand dollars worth of equipment and a semi-automatic weapon were stolen, said Capt. Bob Young.

Young said the suspects had stacked several other items near the back window when something apparently scared them away. "Maybe they saw a couple of squad cars go by," Young said.

No arrests were made.

Sheriff's son goes on trial

MILTON — After three judges excused themselves, an Escambia County judge has finally agreed to hear a case involving felony charges against the son of a sheriff.

Escambia County Circuit Judge Joseph Q. Tarbuck has agreed to hear evidence in the trial of Jeffery Coffman, 21. The trial is currently scheduled to begin Aug. 20.

Coffman, son of Santa Rosa County Sheriff Maurice Coffman, is charged with felony baiting or fighting animals and animal cruelty for allegedly hanging a cat from a tree so his dog could maul it.

Coffman originally faced misdemeanor charges, but a state attorney from Tallahassee, who was asked to handle the case decided to upgrade the charges to felonies.

U.S. challenges wetland housing project

FORT LAUDERDALE — Two federal agencies challenged a housing community expansion plan that would swallow 2,200 acres of swampy fields at the edge of the Everglades.

The dispute centers on how many acres of wetland must be replaced before the company developing Weston, Arvida/JMB Partners, can build a 4,000-acre addition to its planned community in southwest Broward County.

Arvida offered to create 289 acres of wetlands, mostly lining lakes and roads on the property, as mitigation for destroying the natural wetlands.

The Army Corps of Engineers, the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service objected. They said the proposal would not nearly make up for about 2,200 acres of marshy pasture — 1,852 acres of which are federally protected wetlands — that would be lost.

The corps said Arvida should replace the lost marshes with 358 acres of manmade wetlands inside Weston, and restore another 215 acres of natural wetland outside the boundaries.

But the other two agencies said Wednesday that even that was not enough. If the Corps approves the plan without requiring at least another 400 acres of wetland improvements, the EPA said it would exercise its seldom-used power to veto the corps' decision.

Sports arena 1, soup kitchen 0

MIAMI — Camillus House operators have agreed to move their soup kitchen and homeless shelter away from the Miami Arena and have dropped plans for satellite feeding centers.

The brothers of the Good Shepherd made the concessions Wednesday in a compromise aimed at ending the shelter's five-year battle with the Miami City Commission.

Commissioners have been trying to move the shelter since 1985, saying long lines of people outside the kitchen interfered with efforts to convert the neighborhood into a middle-class area and scared tenants away from new high-rise apartments.

The commission was scheduled Thursday to consider a proposal to move the shelter farther north, to a neighborhood made up largely of warehouses. There is already another shelter, the Miami Rescue Mission, in that neighborhood.

The brothers had hoped to replace their food line with scattered meal programs run by churches and temples throughout the city but could not find enough institutions to participate.

County wins $25 million in damages

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Pinellas County won a $25 million judgment for the 1979 rupture of a faulty water pipeline.

In 1978, several companies worked to install a giant concrete water main to bring 40 million gallons of water a day over 13 miles from Pasco to Pinellas County. But the next year, the pipeline ruptured, creating a huge crater that nearly swallowed a condominium in the East Lake area.

Pinellas County filed suit against the pipeline builders. Since the original problems, the pipeline has failed two more times, in 1987 and 1989.

Judge quiets 2 Live Crew; scolds sheriff

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — A sheriff won a partial victory in federal court when an album by the rap group 2 Live Crew was ruled obscene, but he was told he acted unconstitutionally by threatening to arrest people selling it.

U.S. District Judge Jose Gonzales issued his judgment on the album "As Nasty As They Wanna Be" Wednesday in a 62-page ruling. He said the album — already ruled obscene in eight Florida counties — was legally obscene because it depicts sexual acts and has no redeeming social value.

Broward County Sheriff Nick Navarro tried earlier this year to block the sale of the album by threatening to arrest store operators selling it in his jurisdiction.

Gonzales ruled the sheriff's action amounted to "an improper prior restraint of free speech" and enjoined him from similar actions in the future.

"It is the court's and not non-judicial officials who must decide whether a specific work is obscene," he said.

And Gonzalez decided the album was obscene. Although he said 2 Live Crew had not necessarily committed any crime, he left open the possibility of future prosecution.

Gonzales said his ruling did not constitute a criminal finding. "It must be emphasized at the outset that this decision does not criminalize the plaintiff's conduct, nor does it charge anyone with a crime. That is a matter for the police and the criminal courts to determine," he said.

It is a first-degree misdemeanor to manufacture, distribute, sell or possess with intent to sell obscene material in Florida, the sheriff's spokesman Al Gordon said. Violators face up to one year in jail and a fine of $1,000.

The judge heard two days of testimony in May after 2 Live Crew challenged Navarro's action in U.S. District Court. Wednesday's ruling applies to Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties.

Bruce Rogow, a lawyer for the rap group, said the ruling would be appealed.

Robyn Blumner, executive director of the Florida chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, denounced the decision.

"This is a record album, this is music, and in Broward County today an adult cannot choose to indulge in a certain form of music that some judge has determined ... is criminal," he said.

The judge said he considered the album as a whole when judging it. "2 Live Crew has 'borrowed' components called 'riffs' from other artists," Gonzalez's ruling said. "Taking the work in its entirety, the several riffs do not lift 'Nasty' to the level of a serious artistic work.

"Once the riffs are removed, all that remains is the rhythm and the explicit sexual lyrics, which are utterly without any redeeming social value," he said.

Gonzales also said the album appealed to prurient interests, and was patently offensive, two other tests used by federal courts to determine obscenity.

"The recording depicts sexual conduct in graphic detail. The specificity of the descriptions makes the audio message analogous to a camera with a zoom lens, focusing on the sights and sounds of various ultimate sex acts," the judge said.

"The depictions of ultimate sexual acts are so vivid that they are hard to distinguish from seeing the same conduct described in the words of a book, or in pictures and periodicals and films," Gonzalez said.

Napping inspector resigns

United Press International

MIAMI — A boiler inspector who could not be fired even though a grand jury caught him napping on the job has solved Dade County's dilemma by resigning.

Building and Zoning director Jorge Rodriguez said Tuesday that Inspector Edwin Biggerman, 61, had resigned last week, one day after The Miami Herald published a story about a supervisor's efforts to fire him.

Biggerman's boss had tried to fire him two weeks ago. He was convinced that Biggerman was the unidentified inspector who, according to the grand jury's report, had skipped several inspections and spent the afternoon reading newspapers and dozing at a public library during work hours.

But Rodriguez said the county could not fire him because the grand jury refused to identify the offender and there was no proof it was Biggerman.

"By his resignation, he admitted it," Rodriguez said. "We got rid of one bad apple."

Rodriguez also said the county would discipline a second inspector who admitted that he was the one grand jury investigators had caught watching women at a bowling alley in the middle of a workday.

Rodriguez said he would decide "in a couple of days" what action to take.

Engineers hang 'out of order' sign on shuttle; no launch until August

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Engineers pumped liquid hydrogen aboard the shuttle Columbia Wednesday, confirming a leak in a critical fuel line fitting that will require a trip back to the hangar for repairs, possibly delaying launch to early August.

While the exact location of the leak was not immediately clear, the 2½-hour fueling test confirmed that it only shows up when supercold liquid hydrogen is pumped through a critical "quick disconnect" fitting where the ship's 17-inch-wide fuel line enters the belly of the orbiter.

"We were somewhat successful (finding the leak) and that's good," said launch director Robert Seick. "Unfortunately, we don't like what we found."

"We did confirm there is a leak in the cavity ... where the propellant lines go between the orbiter and the external tank. In order to fix anything in this area we're going to have to (remove) the orbiter from the tank."

He said the test results appeared to eliminate any possibility of a problem that can be corrected at the launch pad, although additional tests are planned to further refine knowledge of the leak's location.

In any case, Columbia is expected to be hauled back to its hangar sometime next week for extensive repairs that could delay launch until early August, after a July flight by the shuttle Atlantis.

"We don't see anything that's going to keep us from having to travel to the VAB based on today's test results," Seick said. "I think it's a given."

He said a new launch date will not be set until engineers determine what repairs will be needed.

"It's a complex system and things don't always go per the plan," he said. "Our goal is to fly when the vehicle's ready to fly; and safety's the first priority. We've got an item here that we absolutely have got to put to bed. And we're going to do that."

The leak is located somewhere in the area where the shuttle's primary 17-inch-wide fuel line butts up against the belly of the orbiter.

A critical seal in the 17-inch quick disconnect fitting is one suspect. Another is problems with internal "shaft seals" near giant valves that close just before the external tank is jettisoned in space.

Yet a third possibility involves the alignment of the external tank. The giant fuel tank's shuttle attachment struts were not machined properly and as a result, the tank is 200-thousandths of an inch out of perfect alignment. The specification is 90-thousandths of an inch.

"The rumors floating around now are that the tank misalignment caused the problem," said an engineer who asked not to be named. "This tank was so far out of alignment compared to what's allowable, they're afraid it could have warped the 17-inch disconnect on the orbiter side."

If the problem is traced to the tank side of the fitting, engineers could simply replace the rust-colored tank. But if it is traced to internal shuttle mechanisms, Columbia could be faced with an even longer launch delay.

In any case, sources say NASA managers likely will delay Columbia's 10-day astronomy mission until at least early August in order to launch the shuttle Atlantis around July 11 on a secret military mission.

Columbia's 10-day astronomy mission originally was scheduled for launch May 30, but the 36th shuttle flight was put on hold when hydrogen gas spewed into the ship's engine compartment during fuel loading.

Extensive room-temperature tests to pinpoint the leak using helium in place of hydrogen were unsuccessful. NASA managers ordered Wednesday's fueling test in the belief the problem only shows up in the presence of supercold liquid hydrogen.

Teen murder suspect charged in plot to kill witness

United Press International

CLEARWATER — A teenager charged with killing a friend appeared before a Pinellas County judge Wednesday to face an additional allegation that he tried to hire a hit man to murder a 15-year-old witness.

Beau Jason Staples, 18, an inmate at the Pinellas County Jail since his arrest for murder last year, was charged late Tuesday with solicitation to commit first-degree murder, which is punishable by a maximum of 30 years in prison.

Staples, a Safety Harbor resident, approached a Pinellas County deputy posing as a hit man inside the jail and offered the deputy $2,000 to kill the witness, Marianne Pasha, spokeswoman for the sheriff's department said.

The witness' name was not released because he is a minor, she said.

Records show Staples has been held without bail since April 1989, and is scheduled to be tried on a first-degree murder charge June 19 for the shooting death of William R. Casey Jr.

Staples, Casey, the 15-year-old witness and 17-year-old Joshua Walther went into woods in Oldsmar April 10, 1989, Pasha said.

The 15-year-old witness told investigators that Staples shot Casey twice in the back with a shotgun. When the unidentified boy tried to get away, Walther choked and kicked the boy into unconsciousness, Pasha said.

The witness told police he was left for dead near Casey's body. When the youth regained consciousness, he called police.

Walther, who has been living in another state with relatives, was charged with attempted first-degree murder in the choking of the unidentified witness.

SANFORD — A man photographed as he allegedly grabbed and stole $401 worth of state lottery tickets from a counter at Wareco Food Store, 110 N. French Ave., Sanford, has been arrested.

Sanford police report the arrest of the suspect identified only as John Doe was made at 2:37 p.m. Thursday at Fountain Lodge in Sanford, after the suspect was linked to the crime by a photo taken during the theft Tuesday.

Accused escapee arrested

SANFORD — A man accused of escaping from a Seminole County sheriff's deputy after his arrest April 25 on a possession of cocaine charge, has been arrested on a warrant.

Sheriff's deputies report arresting Lawrence Jacobs, 22, 508 Peachtree Lane, Altamonte Springs, at the county jail at 10:10 a.m. Wednesday on charges of escape and possession of cocaine. He is held without bond.

Rinehart speed limit reduced

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — The new reduced speed limit on Rinehart Road in Lake Mary went into effect May 31, according to an announcement from Department of Public Safety Director Charles W. Lauderdale.

The speed limit was reduced from 50 mph to 40 mph. A 30-mph zone is now on the south end of the roadway, beginning on the southern end of the road approximately 1/10 mile to the north of its current location.

The change, approved by the Lake Mary City Commission at its May 17 meeting, was made to enhance the safety of the motoring public, officials said. In requesting the change, Lauderdale cited the increasing volume of traffic, the number of large trucks using the roadway and the number of egress points approved and/or planned for the roadway.

An adjustment period of 30 days will be in effect until July 1. During this period, officers will normally issue written warnings for speeding violations within the safety tolerance.

Sanford may liberalize sign code

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — While Seminole County and other cities in the county are stiffening their sign ordinances, the Sanford city commission will soon review a proposal to allow more liberal placing of signs.

"The law is a little strict right now," City Manager Frank Falson said. "If it would help developers to change it, then why not? We could be a little more lenient."

A memorandum drafted by Falson and City Building Inspector Gary Winn outlines five proposals for change in the ordinance. Falson said two major changes in the ordinance concerned the placement of off-point-of-sale signs advertising housing developments and signs placed at the entrances to such developments as shopping centers that have several businesses located in the same area.

The current ordinance does not allow for placing signs advertising housing developments off the site of sale.

Voters file suit attacking at-large judicial elections

By MICHAEL MOLINE
UPI writer

TALLAHASSEE — Federal class-action lawsuits filed in Jacksonville and Tallahassee attack the at-large system of electing trial judges as "one of the last bastions of segregation," a civil rights organization said Wednesday.

The lawsuits, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court on behalf of black voters, seek review of the judicial elections for Leon and Duval county court judges, and for circuit judges in the second and fourth circuits.

But the cases were expected to have statewide impact.

"The judiciary is one of the last bastions of segregation in government in this country," said Robert McDuff of the Lawyer's Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, a Washington group that has successfully pressed similar lawsuits in Texas, Louisiana, Georgia and North Carolina.

Blacks comprise 31 percent of the population of the second circuit, which includes Tallahassee, and 25 percent of Leon County, yet no black has ever been elected to either the county or the circuit bench. Blacks comprise about one-quarter of Duval County and the fourth circuit, but the only two blacks on the bench there were appointed to their positions.

"This is the result of the at-large election system that is used to elect these judges, where white voters, who constitute only a portion of the electorate, elect all of the judges. As a result, black voters have no voice in electing any of the judges who exercise power..." McDuff said in a press conference.

Scotty's stores recalls portable propane grills

From staff reports

Scotty's Home Centers have recalled portable tabletop gas grills sold during the past two years in their stores in Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

Although no injuries related to use of the grills have been reported, Scotty's is recalling the grills because of concerns that a disposable propane gas cylinder may pose a fire hazard, company officials said in a release this week.

The grills, which sold for about $20, are black with plastic handles and chrome legs. The grill was sold as Scotty's SKU

#671177. Similar grills with wooden handles or marked with any brand name are not being recalled.

Consumers who have a recalled grill, or who need to know if their grill is safe, should disconnect the propane cylinder immediately, then take the grill to a local Scotty's store. The grill may be returned for a full refund, or exchanged for a new grill.

In Seminole County, Scotty's stores are located at 700 French Ave., Sanford; 200 E. Altamonte Drive, Altamonte Springs; and 875 W. State Road 436, Altamonte Springs.

UF wants Rawlings manuscript

United Press International

OCALA — The University of Florida said it has legal rights to an unpublished manuscript and other papers by Pulitzer Prize-winning author Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, but a South Carolina group won't give them up.

The Seajay Society, a nonprofit educational corporation in Columbia, S.C., claims that before her death, Rawlings gave her literary executor, the late Julia Scribner Bigham, possession of the unpublished "Blood of My Blood" and some published manuscripts.

The society later acquired the works from the executor's heirs through a book dealer, said Steve Matthews, a society lawyer and board member.

He said the group intends to turn Rawlings' documents over to the University of Florida, but not before "Blood of My Blood" and other works are edited and published.

The university has not decided whether it will sue or intervene.

Longwood hires interim attorney after firing Taylor

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Following the city commission's 3-to-2 vote to fire city attorney Richard Taylor, efforts are underway to obtain the services of a new counsel. Following the ouster vote during Monday night's meeting, Mayor

Gene Farach instructed city administrator Mike Ables to take immediate action toward advertising for a new attorney.

Frank Kruppenbacher, who has been advising the city on labor law, will take over the position temporarily. He reportedly will be receiving $90 per hour for his services, the same for he receives for his normal legal services for the city.

The role of a city attorney is a busy one. The attorney is required to attend all regular and special city commission meetings as well as workshop sessions, prepare ordinances and resolutions as required, compile and approve all contracts to which the city is a party, make himself available to render legal advice and recommendations to the commissioners and city officials plus representing the city in various lawsuits or legal proceedings.

During his tenure, Taylor was being paid a contract price of $1,000 per month.

Judge: Fotopoulos tape may be used as evidence

United Press International

DAYTONA BEACH — A judge has ruled prosecutors in the Konstantin Fotopoulos double murder trial may show jurors a 57-second videotape of a man, bound to a tree, being shot four times.

Prosecutors allege Fotopoulos' voice can be heard on the tape and the woman firing the shots is Deidre Hunt. Fotopoulos' girlfriend who has pleaded guilty to two first-degree murder charges.

Authorities said the man being shot was Kevin Ramsey, an employee of Fotopoulos.

Fotopoulos is charged with first-degree murder in the Ramsey slaying. He also faces a first-degree murder charge for the slaying of hitman Bryan Chase, and five other charges, including attempted first-degree murder and conspiracy, for an alleged plot to kill his wife that failed.

Volusia County Circuit Judge James Foxman ruled on Tuesday that prosecutors could show the videotape to jurors.

Hope for AIDS kids

The Food and Drug Administration, which often has been painfully slow in licensing new drugs, deserves high praise for its accelerated approval of the antiviral AIDS drug AZT as a standard therapy for children with AIDS.

Since 1981, there have been 2,192 reported cases of AIDS in children under 13 in the United States and 1,182 of them have died. Epidemiologists estimate that 6,000 to 20,000 other U.S. children have the disease, with many of these infections still undiscovered.

The use of AZT to treat infected children actually began last October when the FDA provided access to the drug for humanitarian reasons well before its pediatric research program was complete. However, only about 525 children received the drug under that restrictive program. Since then, treatment has been started in about 500 more children through an FDA clinical trial program. In clearing the drug for general use, FDA correctly waived its normal rules for extensive testing. Results of the tests that were completed confirm that AZT is safe for children. But the drug's effectiveness in children is largely presumed on the basis of the positive effect it has had on adults with AIDS.

The approval to use AZT, which has been suspended in a strawberry syrup for children, means a much-improved outlook for young victims of the disease. In adults, the drug relieves AIDS symptoms, promotes weight gain, prolongs life and generally enhances the quality of life. The same dramatic benefits should be observed in children.

The FDA has demonstrated admirable courage and compassion by approving the use of this drug for children. Now it appears that the $1.750 estimated cost of treating AIDS-afflicted youngsters with AZT will be covered by private insurance and Medicaid.

If you have to ask...

If you have to ask the price of that Van Gogh, as J.P. Morgan once said about his yacht, you can't afford it. The answer, purely of academic interest, is $82.5 million — a lot more, barring Argentine-style inflation, than Rickie Henderson or Dave Stewart will make in their entire baseball careers and twice what Michael Milken used to make in a month. It was bought by a Japanese collector. When the picture was finally knocked down at Christie's, there was a standing ovation. It would take a philosopher of infinite wisdom to explain what the ovation was really for.

As everyone knows by now, the price fetched by "Portrait of Dr. Gachet" is the highest ever paid for a work of art. There was brief expectation the other day that the figure would quickly be topped by the price for another picture, Renoir's "Au Moulin de la Galette," but when the Renoir was auctioned — to the same Japanese buyer — it went for a mere $78.1 million. The buyer Ryouei Saito, is said to have mortgaged his landholdings to raise funds for the two paintings.

A great many people will lament all this attention to money in the art business. Van Gogh, it will be pointed out, couldn't have afforded the price of the catalog. Monets and Picassos are fetching millions, but other works of equal merit are being neglected. And yet, at the same time that the prices of the blockbusters have been going through the roof, the crowds in the galleries and the general interest in art have grown commensurately.

There certainly is a connection, though it may not be obvious. Both in the auction houses and in the galleries, people seem not only to be perceiving the value of art, however defined, but developing a greater sense that this seems to be a world in which the gap between the proliferating amounts of June and the things of real value becomes larger every day. There is only one Chartres Cathedral, only one Hamlet, only one "Portrait of Dr. Gachet."

Auto gridlock reaches the desert

TEMPE, Ariz. — It's 5:30 p.m. on a typical weekday and the traffic situation is normal at the intersection of the Superstition Freeway and Interstate 10: Cars, trucks and assorted other vehicles are backed up for miles in every direction. In the Phoenix metropolitan area — one of the fastest growing urban centers in the country — traffic congestion almost certainly will become worse before it gets better because its residents refuse to pay for improved mass transit.

That situation is hardly unique. Cincinnati, Columbus and Milwaukee are among the other cities that in recent years have backed away from plans to initiate rapid rail systems.

In Dallas, voters in 1988 rejected a referendum that would have authorized the issuance of $1 billion worth of bonds to help finance a $3 billion mass transit system. Its centerpiece was to have been a 93-mile-long rapid rail network.

As traffic became congealed on both interstate highways and city streets, Dallas transportation planners scaled back. Their plans now call for a smaller rail system and greater reliance upon an expanded bus network.

Even that didn't satisfy some residents of five Dallas suburbs. They forced recall elections last year of the public officials who approved the modified plans. After hard-fought campaigns, mass transit advocates beat back the opposition in four of the five communities.

Las Vegas, like Phoenix, is a relatively new but fast growing city whose planners initially believed they could cope with growing traffic by establishing a broad grid of wide city streets in the unlimited space an open desert setting afforded.

Although that worked until recently, traffic now is routinely clogged in both cities. Moreover, in Las Vegas, gambling industry executives oppose proposals to build a rapid rail line to carry visitors along "The Strip" — the famed section of Las Vegas Boulevard lined by casinos.

Phoenix is in even worse shape because the conservative politicians who controlled Arizona rejected federal assistance offered under the interstate highway program, contending that such aid was an unwarranted government handout. That program would have provided 90 percent of the required funds but it now has lapsed.

As a result, Maricopa County — which includes Phoenix and its suburbs — has far fewer high-speed, limited-access freeways than most other metropolitan areas of comparable size.

In 1985, county voters belatedly approved a 0.5 cent sales tax increase which was to pay for 231 miles of new freeways at a cost of $5.8 billion during a 20-year period.

But the costs of acquiring rights-of-way and constructing the highways have soared while an economic downturn has produced a decline in sales tax revenues.

The Regional Public Transportation Authority originally recommended a 30-year, $10 billion plan that called for not only freeway expansion but also more than 100 miles of elevated rapid rail lines and the addition of 1,200 buses.

That proposal would have required a local contribution of $6 billion, to be collected through another sales tax increase. Last year, however, voters rejected it by a decisive 3-2 margin — even though it was supported by many political and business leaders.

U.S. space trash a serious problem

WASHINGTON — A few summitty subjects never get raised in superpower chats in the Oval Office, such as the issue of man-made garbage floating in space. Yet, as the Cold War thaws, it is more likely that an American will be killed by Soviet space trash than by a nuclear weapon.

Some 6,700 pieces of large junk, including obsolete satellites, and billions of pieces of small junk, including paint flecks, are orbiting the Earth right now. If they don't kill someone when they fall to the Earth, then they pose a significant threat to astronauts. At 17,500 miles an hour, even a paint fleck can be fatal to a space-walker.

Without the flare of arms-reduction talks, U.S. and Soviet officials are quietly conducting junk-reduction talks. The first meeting was held last December without any public announcement. The most intriguing aspect of these private talks is that neither the White House nor the State Department took the initiative. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is handling the agreement in hopes of keeping politics out of it.

NASA has struck a preliminary working agreement with the European Space Agency, which has been leaving thousands of pieces of debris in space from its Ariane rockets. The U.S. North American Aerospace Defense Command, or NORAD, in Colorado has counted more than 20,000 major pieces of junk since the Soviets launched Sputnik in 1957. Most of it has burned up or fallen to Earth. But the remaining pieces are potentially deadly to humans and a costly hazard to working satellites. NORAD has to keep close tabs on the junk so it isn't mistaken for hostile missiles.

Beyond the trackable pieces, there are literally billions of other specks of debris traveling at high speed in low Earth orbit. At least three, and possibly more catastrophic collisions have occurred in recent space history, destroying U.S. and Soviet satellites. The floating garbage includes a glove lost by American astronaut Ed White in his 1965 space walk.

Astronaut Mike Collins inadvertently created the first "Swedish satellite" when he lost his grip on a Swedish-made Hasselblad camera during a space walk in 1966. Much of the floating trash loses its orbit and burns up on re-entry. Only the biggest chunks of falling trash pose a hazard on Earth. The largest single piece of junk to fall from the sky was the 82-ton Skylab in 1979. It broke into sizable chunks that rained over Australia and the South Pacific. The Soviet Cosmos space station similarly sprinkled over Canada in 1978.

The likelihood of them striking an earth-bound human being is slim, but astronauts are in danger, as is costly equipment. It's tough to stop the scattering of paint fragments burned off of space craft by the sun, but NASA officials are determined to stop the deliberate littering of space. In the late 1960s and 1970s, the Soviets were testing anti-satellite weapons which they deliberately blew up in space, producing hundreds of pieces of floating shrapnel. Between 1975 and 1983, the Soviets exploded 11 electronic surveillance satellites.

The United States can take the blame for debris from at least one accidental explosion of the second stage of Delta rockets which spontaneously blew up three years after they were left in space. The NASA negotiators may even address the sensitive subject of the Soviet's throwaway mentality. The cosmonauts have a habit of tossing trash bags out of their Mir space station.

GEORGE F. WILL

Electoral College should evolve

WASHINGTON — The revolutionary has a disarming name: Skip Roberts. ("Skip" Lenin? Somehow, no.) Do not be deceived. He means to topple civilization or, what is much the same thing, the Electoral College as it currently functions.

He is head of the Electoral Fairness Project. He wants states to legislate an end to the custom of winner-take-all allocations of states' electoral votes. Instead, they would award one vote to a presidential candidate for each congressional district she or he carried. The two additional votes each state has would go to the candidate who has the most votes statewide.

Many Americans will be startled to learn that the current system, under which a candidate receiving a majority or even just a plurality of a state's votes gets all that state's electoral votes, is not a constitutional requirement. This practice, so central to the success of our constitutional arrangements, is only a custom.

In 1968, Maine abandoned this system in favor of the idea Roberts favors (others have favored it, perhaps even James Madison). So far the results in Maine have been just what the old system would have produced. In 1988, for example, Bush beat Dukakis in Maine 55.3 percent to 43.9 percent, but won all four votes because he carried both congressional districts.

So, as Maine goes, so shall go the nation? A reasonable first reaction is, Heaven forbid! America's system for electing an executive is the most successful in the world. And this is the rule of life: Most improvements make matters worse. But hear Roberts out, even if he is a Democrat and open to the charge that losers try to change rules. (From time to time Republicans have flirted with Roberts' idea.)

If Roberts' rules had obtained in 1988, Dukakis would still have been trounced, but probably would have won at least 155 rather than 112 electoral votes. One cannot say for sure, because both candidates would have campaigned quite differently — which is Roberts' point.

He says his reform would increase voter interest and activism by multiplying the number of contested constituencies in which both candidates could consider themselves competitive. In many presidential years, the outcome in many states — sometimes in more than half of them — is not seriously in doubt by September. Naturally, voter interest and turnout decline. But within many such states, some districts might be hotly contested under Roberts' plan.

He notes that the Dukakis campaign shut down in Florida on Sept. 10. But there are eight Florida districts that generally vote Democratic in national elections. Dukakis only (and barely) carried one. But, then, under the winner-take-all system, with Florida's statewide result a foregone conclusion, he had no reason to "cherry pick" for electoral votes in promising districts.

Roberts thinks his reform would diminish candidates' dependence on television and increase reliance on grass-roots organization. For example, he says Democrats are usually competitive in four of the eight districts in Houston's expensive media market. Democrats would have an incentive to use on-the-ground activism to target those districts, rather than saturate the area with expensive over-the-air campaigning.

If so, his reform would counter what he considers an unfortunate effect of public financing of campaigns. "You get nominated and some GS-16 shows up with a check for $50 million," thereby underscoring the irrelevance of party organizations.

Furthermore, Roberts says, his reform would encourage interweaving of presidential and congressional campaigns, thus producing more coherent mandates. Perhaps.

But perhaps his idea would injure the Democratic Party today. Suddenly Jesse Jackson, who is never going to be the Democratic nominee, would hope to pluck electoral votes with an independent candidacy. Such a candidacy would siphon votes from the Democratic ticket.

True, only 124 of the 435 congressional districts have black majorities. But 25 districts are more than 40 percent black, 86 more than 20 percent black. Jackson could have jolly fun in a three-person race.

Roberts says don't worry. He notes that John Anderson's third-party effort did not carry a single district in 1980. But Roberts is assuming the continuance of traditions of political temperance that are partly a product of the system he is trying to tamper with.

By discouraging ideological and charismatic fragmentation, the statewide winner-take-all practice makes for moderate majorities. And it usefully magnifies the decisiveness of elections when popular vote totals are close (as in 1960, 1968, 1976).

The lower houses of the legislatures in Connecticut and North Carolina have passed Roberts' plan.

Dukakis only carried one. But, he had no reason to 'cherry pick' for electoral votes.

Some 6,700 pieces of large junk, including obsolete satellites, are orbiting the Earth.

Teachers' union begins negotiations

SANFORD — The Seminole County school district and the Seminole Education Association, the teachers' union, began negotiations today on the ratification of a new three-year contract. The current contract expires on June 30.

The union began presenting their proposal to the district at 10:30 a.m. Nancy Wheeler, chief negotiator for the SEA, declined to comment on the content of their proposal.

Ernest Cowley, chief negotiator for the district, said he had "no idea" what sorts of things the union would bring up, but felt sure that at this point the union was more interested in discussing "language rather than money." He said the financial discussions would come later in the negotiations.

Cowley will bring the union's proposals to Supt. Bob Hughes who will discuss them with the school board's executive committee before the two sides return to the negotiating table on July 9 for intense negotiations which will continue until the final agreement is signed.

Cowley said he did not foresee any problems in reaching an agreement with the teachers, though he said the process may "take a while," because each item in the agreement will be discussed.

Longwood noise ordinance approved

LONGWOOD — Although what might be called an "anti-boom-box" ordinance was unanimously approved by the city commission on first reading earlier this week, it won't be official for awhile.

According to City Administrator Mike Abels, "A first reading basically means the proposed ordinance is accepted. It's during the second reading and a public hearing, when it can be officially adopted." Final approval is expected after a public hearing scheduled for June 18.

"The ordinance is aimed at the noise coming from motor vehicles," said Abels. It is written to include sounds from radios, tapes, CD's, or any other sound reproducing equipment in a motor vehicle. To become a violation, the sounds need only be heard for a distance of over 50 feet.

"The new law won't affect other sounds or music," said Abels, "such as the annual Longwood Arts festival music or other normal events."

acres of land he previously assured the county and state he would conserve in a natural state.

"It would appear that at least in the case of Sylvan Glade, that the dedication of conservation areas is only a device by which the developer may hold land in reserve in small chunks for future development," Harden wrote.

Harden wrote the Friends had been unaware of the May 22 commission meeting to consider the changes.

Harden wrote the Friends were "extremely disappointed" to learn of the concessions and wrote, "There has got to be a better way to insure the protection of the many conservation areas within those developments that are completed or underway, planned within the Wekiva River Protection Area."

Harden suggested those Wekiva River-area lands under a county conservation would be better protected if ownership or direct protection were transferred to the state "to insure that an incident such as Sylvan Glade does not occur again."

Harden could not be reached. In 1988, Sylvan Glade was the first of several large housing developments considered by the county in the newly-created Wekiva River Protection Area which was created by the state to protect the river and maintain low levels of development near the river.

To protect more wetlands on the 334-acre property east of Lake Sylvan, Arnold proposed to "cluster" the homes on small lots and allow the county to place conservation easements over 147 acres of wetlands and uplands and not build in them.

The county and state agreed with Arnold's plan and approved the development over the objections of the Friends, other environmentalists and residents of the area. Residents objected to the clustering approach, which they said was an excuse to build urban-density housing in rural areas.

As another concession to Lake Sylvan waterfront residents, Arnold promised to allow lake access to only those Sylvan Glade residents with lakefront homes.

On May 22, Arnold's engineer Hugh Harling told commissioners about five percent of the conservation areas would be needed to allow for Sylvan Glade garages to be built at the sides of homes, he also sought to allow pedestrian access to the lake from the development, along with any non-powered boats they could carry or drag to the

Fire strike s Trump's Florida home

United Press International

PALM BEACH — Fire broke out early Thursday in a guest bedroom at embattled Donald Trump's oceanfront 118-room mansion, causing smoke damage to several rooms in a guest wing, firefighters said.

Firefighters arrived at the estate, known as Mar-a-Lago, at 8:08 a.m. and extinguished the flames within 15 minutes. Fire-Rescue Department spokesman Ken Elmore said.

"The fire was confined to the bedroom and its contents," Elmore said. "It was in a two-story wing, a guest quarters wing off the main building. There was no structural damage.

There was some smoke damage to several other bedrooms that are in that wing."

The bedroom where the fire broke out was unoccupied and it was unclear whether any one was in the home when the fire began, Elmore said.

"All I saw were workmen," Elmore said.

There were no injuries and no indication how extensive the damage was at the home. The cause of the fire was not known.

The Mediterranean-style home was built by cereal magnate C.W. Post and sits on 17 acres along the Atlantic coast highway A1A. It has 58 bedrooms, 32 bathrooms, 27 servants rooms and three bomb shelters. Post's daughter, Marjorie Merriweather Post, lived there until her death in 1973 at age 86.

Trump bought the home four years ago for $8 million, said Norma Foerderer, a spokeswoman for the Trump Organization.

Published reports have indicated recently that Trump may be facing a cash crunch that could force him to sell off chunks of his empire.

Bankers owed some $2 billion by Trump are reportedly pressing for the sale of some assets, for management changes at Trump's principal holding company and for a much more conservative operating style.

Trump's business empire includes three Atlantic City casinos, prime Manhattan real estate and the Trump Shuttle linking Boston, New York and Washington.

Trump has been separated from his wife, Ivana, since February over a marital spat involving actress-model Marla Maples.

Ivana issued a statement of support for the embattled Trump this week.

"Donald and I are partners in marriage and in business," she said. "I will stand beside him through thick or thin and for better or worse."

Landscape artist 'Beanie' Backus dies at 84

United Press International

FORT PIERCE — Florida landscape artist Albert Ernest "Beanie" Backus died of an apparent heart attack. He was 84.

Backus, who had a history of heart problems, was admitted to Lawwood Regional Medical Center Wednesday afternoon and died a few hours later, a hospital spokesman said.

Backus' paintings of Florida scenes and tropical trees hang in the White House, the Lyndon B. Johnson Library in Austin, Texas, the Florida governor's mansion and in art schools and private homes throughout the world.

Former Gov. Bob Graham, now a U.S. Senator, once cited Backus as "the best known representational artist in the state."

"I paint for people who want things identified. The abstract artists paint for people who look for pictures and make their own identification, creating their own pictures," Backus once told a Miami Herald columnist.

"My pictures are representational but by no means photographic. If you try to put everything in a picture that you see in a scene, the picture becomes too detailed, too busy, uninteresting. I edit a scene just as a writer edits a story, cutting out the unimportant, uninteresting things, leaving in the colorful moods or creating dramatic things," he said.

Jim Hutchinson of Sewall's Point, a noted painter of Seminole Indians and Florida scenes, said Backus "was one of the kindest, most generous, outgoing persons, and, of course, he was my brother-in-law."

Hutchinson said Backus met his sister, Patsy, fell in love with her but couldn't get near her. One day, he called her to say he'd be glad to give art lessons to her brother.

"She said, 'Fine,' and took me down there," Hutchinson said. "Beanie never gave me one damn lesson. All he did was court and marry Patsy."

They married in 1950, and Patsy died five years later of a heart embolism. They had no children and Backus never remarried.

Backus was born Jan. 3, 1906 in Fort Pierce, the fourth son of a pioneer family. Shortly after his birth, family friend Ted Justice nicknamed him "Beanpot" and it became "Beanie."

Backus found his talent at age 6 when his mother gave him a set of watercolors. He sold his first painting for $1 at age 17, according to his biography, "A.E. Backus: Florida Artist," by Olive Dame Peterson.

"My father thought I'd starve," Backus said. Backus dropped out of high school but Florida Atlantic University awarded him an honorary doctorate of humane letters, about which he said, "It's kind of funny for someone who never graduated from high school."

Backus leaves behind more than a dozen artists who learned his style as students in his studio on the banks of the Indian River Lagoon and many local people he sent through college.

"Nobody really knows all the things Beanie did for young people," said Claire Jinks, who grew up near the Backus studio.

The Fort Pierce Art Gallery in Memorial Park, near his studio, began with a collection of Backus paintings. But Backus objected to naming the gallery after himself, saying he was "alive and kicking."

Funeral arrangements were pending at Yates Funeral Home in Fort Pierce.

acres of land he previously assured the county and state he would conserve in a natural state.

"It would appear that at least in the case of Sylvan Glade, that the dedication of conservation areas is only a device by which the developer may hold land in reserve in small chunks for future development," Harden wrote.

Harden wrote the Friends had been unaware of the May 22 commission meeting to consider the changes.

Harden wrote the Friends were "extremely disappointed" to learn of the concessions and wrote, "There has got to be a better way to insure the protection of the many conservation areas within those developments that are completed or underway, planned within the Wekiva River Protection Area."

Harden suggested those Wekiva River-area lands under a county conservation would be better protected if ownership or direct protection were transferred to the state "to insure that an incident such as Sylvan Glade does not occur again."

Harden could not be reached. In 1988, Sylvan Glade was the first of several large housing developments considered by the county in the newly-created Wekiva River Protection Area which was created by the state to protect the river and maintain low levels of development near the river.

To protect more wetlands on the 334-acre property east of Lake Sylvan, Arnold proposed to "cluster" the homes on small lots and allow the county to place conservation easements over 147 acres of wetlands and uplands and not build in them.

The county and state agreed with Arnold's plan and approved the development over the objections of the Friends, other environmentalists and residents of the area. Residents objected to the clustering approach, which they said was an excuse to build urban-density housing in rural areas.

As another concession to Lake Sylvan waterfront residents, Arnold promised to allow lake access to only those Sylvan Glade residents with lakefront homes.

On May 22, Arnold's engineer Hugh Harling told commissioners about five percent of the conservation areas would be needed to allow for Sylvan Glade garages to be built at the sides of homes, he also sought to allow pedestrian access to the lake from the development, along with any non-powered boats they could carry or drag to the water's edge.

Harling also sought to allow individual property owners own a large wetland area at the southern end of the property, which he said would afford a higher protection than having the homeowner's association own the land as Arnold had accepted in 1988. County staff objected to the request, saying individual ownership would allow the property owners to cut swaths through the wooded area to gain access to the lake. An early site plan Harling submitted to the county showed long, narrow strips extending through the conservation area to the lake from each nearby lot.

Commissioners allowed the reduction of the conservation areas and public access to the lake but no more. They objected to individual ownership of the conservation area and required it to remain in community ownership.

Knife-wielding man holds woman hostage

United Press International

TYLER, Texas — Authorities stormed a clinic and rescued the wife of a Smith County commissioner from a blood-spattered, knife-wielding man who held her hostage for more than three hours Wednesday.

The hostage situation ended about 3:40 p.m. when police tactical officers smashed a window in the clinic and tossed in a stun grenade, then pulled hostage Barbara Shamburger to safety and subdued the suspect, Ralph A. Hughes, 38, who had just slit his throat. Police shot the suspect in the leg twice during the arrest.

"It became evident that the hostage was in serious trouble. That's when the SWAT teams went in about 3:20 p.m.," said police spokesman Tom Gioglio.

Hughes was charged with aggravated kidnapping and assault and more charges were likely. Authorities said the bloody body of the suspect's father, Leon Hughes, 75, was found in the rear of a white Chevrolet Blazer the suspect drove to the DeHaven Eye Associates clinic in eastern Tyler about 12:30 p.m. An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death.

The suspect's face and upper body were covered with blood as police brought him from the building to an ambulance. He was listed in stable condition Wednesday night, said Murty Wiggins, spokeswoman for Medical Center Hospital in Tyler.

Graduation

At Lake Mary, honors students Scott Temple and Vonda Lynch will speak. Columnist Bob Morris will send off the Oviedo graduates and students Neil Steiner and Michael McGrath will speak to the Lake Brantley group.

School officials hope the festivities won't be dampened by inclement weather, but all have formulated contingency plans.

All but Lake Howell's graduation will be moved indoors to the schools' gymnasiums and continue with a more limited audience this evening. Lake Howell has set a rain date for tomorrow evening, once again at the stadium.

Lake Mary's Project Graduation will be at the Orlando Racquet Club at 10 p.m., and Lake Brantley will celebrate drug-free at Wet n' Wild beginning at 11 p.m. Following an 11 p.m. trip on the Rivership Grand Romance, the Oviedo graduates will finish their Project Graduation celebrations at their school. Lake Howell graduates will celebrate without drugs at the Jewish Community Center in Maitland.

"Project Graduation is an alternative to some of the parties following graduation where there is a great deal of drugs or alcohol," Roger Beathard, the district's coordinator of health education said. "We really like to encourage these celebrations."

Tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. Seminole High School will hold its graduation at Thomas E. Whigham stadium and Lyman High School will graduate the class of 1990 at 7:30 p.m. in their stadium.

despite the facade of calm put on by the administration, most of the teachers admit the elementary students are still chomping at the bit to get out.

"Of course they want some time off. They deserve it," Perinich said.

"It's a little calmer here," Carli said. "They just walk out the door the last time and that's that."

Ordinance

would go a long way toward that goal.

In a May 16 letter to the police chief, the attorney said the best definition he had found existed in proposed Senate Bill 612, which creates the convenience store security act.

The letter said the bill defines convenience store as "any place of business engaged in the retail sale of groceries that is regularly open for business at any time between midnight and 4 a.m."

The letter also said the city could determine its own hours. Harriett said the city's present definition states that the business is not a convenience store if it can prove that it generates more than 50 percent of its income through the sale of fuel.

"So if a place has fuel pumps, and it could prove that it makes 50 plus one percent of its business selling fuel, it didn't have to have two clerks on duty between 8 p.m. and 6 p.m., and it didn't have to have surveillance cameras and anti-theft safes."

Harriett said the incident in which a store clerk at Circle K, 1809 W. First St., Sanford, was stabbed to death last fall, served to seal the fate of the idea and ensure that it would become law.

"One thing I want to make clear is that the city had that law in the works," Harriett said. "The commission had given staff the order to look into it long before the murder ever occurred. But I believe that if the law had been enacted, that very heinous crime would have been prevented."

Jonathon Shuler will be tried in Seminole County circuit court Aug. 27, for the Nov. 19 stabbing death of store clerk Herbert Allen, of Deltona. Shuler is charged with first degree murder, armed burglary and armed robbery.

Bills

Experts said the proposed change would affect 14 counties and about 190 of Florida's 390 incorporated cities.

Under current law, all cities and counties in Florida have to submit growth plans to the state Department of Community Affairs. But the change would allow the less-populated areas to ask for permission to submit less-detailed plans.

The result is those counties would submit "nothing more than a future land-use plan," said Casey Gluckman, representing the Florida Audubon Society.

Local officials, however, said the change is needed since many of them have already grown as much as they can or have no more plans for expansion.

But environmentalists maintained the change affects many counties that contain Florida's remaining pristine areas. They said a change could be bad for the environment.

Telecommunications industry jarred

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal court has given states the power to control the multibillion-dollar market in computerized telecommunications, a ruling that may force the Bell companies to set up subsidiaries to handle such services as automatic banking and alarm systems.

The decision Wednesday by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overruled the Federal Communications Commission, which had put regulation of the industry in the hands of the federal government.

State regulators now may require the nation's Bell operating companies to set up independent subsidiaries to provide specialized computer services that use the same telephone lines as regular consumer phone service.

The decision goes to the heart of control over the decade-old, multibillion-dollar market in such computerized communication services as automatic bank teller machines, electronic mail, voice mail, computerized database services, alarm services and electronic meter reading, according to Pacific Telesis spokesman Steve Harris.

The ruling may be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Superman rules Metropolis

METROPOLIS, Ill. — For Superman fans from around the country, the place to be this week is Metropolis, the small southern Illinois town that has adopted the "Man of Steel" as its favorite son.

The town kicks off its annual Superman Celebration today, and the scope of tributes to the comic book superhero would depress any of Superman's archrivals.

A bigger-than-life statue of Superman adorns the Superman Square next to the Massac County Courthouse; billboards on the way into town proclaim the town of about 7,000 as the "Home of Superman."

There's a Superman Parade, a Super Dog Show, Super Car Show — and the Superman Museum and Film Festival. For athletes, the Supertrek Bicycle Race and the Superman Road Race are of note.

Mayor Bill Kommer said the decision to officially adopt Superman in 1972 has improved the mood and finances Metropolis, which shares the name of the comic book character's fictional home.

Athletes choose prom over playoffs

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. — When Narragansett High School's girls softball playoff game fell on senior prom night, the players had to decide whether to bat or boogie.

They chose to dance — and forfeited the game. Now the Lady Mariners will be out of the state tournament if they lose once more, and they think that's foul play.

"My prom date is an athlete and he told me to play," Jody Laurie, one of four seniors on the team, said Wednesday. "How could I tell him, 'You just blew $300 on a limo, tuxedo and tickets, now have a good time at the prom by yourself?'"

Athlete Director Bernard Normand III, who is also the girls' softball coach, said he realized there might be a schedule conflict. The opposing team from North Providence agreed to reschedule the game, but the Rhode Island Interscholastic League denied the request.

"They were all torn up about whether to play or go to the prom. If we had played the game, the girls wouldn't have got to their prom until 10:30, so I made the decision to forfeit the game for them," Normand said.

Bush touts summit success

MILWAUKEE — President Bush sought political mileage from the superpower summit today, declaring its most important outcome to have been "the progress we made in understanding the great political challenges we face."

In remarks kicking off a two-day political swing through the Midwest, Bush hailed "the forthright spirit" Mikhail Gorbachev brought to the summit as "proof that we have indeed entered a new era in our relations with the Soviets."

"A united Germany in NATO, the future of the Baltics, regional problems: These aren't questions that can be solved simply or in a single summit," he said. "But we make progress on these difficult issues whenever we speak with candor and without animosity about our aims and interests."

Budget negotiators to study military cut

WASHINGTON — With Defense Secretary Richard Cheney sitting in, White House and congressional budget negotiators agreed to study a possible 25 percent, five-year reduction of American military forces.

A nine-member subcommittee, which includes Cheney, was designated Wednesday to study the possible one-quarter cut in military capability and report to the larger negotiating group in about a week.

Cheney said after budget negotiators ended their second meeting of the day that the 25 percent figure "seems like a reasonable number to look at" given the reduced Soviet military threat.

He said he has already been looking at "significant reductions in force structure" of about the same amount.

The defense secretary said the subcommittee would try to determine how a 25 percent reduction of U.S. military capability — fewer troops, tanks, planes and ships — would compare to military cuts in budget plans passed by the House and the Senate Budget committees.

Eric Clapton tops rock awards

By NED KILKELLY
United Press International

NEW YORK — Bluesy rock legend Eric Clapton kicked off a live multi-city broadcast of the Second International Rock Awards Wednesday and minutes later walked off with an 'Elvis' as the world's most valuable guitarist.

The ceremony, broadcast live by ABC, originated from a Manhattan armory and featured David Bowie singing "Suffragette City" from London. Winners in 10 categories walked off with statues of a young Elvis Presley and presenters, pointedly dubbed each prize an 'Elvis.'

Pepper-tongued comedian Sam Kinison co-hosted with actor Gary Busey, and the controversial comic vowed to avoid the kind of language that earned Andrew Dice Clay a lifetime ban from MTV during presentation of the Video Music Awards.

Clapton, however, was the first to give broadcast censors fits.

After playing the night's first live performance with another blues guitar legend, Buddy Guy, Clapton accepted his award with a modest, "I'm too old for this stuff."

Clapton also took the "Living Legend of the Year" award.

"Tour of the Year" winners, the Rolling Stones, were shown stomping out their special brand of rock 'n' roll in front of the Berlin Wall in a video of their recently completed world tour. Charlie Watts also was named the world's best drummer.

Aerosmith, Paul McCartney, Bon Jovi, and the Who also were nominated for "Tour of the Year."

The evening's first 'Elvis' went to Alanah Myles, named "Newcomer of the Year" against nominees Bad English, Lenny Kravitz, Skid Row, and Stone Roses.

Aerosmith captured "Artist of the Year" against nominees Fine Young Cannibals, the Rolling Stones, Bonnie Raitt and the B-52s.

"Lou Reed presented the award for 'Album of the Year' to Tom Petty for 'Full Moon Fever.'"

S. Africa lifting emergency rule

By JACK REED
United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President Frederik de Klerk called a rare joint session of Parliament today, apparently poised to lift a nationwide state of emergency following a slim parliamentary by-election victory seen as a test of his racial reforms.

Before the racially segregated Parliament in Cape Town, de Klerk's expected announcement ending the nearly 4-year-old nationwide state of emergency would meet a key demand of the African National Congress before the ANC agrees to full-blown power-sharing talks with the nation's white-minority rulers.

The state of emergency was imposed June

"The government is in for serious trouble."

—CP leader Andries Treurnicht

12, 1986, to curb an uprising in the country's black townships.

The calling of the joint session followed a Cabinet meeting Wednesday amid widespread expectation that the emergency laws up for renewal at midnight Friday would either be formally lifted, allowed to lapse or selectively maintained in hotbeds of political unrest, particularly strife-torn Natal province.

By a margin of 547 votes Wednesday, the National Party held onto the middle-class and blue-collar constituency of Umlazi in the Indian Ocean port city against Conservative Party warnings that de Klerk is leading South Africa to black majority rule.

"It is a time, obviously, when people feel insecure," a greatly relieved National Party victor, Pieter Matthee, told reporters minutes after hearing the results of the first test of the white electorate's opinion since de Klerk began his reforms in February.

"The government is in for serious trouble," said CP leader Andries Treurnicht, who broke with the nationalists in 1982. "We are going to push for a general election. The CP is the party of the future."

The National Party victory retained the status quo in the 178-seat white House of Assembly in the tricameral Parliament.

Leaders of Warsaw Pact, without many communists, meet in Moscow

By MICHAEL COLLINS
United Press International

MOSCOW — Warsaw Pact leaders met Thursday for a summit on the future of the alliance in the aftermath of the democracy movement that swept Eastern Europe.

Except for the Soviet hosts, most of the heads of government, heads of state and defense and foreign ministers are new to the Warsaw Treaty Organization's "political consultative committee."

On the agenda for Thursday's meeting was the issue of the future of European alliances in general and the possible NATO membership of a united Germany. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev also was to brief the leaders on his recent summit with President Bush.

Old-style Communist governments were swept from power throughout Eastern Europe in last fall's democracy movement and the new leaders no longer take their orders from Moscow.

The new governments have been demanding better trade deals and more equal relations with the Soviet Union and some have even raised the possibility of leaving the Warsaw Pact.

Before the formal meeting began, Gorbachev held separate talks with Romanian President

Ion Iliescu to congratulate him on his recent election.

"The two presidents reaffirmed their interest in reorganizing the activities of the Warsaw Treaty Organization and the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, and in turning them into institutions actively promoting international stability," the official Tass news agency said.

Throughout Eastern Europe, new governments have been demanding equal relations with their former Moscow bosses and pushing Soviet troops out of their countries.

Pregnant women's diet revised

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Contrary to popular opinion, pregnant women with healthy diets do not need vitamin or mineral supplements except for iron, and can gain more weight than previously thought, according to a division of the National Academy of Sciences.

The Institute of Medicine's new guidelines were included in a study released Wednesday.

According to the institute, recent research showed that increased weight gain, particularly in the second and third trimesters, helps deter low birthweight.

The study said average-sized women should gain between 25-35 pounds during pregnancy, approximately 10 pounds more than what the group recommended in previous regulations.

Underweight women at the start of pregnancy should gain between 28-40 pounds, the institute said, while overweight women should aim for a 15-25 pound weight gain. Obese women should gain at least 15 pounds but seek individual nutritional counseling.

The guidelines said vitamin and mineral supplements are not only unnecessary, but could adversely interact with nutrients obtained through a sufficient well-balanced diet.

"Evidence is not sufficient to conclude that routine supplementation with other nutrients is warranted, although clearly there are situations requiring special consideration," the institute said, noting the exceptions include complete vegetarians, smokers and users of alcohol or illicit drugs.

Attacks on gays widespread

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Homosexuals and lesbians were victims in 7,031 incidents of defamation and violence ranging from verbal abuse to homicide in 1989, according to a report released Thursday.

The National Gay and Lesbian Task Force study reported incidents in 40 states and the District of Columbia. The study, the group's fifth, said the total number of incidents last year represented a slight decrease from 1988.

Kevin Berrill, report author and director of the group's Anti-Violence Project, said gays remain "under siege, battling an epidemic of bigotry and violence." He called for a major battle on the state level to end all forms of hate crimes.

The report noted that attacks against lesbians and gay men in 1989 "occurred in a context of pervasive violence against Jews, people of color and women." Along those lines, the report said that in 1989 there was a record high of 1,432 anti-Semitic incidents and 65 violent incidents directed at abortion providers.

Ivana Trump stands by her troubled man

United Press International

NEW YORK — Donald Trump's battle to save his empire from a cash crunch has bondholders boiling, his employees worried and fellow developers nervous as cuts.

But estranged wife Ivana is all confidence and comfort.

"Donald and I are partners in marriage and in business," Mrs. Trump said in a statement Wednesday, as the Trump empire teetered precariously. "I will stand beside him through thick or thin and for better or worse."

Stones, the Fine Young Cannibals and former Eagle Don Henley for best album.

Other presenters for the awards — whose nominees are drawn from the ranks of Top 40 radio and are primarily middle-of-the-road rockers — include Laurie Anderson, Iggy Pop, Patty Smyth, and Bo Diddley.

"Late Night with David Letterman" musician Paul Shaffer joined model Christie Brinkley in presenting the 'Elvis' for best keyboards to Brinkley's husband, Billy Joel.

Joel beat out Ehon John and Kate Bush.

Bonnie Raitt, who recently won four Grammys, continued her winning ways by taking the most valuable female award.

Steven Tyler, singer for Aerosmith, won the most valuable male award.

Don Henley won the best songwriter of the year award. Best bass player honors went to Nathan East and best drummer, to the Stones' Charlie Watts.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Fielder lifts Tigers over Tribe

Cecil Fielder might be an imposing presence at the plate, but it's not just his size that scares pitchers.

The 6-foot-3, 230-pound, power-hitting phenom showed why Wednesday night in Detroit's 6-4 win over Cleveland.

Fielder drove in five runs with a pair of solo blasts and a 470-foot three-run homer to left center in the fifth inning that proved to be the game-winner.

Fielder now leads the majors with 22 home runs and 53 runs batted in and is the first Tiger in history to hit three home runs in a game twice in one season.

Tracy Jones drove in the other Detroit run with a solo homer in the fifth, and Jack Morris, 4-7, picked up the win.

Mike Henneman pitched the final two innings to earn his 14th save.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota crushed Toronto 12-5, Boston tripped New York 4-1, Chicago zipped Seattle 5-0, California downed Kansas City 6-4, Baltimore shaded Milwaukee 8-7, and Oakland scalped Texas 5-4.

SOFTBALL

Lake Mary names new coach

Lake Mary High School has hired Jeannie Fisher to take over the girl's softball program. Fisher will be replacing Karen Nolen as head coach. She comes to Lake Mary after coaching eleven years in West Virginia. This past year she served as assistant boy's volleyball coach and assistant girl's basketball coach at Lake Mary.

Fisher takes over a Lake Mary program that compiled a 19-7 record and will have 13 returning players for next year.

GOLF

Ekana added to Lung Card

The American Lung Association has announced that Ekana Golf and Country Club of Oviedo has been added to its 1990 Lung Card. Ekana will honor the card for four rounds of golf through October 31, 1990.

Duffers can improve their golf handicap while helping adults and children with breathing handicaps. The card walks greens fees for rounds of golf at 32 Central Florida courses. Contact Lynn Williams at 898-3401 or 1-800-624-8735 for more information.

The museum is located at 520 East First Street, Sanford. The Tim Raines exhibit will also be on view Sunday, June 10 from 2-5 p.m.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Murphy's Law sinks Astros

Murphy's Law prevails in San Diego. "Jack Murphy's Stadium Law," that is.

"People say on 0-2 you shouldn't give up a hit," said Houston Astros reliever Larry Anderson, who surrendered the game-winning hit to Garry Templeton with two outs in the ninth as the San Diego Padres defeated the Astros 3-2.

Roberto Alomar led off the ninth inning with a single off Mark Portugal, 1-6. One out later, Joe Carter belted a 2-2 delivery into the left-field stands for his ninth homer of the year.

Santiago then singled and Portugal was relieved by Dan Schatzeder, who gave up a walk to Mike Pagliaro. Anderson came on and struck out pinch hitter Jack Clark as the runners executed a double steal. Templeton then followed with his run-scoring bloop into short left field.

Glen Davis had given Houston a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning with his National League-leading 17th home run of the season and seventh in the last six games.

In other NL games, San Francisco edged Cincinnati 3-2, New York coked by Montreal 4-3, Pittsburgh defeated Chicago 6-1, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 12-11 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles topped Atlanta 7-5.

Four tabbed in draft

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Greg James, all-Seminole Athletic Conference outfielder from Lake Mary High School, was taken in the sixth round of the Major League Baseball Draft by the Chicago White Sox Tuesday to join three Lake Brantley Patriots in being drafted.

Also drafted were catcher Jerrey Thurston in the third round by the San Diego Padres, outfielder/first baseman Greg Thomas in the fourth round by the Boston Red Sox and catcher/third baseman Jason Varitek in the 24th round by the Houston Astros. Varitek was expected to be drafted higher but it is fairly certain he will attend Georgia Tech. in the fall.

For the three Lake Brantley players it is a continuation of a dream season that includes winning the Class 4A state title. The Patriots finished this season with a 25-3 record and an 11-1 SAC mark. Varitek and Thomas also were the key players on the East all-star team that won the FACA tournament at Baseball City.

It was learned from very reliable sources that Thurston was very close to signing an agreement with the Padres and the signing could have taken place as early as last night. If Thurston signs with the Padres he will become the second catcher taken in two years from Seminole County. James Joyce of Seminole High signed with the Padres last June.

Thurston is a 6-5, 200 pounder with a great throwing arm and was generally recognized as the top high school catching prospect in the country this year. He had signed a scholarship to attend Oklahoma State if it did not turn pro.

James is a 6-0, 175 lb. jet-quick outfielder who has a strong throwing arm and very good power. He hit close to .400 this season and was

Greg James (L) from Lake Mary and Jerrey Thurston (R) of Lake Brantley were two of the four Seminole County high school products taken in Tuesday's Major League Baseball Draft. James was selected in the sixth round by the Chicago White Sox while Thurston was a third round choice of the San Diego Padres.

Academy posts win at Stadium

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Matt Deimer and Doug Bunn combined on a two-hitter and Pete Arcomone drove in a run with two hits as the Wes Rinker Florida Baseball Schools Academy defeated the Central Florida Dodgers 6-1 at Sanford Stadium Wednesday afternoon.

Deimer pitched the first three innings and allowed only one hit and one walk, while striking out four, before giving way to Bunn, who allowed only one hit, one walk and one unearned run in his three innings of work. Bunn also struck out three. The game was called after five-and-one-half innings by darkness.

The Academy got on the board quickly scoring two runs in the bottom of the first inning. Chris Huff led off with a double to left and went on to third when the relay throw got away at second base. Arcomone followed with a single to right to score Huff. Arcomone scored when he stole second and came all the way home when the catchers throw went into right-center field.

The Dodgers, a 30-and-over team from the Orlando Roy Hobbs League, threatened in the second. With one out Steve Sagraves doubled off the wall in left and went to third on a wild pitch. But Deimer got the next batter to fly out to short right and retired the side on a grounder to second to keep the score 2-0.

The Academy added three more runs in the second. Paul Gimbalvo walked and advanced to second on a balk. Chris Stokes followed with a single to left to score Gimbalvo. Stokes advanced

Junior Major League season ends

From staff reports

SANFORD — The regular season of the Sanford Recreation Department Junior Major Baseball League came to a conclusion at Chase Park Wednesday night.

The scheduled first game of the evening went to the Knights of Columbus Cardinals 7-0 after the Kiwanis Club Orioles failed to have enough players show up for the game. In the second game, the Moose Lodge Pirates scored five runs in the top of the fourth to trip the Rotary Club Royals 14-13.

The Cardinals wound up as the City Champions after winning both halves, thereby negating the need for a playoff.

The game between the Pirates and the Royals was two games in one as the Royals dominated the first half and the Pirates the second half. The Pirates scored a pair of runs in the top of the first inning. Jason Combs reached on catchers interference and scored on an Eric Roberts triple. Roberts scored when Willie Williams laced an RBI single.

The Royals answered with six runs in the bottom of the first. Clifton Branch reached on an error and Ricky Justice and Andre Rawlings walked to load the bases. Tarrus Davis, who drove in eight runs Monday, stayed hot by lining a triple up the alley in right to clear the bases.

Davis stole home as Willie Terry walked. Terry stole second and third as Adrian Mitchell walked. Terry scored on a passed ball and Mitchell later scored on a fielders choice off the bat of Greg Lehmkuhte.

Altamonte wins eighth straight

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Jason Sewell overcame a rough first inning to fire a two-hitter and strike out 11 as the Altamonte Springs Big League downed the South Daytona Big League 7-3 at Lake Mary High School Wednesday night.

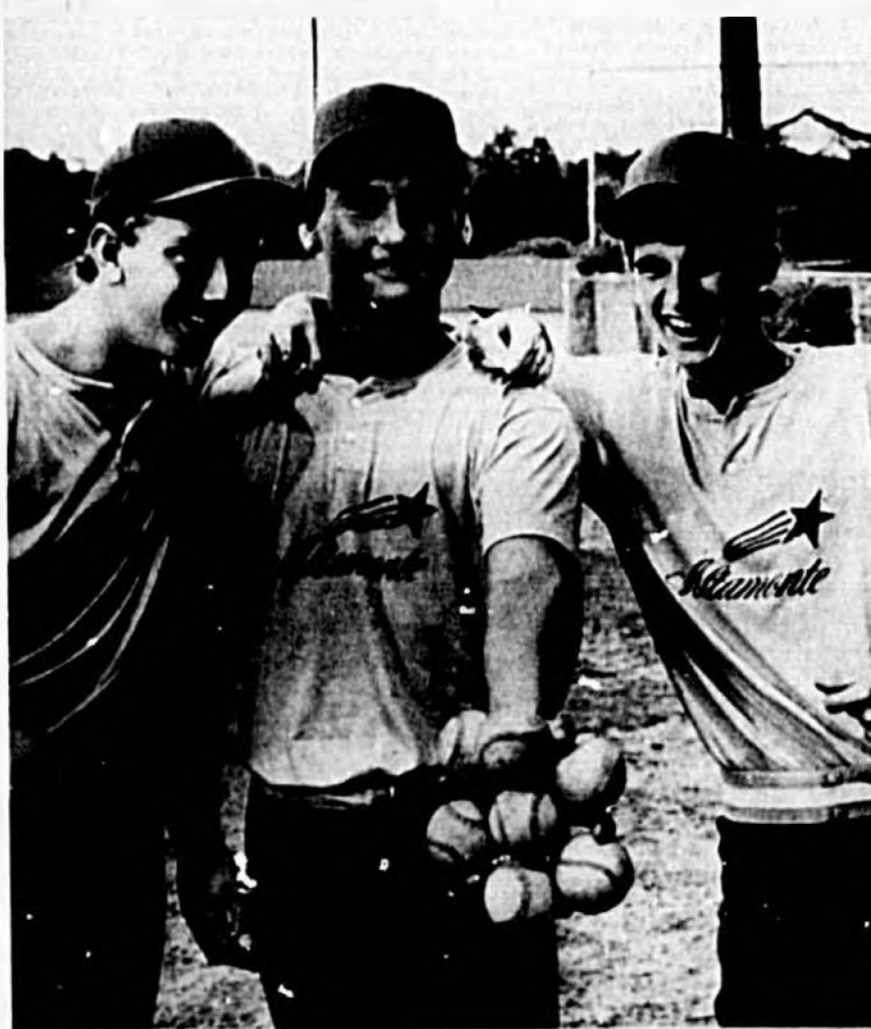

Sewell gave up all three runs and both hits in the top of the first before settling down. He finished the game with a flourish striking out the last four men he faced.

The win was the eighth straight by Altamonte Springs and avenged their only loss of the season, 3-2 to South Daytona in the season opener. Next action for Altamonte Springs will be Sunday when it plays host to Dr. Phillips at Lake Mary. Game time is set for 1 p.m.

The game started like South Daytona meant to pick up its second win of the season over Altamonte Springs.

Mike Tomazin led off with a walk and scored on a double up the alley

Altamonte Springs tied the game in the bottom of the first. Mike Merthie reached on an error, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Sewell's sacrifice fly to left. Neill James doubled to left and Jason Varitek was hit by a pitch. Joey DiFrancesco followed with a single to score James and Varitek went to third. Terry Pleicones and Brown walked to load the bases before Chris Pleicones lofted a sacrifice fly to score Varitek.

Altamonte went ahead to stay in the second when Steve Sheiman, Merthie and Sewell all singled to load the bases. James grounded to second to score Sheiman and Varitek singled to score both Merthie and Sewell.
Altamonte added an insurance run in the fourth when Merthie singled and stole second. After James walked DiFrancesco singled to right to score Merthie.
Facing the offense for Altamonte were Merthie (2-for-4, three runs scored), DiFrancesco (2-for-3, two RBH), James (1-for-2, double, run scored), Varitek (1-for-3, two RBH), Sewell (1-for-3, run scored, RBH), Sheiman (1-for-3, run scored) and Pleicones (RBH).

Yankees fire Dent, name Merrill manager

United Press International
BOSTON - The New York Yankees, with their worst record since the days before Babe Ruth, Wednesday fired Manager Bucky Dent after less than a year at the job.
Dent was replaced by Stump Merrill in the 18th managerial change since George Steinbrenner purchased the Yankees in 1973. Merrill, who was manager at the Yankees' Triple-A farm club at Columbus, is the 12th different manager employed by the volatile owner.
The Yankees also fired third-base coach Joe Sparks, batting coach Champ Summers and bullpen catcher Gary Tuck. New York had been expected to be a good hitting club this year, but Yankee batters have struggled to a .248 average.
The move came with the Yankees holding an 18-30 record, the worst in the majors, having lost four straight games and nine of 10. However, they are only 8 1/2 games behind first-place Boston in the weak AL East.

Dent was manager for only 16 weeks of the regular season, himself being promoted from Columbus to replace the fired Dallas Green last Aug. 18.
Ironically, Dent received his termination in the city where he achieved his greatest Yankee glory. His three-run homer in the seventh inning helped give the Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox in a one-game playoff for the 1978 AL East title.
Dent is the second manager to be fired this season, both in New York. The Mets fired Davey Johnson two weeks ago and replaced him with Bud Harrelson.
Merrill, a career minor league who has scouted and coached for the Yankees for the past 14 seasons, received a call from Steinbrenner at 1 a.m. Wednesday and was asked to replace Dent.

Dent was the 28th different individual to manage the Yankees in the history of the franchise.
Merrill, 46, a former coach with the Yankees, will make his major-league managerial debut. His playing career consisted of six years as a catcher in the Philadelphia Phillies' farm system. He has won seven titles as a minor-league manager and has Columbia in first place in the International League this season.
Merrill named Buck Showalter, the Yankees' defensive positioning coach, to become third-base coach, with Gene Michael replacing Showalter as the "eye in the sky."
Mare Hill was to take over as bullpen catcher on a temporary basis.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"He's kind of the scapegoat. I had a talk with him earlier today. He felt he let us down. I said to him, 'It's the other way around. We let you down.'"
Yankees catcher Rick Cerone on the dismissal of Manager Bucky Dent.

Andres Gomez in first Grand Slam semifinal

United Press International
PARIS - Thirty-year-old Andres Gomez, the winner of $3 million in prize money but never a Grand Slam title, is anxious to crown his career with the 1990 French Open.
"I didn't come here to get to the quarters or the semifinals, but to win," the very talented Ecuadorian said after gaining his first-ever Grand Slam semifinal with a 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 victory over qualifier Thierry Champion. "After 10 or 12 years, there was no way I wasn't going to do it."
Gomez is one of the world's finest clay-court players and the French Open is the only major still played on clay. The oldest player in the men's draw recognizes that this might be his best chance for a major singles crown.
"For 12 months I've been working for this tournament," explained the fourth seed. "This is where I wanted to play well and I've played well but I'm still not satisfied."
Gomez, who will face seventh seed Thomas Muster in Friday's semifinal, has lost just one set,

Because fourth-round opponent Magnus Gustafsson had to withdraw with a knee injury, Gomez had four days of rest before facing Champion, a baseline specialist. Champion had played two five-set matches and two four-set encounters in nine days.
"He wasn't going to hurt me with any shot, he doesn't have a big forehand or a big backhand. These are the kinds of players I like to play," Gomez said.
Champion, 23, is ranked No. 191. This year's French Open has been the best showing of his career, featuring victories over 16th-ranked Juan Aguilera and No. 38 Karel Novacek.
"Each match was a different story and it leaves me with good memories," the Frenchman said.
Against Gomez, Champion was overmatched, saying, "Andres is just a better and stronger player than I am right now."
Gomez, who says that in past years "I had my chances" at Paris, is playing with efficient dispatch. As a result, he is better rested than usual for his late-round matches.

Cough syrup is wrong cure for a recovering alcoholic

DEAR ABBY: Someone I love dearly is supposed to be a recovering alcoholic, but he drinks full bottles of cough syrup, which he buys over-the-counter.

I believe this person needs treatment. My husband insists that I am totally wrong. He says cough syrup is harmless, as there is a very small amount of alcohol in it, but only enough to give someone a quick "pickup."

Please tell us the straight story on this, Abby. This man drinks four or five pints of cough syrup a day, maybe more. Nobody knows how much, because he hides the empties.

WORRIED IN HAWAII
DEAR WORRIED: If your friend is not an alcoholic, he certainly drinks like one. The highest alcohol content in over-the-counter cough syrup is 43 percent alcohol, which translates to 86 proof. Furthermore, your friend is aware that he should not be drinking this cough syrup - otherwise, why would he hide the empties?

ADVICE

A good friend should tell him he needs to go back to A.A. and reaffirm his commitment. Be that friend.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that I've never seen in your column. I hope you can help me because you are the only one I can turn to. I am 25 years old and pregnant. I'm also not married. That's where the problem comes in.

My boyfriend and I agree that neither one of us is ready for marriage, and a baby is no reason to get married. My family disagrees. The baby is due in July, and they are on our backs to get married before the baby comes.

My boyfriend and I live together and love each other very much, but both of us just got out of bad marriages, and we don't want to rush into another marriage.

We are both excited that we are going to be parents, but agree that the baby could have come at a better time. (We used birth control, but it didn't work.)

Abby, do you think we should get married now, or wait until we are more ready?

TO MARRY OR NOT

DEAR TO MARRY OR NOT: I think you should get married now, since you love each other and are living together. I may be old-fashioned, but under the circumstances, I think a baby is a good and sufficient reason to marry. Please consider counseling. It could be enormously helpful.

Drugs help control cardiac arrhythmia

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 61-year-old male with mild hypertension and cardiac arrhythmia. I'm on Tenormin and Norpace. My symptoms do not occur all the time, yet I remain on the medication. Can you give me any information on these conditions?

I've adopted prudence in my advice to patients: A couple of cups per day of either type won't hurt. If you drink more coffee than this, you may — or may not — risk some major — or minor — health problem. All kidding aside, I hope future studies will clarify the relation. If one exists, between regular/decaffeinated coffee and health issues.

DEAR READER: Hypertension, even if mild, can lead to heart strain and cardiac arrhythmia (irregular and/or rapid pulse). As a general rule, arrhythmias are easier to prevent than to treat. For this reason, your doctor has given you Norpace (disopyramide), a drug that regulates the heartbeat. If taken regularly, under the doctor's supervision, Norpace should help control your heart rate and reduce the tendency to arrhythmias.

In addition, your physician has made a good choice with Tenormin (atenolol), a beta-blocking drug that both lowers blood pressure and helps stabilize the heartbeat. The combination of Norpace and Tenormin is, I think, appropriate in your case.

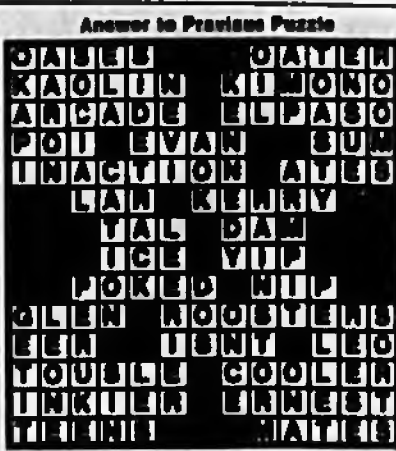

Unless you regularly check your own blood pressure, you will not know whether or not it is under control. Hypertension has been termed "the silent killer" because it does not commonly cause symptoms. Therefore, I encourage you to continue your therapy, even though you may not experience symptoms.

Arrhythmias can cause problems if the heart beats too fast — or too irregularly — for too long. Thus, prevention is the ticket. Stay with your present program and follow your doctor's instructions.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I drink decaffeinated coffee because I've read that it decreases the risks of heart attacks. Yesterday, I read it increases the risk of heart disease. Can you enlighten me?

DEAR READER: I'm just as confused as you are by conflicting claims concerning coffee.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

In this deal in tournament competition everyone reached three no-trump. All declarers, upon winning the first trick, cashed the ace of diamonds, thus protecting against all four diamonds being in one hand. Then they all went after overtricks. A low heart was played from South's hand. When West followed small, the declarers made the right percentage play of the nine from dummy. (The nine wins when West holds K-10 or Q-10; it loses when West holds K-Q.) East won the king and returned a club. If declarer then played a heart to the A-J and put in the jack, he would be rewarded with two overtricks for a score of plus 460. If declarer was nervous about the possibility of East falsecard-ing from a holding of K-Q of hearts, he might simply take his nine tricks. The greedy declarers did well. At one table, defender West thwarted declarer's strategy by violating the defender's rule of second hand playing low. That particular West assumed that South was going to put in the jack from dummy if the king was in the South hand. And he also knew that the play of the nine from dummy would force his partner's king on the actual layout. So he put up the queen of hearts right away, just as though he held K-Q. Declarer got back to his hand and led another heart. West now played low, and declarer put up the jack. When East took the king, South was limited to nine tricks and a mediocre score in comparison with all others.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 8, 1990

In the year ahead you could find you will be luckier in situations where you rely on yourself instead of others. You'll have the wherewithal to be independently successful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make an effort to be less assertive in your one-to-one dealings with others today. If companions feel you're overbearing or domineering, they may not want anything to do with you. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you've been letting your work or responsibilities pile up on you recently this could be a day of reckoning. Falling further behind now will make catching up a trifle difficult.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Subdue inclinations today to take gambles on ventures or persons about whom you know little. Your impulsive judgment might not measure up too well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to maintain harmony on the home front today, you must set the example, not the rules. Assuming a "Don't do as I do, but do as I say" posture could ignite sparks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A philosophy that has proven advantageous for you might not necessarily suit the needs of an associate. Don't impose your ideas on the unresponsive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Commercial dealings could be a bit more complicated than usual today. If you find yourself getting mired in something sticky, back out rather than getting stuck.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In an arrangement where you share a mutual interest with another make doubly sure you're fair today. If the deal is lopsided, both trouble and collapse are likely.

today, you are likely to perform up to your usual standards. However, this might not be true if you feel you're being overly directed by an outside influence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Members of the opposite gender might not see you as charismatic as you see yourself today. Coming on too strong could tempt someone to puncture your ego.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to operate within your own sphere of influence today. If you attempt to project your authority in other areas, it could result in unpleasant repercussions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're not likely to be too patient today with persons who don't abide by your suggestions and ideas. Try to keep an open mind, because we can always learn something from others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good time to start setting a little aside in case you have to deal with a few rainy days. Don't let yourself get in the position where your wallet is holding only faded photographs.

(C)1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
