We stumbled on the really easy way to tour the new homes in the Sanford-Seminole area, and get fuller and more detailed information about what we see. Make it a "Guided Tour"contact the sales representative! For instance, the Ravenna Park sales office on Country Club Road. We learned that, of the new homes under construction, four are complete, two sold, and two ready to show. Floor plans, designs and sketches gave us a good picture of the homes not complete. At this stage the buyer can select colors in paint, tile, and many other trim items. In Idyllwilde, the last completed home has been sold and occupied, but the floor plans of the two under construction are very interest-

Following the "Guide" principle we called Kingswood Builders and asked about the new contemporary home in Greenbriar. It should be finished in a few weeks. Of interest, will be the large dining room with exposed block and walnut paneling, the bedrooms with exposed block and birch paneling, and the master bathroom, which has double lavatories with solid marble

In Greenbriar there's also a four-bedroom colonial model to be completed soon. More information on it should be available next week.

Take a tip from us — take the guided tour -contact the sales representatives. We found them very friendly, courtcous and helpful people.

The scientific revolution, like any other, is not a total blessing. There are many signs that it distracts us too thoroughly from other values in

In this country artists and architects often have complained of being consigned to too small a place in the nation's life. Many thoughtful men find the complaint hard to answer. The other day a new complaint was registered by Walter Gropius, celebrated architect who has been in the vanguard of modern design here and in Europe. Said he in a speech at Williams college:

"This is the century of science. The artist is only a luxury member of society. True art is doomed to languish as long as science is sup-posed to have the only answers for our predominantly materialistic per-

What Gropius is saying is that there is too much attention to the mere function of things, too little to the look of things.

When men build, or otherwise shape their environment, they usually do this for eminently practical reasons. They are putting up houses, stores, offices, factories and so on.

But human beings are lovers of beauty, both natural and man-made. They like to be surrounded by things that are more than just practical. A man-made environment that is strictly utilitarian can be deadening.

He thinks that if we are to find a proper life balance we must rely upon better education which somehow will draw out the "creative potentialities of every individual."

Out of this, he says, must come new importance for the "form-giving artist, the creative architect or designer whose task it is to control the visual manifestations of our productive life . . . . of our whole physical environment."

Gropius states the case perhaps too strongly. One would think America is producing no beautiful buildings at all, when in fact it has a good many stunning structures to exhibit.

Yet anyone who has examined the environment made by our present-day cities from coast to coast must conclude with him that there is far too little really worth looking at. Zoning ordinances, building codes and building economics seem to play a far more basic role in design than does attractiveness.

Americans always have justified their predominantly utilitarian struc-tures by saying they were "too busy" to do more with them. Men who understand the rich rewards of a more balanced outlook would contend this amounts to saying people are too busy to live full lives.

Dear abby: By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband loves to make things. He's made ceramic ash trays and candy dishes as pretty as anything you can buy in the stores. And he can fix anything. He's only been through sixth grade but I know if he had a do-It-Yourself dental kit he could fix teeth. (Just mine and the kids' - he wouldn't go into business or anything like that.) Are such kits available? I heard they were, but when I wrote to Sears they took it as a joke.

MRS. O. J. J. DEAR MRS. O. J. J.: Skill in dentistry is acquired through years of study andpractice. Don't be sore at Sears. There is no such "kit." Fortunately!

DEAR ABBY: "The noblest mother of them all" has always been, is now, and ever shall be, the girl who cares enough about her children-to-be to marry their father-to-be before her children are conceived. "KNEW ONE"

DEAR "KNEW ONE": Touche! !

DEAR ABBY: My wife told me that she had been railroaded into the presidency of an organization at the second meeting she attended, Si said she hadn't even paid her membership dues because she wasn't sure she wanted to join the club. She also said that when her name was brought up for president, she wasn't given a chance but was voted in unanimously by a show of hands. I don't want her holding an office in any clubs as she has two preschool children and two in school, which keeps her busy enough at home. She says she's afraid if she tells them she can't accept the presidency, her name will be mud in the community - which is all right with me. What do you think?

MUD'S HUSBAND DEAR HUSBAND: Tell your wife to write the organisation a letter, explaining why she is unable to do justice to the office.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UNFINISHED SYMPH-ONY": Face the music, maestro, it's finished. There is NO second ending.
