

New Army Chief, Gen. Taylor, Has Led Exciting Life

SOE SCHLESINGER, a New York capmaker, denies to a Senate investigating subcommittee, in Washington, that he paid off three government officials, including an Army colonel, with $100,000 on a $1,000,000 contract. He invoked the 5th Amendment when the group subpoenaed his records and asked about his finances.

TOKYO (AP)—Somebody once asked Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the Army's new chief of staff, why he chose to be a paratrooper. "I never knew why I picked that outfit," the lean, blue-eyed general replied, "until one day when I was talking to a private in Normandy."

Taylor explained that when he was commanding general of the 101st Airborne, he called on recruits these new men into the division. Among the questions he usually asked was "How do you like being a paratrooper?" "I don't," a newcomer shot back. "I don't like jumping out of airplanes."

"If you don't like jumping out of airplanes, then what are you doing as a paratrooper?" Taylor asked.

"Because I like being with men who like jumping out of airplanes."

"For push sake put 'er there," Taylor exclaimed, shaking the young recruit's hand. "That's the way I feel too but I never realized it before."

Taylor has made seven jumps, two of them in combat. In Normandy and Holland he jumped with his division, the famed 101st that held firm at Bastogne when German Panzers hammered every other outfit around them out of the line.

He stands a trim, six feet and tips the scale at 175 pounds, which he calls his "fighting weight." He plays tennis three or four times every week.

Probably because of his own age, he prefers young officers on his staff. At 53 he is one of the youngest chiefs of staff the Army ever had.

Taylor was born at Keyesville, Mo., Aug. 26, 1901. In 1923, three years after being graduated from West Point, he married Lydia Gardner Happer. They have two sons, John, 24, is a civilian government employe. Tom, 20, is a pipe at West Point.

Taylor, who has a considerable reputation as a scholar, went back to the Military Academy in 1927 as an instructor in French and Spanish. He acquired another language in 1935 when he was assigned to Japan. Years later, while leading his Far East army, he kept up with the news by reading Tokyo newspapers.

After his first hitch in Japan, Taylor did a tour of duty in Peiping. Then it was back to the States and when America entered World War II, he was artillery commander of the 82nd Airborne Division.

After the war ended, Taylor became superintendent of West Point followed by tours as chief of staff at European Command Headquarters; military commander in Berlin; and then assistant chief of staff.

In February, 1953, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, weary and bitter, retired as commander of the 8th Army.

News of Van Fleet's retirement was followed by a series of controversial accounts of the conflict in Korea. Van Fleet himself said he could have driven the reds out of North Korea if he had been given the men and supplies he asked.

Back in Washington, Taylor put away his dress uniforms and again buckled on the old Army .45. He had been named to succeed Van Fleet.

Taylor's private life, like that of most professional soldiers, is marked by a regularity of habits. He gets up about 6 o'clock every morning.

He likes a light lunch with a clear soup, no potatoes and very little starch.

His social friends know that he takes on highball before dinner. He has a light supper and by 10:30 is on his way to bed unless it is a very special occasion.

Two Tampa Girls To Head Parties At Girls' State

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Two Tampa girls headed up rival political parties which will function during girls state this week.

Betty Lou Loucks was elected chairman of the National Party and Louise Ellis was named chairman of the Federalist Party.

During their stay here the 270 girls divided into political parties, organize make-believe city, county and state governments, hold mock legislative sessions and inaugurate a governor.

$64,000 Question Hottest TV Show

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS's $64,000 Question, hottest new show in TV, is so lucky on having interesting contestants it might appear they were carefully screened—and they are.

Conis G. Cowan, who owns the show, and executive producer Steve Carlin make no secret about that. But they say contestants are chosen for their human interest value rather than on the basis of whether they're likely to be able to answer a lot of difficult questions.

The story of the contestant is as important as the amount of money they're trying for, they say.

Thus it was that the first big winner, Redmond O'Hanlon, was quite a story himself. He's a New York City policeman, a Shakespearean scholar, holder of a master of arts degree and the father of five children.

He quit with $16,000 rather than risk it trying for $32,000.

Contestants are chosen from two sources—letters sent to the program and cards distributed among the studio audience. Those picked from the audience won't be on the night the choice is made. If they pass the screening, they are brought on later.

Riots In Argentina

The struggle in Argentina is not primarily religious. Religion has to do with gentleness, self-control, brotherly love, with union, with Power all-wise and all-understanding. The Peron business is a struggle for ungodly power.

Peron has been engaged for many years in an effort to increase his personal power over the Argentine. Step by step he has put down any effort at democracy. He aided the Hitler forces, hoping, apparently, to slide into authority over all South America over those coat-tails. Failing that, he seems to be aping the methods of Russian communism. Suppression of the newspapers, one after another, notably the great La Prensa, which tried to oppose his methods, were among his moves toward despotism.

The church was the only force left which could bring him from tyranny. It tried to prevent complete enslavement of his people, and for that he has fought it, of late, with desperation. The expulsion of the two relatives was merely the last step and the one which has made international news.

The recent rebellion failed. Peron has had, up to now, a firm grip on the military forces, and has a "Praetorian guard" of his own for his own protection. But it will not be the last revolt. Eventually this dictatorship will fall. That is inevitable, and is only a question of time. "Sic semper tyranni", the Romans used to cry. "Thus it is always with tyrants." The whole world is in the

Reds "Touch Off Guessing Game"

WASHINGTON (AP)—Guessing why the Russians have changed from growl to grin has become a kind of international parlor game which anyone can play, with or without facts. A little wishful thinking helps.

Latest guesser is Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines. At the United Nations' anniversary in San Francisco last week, during a television interview, he said: "The Kremlin leaders are having trouble among themselves and want a breather."

This was hardly an original contribution. It's a guess that's made whenever there's a major change in Moscow, like the demotion of Georgi Malenkov from the premiership. There has been no evidence to support it, then or later. There's been no breakup.

The Russians themselves have given a more plausible reason, without saying so, for their sudden air of sweet reasonableness. Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov pointed to it again in San Francisco.

The Russians want the West to disarm.

For years in one way or another, mostly a tough way they have separately tried to break up the Western Alliance, prevent West Germany's rearmament and dis-three of a great movement towards the dignity and freedom of the individual. Peron is only one of the doomed despots. He is smaller than he thinks.

Busy At The Pole

Some men never seem to have enough. It was not sufficient for Sir Edmund Hillary to be the first to ascend Mt. Everest, the world's highest peak, which had defied scores of skilful mountaineers. He is now announced as the probable head of a New Zealand expedition to the Antarctic.

Interest in the Antarctic is becoming more lively. Russia, Argentina, Great Britain and the United States are each taking a hand at mapping this icy land. The British hope to make, in 1957-8, the first land crossing of the Antarctic continent. New Zealand has long been accused of showing a lack of interest in the frozen South, amazing for a country which of all civilized regions is located nearest it. The New Zealanders are now trying to wipe away this reproach by scouting for the British, finding for them in advance a route to the South Pole, with depots of fuel and supplies every 250 miles or thereabouts.

Hillary may have thought it bleak and cold enough on the top of Mt. Everest, but his Antarctic venture should far surpass the other in extremes of privation.

Major Literary Task

Oddly enough, the complete works of many famous writers have never been brought together. Our own historians should hang their heads, because till lately there has been no attempt to publish a complete edition of the writings of Lincoln, Jefferson, Madison and other revered figures of our history.

This failure is true of authors elsewhere, too. One long felt want has been a complete edition of the writings of Dr. Samuel Johnson. The compiling of his work is now under way at Yale University. Johnson was the most remarkable figure of the British literary scene in the latter 18th century. A poor boy, diseased and unattractive in appearance with coarse manners, he yet became the leader of the London literary world, so much so that his era has ever since been known as "The Age of Johnson." This year witnesses the 200th anniversary of his greatest work, his English dictionary, which far surpassed its predecessors and set the standard for the future.

The life of Johnson by his admirer, James Boswell, is often thought the best English biography. Yale has already undertaken the publication of Boswell's writings. It is appropriate that it should now do the same for Johnson.

Some Things Hard To Understand

NEW YORK (AP)—Some things an average man finds hard to understand:

Why pretty girls wear sunglasses to work on cloudy days? (Do they really think anybody will mistake them for visiting movie stars?)

People who stud their boring conversations with the expression, "You know what I mean?"

Women who can't stand a dog in the house—then get themselves a pet monkey.

Short stout ladies who wear big floppy summer hats on crowded buses.

Sports fans by hearsay. Guys who know all the statistics in the baseball record books, but never take the trouble to go and watch a live game.

Men who root for the Brooklyn Dodgers merely because they think it is a quaint sign of intellectual superiority.

Bermuda shorts. (Yes, even in Bermuda.)

Wives who keep telling a fat husband he looks slimmer in a single-breasted suit, when he knows better.

Girls who wear no stockings in the summer, and girls who wear stockings so thin you can't tell for sure even after looking twice—whether they are bare-legged.

Girls who paint their toenails a weird color.

How anyone with a sense of fitness and proportion can eat a hot dog without mustard?

How anyone can eat pig's knuckle at all?

Whatever happened to the wonderful game of marbles? They still have a national tournament, but you rarely see city kids lugging a sack of marbles—now that most playgrounds are paved.

People who think television is a waste of time—but not gin rummy.

Folks whose ancestors went west in covered wagons but now think life isn't worth living without air conditioning.

How poison ivy and the common cold manage to survive in a world in which everyone you know knows 10 sure ways to cure them?

Why, since parking spaces have become so valuable in this civilization they aren't made hereditary so someone could leave you one in his will?

Where can a father sell a second-hand Davy Crockett hat? The cat has taken to sleeping in the one in our house.

Cashiers who, when you hand them a $5 bill, count out change walk away and forget the other $4.

Why many movie houses still go on showing double feature programs after all these years? Hasn't science found a better way to solve the problem of insomnia?

How airplane stewardesses manage to sit a y looking so cool and neat during a long flight, when the passengers always reach their destinations feeling weary and rumpled?

Whether a fortune couldn't be made if someone found a method of making catnip in different colors? At present all it goes with is a red necktie.

Why there are so many charm ly more charming?

MAIL GOES THROUGH

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—In addition to being undeterred by sleet or storm of night, the couriers of the U. S. Post Office have also managed to deliver a letter from someone in Byria to the State Conservation Department. The letter, inquiring about vacation cabins, was addressed: "Holly River, 1892 acres near Webster Springs, Webster County, 9 cabins, U. S. A."

In 1950, there was one U. S. auditor for every three persons over 13 years old and the Twentieth Century fund estimates that by 1957 there will be one for every two to two and a half people in that age group.

The female phalarope (a small shore bird) does the courting, but after laying the eggs, she leaves and the male incubates the eggs and brings up the young.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

LUCIUS BEEBE, elegant bon vivant who edits his Nevada newspaper from a private railroad car today, was once the freshman member of the drama department of a New York daily. Not one to avoid a tough assignment, the budding journalist sought an interview with testy Alexander Woolcott. A. W. wouldn't have any part of him.

Asked later why he had been so disagreeable, Woolcott inquired icily, "Who's Beebe anyhow? I thought he was on the bottom of the ocean somewhere!"

The red-faced motorcycle cop glared at the young lady in the fancy, low-slung convertible and demanded, "Why did you keep going after I whistled?" "You'll have to forgive me, officer," said the young lady airily. "My friends tell me I'm pretty deaf." "Hmph," snorted the cop, obviously unconvinced. "Don't let that worry you, miss. You'll get your hearing in the morning!"

Clothing Industries Optimistic

NEW YORK (AP)—Optimism is growing today in both the men's and women's clothing industries. If orders, production and sales are any indication, the American family is going to spruce up its looks this fall.

And so the textile industry is getting ready to take off on its annual vacation period in a cheerful mood.

Women's apparel manufacturers here report that orders by stores are marked heavier than last year. The men's clothing industry ran at 85 per cent of capacity in May, compared with 72 per cent a year ago.

And the makers of men's shirts, pajamas, sportswear (including walking shorts) say good business is indicated into next spring and summer.

Optimism is based primarily on increased ordering by retail outlets. But the textile industry has growing belief that the American consumer is due to make another shift in his buying habits. For some time now it was the maker of durable goods—autos, household appliances and the like—who was getting the gravy from the business boom. But now textile executives think men and women are bent on replenishing their wardrobes and will have more money for that purpose this fall.

Copper Companies Seek To Head Off Looming Strikes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negotiations stepped up on four Western fronts today as representative of the "Big Four" copper-producing companies sought to avoid threatened strikes that might cripple the industry throughout the nation.

Separate contracts with the firms are being negotiated by local officers of the Independent International Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers. The pacts expire at midnight tomorrow.

The union, which has headquarters in Denver, says between 50,000 and 60,000 members are affected. Though separate strikes are strong possibilities, the union has asked members of its national

So when all the textile and clothing workers get back from vacation next month the production pace is expected to be stepped up. Some makers of women's dresses here report early orders are up by 40 per cent. Orders for sportswear are even heavier.

The Clothing Manufacturers Assn. of the U.S.A. reports that heavier early orders of men's regular weight suits, overcoats and topcoats "means that retailers have low inventories in these categories and that they have full confidence in good fall business."

The clothing industry isn't just sitting back and waiting, however. The American Institute of Men's & Boys' Wear, Inc. is launching a drive to make the American male more conscious of his appearance.

Wage Policy Committee in determining whether a nationwide strike of the nonferrous metals industry should be called Friday. The strike would be contingent upon settlement of new wage contracts by midnight June 30.

Results of that poll have not been tabulated, said a spokesman for the union, which was expelled from the CIO in 1950 for alleged Communist domination.

Meanwhile, negotiations continued at Butte, Mont.; Douglas, Ariz.; Salt Lake City; and San Francisco.

Don't Get Panicky About Mumps

DON'T GET INSIDE 3 30 (Advance for Sunday June 26) SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—If little Johnny's playmate comes down with the mumps, don't get panicky and lock your child indoors. And don't demand that the family doctor come up with some miracle that will keep him from catching mumps.

Because of the dangerous potential it holds for adults, doctors agree it is better to have mumps as a child and get it over with.

A pediatrician said "Mumps gives a fairly lasting immunity. There is an anti-mumps vaccine but I wouldn't give it to a child.

It doesn't give a lasting immunity as an actual case of mumps. If a child is healthy and not run down, it probably would be a good thing for him to have the disease."

The effects of mumps range from the simple puffing of the parotid glands—that makes you look like a chipmunk—through nervous pain to rare cases of sterility, blindness, deafness, paralysis and, very seldom, death.

Although the use of cortisone for mumps has been discussed in medical journals, doctors feel that much more testing must be done before any conclusions can be drawn.

Among its activities, cortisone is an anti-inflammation agent. But it has other, nonspecific, properties. It is known to reduce fever and it instills a sense of well-being in the patient.

Mumps-meningitis, caused by the virus, isn't directly related to the meningitis commonly known as spinal meningitis. That is caused by germs or bacteria attacking the central nervous system. Penicillin or sulpha drugs provide a deadly knockout punch to those bacteria.

"No one should die these days from 'spinal' meningitis," one doctor said, adding: "But there is no established weapon against the mumps virus. The disease just has to run its course. And I have a healthy respect for mumps in an adult."

If the virus gets a foothold in the meninges, it can work its way to the spinal cord, a condition known as amyelitis. Or it can attack the brain, creating inflammatory pressures on vital centers controlling sight, hearing or breathing. This is known as mumps-encephalitis.

Wealthy Rancher Kills 4, Self

CORA, Wyo. (AP)—A prosperous rancher went berserk and shot and killed his wife, daughter and a neighbor's daughter four days before their bodies were found at their home north of here, Sublette County officers said today.

Coroner Francis Tanner, summoned by a forest ranger who made the grim discovery termed the slayings "murder-suicide—it couldn't have been anything else."

The victims, their bodies pierced by bullets from a heavy 30.06 rifle, were Lawrence (Jack) Alexander, 45; his wife Patricia, 40; their daughter Grace, 8; and Mrs. Alexander's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. X. O'Brien, of Miami, Fla., visiting here.

Sheriff Morris Horton was unable to offer any motive for the tragedy. He said the Alexanders had been married about 13 years.

Alexander's body, the rifle cradled in his arms, was found beside that of his only child on the back porch of the family home seven miles north of here. He had a bullet wound under his chin.

Mrs. Alexander a bullet through her neck, was found lying near the body of her father in the back yard.

House Plants Need Plenty Rain Water For Good Health

Watering house plants with rain water is suggested to home makers. If there is sodium in the household water it is suggested to use rain water, says Myrtle Wilson, Home Demonstration Agent. Many commercial florist establishments have cisterns for catching rain water to use in watering their stock. In this way florist make sure there is no substance that might injure plants which accumulates in the soil from tap water. Water-softening systems that make all washing jobs easier may be had on house plants. New York State floriculturists recently explained that household water softeners often remove the calcium from water by replacing it with sodium. While sodium is good for stopping hard soap curd in washing and is necessary for human nutrition it is poisonous to plants. As soil is watered, the plants take up the water and leave the sodium. Before long, enough sodium may accumulate to kill the plants. This may happen in a few days with potted plants. Calcium found in hard water before the softening process rarely hurts plants, regardless of its concentration. To avoid this trouble with house plants, the New York State scientists suggest using rain water, as many florists do, or changing the plumbing so that outside taps, and perhaps one basement tap, draw straight from the well or main without going through the softener.

SWITCH FROM PLAY TO DO-IT-YOURSELF

If your little girl is as old as eight and has been washing her dolls' clothes for several years, now's a good time to begin making the switch from play to practical. Her good grooming and prettiness later will depend to a great extent on her ease in caring for her own clothes. Give her a "personal" supply of soap, perhaps kept in a special plastic container that's just for her. She'll find it's easy and fun to do her own undies, and by the time she really needs to be responsible for clothing care, the routine will be taken for granted.

Here's one more use for the family hot water bottle: fill it half full of tepid water and put it on the bottom of the bathtub for a young child to sit on during his bath. It keeps him from kicking around, and makes a nice soft, warm seat.

"If you want to keep out of the spot-light, try getting up stage with your friend!"

TREE-BARK pleated beige silk organza elaborated with beige re-embroidered lace in an evening dress was designed by Cecil Chapman. The high curving bodice is smoothed over a snug midriff and waist to a flared skirt.

Puff... it's a hat! This wonderful sun hat is the latest fashion item, introduced in many a summer and, according to fashion forecasters, will be a vacation headliner. It inflates with a "puff" and deflates back to purse size in a jiffy. Designed to protect mildly from the scorching sun at the seashore, in the garden, in the mountains or just plain walking down city streets, the puff hat comes in one size, to fit every feminine head. It is really a picture hat that compactly fits a purse, can be slipped out at a moment's notice and inflated by blowing gently into a tiny valve until it assumes full size as shown by model in picture. When it has reached full-beaming proportions, it takes a few seconds and little breath—soon bond the valve over and tuck it out of sight into a slit. To deflate merely remove plug, let out air and fold into a small package. This amazing, new item comes in eight high-fashion, sunfast colors—four prints and four solids—is non-inflammable, acid resistant and can be purchased in variety and drug stores everywhere.

Let's Look For Loquats; New Fruit Grown In Florida

What a treat it is this delicious fruit! It grows almost state-wide and you'll not find a tastier fruit anywhere. Begin to look now for them in the market and better yet get yourself a tree and better you can grow your own. The loquat provides variety for the family dinner table, added nutrition and lots of eye appeal. Loquats fresh are elegant, a real fancy dessert. Wash freshly picked fruit that is full ripe, but yet firm. Remove stem and blossom end. Cut and remove seed or leave whole. Peel or leave skin on. Place in bowl and sprinkle with sugar, not too much now. Chill and serve with cream or top milk. This is a wonderful dessert for any meal.

Try fresh loquats washed or sliced in sherberts or ice creams. make them a welcome ingredient in your fruit salads. They are an extra taste teaser when served as an appetizer — chilled and golden.

While in season remember to save some for later. They may be canned, frozen, and made into delicious jellies and jams.

Frozen Loquats: Wash well-ripened fruit. Remove stem and blossom end. Remove seed. Drop into a cold sugar syrup made of 1 cup water to 1 cup sugar. Pack age, cover with the syrup. Seal and freeze at 0° F. Frozen loquats are as delicious as the fresh and may be used in the same way. They will keep a year in a freezer at 0° F.

Canned Loquats: Pick from the tree when well ripe but not soft and mushy. Remove stem, blossom end, and seed or can with seed left in. Pre-cook 2 to 4 minutes in light or medium syrup made by cooking 1 cup of water with 1 cup of sugar for medium, and 2 cups water to 1 cup sugar for light. Pack in jars, cover with syrup, process quarts 20 minutes, pints 15 minutes in a water bath.

Loquat Jelly: Select slightly under ripe fruit only. Wash and seed the fruit. Cover with water and cook until tender. Strain through jelly bag. The jelly point of loquats is around 22½ degrees F., if you have a candy thermometer. Use 2 cups sugar to 3 cups of juice. When jelly drops from spoon in sheet it is done. If loquats are the sweet variety add 2 teaspoons lemon juice to the juice before adding sugar.

Warm weather brings forth a horde of insects, as any home gardener knows. It's easy to see the surface pests that chew on green grass and foliage, but entomologists say that insect larvae in the soil also cause serious damage by eating the roots of grass and shrubs. Law and garden experts are urging homeowners to treat early in the season to avoid the ravages of the insect "weeeking crew." One way to get rid of hungry bugs and grubs that eat the beauty out of your turf and ornamentals is to apply dieldrin, a law insecticide that lasts a long time. Lasts for years in soil.

In the soil, dieldrin actually provides protection against insect larvae for years. On the surface, this insecticide is effective for weeks. Cutworms, ants, lawn moths, chinch bugs, white grubs, and even mosquitoes, chiggers and fleas that live in grass and shrubbery, are controlled by dieldrin. Entomologists explain that this insecticide, one of the new members of the chlorinated hydrocarbon family, kills insects if they eat, breathe or touch it. The new bug killer is available in several forms, all of which can be applied easily by the homeowner to turf or ornamental plants.

Choose suitable formulation. It's up to the gardener to choose the formulation best suited to his needs. He should spread it over the entire lawn, making sure not to miss areas. The insecticide can be applied anytime, but after application turf should be watered to soak the insecticide into the soil.

Formulations of dieldrin are prepared and sold by leading insecticide manufacturers under their own brand names, such as Ortho, Arma, Real Kill, Lawtrol, Black Leaf and others. These products can be purchased at most garden supply stores, hardware stores and insecticide dealers.

Three Hostesses Fete J. Miller At Collins Home

Miss Jeanne Lane Miller, July 2 bride-elect, was honored last night with a bridal party given by Miss Patty Collins, Miss Peggy Wright, and Miss Sandra Dunn at the Collins' home on W. 18th St. at 8 p. m.

On the television was another arrangement of green and white in a white bowl of Florida gardenias. This creation was accented by a brass, candle-holder bearing green tapers into the coffee table a variety of pastel hibiscus were arranged in a white vase and on the table opposite the fireplace, to add a bit of color, was a beautiful bouquet of pink hydrangeas. In the dining room, which connects with the living room, were more spring flowers placed in crystal bowls. Above the arch was suspended a large planted wedding bell. On the table was a crystal candleholder holding two white tapers.

CAREFUL WASHING CREATES HIBLOOMS

You never know whether or not a bit of apparel might become an heirloom, but you can be reasonably sure that when it is given T.L.C. (tender, loving care) it stands a good chance of remaining in the family for years and years. For example, baby's christening dress. If you carefully hand-laundry the fragile little garment in warm soapsuds after every use, and keep it wrapped in blue paper to prevent it from yellowing, it can be passed on from generation to generation, with each passing year enhancing its beauty and personal value. So it is with many other precious possessions you may have—treat them with kindness and they may end up as heirlooms!

Now fancy pillows come without pillow cases, thanks to a very practical new pillow that will not wilt, sag, or mat. It's made of Duaron—that wonderful washable fiber—inside and outside. In place of a pillow slip, the outer surface is printed in a dainty scattering of rosebuds. And, isn't it nice to know that all this sleepytime prettiness is washable by hand or in the washing machine.

He's Become Boston Red Sox Mound Ace Almost Overnight

Sullivan Is Beating Sophomore Jinx

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
Frank Sullivan looks like one of the sophomores jinx, developing in to the ace of the Boston Red Sox mound staff almost overnight.

A year ago, the 23-year-old right-hander was just a new recruit pulled out of the bullpen and year and has a string of 20 scoreless innings working while holding the No. 1 spot for the Sox.

That's where Sullivan 6-4½ and weighing 215, left off in 1954. He wound up his first full major league season with a 15-12 record. And while other freshmen standouts of 1954 such as Wally Moon, Bob Grim and Art Fowler—have fallen off, Sullivan's still in their pitching — effectively. He's been beaten six times.

He kept the still-hot Red Sox stalling last night with his second straight shutout, a three-hit job on Washington for a 4-0 victory in the first game of a two-nighter. His last time out, he blanked Detroit on just two hits. He got the runs he needed on last night homers by Jackie Jensen and Faye Thorneberry, still bubbling for the ailing Ted Williams.

In the nightcap, the Sox were held scoreless by Bob Porterfield for eight innings, then broke off by Norm Zaucha's two-run homer — to sweep the Senators 2-2.

Cardinals Play W. Palm Again Tonight

Sanford's Cardinals ran their winning string to four straight, longest of the Florida State League season — by blanking West Palm Beach, 6-0, here last night.
Terry Terrell's double and Ron

Schmidt's single produced the first run in the second. Don Pray homered with none aboard in the third and two unearned runs came in the fourth.
Roger Cook went all the way to pick up the decision on a four-hitter before 374 fans. He struck out 14 and walked 7.

In other action, last-place St. Petersburg enjoyed a 7-3 triumph over leading Orlando; Lakeland beat Gainesville 7-1; and Cocoa whipped Daytona Beach 4-1.

Cocoa's victory, before a Daytona audience of 106, broke the Islanders' winning streak at five games and gave the Indians second place. John Ivory Smith of Daytona allowed only four hits but the Indians didn't miss them too much as their first two runs came in on a mixture of walks, errors and passed balls. Joe Petriello limited the Islanders to six at-bats.

Lakeland's Dave Estier put Gainesville down on four hits. He walked only one man, struck out five and had a shutout until the ninth when Herman Pissaro homered. The attendance at Lakeland was 358.
Rookie Marshall Renfroe stopped the budding Orlando rally in the eighth to give St. Petersburg its victory. The Flyers had chased Ronnie Ganglehoff with three runs in the seventh and Ronnie Bossie opened the eighth by walking two men which brought on Renfroe. The Rookie fanned four of the six men he faced. A St. Pete crowd of 643 turned out for the action.

The Cardinals play West Palm Beach again tonight. Game time is 8 o'clock.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Did you know that the first formal rules of baseball drawn up by Alexander Cartwright in 1845 said that a ball caught on first bounce was an out? Or that for one season, 1885, it was permissible to flatten the ball on one side? Or that only in 1887 did a base on balls count as a base hit?

We didn't either until, looking up something else in the late Ely Turkin's "Baseball Almanac" for 1955, we ran into a section listing all the important rules changes made since the game took something resembling its present form and spent a happy and fascinated half-hour getting a few things straightened out.

Carter To Defend Lightweight Title In Fight Tonight

By MURRAY ROSE

BOSTON (AP)—Adaptable Jimmy Carter pits his varied styles against hard-hitting Wallace (Bud) Smith tonight in defense of his world lightweight boxing championship at Boston Garden.
The scheduled 15-rounder is the 11th title fight for Carter—the only man in history to hold the same crown three times.
Carter, who carries a wallop himself and can be very elusive, is a 4-1 favorite.

DIDN'T GET AWAY
BLACKSTONE, Va. (AP)—Henry Boyd got a terrific strike on his bass popping bug and the leader broke where it joined the fly line. The bass weighed 9 pounds 6 ounces.
Boyd knows the weight because he caught the fish by a somewhat unusual method. The big fish leaped in an effort to shake the hook. But he didn't land in the pond. His leap took him into a four-foot spillway. Boyd also leaped into the spillway, and the leader and landed the fish.

'Scarlet Letter' Held Based On English Murder

GAINESVILLE (AP)—An English murder rather than New England history was the basis for "The Scarlet Letter," a university professor says.

Dr. Alfred S. Reid says he made the discovery while reading a group of books Nathaniel Hawthorne is known to have read. Several contained accounts of the poisoning in 1613 of Sir Thomas Overbury, a slaying which involved child marriage, adultery, witchcraft hanging and a dying confession.

Importance of the discovery principally is a clarification of Hawthorne's creative methods, says Dr. Reid who gives a detailed analysis of the turning of the real life action into fiction in "The Yellow Ruff and the Scarlet Letter" which the University of Florida Press is publishing Wednesday.

Dr. Reid, 30, former instructor in English at Trinity College in Connecticut and recently appointed to the faculty at Furman University, Greenville, S. C., is a native of Orlando, received his A. B. at the University of Miami in 1948 and his Masters and Ph.D. at Florida in 1950 and 1952.

"The Scarlet Letter" was published in 1850. It was Hawthorne's first major work and it established for him an all-time reputation. He wrote the first draft while he was surveyor of the customs house at Salem, Mass. But he thought it so somber he gave it to publisher James Fields of Boston with a suggestion it be printed with some sketches of a lighter vein.

Fields, however, was so impressed he asked Hawthorne to revise and elaborate it. This Hawthorne did.

Reid said he found in the Overbury account the broad outline of the letter's plot, the unity of introduction, the elements of witchcraft and magic the moralizing tone and precise details of the characterizations such as Hester Prynne's skill at needlework and the humped back of Roger Chillingworth.

He found three accounts of the Overbury case, one a prose version, one poetic and one the official proceedings of the trial. It started when the parents of Frances Howard, 13, and Robert Deberaux, 14, Earl of Essex, married them in 1606. But Essex was deemed too young to live with his wife and he was sent traveling.

During his absence, she and one Robert Carr, a favorite of King James, started an affair. Overbury aided them in their clandestine meetings.

When Essex returned his wife went to Anne Turner, a witch who invented the ruff, neckpiece so typical of the dress of that time. Frances got love potions for Carr and frigid poisons for her husband, then got a divorce on grounds of impotence.

Carr and Frances decided to be married but when Overbury heard this he objected because he thought it dishonorable. So the lovers persuaded King James to throw him in the Tower of London and while there they poisoned him.

At the trial, the witch was sentenced to hang in her yellow ruff;

Carr and his mistress were convicted and imprisoned but a short time later were pardoned. It was all over by 1613.

Dr. Harry R. Warfel, professor of English at Florida and former chairman of the American Literature group of the Modern Language Assn., says "discovery of the sources of 'The Scarlet Letter' is doubtless one of the major feats of American scholarship."

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED
CONCORD, N. H. (AP)—Perley I. Fitts, New Hampshire agriculture commissioner, has accepted Vermont's challenge to participate in a milking contest at the Vermont State Dairy Festival at Rutland June 22. He was undaunted by the fact he would have to milk a Vermont cow.

"I'll just milk her as we would milk a New Hampshire cow," he said.

PRESIDENT Eisenhower takes time out to do some trout fishing in Furnace Brook near Rutland, Vt., after attending the Dairy Festival. He caught two fingerlings in the first 15 minutes, but threw them back. At the festival, he told a crowd of 25,000 that the United States will always hold out the "olive branch" of peace to any nation that will accept it with "honesty and integrity."

MAJOR JOHN EISENHOWER, son of the President, receives his diploma from Brig. Gen. William F. Train as a graduate from the Army's Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. The President graduated from the same college 28 years ago.

Bernard Bernson Ready To Observe 90th Birthday

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—A fabulous American named Bernard Bernson celebrates his 90th birthday Sunday.

Tiny and fragile, white-bearded and elegant, Bernson is an intimate of kings, a living legend and the world's greatest authority on painting of the Italian Renaissance.

On his advice were built some of America's greatest collections. Hundreds of American artists visit his villa in Tatti just outside Florence to savor his wit and wisdom—and to see how steadfastly American he has remained after 65 years in Italy.

His conversation is peppered with references to "the way we do things in America." He talks of his youth in Boston and the Harvard class of 1887.

"Because I am an American," he says, "I am a European."

A paradox? No replies "B.B." Only an American can see Europe as a whole and not as single, nationalistic states.

"I am not like some Americans who become patriotic—that word I coined—about some little part of Europe. They develop an extreme passion for some little spot and can see no other. Of course, I love Italy, but I love it as a European and as an American. Because I am both, I love all of Europe."

What of postwar writers and painters?
"Inspiration through dispassion seems to be the modern motto. I don't like it."
Bernson himself is a devotee of artists and actors he has met in recent years, he went on:
"They all seem to think that they must find their inspiration through lechery. I see no need for it and certainly their work shows it. It's not for the best."
For present-day artists he has even less use!

"A doctor studies for nine years, a lawyer for five, all professions—and some we never even considered as professions—require time spent in learning—except artists. Men now seem to think that all they need to do is slap a brushful of paint across a canvas, give it a fanciful title and run to a dealer to sell it. That is not art. Where is the technique?"

Here in his beautiful 40-room house, surrounded by devoted friends and servants and a collection of art treasures, Bernson lives like a 19th century gentleman with a 20th century outlook.

He works daily on a new edition of his "Italian Painters of the Renaissance" and maintains a lively interest in world events. He corresponds with friends all over the world. His visitors range from young students to the less accessible of the world's great.

Hurricanes are most apt to occur in September, although there are many of them in other months.

TV BOOK

By: BOB BERNETT

Once in a while we run across families where TV and radio use—due to various reasons—poses a problem. Apartment-dwellers, for example, sometimes find late evening use of TV and radio makes them as popular as a tomato or a back fence. Families with a night-worker in their midst and families with a hard-of-hearing member, also have certain problems to consider. However, the pleasures of TV and radio needn't be sacrificed. There is a simple and quite effective solution: the use of headphones connections.

The use of headphones connections will allow you or more listeners to operate a receiver without disturbing others in the same area. It also allows a listener with impaired hearing, to enjoy a program without the necessity of volume at an uncomfortable level for others. The right kind of headphones hooks will allow pleasant entertainment for all.

However, a TV set in your room provides little or no entertainment at all, if you want to enjoy the most relaxing and interesting possible, tune down to BOB BERNETT'S TV by a look at the new "TV BOOK." You'll be amazed at how convenient we can get a big, new TV BOOK in your home. Write to us and have an eye-opening demonstration today. We're located at 288 East 57th St. Phone 684.

Hoover Group Expires Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP)—For former President Herbert Hoover, the last public service is done.

On Thursday, June 30, the Hoover Commission, implacable foe of government waste and bungling, will expire. Then Hoover, its chairman for eight years, at 81 and with 41 years of almost constant public service behind him, will retire to private life.

The 31st president leaves for consideration by the public, Congress and the President some two million facts about the nation's government, cleaned in the most thorough study any government ever had.

Hoover's efforts as chairman of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government have not been an unqualified success.

In some places, Hoover Commission recommendations have been greeted with complacency and inertia; in others with suspicion and hostility. There isn't even agreement on the commission itself.

In any case, teams of commission investigators found room for improvement everywhere.

They turned up the fact that the nation has commitments and other obligations of 240 billion dollars above and beyond the 277 billions technically included in public debt.

While many of the commission's recommendations will never again see the light of day, Hoover can say there has been considerable improvement in day-to-day efficiency.

For his efforts Hoover has been accused of trying to turn back the clock to pre New Deal days when the function of government was conceived to be 'preserve order, provide defense and stay out of the private business of its citizens.'

One great trouble with the present government, he says, is that the men in the top civil service jobs "are not good enough—they got there by seniority and red tape."

That doesn't mean, he says, that they should be eliminated. But they should be moved to jobs more commensurate with their abilities.

Hoover thinks there are about 8,000 managerial jobs in the government which should contain promise of "prestige and advancement" and which should be filled above a certain grade on the basis of merit.

It was Sept. 29, 1947, that Hoover took over the first commission, organized under President Truman to check government efficiency. The second commission formed under President Eisenhower, had the added job of looking into policy fields and decisions.

The commission figures about 70 per cent of its recommendations for improving government efficiency have been accepted in some degree or completely. At present there are some 28 bills based on commission studies before Congress.

When the first commission went to work, there were 75 separate bureaus with authority in the field of transportation, 104 on government lending, 37 in foreign trade, 64 dealing with business relations, 22 with insurance and 44 with agriculture. Consolidations, in whole or in part, have been effected in all.

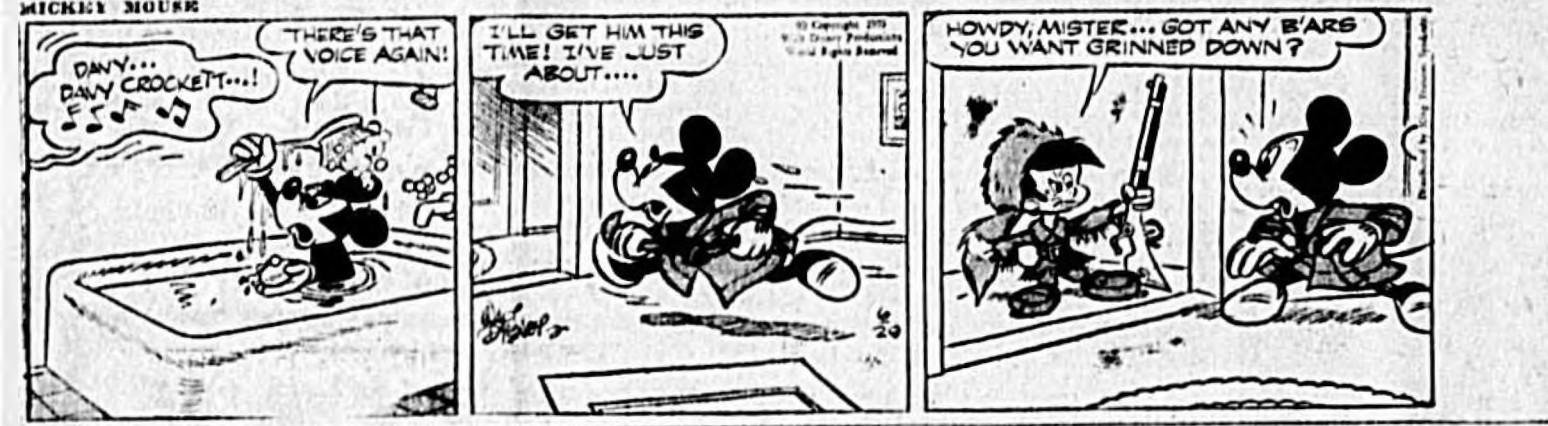

Congress and the present administration both have shown a curious indifference to recommendations of the second commission.

Recommendations for turning the parcel post service over to private enterprise, to liquidate the postal savings system, to close down military dry-cleaning plants, to close down post exchanges and commissaries where they compete with private enterprise have been greeted with almost total silence.

Proposals to shut down the TVA's fertilizer plant and to sell the government's 226-plant "industrial reserve" have become involved in enormous controversy. So has the recommendation to curtail the rural electrification program.

Perhaps one of its most important achievements was the revision of the government's system of budgeting and accounting and an amended unification law for the armed services to give the secretary of defense authority to issue direct orders, instead of merely advising the President that he do so.

The commission can pinpoint $1,244,000,000 in savings, though its hopes to save more were shattered by the cold war and the Korean War.

New York City's Explorers Club Is Unique Place

NEW YORK (AP)—One night about four years ago thieves broke into the Explorers Club in Manhattan, picked their way past rare tusks, fossils, war drums, snake skins, spears and arrows, and swiped the club's least valued possession—its television set.

Had the thieves tried they might have gotten the set just by asking. Nobody watched it, anyway. Nobody has missed it since. There is no thought to replace it.

Such indifference to civilization's newest escape hatch is quite understandable. The Explorers Club is one place that has no need of famed entertainment, souped up, synthetic adventures or vicarious living. These boys live what the rest of us read and dream about.

Special Films Can Look Inside Atoms

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—This is the home of eyes that can see the smallest and farthest things in the universe.

They can in effect look inside atoms. They can see distant milky ways or galaxies containing billions of stars, and they can see strange markings on nearby planets.

These eyes are telling scientists things which may someday change your world or your way of life.

The eyes are special films, or photographic plates, able to see and record things the human eye could never perceive.

Making them is primarily a service to science by Eastman Kodak Co. Several thousand dozen of the films or plates go each year to atomic scientists, physicists and astronomers from the department headed by Dr. John Spence. Some plates or films are custom made to meet the special needs of scientists for some particular bit of research.

One main kind of eye is the nuclear film or emulsion, one of the principal scientific tools to explore the insides of atoms. These are helping to answer such questions as what are cosmic rays, and what holds the nucleus of an atom together.

Cosmic rays, mesons and the protons found in the cores of atoms are much too tiny ever to have their pictures taken. But the special films capture their footprints to tell what happens when bits of atoms smash into the cores of atoms, or collide with other bits of atoms.

In the nuclear emulsions, speeding atomic particles leave their own identifying trail by striking and altering the silver halide grains. When the film is developed, there is a trail or track of the electron or proton or meson or other particle which went sipping through the emulsion. Each type of atomic particle leaves a particu-

Robert E. Peary, Adm. Richard E. Byrd, Theodore Roosevelt, Sir Edmund Hillary, Bernal Batcheson, Roy Chapman Andrews, Sir Hubert Wilkins, William Beebe, Lowell Thomas, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Thor Heyerdahl, Capt. Bob Bartlett, Hugo Eckener, Lincoln Ellsworth, Matt Henson and Peter Freuchen.

Formed in 1904 to promote scientific exploration and to give explorers both a social and professional clearing house, the club now has nearly 1,000 members and as many as 200 social members. Among them you can meet such colorful rovers as Peter Freuchen, Arnold H. Haverlee and Chief of Clanfhearghais.

Freuchen, the old arctic traveler, is a big, husky man with an impressive beard, a peg leg and a blunt, gruff manner toward younger explorers who come back with films in which they can't identify every last animal.

Years ago up in Hudson's Bay, fatigue overcame Freuchen and he fell asleep in a snow storm. Awakening, he found his left foot frozen and gangrene moving in. Freuchen removed his own toes with pliers and a hammer. Later, a doctor amputated the foot at the ankle. It has not hurt Freuchen's sense of humor.

Haverlee, an expert on Lapland and a far from melancholy Dane, is the devilish expert who has made some of the club's dinner menus famous for their eccentricity. He's the man who derives such hors d'oeuvres as sausage katanga (sermies, fresh alligator eggs or "Kon Tiki special") composed of assorted raw shark, tuna, octopus and sea saws.

TWO SOVIET MIG-TYPE FIGHTERS attacked and set fire to a U. S. Navy Neptune patrol plane (of the type shown at top) which was cruising over international waters between Alaska and Siberia, the U. S. Government announced. The plane was forced to crash-land on the tip of St. Lawrence Island, about 40 miles from Russian Siberia. Seven of the eleven crewmen on the American plane were injured. Four of the airmen are: Ensign David G. Assard (top, left), navigator, Terryville, Calif.; Aviation Technician Edward Benko (top, right), Chicago, Ill.; Lt. Richard H. ### Richards Predicts House Will Okay Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Richards (D-SC) predicted the House will approve today "without any drastic cuts" a bill to permit new foreign aid spending of more than $4 billion dollars. The bill would authorize a total of $3,285,000,000 for military and economic aid for the year beginning tomorrow. This merely sets a ceiling—133 million dollars lower than that voted by the Senate—with the actual appropriations to be voted later. President Eisenhower had asked for about 3 1/2 billions. The House yesterday upheld a House Foreign Affairs Committee reduction of 143 million dollars in global arms aid and tentatively approved military funds totaling $1,133,000,000. Richards said the reduction eliminates a reserve fund requested by the administration. By voice vote, the House defeated a proposal by Rep. Fulton (R-Pa) to withhold late-model jet aircraft from Yugoslavia until all requirements for such planes are filled in this country and in nations with which it has mutual defense pacts.

NEW YORK (AP)—Cpl. Harold M. Dunn, once given a hero's welcome by his native Haldwinsville, N.Y., has been sentenced to eight years at hard labor for aiding the Communist enemy while a prisoner in North Korea. A seven-man court-martial which pronounced the sentence yesterday also ordered a dishonorable discharge for the 26-year-old soldier and forfeiture of all pay and allowances. Dunn, a heavy-set tall man, took the sentence calmly. He snapped to a smart salute and wordlessly returned to his seat. But his young, broad face showed strain. Moments before the sentencing he told the court that his conduct in North Korea "was a tragic mistake for which I am sorry." "It did not take me long to realize as soon as I was repatriated that I had been wrong in what I had done as a prisoner." He interrupted the trial Tuesday to plead guilty to the charges of writing articles praising the Red enemy and making broadcasts from North Korea urging American "moms and dads" to end the war.
