Zoo Loses Two Young Antelope To Pneumonia

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

With weather during the holiday season not fit for man nor beast, the Central Florida Zoo lost two young nyalas from pneumonia.

Al Rozon, executive director of the zoo, said the seven-month old nyalas, which are a species of antelope native to southeastern Africa, died Dec. 26, when temperatures dipped down into the teens in the county.

Born in captivity, the nyalas came to the zoo only two weeks ago from another animal facility in the state.

They were valued at $750 to $800 each.

"There's no way of knowing if they had the pneumonia when we got them," Rozon said, "but the diagnostic lab in Kissimmee found that to be the cause of death."

He said the same precautions were taken with them as with the other three nyalas and the rest of the hoof stock, including a scimitar-horned oryx, also from Africa, which all made it through the cold spell. They were all fed well the night before and penned up to keep them warmer.

"We are Florida Power & Light's best customer," Rozon said. "We've been heating seven days a week, 24 hours a day while the temperature was below 48 degrees." The elephant enclosure is heated by two kerosene heaters and a propane gas heater.

The smaller tropical birds were brought inside to protect them from the cold and the snakes were in the medical treatment building. Water was kept running in the crocodilian exhibit and the ambient temperature of the water was adequate for the four species on display, Rozon said.

The cats were no problem, he said, they were fed well and got on their wooden pallets and stayed there. About the only animal the cold didn't seem to bother at all were the bears, which, he said, had their thick winter coats. Heat was provided in the primates' cages. A female siamang, a member of the Gibbon family, died of pneumonia about a year ago, but it wasn't cold at the time, Rozon said.

Rozon said when the weather is cold "We don't pay attention to the budget, when the need is there we do it." He added that it is "no surprise" that while expenses are up because of the three weeks of extreme cold, rainy weather in December, attendance was down.

Rozon said the zoo's elephant ride attraction is scheduled to start Jan. 21. Work on the new reptile exhibit is still going on and the grand opening is scheduled for Feb. 4.

He said he hopes to have the display ready for a pair of young Siamangs soon.

Code Board Gets First Appointee

Sara L. Jacobson, of Sanford, is the first person to be named to the new Seminole County Code Enforcement Board. The other six members are expected to be named at next Tuesday's meeting of the Seminole County Commission.

Ms. Jacobson is County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff's choice to serve on the code board as the representative of the community at large. Her appointment was approved by the Board of County Commissioners Tuesday.

Sara Jacobson has been responsible for restoring many old houses in Sanford.

Ms. Jacobson, 1109 Cornell Drive, serves on the county planning and zoning commission, has served as chairman of the Seminole County Library Advisory Board and the Greater Sanford Downtown Development Commission. Her term on the P&Z board is expiring and Commissioner Bob Sturm is expected to name her replacement.

"I think there are often inconsistencies felt by the general public in the administration of certain policies and procedures set for them by government, which is often overburdened by detail and can't always administer properly in all areas," Ms. Jacobson said. "By creating this arm of government I feel the public will be better served by consistent procedures. Where some parties were slipping by, the code board will be able to make the regulations more clear and understandable. Sometimes persons are outside the law without realizing it because they don't understand the regulations."

The code enforcement board members will serve for a three-year term without compensation.

District 1 Commissioner Barbara Christensen will name an architect and a business person; District 2 Commissioner Bob Sturm will name an engineer; District 3 Commissioner Bud Feather will name a general contractor and a sub-contractor; and District 4 Commissioner Sandra Glenn will name a Realtor.

These choices are subject to approval of the commission as a whole, but County Administrator T. Duncan Rose said this is merely a technicality and no problems are anticipated. He said members of these professions are on the board because they will have a substantive knowledge of city codes and the matters that may come before them.

Rose said that Mrs. Christensen and Feather each have two because when there are more appointments than there are commissioners they are assigned to commissioners on a rotating basis to equalize the number of appointments.

The ordinance creating the code enforcement board was adopted by the county commission on Dec. 13, 1983 after six months of study by various county departments. Much like the old municipal court or justice of the peace system, the code enforcement board will be able to hear cases involving violations of county codes ranging from land development, contract and construction, electrical, mechanical and plumbing to mobile homes, occupational licenses, wells, pumps and junk car laws.

They will have the power to levy fines of up to $250 per day. Without a code enforcement board, violators of county codes must be taken through the county court system with assistance from the state attorney's office. Prosecutions for violation of county codes has had to wait while more important matters such as capital offenses were handled by the state attorney's office.

All seven of the cities in the county have adopted ordinances creating code enforcement boards and most of those have been in operation for a year or more.

County Refuses Couple's Promissory Note

After four years of legal wranglings, Seminole County Commissioners have received $528.05 compensation from a couple who lost a court battle over a boat dock—but it is in the form of a promissory note with no collateral to back it up.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff said earlier the case of the boat dock built in violation of county rule cost the county — and the Russells — thousands of dollars.

The note for $528.05 was executed by Kenneth A. and Barbara Russell of Lake Monroe, who were ordered to pay the sum as a result of losing a suit brought by the county. It promises payment in April.

But Seminole County Commissioners at their meeting Tuesday scoffed that the note offered no interest nor collateral.

They voted 3-2 to authorize County Attorney Nikki Clayton to obtain interest and/or collateral on the note, and to record the judgement.

The 20-foot boat dock was built in 1979 on a canal of the St. Johns River in St. Johns River Estates. Neighbors complained it was too long and blocked their use of the canal and it violated county code. After ignoring a county stop work order, the Russells completed the dock. A court ordered them in 1980 to dismantle the dock or apply for a proper permit.

They asked for the permit and in July, 1983, the commissioners agreed to issue one in a 3-2 vote.

Commissioners Kirchhoff and Robert G. "Bud" Feather voted to force removal or shortening of the dock.

"The whole thing could have been resolved if they had not ignored our stop work orders," Kirchhoff said at the time.

He said in July that the dock reduces the navigable portion of the canal to about 20 feet and if property owners on the other side of the canal built 20-foot docks the canal would be impassable.

Gene Fry, 28, and Patricia Murphy, 23, two of Casselberry Fire Department's new paramedics, show equipment used in the Advanced Life Support Program that began Jan. 1 in the city. Both are former Herndon Ambulance employees.

Cities Get Go-Ahead On Ambulance Service

Casselberry and Winter Springs have received county approval to operate emergency ambulance services within their city limits.

The Seminole County Commission at its Tuesday meeting unanimously approved issuing certificates of Public Convenience and Necessity for the cities. The certificates are required by state law before such services can operate.

The certificates allow the cities to transport victims in extreme emergencies and when the county's contracted ambulance service has a long estimate of time of arrival.

The Casselberry Fire Department has been providing Advanced Life Support services to residents since midnight on Jan. 1 and Winter Springs Fire Department has been providing ALS services to its residents since 1982, but were unable to transport victims due to the certificate requirement.

In the first three days of operation the Casselberry paramedics responded to two ALS calls, both of which were cardiac problems, in addition to 12 rescue calls. The department has four paramedics and a paramedic coordinator and plans to hire two more. They operate only out of the Red Bug Road fire station.

The ALS service will be available to all citizens and employees of Casselberry and Winter Springs and other surrounding areas with which they have a mutual aid agreement. The ambulance can also be used as a back-up transporting vehicle in situations where there are a number of simultaneous incidents occurring in the county.

ALS (paramedics) is designed to reduce the deaths from heart attacks and is designed to stabilize patients suffering from diabetes, strokes, respiratory difficulties, poisoning, drug overdose, massive blood loss, drownings, child birth, and many other medical problems until they can be transported to a hospital. Seventy percent of all calls to the Casselberry Fire Department are rescue calls.

Winter Springs Fire Department is charged with first response aid to medical and trauma emergencies in a 14 square mile area with a population of 14,000. The rescue units operated from a station at 102 North Moss Road and another at 851 Northern Way in the Tuscawilla area.

Roads Chosen To Benefit From Gas Tax

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Parts of four county roads have been chosen to reap the benefits of the local 4-cents-per-gallon gas tax — Maitland Avenue, Red Bug Lake Road, Lake Mary Boulevard extension and County Road 427.

The Seminole County Commission informally picked the roads at a work session this week.

Construction is to begin by July 1, 1985 to improve sections of the roads using revenues to be received over the next 10 years from the tax imposed by the county commission Oct. 1, 1983.

The 6.5 miles of roads to be improved by widening and resurfacing at an estimated cost of $15.9 million run in part through four of the county's seven cities. County commissioners expect to float a bond issue to raise the money for the construction and acquisition of additional rights-of-way for the widening.

The portions of the roads chosen are: ● Maitland Avenue from State Road 436 to the Orange County line in Altamonte Springs.

● Red Bug Lake Road from SR 436 to Eagle Circle in Casselberry. The state is planning to reconstruct the intersection of Red Bug Lake Road and 436, but the state Department of Transportation has notified the county that it will not do the work unless the county does similar improvements to that section of Red Bug Lake Road.

● Lake Mary Boulevard extension from U.S. 17-92 to State Road 415, partly in Sanford.

● County Road 427 from Charlotte Street to State Road 434, partly in Longwood and to Charlotte State Road 436, partly in Altamonte Springs. It is probable that not all of the proposed 427 improvement will be possible before the money runs out.

Commissioner Bob Sturm, who recommended the projects at the workshop, said the CR 427 improvement should proceed "to where the money runs out."

Three other commissioners — Sandra Glenn, Barbara Christensen and Bill Kirchhoff — informally agreed with Sturm's proposal. Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather left the meeting early. The commissioners are expected to formally vote on the matter at their 9 a.m. meeting Tuesday.

Included in the proposal is the earmarking of 10 percent of the gas tax revenue for major intersection work, turning lanes and major signalization needs.

Bond consultants are being asked for proposals on floating the necessary bonds and a management group of perhaps a private contractor and an engineer to oversee the projects will be hired, Sturm said Wednesday. The time of county staff is already taken up with projects approved in the budget this year, he said.

Sturm also noted that interlocal agreements will be sought with Sanford.

...The 6.5 miles of roads are to be improved by widening and resurfacing at an estimated cost of $15.9 million...

Altamonte Springs, Casselberry and Longwood for cooperation on the projects.

Mrs. Glenn said major assistance is expected from the four cities on acquiring rights-of-way for the widening portion of the improvements.

Representatives of the cities told the commission that in several cases they already have some of the right-of-way needed from donation of the land by developers, she said.

Mrs. Glenn said the 18-month delay in beginning construction is necessary because of the time needed to negotiate for purchase or donation of the right-of-way and to float the bonds.

She added the county has applied for state money on some of the projects named and if the state funding becomes available the portion of gas tax revenues saved will be shifted to the CR 427 project.

In exchange for the cities' pledges of cooperation in acquiring right-of-way, the county commissioners agreed to continue splitting revenues from the gas tax over its 10 year lifetime on a ratio of 65 percent to the county and 35 percent shared by the seven cities, Mrs. Glenn said.

County estimates are that $3.4 million will be received annually from the gas tax. Of that sum, the county gets about $2.3 million annually with the cities sharing the balance of $1.1 million. Sanford, Altamonte Springs and Casselberry this year will receive the major portion — about $800,000 — of the city receipts this year.

The original split was determined by a state formula calling for a comparison of the total expenditures by the county and the cities for transportation over the past five years.

After this year, the individual cities' portion of the gas tax revenues will be determined by a comparison on a percentage basis of the expenditures by each of the cities for transportation needs.

The cities agreed to this formula, Mrs. Glenn said.

No One Paid Attention To Nuke Attack Warning

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A computer glitch sent the warning that would be used for a nuclear attack to startled emergency coordinators across Pennsylvania, but Civil Defense officials complained no one paid attention to the wall of the doomsday sirens.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency said the faulty message went to 44 of the state's 67 counties at 11:14 a.m. Wednesday as technicians tried to duplicate a stored computer message into the agency's new system.

The warning that the day before the day after had arrived rattled the nerves of local civil defense officials, and by the time PEMA officials canceled the erroneous warning four minutes later, some 40 warning sirens were sounding in the Allentown area north of Philadelphia.

Jerry Duckett, a civil defense director in Lehigh County, said he received telephone calls from police and fire officials but none from residents, who seemed to pay no attention.

Parolee's Release Secret

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Prison officials won't reveal their plans for Friday's release of Dan White because of fears for the safety of the former San Francisco city official who assassinated the mayor and another city leader in 1978.

White, 37, will have served five years and one month of his eight-year sentence and will spend one year on parole. He received credit for the time he spent in jail before and during the trial and time off for good behavior.

The assassination of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk, a leader of the homosexual community, at City Hall Nov. 27, 1978, stunned the city.

Many gays rioted when a jury found White guilty of voluntary manslaughter, and more recently state and city officials — including Gov. George Deukmejian and Mayor Dianne Feinstein — failed to persuade the U.S. attorney general to prosecute White under federal civil rights law.

Pentagon Official Quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — W. Paul Thayer, who joined the Reagan administration with fanfare a year ago as deputy secretary of defense, will make a reluctant exit from government one week from today under a cloud of suspicion.

Thayer notified President Reagan Wednesday that he will resign effective Jan. 12 — one year to the day after taking office — so he can defend himself against charges of passing privileged corporate information to investors.

Thayer, 64, is a former fighter pilot whose business acumen led to his recruitment as day-to-day manager of the huge and far-reaching Defense Department bureaucracy. He was chairman of LTV Corp., a major aerospace concern and defense contractor, before accepting the No. 2 job at the Pentagon.

The SEC has requested documents from three companies of which Thayer was an officer in its investigation of whether he passed inside information to acquaintances who then reaped profits in stock trading.

Federal officials fearing another summer of disastrous floods from heavy snowmelt stepped up water releases along the Colorado River. He said because of a major high pressure system over the Southwest and a big low over the Aleutian Islands, "the air current goes directly from Hawaii to Seattle." Guerrillas Retaliate For Air Strikes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israel's forces halted traffic at the vital Awali River bridge in southern Lebanon today, hours after two guerrilla attacks in apparent retaliation for Israeli air strikes that inflicted heavy casualties east of Beirut.

State-run Beirut radio said 100 people were killed and as many as 400 others wounded in the Israeli bombing runs Wednesday in and around the Shiite Moslem town of Baalbek in eastern Lebanon.

The International Red Cross said their total stood at 40 dead and 360 wounded, but added their list was of casualties in the ancient Roman city 52 miles east of Beirut was incomplete.

Beirut radio said guerrillas, in apparent retaliation for the Baalbek strikes, launched two attacks today against the Israeli forces in occupied southern Lebanon within three hours of each other.

In the first attack, a roadside bomb knocked out an Israeli troop carrier at about 7 a.m. (midnight EST), wounding its occupants, Beirut radio said. Israel's Armed Forces Radio, however, denied any Israeli casualties but said a Lebanese civilian was wounded.

No details were immediately available on the second attack about three hours later.

Both attacks were on the outskirts of the Moslem coastal city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

The radio said traffic to and from south Lebanon was halted by the Israeli occupation forces for the second time in a week as Israeli troops sealed off the Awali River bridge in retaliation.

On Wednesday, Lebanese and Palestinian leaders had vowed to avenge the Israeli raids, the deadliest since the June 1982 invasion of Lebanon. A frantic search for survivors buried in smashed concrete buildings continued today.

"With God willing, we will make those enemies pay all the bills," said Hussein Musavi, leader of a Lebanese Shiite Moslem militia.

Israeli and French warplanes attacked the suspected pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem bases around Baalbek in November after suicide bomb attacks against American, Israeli and French troops in Lebanon.

Musavi's pro-Iranian militia is suspected by some Western officials of involvement in the suicide blasts.

The 80-minute strike by waves of Israeli warplanes was also seen as retaliation for escalating guerrilla actions against Israeli occupation forces in predominantly Shiite south Lebanon.

The Marxist-oriented Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine also threatened revenge for the raids, pledging in Damascus to hit targets "inside and outside" Israel.

Palestinian guerrilla bases have been targets of other Israeli air strikes in Lebanon, including one Tuesday, and Wednesday's attack in Baalbek included the Wavell Palestinian refugee camp.

Nabih Berri, the leader of the main Shiite militia group, Amal, called the Israeli strike a "massacre" and said it would only increase his group's opposition to the 19-month Israeli occupation of south Lebanon.

Soviet ambassador to Lebanon Alexander Soldatov was quoted by private Phalange radio as saying the Israeli air strike was a "barbarian" act.

Lebanese Prime Minister Chefik Wazzan added his voice to the denunciations Wednesday night, saying, "These raids will not cancel our people's right to liberty."

Anti-government Druze Moslem militiamen briefly shelled Lebanese army positions east of the capital early today. The army said it respected an existing cease-fire agreement and did not return the fire.

...Ambulance Service OK'd For Cities

Casselberry paramedics serve an eight square mile area in the city limits and a population of approximately 16,000 persons.

Idus Willis, president of Herndon Ambulance Service, Orlando, has indicated that there will be no significant economic impact on his service as outlined.

Also at the meeting, the commission approved extending the ambulance contract with Herndon, which has had the franchise for more than 10 years, on a month-to-month basis. Herndon's 1982-83 contract had been extended twice and Willis has promised to continue his ambulance emergency services on a month-to-month basis until May 1, when the county hopes to have a contract with a new company.

Willis has declined to submit a bid to renew his contract because the $50,000 performance bond had been increased to $500,000. The county has since reduced the amount of the bond to $100,000 to provide four life support ambulances for full time duty in the county. The county now pays Herndon a subsidy of $228,000 for emergency service. The county allows the company to operate the only non-emergency transportation service in the county.

Man Taking Railroad Shortcut Chugs Into Jail

What was supposed to be a shortcut became a quick route to jail for a Lake County man who tried to travel on railroad tracks without a train and found himself stuck on the tracks and on the wrong side of the law.

When Seminole County sheriff's deputies spotted a car stuck on the railroad tracks between Airport Boulevard and Wylie Street in Sanford, the driver said he was taking a shortcut to Sanford Avenue when his car hit a metal box and became lodged on the tracks.

Paul Andrew Mock, 18, of 11 Holopow Road, was arrested at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday and charged with a charge of trespassing on Seaboard Coast Line Railroad property. He posted a $500 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail Wednesday.

PRESCRIPTION FORGERY

An unemployed hospital worker charged with passing a forged prescription and resisting arrest has posted $500 bond and been released from the Seminole County jail.

Pharmacist Suzanne S. DeLongy became suspicious when the woman presented a prescription for Talwin to be filled at Albertson's on State Road 434 in Altamonte Springs at noon Monday.

Ms. DeLongy told sheriff's investigators that she had seen the woman before, but she believed the woman was using a different name.

When the suspect returned to pick up the prescription at 1:15 p.m., she reportedly ran through the store trying to evade the deputy who eventually arrested her.

The prescription the woman presented had reportedly been stolen from Dr. Francisco E. Rosallo of Winter Park. The report written by the arresting deputy listed a dozen different names the suspect reportedly used at various times.

Deborah Sue Swift, 28, of 10217 Encino Way, Altamonte Springs, was charged in the case and is scheduled to appear in court Jan. 13.

BANK BAG TAKEN

A driver for Maitland Auto Parts, 2100 N. Orlando Ave., Maitland, reported that someone took a bank bag containing $594.99 in company money from her unlocked vehicle while it was parked at Nick's Parts & Body Shop, 300 O'Brien Road, Fern Park, shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

CHAINS TAKEN

Claretta Roux, 50, of 296 Ford Drive, Altamonte Springs, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies Wednesday that on Nov. 18 someone entered her unlocked home and took two gold chains valued at $650. Belinda Roux, 33, reported she was at the rear of

SPOUSE ABUSE

A Chuluota man accused of hitting his wife in the face with his open hand during an argument posted $500 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail.

A sheriff's deputy reported that he was called to 400 Lake Mill Road at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday by Barbara Traver, 38. Mrs. Traver reportedly told the officer that her husband had hit her during arguments on Tuesday and Wednesday. The officer reported that he saw bruises on Mrs. Traver's legs and arms.

Norman H. Traver was arrested at his home and charged with spouse abuse. He is scheduled to appear in court on Jan. 13.

ARMED AUTO THEFT

An Orlando man reported that his car was taken from him at gunpoint by a suspect to whom he owes money.

Allen L. Gainey, 23, of 9655 Albemarle Road, said he stopped on Hibiscus Drive, Longwood, at 5 p.m. Tuesday to let a passenger out of his car. Two men drove up behind him and one of them approached Gainey's car and demanded money Gainey owes him.

When Gainey said he didn't have the money, the man went to his own car, which was driven by a second suspect, and returned with a handgun and ordered Gainey to give him the keys to his car. Gainey turned his 1968 Volkswagen over to the suspect and the man drove away in Gainey's car, saying he would return it when he got the money his is owed.

The second suspect also drove away, leaving Gainey to walk home, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Bank Robber Faces 3 1/2-Year Jail Term

An Orlando man scheduled to be sentenced this week for a 15-month-old robbery of a Seminole County bank will have to wait until Jan. 31 to learn his fate.

Ronald Williams Briggs, 18, of 313 Pine Hills Road, was to be sentenced for the unsuccessful robbery on Oct. 22, 1982 of the Flagship Bank, Hunt Club Boulevard, Forest City.

However, State Attorney Mark O'Mara asked Seminole Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. to stay the sentencing until after a co-defendant in the case, Briggs' brother, Robert Eugene Briggs, 22, of 7316 Laurel Hills Road, Orlando, is tried Jan. 16.

Mize delayed the sentencing until 8:15 a.m., Jan. 31. Briggs is expected to testify at his brother's trial. His brother is charged with aiding Briggs in the thwarted robbery.

Briggs, who is being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond, was arrested July 1 after an anonymous telephone tip and faces up to 3 1/2 years in state prison.

MONEY GONE

J.C. Mandy, 60, of 649 Brentwood St., Altamonte Springs, reported that $400 was taken from a wallet on a dresser in his bedroom around midnight Saturday. Mandy told sheriff's deputies that several young people were at his home at the time of the theft and he named a 15-year-old suspect, a sheriff's report said.

MR. T IMPESSONATOR

A Sanford resident was robbed of $10 by a man calling himself "Mr. T."

James Scott Meyns, 17, of 414 1/2 Palmetto Ave., told police he was approached by a man at Fourth Street and Palmetto Avenue who asked him if he wanted to buy a "nickle bag" ($5) of marijuana. When Meyns said no, the man knocked him to the ground and took $10 from his front pocket, according to a Sanford police report.

Police are looking for a bearded man about 5-foot-8, 145 pounds in connection with the robbery.

CORRECTION

It was erroneously reported in Monday's Evening Herald that a Casselberry man was scheduled to give a deposition Tuesday before a circuit court judge.

Donald Archambault, 31, of 1442-D Ash Circle, Casselberry, did not give a deposition.

His attorney, Public Defender Don West, asked the judge to approve a court reporter to take and transcribe depositions which are usually tape recorded in such cases, according to State Attorney Stephen Plotnick. SAJJ agreed to the motion.

Archambault is charged with the November kidnapping, rape, robbery and attempted rape of two women who were at Butler Plaza in Casselberry.

Archambault's trial is set for Feb. 20.

Teacher Jailed For Paddling Grade-Schoolers

MIAMI (UPI) — A former substitute teacher will spend six months in jail for paddling 13 grade-schoolers so hard that several required medical treatment for welts and bruises.

Jacqueline Lawrence, 28, was charged with 13 counts of battery for allegedly beating 13 students in the 4th grade at Naranja Elementary School while substituting there in March.

Ms. Lawrence said the children deserved the paddlings because they had been "disorderly and eating candy" before lunch.

She was fired by Dade County schools because of the paddlings, and begins serving her jail sentence next month. The state revoked her teaching license in October.

Guards Fired Over Escape

ORLANDO (UPI) — An in-house investigation of a prisoner escape earlier this week led jail officials to fire three guards at the Orange County Jail for negligence.

Orange County Jail Director Terry James said the guards' negligence allowed four inmates to flee their fifth-floor cells on New Year's Day.

All four were captured less than an hour later.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Gromyko: No Talks Until U.S. Missiles Removed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko accused the United States of "duplicitous" behavior for urging a resumption of arms negotiations while deploying new nuclear missiles in Europe, and ruled out reopening talks until the weapons are removed.

"To continue the talks after the U.S.A. started deploying its nuclear missile weapons, i.e., in the conditions when they would serve only as a cover for NATO's arms build-up plans, would mean to make for the deception of the peoples," Gromyko said Wednesday.

In December, the Soviets walked out of talks in Geneva with the United States on limiting medium-range weapons after deployment of the first U.S. cruise missiles in Britain and Pershing-2 missiles in West Germany.

The Soviets also left open a date for restarting parallel talks on long-range nuclear weapons and refused to renew talks in Vienna on conventional arms.

Growers Waiting On Help For Freeze-Damaged Crops

PLYMOUTH, Fla. (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary John Block said it will be at least 10 days before weather-plagued citrus and vegetable growers find out if they qualify for special federal aid.

Block, accompanied by Florida Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner and Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park, made a tour Wednesday of the areas hit hardest by the chilling Christmas freeze.

"It's the first time I've seen citrus damage like this," said Block, who made stops in Polk and Orange counties before returning to Washington.

"The citrus I'm used to seeing in Florida is always looking great this time of year. This is a very discouraging thing to see."

Block said it will be at least 10 days before the Department of Agriculture decides if any counties qualify for federal disaster aid because of the severe freeze.

"The most they (growers) can hope for is a low-interest loan," said Conner of the 8-percent loan. "It's not a handout."

Almost 90 percent of the state's citrus crop was on the trees when the freeze hit Dec. 25 and 26. Damage estimates have ranged from $190 million to $500 million.

The blast of cold air not only ruined much of the fruit but also severely damaged plants and trees, officials said.

"From a layman's observations, it looks like 25 or 30 percent of the plants are going to die," said Block after seeing a strawberry farm in Polk County.

A spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual, the state's largest grower organization, said it might cost citrus growers $1,000 an acre to restore their groves.

Florida Citrus Mutual officials also predicted that effects from the recent cold wave will be felt through the 1986 harvest.

Meanwhile, growers raced against the clock to salvage some of the damaged fruit for use as frozen concentrate. Citrus officials said growers need to ship the fruit during the next several weeks before it spoils.

"We already have one week behind us," said Dorothy Shipes, an Orange County grower. "We rapidly need to get it to market."

In a related matter, Conner said 5 million pine seedlings planted at Andrews Nursery in Chiefland were destroyed during the sub-freezing temperatures. Value of the lost seedlings was placed at $60,000.

It was the first such crop lost since the program was started five years ago.

Average New House: $92,100

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sales of new houses held their own in November with a 0.5 percent increase on top of surprisingly strong gains in the previous two months.

The average price of a new house, at $92,100 in November, was still well below the peak set earlier in the year.

Sales of new houses in November were at an annual rate of 638,000 units, 17 percent ahead of a year earlier after seasonal adjustment, the Commerce Department said.

After a sharp August decline in sales builders began to wonder if continuing high mortgage interest rates would seriously cut into the housing boom. While housing starts leveled off somewhat sales picked up again in September and October.

"It just shows that housing was a lot better than what we thought it would be," economist Michael Sumichrast said, speaking for the National Association of Home Builders.

"We have a pretty good year ahead of us," he forecast. "It will see steady production and will end up pretty much the same, possibly a little better."

The report said there were 313,000 houses on the market at the end of November, about 5.9 months of supply at the current rate of sales.

The industry generally considers anything less than seven months supply to indicate a reasonable ratio of supply and demand without builders getting too far ahead of buyers.

At year's end conventional mortgage rates were running at about 13.25 percent across the country, almost the same as at the beginning of 1983, although they went up in the middle of the year.

Earlier this month the department reported builders started 6.4 percent more housing units in November than in October, a turnaround from two previous months of cutbacks.

New construction has been running at 60 percent or more ahead of last year's rate, without seasonal adjustment.

Housing's recovery got a head start on the rest of the economy when interest rates dropped in 1981 and then helped spread its therapeutic effect through the building supply and appliance industries throughout this year.

Economist Mark Riedy, of the Mortgage Bankers Association, said the latest sales figures "are healthy, in the sense that the inventory of unsold homes is maintained at 5.9 months."

Also encouraging was "that housing prices have not exploded," he said.

Next year, "Mortgage rates will come down a little bit. If we're lucky we'll get them down to 12.5 percent by the summer, maybe with some pressure back upward by the end of the year," he said. "You'll have eight months of buying time before rates go up, really a very good year."

The high cost of housing varies across the United States. The median value of a home in these six areas is more than $100,000. That is more than double the national median home value — which reflects their status as high-income locations.

Judge: Prostitutes More Guilty Than Their Customers

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — A judge who vowed to make men "bear the scarlet letter" when they solicit prostitution has also decided that men who buy sex are not as guilty as women who sell it.

Volusia County Judge Norton Josephson announced Wednesday he would no longer permit men charged with soliciting prostitution to make their pleas in his chambers to avoid embarrassment.

In the future, he said, men must enter their pleas in open court to "bear the scarlet letter," alluding to Nathaniel Hawthorne's novel about an adulteress forced to wear a red A on her chest.

Josephson said men might avoid the practice if they knew they would "get the stigma of being arrested for prostitution."

The question of secrecy doesn't apply when women appear in court on prostitution charges, he said.

"It's a profession; being arrested is part of their business," he said.

But Josephson refused Wednesday to impose the same sentence on a man charged with soliciting sex as he had imposed on the woman who pleaded guilty to accepting his money.

"After reflection and further consideration, the court must recede from its inclination to give male defendants the same penalty as female defendants charged with prostitution," the judge said Wednesday.

The judge cited several reasons, among them the contention that men and women are not equally guilty in prostitution cases.

"The female commits the crime for profit or monetary gain, taking from a person a thing of value, whereas a male commits the crime for personal sexual gratification, harming no one but himself," the judge said.

Let's Be Safer At Any Speed...

If Americans buckled their seat belts before driving off, an estimated 13,000 lives would be saved, 190,000 injuries prevented each year. But five out of every six of us don't buckle up, and neither education campaigns nor efforts to police mandatory seat-belt-use laws have been able to break that bad habit.

That's why the Department of Transportation first proposed 15 years ago that some automatic safety device, either passive seat belts or air bags, be installed in all cars.

A 1977 DOT regulation turned that proposal into a rule, which was to be phased in beginning with 1982 model cars. But after President Reagan told the Detroit automakers during the 1980 campaign that "federal regulations are the cause of all your problems," the government reversed course.

The National Highway Safety Administration tossed out the 1977 rule, claiming that air bags were too costly and that passive seat belts were ineffective because they could be disconnected by car owners. But with that strained rationale for doing nothing demolished by a unanimous Supreme Court, which last term scolded DOT for "arbitrary and capricious" reasoning, the safety question has come alive again.

It's time to revive the 1977 regulation, for its approach embodies a happy compromise among the competing concerns for safety, cost and individual liberty. Automatic seat belts, one option under this plan, are effective in rear and side collisions, when air bags are of no use, but apparently less successful in preventing serious injury in head-on crashes.

Such belts also hike the price of new cars only modestly. And, despite NHTSA's claims, they're likely to work, for only the small band of hard-core objectors will actually detach the device.

Air bags have the advantage of invisibility; they're unnoticed until they're needed.

Air bags do protect against the most serious accidents, front-end collisions; the best estimates are that, once generally installed, they'd reduce deaths and serious injuries by 40 percent.

Fears about air-bag miscues, mostly planted by manufacturers are allayed by the evidence. Air bags are extremely unlikely to inflate inadvertently; the chemical propellant in the air bags, while poisonous, is far less accessible than the gasoline in the fuel tank; and limited experience suggests that, when they are set off, air bags will not injure the toddler standing up on the front seat.

Because air bags haven't been mass-marketed, though, concerns about their reliability can't be answered unequivocally.

And while they're cost-effective — the best study concluded that the benefits of installing air bags on all new cars exceed the costs by $47 billion — individual car owners might be well advised to stick with the cheaper, tried-and-true, automatically closing seat belts.

Some consumers will insist that Washington should stay clear of this question, leaving it entirely to car buyers to decide for themselves how much to spend on car safety, but this is one instance when a mandatory program makes sense.

It's cheaper for car buyers, for one thing, since installing air bags and passive seat belts on all cars would cut costs considerably and eliminate the need for automakers to spend money marketing this feature.

And the rest of us would benefit, too, because the estimated $6 billion in taxpayers' dollars spent annually on disability benefits, welfare payments, and the like, for those injured in car crashes would be trimmed considerably.

Transportation secretary Elizabeth Dole, who has asserted that DOT has "no higher mandate than safety," would prove herself to be as good as her word by reinstating the 1977 auto safety regulations.

BERRY'S WORLD

"He's probably ranting and raving about the liberal press right now, wherever he is!"

By Deane Jordan

It's an abbreviated world, especially on the police and courthouse beat.

Your a.m. begins with a trip to the S.P.D. to gather info about various events which occurred in Sanford during the previous p.m.

While you're at the PD, a colleague is at the S.C.S.D. HQ on Airport Blvd., to find out what activities the sheriff's deputies responded to during the night.

If a person is arrested, the event is recorded on a ream of forms each with its own initial argot.

The arrest is recorded on a PAF, persons arrest form, and is often accompanied with an EF, event form.

Some initials seem sensible, such as those referring to hair color: BLK, BRO, BLN, RED, WHI, GRY, SDY and BAL (bald) or eyes: GRY, HAZ, BLK, BLU, BRO, GRN, or MAR (maroon).

Other initials are head scratchers.

FCIC/NCIC gets a second glance, as does VYR and INS.CO. They are, Florida Crime Information Center-National Crime Information Center, vehicle year, and insurance company. BOLO is be on the look-out.

AKA, also known as, is common, as is MV, motor vehicle, LSW, which is, last seen wearing, makes sense as does DL, driver's license, DOB, date of birth, and MD and ME, medical doctor and medical examiner.

Some initials, however, are impossible to decipher.

EF is name endorsed on front of document while PD is person receiving document, OB is owner of a building while DC is the deceased, UD the undertaker. An injured person is usually taken to CFRH, Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Even the cities in Seminole County are shortened: C, WS, AS, O, S, WP, LM, ML, and L.

At the court house, the abbreviated language continues.

FTA can be confusing until it becomes failed to appear, UCD is uncontested divorce, A VOP admonishment becomes a violation of parole hearing after translation.

Some ARRGNS — arraignments — are

Often the defense attorney is from the PDO, public defender's office, while the prosecutor is from the SAO, state attorney's office.

In traffic court, DUIs and UBALs are a common charge, driving under the influence and an unlawful blood alcohol level. DUIAMENDWRRW is a driving under the influence charge amended to willful and reckless driving.

Other agencies in Seminole County also have their particular argot, such as fire departments and rescue services. They all use a Ten-code and signal system based on numbers that convey about 150 different messages, such as "Ten-51 to Signal-4," which means the responding unit is going to a traffic accident.

While the abbreviations, signals, and initials do make the reporting easier after they are learned, they can be confusing.

Sometimes, in fact, they get on one's nerves. PDQ.

DON GRAFF On The Matter Of UNESCO

The issue was never really in doubt. The prolonged debate in political quarters and the press over the pros and cons of U.S. withdrawal from UNESCO was more for the record than in serious expectation of changing any minds.

Withdrawal was too compatible with the Reagan administration's ideological crusade against the Soviet imperialists and their evil machinations in the international community for the decision to have been otherwise.

There wasn't even much of an opposition. Dedicated critics of that crusade aren't making much of a case in this case because of the inescapable facts.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization is a mess.

Originally established to, in the words of its constitution, "contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science and culture," it has been used in recent years for purposes that have nothing to do with world peace and collaboration and everything to do with power politics.

For a decade, the Arabs have been trying to run Israel out. Black Africa has been after South Africa. And the Soviets have egged them all on.

The latest cause of this gang of a hundred or so has been a "new world information order" which the outnumbered West sees as the blueprint for a controlled press worldwide.

UNESCO in Paris, with its swollen bureaucracy and ever-swelling budgets, is fast developing into a junior version of the parent organization in New York, as if one such were not more than enough.

It is a tragedy, because UNESCO was once at the head of that list of U.N. specialized agencies — the World Health Organization, the Food and Agricultural Organization, the International Civil Aviation Organization — that have contributed much to making the postwar world order, for all its flaws, a distinct improvement over what went before.

UNESCO has provided teachers for illiterate populations, expanded communications, promoted research, facilitated the exchange of scientific information, explored man's past and preserved its monuments.

The stock explanation for what went wrong is the rapid growth of membership as former dependencies of the old colonial powers gained independence. The balance tipped against us and the organization has become imbued with a philosophy that, in the words of Jean Gerard, the U.S. delegate to UNESCO, "is very much anti-Western, against what our values are."

True as far as it goes, but that's not far enough. It's also true that we have not done a very good job at playing U.N.-style politics, in Paris or New York, since we lost the majority and thus control of the rules.

We might have done better. Others have.

Pentagon Fund-Seekers' 'Tactics'

WASHINGTON — In their insatiable hunger for fancy hardware and ever bigger budgets, the Pentagon's people are not above juggling the facts and figures when they testify behind closed doors on Capitol Hill.

A favorite tactic is to give key members of Congress secret, selective intelligence on new Soviet weapons, intended to scare the lawmakers into signing a blank check for matching U.S. weapons. The weapons "gaps" thus revealed can only be bridged by the expenditure of billions of dollars.

It's an axiom of this technique that Congress should rarely be told anything that makes the Soviets seem less than 10 feet tall. Reversing the words of an old song, the Pentagon fund-seekers accentuate the negative and eliminate the positive.

My associates Dale Van Atta and Donald Goldberg have uncovered a classic example of this misleading Pentagon practice, involving the Russians' new Alfa class attack submarine. From secret documents and intelligence sources, it appears that the Alfa is a most formidable sub. But without actually lying — simply by not telling the whole truth — the admirals have greatly inflated the Alfa's actual danger.

For example:

— The Alfa is the fastest submarine ever made, with a maximum speed of 42 knots on the surface and 45 knots underwater. It can outrun not only the fastest U.S. subs, but the Navy's surface ships as well. The Pentagon doom merchants cite an ultra-secret intelligence report that tells how an Alfa sub showed off once doing figure-eights behind a Navy battle group.

But what the Pentagon experts conveniently play down is the fact that, while our fastest subs are as quiet as sharks, the Soviet Alfa is one of the noisiest vessels ever to churn through the ocean. It's the underwater equivalent of a hot rod without a muffler. In fact, the Alfa can be detected acoustically more than 1,000 miles away, which means it could hardly sneak up on an enemy target.

Furthermore, at anything over 20 knots, the Alfa's own engine noise to a doctor's home, office or hospital.

Just as if it were appearing on a television set, the radiologist can change the brightness or contrast of the image and enhance the edge of a structure to make it appear sharper.

In an X-ray of a fracture line through a bone, for instance, the doctor can accentuate the broken edge of the bone by manipulating information in the computer.

Written messages also can be sent with the X-rays, such as patient histories and lab test results.

The new method allows doctors to plug in directly to a CT scan or ultrasound machine and receive a transmission on the spot.

"A small hospital which cannot afford to have the full complement of radiology specialists on board now has the opportunity where (it) can economically send X-rays to specialists in various fields of radiology," Bates said.

"And this means that a small hospital now has a great deal more expertise at (its) disposal," he said. "The X-rays can be transmitted to a site where there's a radiologist present. And the patient gets the benefit of an immediate radiology interpretation."

Hospitals now can store up to 5 million X-rays on optical discs.

Richard F. Bader, president of RAYTEL Medical Imaging Inc. of Campbell, Calif., said hospitals are required by law to store X-rays for about five years.

"Hospital space is one of the most expensive spaces around," he said in an interview. "If you ever go to a hospital and go to the X-ray department, you'll see films stacked up everywhere because they just don't have enough space."

A 500-bed hospital generates close to 1,000 films per year per bed, or 500,000 films. In five years, that would be 2.5 million films.

"Our system captures the image that's on that film using computer-type technology and stores it into a computer," Bader said.

SCIENCE WORLD

Now: Instant X-Rays

By Sharon Rutenberg
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — X-rays, a 19th-century discovery which became indispensable to medicine, have entered the space age.

Doctors say X-rays can now be transmitted over phone lines and satellite link-ups within seconds anywhere in the world for an immediate diagnosis. Hospitals can store up to 5 million X-rays in a computer.

Dr. Barry Bates, radiology director at American International Hospital in Zion, Ill., and consultant to DataSpan Inc. of Orchard Park, N.Y., said his hospital can transmit X-rays in 30 to 180 seconds using a method called digital teleradiology.

Currently, doctors send X-rays by mail, which takes about a week and runs the risk of loss.

"X-ray is moving away from film and we're moving into computer imaging," Bates said in an interview. "And I think this is going to be a forerunner of an all-computerized radiology department."

"We can send virtually any kind of X-ray images," including CT scans, ultrasounds and conventional X-rays, Bates said in an interview. CT, or Computerized Tomography, produces images of a cross-section of the body. Ultrasound can produce several different types of image.

To transmit an image, the X-ray film is viewed by a specially designed television camera. That television picture is fed into a computer which turns it into a computer signal and sends the signal over telephone lines.

At the receiving end, another computer transforms the information back into a picture, which is displayed on a small television-type screen.

The receiving unit currently can store up to 200 X-rays. "And the radiologist can come in and review those X-rays at a later time," Bates said.

The X-rays can be sent anywhere in the world — further than telephone lines can take it by bouncing off satellites —

WASHINGTON WORLD Congress, In War And Peace

By Don Phillips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lebanon hangs heavy about the neck of Congress, but history shows that the lawmakers are unlikely to do anything about their problem unless U.S. involvement truly turns Lebanon into another Vietnam.

The truth is that Congress, under the system framed by Thomas Jefferson and his friends a couple of centuries ago, really is not set up to wage war or to stop it. Congress was designed to be the wagged tail in matters of war and peace — given the right under the Constitution to declare war, but almost always after it has started.

Even public sentiment, which traditionally moves Congress, did not prevent the introduction of troops into Lebanon and it has not brought them home. In the face of public sentiment, Congress actually extended the legal stay of U.S. Marines to 18 months.

The depth of public sentiment against involvement in Lebanon became clear last summer, months before 241 Marines were killed in a truck bomb explosion at their Beirut barracks.

Reporters polling House members by phone shortly before they returned from their August recess were struck by the sameness of their descriptions of the mood of the public. "Nervous" or "uneasy" were terms used by almost everyone.

Even the hawks who strongly supported involvement in Lebanon acknowledged that they were doing so against the wishes of a healthy portion of their constituents.

Yet, against this background, Congress voted to extend to 18 months the maximum 90 days that President Reagan would be allowed to keep troops in a combat zone if the War Powers Act was strictly enforced.

There are three reasons why this happened, and why Congress is unlikely to order the troops home early.

First, the Democratic leaders of the House, notably House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, held fast to the tradition that "politics stops at the water's edge"; O'Neill and his Democratic colleagues, who could have tied the Reagan plan in knots, worked out an agreement to give Reagan essentially what he wanted.

Foreign policy traditionally has been a bipartisan matter on the Hill, with some big exceptions such as the ending of the Vietnam war.

A second factor working against taking action in Lebanon is that members of Congress are reluctant to stick their necks out any farther than absolutely necessary. Taking an active part in U.S. policy in Lebanon would make them an accomplice in any outcome, and leave them to share the blame.

A kind description of this attitude is "cautious." The unkind description is "gutless." The truth lies somewhere between, and varies from member to member.

Footnote: Significantly, for all their purported alarm over the Alfa submarine, the admirals have never suggested that the United States build one like it.

IMELDA AND THE GRINCH: The Philippines' straitened financial situation put a damper on first lady Imelda Marcos's Christmas. In the past, her extravagant yuletide shopping spree in New York enriched the most fashionable couturiers and boutiques on Fifth Avenue. But with her country begging for handouts from the International Monetary Fund and other credit sources, Mrs. Marcos was obliged to restrain her conspicuous consumption impulses this year and forgo the New York shopping expedition. She might have run into a nosy reporter — or an international banker's wife.

Campbell Shuts Down Gordon, Tribe Smothers DeLand

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Anyone who has seen Sanford's Lady Seminoles play knows they have a devastating offensive attack. Wednesday night, in a key Five Star Conference battle against DeLand's Lady Bulldogs, Seminole proved that it can also play outstanding defensively.

Seminole's pressure defense forced DeLand to turn the ball over 30 times and Maxine Campbell did a job on DeLand's high-scoring Bridgette Gordon as the Lady Tribe rolled to a 61-44 rout of the Lady Bulldogs at Seminole High.

"We played super on defense tonight," Seminole coach Ron Merthle said. "I put Maxine (Campbell) on Gordon and she did a great job. Gordon scored most of her points near the end of the game, after I took Maxine out."

Seminole upped its record to 11-2 overall but, more important, the Lady Tribe improved to 6-0 in the Five Star Conference and remained the only unbeaten team in conference play. DeLand fell to 9-3 overall and 4-2 in the conference. Seminole is back in action Thursday night as it travels to Spruce Creek.

DeLand established the tempo early in the game, playing a deliberate, slow-down offense. The Lady Bulldogs' strategy worked for the first quarter and DeLand took a 8-5 lead into the second. Seminole came out cold in the opening quarter, hitting just 2 of 11 shots from the floor.

DeLand stuck to its game plan early in the second quarter, but Campbell started to get hot from outside and the Seminole defense started forcing turnovers. With the score tied at 15-15, Seminole reeled off 10 straight points to take a 25-15 lead. Campbell hit three straight jumpers to spark the rally.

DeLand came back with five straight points to pull within five, 25-20, but Dierdre Hillery dropped in a layup in the final seconds of the quarter to give Seminole a 27-20 halftime lead.

Seminole took command in the third quarter, holding DeLand to just four points and forcing 11 turnovers. With Seminole holding a 29-22 lead, the Lady Tribe scored 10 unanswered points to take a 39-22 lead and Seminole led by 19, 43-24, by the end of the quarter.

The Lady Tribe went up by as much as 25 points in the fourth quarter to put the game on ice and Merthle then took his starters out. DeLand coach Clifford Cox left his starters in though, and Gordon scored 11 of her game-high 27 points with Seminole's starting five on the bench.

Four players scored in double figures for the Lady Seminoles with Mona Benton's 14 points leading the way. Hillery, Campbell and Catherine Anderson added 10 points apiece and Andell Smith did a fine job off the bench with eight points. Hillery led the Tribe underneath with 12 rebounds and Anderson pulled down 11 boards.

Gordon added eight rebounds to her 27 points while Robyn Swartz added seven points for the Lady Bulldogs.

Rams, Lions Meet Tonight

Seminole County's two undefeated wrestling teams knock heads tonight in what should be a blockbuster match at Oviedo High School. Mat time is 8 p.m.

Lake Mary's Rams, unbeaten in four dual matches, and Oviedo's Lions, perfect in seven duals, will decide the county bragging rights after impressive showings in the Lyman Christmas Tournament during the holiday break.

Wrestling

Oviedo, third in the tournament, is awesome in the lower weights while Lake Mary is a solid, balanced unit. "We have to take six of the first seven weights," declared Oviedo coach John Horn. "Then, get an upset in the upper weights. Lake Mary is very strong the farther down the line you go."

Lake Mary coach Frank Schwartz is impressed by the Lions' lower weights, five of which were state tournament contenders last year. "We've gotta stay close in the early going," said Schwartz. "We need to win two of the first six. Then we can let our upper weights take over."

Schwartz, whose Rams were second in the tournament, is counting on two of the state's best — senior Jack Likens (115) and junior Ivan Carbia (108) — to come through for him down low.

In the upper weights, a return of senior Brent Blakely at 158 could provide the margin of difference since Schwartz is almost assured of victories with Willie Green (188), Ned Kolbjornsen (223) and Robert Rawls (UNL). Green, Kolbjornsen and Rawls have just four losses among them in 24 matches.

Horn, meanwhile, is trying to juggle his lineup to provide his team with the best matchups. "We want to beat them," said Horn. "The key to the match may be Likens and Brian Smith."

Smith, 10-1-4 (wins, losses, pins), usually wrestles at 122, but he may go down to 115 to set up a blockbuster match with Likens. Horn figures if he can knock off Likens, the Lions can take the match.

Oviedo will open with Jerry Jordan (101) against Lake Mary's Craig Johnson. Jordan was second in the Lyman Christmas Tournament and has a sparkling 10-1-7 record.

At 108, Horn will either go with Rob Harmon (7-3) or Shawn Knapp (10-1-8). If Smith doesn't make weight, Knapp will take on Likens. Steve Berg (128) and Mike Hilgar (135) are Horn's other studs.

Jim Maher drops in a short jumper for the SCC Raiders. Maher hit all three of his field-goal attempts but the Raiders lost to Parkland, 84-67, Wednesday night.

Cobras Take Apart Raiders

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Even the most ardent SCC basketball proponent had to be impressed with the way Parkland (Champaign, Ill.) Community College took apart the Raiders Wednesday night at the SCC Health Center.

"That was an execution," marvels Roger Dorio, an assistant coach at Daytona Beach Community College who was in town to scout the Cobras for an upcoming game.

"They (Parkland) sure put on a clinic," said Central Florida Community College coach Benny Gabbard. "I came to scout SCC (for a game next week) and ended up watching Parkland. It made the trip from Ocala worthwhile just to see them play. What a performance."

Count SCC coach Bill Payne among the impressed, too, after Parkland controlled his Raiders, 84-67, before 200 fans. "Parkland's got a very nice team, no doubt about it," said Payne. "We didn't play very well, but they're no sense making excuses. They had us confused all night."

The Raiders, 10-6, broke quickly as Delvin Everett dropped in a bucket and 6-6 center Luis Phelps added two short jumpers for a 6-2 lead. Then a succession of SCC fouls, a three-point play by Kent Jackson and two free throws by Erick Milliren allowed the Cobras to pull back into the game.

With the score knotted a 16-16 on a Jim Payton bomb, the Parkland crew seized control. Silky-smooth forward Walter Grain followed a Jackson rebound bucket with two soft jumpers for a 20-16 lead, which forced an SCC time out.

From that point on, the Cobras controlled the tempo and the game. "We knew we had to control the tempo," said coach Tom Cooper about his 14-3 club. "We can't play high speed for 40 minutes. If it were a track meet, we'd lose every event."

The Raiders rallied somewhat in the closing five minutes as Sanford forward Bernard Merthle fired in four straight shot — two on nice tip plays — to pull the locals within 32-28.

Parkland, though, flurried again at the end behind center Mike Strater to take a 42-34 halftime lead. Strater totaled 12 points in the first half while Jackson added eight. Merthle had eight for SCC while Phelps and Lenny Grace had six apiece.

Whatever comeback hopes for the Raiders vanished immediately in the second half when Parkland outscored SCC, 12-4, in the opening five minutes. Grain, who was hampered with three fouls in the first half, tossed in three consecutive buckets and Strater added two more for a 54-38 lead.

Ten minutes later, Parkland had its biggest bulge with a 72-50 advantage as Strater and Grain continued to riddle the lethargic Raiders.

"We didn't give a good effort," said Payne trying to analyze his team. "I don't know what the problem is. Maybe a shakeup in the lineup will help. We're going to start playing the guys who play the hardest, not just the best players."

Merthle fit into both categories Wednesday. The 6-5 forward continually battled Parkland on the boards and finished with eight points. Everett, Payton and Grace also totaled eight. Phelps finished with 10 to lead SCC.

Strater hit 9 of 18 floor shots and 4 of 4 from the line for 22 points. Jackson had 17 points and eight rebounds while Grain finished with 16 and guard Mike Chastain added 10, along with a nice floor game.

Parkland also benefitted from some good field-goal shooting and some excellent marksmanship from the foul line. The Cobras hit 32 of 59 from the floor for 54 percent and 20 of 24 free throws for 83 percent. The Raiders hit just 31 of 73 field goals (42 percent) and 5 of 6 free tosses.

The Raiders take a two-day road trip this weekend. Friday, they go to Lake Sumter Community College in Leesburg and Saturday, they journey to Santa Fe in Gainesville.

Seminoles Lose 6th Match

DELAND — Coach Roger Beathard's Fighting Seminoles wrestling team continued to struggle, losing their sixth straight match to the DeLand Bulldogs, 48-21.

Despite the setback, the Tribe continued to get strong performances from freshman Troy Turner, senior James "Cheese" Morgan and freshman Charleton Mays.

Turner, who finished second in the Lyman Christmas Tournament, pinned Karl Alkibasch at 158 pounds. The victory was his ninth in 10 matches.

Mays, who has been coming on strong in the past month, also registered a pin, sticking Reginald Ware in 3:20 at 101 pounds.

Morgan picked up another pin when he flattened Chuck Duchamore in 3:23 at 188 pounds.

Junior Steve Chung earned the other Seminole victory.

Lyman's Early Pins Hold Off Patriots

By Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

Lyman wrestling coach Skip Pletzer and Lake Brantley coach Ken Carpenger both were thinking along the same lines when they discussed Lyman's 42-30 victory over the Patriots Wednesday night.

"It kind of went as I expected," said Pletzer. "We're stronger in the light weights and they're stronger in the heavier weights," Pletzer added.

"It was a good match," said Carpenger. "I'm not happy that we lost but I am happy with the way we performed. Lyman is just much stronger than us in the light weights."

Both coaches were right on the mark. Lyman won seven of the first eight matches — from 101 to 148 — to move ahead 40-8 and put the meet out of reach.

In a whirlwind first match Lyman's Jim Dowling came back from a near pin to pin Andy Tousignant at the 1:38 mark. The match set the tone for the evening as many of the matches saw one wrestler or the other coming back from a near pin to win or decision.

"Dowling did a good job for us," Pletzer said. "He's a JV kid who came up here, came off the mat twice and won."

The only lightweight win of the night for Brantley was Chris Battle's pin of Sean Garrett in the 115-pound match.

After that match, the only lightweight pin the Greyhounds failed to get was Juvan Lee's decision of Lake Brantley's Dan Black.

The feature match of the evening was between Lyman's Derek Smith and Lake Brantley's Joe Waresak in the 158-pound class. Both wrestlers were coming off recent tournament championships.

Waresak went up 5-1 on a nifty set of take downs and controlling moves. Smith was awarded one penalty point when Waresak clasped his hands and another and another when Waresak wrestled off the mat.

A takedown and control gave Waresak a 7-3 lead and seemingly a victory late in the match, but a good takedown and control put Smith back to 7-5 and a flourish at the end gave him the tie.

"That was a heck of a match," Pletzer said. "Derek could have wrestled better earlier but he came back and did what he had to do. Waresak is a good wrestler. It's a tough weight class. There are three wrestlers in the conference who can end up being the champion; these two and Seminole's (Troy) Turner."

From his stand point, Carpenger questioned the total of four penalty points awarded to Smith during the match. "I questioned a couple of the calls," said Carpenger. "But Joe could have wrestled better."

From that point on, Brantley dominated the match, winning the last four matches; three on pins.

A brutally strong Dean Shirley dominated Lyman's Pat Perkins, 21-12. He had been up as much as 12-1, but Perkins refused to give up and more than once came off the mat to keep going. He got as close as 18-11 before Shirley put him away.

"Perkins is a sophomore and did a great job," said Pletzer. "He had a tremendous effort. If he keeps working like that, he'll beat some people."

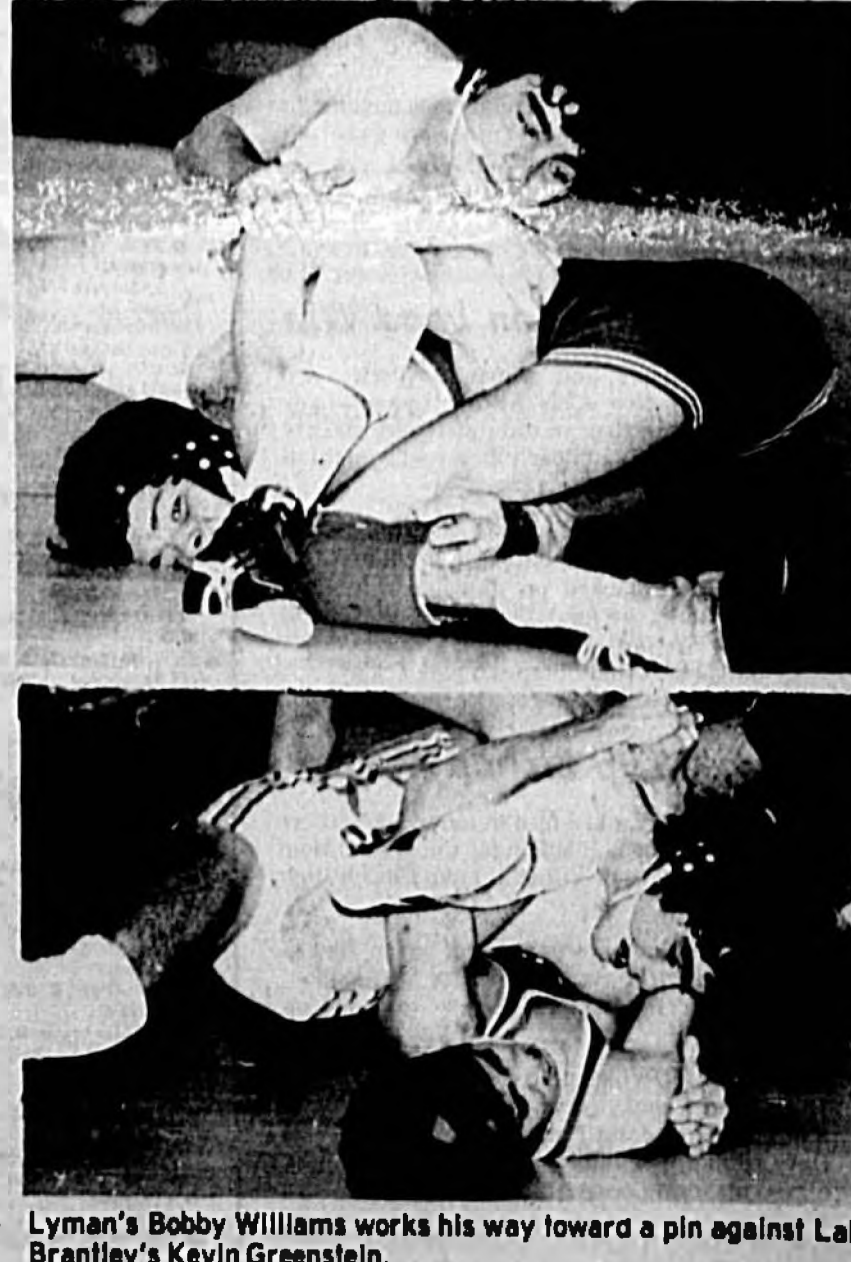

Both coaches made the focus of their comments to the lack of team experience. "Our heavier guys are all young," said Pletzer. "Jimbo Smith (unlimited) is a freshman and he'll take his lumps for a while. But by the time he's a senior, he'll be something. Lake Brantley's guy (Andy Craft) is a four-year wrestler and you can tell."

"We've got eight kids of the thirteen who are first time wrestlers," said Carpenger. "It'll take some time."

With the underclassmen that both teams boast, time is a luxury.

Odds-makers Insist: Raiders Won't Fall To Seattle Again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The list of the Raiders' achievements during the last two decades virtually screams out of the team's media guide: Ten division titles, two American Football League championships, two Super Bowl victories. The most successful organization in all of the pro sports world for the past 20 years, the page trumpets.

If they lose to Seattle in Sunday's AFC Championship game, here's a line you will definitely not read next season in the Raiders' guide — "First team ever to lose three games to the Seahawks in one season."

Despite two losses to the surprising Seahawks this season, the odds-makers insist it won't happen again Sunday when a Super Bowl berth goes to the winner. They have made Los Angeles a 7-point favorite.

Raider tight end Todd Christensen seconds that notion.

"The bottom line is this. We have everyone healthy, we ran up a big score against one of the NFL's best defenses last week (a 38-10 win over Pittsburgh) and we're at home," Christensen said Wednesday before the Raiders moved onto the practice field.

"If Seattle can beat us three times, then they deserve to go to the Super Bowl. I don't think they can do it."

Christensen, a 230-pounder who led the Raiders with a whopping 1,247 yards on 92 catches — 12 of them for touchdowns — during the regular season, grew up in Eugene, Ore., and was a rabid fan of the team to the north.

NFL Playoffs

"I always liked the Seahawks," he said. "It's too bad they can't go to the Super Bowl."

The Raiders committed 13 turnovers in their two losses to Seattle, giving the ball away eight times in a 38-36 loss in the Kingdom and handing it over five more times in their worst beating of the season, a 34-21 defeat Oct. 30 in the Coliseum.

Raider head coach Tom Flores said some of those turnovers can be blamed on his team's carelessness. But he also said some were unavoidable against the aggressive Seahawk defense, which held Miami to only six first downs in the second half of last Sunday's shocking 27-20 playoff victory over the Dolphins.

"They get after you on every play," Flores said. "They swarm on the ball, reaching and grabbing for it and doing everything to knock you loose from it. And it seems they're always right there to pick it up."

With the two stinging losses very fresh in the Raiders' minds, Flores knows he doesn't have to remind his troops that despite what the odds-makers think and what the records seem to indicate — the Raiders were 12-4 in the regular season, while Seattle snuck into the playoffs with a 9-7 mark — Sunday's AFC title game should be a dogfight.

"We're playing a good football team that's hot. They're on a roll," Flores said.

Marcus Allen churns out some more yardage for the Raiders.

Who Did Miami Beat? Nebraska...That's All

Who's that up there on top of the mountain? It's not a bird and it's not Superman. It's the Miami Hurricanes.

They're No. 1, the new national college football champs in the country, but hold on a minute.

An objection has been lodged. We've got what the lawyers call a demurrer. Somebody has a question. The man posing the question is Auburn's coach, Pat Dye.

Come, come now, coach, if you can't figure it out and don't really know the answer like you say, there are a lot of people all over the country who can help you out with it.

Pat Dye is a darn good coach, the kind who wins wherever he goes, including Auburn.

No question about it, his team plays the toughest schedule in America. After going through that type of back-breaking schedule, Auburn won 11 out of 12 this season, losing only to Texas. It wound up being the third best team in the nation after a not-that-impressive 9-7 win over ninth-ranked Michigan in the Sugar Bowl. Michigan led 7-6 until the last 23 seconds when Art De Greco's 19-yard field goal brought Auburn from behind.

Publicly, Pat Dye is saying he isn't that sure Miami is a better team than his team, Auburn. Speaking a little plainer and getting more to the point, he asks:

"Who did Miami beat that's anybody's?"

Aha, now it comes out.

What Pat Dye actually is saying in a sort of round about way is he can't possibly understand how anyone can rate Miami over Auburn on the basis of the schedules the two teams played. Dye points out his team beat nine others who wound up in Bowl games while Miami played teams like Louisville, Cincinnati and East Carolina.

Miami came out of the box by losing its season-opener to Florida 28-3, then won its next 11 contests. The Hurricanes' final victory came in Monday night's Orange Bowl where they beat previously top-ranked Nebraska 31-30 in one of the most exciting contests in years.

Pat Dye wasn't in Miami at the Orange Bowl Monday night. Had he been there, he would've had his question answered. The one about who the Hurricanes beat that was anybody.

Now he wouldn't call the Cornhuskers nobody, or would he? That's how Miami got to be No. 1, by beating Nebraska. The answer is simple enough.

For what it's worth, Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, one of the 42 coaches on the UPI Board of Coaches, voted Miami No. 1 on his ballot Tuesday.

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

Like some others who feel as Pat Dye does, the Auburn coach could ask why predicate everything on one game? Especially a bowl game, which doesn't always provide the most accurate barometer of a team's ability due to the layoff period in between and other factors. But I don't think that's an entirely fair question because Miami did not achieve its No. 1 ranking on that game alone. I can understand Pat Dye looking at it that way the same way I can understand the pride he feels in his team.

But maybe he should look at it this way: At the end of the regular season, the Board of Coaches, from seven regions of the country, rated Nebraska No. 1. The Cornhuskers had won all 12 of their games up to that point and nobody had any argument about their ranking.

At the end of its season, Miami was ranked the fourth best team in the country. Not much argument there, either. But after the game the Hurricanes played against the Cornhuskers Monday night and the manner in which they beat them, the Board of Coaches believed that Miami now was No. 1 and Nebraska No. 2.

Auburn, ranked third at the end of its regular season, didn't move. It also finished third after its Sugar Bowl win over Michigan. That should tell Pat Dye something, too. And if he has any beef, he should take it up with his fellow coaches. They're the ones who voted, and I believe they voted correctly.

Some people believe the polls, such as we conduct here at UPI, with the coaches, and The Associated Press does with sports writers, don't really prove anything, and they may be right in that assessment. Yet, I know other people who think it's the greatest thing in the world for any number of reasons.

One reason is that it brings recognition, and who doesn't like to be recognized? Two is that it generates controversy, and no matter what they say, most people like that as well.

The most important reason of all, perhaps, is that it creates incentive among the players, incentive to do well, and what's so wrong about that?

Maulers Choose Rozier 1st In Draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nebraska lost its spot as the No. 1 college football team this week, but Cornhuskers players still were rated highest by U.S. Football League scouts. Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier of Nebraska was taken by the Pittsburgh Maulers with the first pick in the USFL draft Wednesday. After the Oklahoma Outlaws selected All-America defensive end Ron Frazier of Arkansas on the second pick, the Chicago Blitz chose Cornhuskers All-America wingback Irving Fryar with the third pick, which they acquired from San Antonio.

The Maulers went into the draft looking for help on the offensive and defensive lines but felt Rozier was too good to pass.

"It's something we felt we had to do," Maulers president Paul Marth said. "We're in the business of season ticket sales, and he's the kind of player who can do that. Plus, he is a heckuva football player."

Maulers spokesman said season-ticket buyers lined up in the team's downtown offices shortly after it announced it had drafted Rozier with the understanding that the Camden, N.J., native would consider its offer seriously.

Rozier might wait, however, to see what NFL team drafts him in that league's May draft. He is expected to be the first running back and perhaps the first player selected in that draft as well.

A third member of the All-America backfield — Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young — was taken by the Los Angeles Express with the 10th pick of the first round. The Express also selected BYU All-America tight end Gordon Hudson in the eighth round.

Faison Leads UCF Win; Reddick Riddles Cadets

ORLANDO (UPI) — Junior forward Dan Faison led the University of Central Florida with 22 points in a 67-56 victory Wednesday over Merrimack College.

Faison, who also had 10 rebounds, was followed by Larry Gowlin with 18 points.

Center Joe Dickson led Merrimack with 26 points. Dickson is one of the all-time leading NCAA Division II scorers, averaging 22 points per game.

The lead changed hands four times during the first half. The Knights took a 9-point lead when Faison hit the second of two free throws with 2:21 remaining, and never trailed after that. Central Florida led 32-25 at the half, and stretched the lead to as much as 13 points in the second half.

Central Florida is now 3-9 for the season, and Merrimack is 5-4.

DELAND (UPI) — Mike Reddick led Stetson with 21 points and 11 rebounds in a 69-51 victory over Army Wednesday.

Glynn Myrick had 19 points and Jorge Fernandez added 15 as the Stetson Hatters improved their record to 9-3.

Kenny Schwartz scored 13 points for the Army, followed by Randy Cozzens with 11. The loss dropped the Cadets to 6-5.

Stetson shot 67 percent while building up a 14-point, 41-27, lead in the first half. The Hatters out-rebounded the shorter Cadets 18-4 in the initial half.

Army closed to within 8 points three times during the second half before Stetson rebuilt its lead and coasted during the final minutes.

Mothers and babies meet Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, from 9 a.m. to noon. For information, call the SCC admissions office.

Evening Drapery Class

An evening drapery class is offered in the fully equipped drapery lab at Seminole Community College on Mondays and Wednesdays, beginning on Jan. 9, from 7-9 an ending on April 16.

The fee is $20. For information call the SCC admissions office.

Mrs. Marie Taylor, who resigned Jan. 2 as Social Services Director of the Seminole County school system, will be honored at an open house reception Sunday, Jan. 8, from 2-4 p.m., at the Community United Methodist Church, U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

Associates, friends and students are invited to call during the appointed hours.

KARE For Kids

Former Sanford Woman Heads Neonatal Project

Plans are now well underway for the second annual KARE Telethon to benefit pediatric services at Orlando Regional Medical Center. Scheduled for Saturday, March 10, the four and one-half hour program will be broadcast live on WESH-TV, Channel 2, from the studios of Nautilus Television Network, a division of Nautilus Sports/ Medical Industries, Inc.

Marlyn King, chairman of the event again this year, grew up in Sanford and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McDonald of this city.

Mrs. King reports that even though the telethon is still four months away, community support is already building. "Friends of ORMC are now holding KARE-Go-Round parties," she says. "KARE-Go-Round parties are neighborhood round-robin parties with a theme and those who participate have an opportunity to learn more about pediatric services at ORMC while they have a good time with their friends and neighbors. All donations given at the time of a party are added to the funds raised on the day of the actual telethon."

According to Mrs. King, the KARE-Go-Round parties were a very important part of last year's successful telethon and it's clear they will be just as important this year. In fact, although most of the parties raise an average of $650, a record $17,000 was raised during the first KARE-Go-Round party for the up-coming telethon.

Mrs. King explains, "KARE stands for 'Kids are the Responsibility of Everyone' and we feel these parties are a good way to offer an opportunity for participation to a broader segment of our community."

Mrs. King emphasizes that many other special events have been planned in connection with the telethon. "For example, BJ 105 will broadcast three KARE Carnivals while the telethon is in progress. The radio station has plans to set up remote broadcasts at the Altamonte Mall, Volusia Mall and Melbourne Square Mall that Saturday afternoon and that will help spread involvement in our project through the entire Central Florida community.

"We are very excited about the plans that have been made and the activities that are already underway for our second annual KARE Telethon," says Mrs. King. "Last year, we raised over $131,000 dollars for ORMC's neonatal intensive care unit. This year, the sky is the limit."

'Wish I Had Your Guts'

James Mason Is Proud Of James Mason

James Mason, who just turned 95 and was recently recognized as the oldest participant in this year's Sanford Golden Age Games in Sanford, has received a special letter of congratulations from internationally famous celebrity, actor James Mason.

The presentation, which took place at the Cablevision studio on Mr. Mason's birthday and during a taping of a television special on the games, included a proclamation from the city of Sanford, a letter of congratulations from cablevision and a birthday cake decorated with bowling pins and a big "95."

"We wanted Hollywood's James Mason to know that he wasn't the only James Mason featured in Sanford during November" said Martí Jasper, marketing manager for Cablevision. By coincidence, actor James Mason was featured on HBO in "The Verdict" at the same time that Mr. Mason was being recognized for his contributions to the games.

When actor James Mason learned of the popularity associated with his name, he was pleased and sent Mr. Mason the following letter:

Dear James Mason,
I am proud to bear the same name as a certain Senator Marathon Man.

Since, according to my sources of information, you're a mere 95 years, it is not inappropriate to wish you continued success in every contest ahead of you.

I wish I had your guts!
With every good wish from,

James Mason

Wife Straying Husband's 'Other Woman'

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, my husband of 23 years (we're both in our mid-40s) left me to move in with a 23-year-old girl he picked up in a bar. Until then we had a good and loving relationship. Then his business failed, which was more than he could handle, so he left.

He didn't leave completely. He keeps many of his personal belongings here, still pays all the household expenses and comes to see me two or three nights a week. (We usually end up in bed.) Of course, we can't see any of our old friends anymore or go out in public because he doesn't want his girlfriend to know about our continuing relationship.

My question: Am I doing the right thing by continuing to see my husband? I think he needs all the love and support I can give him. I'm sure that when he gets things figured out he will want to come back home again. But until then, what about the girl?

I don't want to hurt anyone, but I still love my husband and don't want to let him down when he needs me. What do you advise?

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: You are to be commended for your loyalty, devotion, understanding and support of a husband who left you to live with another woman. But what kind of man would live with one woman and sneak out to be with another two or three times a week? Take a closer look at this deceitful and mixed-up character. What assurance have you that he will return and be a decent husband again? You are being more a forgiving mother to him than a wife, but if you are happy in that role, 'tis folly to be wise.

DEAR ABBY: I recently announced my engagement, so everywhere I go people congratulate me, then they say, "I'm looking for my invitation." Or they ask the wedding date, and when I tell them, they say, "Oh, great, I can make it!"

I am furious at myself for not saying something on the spot to let them know I had not planned on inviting them. These people who are not my close friends try to bribe me by saying, "If you invite me, I'll bring a nice present." This is not the point. I can't invite the whole blasted community to my wedding!

My parents are retired and can't afford to pay for my wedding, so my fiance and I are footing the bill, and we are limited because of the cost.

How should I handle these people who invite themselves? I hate to hurt their feelings, but I need to let them know they shouldn't expect an invitation.

SPEECHLESS AND FUMING

DEAR B. AND F.: What's wrong with the truth? Tell them you are planning to have a very small wedding because that's all you can afford.

DEAR ABBY: A New York reader wrote that a relative who had died on a trip to Poland was buried there because it would have been too expensive ($7,500) to have his body flown back to the United States for burial. I wondered why cremation wasn't considered. It would have cost much less to have his remains (ashes) flown home.

I had always wondered why, with Europe's long history, some of those countries weren't crowded with cemeteries. On my first visit there I learned that as long as someone pays rent on a burial plot, the remains are left undisturbed. But if payments cease, the grave is emptied in preparation for the next occupant.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JANUARY 6, 1984
New gains are likely this coming year from situations that have already yielded you reasonable returns. However, over the coming months they'll be even larger.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be exceptionally lucky in two areas today. One relates to your status, the other to your income. They'll be dealt with separately. Major changes are in store for Capricorns in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're blessed with the ability today to see a little clearer and further than your peers. These assets will benefit you as well as those you inspire.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Circumstances could be such today that you might feel control of matters is taken out of your hands. Don't worry. Lady Luck is guiding the moves.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) For a person who usually takes pride in being a rugged individualist, you are likely to do an about face today and seek teamwork situations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Thinking "win" is a necessary ingredient for victory today. Once you establish the right attitude, you'll have an edge over the competition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Important connections who wouldn't lift a finger for you early in the week will be supportive today. It's up to you to make your wishes known.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take the lead in joint ventures today. You'll be better able than your associates to gauge drifts and shifts in situations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You should be able to get along well with persons from all walks of life today, but where you'll really shine is in relationships with bigshots.

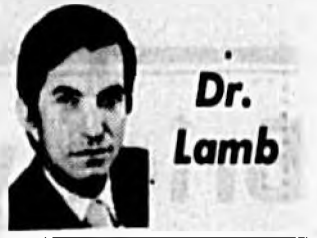

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your material stockpile will increase today if you are willing to blend perspiration with inspiration. Use this dynamic combination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Beneficial things could develop today if you get out where you can be seen. You make a good impression, especially with the opposite gender.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is an unusual day in that the good that you do will come back to you manifold. Put the concerns of loved ones above your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Focus your efforts and energies today on ventures that truly arouse your enthusiasm. Much can be accomplished if you're fired-up.

Emphysema Victims: Avoid Pollutants

DEAR DR. LAMB— I am 78 years old and have been retired for about two years. I quit smoking 20 years ago. But in 1980, I caught a cold and had an X-ray that showed emphysema in my lower right lung. When I talk or walk a lot or climb stairs, I lose my breath. I had a chronic cough for quite a few years, but nothing showed up on my X-rays until after the cold.

Please advise me as to what I can do to get relief from my breathing problem.

DEAR READER — Undoubtedly, the years of smoking before you stopped caused some damage to your lungs. But in the 20 years that have followed, your lungs should have made a major recovery from smoking. Your chronic cough probably is related to bronchitis, which also can be caused by cigarette smoking. Other air pollutants can contribute to chronic bronchitis.

As people get older they often develop some degree of emphysema. They can lose the elasticity of the small air sacs, even if they never smoked. The condition is worse in some people because of inherited medical defects that affect the air sacs' elasticity.

It is important to do anything you can to prevent progression of emphysema. That means eliminating all sources of pollution. Stay away from people who smoke. Don't allow any smoking in your house or in your environment. In the winter, be sure that your living quarters have proper moisture, as dry air can irritate the problem. Moderate exercise is often helpful, but, of course, it needs to be kept within the range of your capability. Avoid respiratory infections and have a flu shot every year.

I am sending you The Health Letter, 17-8, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema, which discusses the problem in more detail. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I think you should be evaluated by a pulmonary specialist for tests. That would enable your doctor to know exactly how much pulmonary function you have and help advise you better on your program for the future.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 28 and had a bilateral tubal ligation six years ago after the birth of my second child. I am now regretting that decision and would like to undergo a reversal.

My doctor said I have a 60 percent chance of becoming pregnant after a reversal operation. Are there any risks? Is there a chance of something being wrong with the baby?

DEAR READER — You get different statistics on the success of reversal operations. Some doctors believe the rate of success is improved if the operation is performed by microsurgery. The type of surgery you had in the first place is important in determining whether a reversal operation is feasible or not.

No surgery is without risk. But the risk to you of complication is quite small in this case.

There is no reason why the baby should not be just as healthy as if you had not had the tubal ligation at all.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

play the dummy irrespective of whether or not he could play it correctly.

Three no-trump was a typical safe contract. Against the normal spade lead, North would have no trouble collecting 10 tricks and might well get to 11 if the defense slipped a trifle.

What North would have done is unimportant. South had 100 honors and was going to play the hand.

He played it rapidly and with conspicuous lack of success. He won the club in dummy, drew trumps with three leads and led a diamond toward dummy. The queen fell to East's ace. The jack came back, and since the defense played well from that point on, South wound up with just nine tricks.

Careful play would have brought home the contract. South should have trumps strictly alone and lead a diamond at trick two. This way he would be able to ruff his fourth diamond and score game and rubber plus his 10Q honors.

'Oh Madeline' A Near Miss

By David Handler

ABC's Oh Madeline falls into that vast gray sitcom area between total garbage, like Three's Company, and shimmering brilliance, like Cheers.

It lives where shows like Benson and Silver Spoons and Family Ties and Newhart live.

It's not great. It's not terrible. It's just sort of there. If it succeeds in the ratings, it's because a strong schedule is wrapped around it. If it succeeds with you, it's because you're fond of the star.

In this case our star is Madeline Kahn, the energetic, slightly whacky Mel Brooks movie protegee with the campy manner and strange, sing-song voice. It's her vehicle, and she drives it hard.

The producers have elected to build her a 1980s model of I Love Lucy, except Miss Kahn isn't quite as shrill as Lucille Ball, or as funny. But there you have it.

Madeline is a trendy, upscale suburban housewife. She reads Modern and Female magazine. She wears a Sony Walkman when she vacuums. She does exercises on a little trampoline. She makes gazpacho.

She gets these cockeyed schemes of hers that blow up in her face. Like I said, she's Lucy.

Her exasperated husband, Charlie (James Sloyan), is a successful writer of bodice-ripper romance novels under the pen name Crystal Love. They have a pretty solid marriage despite the fact that she's a fruitcake and their best friends, Robert and Doris (Louis Giambalvo and Jesse Welles), have just gotten divorces.

Madeline remains best friends with Jesse, who's nasal. Madeline loathes Robert, who's a gorilla. Charlie and Robert, however, remain good buddies. A potentially interesting conflict, but it isn't mined for depth or humor.

Nothing is. Oh Madeline settles for physically oriented sketch humor. Because Madeline will be Madeline she gets herself into all sorts of improbable, embarrassing predicaments, then has to get out of them. There's your show.

This kind of huffing and puffing goes on every week. Another episode finds her convinced the romance has gone out of her marriage. When Doris has two extra tickets for the country club masquerade party she accepts. She goes as a cat. Charlie goes as the Mummy. So does Robert. She mistakes Robert for Charlie and throws herself at him in the cloakroom.

There are twists and turns and more twists and turns. It gets sillier and sillier. In the hope that more is funny. It never is. There's an awful lot of effort expended here for very few laughs. Miss Kahn works hard for the money.

Procrastinators Club Has Never Been Wrong

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Procrastinators Club of America has announced its annual predictions... for 1983.

"We have a 100 percent perfect record," Les Waas, president of the club, said. "Not once have we made an error. We take a whole year to come up with these things."

The Philadelphia-based organization was founded in 1956. Waas said, when he was elected president. He has served as the club leader since that time while the organization awaits its 1957 elections.

"We have over 4,000 card-carrying members in the U.S.," Waas says. "And over half a million who just have not gotten around to signing up yet."

The club, for the first time, has announced its predictions in verse. Here is a sampling:

"Cowboys being rammed out of Super Bowl play. Videos brightening our musical day.
 "A rider named Ride sallying forth into space, the first astronaut with feminine grace.
 "The first family in Tokyo discussing trade quotas, the bottom line being we pay more for Toyotas.

"A man gaining fame with a T for his name, helps a team called A win wide acclaim.
 "For Christmas giving, absolutely no match, for dolls that come from a Cabbage Patch.
 "For good news we see the economy up, as bad news we lose the Americas Cup.
 Waas said he was confident the club's predictions would stand up to the scrutiny of critics.
 "Of course some of these predictions are outlandish, and people don't believe them until they see we are always totally correct," he said.

Rape Law Rights Of Victims And Defendants At Odds?

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The Michigan Supreme Court has been asked to rule that a pioneering law protecting rape victims from being cross-examined about their sex lives can impinge on the rights of criminal defendants.

In two cases heard Wednesday, attorneys argued the 1974 law denied their clients' constitutional right to present a full defense.

The law, backed by women's groups, generally prohibits defense attorneys from asking an alleged rape victim about her past sexual activities with persons other than the defendant. Supporters say the fear of facing a humiliating cross-examination in open court deters many victims from pressing charges.

In defending the controversial measure Wednesday, Michael Nickerson, of Attorney General Frank Kelley's office, came under tough questioning from several justices.

Nickerson insisted evidence of the accuser's previous activities is never relevant to whether she was a rape victim or a willing sex partner in any particular instance.

"That's not how we raise our kids and run our everyday lives," a skeptical Justice James Ryan commented.

"It seems to me you're suggesting the legislature has the power to exclude everything," said Justice Patricia Boyle, the high court's only woman.

The court found in 1982 the law was at least "facially constitutional," but the decision fell short of a complete endorsement.

The two cases now under review involve Charles

Hackett's conviction in Grand Traverse County for assaulting a fellow inmate in a correctional facility, and the conviction of James Paquette in Tuscola County for raping a woman he and a friend had picked up when her car ran out of gas.

Michael Mason, representing Paquette, told the justices the "right a defendant has to present a defense is paramount" and the legislature "cannot by blank fiat prevent a defendant from presenting evidence."

He said the courts can decide on a case-by-case basis whether evidence the defense wants to use is relevant and justifies the discomfort it may cause the accuser.

An attorney for Hackett said in unusual cases such as prison assaults, the background of the alleged victim can be especially important. He said it often is assumed coercion is involved in any such sex acts.

2 Fla. Inmates Scheduled To Die

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Anthony Antone, the oldest prisoner on Florida's Death Row, and Elwood Clark Barclay, who took part in the random murder of a hitchhiker, are scheduled to die in Florida's electric chair Jan. 24.

Florida State Prison Superintendent Richard L. Dugger scheduled the executions after Gov. Bob Graham signed death warrants against the two long-time prisoners Wednesday.

The death warrants, which are valid from noon Jan. 20 to noon Jan. 27, are the 66th and 67th Graham has signed since becoming governor in January 1979 and the first since the execution of Robert Sullivan in November.

Sullivan was only the second Florida prisoner to be executed since the state reimposed the death penalty. The first was John Spenkelnik who was executed in May 1979.

The death warrant was the second for Antone, 66. Graham signed his first death warrant in January 1982 but Antone won a last-day stay of execution from the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

Antone was granted a new hearing and last September the death sentence was reinstated, with the Atlanta appeals court upholding the sentence in light of a U.S. Supreme Court decision in the Barclay case.

Antone was convicted in August 1976 of the Oct. 23, 1975 murder of Tampa police detective Richard L. Cloud at his home. Prosecutors said Antone planned the murder and hired the people who actually carried out the murder.

Barclay, 32, lost a major decision before the U.S. Supreme Court in July when the court rejected a

Beach Boys Drummer Is Buried At Sea

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The body of Beach Boys drummer Dennis Wilson, carried to sea aboard a Coast Guard cutter, slipped into the chilly Pacific Ocean waters featured so strongly in his life, in his songs and in death.

In a rare burial-at-sea honor granted the drowned musician because of President Reagan's personal intervention, Wilson's family boarded the ship Wednesday morning for the brief service off the Southern California coast.

It was a summer-like day with the mercury hovering near the 80-degree mark when Wilson, the only real surfer in the Beach Boys, was buried at sea several miles offshore.

Details of the burial, directed by the Coast Guard, were not disclosed.

"Following a period of mourning, the remaining members of the Beach Boys — Brian Wilson, Carl Wilson, Al Jardine, Mike Love and Bruce Johnston — will make an announcement about the group's plans to carry out future projects," spokesman Sandy Friedman said.

He also released a statement from the group reading, "We know Dennis would like us to continue in the tradition of the Beach Boys. His spirit will remain in our music."

The Beach Boys rode a wave of "Good Vibrations" for 20 years with the beach sound that glamorized the Southern California surf, sand and pretty girls.

Burial at sea is an honor usually reserved for Navy and Coast Guard veterans. Wilson, 39, who drowned last week in Marina del Rey, had never served in the military.

But Reagan, who told the Beach Boys to call him if they ever needed help after James Watt banned the group from performing at the Washington mall on the Fourth of July, intervened at the request of Wilson's wife and mother and directed the Coast Guard to waive normal procedures.

"That's what Dennis wanted done with his body," Shawn Wilson said of her husband. "Wherever he is, I know he'll be glad that we're doing it."

The cause of Wilson's death was listed by the coroner as accidental drowning. Tests to determine whether alcohol or drugs may have been a contributing factor were incomplete, but results were expected by the end of the week.

Burials at sea, other than those of cremated ashes, must take place beyond the territorial limit 3 miles off the coast and in more than 100 fathoms — 600 feet — of water.

Grandma Wants To Lead Boy Scouts

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A state human rights agency has declared the Boy Scouts of America's male-only rule for scoutmasters discriminatory and ordered the national organization to offer the post to a 65-year-old grandmother.

Boy Scout officials at national headquarters in Irving, Texas called the ruling "clearly erroneous" and said they will appeal the order to the Connecticut Superior Court.

The state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities said Wednesday the Scout's 73-year ban against female scoutmasters was discriminatory and rejected claims the non-profit organization, in its status as a private club, could impose membership qualification by sex.

The commission ordered the Scouts to offer a scoutmaster post to Catherine Pollard of Milford, Conn. who had testified during the hearings she can do or learn anything a man does, "and I'm at home in the woods."

"I'm certainly going to take the job if they offer it," Mrs. Pollard said after the ruling.

"We all felt we would win the first step but they have made it plain they won't let it rest here," she said. "I'm just sorry they don't recognize a woman should have the right to be a scoutmaster as long as she can do what a man can do."

David Park, chief counsel for the Boy Scouts, said the ruling creates "a clearly abused situation whereby Mrs. Pollard may also be a Cub Scout or a Boy Scout and a man may become a Girl Scout."

"It clearly infringes on the fundamental American constitutional freedom of association whereby our government does not have the right to dictate how private membership organizations should carry out the purposes for which they were orga-

PIK Farmers May Have Had It Both Ways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal auditors believe that nearly 100,000 farmers in 20 key farm states may have reduced acreage last year to receive $1 billion worth of surplus grain and cotton at the same time they increased acreage on other farms they kept out of the farm program.

Auditors of the Agriculture Department's Office of Inspector General said Wednesday that they estimated the scope of the practice based on a sample of 1,157 farms, of which 159 increased acreage on farms they did not enroll in the payment-in-kind program.

Although farmers may have violated the spirit of the payment-in-kind program, the practice was not illegal and the Reagan administration has refused to plug the loophole for 1984 farm programs.

The inspector general's office, headed by John Graziano, projected that 98,700 farmers who cut acreage by 8.3 million acres by reducing plantings on at least one farm turned around and increased plantings on a total of 6.4 million acres on their other farms not in the program.

"By overplanting on non-participating farms, producers substantially offset part of the acreage reduction from the participating farms," the inspector general's report said.

In return for cutting acreage, those farmers received more than $1 billion worth of commodities under the 1983 program that provided corn, grain sorghum, wheat, upland cotton and rice to farmers who cut acreage.

The estimates covered just 20 states so the practice could have been more widespread.

The program was aimed at reducing price-depressing surpluses and improving the depressed farm economy by cutting acreage on a massive scale. The result was the largest acreage reduction in history with 81 percent of eligible acreage enrolled.

In the past, farm programs have often included rules that prevented farmers from offsetting an acreage reduction by increasing acreage on other land or by planting another crop.

In response to the inspector general's concern, Agriculture Department officials said "offsetting compliance was considered but not adopted due to the administrative problems it would create and the belief it could deter program participation," the inspector general's report said.

The report also noted that the department has declined to adopt the change for 1984 programs. The payment-in-kind program also has come under fire for multimillion-dollar payments to individual farmers. The administration responded to that criticism by reimposing a $50,000 ceiling on payments.

The inspector general cited a case of an unidentified California farmer who operated three farms and enrolled in the cotton payment-in-kind program for one of the farms. He took 618 acres out of production on the one farm and received 500,000 pounds of cotton from the government. Then he planted 996 acres more cotton than usual on his other two farms.

"Therefore, the producer actually increased the cotton acreage for his farming operation," he report said.

In another criticism of the program, the inspector general's office said six farms in the Tulare Lake Basin of California got payment-in-kind commodities worth more than $4 million even though about 14,000 acres of idled cropland were under 9 feet of water and unsuitable for crop production. However, the California farmers had their right protected by a special provision approved by Congress this summer.

Some payment-in-kind entitlements were erroneously figured by government officials. One overpayment of corn was valued at $88,000.
