

One Tree Will Be Special Lake Mary

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer
 Will the lake's official tree be the crepe myrtle or the exotic orchid or some other beautiful flowering tree?

The Lake Mary City Commission met Tuesday morning, Thursday, at city hall, 158 N. Country Club Road, in order to make the decision. City Commissioner Research King, chairman of the committee on the board, has been working on the project for several months.

He has been working on the project for several months. He has been working on the project for several months. He has been working on the project for several months.

County's smallest city. It's been a serious effort by King, who has done considerable research in the process of adding his colleagues on the board with the answer to almost every conceivable question which might arise concerning a large variety of trees.

Adding a bit of levity to the situation, Commissioner Ray Fox at a recent commission meeting said he'd board also might consider naming a city animal and a city bird.

But Fox suggested a buzzard for the bird and a jizzard for the animal.

Among the trees being considered is the crepe myrtle and the orchid tree, the camphor, the chittaseau plum, the dogwood, the loblolly, the hopt and the magnolia grandiflora.

In other business, City Attorney Robert Prater is scheduled to report to the commission whether a proposed 99-year lease of a portion of city property at Crystal Beach Park between the city and the regional non-profit Community Improvement Association (C.I.A.) is appropriate and in keeping with state law.

The commission will also look over a site plan submitted by the C.I.A. of the proposed community building, to be constructed at the site.

The first phase of the building, according to the site plan submitted by the C.I.A., calls for a structure 120 feet by 45 feet, to be placed in a large spot on the tract.

City Manager Phil Kuller said the structure would be set back 115 feet from the City Club Road, within the building would be two meeting rooms with partitions along those rooms to be split into two more. In addition, a kitchen area, lobby, men's and women's rest rooms, an office to be used to register who goes in and out of the building, a mechanical and janitor's room would be provided.

Kuller said more of the large lots on the property would be developed in the future. He said the building would be placed in a spot here but except for some dining parlors and palms.

CHUCK ZIMMERMAN, city attorney's planning and zoning commission, is a registered Florida residential designer, has prepared the site plan. When the planning for the facility is in the final stages, an architect will be commissioned to prepare the actual plans. Kuller said that plans for public buildings must be drawn by an architect.

City commissioners asked to see the site plan to see the placement of the building. Kuller said the site plans are being presented to them first. However, he added, the plans will also be presented to the planning and zoning commission for its recommendation before the City Commission approves or disapproves.

Cities Seek Gas Tax Funds Guarantees

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer
 Seminole County Commission Chairman Sandra Giron is anticipating her gas tax discussions with municipalities.

Giron is sitting met with Oviedo and Winter Springs officials.

City officials told Mrs. Giron what she has already heard from Lakeview, Sanford and Altamonte Springs— "we are along with the rest, what guarantees do you want to insure various priorities will be changed?"

The Florida Legislature passed a law in March which permits counties to set a gasoline tax up to 4 cents per gallon.

Mrs. Giron has been pushing for the tax, declaring it to be the only way to fund the county's critical road improvement program.

She is asking if city officials to react in a tentative road improvement priority list and a suggestion that the full 4-cent tax be levied with 3 cents going to the county to upgrade arterial roads and 1 cent to be divided among the cities based on population.

Each cent of the 4-cent tax would generate approximately $655,000 per year, according to County Administrator T. Durbin Rowe II. A full 4-cent tax is expected to net $1.4 million a year or $1.7 million over the five years that the tax may be imposed by law before it is rescinded.

Seminole's seven cities would stand to gain $4.7 million over the five years from their proposed 3-cent share. In addition, Rose said, the county's road improvement priority list calls for an expenditure of about 75 percent of its share for the first year on roads within municipalities.

The arterial roads identified as priorities are maintained by the county but rest in and out of municipalities. They are: Red Bug Lake Road to Eagle Circle in unincorporated Seminole and Casselberry; State Road 427 from Chaudoin Street to Star Road 434 in the county and Oviedo; and Airport Boulevard to Sanford Avenue in Sanford.

Mrs. Giron said Oviedo and Winter Springs officials, like the others, saw no problem going along with a 3-cent cent of the tax from the beginning of the project, but were concerned that the road improvement priorities might be changed after the tax went into effect.

She said an interlocal agreement could possibly be devised to satisfy that concern.

At a work session Monday she told her fellow commissioners that several items suggested that funds be raised, placing the gas tax a revenue for specific road improvement projects. That way the county would be locked in to the improvements specified and they would begin immediately rather than at the end of a collection period.

That commissioners weren't comfortable with that, Commissioner Bob Sturm said, frowning for widening SR 434 ran out before the project was finished and it remains unfinished. He also said with a bond issue there would be a year and a half delay before going out for bids.

Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser, right, checks off his equipment before participating in a fire training session with County Commissioner Barbara Christensen, in mask, Christensen and Commissioner Robert G. ## Officials Find Out What It's Like To Be Firefighter

By Michael Beba
Herald Staff Writer
 There was a sense of excitement among the Seminole County firefighters gathered for training at an old house in Midway.

Some were very quiet, others were nervously chattering as they ate sandwiches and waited for the next training to begin.

They'd been through these sessions before. The fires are set by the training officer and then the firefighters go into the building and try to put out the blaze, practicing the techniques they've learned at various fire schools.

But this fire pretimed to be a little bit different. Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser was going to be on hand along with County Commissioners Barbara Christensen and Robert G. "Bud" Feather and several newspaper and television reporters.

Christensen and Feather were scheduled to don firefighters' apparel and go into a burning building. King and the other commissioners were stationed nervously that it was Friday the 13th. But she and Feather sub-

Safe! Retacts Controversial Court Order

Creel Judge Demosth Salif, in a recent opinion, Tuesday retracted his controversial order requiring notification to victims and law enforcement agencies of the sentencing terms of convicted criminals.

Salif said the principle is basically sound. "I want to renege the decision that the order has caused."

"I feel that the way to go on with the business of working together is by retracting the order," he said.

More than a year ago, Salif issued orders to the 16th Judicial Circuit, State Attorney Douglas Chesmore's office, requiring that victims of crimes and the law enforcement officers be notified of modified terms of sentencing to give them an opportunity to set the judge's sentence.

Chesmore's district includes Seminole and Broward counties.

The order, issued in each individual case, also required the state attorney's office to recommend alternative sentences which might be warranted.

Salif said he will no longer include these requirements in individual orders.

He will continue, however, to order the presence of a court reporter and press conference investigations.

"I feel the information is absolutely essential and the principal is sound," he said.

judge said, adding it is unfortunate that it became a controversial matter.

The judge said the state attorney's office, specifically Chief Assistant Ralph Erickson, assured him that the spirit of the order will be accomplished.

"I continue to be committed to more public involvement in the sentencing process," Salif said, noting he is equally committed to "remove the diversions the order has caused."

The judge said the power of the court to issue such orders is not in question. "The court has that power, but when the court is getting hot, there is no need to call upon the use of that power," the judge said.

"The time has come to put things back together," he said.

When Salif issued the original order he said that too often the public and law enforcement perceived that little thought was given to the victims of crime and how they had suffered because of the crime, and the convicted criminal involved was sentenced. He said at the time that was the purpose of his requiring that victims and law enforcement officers be given the opportunity to appear during the sentencing.

The order was appealed to the Fifth District Court in Appeal in Daytona Beach by Chesmore.

"A decision has been reached by that court."

At Center's Open House Ag Research Projects Explained

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer
 More than 75 persons, most of them involved in the agricultural 1975 with state and federal funding, held Tuesday by the University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center in cooperation with the Seminole County Agricultural Extension Service.

Those attending were updated on research projects being conducted by the local scientists assigned to the center and were shown a wide presentation on the history of agriculture in Sanford and its present-day research by Dr. John F. Darby, center director.

The center is located at 2700 E. Crissy Ave., Sanford. Research projects in progress, demonstrations and laboratory projects.

Entomologist Arshad Ali briefed those attending on his Blotting Midge (Midge) Research program instituted in September 1975 with state and federal funding. He increased accuracy and financial loss caused by the pest in Sanford over the past decade.

In summary, Ali said that in 4 1/2 years of research he has developed a lot of information on the biology and biological chemical physiology of the center of midges, most of which is available in several manuscripts. This research is scheduled to continue for work according to Bob King, testing assistant for Seminole County School.

— See related story on page 2A.

King said information coming from various media has been inconsistent.

He said he thinks the hold-up may be in packaging and sending the results.

The number of seniors waiting for results by high school are:

16, Lake Howell, 33; Oviedo, 9; Lyman, 16; Lake Brantley, 31 and Seminole, 29.

Lake Howell had expected to receive a senior class this year. — Diane Petryk

Senate OKs Bills To Protect Water

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Senate leaders brag that their water quality program is tougher than the House's and better because it won't require tax increases.

The Senate passed Tuesday without a dissenting vote six bills intended to protect Florida's underground waters from pollution from hazardous wastes, pesticides, leaky underground storage tanks and sewage. Two bills completing the package will be passed out next week.

The package is an alternative to the single omnibus bill passed out by the House last week. The Cabinet package depends for its primary funding on the state's oil and clean water fund and doesn't require new taxes.

House and Senate conferees will begin work in the next week or two on a compromise bill, with the biggest issues to be settled whether tax increases will be necessary to pay for the water quality work.

One of the Senate bills (S 8499) enables the Environmental Protection Agency to close down treatment sites over the objection of local officials, ensuring that the most toxic wastes go to 300 million-gallon tanks.

Another bill (S 8114) establishes a council to advise Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Connor when he decides which chemicals can be used.

Literacy Test Upheld; 1,665 Won't Graduate

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The state literacy test has been endorsed by a federal judge over charges it is culturally and racially biased, leaving 1,665 high school seniors, more than half of them black, being graduation day without a diploma.

Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington said Tuesday the 1,665 seniors who failed the test will not receive diplomas this spring. Of those students, more than 1,000 are black.

Students who failed the test will receive a certificate of attendance, and the literacy test will be administered again in July for students who want to upgrade their certificates to full diplomas.

Hours after Turlington's announcement, U.S. District Judge George Carr refused to delay implementation of the test on the 1983 graduation class.

Attorneys for 10 black students who are challenging the test immediately sought a stay from the 11th Circuit of Appeals in Atlanta, but there was no word on when the judges would consider the request. The case already has been set for Atlanta court.

The functional literacy test, set up by the Legislature last year, was challenged by black educators, not black students who failed it as being culturally and racially biased. State officials have argued that it is an effort to increase academic rigor.

Carr ruled May 2 that material on the test was taught in Florida classrooms and that "evidence of racism" were not responsible for the test scores by blacks.

He refused Turlington to interfere with the state's plan to deny diplomas to students who failed the test, saying it was unlikely the plaintiffs would successfully appeal the case and they did not show that blacks and other students would be irreparably harmed by a denial of the test.

"Finally, the plaintiffs have not shown that the stay will serve the public interest," Carr said. "To the contrary, the public interest would appear to be best served by allowing the state to implement a plan which is the outcome of its new educational policy."

The test was given to the state's 85,000 seniors last fall and all but 4,342 students passed it.

When those students were retested in March, 62 percent passed the mathematics portion and 81 percent passed the communications portion. Students must pass both portions.

Of the 1,665 seniors who failed the test, 62 percent were black. Blacks taking the test a second time had a 34 percent pass rate in math and a 51 percent pass rate in communications.

Turlington said "several hundred" students who failed the test twice also failed to complete other graduation requirements and that the denial of a diploma for them could not be attributed solely to the controversial test.

More than 98 percent of Florida's high school seniors will receive diplomas.

"Indicators are that the significant achievement by this year's seniors is attributable to the commitment of both students and teachers to meet the challenge of the new requirement for graduation," Turlington said.

School officials, desperate for solutions, cut as many as 20 percent of the students out of classes every day in Broward County's 22 schools.

In one attempt to use positive reinforcement, Miramar High School recently held a pizza party to reward students who earned a perfect attendance record.

And six elementary and middle schools are trying a new program with a guidance counselor, a psychologist and a social worker to help problem students before they reach the point where they want to give up.

The school officials say that students in counseling groups are family conflicts, peer pressure, drugs, the desire to get a job to earn money, and lack of interest in school for dropping out.

Truancy 'Worse Than It Has Ever Been'

PORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — At a time where state legislators are trying to lengthen the school year and federal officials are writing their hands over public school achievement, truancy is worried about a more basic problem.

Attendance is now less than 90 percent at McArthur High School and head of the High School Principals' Association's "School attendance is listed by principal as the biggest single problem."

The Broward County School Board has asked the Legislature for $1.7 million this year to fund programs to fight truancy, including family counseling and alternative education classes for seriously students.

No Time For Timidity

Two years ago, the White House authorized a covert CIA operation entailing funding and support for Nicaraguan forces opposed to the pro-Cuban Marxist dictatorship ruling that country. The Reagan administration's "unofficial" Congress, the purpose of the operation...

Since then, the insurgent force has grown from a band of hard-core guerrillas... to a force of perhaps 4,000 guerrillas... The guerrillas now include substantial numbers of Miskito Indians...

The guerrillas' success has prompted some among them to declare that their real goal is less to interdict arms bound for El Salvador than to overthrow the Sandinista regime... During the first week of May, majority Democrats on the House Intelligence Committee voted to approve a bill to require the Reagan administration to reduce the scope of the covert action program...

It is apparent that the Reagan administration is in a delicate position... as its critics charge, running out of control. Even so, it seems even more apparent that pulling the reins tight is not a realistic option...

The Marxists running Nicaragua are openly committed to what Sandinista junta leader Daniel Ortega calls "revolutionary wars"...

The evidence is overwhelming that the Sandinistas are exporting revolution by supplying arms to communist guerrillas in Central America...

If the Nicaraguan guerrillas can manage to spark a popular uprising against the Sandinistas, they may succeed in eliminating the First Soviet bloc base on the mainland of the Western Hemisphere...

At the very least, American aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas gives the United States essential bargaining leverage for possible negotiations with the Sandinistas...

If a timid Congress takes counsel of its fears and immediately abandons the Nicaraguan insurgents, the predictable result will be a further consolidation of communist rule in Nicaragua...

African Breakthrough

Economic recovery is rapidly reawakening "breakthroughs" as a partial reason in 1981-82, and, therefore, so are the surprising, foreign policy has moved into the foreground as its replacement. Almost surely, this will be equally true, possibly, Presidents have a wide range of options in foreign policy, and can if necessary manage spectacular initiatives.

But with the current focus on foreign policy, we have had of course those media stories about administration "leakage," the attacks on National Security Advisor Bill Clark for being too hard on the Arabs...

With the economy going as an issue, liberals again hopelessly focus likely on promising disasters. In light of current developments, however, foreign policy seems likely to be a partial issue.

The Middle East has long been an especially intractable area for diplomacy, and everyone knows it. But the recent developments in the region, however, have made it a more complex issue.

The tentative Lebanon-Israel agreement has made it a more complex issue. The tentative Lebanon-Israel agreement has made it a more complex issue.

When their income fell, the emirates had two choices, either of them very appealing, but both of them very risky. They could either have decided to slash its budget drastically.

So the government adopted the tactic familiar to millions of lesser mortals in the world: it stopped spending its bill on itself. The state-owned oil company continues to collect from its various customers.

ARMING COMES TRUE: The House

Way and House Committee recently took a swipe at independent oil companies by trying to bring hearings on their tax loopholes. If it succeeds, it will be seen as a backlash by the Democratic Party...

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, a longtime champion of independent oil companies, says that the House has a 75 percent chance of passing a bill that would raise the tax rate on independent oil companies.

"This comes at a bad time, because the House will be much more liberal," he said.

The Hitler Diaries: Anatomy of a Fraud

By Tony Patterson
BONN, West Germany (UPI) — A weekly magazine in the West German weekly magazine Die Zeit shows Adolf Hitler slumped, leader of the Mercedes roadster starting incredulously at the cover headline of Stern magazine — a headline the magazine discovered.

Another publication displays a handwritten letter purportedly from the Nazi dictator "in confidence" for the benefit of Stern magazine that my diaries are genuine. It is dated November 1933. Signed "Adolf Hitler."

Both the photograph and letter were signs of the surrealized glee by Stern's competitors.

The "Hitler diaries" — which were written in the weeks ago and trumpeted as "the greatest journalistic find of the decade" — have been exposed as blatant forgeries. The Hamburg weekly picture magazine Stern once printed a story on the high quality photography, "human interest" stories and campaign for the public good. Publisher Ernst Nannen is quoted as saying, "Everything correctly, everything on time, everything first hand."

Today Stern is reeling from the shattering blow the diaries affair has dealt to the journalistic prestige. It may never fully recover.

Two senior Stern editors have resigned. The reporter who discovered the diaries — Gerald Heidemann — has been fired and the magazine appears to have lost 75 million in paid circulation and forged documents.

Worldwide the diaries that bought publishing rights for the diaries for up to $400,000 each — the London Sunday Express, the New York Times, the Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times, the Panama — are hammering at Stern's doors demanding their money back.

A week after Stern editor Paul Koch appeared on television to denounce those who disputed the authenticity of the diaries, he was forced to resign. Koch's publisher Nannen told millions of Germans, "We have no reason to be ashamed of ourselves before our readers."

Nannen's self-criticism was highly exaggerated. Stern took three years to collect the diaries and gave Heidemann carte blanche to go anywhere and pay anywhere to find them.

Dustily Heidemann went to America, East Germany and finally to South America where he interviewed among others Nazi war criminal Klaus Barbie — "The Butcher of Lyons" — in his own words in the documents.

Once obtained, the magazine engaged British historian and Hitler expert, Hugh Trevor-Roper, to testify as to the diaries' authenticity. Roper took up to $1 million and stockpiled on the eve of publication. He was later paid another $4 million and instructed to write the diaries in case history to be rewritten.

In the face of mounting controversy, Stern's 14 years later published 100 volumes of the diaries to the West German Federal archives.

Within 48 hours archives head Hans Booms announced: "These diaries are blatant, grotesque and superficial forgeries. A German would never read of a local newspaper of the period than from these diaries."

Birth Control Pills Linked to Skin Cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Prolonged use of birth control pills may increase the risk of contracting a dangerous form of skin cancer, researchers at the University of California report.

Epidemiologist Helen Holly said earlier studies showed a weak link between birth control pills use and malignant melanoma, the most dangerous form of skin cancer.

The new study, conducted on 87 women as the Seattle area age 37 to 74, was published in the May issue of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute. The women were diagnosed as suffering from malignant melanoma between 1960 and 1978.

Their responses to questions about birth pill and reproductive history were compared to answers from a random sample of 863 women from the same area.

Ruth A. researcher for the University of California Department of Epidemiology and International Health, found a higher percentage of cancer had taken the pill for five years or more than the percentage of women who had taken the pill in the non-cancerous group.

The increased cancer rates were even more pronounced among women who had used the pill for 10 years or longer. No effect was found among women who had used the pill for less than five years.

The group also found higher rates of cancer among women who had used the pill for 10 years or longer.

By applying a few simple chemical tests, the experts ascertained that the diaries were "supermarket newspaper" that contained plastics and other substances that were not invented before 1954 — nine years after Hitler killed himself.

The experts also found that the binding, covers and seals on the diaries were made of post-war material. The longer had even been found on the covers of the diaries — "F II" instead of "A II" for Adolf Hitler.

Even more astounding were the glaring historical errors and the revelation that the diaries were merely copied from a standard work on Hitler — in the words of Hitler's biographer, "Hitler Speaks and Proclamations 1932-1945" by Max Domarus.

The forger had managed to misquote the Domarus book to create a historical imposture. An entry refers to a letter Hitler originally received from Gen. Ritter von Egg on Aug. 16, 1937, congratulating the fact Hitler had his 50th anniversary of joining the army.

In 1937, Hitler was 48. The forger had misread the Domarus book that cited Hitler congratulating the general on his 50th year in the army.

The experts said it was extraordinary that when Domarus made no entry on a certain day, the forger put "Hitler" to bed without writing a word.

How could Stern magazine have failed to notice the errors? The experts said it was extraordinary that when Domarus made no entry on a certain day, the forger put "Hitler" to bed without writing a word.

Trevor-Roper partially answered that question after he himself denied to doubt the diaries' authenticity. "The normal methods of historical research are completely inadequate for the task of verifying the authenticity of the diaries," he said.

Trevor-Roper said he is not able to speak German, was allowed only half hour by Stern to examine the diaries in a Swiss bank before being asked to verify their authenticity.

Stern never submitted the diaries to proper chemical tests, but depended solely on the findings of handwriting experts. His failure to have a handwriting expert to dictate everything of record to a stenographer, the evidence of handwriting experts was bound to be sketchy.

The handwriting experts would simply not have had enough German material to compare the diaries with.

"Stern publishers Nannen said he was trying to demand suppliers' original documents with faked 'original' examples of Hitler's writing against which the diaries were later compared.

"We may have been comparing forged copies with forged copies," he said. Stern's rush to publish apparently stems from greed, paranoia about being outdone by Hitler is known to have written little since his youth, preferring to dictate everything of record to a stenographer, the evidence of handwriting experts was bound to be sketchy.

Islanders' 4th Straight Stanley Cup Overflows With Bitterness

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—The New York Islanders' Stanley Cup celebration featured some bitter bits with the champagne.

With rancor unseen since the 1950 New York Yankees' first World Series victory on his way to the Red Wings' Gordie Howe, New York Islanders' goalie Billy Smith celebrated a 4-2 victory over the Edmonton Oilers Tuesday night with shots at the press.

"I think I'll remember it with bitterness," Smith said after being named the Conn Smythe award winner for best goaltender in four-game sweep of the Oilers. "If I wasn't for the celebration, I'm sure I would have kept going the way they did."

Smith survived controversy and violence during the final of the Stanley Cup playoffs. Islanders among the greatest teams in NHL history, and saved the Oilers and Wayne Gretzky a shocking humiliation.

Only two franchises and three teams have won four straight Cups. The 1956-60 Montreal Canadiens held the record of five straight.

Smith was the subject of hostile headlines in Edmonton, and became embroiled in sickening notes with Gretzky and Glenn Anderson. He in turn received shots from a crowd from Dave Lumley and Ken Lineman.

"They did it to me in Edmonton," said Smith. "I couldn't walk the streets in Edmonton without people being rude to me."

Smith exacted his revenge by stealing Game 1 and 3 with spectacular performance. He outplayed the Oilers in the third period of the clincher.

And with Edmonton trailing 2-2 and depending on the power play, he gave an inspired performance by writing on the ice with Gretzky by Anderson. He eliminated referee Andy Van Hellemond and a five-minute penalty.

"I was hurt as bad as Gretzky was hurt," and Mike Bosny in a 1:37 span of the first period.

It was Bosny's fifth game-winning goal in the playoffs a record. And he joined the other players as the author of two Cup-winning goals.

Though Jari Kurri and Mark Messier registered in the second, Smith held on until Ken Morrow scored into an empty net 69 seconds later.

"It never was so sweet as this," Arbore said. "It's a team of great character. Maybe we don't have the greatest talent, but there's not a team that has the character of this team."

"Morrow's goal lifted a 100-pound weight off my back."

"I never felt more emotional as my life," said Trotter. "I was nervous all day. I couldn't sleep all night. It was totally unreal. I really don't understand why, maybe it's because of the abuse we took during the regular season. When we were struggling, teams took advantage of us." Gretzky, the league's perennial scoring champion, managed only four assists in the series.

"My job is to put the puck in the net," said Arbore. "I'm glad to accomplish that. It was a great job."

The Oilers were clearly surprised by surprise signs of learning the regular season as the series progressed. Edmonton showed definite improvement over the first round last year.

"There can't be anything more than losing a Stanley Cup," Arbore said, responding to a question about the feedback the Oilers will receive this summer.

"I don't know if it's correct mistakes," he said. "We were learned a lot. And that's what it's all about."

There wasn't much else to say, Billy Smith and the rest of the Islanders had stated their case very eloquently.

Sundberg's Shot

Unites Press International

Like the character in the movie "Network," the Rangers' Jim Sundberg was sick and tired and didn't want to take any more. So he did it.

It was a four-hour ball game and when you are back here behind the plate you are seeing more action than anyone. I just pulled Sundberg out last at all but I could not do it and see everybody here.

I was in the dugout and I was in the stadium all right. His second at-bat in the 32nd inning scored Larry Parrish from second base. The right and left fielders got 4-0 runs on the Cleveland Indians.

Sundberg's 1.0, the fourth pitch for Texas Rangers, pipped the victory in the 19-hour, 35-minute game.

Sundberg's hit was the only one that counted. The Rangers and Cleveland tied 3-3 straight times.

Afterwards, Sundberg said he was one of the most gratifying victories of the young season.

"This is the kind of game that is a stepping stone for everybody," Sundberg said. "It's a tremendous confidence builder. You get a contribution from everybody who's here."

Buddy Bell staged home Billy Sample in the seventh but the Rangers added 3-4. And Andre Thornton's solo run tied the score for Cleveland in the eighth.

October 7's White Sox 3-0

At Chicago, Leo Hernandez and Rick Dempsey hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and rookie Mike Boddy pitched a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to a 4-0 victory. Hernandez and Dempsey hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and rookie Mike Boddy pitched a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to a 4-0 victory.

October 8's Red Sox 3-1

At Boston, Gary Aleshander doubled in two runs in his first hit since April 22 and Dave Stapleton added an RBI double as the Red Sox bested Larry Gura. It was Boston's sixth triumph in their last 13 games.

October 9's Yankees 2-0

At Milwaukee, Jim Cantler pitched two doubles and a home run and Don Money homered in the seventh. Steve Southerland Mike Caldwell, 3-1, went despite allowing 11 hits, including three apiece by Garth Runn, Cliff Johnson and Steve Garvey.

October 10's Twins 6-1

At Philadelphia, Ed Barrow cracked a three-run homer and Bob Kearney added a solo shot to support Charlie Leisach. The no-hit right-hander allowed seven hits in 8 1/3 innings and Steve McCarty walked two batters in his fourth inning.

October 11's Angels 2-1

At Seattle, Bruce Ruan scored a five-hitter and Bob Garber pitched the last out in the seventh. Steve Garber pitched a three-game losing streak. The Angels' Rod Carew was 3-for-5, raising his league-leading batting average to .379.

Sundberg's Shot

Unites Press International

Like the character in the movie "Network," the Rangers' Jim Sundberg was sick and tired and didn't want to take any more. So he did it.

It was a four-hour ball game and when you are back here behind the plate you are seeing more action than anyone. I just pulled Sundberg out last at all but I could not do it and see everybody here.

I was in the dugout and I was in the stadium all right. His second at-bat in the 32nd inning scored Larry Parrish from second base. The right and left fielders got 4-0 runs on the Cleveland Indians.

Sundberg's 1.0, the fourth pitch for Texas Rangers, pipped the victory in the 19-hour, 35-minute game.

Sundberg's hit was the only one that counted. The Rangers and Cleveland tied 3-3 straight times.

Afterwards, Sundberg said he was one of the most gratifying victories of the young season.

"This is the kind of game that is a stepping stone for everybody," Sundberg said. "It's a tremendous confidence builder. You get a contribution from everybody who's here."

Buddy Bell staged home Billy Sample in the seventh but the Rangers added 3-4. And Andre Thornton's solo run tied the score for Cleveland in the eighth.

October 7's White Sox 3-0

At Chicago, Leo Hernandez and Rick Dempsey hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and rookie Mike Boddy pitched a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to a 4-0 victory. Hernandez and Dempsey hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and rookie Mike Boddy pitched a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to a 4-0 victory.

October 8's Red Sox 3-1

At Boston, Gary Aleshander doubled in two runs in his first hit since April 22 and Dave Stapleton added an RBI double as the Red Sox bested Larry Gura. It was Boston's sixth triumph in their last 13 games.

October 9's Yankees 2-0

At Milwaukee, Jim Cantler pitched two doubles and a home run and Don Money homered in the seventh. Steve Southerland Mike Caldwell, 3-1, went despite allowing 11 hits, including three apiece by Garth Runn, Cliff Johnson and Steve Garvey.

October 10's Twins 6-1

At Philadelphia, Ed Barrow cracked a three-run homer and Bob Kearney added a solo shot to support Charlie Leisach. The no-hit right-hander allowed seven hits in 8 1/3 innings and Steve McCarty walked two batters in his fourth inning.

October 11's Angels 2-1

At Seattle, Bruce Ruan scored a five-hitter and Bob Garber pitched the last out in the seventh. Steve Garber pitched a three-game losing streak. The Angels' Rod Carew was 3-for-5, raising his league-leading batting average to .379.

possibilities. Lawrence, though, is the team's best pass receiver coming out of the backfield.

Defensive Back: Tracy Holman, Will Thomas and Walter Lowery give defensive coordinator Dave "Mr. Underhill" Moore pretty good depth at the end position. An injury to Willie Brooks will hurt what could have been an even stronger position. Anthony Hall (No. 40) should be a starter. Holman, Thomas and Lowery are all over the mold of Antonio Davis, who is still untried on passing situations. McClain Malone (No. 44) and Tony Cox (No. 22) are two others which could be good if they improve their quickness. "Malone is just handling the game and looking for when he knows about 15 to 20 yards," said Posey.

Linebackers: "I'm should be the strongest area. Wynn will be the leader in the middle. Brooks will surely sophomore Fred Britton could be a future standout. Vincent White (No. 47), Jerry Walsh and Mike Debose will fill out the rest of the line."

Defensive backs: Charlie Smith will be the monster back hard-hitting Brian Brooks and Brian Cash will handle the other spots. Lawrence, probably the Tribe's most versatile athlete, may be used all over, but Posey would prefer to keep him on offense.

The kicking game: Wynn will handle the kick and out-of-control punting. "I think he will be successful in the air, but it could be Wynn if he shows enough consistency."

Bench Kicks Away Sand From Promotee's Burial

They only three sand at that 87-pound weakling in the magazine. How did he survive in the second round? He felt he had buried him in it, tried to finish him off completely?

Bench can afford to snore now.

Take a look at his figures and you'll see why. His 2013 batting average is .143, one in the National League and he also ranks third with 25 RBIs. He has played in all but one of Cincinnati's games and hit four home runs.

Before the season started, Bench was being admired as one of the best young players in the league. He was able to hit the Reds anyone, after seeing all the trouble he had trying to stay in the lineup last season and watching how it affected his hitting. He was being hit by every pitcher in the league, he was hitting better than by centering to the Reds more than helping them out.

But those in the media who thought he should quit weren't the only ones giving up on him so quickly. Bench's name is not on the current All-Star ballot. The general voting among the fans marks this Friday. The names on the ballot were suggested months back by a panel of club executives and coaches as well as people in the media, and obviously they did not think Bench qualified among the 110 best players.

Here are on the ballot: Fred McGriff, Brooks, Roy Cuy, Phil Garner, Pedro Guerrero, Bob Horner, Bill Madlock, Eric Soderstrom, Mike Schmidt and Tim Lincecum. One are out-of-bench: Bench.

Up the way he is, the balloting system certainly isn't perfect. Bench has been a consistent performer if they choose. Even if he isn't, Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog will manage the All-Stars in Chicago in July, can add Bench to the squad if he has the necessary numbers that he's a player. Bench has been named to the All-Star team and has drawn more than 24 million votes, even during the season. He has been named to the All-Star team being completely passed over while enjoying one of his best seasons.

Bench isn't taking it hard.

"I guess you can only put a certain amount of emotion into the balloting process from Cincinnati. Most of the season I had last year didn't merit my name on the ballot either."

One other interesting aspect about all this is that an American League pitcher, Steve Carlton, has been named to the All-Star team. Carlton, Phil, hitting only one home run in the season, has been named to the All-Star team. Carlton, Phil, hitting only one home run in the season, has been named to the All-Star team.

If Syria Refuses To Go Along

Troop Pullout Agreement May Mean Nothing

WORLD IN BRIEF
Syria Pressured To OK Accord With Lebanon

United Press International
Hopes for implementing the newly signed Lebanese "peace" withdrawal agreement... today on Damascus, with Israel warning Syria against trying to torpedo the accord with a new round of hostilities.

With other Arab states urging Damascus to pull its troops out of Lebanon, Lebanese President Amin Gemayel immediately met Tuesday with top Lebanese officials on ways to reach a similar agreement with Syria.

Israel has said it will remove its 30,000 troops from Lebanon only when an estimated 40,000 Syrian soldiers and 10,000 Palestinian fighters leave the country.

Lebanese Soldiers (left), Lebanon lead forces, and Palestinian Liberation Organization guerrillas.

By Scott MacLeod
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—The signing of a troop withdrawal accord between Israel and Lebanon will have little effect if Syria scuttles the plan, as it has threatened to do.

If it proceeds as planned, Israel's 30,000 troops in Lebanon will be heading home in eight to 12 weeks, just over a year after "invading its neighbor" to smash guerrilla forces of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

But it is just as possible that the Israelis will stay if Syria refuses to withdraw its 40,000 troops, positioned in Lebanon since Syria seized the place in 1970-71 Lebanese civil war.

Syria President Hafez Assad, backed by Moscow, has denounced the Israeli-Lebanese agreement, calling it tantamount to a peace treaty that gives Israel military advantages in Middle East politics.

Syria has many reasons for wanting to thwart the agreement. Damascus, beaten in the 1967 and 1973 Middle East conflicts, is probably Israel's most bitter antagonist.

Analysis
Putting the enemy, Israeli forces pounded a Syrian anti-aircraft missile site, Syrian armor and Syrian war planes during the invasion last year.

The Soviet Union has encouraged Syria in its adamant rejection of President Reagan's Sept. 1 peace plan for the Middle East, as well as the troop withdrawal formula.

After years of seeing their prestige slip in the Middle East, the Soviets have backed a huge rearmament program for Syria, which Western analysts say tops $2 billion.

Syria also has an historic interest in Lebanon. The two countries were joined for many years, and once used the same currency.

The mutually acknowledged special relationship is what led Syria to mediate the Lebanese civil war unopposed, and then to send in troops when that

Syria's President Hafez Assad... holds the key to whether the plan for withdrawing all foreign troops from Lebanon succeeds. If his troops stay, so will Israeli soldiers and it's back to square one in the peace process.

But the Lebanon now wants Syria to leave. Despite Syrian contentions the Lebanese "peace treaty" with Israel violates Arab events, many Arab states have rallied to the support of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel.

Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salame told his country's National Assembly Monday the government believes Syria eventually will withdraw its forces.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger agreed. He said while the Syrians rejected the accord with Israel, they did not deny say they would not withdraw and allow it to be implemented.

Young Rapists To Hang

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI)—A criminal court sentenced three youths to death by hanging for a spate of robberies and gang rapes the judge described as "acts of mental homicide more heinous" than murder, officials said today.

A three-judge panel of the Seoul District Court Tuesday imposed the death sentence on Kwang In-kyu, 24, Choi Yun-sung, 20, and Choi Sang-hun, 20, for 21 robberies and five gang rapes.

The spokesman said it was the first time the court has handed down the death penalty for gang rape and robbery not involving murder.

Two others involved in the case drew life terms and another two were given seven years and five years in prison respectively.

Cooks Of The Week

Challenge: Duplicating Specialty Of The House

By Lou Childers

Good cooking is a family tradition for Susan Solomon of Winter Springs and her mother, Joanne Russell of Maitland. Joanne says her mother and younger sister, Janet Rierley, are both better cooks than she, but they all enjoy cooking together "about once a week." As kind- and warming recipes.

Joanne was BIRTH in Columbus, Wis and grew up in Maitland. "I was the only girl in my family of six," she says. "And Mama turned the cooking over to me as soon as she could." Mama has found memories of making the family's holidays, comfort and other Southern traditions.

Susan says she learned to cook by watching her mom in action. "When Mom went to work, I had to cook. Our policy was that Mom would leave her recipes and I just learned how to follow them."

Joanne says she considers herself an imaginative cook, and she loves playing the game of going to good restaurants, having the "house specialty," and coming home to recreate it without a recipe. That's how she got her recipe for Fruit Pops and Spinnons. "We went to Egmont and my husband enjoyed the strawberry fruit poppables so much, we came home and immediately tried to duplicate them."

Joanne's recipe might not be "je ne se" the way they do in the exotic city, but she says, "We like the fruit recipes."

Her Spinnons recipe surfaced after a trip to a famous restaurant on the East coast. "The owner of the restaurant is Italian, and prides himself with having a delicious Spinnoni that is served to select customers." According to Joanne, you can use your own blend of ice cream flavors and fillings for this very unique dessert. "One of Joanne's cooking tips takes on a fair for mention in recent years. "My husband, Bill, would cut me through a day." So, Joanne has come up with a good combination called Chicken Vegetable Stir Fry which includes rice, but holds down the calorie intake on the other ingredients. "We also enjoy watching on 'Good-for-you' Cookies which are made with such wholesome ingredients as whole wheat flour, wheat germ, molasses and dried fruits."

Susan says she and hubby, Bob, often eat out because they both work and a usually seem more convenient. But, when they are home for a meal, she states, "we are big on vegetables." Her specialty in this area is Roman Salad served with homemade sweet and sour dressing and croutons.

- 1 cup white flour
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1/2 cup wheat germ
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder

May-September Affair Advised For Shy Youth

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding "Heartick Mecher," whose good-looking, intelligent 18-year-old son admitted that he was having an affair with the mother of one of his friends. (She was 41 and divorced.)

You told the mother to point out the pitfalls of such an affair — or ask his older brothers. (What pitfalls? That arrangement can be the best thing that ever happened to her son.)

The 18-year-old boy was a painfully shy 18-year-old boy when I went away to college. A buxom little widow in her 50s — the landlady in the rooming house where I stayed — helped me overcome my shyness. She also taught me how to be a lover and a gentleman.

I have no regrets. She filled my needs and I filled hers. Every 18-year-old boy should have the kind of deal I had.

IT HAPPENED IN CAMBRIDGE
DEAR IT HAPPENED: The mail is running 10- to 12 in your favor. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: "Heartick Mecher" doesn't know where she's well off. That 41-year-old woman has probably taught her son a lot. But there's something every man should learn and appreciate: her kid hasn't learned it to her cost.

TIGHT-LIPPED IN LOUISVILLE
DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with an 18-year-old woman keeping company with an 18-year-old boy?

Any single woman over 40 knows that most men over 40 are mediocre, selfish, cheap and intimidated by a contemporary woman.

Eighteen-year-old men are delightful companions. They are fun, honest, warm and unaffected. And they're wonderful lovers.

I am a 40-year-old widow, but you may sign as.....
LIKES 'EM
YOUNG IN L.A.

Now let's hear it from a Puritan:

DEAR ABBY: As a Frenchwoman I belong to a culture where a love affair between a young man and an older woman doesn't shock anybody. In fact, it is the best way for a young man to learn about sex and life. It is also understood that such an affair is not intended to last forever.

The older woman is more mature, more sensitive and more realistic than a teen-age girl. Such an experience can be enriching without leading to one of those silly marriages between two inexperienced, immature teen-agers. (Of course, there are exceptions.)

My advice to "heartick Mecher" would be: Try not to identify with the woman your son is having the affair with, and examine your father natural ethics imposed judiciously. Of course, that means facing real feelings instead of responding only to puritanical ethics imposed upon society and cultural environment.

I am 43 and do not expect to have an affair with an 18-year-old boy, but this is a matter of taste and circumstances.

IN CONFIDENTIAL TO INNOCENT AND MISJUDGED M. B.C.: Tell your "best friend," who earned the title to you that destroyed the friendship between you and "Mary," the following: "I want to tell you that I hope you will give me permission to tell Mary that her assumption was wrong and I did not intentionally snub her because I was doing it to do so without your permission."

"I'm a 'best friend' who causes trouble qualifies as 'no friend.'"

We Wish To Thank Our Friends and Neighbors for the Many Wonderful Expressions of Sympathy and Deeds of Kindness Shown to us During the Recent Death of our Wife and Mother, Jane Adcock.

Art On Display

Artist Peggy Johnson, right, and Betty Jo McLeod, adjust Mrs. Johnson's painting, "Time," for a one-man show at the Brower's Barn, Longwood. Mrs. Johnson, of Maitland, and other Westinghouse wives in the area were honored at a coffee at Brower's Barn. Mrs. Johnson paints mostly impressionistic watercolors and frequently uses the wet on wet technique. The wonders of nature and man are her primary inspiration, both in realistic and abstract form. She has recently completed two sets of paintings for the Marriott Hotel Corporation and has been commissioned to do a third. The first set was hung in the Santa Barbara, Calif. hotel where Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip were the recent occupants. The second set is decorating the executive suite in Tullis, Okla.

DAR Needs Books For Museum

The Sallie Harrison Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution held the annual luncheon meeting at Molly Magar's Restaurant on May 13. Twenty-five members and guests attended.

Mrs. T. K. Wiley presided during the business meeting and conducted the opening ritual.

Mrs. R.E. Grooms read the chapter president's general message, in which Mrs. Richard Denny Shelby expressed gratitude that the organization was able to achieve many of its aims and goals during her administration.

Mrs. Shelby closed with the farewell words of George Washington, "With a heart full of love I take leave of you."

Mrs. C.E. Butler, national defense chairman, spoke of the importance of academic excellence being stressed in the nation's schools system. She read several letters from teachers confirming the importance of higher standards.

Mrs. B.J. Fox, historian, displayed the chapter scrapbook for 1982-83 and mentioned the need for book cases to be used in the DAR room in the Seminole County Museum. Donations of books appropriate to the early America will be appreciated, according to Mrs. Fox.

Mrs. W. B. Little reported on the result of this year's paper drive. A note from Regis Mrs. W.S. Brunmyer was read in which she thanked the chapter members for cooperation during the past year and wished all a pleasant summer.

Crumley Honored At Stetson

Russell Crumley and Nancy Barnett, graduating seniors spoke at Stetson University's 1983 Centennial Commencement ceremonies Sunday, May 15, at 2 p.m. in the Edmunds Center.

Crumley is the son of Mrs. Carol Crumley of Sanford, and Robert Crumley of Melbourne. He and Barnett gave a duo address, each taking turns discussing his or her respective topic and integrating them into one theme, according to Crumley.

Barnett spoke on "Expectations." Crumley's topic was "Living Every Day to the Fullest." Using Barnett's talk as background, Crumley spoke about ways to meet expectations and goals by making the most of every moment every day.

During the spring awards ceremony, held at Elizabeth Hall, Crumley and Sherril Guss received the top academic award for Stetson students, the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award, co-sponsored by the New York Southern Society of the Algernon Sydney Foundation.

Recipients must attain a level of scholastic accomplishment, extra-curricular activities and spiritual Crumley was selected as the award recipient for his record of student leadership, community activities and scholastic performance.

Crumley, from Sanford, a marketing/management major in the business school, was a resident advisor for two years, was founder and charter president of Stetson's Gamma Chi Fraternity chapter, and is a member of the Stetson Marketing Association. Diabetes Jargon Confuses Reader

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been told I am a "borderline diabetic." I had some problems with my eyes and diabetes had trouble with my sight. When my eyes were checked I was told I was for a glucose tolerance test. w h e c a m e u o u t

DEAR READER — Borderline diabetic, pre-diabetic, chemical diabetic and several other terms are used and none of them mean anything except to the person who uses the term. Why? Because doctors and the medical profession are without defining them.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a trigger finger. I want to cut it off. The back of my finger in the handle of my gun. If you have any excess pounds of body fat, eliminate it. Get it out of you and stay on the low fat diet. That is all you need to do to control diabetes. And if you have another test be sure to have a lot of sweets for three days before the test is done. Otherwise forget it.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

MAY 18, 1983

Develop thrifty habits this coming year so that you will always have a little tucked away that will aid with any unexpected expenses.

TAURUS (April 20-May 21)

Be very careful today about becoming involved in ventures which are speculative or risky. Distward appearances could be extremely deceptive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Family problems should be kept within the confines of your household today. Inputs from in-laws or outsiders will cause additional disturbances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Keep pace with your work and responsibilities today, or you might fall far behind you if you are unable to catch up. Maintain a schedule.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Indifference or carelessness could cost you in your pocketbook today. Manage your resources as carefully as your friendly banker would.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Limit the number of trips you will have in the five days if you attempt too much at one time. You aren't apt to make your dreams.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

The optimistic today, but be sure to base your hopes upon realistic premises. Counting on luck alone where you shouldn't might prove disappointing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Be on your best behavior today, particularly if you're around persons who could either help or hurt your career. Your actions will be closely observed.

SCORPIO (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Don't leave important matters to chance today. It could be a trifle tricky, while holding you in a false sense of security. Be watchful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Separate yourself from situations today where you could be misled by the mistakes of others. Make sure the boundaries are clearly defined.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Treat all of your business contacts equally today. The ones you think will help you, may not, while those you least count on may.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Remember that ask others to do things for you today. It will be best to get for yourself. Even if they help, you may still have to redo your work.

Hint Of Mint Adds New Life To Summer Treats

For after-dinner flavors, mint is most likely America's favorite — and Granny Smith's, too. Nothing how much guests appreciate a hint of mint following a meal. Granny has come up with two dinner-capping desserts blending this refreshing flavor with summer's freshest green eating apple — Cape Canaveral Cream Pie.

Available only from May to August, the Cape Canaveral are produced in the Southern Hemisphere, where growing seasons are reversed. Delicious when eaten out of hand, the tangy flavor and crisp firmness of the Granny Smith makes them the ideal apple for slicing into a variety of after-dinner treats.

Our delectable apple is a Finest Apple Ice Milk Pie. A deliciously light variation of ice cream pie, the low-calorie ice milk, apples and mint give new life to the traditional hot weather specialty.

A chocolate wafer crust is filled with shredded apple and ice milk laced with cream de merlette. The deep green color of the filling and the chocolate crumbs lining the sides create a striking color contrast for refreshing warm weather fare.

Minted Peach Apple in a dish that's every bit as elegant as it is easy to prepare. Pleasing mint and apple flavors alike, peeled Canaveral Smith's are immersed until tender and coated with warm mint jelly. Don't worry about the apples overcooking. Since Granny Smith's are crispier than ordinary apples, the result is a dazzling white globe that's tender yet firm. Refrigerated before serving, the minted apples can be used as a sophisticated dessert or as a side dish with pork.

FROZEN APPLE ICE MILK PIE

- 1 package (16) ounces chocolate wafers
- 2 large apples, core, pared and shredded (2 cups)
- 1 tablespoon green cream de merlette (see below)
- 3 pints vanilla ice cream, softened slightly
- 1 Granny Smith apple
- Chocolate wafer crumbs
- fresh mint leaves

Line bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate with chocolate wafers, cutting wafers where necessary to fill in spaces. In a large bowl, toss apples with cream de merlette. Blend in softened ice milk, mix well. Spoon into prepared pie shell. Freeze until firm (about 2 hours). Garnish with apple slices, chocolate wafer crumbs or mint leaves. Yield: 8 servings.

*Cream de merlette: purée ripe cantaloupe and green food coloring for cream de merlette. It is desired.

MINTED POACHED APPLES

- 2 cups sugar
  - 2 cups water
  - 1 cinnamon stick (1 inch)
  - 4 apples, pared and cut in thirds
  - 1/2 cup mint jelly
- In large saucepan, combine sugar, water and cinnamon stick. Heat mixture to dissolve sugar. Bring to a boil; boil, uncovered, 3 minutes, stir in vanilla. Add apples, simmer, uncovered, over low heat, stirring frequently, until tender (20 to 30 minutes, until apples are tender). Remove and drain on paper towels. In small saucepan, melt jelly. Brush jelly on apples, coating well. Chill before serving. Yield: 4 servings.

PEACH MACARON Mousse

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
  - 1/2 cup cold water
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 cup Creamora or other orange-flavored liqueur
  - 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
  - 1 cup mandarin oranges
  - 1/2 cups sliced fresh peaches
  - 1 cup whipping cream
- Soak 1/2 cup gelatin and 1/2 cup water in top of a double boiler; let stand 15 minutes. Place over boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in sugar and liqueur. Add to cream, cream and 1/2 cup peaches; stir well. Add to whipping cream until soft peaks form; mix into gelatin mixture. Pour into an 8 1/2-quart mold. Freeze until firm. Garnish with additional fresh peaches and whipped cream, if desired. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

Cranberry Cream Cheese Tart

- 1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
  - 1 (16-ounce) can jelly-free cranberry sauce
  - 1 cup soft 1/2-pound sugar
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 12 large marshmallows, dried
  - 1/2 cup chopped pecans
  - 1 cup whipping cream
  - 1 1/2-inch thick baked pastry shells or graham cracker tart shells
- Whipped cream (optional)
Beat cream cheese, cranberry sauce, sugar, and salt at high speed of electric mixer until fluffy; stir in marshmallows and pecans.
Beat whipping cream until soft peaks form; fold into cranberry mixture. Chill 3 to 4 hours. To serve, spoon cranberry mixture onto pastry shells; garnish with additional whipped cream, if desired. Yield: 15 tarts.
Note: Cranberry mixture may be stored in refrigerator 2 days.

FROZEN ORANGE TARTS

- 2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
  - 1/4 cup finely chopped walnuts
  - 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
  - 1 egg yolk
  - 1/4 cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 (8-ounce) carton commercial sour cream
  - Whipped cream (optional)
- Combine crumbs and walnuts and butter, mixing well with a fork.
Place paper liners in 12 muffin cups; press about 3 tablespoons crumb mixture over bottom and sides of each cup.
Combine sugar, orange juice concentrate, and egg white (at room temperature); beat at medium speed of an electric mixer until soft peaks form (about 7 minutes). Fold in remaining ingredients.
Spoon sugar mixture into prepared muffin cups; freeze. Let tart sit, sealed at room temperature 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired. Yield: 12 servings.

FROZEN CHOCOLATE PIE

- 2 (14-ounce) bars sweet cooking chocolate
- 1 egg, separated
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1 (1-pint) can milk
- 2 cups whipping cream, whipped
- 1 cup chopped pecans

2 1/2-inch graham cracker crusts

2 tablespoons graham cracker crumbs, divided
Melt chocolate in top of a double boiler, stirring constantly. Stir some of chocolate into egg yolks and add milk mixture to remaining chocolate, stirring constantly. Remove from heat.

Stiffen gelatin in water. Add gelatin to chocolate mixture; stir until gelatin is completely dissolved.
Beat egg whites (at room temperature) until frothy; add vanilla and salt, beating slightly. Gradually add sugar, beating well after each addition; continue beating until the whites are stiff and glossy. Do not underbeat.

Fold meringue, whipped cream, and pecans into chocolate mixture; spoon equal portions into crusts. Sprinkle 1/2 tablespoons crumbs over each pie. Freeze 3 hours or until firm. To serve, let stand at room temperature 10 minutes before slicing. Yield: Two 8-inch pies.

Ice milk pie is delectably refreshing.

Specialties Shared From Mexico Trip

On a recent trip to Mexico, I was delighted and amazed by the various kinds of international cuisines available to visitors of that country. In addition to Mexican dishes such as enchiladas, burros, rancheros, jagas, frijoles (beans), an endless variety of beef, chicken and fresh fish prepared with Mexican sauces one could also find German, Swiss, French, Italian, Mexican and just about any other cuisine you may like to try. Fresh fruits were always present on the menus and were both beautiful and delicious. Mexican pineapples, papayas, mangoes, watermelons and avocados were served alone and arranged attractively on platters garnished with wedges of lime.

- MEXICAN SOUP (SOPEA)
- 1/4 cup water
  - 2 medium tomatoes, cut in quarters
  - 1 small onion
  - 1 clove garlic

  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - Dash of cayenne pepper

This is a basic sauce that can be used for most dishes. It is especially good with burros rancheros.

Coffee Cake Has Mystery Ingredient

This coffee cake, studded with chunks of cinnamon-scented apples, spells "good eating" anytime. Delicious as a special treat for coffee breaks or snacks, it's also an appealing snack which those who aren't counting calories might like to add a dollop of whipped cream.

There's a mystery ingredient in this easy recipe: yogurt. You don't actually taste it, but yogurt adds moisture, tenderness, and helps make the filling over flavor of the named apple pie filling. The apple slices cut out of the top of the golden batter, then sink like the cake during baking.

APPLE CINNAMON COFFEE CAKE

- 1 package (11.5 oz.) yellow cake mix (double layer size)
  - 3 eggs
  - 1 cup plain yogurt
  - 1 can (10 oz.) apple pie filling
  - 2 tablespoons sugar
  - 1 tablespoon cinnamon
  - 2 tablespoons flour
- In large mixing bowl, combine cake mix, eggs and yogurt. Beat 3 minutes. Spread batter into an oiled and floured 9x12 1/2 inch cake pan. Arrange pie filling over batter. Combine cinnamon, sugar, and flour and sprinkle on top of cake. Bake at 350°F. for 40-45 minutes. Best served warm.

Microwave Instructions (Makes a 9" layer): Microwave as above. Microwave at 50% power 7-8 minutes, rotate 1/4 turn at 4 minutes. Finish cooking, high power, 2-3 minutes, rotate 1/4 turn at 2 minutes. Eat times may vary with different stoves. Let stand 2 minutes before inverting onto plate. Sprinkle bottom with some of the cinnamon mixture. Repeat for second layer.

  - 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Cream butter; gradually add 1/2 cup sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add applesauce. Combine flour, baking powder, and salt; add to creamed mixture; and stir just until moistened. Spoon batter into lightly greased miniature muffin pans, filling two-thirds full. Bake at 425° F. for 15 minutes or until done. Remove from pan immediately and dip muffin tops in melted butter. Combine 1/2 cup sugar and cinnamon in a small paper bag; dip top of each muffin. Yield about 31/2 dozen.

Antifreeze, anti poach

When fresh water isn't readily available, dogs sometimes are tempted to quench their thirst by lapping up pools of spilled antifreeze. That's why, when draining or filling the radiator, it's important to mop up promptly any toxic fluid that inadvertently ends up on the ground.

A couple of tablespoons of antifreeze could be a potential and very lethal cocktail for your pet.

Automobile Air Conditioning is Still Hot Option

Auto air conditioning still remains a popular option with the American motoring public despite the economy of the times and the trend toward vehicle downsizing.

While installations dropped both in volume and as a percentage of production, misunderstanding — not a decline in the consumer's desire to own an air-conditioned car — prompted the decrease, industry officials say.

One of the misconceptions that caused the installation rate to drop was the belief that use of air conditioning costs the motoring public millions of gallons of fuel every year. This argument has been effectively discounted, according to the International Mobile Air Conditioning Association.

It's a gas-saver

"Technical evidence generated by a number of studies, some commissioned by the government and others by private industry, shows that auto air conditioning can be a gasoline-saver, especially when a car is traveling faster than 40 miles an hour," Stan Rodman, IMACA's executive director, said.

"When a driver has his windows down in the mistaken belief that he's saving gasoline by not using the air conditioning unit, he's negating the aerodynamic design built into the car to counter wind resistance," he pointed out.

"Somewhere over 40 miles per hour, depending upon the car, wind resistance becomes the single most important factor robbing a car of fuel economy.

"Drivers recognizing this fact are in a position to maximize their miles per gallon average by using their air conditioning unit more efficiently during all seasons."

How?

"Simply by knowing some tricks of the trade," said Rodman.

For example, prior to turning on the air, a driver should open all his windows for the first block or so of driving. This way, excessively hot air in the passenger compartment will be quickly moved outside.

In effect, the driver has assisted his unit by lowering the passenger car compartment temperature so that his air conditioning system will not have to work as hard recirculating hot air captured in the passenger compartment.

That small-car myth

"There's also a misconception about smaller cars not needing air conditioning as much as larger cars," said Rodman.

Small cars place the driver closer to the road, and in the summer months that's where a good deal of heat originates.

Also, the small car's engine is working harder to supply the wheels with the same amount of power as the older, larger engines in fact operating temperatures are as much as 20 to 30 degrees hotter in the smaller engines.

So despite the insulation built into the car by the manufacturer, there's still plenty of heat reaching the passenger compartment of the smaller car, and the driver is closer to the engine.

At the same time, the catalytic converter generates a great degree of heat, much of which filters up into the passenger compartment, causing additional driver discomfort.

Keeping it working

During the winter and off-air conditioning seasons, Rodman recommends that motorists with cars five years old or older turn on their air conditioning units for several minutes several times a month to properly lubricate the system.

Due to recent developments in seal technology, motorists of late model cars should follow the manufacturer's suggested procedures to keep the systems in top operating condition, Rodman says.

Generally, all motorists — regardless of the car they drive and its age — would find a savings if they practiced preventive maintenance and had at least one thorough cooling system service each month.

This would include a complete inspection, and repairs and/or replacement as necessary, of the radiator, heater, coolant fan, fan clutch, hoses and hose connections, thermostat, radiator cap, belts and all air conditioning components.

It normally also would include a back flush of not only the radiator but also the engine block as approximately 62 percent of the coolant in any system remains in the block, even when the radiator is drained of its coolant.

Rodman suggests that drivers in warmer climates have their cooling system checked in the spring months, prior to the big demand season for air conditioning.

For those in the northern or more temperate climes, a fall check will prove beneficial as the car will be ready to meet the demands that the colder months place on the system.

Rodman also noted that the driver's increased comfort, made possible by auto air, can translate into better fuel economy and safer vehicle operation.

Cool it for safety

Tests have shown that fatigue resulting from prolonged exposure to high temperature and noisy environments — such as are found in a car driven for extended periods with its windows open on a hot day — leads to erratic driving habits which have been demonstrated to reduce mileage and may increase the likelihood of an accident.

"In all," said Rodman, "air conditioning will continue to remain a popular feature with the motoring public.

"We believe that this trend will continue as more and more small car purchasers discover that they aren't saving gasoline by not having auto air and that they really miss the added comfort provided by the air conditioner."

"All they're trying to point out," is adding to their creature discomfort index. And that's one number now, besides low mileage, that they don't like at all."

Electronics, Plastics Play Key Role '90s Car: Lighter, Fuel Efficient

More fuel efficient. Lighter in weight. Loaded with electronics. Smaller in size.
That's a start.

Because of rapidly-changing technology and an increasing number of external influences, no one can say exactly how that new car you buy in the year 2000 will look.

There are some indications, however, in projections of how the cars being built in the next 10 years or so will shape up — in design, in powerplants, in materials. A composite picture drawn from members of the Society of Automotive Engineers, a nonprofit, technical organization with nearly 40,000 individual members in 79 countries, the Automotive Information Council, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association and, yes, the automakers themselves.

Many of the concepts for these vehicles of the future already are on the drawing boards. The final decades of the 20th century should prove exciting and challenging for the people whose job it is to develop the car you'll choose to drive a score or more years from now.

Because of the massive amount of initial engineering design work, testing, and retooling that is necessary, fall of which require large capital expenditures, the lead time to bring a new vehicle to the driving public is measured in years.

Many of the new breed of front wheel drive cars, for example, began to take shape on drawing boards as early as 1974.

This new series of cars, which include the Ford Escort and Lynx, the Chrysler Keats, and the GM X-cars, are the automotive engineer's response to the realities of a new world. It is estimated that it cost in excess of $3 billion to build these cars to market.

While consumer preferences and desires once dictated most changes, design today is primarily influenced by four external forces — energy, environment, economics, and government regulations.

Because these forces will continue to dominate the future design of passenger cars, the innovative automotive engineer will lead the way and the stylist will have to conform.

Such engineering emphasis is currently being placed on developing new powerplants — ones that will not only use less fuel, but different types of fuel — and drivetrains with radically different ways of translating combustion into power. Through the end of this century, it is probable that the engines familiar to us today will continue to be our predominant power plants.

Clearly, the reign of the V-8 engine as king of the highway is over and if it survives in any form at all, it will be in the form of the 4-5-4 engine introduced on some Cadillacs.

The main reason for these changes is the federal regulation that requires each car company to achieve an average of 27.5 miles per gallon across a full line of 1985 model-year cars. This compares with the 19-miles-per-gallon requirement for 1979 cars.

Still, manufacturers are optimistic they will beat the 1985 standard by at least three miles per gallon.

The cost of retooling facilities and products over the next five years to produce such a fleet average amounts to $60 billion, making fuel efficiency the No. 1 goal for the domestic auto industry.

Tomorrow's engines are likely to be 25 to 30 percent smaller than today's standard powerplants and will use super-chargers and turbo-chargers to boost their modest output.

The future may place more emphasis on diesel engines and more sophisticated electronically-controlled gasoline engines. Some turbines and electric cars also may debut, such as the electric vehicle General Motors is talking about introducing in 1985.

But GM still is seeking a good supply of nickel powder and better lightweight plastics for its batteries, lower fabricating costs for plates and separators, more efficient motor designs, better speed controls and an inexpensive, reliable way to monitor the supply of energy remaining in the storage batteries.

Look for some hybrid engines to emerge, too, combining, say, a liquid-fuel engine with an electric motor.

Already the six-cylinder engine has replaced the V-8 in many cars, but sometime during the 1980s, the four-cylinder powerplant probably will dominate the highway. It is now the chief source of power for the subcompact and compact classes.

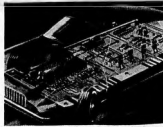

Weight also is a key factor in fuel economy. Hundreds of pounds have been shed from cars since downsizing started in the mid-'70s and manufacturers project that the average car will be in the 3,000-pound weight class by 1985 — nearly 25 percent lighter than today — and the average 1990 car will weigh in at around 2,400 pounds.

Engineers are studying the expanded use of aluminum, plastic and other lightweight materials. Because of advancements in metal treatment, car owners of today will no longer need to worry about rust. Better lubricants and bearings will help increase economy and improved tires will reduce rolling resistance and boost traction.

Perhaps the most dramatic changes, however, will be in the area of electronics. While most 1981 cars include some helpful electronic components, cars of the near future will include a variety of electronics that will control fuel metering, door locks, exhaust gas recirculation, ignition systems, and steering systems.

On-board computers will monitor system-wide sensors including those on bearings, brakes, suspension, steering, and even tires. Electronics will enable cars of the later '80s to double present-day fuel efficiency. The dashboard of these vehicles is likely to have a black matte finish aglow with red light-emitting diodes delivering messages from the on-board computer.

Designers are paying particular attention to aerodynamic styling to reduce wind resistance — another fuel economy foe. Wind tunnels to test styling concepts have been employed to a far greater degree in the last few years.

Future cars (artist's conception above) will include an increasing number of helpful electronic components. Plastics too will play a more dominant role. Industry people expect four-passenger cars will be in the majority on tomorrow's highways, with only about 25 percent of all the vehicles on the road capable of carrying five or six persons.

Rooflines in the late '80s will stay where they are, but hoods and trunk lids will rise steeply to meet them. Chrome hood ornaments and intricate wheel covers will disappear from most models. Cars will become very slippery, yet aesthetically pleasing. The engineers' wind-tunnel and the styling studio will cooperate to produce cars that will be lithe, efficient, and roomy.

While it was once felt that the most efficient design for combating wind resistance was a long hood and a short rear deck, the cars of the late 1980s and 1990s will have a small hood, small rear deck, and a large passenger compartment. With a wind drag rating half as much as current sedans, 1990 cars will not only be more fuel efficient but also will be much quieter.

It won't be long until upright grills and the stubby box slugs and opera windows that now express luxury disappear.

Grills may even become extinct because they hinder aerodynamic efficiency. The cooling system of the future will suck its air from a lip underneath the car — freeing the stylist to form a wedge that will cut a more efficient path through the air.

The spare tire and jack will also be eliminated with the perfection of run-flat tires, lowering vehicle weight just a little more.

Some of these changes are already represented on the want lists of the automakers. General motors, for example, is seeking a base-metal catalyst, better electrostatic painting, more efficient machine tools, plastic windows, run-flat tires, better turbochargers, better quality steel, improved rust protection, more durable plastics especially for large body panels and better ways of forming, welding and finishing sheet aluminum.

Want To Know If You're Getting Good Mileage? Follow This Test

Specialists point out that good driving habits help save fuel. Accelerate smoothly to save gasoline and wear and tear on the engine and tires. Drive at a steady pace and anticipate changes. Avoid changes in speed when gasoline. For example, take your foot off the accelerator as soon as a red traffic signal is spotted ahead. Avoid overfilling a car's gas tank; fuel spillage are wasteful sins. Don't carry unnecessary weight in or on a car, the heavier the car, the more gas it uses. Follow these techniques to improve gas mileage.

Check your car to see if you are getting good mileage. There are five steps to follow for an accurate test.

— Fill gas tank full and make a note of mileage on the odometer.

— Keep a record of all gasoline added during the test period.

— At the conclusion of the test, again fill the tank full.

— The gas added during the test, plus the gas remaining in the tank at the end of the test is the total used for the test.

— The gas mileage is equal to the number of miles driven during the test divided by the total gas used. For accuracy, the test should be conducted over 100 to 1,000 miles, at three to four tanks of gasoline.

This Family's Transmission Failed!

The same scene is repeated thousands of times every day.

Why? Because today's downsized cars run hotter due to emission controls, smaller engines and higher RPMs. Heat problems develop when you carry extra passengers . . . extra baggage . . . drive in stop-and-go traffic . . . drive on ice or snow . . . drive in hot temperatures . . . climb steep grades . . . and do towing.

Could My Transmission Fail?
 Yes. Over 12 million transmissions failed last year*. Nine out of ten transmissions and engine failures can be traced to overheating.

How Do I Prevent It From Happening to Me?
 A small investment now in a Hayden oil cooler can double the life of your car's transmission and engine. Remember, every 20°F drop in oil temperature doubles oil and equipment life. Transmissions repairs run $400 to $1200.

Can I Install A Hayden Oil Cooler Myself?
 Yes, if you change the oil in your car, you can make the installation yourself in a half hour using Hayden's patented Quick-Mount and Quick Connect. Complete illustrated installation instructions come packaged with every oil cooler.

- More horsepower to drive the car instead of the fan.
- Fans warm up in cold weather.
- Eliminates bothersome fan noise — quieter running.
- Adjustable solid state thermostatic control.

Quick-Do-it-yourself installation instructions and all necessary hardware packaged with every fan. Don't delay. Now more than ever your car needs a Hayden Electric-Swirl Fan. The easy, efficient way to increase fuel economy and improve performance.

Vacation Tips

Here Are 14 Points To Check Prior To Your Trip

By United Press International

Car care experts say a basic tune-up and a quick visual check under the hood and around your car can save vacation travelers expensive headaches on the road.

The American Automobile Association distributes a pamphlet illustrated by the National Car Care Council that suggests the following 14-point car check before starting on a long vacation trip.

1. Check the anti-freeze-coolant level when the engine is cold. Most new cars have a see-through reservoir that should be filled to the indicated level with a 50-50 mixture of water and anti-freeze.
2. Inspect belts. Replace worn, glazed or frayed belts and tighten the belts if they depress with your finger more than a half-inch.

3. Check transmission fluid with the engine running and warm and parking brake set. Shift from drive to park, then remove and wipe the dipstick. Reinsert dipstick and pull it out again to check the fluid level. Do not overfill.
4. Check crankcase oil level. Unless you've had a recent oil change, many mechanics recommend an oil and filter change before starting an extended auto trip.
5. Check the air filter. Replace it if it is dirty. Some mechanics routinely change the air filter as part of a basic tune-up.
6. Check master cylinder for brake fluid level and possible leaks.
7. Fill windshield washer reservoir.
8. Check battery water level and make sure the - cables are securely attached and free of corrosion.

9. Check power steering fluid with the engine off.
10. Inspect windshield wiper blades and replace if they are worn or brittle, or if they smear or chatter.
11. Inspect radiator and heater hoses for splits or damage and make sure the clamps are tight.
12. Make sure your headlights, tail lights, brake lights and turn signals and emergency flashers are all working properly.
13. Inflate all tires, including your spare, to the recommended pressure and check each tire for cuts, bulges and excessive wear.
14. Look under your car for loose or broken exhaust system clamps and supports and inspect the muffler and tailpipe for holes or leaks.

Knowing What To Do Can Help Beat The Heat

Cars, like people, are at their best or other components. How long has it when the temperature is about 72°. But been since you checked anti-winter's cold waves and summer's heat freeze/denatured oil?

— How about the condition of your tires? Heavy loads at high speed on hot surfaces is hard on tires. To avoid weather-caused car trouble. To help failure make sure they have plenty of air. — How about the condition of your tires? Heavy loads at high speed on hot surfaces is hard on tires. To avoid weather-caused car trouble. To help failure make sure they have plenty of air. — How about the condition of your tires? Heavy loads at high speed on hot surfaces is hard on tires. To avoid weather-caused car trouble. To help failure make sure they have plenty of air.

— How's your oil? Oil is not only a coolant as well. And good condition. You may have made it clean, well-filtered oil will help your this far, but the advent of hot weather engine survive the heat.

especially vital if you are towing a trailer. Most automatic transmissions share their cooling system with the engine. If you are towing a trailer, you should consider adding a transmission cooler, an inexpensive device you can have installed at most service outlets. — Pay special attention to your battery. Be sure it is properly filled, fully charged. Extreme heat can cut your battery's performance. — Avoid sitting in stalled traffic for long periods of time with your air conditioner running. — Depressant a thought as this might be, you should open your windows and turn on the heater. Speed up your engine occasionally to keep the air flowing through the radiator as the fan speed may be insufficient at idle in extreme heat. The air conditioner puts an extra load on the engine and can add to the overheating, whereas the heater provides extra circulation of coolant from the radiator. Equally harmful, of course, is allowing the car to be parked with the engine and air conditioner running while you run an errand.

Car Wax Use On Upswing

More positive attitudes toward the cars this season are helping and driving use expected to increase the retail market for car waxes and other appearance products in 1982.

It is in the car wax market that the most dramatic gains in sales are expected. The automobile sales industry has seen a sharp increase in the number of cars sold and the price of cars is expected to rise significantly.

The experts also predict at least a 5 percent real market growth in the waxing gear. They believe the recent resurgence in the price-normal rate should also help from the sales and thereby spur more significant market growth.

The trend will start a significant loss market conditions of the past four to five years which were affected by the energy crisis, rising gas prices and increased oil and materials costs.

The experts also feel there is some evidence to suggest that in the past, consumers didn't have the same level of concern for their cars as they do now. They believe this does not "translate" in largely good.

The product mix in the car-wax market has changed significantly since 1978. It included the introduction of premium products to protect and preserve a car's paint.

While these changes gave the market a new look, they did not attract many new customers. Positive response to premium-quality waxes and higher-priced poly urethane brought significant dollar growth, but little overall unit growth. Consumers still buy an average of one can of car wax every 22 months and use it on an average of 2.5 times per year.

18 Ways To Save Gas

Auto Facts FOR THE WANT OF A BRACKET

A COMMON FORM OF REGULAR LITTER IS
 MUFFLES. OFTEN
 PERFECTLY GOOD ONES, THAT HAVE CALLED OFF
 BECAUSE
 FAILS. THE RESULT: NOISE,
 RUMES AND EXPENSE.

GIVE YOUR CAR'S
 EXHAUST SYSTEM A
 GOOD CHECK ONCE
 IN A WHILE TO BE SURE ITS SECURE.
 YOU MAY SAVE
 THE PRICE OF A
 NEW MUFFLER
 BY REPLACING
 A SIMPLE PART.

Looking for fresh ideas on ways to save gas this summer? Here are some, with the estimated percentage of mileage increases in parentheses.

- Replace fouled spark plugs promptly (6%)
- Maintain correct carburetor and choke operation (2%)
- Maintain correct tire pressure (2%)
- Avoid jackrabbit starts; drive at an easy pace (1%)

The oil firm whose surveys provided these results, points out that these percentages aren't exactly cumulative since the same factors may apply to one or more of the conditions on which comparisons are based.

Keep records
 The oil company also suggests maintaining records to identify fuel waste, minimizing braking by anticipating speed changes and keeping your car properly lubricated, maintaining the prescribed oil level. Belts should be tight; a loose fanbelt also is gas-waster.

Eliminating needless driving, using the air conditioner advisably, correcting a wavy transmission slip, maintaining proper wheel alignment and installing a fresh air cleaner are other other helpful fuel-saving hints.

Sikorsky's savers
 If you're driving late at night and are dangerously close to empty, Robert Sikorsky, author of How to Get More Miles Per Gallon, suggests this emergency economy method:

Accelerate slowly to 20 miles an hour, then quickly turn off the ignition and shift the car into neutral. Let the car slow to five to eight miles an hour, restart to eight miles an hour, restart the engine and repeat until you find an open gas station. While you can double or triple normal gas mileage this way, Sikorsky says he doesn't recommend it for everyday use, driving down steep grades or if your steering wheel locks when the ignition is turned off.

When starting a car after the engine has flooded, don't pump the accelerator. That only wastes more gas.

Instead, push the accelerator pedal to the floor and hold it there while cranking the starter. This will open the throttle and drain the excess gas from the carburetor. If the engine has an automatic choke, be sure to prop the butterfly valve open while the starter is being turned, Sikorsky advises.

BEWARE OF WEATHER WEARY WIPERS

BECAUSE OF ITS RESILIENCE AND SUPERIOR WIPING ABILITY, NATURAL RUBBER IS USED IN MANUFACTURING WINDSHIELD WIPER BLADES. BUT NATURAL RUBBER IS VULNERABLE TO THE ELEMENTS AND TO AIR-BORNE CONTAMINANTS.

EVEN WITH ADDITIVES IN THE RUBBER TO IMPROVE DURABILITY, WIPER BLADES TEND TO DEGRADATE AND BECOME BRITTLE, LOSING THEIR EFFECTIVENESS IN 6 TO 12 MONTHS. THEY MAY SNEAK, STREAK AND CHATTER, SHOULD BE REPLACED AT LEAST ANNUALLY FOR SAFE DRIVING VISION.

Convenient Sanding Block Features A Built-In Adhesive Back Sandpaper

A sanding block with a built-in dispenser for adhesive-backed sandpaper that makes hand finishing easier than before has been developed by 3M. The Auto-Pak "Press 'n Sand" hand sander combines a one-piece, semi-resilient, molded plastic sanding block, shaped to fit the hand, with a roll of adhesive-backed sandpaper.

The 2 1/2x3-inch sanding block is shaped like a toboggan and can be used to get into tight places and inside curves. Its angled grip fits either the right or left hand and makes it easy to apply as much pressure as needed for rough work or a light touch for fine finishing.

Since the sandpaper adheres to the sanding block, it does not slip and scribble to form folds that can gouge your work. In addition, the total surface of the sanding block is used. This helps prevent clogging and extends sandpaper life.

When worn, changing the sanding surface is done by tearing off the Sandpaper will not slip, wrinkle, fold or tear with this new hand sander now on the market. The refill roll for the one-piece, semi-resilient, molded plastic sanding block is held securely in place during finishing jobs by a peel-off adhesive backing.

worn portion and unrolling a new surface. New sandpaper is right on the roll of the sander. No sandpaper is wasted because none is trapped in retaining slots or clips.

Medium, Fine and Super Fine Grits Refill rolls come in medium (1300), fine (1800) and super fine (320) grits. Medium handles rough feathering on auto body fillers or removes paint. It eliminates coarse grade sand scratches and blends plastic auto body fillers with the metal surface. Fine featheredges finishes on metal. It removes medium grade sand scratches to prepare the surface for priming. It comes on rolls 85 inches long. Super Fine comes on still longer rolls (125 inches) because the thinner paper makes room for it in the sander. This 320-grit paper final sands primer surfaces and undercoats to make a good paint job possible.
