BRYON PRICE WASHINGTON, Mev # -/A' was abo -The Michigan Republicans surprised many of the political decided wisdom and dragment of Semator Vanden-berg for President.

 It had been assumed widely that, however strong the senti-ment for him might be in his home tists, that the brakes would be kept on effectively un-til convention time.
 Benator Vandenberg long has been viewed by his friends as the No. 1 Cark horso possibility for the nomination in case of a desdlock. Many of these friends as have argued that absolute aloud ness from the pre-convention cramble would strenghten him in that position. in that position. If he had no delegates at all

If he had no delegates at all pledged to him, it was suggested, he could hardly be accured of having kept a single vote away from any other candidate, and he would come up to the starting post singularly free of thus up among presidential aspirants. If can only be conjectured whether, or in what degree, the setion of the Michigan state convention may have changed that situation. The senator himself has been ereated ?

Barrie's Tribute To His Mother

Seventy-six years sao today in Alerienani, Forfar-hire, Scotland, James M. Barrie was horn. Of all the con-ributions he has made to the literature of the world, appe a more lovely, none more touching, and ners, first and to patraner. There was point at the motion in Margaret Opilvy. We print a part of it here in observance of Moth-er's Day for all those sons and daughters who feel deep in their hearts what only Barris can make articulate: er's Day for all those sons and daughters who feel deep in their hearts what only Barris can make articulate: "How much she gave away all she had, and what pretty ways she had of doing it! Her face beamied and rip-ples with mirth as before, and her laugh, that I had tried so hard to force, came running home again. I have heard no such laugh as hers aave from merry children; the laughter of most of ares, and wears out with the body, but hers remained gleeful to the last, as if it were born fresh every morning. There was always something of the child in her and her laugh was its voice. —In her happlest mo-ments — and sever was a happler woman — her mouth did not of a sudden begin to twitch and tears to lie on the mute blue eyes in which I have read all I know and would ever care to write. For when you looked into my mother's eyes, you knew as if God had told you, why God sent her into the world—it was to open the minds of all who looked to beautiful thoughts. And that is the beginning and end of ilterature. Those eves that I cannot see until I was six years old have guided me through tife, and I pray God they may remain my only earthly judge to the last. They were never more my guide than when I helped to put her to earth, not whimpering because my mother had been taken away after seventy-six glorious years of life, but exulting in her even at the gave." exulting in her even at the grave."

Another Political Plumb

Though it had been known for some time that Senator Trammell was in ill health and it was even suspected that his condition was worse than actually reported, still the news of his death last night was a distinct shock.
