Move Would Earn Sanford $8.6 Million Grant

City Edges Closer To Land Spreading Plan

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

The state is waving an $8.6 million "carrot" in front of the Sanford City Commission to encourage it to halt the dumping of treated sewage in Lake Monroe and go to a land spreading system of disposal. The commission, believing the deal would save residents money on their monthly sewer bills, is nibbling at the proposal.

The Florida Department of Environmental Regulation has offered the grant. City Manager Frank Faison told the commission at its work session Monday. Using the land spreading method — what the state has wanted Sanford to do all along — would mean the city would give up its four-year fight with DER to keep dumping treated sewage into the lake, he said. A ruling from DER on the lake dumping issue is expected any day, Faison said. The city can abide by the ruling or appeal it in court.

But chances of providing sewage disposal and keeping residents sewer bills down are better with taking the grant and going to land spreading than continuing the fight with DER, Faison said.

Under the land spreading proposal, Sanford residents' highest monthly sewer bills would be about $28. Present rates average $8.80 with a $9.16 maximum, Faison said.

If the city continues fighting DER, monthly sewer bills could range from $27 to $36 a month if the city wins its case. If it loses and appeals in court, bills almost certainly would be $35 or $36 a month, he said.

While continuing the fight and winning looks like a more inexpensive

More Trouble For Shuttle

Telescope Tracking System Balks

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Shuttle Challenger's crewmen sailed through a hair-raising engine shutdown during launch and ran into major problems again today, this time testing a costly telescope pointer vital for studies of Halley's comet next year.

Flight director Lee Britscoe said trouble-shooting to fix the $60 million European device's sun-tracking system disrupted the planned test schedule but he was hopeful the shuttle scientists would be able to salvage the key instrument.

Early indications were the problem involved the computer programs that operate the telescope mount.

A series of experiments were successfully activated and a flashing electron beam was fired into space to test a device that will be used later to study the tenuous outer reaches of Earth's atmosphere. One sun-study experiment refused to work.

"It's been an adventuresome day," shuttle commander Gordon Fullerton told ground crews shortly before turning in early today. He was referring to the dramatic failure of one of Challenger's three main engines Monday during the still-safe climb to orbit.

Fullerton, co-pilot Roy Bridges, flight engineer Story Musgrave and scientists Karl Hentze, Anthony England, Loren Acton and John David Bartoe were working around the clock on two shifts to carry out as much research as possible during the long-planned Spacelab astronomy mission.

"You just cannot believe how beautiful this payload is when the sun comes up," Acton said of Challenger's science cargo. "There is more pretty stuff out there than you can shake a stick at against the black sky."

The "red" shift — Bridges, Hentze and Acton — was kept busy today trouble-shooting a variety of problems with several of the sophisticated instruments that make up Challenger's $72 million array of science gear.

Under The Weather

The scene started to darken Monday during an inning change in a Central Florida Baseball League game in Longwood. No, Casey was not up to bat. The weather was calling the plays as dark clouds draped Central Florida, prompting the day game to play under the lights at Lyman High School baseball field. The seasonal afternoon tempest rumbled through the area then knocked out power to 2,000 residents in Apopka. Story of the game, 5A.

Murder Trial To Begin

Jury selection is scheduled to begin Wednesday in the case of a Sanford man charged with first-degree murder in connection with the shooting death of his wife.

The state is not seeking the death penalty, according to Assistant State Attorney Tom Hastings.

Schedule for trial is Basil Fredrick Greene, 28, of 301 E. Fifth St., Sanford. Greene was indicted by a grand jury March 9 following the slaying of his wife Ruby Beverly Greene, 28, of 1200 W. 8th St. If convicted, Greene faces life in prison with no possibility of parole for 25 years.

According to police reports, Mrs. Greene was working at S & H Fabricating and Engineering, 2660 Jewett Lane, Sanford, when a man entered the company at 4:34 p.m., Feb. 5. According to witnesses, the man shot Mrs. Greene with a .25-caliber handgun three times, the first shot in the back. After she turned and fell facing her assailant, he cocked the gun again and shot her twice in the chest. She was pronounced dead at 5:25 p.m. at Central Florida Regional Hospital. One of the bullets ripped through her aorta and she died to death, according to the medical examiner.

After the shooting, the man turned, and carrying the pistol, walked out of the building, reports show.

Greene, a laborer for the same company, was arrested by officer D. Semones at the northwest corner of the plant, according to police. He was holding a gun at the time.

Elections Official Suggests County Redraw Districts

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

While the Orange County Commission is embroiled in controversy over whether it should create single-member districts for the election of the board, there is little chance the Seminole County Commission will be pressured to go that way. And little chance the commission will even draw new boundary lines of commission districts this year.

But Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard is recommending the commission redraw district boundaries for at least 13 precincts where Deputy County Administrator Woody Price says there are more voters registered than can comfortably cast ballots.

In Orange County, state Rep

Alzo Reddick, D-Orlando, has asked county commissioners to voluntarily set up single-member districts for the election of commissioners, saying if they refuse the people will go the petition route to force the issue onto the ballot. The idea is to consolidate black voting strength within one or two districts.

Here, meanwhile, Mrs. Goard says there is no conceivable way districts can be redrawn to put black voting strength into a single district, reminding there are only 6,420 blacks among the 96,058 registered voters in the county.

And while the blacks generally are concentrated in certain areas — within Sanford and the unincorporated area surrounding Sanford and in the uncorporated area near Altamonte Springs — those areas are not contiguous, touching one another geographically, Mrs. Goard said the state constitution requires commission districts to be contiguous.

Seminole commissioners last week asked Mrs. Goard for a report showing how many voters

Thump, Bang, Blast— Accidental Shot Wreaks Havoc

Robert Duggan, of Kissimmee, said he wasn't aiming for trouble Sunday.

Duggan, 28, was resting in his bed in room #16 of the Slumberland Court Motel, 2611 Orlando Drive, Sanford.

At about noon he decided to get up. In the process he accidentally knocked a .357 Magnum revolver off the nightstand. The gun hit the floor and went off, Duggan told police.

The bullet whizzed across the room, piercing an aerosol can which exploded, the police report said. A resulting fire scorched the bed, suitcases, carpet and melted a lampshade, the fire report said.

The blaze was out when firefighters arrived. Damage is estimated at about $500, according to the report.

Also in the room was Thomas Patrick, 30, of Route 2, Sanford. Neither man was hurt.

Police ran a check on the gun after Duggan said he borrowed it from a friend. Police confirmed the gun was borrowed. No charges were filed.

Police Seek Support For 'Night Out' Event

The Sanford Police Department is calling on all residents to light up the city to show support for crime prevention in Sanford.

Police are asking residents to turn on their house and porchlights, decorate their Neighborhood Watch signs and sit out in their front yards Aug. 13 from 8 to 9 p.m.

Dubbed "Night Out," the event is a symbolic attempt to draw attention to the Neighborhood Watch program, according to Chief Steve Harriett. Residents in other cities across Central Florida will be holding similar "sit-ins" the same night, Harriett said.

"It's a reminder that Neighborhood Watch exists, it works and it's a good program," he said.

In the program, neighbors in a residential area agree to watch each others' homes for suspicious activity and notify police when necessary. Police officers also teach the neighbors how to prevent crime and how to discern the telltale signs of criminal activity.

The number of burglaries went down 30 percent after the program was started in Sanford in 1981, Harriett said.

Nine neighborhoods have watch programs in Sanford and the police department is looking to boost that number, according to Lt. Mike Rotundo, Neighborhood Watch coordinator.

Harriett and Rotundo said they both expect a lot of participation during the "Night Out" program. Rotundo said the department has already passed out thousands of flyers advertising the event. He said residents are asking for more to pass out. More information about "Night Out" may be obtained by calling the police department at 323-3030.

Zookeeper Mauled To Death By Tigresses

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bronx Zoo officials will not destroy two Siberian tigresses who mauled to death a zookeeper after she apparently failed to notice their pens were empty and walked into their forested habitat.

A volunteer trainee escaped the attack in a 2-acre portion of the "Wild Asia" exhibit by scrambling over a 16-foot chain-link fence with a barbed wire overhang.

The death Monday of Robin Silverman, 24, of Manhattan, was the first such incident recorded at the zoo, and officials said they will never know why the "exceptionally competent" zookeeper entered the habitat after walking by the tigers' empty pens.

Silverman, who recently received a bachelor's degree in animal behavior and psychology at Fordham University, had been working at the zoo since 1983. She was appointed to a full-time zookeeping post in February.

"We don't really understand it," Zoo Director William Conway said. "She had to walk by the pens to get into the enclosure, and consequently had to see the pens were empty."

"The tigers would have to be either out in the exhibit or in their internal bedrooms," he said, adding it would have been unlikely for the animals to be sleeping "at that time of day."

Conway also said the door to the pens was open.

"Why she didn't observe that we'll never know," he said.

The two tigresses, who were born at the zoo 4 1/2 years ago and now weigh between 250 and 300 pounds each, will not be destroyed.

"We shall not vilify the tigers," Conway said.

Zoo officials said Silverman and the trainee, Barbara Burke, were in the habitat when the tigresses attacked. Burke managed to escape the animals by scrambling over the fence, Conway said.

On hearing calls for help, Senior Keeper Patrick Thomas and maintenance man Greg Kaiminowitz came running and tried to keep the female tigers away from Silverman with a fire extinguisher.

"Other zoo personnel arrived and pulled her out," Conway said. "But it was too late."

Silverman was pronounced dead at Jacobi Hospital about an hour after the attack. A hospital spokeswoman said she had suffered deep cuts on her body and "crush injuries" to her head and neck.

Conway said that although Silverman "had extra training ... if you walk into an enclosure with tigers, these are not puddle ducks."

"She was a very highly respected and exceptionally competent person," Conway said.

Silverman's death was the first of its kind at the zoo.

"Not that we haven't had nips and bites," Conway said. "According to verbal history, a keeper was bitten by a zebra around the turn of the century, refused to allow amputation and later died."

Conway said another keeper was bitten by a poisonous snake 15 years ago but recovered.

Footloose Felon

McDONOUGH, Ga. (UPI) — Escaped convict Anthony Harper, tired of running from the law on foot, figured a restaurant would be a good place to steal a car.

Wrong. Harper, a 25-year-old convicted killer who escaped last week from a prison near Jackson, Ga., staked out a restaurant before it opened Monday morning, figuring he could snatch a car from the first person who arrived.

But the cook and her son showed up about 8 a.m. — on foot.

A short while later, two other people came to the restaurant. They too had walked.

"He held them all at bay with a couple of long knives," police spokesman Olin Greer said. "He wanted a car to get away in, but none of them had a car."

Harper finally gave up and fled — on foot. Authorities captured him four hours later and returned him to jail — in a police car.

IN BRIEF

Lawmen Still Hope To Solve 10-Year Jimmy Hoffa Mystery

DETROIT (UPI) — The disappearance of former Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa remains a mystery 10 years later, but federal authorities say it is one they still hope to solve — despite a lack of solid evidence.

Today marks the 10th anniversary since Hoffa, then 62, vanished. The last time he was seen, witnesses said the former union boss was getting into a maroon Mercury in the parking lot of the Machus Red Fox restaurant in Bloomfield Township.

Wayne Davis, an FBI agent in Detroit, said Monday the Hoffa case has not been put on the backburner. Davis said there is no statute of limitations on murder cases.

"We're still investigating it," Davis said. "We think we know who's responsible and what happened. The problem has been that most of the people we believed to be involved have been convicted of other crimes or died."

The strongest theory on Hoffa's disappearance is that his body was disposed of in a Hamtramck incinerator.

According to federal authorities, Hoffa was killed by members of the Teamsters and the Mafia because of fears he might return to power in the union.

Capitol In The Dark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A power outage turned off the lights at the Capitol today, throwing the lawmakers into darkness, trapping people in elevators and forcing a nearby federal building to be evacuated, fire officials said.

At the Labor Department, located near the Capitol building, city firefighters said the building was evacuated and an unknown number of people were trapped in elevators.

Officials with the city's power agency, the Potomac Electric Power Co., said the outage seemed confined to the Capitol Hill area — about five city blocks — and officials reported that parts of the Smithsonian Institution were affected.

At the Capitol, security was compromised somewhat when the outage incapacitated the metal detectors that screen people entering the building for weapons. Capitol police turned away tourists at the doors and said they would not be allowed back in until the power was restored.

More 'Killer' Bees Found

LOST HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Crews trying to track down three "killer" queen bees and their swarms that threaten the billion-dollar farm industry in central California found a suspect nest at an abandoned oil well.

The discovery Monday was made by bee expert Norman Gary, leader of the search, who said the bees responded vehemently when he conducted an "aggression test" on the nest.

A spokesman for the state Department of Food and Agriculture said the bees will be killed and analyzed in a laboratory to determine if they are from one of three possible swarms of Africanized bees thought to be led by three queens loose in the region.

"Killer" bees — known to scientists as Africanized bees — are a cross between docile Western Hemisphere bees and a strain of fiercely aggressive bees from Africa.

African bees are noted for mass attacks on human beings and animals. They became a problem in the Western Hemisphere in 1956 when several swarms of African bees imported to Brazil for research escaped from a laboratory.

Another Way To Get AIDS

Disease Antibodies Found In Controversial Cancer Serum

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — State health officials are warning of a potential new way to contract Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome: a serum prepared from blood products that is used in a controversial cancer treatment.

The treatment is called Immunoaugmentative Therapy, or IAT, and involves a series of injections of a serum reportedly prepared using tumor tissue, normal blood serum and blood clots from cancer patients.

According to Dr. John Witte, preventative health services director for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, IAT patients should stop treatment immediately and seek testing for possible exposure to AIDS.

"We want people who are using this treatment to know that they are at risk of developing AIDS," Witte said Monday. "We know that AIDS can be transmitted through infected blood products and people who are injecting themselves with this serum may

Rock Hudson Back Home

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Rock Hudson, fighting for his life against the deadly disease AIDS, returned home today on a chartered 747 jet and was flown by helicopter to UCLA Medical Center for further treatment.

"Mr. Hudson is coming back to Los Angeles at his own request. I think it is his desire to be at home," the actor's Hollywood publicist, Dale Olson, said at International Airport. "He'll feel more comfortable in his own environment."

The 59-year-old actor left American Hospital in Paris Monday and lay motionless on a stretcher as he was carried onto a chartered Air France Boeing 747 for the non-stop flight to California.

Bahamas was preparing the serum from specimens obtained in New York City, which has the world's highest number of AIDS cases, Witte said. Serum specimens tested in Washington, D.C. and Alabama were found to contain antibodies to both Hepatitis B and to the HTLV-III virus, which is believed to cause AIDS.

Witte said a Florida cancer patient recently saw news reports of the possible link and provided county health officials with serum samples. Tests of the unidentified patient's blood showed no evidence of AIDS but the antibody showed up in 7 of the 31 serum specimens the patient was to be injected with.

Witte said the Bahamian government and the Pan American Health Organization have closed down the clinic.

Witte said anyone who has been participating in the Bahama cancer program should call their local county health department or the state AIDS hotline — 1-800-352-2437 — for testing.

U.S. May Test New AIDS Drug

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration says tests might begin in the United States in a few weeks on an AIDS drug developed in France, a world leader in combating the often deadly disease.

An FDA spokesman said the manufacturer of the drug, HPA-23, is expected to file a formal application for experimental tests or "compassionate use" of the medication in the United States within a few weeks.

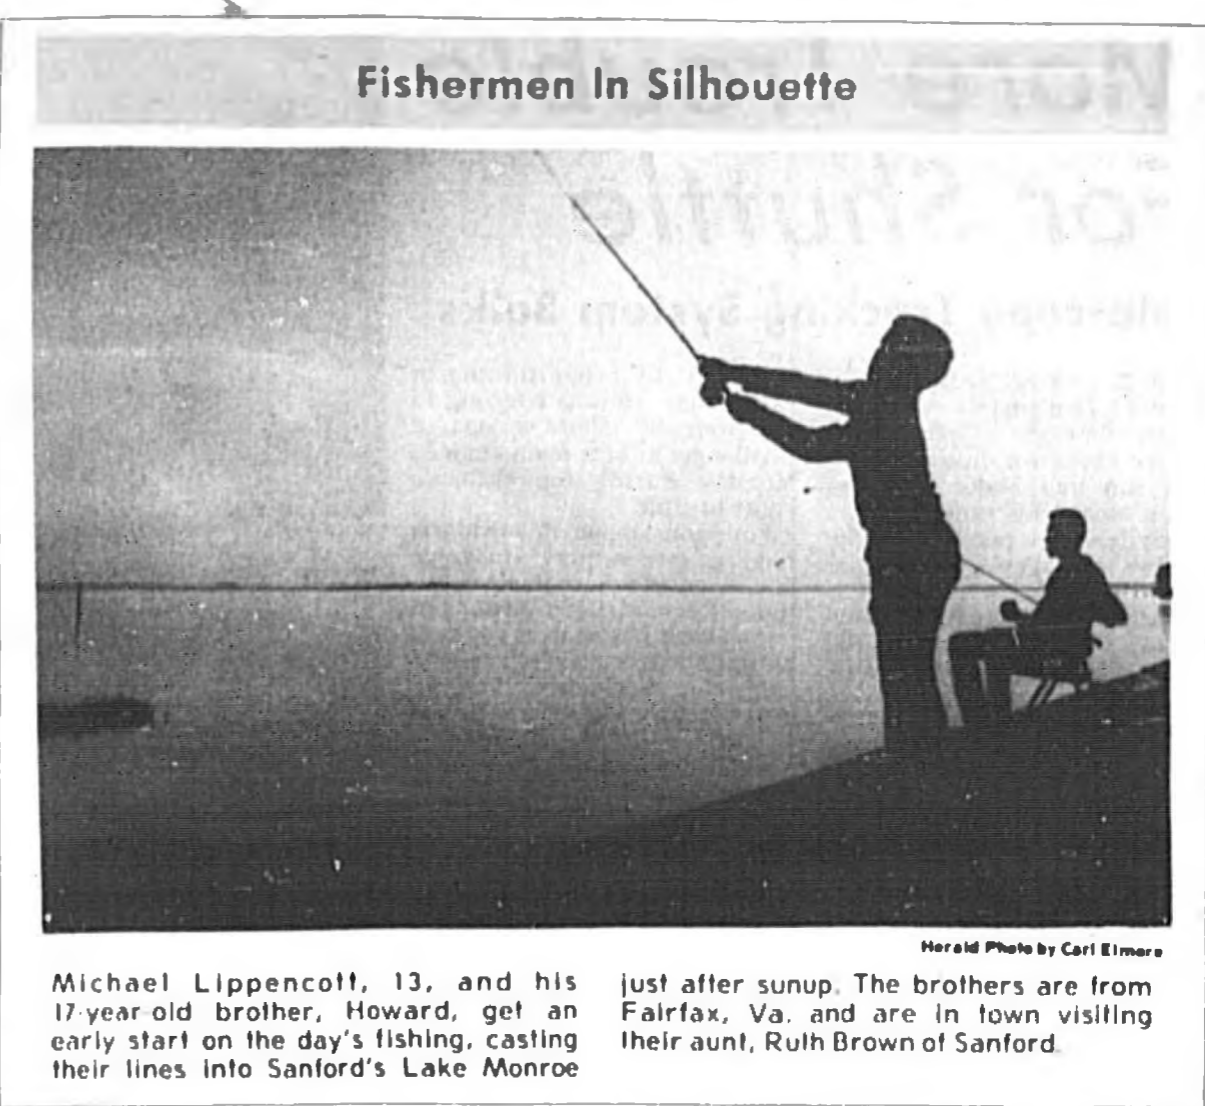

"We will do all we can to expedite the application so they can begin testing as soon as they are ready," FDA spokesman William Grigg said. "That could be within a few weeks or a few months."

Don McLearn, another FDA spokesman, said Rhone-Poulenc, a French pharmaceutical company, also may ask that the drug be approved for "compassionate use," meaning it could be given to terminally ill AIDS victims at the request of their doctors.

At least two dozen Americans are currently in France receiving the anti-viral drug, HPA-23, for the illness — acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Nearly three-fourths of AIDS victims are homosexual or bisexual men, but the disease also strikes other groups — such as intravenous drug users — and shows signs of spreading to the general population.

In addition to sexual contact, AIDS can be transmitted through blood transfusions. Some experts say perhaps 1 million Americans now have the AIDS virus in their blood, even though they are not suffering the disease.

Michael Lippencott, 13, and his 17-year-old brother, Howard, get an early start on the day's fishing, casting their lines into Sanford's Lake Monroe just after sunup. The brothers are from Fairfax, Va. and are in town visiting their aunt, Ruth Brown of Sanford.

Paying More No Guarantee Of Getting The Best Tire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal testing program reveals a wide disparity among automobile tire wear and tear with the longest-lasting tire, made by Michelin, enduring 66,000 miles under average driving conditions.

A study by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, an arm of the Transportation Department, showed that among 134 radial tires from 18 companies, Michelin did best with its XH, which has a treadwear rating of 330 or 66,000 miles.

A tire with a treadwear rating of 100 should get 20,000 miles, while one with a rating of 250 is expected to run 50,000 miles.

The ratings were made public Monday by the Center for Auto Safety, a non-profit consumer group, after compilation by the Transportation Department.

The center complained the government had tried to "bury the ratings" by — instead of a news release — placing the test results into the department's docket, which is rarely checked by the general public.

A spokesman said the department had no comment on the matter.

The ratings showed that Bridgestone 147V-70 had the poorest rating of 80 or a projected lifetime of 16,000 miles.

Untroyal did comparatively well with several tires, including the Tiger Paw Plus in the 52,000-to-56,000 miles range.

The ratings also showed all tire companies had good and poor mileage performers — including Michelin's XWX at a 100 rating or 20,000 miles.

"The ratings demonstrate the need for consumers to have this invaluable treadwear information so they can get the most for their money," said Dan Howell, a center official. "The problem is more money does not necessarily get you a better tire."

The administration tried to do away with the tire ratings in 1982 but a federal court later prohibited that action because it would be contrary to congressional intent.

The federal study said that generally the West Coast, the area around the Great Lakes and northern New England have road surfaces that are easiest on tires and the Appalachian region and the Rocky Mountain areas are hardest.

Trial Underway For Five Suspected Cocaine Smugglers

MIAMI (UPI) — Lawyers will try again today to pick a jury for the trial of five South Americans including a former Venezuelan Naval officer accused of conspiring with the Nicaraguan government to smuggle cocaine into the United States.

Potential jurors were questioned all day Monday before U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King without a panel selected. The trial is expected to last about a month.

All but five of the 11 original defendants named in the indictment, which charges them with drug importation and distribution, are fugitives. Reputed drug kingpins Pablo Escobar Gaviria, Jorge Ochoa and Carlos Lehder were also indicted and U.S. officials are seeking their extradition from South America.

The indictment charges that Federico Vaughan, one of the fugitives in the case who is an aide to Nicaraguan Interior Minister Tomas Borge, protected cocaine distribution personnel and supervised the shipping of the drug out of the Marxist country to the United States.

Daughter Killer Denied Bond

MIAMI (UPI) — A man who fatally shot his comatose 3-year-old daughter twice in the heart to end her suffering has been denied bond following examinations by two psychiatrists and a psychologist.

After 3½ hours of testimony from the doctors and arguments from opposing lawyers Monday, Dade County Circuit Judge Edward D. Cowart said, "After hearing all of the facts... I'm going to deny bond," and quickly left the courtroom.

Cowart ordered the mental examinations at a July 3 hearing so he could determine if Griffith was mentally fit to stand trial and if he could be let out of jail on bond.

Griffith, 25, is charged with first-degree murder for the June 28 shooting of his daughter, Joy, as she lay in her bed at Miami Children's Hospital.

The infant suffered irreversible brain damage in October when her neck became wedged in the footrest of a reclining chair. She was nearly asphyxiated and fell into a coma when she became entangled in the chair.

June Trade Loss Second Highest On Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's merchandise trade deficit climbed to $13.4 billion in June, the second highest on record, as imports of autos, steel, shoes and chemicals soared, the Census Bureau said today.

The total deficit was second only to July 1984's $13.8 billion and raised new questions about whether economic growth throughout the economy can bounce back nearly as fast as the administration predicts.

Imports went up 2.6 percent to $30.9

billion while exports went up only 0.1 percent, to $17.4 billion, one of the lowest totals in more than a year.

Higher trade deficits were one of the dangers cited Monday by administration officials who said they could jeopardize the kind of strong economic rebound expected in the second half of this year.

So far this year the trade losses have accumulated to $70.7 billion, with $23.9 billion of that attributed to trade with Japan.

Each month of high deficits takes a little more of the edge off domestic economic growth, jeopardizes the value of the dollar and adds more sponsors to protectionist legislation on Capitol Hill.

Although a weaker dollar would eventually make American goods more competitive on world markets, a rapid decline could also trigger a burst of high inflation and raise interest rates.

The tiny improvement in exports was spread across auto and tractor parts.

Man Who Attacked Father Gets Probation, Counseling

A Sanford man who attacked his father has been sentenced to 3 years probation and ordered to attend mental health counseling.

Duane Lee Edwards, 23, of 2004 Southwest Road, was also ordered by Seminole Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor to pay $200 in court costs and $350 to the Public Defender's office.

According to court records, Edwards was a passenger in a vehicle which reportedly violated the right-of-way on U.S. Highway 17-92 at County Road 419, Sanford.

After a sheriff's deputy stopped the car on April 19, Edwards reportedly got out and said, "I need to get to the police station." When the deputy, Hugh Thomas, asked what Edwards meant, Edwards said, "I need to get to the police station. You all did something to my father."

Thomas asked the man which police station he needed to go to and Edwards became angry and said, "What do you mean, what police station?" He became verbally abusive, the report said.

Thomas asked Edwards if he was trying to give him a hard time. He replied "yeah" and hit Thomas in the chest with both hands, the report said.

After the arrest on a charge of battering an officer, investigators learned that Edwards' father was hospitalized in Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, for injuries received when his son hit him several times with a wine bottle and choked him.

The elder Edwards told deputies his son approached him from behind at their home April 18. He reportedly put a belt around his father's neck and started to strangle him. The elder Edwards was also hit on the head several times with a wine bottle and received six cuts on his head and one on his neck, a sheriff's report said.

He was hospitalized and treated for three broken ribs. Also, 30 stitches were needed to close his wounds, the report said.

Uganda's Military: A Rabble In Arms

By Charles Mitchell

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The Ugandan army that overthrew the government of President Milton Obote during the weekend is best known for murder, robbery, indiscipline and lawlessness. The East African nation had turned to North Korea and Britain to make its army something more than a rabble with guns, but neither succeeded. A private earns about $5 a month and the lower ranks usually flesh out their pay by blocking roads and demanding money from motorists and bus passengers forced to stop. Senior officers can run businesses on the side. Often the goods they sell are obtained under questionable circumstances.

Analysis

The units that staged Saturday's coup are Uganda's second army in six years. In 1979, dictator Idi Amin's army collapsed when 12,000 Tanzanian troops invaded Uganda to oust him. Those soldiers not killed or captured fled with their arms into Sudan or into northern Uganda, where some operated as bandits and gangs opposed to Obote. The officer ranks were decimated. When Obote took power in 1980, he brought in military advisers from Britain and North Korea to help the Tanzanians train the new, 10,000-man Ugandan National Liberation Army.

In 1982, a British team — which included Australians and other Commonwealth advisers — trained some officers and tried to instill discipline in the new army, but met with little success. After the British departed, the Ugandans turned briefly to North Koreans to instruct the army on counter-insurgency tactics after a string of defeats by rebel forces. A common army tactic was to move into a village suspected of aiding guerrillas, burn the crops and houses and either arrest or kill suspected collaborators, diplomats said. The tactic, according to diplomats, led to the deaths of up to 200,000 Ugandans in the past five years.

"It is clear thousands of people have died either by direct army action or starvation," Assistant Secretary of State Elliot Abrams told the House Foreign Affairs Committee investigating human rights abuses in Uganda. The army, although never adequately trained or disciplined, worsened significantly after army chief of staff David Oyite Ojok died in a fiery helicopter crash in December 1983. Brig. Basilio Olara Okello, who led Saturday's coup, is not a product of the new army. He was an officer of pre-Amin days and fled to Tanzania when Amin seized power. Okello returned to Uganda with the Tanzanian invading force.

The Herald Welcomes Bloom County

The Bloom County comic strip is now a daily feature in the Evening Herald.

The strip is eminently popular across the country, appearing in hundreds of newspapers after only a few years of syndication. A collection of the comic strips in book form has been on the national best-seller lists for many weeks, and characters from the strip have been used on some consumer products.

Bloom County combines social commentary and political satire in a delightful setting of precocious children, eccentric adults and communicative animals. It's a particular favorite on college campuses and among young adults. Frequently recognizable figures from politics and entertainment appear in the strip.

Bloom County is the creation of Berke Breathed, who lives in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Born in 1957, Breathed previously did a comic strip for the University of Texas Daily Texan.

Bloom County is syndicated by the Washington Post Writers Group.

Today's strip is on page 4B.

Dairy Lobbyists Milk Favorable Votes In Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new study shows a strong correlation between campaign contributions by the dairy industry and key dairy votes by members of Congress — even those who have no dairy farmers as constituents, a consumer group says.

"Some members of Congress favor cows over consumers even when their districts don't have any cows," said Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy.

Previous studies by public interest groups have linked campaign gifts and dairy votes. This was the first study to add an additional factor of dairy production in each congressional district.

The study, released Sunday, showed that in the most recent key House vote on dairy policy, members voting with the dairy industry received at least 15 times more and up to 48 times more in dairy contributions than those voting with consumer groups.

The consumer group conducted the study as Congress again considers a dairy measure in overall farm legislation. The House Agriculture Committee has voted to revive the program of paying some dairy farmers to cut production while raising the dairy support level. That alternative is favored by dairy cooperatives that make large campaign contributions.

The Senate Agriculture Committee has approved a measure to cut the dairy support level to reduce incentive for overproduction, which ends up in government warehouses.

Three political action committees representing dairy cooperatives gave $1.32 million to House members in 1983-84.

The 231 members who voted with the dairy industry in a key 1983 vote received $1.29 million, averaging $5,592 per member, the consumer group said. The 151 members who voted against the dairy industry received $32,875, an average of $218 per member.

Members who received more than $1,000 from the dairy industry were likely to vote with the dairy industry, whether or not they had dairy production in their districts.

The correlation between pro-dairy votes and large campaign contributions was 96 percent in districts with little or no milk production and 95 percent in districts with a great deal of milk production.

Contributions were made by three major dairy groups: Associated Milk Producers Inc., Mid-America Dairymen Inc. and Dairymen Inc. The first two groups rank 11th and 34th among 4,009 political action committees which made campaign contributions in 1983-84. Since 1950, the Agriculture Department has spent $17.5 billion on dairy price supports and donations to feeding programs. Nearly half of the total has been spent since 1980.

Making History And Loving Every Minute Of It Governor's Impeachment Means Big Business For Souvenir Hawkers

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — While the Alaska Legislature meets to decide whether to impeach the state's governor, a booming business has grown up around the executive-legislative shootout.

"Gov. Busters" T-shirts and "I Am Not A Crook" buttons are hot items. And "Impeachment Dairquits," contents not revealed by the bartenders, are a best-selling item at the famed sawdust-strewn Red Dog Saloon.

Trinket-buying tourists, who each day stream off giant luxury liners wearing blue and orange parkas, are ignoring the famed 30-minute flights over the Juneau icefields to take tours of the state capitol.

Cruise ship employee Tracie Young said, "They get off the boat, and they ask to see the governor's mansion right away. Three people, I swear, have asked if it is OK to see the mansion or whether the governor would be too busy moving out."

For nearly two weeks, this hilltown hamlet of 27,000 inhabitants squeezed between towering Mt. Juneau and the Gastineau Channel in southeast Alaska has been making history and loving every minute of it.

On July 2, a Juneau grand jury determined that first-term Democratic Gov. William Sheffield, 57, who came to Alaska in 1953 as a television repairman and then made millions in the hotel business, eliminated competitive bidding on a Fairbanks office building to get a friend and generous political fund-raiser a $9.1 million lease contract.

The grand jury claimed Sheffield lied about the contract, called him "unfit for office" and recommended impeachment.

It's not a very sexy scandal, Alaskans concede. It's not Watergate, even though the Alaska Senate, which is conducting the impeachment hearing, hired former Watergate prosecutor Sam Dash to conduct the proceedings.

But politics is serious business in Juneau, where the sun now sets about 11 p.m., the cheapest hamburger goes for $5.25 and newspapers have to be flown in from Anchorage.

This is a political company town. Everyone seems to know everyone as they amble down tavern-lined Seward Street. It's not uncommon to see the governor on a corner chatting with citizens.

"It's really an incestuous place," Sheffield aide Bob Miller said. "I consider it a rare and extremely successful night if I can avoid seeing anyone at night that I saw during the day."

Since the hearing began a week ago, the twisting, narrow streets with frontier shop fronts and Victorian houses are bustling. Hotel occupancy is up, and restaurants and nightclubs are thriving.

And it has been mostly foggy with the high temperatures in the 50s.

State bureaucrats bring radios from home so as not to miss a minute of the proceedings. Big screen televisions have been set up in several bars as well as the state office building.

This city goes on "hold" when the sessions begin, a Sheffield aide said, closing his door to be alone with Juneau's No. 1 spectator sport.

Erica Moser, who conducts tours through the square, brown-brick capitol, said the tourists coming for a glance at Alaska's center of government have tripled in number in the past two weeks.

"This is all anyone is talking about," said Flicker Red, a waitress at the Viking restaurant near the capitol. "It's a terrible embarrassment for Alaska, but it sure is fun."

Suspected Cocaine Dealer Arrested After Drug Sale

A 25-year-old Casselberry man who twice met with Seminole County undercover drug task force agents allegedly sold them a gram of cocaine during the first meeting and two ounces during the second before other lawmen moved in and arrested him.

Agents reported meeting the suspect at about 6 p.m. July 26 at a bar on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry. He reportedly offered them two grams of cocaine for $100 each. The agents bought one gram, a sheriff's report said.

In the second meeting on Monday at about 10:30 p.m. in the agents' vehicle, the man allegedly offered the agents two ounces of cocaine for $1,800. After agents accepted the drug, other lawmen listening to the transaction via a hidden microphone moved in and made the arrest, the report said.

Dale Edward Colson, 25, of 1215 Helen St., has been charged with trafficking in cocaine and possession and sale of cocaine. He has been released on $10,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court Aug. 19.

PIPED INTO JAIL
A 32-year-old Sanford man, reportedly one of several men smoking from a pipe being passed in the parking lot of Uncle Nick's Bar, 2605 Park Drive, Sanford, while police watched, has been charged with possession of less than 20 grams of pot.

The suspect reportedly had a small bag of marijuana in his pants pocket, which police found when they confronted the group at about 7 p.m. Monday, a police report said.

No other arrests were made. Craig Steven Rosenberg, of 305 Summerlin Ave., has been released on $500 bond and is scheduled to appear in court Aug. 7.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS
Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported at least 23 vehicles, perhaps more, were burglarized in the Foxwood subdivision and Wektiva Cove, near Longwood, between 1 and 2:45 a.m. Sunday. The thief or thieves entered the vehicles through passenger side doors. Some of the cars were open and others were popped open with a burglary tool, deputies said.

The thieves selected certain items, such as radar detectors and cash, a sheriff's report said.

The extent of the raids has not been determined, because deputies reported there were probably more vehicles involved than the 23 initially reported shortly after the break-ins.

Stephen Chalfant, 23, of 525 E. State Road 436 #407, Casselberry, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that he drove Alice T. Haynie's 1979 Ford to Zayres in Fern Park and the car was stolen from the store's lot at about 5:30 p.m. Monday. Ms. Haynie is from Loganville, Ga., and her car is worth $2,500, a sheriff's report said.

SPEEDER WITH GUN
A man nabbed by police for driving 55 mph in a 35 mph zone has been charged with possession of a concealed firearm by a felon.

The 25-year-old Oviedo man was stopped in front of 953 Sharon Court, Oviedo, at about 6:50 p.m. Sunday. Police charged him with speeding and driving with a revoked license. A search of the suspect's car turned up a .22-caliber handgun in the glove box, a police report

Through a computer check, police determined the man had previously been convicted of a felony and the gun-related charges were added, the report said.

Timothy Newton Headley was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond in the case.

ALIEN NABBED
A 43-year-old man reported to be an illegal alien from Mexico was nabbed sleeping at a Casselberry construction site where he said he worked.

The man was found sleeping at about 11 p.m. Saturday in a trailer on a Bolosam Contractor's construction site at Red Bug Lake and Dodd roads, a sheriff's report said.

Ramino Garcia Diaz was being held in the Seminole County jail for immigration authorities.

TIPPED TO GUN
Sanford police received a tip that an armed man was walking along Sanford Avenue on Sunday. They confronted a suspect and charged him with carrying a concealed firearm after reportedly finding a .25-caliber handgun in his pocket.

Anthony Gene Biddle, 18, of 2407 S. Orange Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 1:52 p.m. in front of 2517 S. Sanford Ave. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

POT IN CAR
A man questioned by police who believed he and a woman sitting in a car with him at the Bombay Bicycle Club, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, might have been smoking marijuana was charged with possession of less than 20 grams of pot after a small bag of the drug was reportedly found in his car.

Police reported approaching the car at about 3 a.m. Monday because it was parked in an area where businesses were closed. An officer reported smelling marijuana smoke in the car and seeing cigarette rolling papers on the dash. Both occupants were ordered out and the man was arrested after the bag of pot was found on the console of the car, a police report said.

Timothy Mitchell Moore, 23, of Clearwater, was released on $500 bond in the case. The woman was not charged.

WEAVER WITH POT
A 25-year-old Casselberry man, stopped by Altamonte Springs police at about 11 a.m. Sunday because his car was weaving on Montgomery Road, has been charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and failure to maintain a single lane.

The drug arrest was made after police searched the man's car and found a small plastic bag of pot in the ash tray, a police report said.

Michael Raymond Bramlett, of 1350 Florida Ave., has been released on $500 and is scheduled to appear in court Aug. 8.

Michael Wayne Hopper, 19, of 1511 Oak Road, was also fined $1,000 and his driver's license was suspended for 10 years.

Park System In Trouble

Our national parks are under siege. Overcrowding. Air pollution. Urban encroachment. Poaching. Off-road vehicles. All pose threats.

The explosion of visitors is apparent. Anybody who has visited the valley of California's Yosemite National Park in summer knows the frustration. Anybody expecting to find a campsite in one of the more popular parks only to discover upon arrival that all are taken knows the irritation.

A glut of humanity, especially in the peak summer vacation season, is an intrusion threatening the quality of the individual park visitor's experience. The same masses threaten the parks' resources.

The other threats are insidious, not readily apparent, but just as ominous.

A polluted atmosphere damages and, in some instances, kills plants and trees. Monuments and statues are being marred by acid rain. Dirty air limits a visitor's visibility in some parks.

It will cost an estimated $2 million to repair the pitting and discoloration that acid rain has caused to the monuments at Gettysburg (Pa.), National Military Park, a Civil War battle site. The Washington Monument in Washington, D.C., could be seen on a clear day from one point (about 60 miles away) in Shenandoah (Va.) National Park where the park was designated in 1926. Today? The view of the next mountain ridge sometimes is obliterated by the polluted air. To view the awesome magnificence of the Grand Canyon is a breathtaking and memorable experience. Yet, that full experience is denied some of us, as visibility is seriously impaired at least 100 days a year because of dirty air.

Poaching — the illegal stealing of plants, animals and historic artifacts — is a persistent problem. The encroachment of private developers on lands adjoining park lands is pervasive, severely affecting the historic scene at some national shrines.

Off-road vehicles are destroying the ecosystems of some national beaches, primarily along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Even minimal use affects the natural habitat.

Limiting the access of private vehicles to the most popular national parks and substituting controlled bus or tram service could ease overcrowding. Requiring advance reservations for camping in all national parks could reduce visitor frustrations.

Acquisition of private land within present park boundaries and the purchase of additional land as buffer zones could alleviate urban encroachment. Acquisition of new parklands must be considered.

Off-road vehicles must be prohibited from any national park or beach where ecosystems are endangered.

Air and water pollution are a national crisis, not just a menace to the national park system. They require a continuing national cleanup effort.

Solutions to what may seem monumental problems will be costly and will require sacrifices. The federal government and we, as citizens, will have to decide whether our national park system is worth protecting and preserving.

It's Time To Help Vietnamese Rebuild

One of the cruel frauds perpetrated in the nightmare of U.S. policy in Vietnam was the notion that we had to keep fighting there to secure the release of our prisoners, and that we could not come to terms with our enemy after the war until all missing Americans were accounted for.

It was ridiculous to argue that we kept up the fighting to secure the release of American prisoners; it was the continuing war that was creating the prisoners, just as wars always have. Hanoi had no reason to hold Americans once we finally agreed to stop the war and leave their country. This should have been clear to anyone who retained some measure of common sense. But not content with deluding the American public, and perhaps themselves, for a decade about the blunders that characterized our Vietnam War policy, advocates of this folly have perpetuated it by rejecting diplomatic relations and trade with Vietnam, partially on the grounds that there are still Americans missing in action.

How could there not be Americans missing in the awful carnage that marked that war? Have we ever fought a war anywhere that did not produce its list of missing? The navigator on the B-24 bomber that I piloted in World War II is still missing after all these years, and the Vietnam War was fought in a much less developed area. The miracle to me is that the list of those still missing is so small.

Now Vietnam has sent word to aides of Secretary of State George Shultz that it is turning over the remains of an additional 26 American servicemen and will try to complete, within the next two years, the complicated task of accounting for all others. Unidentified U.S. officials were quoted as saying that this latest Vietnamese move seemed to suggest "good intentions" to resolve the missing-in-action problem that now hampers the normalization of relations with Vietnam. The truth is that Vietnamese officials have done a remarkable job for the past decade of sending our prisoners home and of identifying and turning over the remains of others.

More than 10 years ago, a special congressional committee headed by conservative Rep. Sonny Montgomery, D-Miss., concluded that the Vietnamese were fully cooperating with us and that there were no living Americans being held in Vietnam.

During my third trip as a senator to that blood-soaked land in early 1976, I came away convinced that the Vietnamese leaders wanted normal relations with the United States and were cooperating with us on the prisoner and missing-in-action issue, just as Montgomery had concluded. Prime Minister Pham Van Dong told me at that time that his country was eager to open diplomatic relations with the United States, develop American trade and accept American investment in such matters as the exploration and development of off-shore oil. He stressed that his government had nothing to gain from either holding Americans or covering up information about the missing.

He pointed out what should be obvious — that "there are many more Vietnamese missing than Americans." He added: "We have some responsibility to search for our own people who are missing, but we will also try to do what we can to locate and return the remains of your Americans."

The time is long overdue for us to respond to Hanoi's latest move and make a positive effort to establish a peaceful relationship with this little country that we did so much to destroy. Notwithstanding the terrible holocaust that Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan visited on the world in the second world war, we promptly set about the task of normalizing relations and helping them to rebuild. Isn't Vietnam entitled at long last to at least as much consideration?

Land Of Basque Terrorism

By Ronald de Valderano

The border between France and Spain in the Basque country is quite open. On the high mountain passes through the Pyrenees the little frontier posts and customs stations on both sides of the frontier are usually unmanned. There are large metal signs marking the frontier, and these are invariably riddled with bullet holes. Using them as targets must be a favorite Basque pastime. Anyone can cross from one country to the other more or less where they like. Indeed it would be a virtual impossibility to control this frontier of mountains and forests.

This is the land of Basque terrorism.

The Basques are an ancient people living in the Guipuzcoa, Vizcaya, Alava and Navarra provinces of Northwest Spain, and in three provinces of the Southwest of France. Their homeland is a mixture of wild mountain scenery, upland valleys and alpine meadows, and on the Spanish side several major industrial towns.

Ethnically, the Basques are different from both the Spanish and the French. They speak their own language, and before Franco died the Basque region of Spain was among the richest in Spain. About 1.75 million Basques live in Spain and another quarter to half million live across the frontier in France. They are a fiercely nationalistic people with a long history of opposition to those nations which have denied them their independence.

During the Franco years there was little trouble in the Basque country. However, a number of the more militant members of the recently formed Basque terrorist group, ETA, were sent to Cuba for training. Thereafter, terrorism and assassination started in Northwest Spain. In 1970 there was a spectacular trial of 16 Basques in the Spanish city of Burgos. They were accused of murder, attempted subversion and armed violence. Nine were condemned to death and the others to long periods of imprisonment. Immediately there was a tremendous outcry coupled with demands for a break of diplomatic relations with Spain and sanctions against her. However, thereafter Basque terrorism was contained, and didn't pose any very great threat until December 1973 when the Spanish Prime Minister, Admiral Carrero Blanco, was assassinated by Basque terrorists in Madrid.

Trail Of Theft Winds Through Our Forests

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Many of the dollars that campers paid in the last few years to pitch their tents in national forests were pocketed by Forest Service employees or spent to gussy up luxurious cabins for the use of agency officials and other VIPs, according to inspector general's reports.

The inspector general's auditors followed a trail of theft, fraud and extravagance through 12 national forests from Florida to Alaska. They blamed the abuses on lax accounting procedures.

The inspector general's reports were obtained by our reporter Stewart Harris. Here are the highlights of the auditors' investigations:

— A clerk in Marion-Sumter

JEFFREY HART

Men Don't Welch

Eleanor Smeal has now defeated Judy Goldsmith in a battle for the presidency of the National Association of Women, and I suppose my only recourse is to come out for the Equal Rights Amendment, about which more in a moment.

The NOW contest pitted Smeal, a former NOW president against the incumbent Goldsmith, and the issue was comparative fanaticism. Smeal is a shade more fanatical than Goldsmith, and the temperature of these things may be judged from Goldsmith's recent assertion that Ronald Reagan is the "enemy of American womanhood."

But back to the Equal Rights Amendment and why I must now support it as a measure of the last resort. It apparently is the only way I can collect a $100 election bet from Smeal, who has been wenching since November. I have never known a man to wench on a bet. Perhaps a constitutional amendment is the only way to oblige a female activist to behave equally.

Here's the story. In my capacity as a columnist, I interviewed Ms. Smeal last summer at the Yale Club in New York City, in the presence of a representative of her publisher, Harper and Row.

Smeal had just published a book called Women Will Elect the Next President, which turned out to be prophetic, since Reagan won a landslide among women, but that was not what the book had in mind. It argued that women would vote massively Democratic on the basis of issues like abortion, child-care, comparable worth, care for the elderly, and so forth. It also gave a lot of practical tips on how to organize women to bring, well, socialism closer to us.

As we talked in the becolonnated second floor lounge of the Yale Club, it became clear to me that Smeal — all the polls notwithstanding — was utterly convinced that Mondale-Ferraro would be carried to victory on a tidal wave of female votes. So with the lady from Harper and Row looking on, I made Smeal an offer she could not refuse.

"Look," I said, "you are completely certain that Mondale is going to win?"

"Yes," she said.

"Well," I said, "I'll give you a chance to make some money. I'll bet one hundred dollars on Reagan."

"Okay," said Smeal. This transaction, as I say, was duly witnessed by the lady from Harper and Row, but that's the last I heard from the feminist. Poof! She just proved inaccessible.

My male friends paid up promptly, and I admit I had to give these Mondale voters some pretty steep odds. A couple of election bet payments from these honorable gentlemen went into the mail the day after the election, but everyone paid.

Of course, none of them had written a book called How Women Will Elect the Next President.

A friendly note from me to Smeal went unanswered. So did a slightly sterner one. So did a return receipt requested letter threatening a small-claims suit.

I supposed the moral is that when you do business with one of these idealists, who go around telling everyone else how to behave, you are bound to get stung.

VIEWPOINT

Lyndon On The Phone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — That so very ordinary instrument, the telephone, becomes, in the hands of a United States president, a weapon of such great power that it can be used to make the difference on the most important pieces of legislation.

Even Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd, certainly a recipient of many of those calls from the White House, stands in awe — fully aware of the impact, if not on him, then on those whose votes he needs.

"I do not know what there is about the presidency when it comes to a call from that august and lofty position," Byrd said. "I just cannot understand what it is that is so awesome about it."

"There is something that likens it to lockjaw," he said. "Some individuals, when they receive a call from the president, apparently do not know how to say no."

Byrd expressed his concerns on the very same day that Reagan, recuperating from cancer surgery, was on the telephone, calling at least four senators and urging them to vote against a filibuster blocking action on the line item veto bill.

How successful was Reagan? Well, two of the four, Sens. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., and Arlen Specter, R-Pa., switched their votes.

Much to Byrd's relief, enough senators held their positions to keep the filibuster rolling and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, on the day after, surrendered on the bill.

But as persuasive as Reagan is — and there is no doubt that he is a master at communications — Byrd in his long Senate career has never heard the match of Lyndon Johnson.

"I have never seen anyone who could twist an arm as well and as painfully as could Lyndon Johnson when he was president of the United States," Byrd said.

He recounted a telephone call from Johnson during the great 1964 debate on civil rights when Byrd, a junior senator from West Virginia, was lined up against the bill and against Johnson.

Byrd had recommended Sid Cristie for a federal judgeship in West Virginia and Johnson asked, "Bob, how much do you want that judgeship? How badly do you want that judgeship?"

Well, Byrd said he wanted that nomination "pretty badly" but Johnson told him Cristie was too old, over 60.

"Well, he wasn't past 60 when I sent his name down there," Byrd said.

paneling. It was appraised at $100,000 even before the Forest Service spent $31,000 on improvements.

— Even the IG's investigators had trouble finding the Koenigsberger cabin in George Washington National Forest, Va. Forestry officials had neglected to include the 1,500-square-foot cedar-and-stone cabin on their list of agency property, though they had spent $3,000 to spruce it up.

— Sloppy bookkeeping, poor security and lax inspections "permitted embezzlements and other irregularities to proliferate," the IG reported. For example, a cashier in the Willamette forest told the auditors she often borrowed from the funds at her disposal, and knew when to repay it — because officials always gave advance notice of an inspection.

— A favorite hideaway for VIPs is the Sweetwater cabin in Ocala National Forest near Silver Springs, Fla. Top forestry officials, a former secretary of Agriculture and members of Congress are among the insiders who used the plush retreat, with its private swimming hole, cedar decks and canoe access to Lake George — all for $12 a day. In three years, the Forest Service took in only $8,824 in rent for the cabin, while laying out $27,000 for improvements on it. Less favored campers subsidized the cabin and four others like it by paying $5 a night for a patch of ground to put a tent on.

— Another cabin the public isn't told about — Lake Meade Lodge in Nantahala National Forest, N.C. — has 3,000 square feet of living space, two bedrooms and chestnut National Forest in North Carolina stole $1,128 in cash that hikers paid for $1 trail maps. The clerk also ripped up checks worth $759,117, which weren't missed until a timber buyer asked why his checks hadn't been cashed. The clerk was eventually convicted for theft, but officials still don't know why the checks were torn up.

— The auditors turned up $100,000 worth of fraudulent payments in two Oregon national forests, including the case of two purchasing agents at Willamette National Forest near Eugene who went "on a shopping expedition" with government purchase orders. The two were convicted after they spent $2,770 on lawnmowers for their own use.

— At several forests, the auditors found cases of double billing by suppliers.

The Minors According To Derek — Tuttle Squelches Rumor

While other high school seniors head for the beach after graduation, Derek Livernois went to work. Granted, it's playful work but it's work just the same. And Elmira, N.Y. is a long way from home for any just-turned 18-year-old.

"Derek called (collect) just about every day for a week," said Sue Livernois, his mother. "It was an adjustment for him. But after awhile, I just told him, I can't keep accepting all these calls."

Derek said he understood and he was running out of things to say to his mother anyway. That brought a chuckle from Sue.

Derek Livernois, who pitched the Lyman Greyhounds to the district baseball championship just a few months ago, has to grow up pretty fast right now. He's a rookie in the New York-Pennsylvania League for the Elmira Pioneer Red Sox. He was drafted in the 15th round and it didn't take him long to sign. About 45 minutes after he huddled with George Digby, Boston's Central Florida scouting director.

Yes, a major league baseball player is what Derek Livernois always wanted to be. It's the dream of every kid who picks up a bat or glove or ball and enjoys it. But it's a dream only a handful have the talent to accomplish. Derek hopes he has that talent. Only time will tell.

Last Friday afternoon, he gave his mother a break and called me collect. The operator said I have a collect call from Derek. Will you accept? There's only one Derek — besides Bo — and she only calls me on Sundays. So, I knew immediately who it was.

Derek had mostly good news, and some bad. The graceful right-hander has 25 strikeouts in 22 innings. He's being used as a reliever. He has one win, one loss and one save. But his earned run average is up — 4.80. The team isn't too hot. It was 15-24 going into the weekend.

Seminole High pitching coach Mike Powers, who longed some time in the New York-Penn League as a player in the Montreal Expos farm system, said the earned run average isn't too bad, considering the league. "There's a lot of short fences in that league," said Powers.

Derek, meanwhile, has always been pretty outspoken. When he was in high school I used to tone it down a little. Now that he's a pro, I guess we can reveal some of his more colorful quotes.

On Lake Mary: "I just love beating those spoiled, rich kids." Derek lost twice to the Rammites last year but he tamed them when it counted — for the District 4A championship.

On Elmira: "This town sucks. All the girls are fat and ugly."

On Elmira's talent: "There's a lot of guys on this team that wouldn't have started at Lyman. I guess they're just drafting for raw talent."

On Class A baseball: "It's easier than I thought it would be. But I found out in a hurry that you can't blow the ball by them. I have to throw more to spots now."

On Tim Barker (UCF's record-setting stolen base whiz who signed with Montreal): "He tore us up. He got two triples."

Derek also said he signed a contract with a baseball card company and hopes to sign a glove contract in spring training.

Derek might be a long way from home but here's one young man you wouldn't have to worry about getting homesick, hitchhiking home and calling it a career.

Even if the girls are fat and ugly.

While making the rounds from Little League to Pony League to American Legion, I hear some interesting rumors. Some of too ridiculous to get into while others need to be brought to the surface because they make someone look foolish who doesn't need to look foolish.

Allen Tuttle, Lake Mary's dedicated baseball coach, is one such person. During last year's baseball season, Anthony Laszatic, a pitcher and infielder for Lake Mary, was unhappy with his playing time. He and his father, Tony, told all who cared to listen that Anthony was going to Lake Brantley the following year.

I viewed it as frustration for both of them and wrote it off as something that would never happen. It didn't happen. Tuttle told Anthony he would get a fair chance to play shortstop, a position handled well enough last year by Shane Letterio. He was the All-County shortstop. Anthony and his father reasoned that was good enough — and they decided to stay put.

Somewhere along the line, a Lake Brantley supporter who Tuttle said isn't worth mentioning, started the rumor that Tuttle signed a contract that said if Anthony didn't get to play shortstop, the Laszatics could sue Tuttle for damages to his baseball career.

Tuttle, rightfully so, was incensed. "I'll offer anybody $500,000 if they can bring me a contract like that with my signature on it," said Tuttle. "The only people dumber than the guy that started that rumor are the those who believe it."

Physicals 1st Before Players Begin Practice

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

The upcoming prep football season is still a couple weeks away from officially beginning but the anticipation of a new year is already in the air. And 1985 will be a new year in more ways than one for Seminole County teams.

First things first though, before practice starts the players will have to have physicals. Here are the times for Seminole, Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Brantley and Oviedo physicals. Practice begins Aug. 15.

Physicals for all Seminole High football players will be Monday, Aug. 12 at the Seminole High School training room. There is no charge. Coach Dave Masure said practice will begin for the varsity on Thursday, Aug. 15 at 6:30 a.m.

"We're anxious to get started," said Seminole coach Dave Masure. "The kids have put in a good summer in the weight room. Now, we want to see if the work will pay off."

Lake Mary High's physicals for football players and all athletes competing in a fall sport (cross country, volleyball, swimming) will be held Tuesday, Aug. 13 and Wednesday, Aug. 14 at 6 p.m. at Lake Mary High. Cost is $5. The Rams will also start practice the 15th.

Lyman High will also hold its football physicals on Aug. 13th and 14th. The times for the 13th are 4-7 p.m. and the 14th, 5-8 p.m. Price is $8.50. The Greyhounds will start practice the 15th.

Lake Brantley High School football physicals will be held Wednesday, Aug. 7 at 6 p.m. at Lake Brantley High for varsity players and Thursday, Aug. 8 at 6 p.m. for junior varsity and freshmen. Cost is $5. The Patriots' varsity and JV will begin practice Aug. 15 at 8 a.m.

Oviedo High School football physicals will be Aug. 8 at the office of Dr. Robert Likens at 515 E. State Road 436 in Casselberry. Varsity players should report at 2 p.m. Junior varsity and freshman players should report at 2:30 p.m. There is no charge. Oviedo will also begin practice on Aug. 15.

All six county teams, Seminole, Lake Mary, Lyman, Oviedo, Lake Howell and Lake Brantley will be competing in a brand new conference — the Seminole Athletic Conference in 1985. The Florida High School Activities Association redistricting will also place the teams in different districts than last year.

Lake Mary Principal Don Reynolds said the conference is still seeking ideas for a Seminole Athletic Conference logo. Ideas should be sent to the Evening Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford 32771.

Lake Mary and Lyman will be in District 5A-4 along with Daytona Beach Matland, DeLand and Spruce Creek. Lake Howell and Lake Brantley will be in District 5A-5 along with Winter Garden West Orange, Winter Park and Orlando Evans. Seminole and Oviedo will compete in District 4A-4 along with Daytona Beach Seabreeze, New Smyrna Beach and Titusville High.

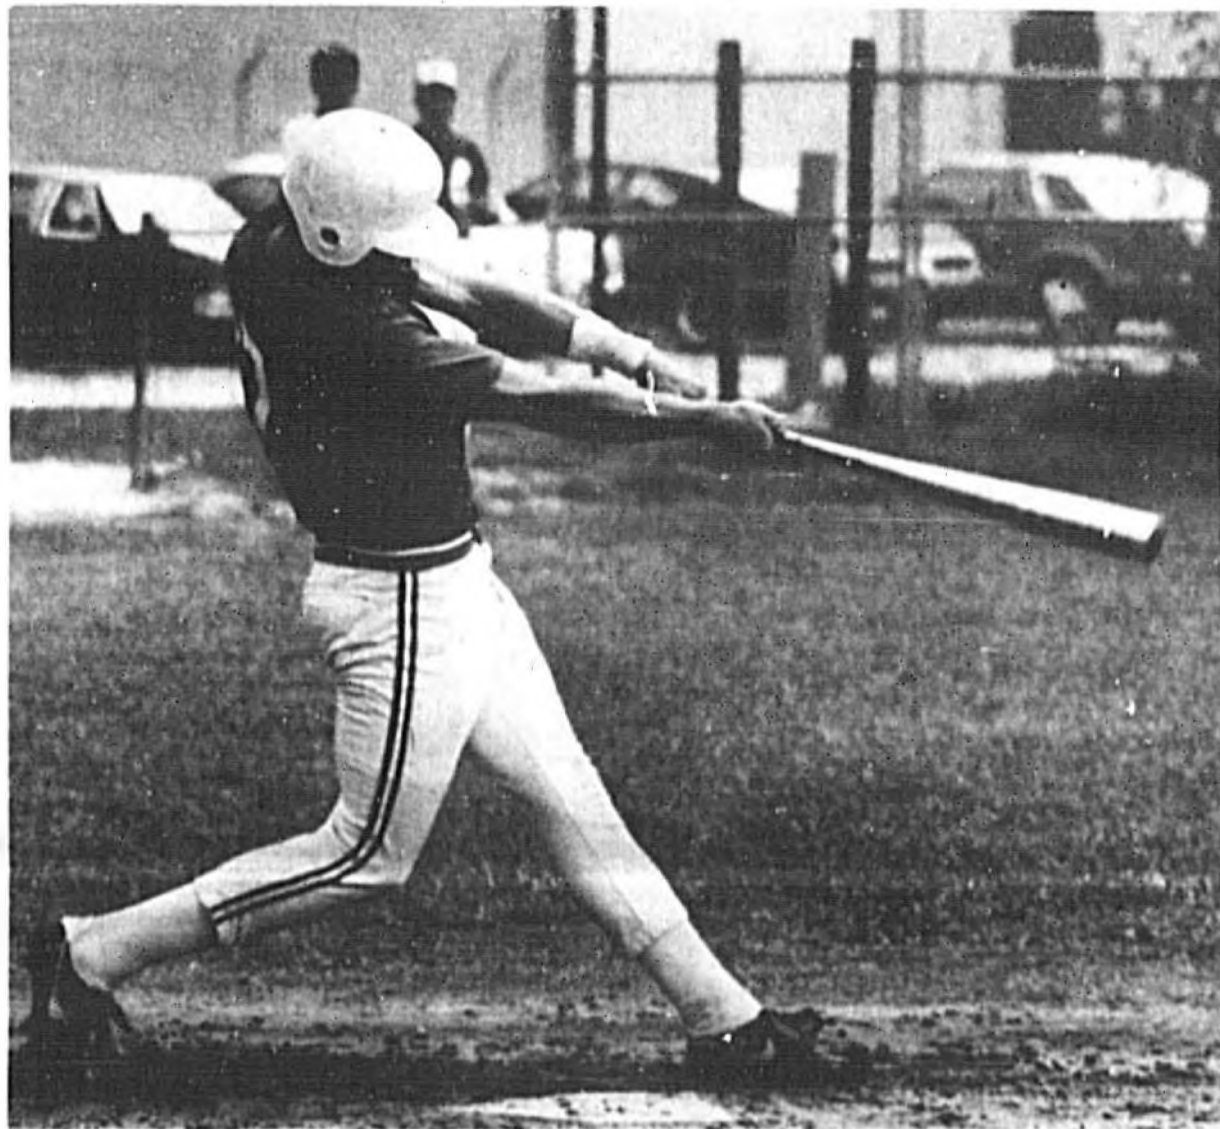

The 5A-5 district would seem to be the toughest since all five teams have had powerhouses in the past three or four years. With a good nucleus of returning players, Lake Mary has a good chance of winning another district title with DeLand being the top competitor.

Lyman is looking to put 1984 (0-10 record) behind and start fresh in '85 in the new conference and district.

"We're kind of anxious for practice to start," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "The kids have done a good job working out this summer. I look for a great deal of improvement."

Seminole High is the only team in its district that remained 4A after the realignments. The Fighting Seminoles, under new head coach Masure, could very well be contenders this season. Seabreeze, New Smyrna, Oviedo and Titusville were all 3A last season.

The biggest adjustment to be made by a county team would be Oviedo. The Lions had a mediocre season in 1984 in 3A and now not only move into a tough district but a conference that includes four 5A teams.

Above, Tom Perkins makes perfect contact as he drills a pitch over the left field fence for a three-run, first-inning homer. Perkins provided all the offense the Expos needed to beat the Pirates in the first game of a Central Florida Baseball League double-header Monday night. At right, John Reich moves off first base as Pirate baserunner Tim Johnson takes his lead. The Expos — a collection of Lyman High School graduates — won the second game, too.

Small Guard Sparks Big Comeback

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Jeff Olsen and Molly Magill show every sign of spending the next few years in the swimming spotlight.

Meanwhile, Mike Porter will likely slip into relative obscurity for a while despite his obvious basketball skills.

The smallest basketball player at the Festival (he is listed at six feet but stands less than that), Porter is the only one who does not plan to attend an NCAA Division I college this year.

But Monday, the three shared a day of achievement at the National Sports Festival.

Porter sparked a come-from-behind effort Monday that brought the South team coached by Davey Whitney its third win of the Festival's basketball tournament.

Whitney, coach at Alcorn State for the past 16 years, will send his team after the gold medal Wednesday night. If his team does win, it will be a personal triumph as the other teams are coached by three of the best-known men in the profession. Kansas' Larry Brown, St. John's Lou Carnesecca and Stanford's Tom Davis.

A few hours after Porter scored 18 points and controlled the final minutes in the South's 85-81 win over Brown's North team, Olsen and Magill boosted their credentials as the fastest rising young stars in the swimming world.

Olsen, 16, of Austin, Texas, won his fourth race of the Festival and Magill, 14, of Largo, Fla., won her third.

Both will have a chance to expand on those totals during the final evening of swimming tonight.

Activity around the Festival slowed somewhat Monday after a hectic opening weekend.

Other than the action from the basketball court and the swimming pool the leading attractions included:

A continued duel between the world's top two archers, Rick McKinney of Mesa, Ariz., and Olympic gold medalist Darrell Pace of Hamilton, Ohio. With six of eight rounds complete McKinney led Pace by a single point.

A double gold medal performance by Bonnie Blair, America's top speed skater at the Sarajevo Olympics. Blair won both the 500 and 1,500-meter races and set a Sports Festival record in the shorter race.

Porter has yet to make up his mind between Virginia Union and San Jacinto (Texas) Junior College, but the school he chooses will get a good basketball player.

He gave the South a 42-40 halftime lead with a jumper in the lane five seconds from intermission and after the North moved to a six-point lead in the second half Porter came on to spark an 18-4 run.

Lyman Grads Stay Together With Baseball

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Technically, they're called the Expos and they play in the Central Florida Baseball League.

Actually, though, they're a collection of former Lyman High School graduates who love baseball and enjoy each others' company so much, they'd like to play the game together forever.

"We really enjoyed playing on the same team in high school," said third baseman Kenny Brown, who, like his teammates, played for Lyman coach Bob McCullough in the early 80s. "We've stuck together as friends, so it's only natural to get together again when this league was started."

The league, which is the brainchild of Steve Reich, has been growing by leaps and bounds during the past two years. Lyman's contingent is just one of several teams who come from the Daytona Beach and Orlando areas.

Reich, whose son John is the Expos' first baseman, was especially proud of his league Monday night since the Central Florida All-Star team made off with the National Baseball Congress championship Sunday at Merritt Island.

Fittingly, McCullough, the dean of baseball coaches in Seminole County, is the manager of the Expos. Not much else has changed from '81-'82. Reich, a hard-hitting lefty who plays at Tulane, handles first base. Second baseman Robble Robinson and shortstop Tom Gibbons form the infield glue for the keystone combination. Brown, who will play at Northeast Louisiana this fall after stealing 38 bases at SCC, handles the hot corner.

The catcher and leader is Mike Sawyer, who is also headed for Northeast Louisiana with his buddy Brown. Sawyer tore up the state's junior college teams last year with a .406 batting average, five homers and 36 runs batted in while picking up the most valuable player award at SCC.

The outfield is patrolled by Tom Perkins, Rick Humphery, John Drinkwater and rookie Paul Alegre. Perkins plays for Stetson and Humphery plays at Mississippi College. Alegre, who graduated just this year from Lyman, is going to Murray State.

On the mound is submarine-throwing Jeff Barfoot, who shackled the Pirates on two hits Monday as the Expos swept a double header. They won the first game, 8-0, as Perkins hit a three-run homer to start the fireworks in the first inning.

While some already have scholarships, others like Gibbons, Robinson and Drinkwater, are searching for an opportunity to play. "I know those guys can play college ball somewhere," insists Humphery. "All they need is a chance, like the rest of us got."

Although the nucleus is definitely Lyman, there are a few imports, too. Mike "Old Man" Powers, pitching coach at Seminole High School, is the team's top hurler with an 11-1 mark. He also serves as an assistant to McCullough. Billy Stripp, a Lake Howell grad and SCC attendee, serves as relief pitcher and reserve DH. Van Golmont, a Lake Howell grad who plays at Murray State, plays first base periodically.

Along with having fun, the Expos also win, too. They were sailing along in first place during the first half when the Boston Red Sox snatched away ace right-hander Derek Livernois. They finished in second place with a 10-7 mark.

The Expos, though, have regrouped for the second half. Monday's sweep gave them a 10-2 record and a 1½-game lead over the Braves. The Expos return to action Wednesday at Lyman against the Twins at 7:30 p.m.

In Monday's first game, Perkins followed a single by Reich and a double by Sawyer with a blast over the left field fence for a 3-0 lead.

Powers picked up the win with a nifty three-hitter. He struck out four and was aided by two double plays.

In game two, Sawyer drove in a run in the first when his long fly ball was dropped by the right fielder. Five more runs in the fourth put the game out of reach. Brown, Gibbons, Robinson and Drinkwater had singles while Reich and Sawyer chipped in doubles. Sawyer drove in two runs while Drinkwater and Reich each had an RBI.

Barefoot pitched no-hit ball for five innings before giving up a hit and an unearned run in the sixth. "The no-hitter and shutout all went in one inning," said Barfoot. "But I knew we weren't going to lose."

Or have any less fun either.

SPORTS

IN BRIEF

Wrestlers Will Get Excellent Guidance From Peters, Pinnell

All-America instructor Doug Peters and assistant coach Ron Pinnell will be on hand all week at the Heart of Florida Wrestling Camp at the Orlando Tennis and Racquet Ball Club.

The camp will run from Tuesday to Friday with two sessions daily. Cost is $75 per individual for all facilities which includes videos of national and olympic tournaments.

Peters, the varsity coach at Lake Mary High School, wrestled at Lyman High School before going on to All-America honors at the University of Central Florida. Pinnell, Peters' assistant at Lake Mary, was the head coach at Spruce Creek High School and an assistant at Florida.

"We're looking forward to a real good camp," said Peters. "We have a good advance registration and all of the facilities of the club will be available to the wrestlers."

Cost is $50 each for brother combinations which includes camp t-shirts.

Along with the instruction of Pinnell and Peters, there will also be a tournament for campers. Peters said wrestlers may come to late registration Wednesday, if necessary.

Apopka-West Seminole Wins

Apopka-West Seminole advanced to the second round of the Little League Baseball Junior League State Tournament Monday with an 8-6 victory over Tampa Bay at the Merritt Island Senior Little League Field.

Mark Gabrovic, who topped the Altamonte Juniors twice in the District 14 finals, struck out eight while turning in a route-going performance for manager Phil King.

Greg Thomas supplied a two-run double to spice a five-run third inning explosion which lifted Apopka. Apopka-West Seminole will send right-hander Jimmy Musselwhite against the winner of the Merritt Island-Dunedin game today at 5:30.

Dunedin and Merritt Island battled to a 2-2 tie before the game was suspended at the end of eight innings. They will resume play today at 4. Tampa Bay and the loser of the suspended game will play at 8 tonight.

Monacelli Takes 50-Pin Lead

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (UPI) — Anieto Monacelli of Venezuela took a 50-pin lead Monday over Del Warren after three rounds of the $120,000 Hammer Open.

Monacelli, who trailed Mark Williams by 20 pins after two rounds, had games of 244, 151, 254, 229, 197 and 258 in the third round, increasing his 18-game total to 4,123 — a 229 average.

Warren, West Palm Beach, Fla., was second with 4,073 to reach the match play portion for the fifth consecutive week.

Williams averaged just 202 in the third round and fell to an eighth-place tie with Steve Martin at 4,026.

Bob Chamberlain, Auburn Hills, Mich., was in third place with 4,068, followed by Ron Williams, Cahokia, Ill., at 4,058 and Jim Pencak, Highland Heights, Ohio, 4,040.

Parker Drives Astros To Sweep

OSCEOLA — Bob Parker singled home two runs in the fourth inning as the Osceola Astros ripped the West Palm Beach Expos, 4-3, in the first game of a double-header at Osceola County Stadium. The Astros won the second game, 3-1.

Parker, who starred at Seminole Community College and Lyman High School, singled twice in the opener but was 0 for 2 in the nightcap.

Former University of Central Florida standout Tim Barker, recently promoted from the Expos' Class A club, rapped a pair of hits and stole three bases for West Palm Beach.

Twins Move Into Tie For 1st

ORLANDO — The Orlando Twins moved into a first-place tie with Charlotte Monday night when they swept a double-header from the Birmingham Barons before 1,382 fans at Tinker Field.

Orlando won the first game, 3-2, on a single by Alex Marte. It was the completion of a suspended game from May 20, which ended in the 11th with a 1-1 deadlock.

The O-Twins doubled their pleasure in the second game by pulling out a 4-1 win. Marte again supplied a key hit and two Birmingham errors helped the other runs score.

Orlando hosts Birmingham tonight at 7:30.

McEnroe Whips Noah At Forum

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — John McEnroe, the world's top-ranked player, Monday night won his second match of the Forum Championship Tennis Challenge Series, defeating Yannick Noah of France 6-1, 6-4.

McEnroe had defeated Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the first round of the seven-session, year-long, round-robin tournament featuring McEnroe, Jimmy Connors, Lendl and Noah, which is worth $100,000 to the winner in next April's final.

Rogers Runs From Last To 1st

Warmack Outruns Hawthorne, Kinley To Win Street Stock

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — With misty rain forcing the late model drivers to draw for positions instead of running time trials as usual, David Rogers started last.

But ten laps later, after a brief door-handle-to-door-handle duel with LeRoy Porter, Rogers was leading the race and went on to win.

Porter held on for second, followed by the division's high point man Joe Middleton.

After being pinned against the wall by a competitor who lost a wheel, "Little Bill" Oremovich came back up for a fourth place finish, just ahead of David Russell, back from riding the top of the inside rail after a spin.

Seasoned veteran Harry Brazee, in the G and H Contractors Chevy, went by early leader Rick Lokey to win the extra cash/extracash championship event for the thundercar division. Finishing third to fifth were John Cochran for new sponsor J.B.'s Fish Camp, Gary Small and Kevin Tanner.

Driving the Rudy's Automotive Camaro, Sanford's Joey Warmack set sail and led

Powerboats Begin Race To New York

MIAMI (UPI) — The Gentry Eagle whizzed across the starting mark with two other powerboats on its tail, racing high-speed toward New York with 1,257 miles of rough water separating the winner from $500,000.

The winner-take-all race, organized by John Falk of New York State, began at 9:01 p.m. EDT Monday in waters off Miami Beach with Tom Gentry crossing the starting line first in his Gentry Eagle.

Al Copeland, of Metairie, La., zoomed past in the Popeye's Diet Coke 46-foot MerCruiser, followed by George Morales, driving the (USA) MerCruiser Special. At 10 p.m., Sandy Sautello got started in the Copper Kettle. Race officials in New York did not know what happened to a fifth entrant, Ben Kramer, driving Team Apache's 47-foot Apache.

Officials could not say where the boats were at midnight and had no update on which was out in front.

"They're off and running, though," said Al Cohen, a race organizer.

Besides the first prize, also at stake is the record for the fastest time traversing the distance in a power boat, 22:44.15, an average of 55.4 mph, set by Dr. Bob Magoon of Miami Beach in 1974.

The boats in the race should run between 75 mph to 80 mph, not including stops for fuel.

Drivers say the race will hinge on several factors, mainly engine longevity, weather, and physical conditioning.

Bill Sirois of the Popeye's Diet Coke team, says because there is no set course for the race, no one quite knows what to expect.

"You can't believe the different ways to get there, or the thought put into it that never gets used," he said. "It's a pure physical beating. The thing that bothers me is what happens to the mind after 18 hours of high speed running at sea? None of us have ever been there."

"You have to be strong physically to be strong mentally in something like this," he said.

Team Apache will have a familiar face aboard as a backup driver — actor James Caan.

Richie Powers of the Gentry team said the biggest unknown is the weather.

"We have fairly similar boats and experienced crews," he said.

Dickerson: Money, Then Run

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — To Eric Dickerson, it's simple. He'll take the money, then run.

The Los Angeles Rams' brilliant running back, who piled up 2,105 yards last season to break O.J. Simpson's single-season NFL record, refused to report to training camp Monday because he said the team reneged on a verbal agreement for a contract extension.

Flanked by a management team headed by former heavyweight boxing champion Ken Norton, Dickerson said he was willing to hold out as long as it takes to reach an agreement, but said he hopes for a fast settlement. He was officially AWOL from the Rams' camp as of 6 p.m. EDT Monday.

"I'm still happy to be playing for the Rams, but I am not a fool, either," Dickerson said at a news conference. "I am looking out for Eric, I care about the team, but I'm looking out for Eric now."

Coach John Robinson obviously was unhappy. "We're disappointed," he said. "We started practice today and we have to get going on things. We'll just go right about our business."

"I have great confidence that we'll do the right thing. Everyone has to take care of business."

The dispute centers around a verbal agreement Dickerson's attorneys said was made with Rams vice president John Shaw to negotiate a 3-year extension. Shaw, according to Dickerson's attorneys, has since refused to discuss the contract extension.

Dickerson is in the third of a series of four 1-year contracts totaling $2.2 million. Terms of that agreement, which runs through next season, are not in dispute.

Football

At San Angelo, Texas, Houston Oilers linbacker Gregg Bingham, citing "irreconcilable differences" with Coach Hugh Campbell, said he has complied with Campbell's request that he ask to be traded.

Bingham, who had started 173 games for Houston, said Campbell told him Saturday to request a trade "or else." The 12-year veteran had been demoted to second string behind linbacker Avon Riley and said he was asked by Campbell not to attend Monday's practice.

At Miami, reserve quarterback Don Strock ended his holdout by signing a two-year contract with the Dolphins.

Since starter Dan Marino left camp Thursday in a contract squabble and third-string quarterback Jim Jensen is also a holdout, the Dolphins had only free agent quarterbacks Lou Pagley and Bryan Clark.

At Platteville, Wis., Chicago Bears general manager Jerry Vainisi said if the seven players holding out in contract disputes don't report to training camp they may eventually lose their positions.

At San Diego, the contract signed by Chargers' first round draft choice Jim Lachey is reportedly worth $2 million over five years. The Chargers had planned to use the 290-pounder exclusively at tackle, but Coach Don Coryell said Lachey will be tried at left tackle and left guard.

Hagler, Hearns: Same Card, Different Foes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Since they fought last August, Marvin Hagler found out winning wasn't as much fun and Thomas Hearns discovered losing wasn't as painful as they expected.

Hagler, who stopped Hearns in three rounds April 15 to hold his middleweight crown, finally got the taste of the spotlight he has craved since turning pro. He found out it's not so hot.

"All the things he used to love to do, the talks shows, the interviews, now he can take it or leave it," said promoter Bob Arum, who has staged all of Hagler's title fights. "Now that they're all there, he's not crazy about them."

Hagler is still crazy about boxing, though, and he'll return to the ring Nov. 14 against John "The Beast" Mugabi at Las Vegas. On the same card, Hearns, the World Boxing Council super welterweight champ, will challenge North American Boxing Federation champion James Shuler.

"When you're not looking for the money, there it is," said Hagler, who has been doing cameo movie appearances and commercials since his victory over Hearns made him boxing's top attraction. "I've really been going all the time."

Hagler spent the last six weeks vacationing with his family in Hawaii. Early in October, he'll go to Palm Springs, Calif. for a six-week stint that will be anything but a vacation. As always, Hagler intends to remain boxing's hardest worker.

"They all wait for me to get old, I tell them 'You better come get me now,'" said Hagler, 31. "I'm ready."

"I'm going to come out and be impressive and show the public what I did to Thomas Hearns was no fluke."

He might get a chance to do just that against Hearns again, if they both win Nov. 14. Arum hopes to match the two winners next April. —Hagler is a 4-1 favorite and Hearns 2-1 to win Nov. 14.

Hearns will be more heavily favored, if not for the question about his mental state.

It took Hearns a long time to get over his only other loss in 42 pro fights, a knockout against Sugar Ray Leonard in Sept. 1981. He became despondent and needed nearly three years to return to the devastating puncher he was early in his career.

"I dealt with this loss in a totally different way," Hearns said. "I went out and dealt with the public. The first time I made the mistake of hiding. This time, I went out and talked to the kids, and was natural."

Botha Won't Meet Bishop Tutu; Foreign Blacks May Be Expelled

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa's state of emergency entered its 10th day today as police reported 54 new arrests, bringing to 1,259 the number of people detained under extended powers of search and arrest.

The new figures were released a day after police said one black youth was killed when officers opened fire with rubber bullets and tear gas on rioting students participating in a school boycott in Cape Town.

The shooting Monday, which brought to 20 the number of people killed since emergency rule was imposed July 21, came as President Pieter Botha refused to meet with Bishop Desmond Tutu and threatened to deport foreign black workers.

Botha's declaration of emergency rule prompted the U.N. Security Council last Thursday to call for voluntary sanctions against South Africa to protest apartheid — the government's policy of racial segregation — and the state of emergency.

But Botha, speaking at a youth rally in Potchefstroom, about 75 miles west of Johannesburg, warned that sanctions would spark retaliation by South Africa.

Japan Unveils New Trade Plan

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan, under pressure to take steps to offset its record trade surplus with the United States, today unveiled a three-year plan to encourage imports and "prove that the Japanese market is the most open in the world."

The package will eliminate or reduce tariffs on 1,853 products, ranging from high-technology items to champagne and boneless chicken.

The plan covered several market sectors of special interest to the United States — including electrical appliances, medical equipment, pharmaceuticals and lumber products.

But it failed to include key agricultural products — such as oranges and beef — on which the United States sought the elimination of tariffs and quotas.

and 45 seconds after blastoff Monday, forcing the crew to execute an "abort to orbit," the first such emergency in the 19 shuttle missions to date.

Flight director Cleon Lacefield said the ship's orbit ended up 44 miles lower than planned because of the premature rocket engine shutdown but Challenger will be able to stay up a full week as originally planned, although some of the flight's science goals will not be met.

The major item on the agenda today was a thorough checkout of the German-built "instrument pointing system," a motorized telescope mount in the payload bay capable of tracking a dime two miles away.

Henize reported the "IPS," which has had a troubled development history, operated sluggishly during its initial movement and that its tracking system had problems locking onto the sun as planned. It also showed other unexpected behavior.

Before launch, scientists said tests of the IPS were a critical element of the Spacelab mission because the device will be needed next year during a shuttle mission to study Halley's comet.

For Challenger's flight, three solar telescopes are mounted on the IPS along with an instrument to study the sun's radiation. A series of engineering tests were required before full science operations could begin.

The launch emergency came 17 days after trouble with Challenger's No. 2 main engine forced a safe, automatic engine shutdown on the launch pad just seconds before liftoff July 12.

Because 21 percent of the ship's fuel was lost during Monday's abort in a planned procedure to reduce weight during the climb to space with just two engines running, some of the experiment operations planned for the mission are being canceled and others curtailed.

If the engine had stopped just 33 seconds earlier, Lacefield said the astronauts would not have been able to achieve orbit and would have had to make an emergency landing at Zaragoza, Spain — a much more hazardous procedure.

Lacefield was in charge when Challenger blasted away from Earth at 5 p.m. Monday — an hour and 37 minutes late — and he acknowledged later that there were some tense moments when Fullerton reported one of the ship's three main engines had shut down nearly three minutes too soon.

The remaining two main engines fired 70 seconds longer than normal and then two smaller orbital maneuvering engines were fired to push the ship into a low but safe orbit.

Those orbital maneuvering engines were fired 5½ hours later to raise the orbit to a peak of 194 miles high — still 44 miles lower than originally planned.

Lacefield said the No. 1 engine was stopped automatically by Challenger's computers when a hydrogen turbopump temperature sensor passed the 1,960-degree Fahrenheit "red line." The engine is designed to shut down at that point to avoid damaging the powerful pump and possibly the rest of the shuttle.

U.S., Russians Playing Political One-Upmanship

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — The United States shunned a Soviet proposal for a moratorium on nuclear tests and the Soviets rejected an offer to observe a U.S. nuclear test.

The U.S. said it would press Moscow on its human rights record today at a meeting marking the 10th anniversary of the Helsinki accords.

Secretary of State George Shultz heard Monday of the Soviet announcement of a five-month moratorium on nuclear weapons tests and rejected Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's call for a matching U.S. moratorium.

"Obviously it's something that is designed to get public attention," Shultz told reporters aboard his Air Force plane during a flight to the Finnish capital, where he will speak at ceremonies today and meet Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

He said he will publicly criticize the Soviet Union today for its failure to live up to the human rights provisions of the Helsinki accords.

The 35-nation Helsinki conference includes the United States, Canada and all the European nations except Albania.

Shultz said Moscow had violated a test moratorium in 1961 and it would be impossible to verify compliance with a new one.

"We do not believe it's in our interest to stop our testing program under these circumstances," he said.

In a related development, the Reagan administration Monday invited Soviet experts to observe a U.S. nuclear test. Moscow quickly rejected the offer, saying it showed Washington was reluctant to agree to a ban.

Strains in U.S.-Soviet relations were underlined when Shultz indirectly attacked the Soviet human rights record in his arrival speech.

"Unfortunately not all of the participating states have implemented the commitments they made to guarantee human rights and fundamental freedoms and increased human contacts to all their citizens," Shultz said.

In Moscow, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said the issue of human rights was raised as "a pretext for interference in the internal affairs of countries whose political system they want to undermine."

Shevardnadze did not mention human rights in his arrival speech. He said his country had proved its "deep commitment" to the accords.

In Stockholm, Sweden, more than 1,000 people protested Soviet human rights abuses in the former independent Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

About 300 Baltic exiles arrived by boat from a similar protest in Helsinki and joined several hundred protesters in a march from the Stockholm harbor to the headquarters of the European Security Conference, created by the accords.

The accords, signed Aug. 1, 1975, guaranteed the post-World War II borders of Europe, legitimizing the expanded Soviet Union and its hold on the east of the continent. In return, Moscow guaranteed to improve human rights.

But dissent has been stifled in the Soviet Union and emigration has been slowed to a trickle.

No Change Seen In U.S. Policy On South Africa

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite growing sentiment on Capitol Hill for economic sanctions against the white-minority South African government, the State Department expects no change in administration opposition.

Department spokesman Charles Redman said Monday "all kinds of options" are under consideration for U.S. policy in the face of growing violence in South Africa.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Saturday he favors moving rapidly on legislation that would impose economic sanctions against South Africa and expects President Reagan to go along.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Sunday he hopes Congress will pass a bill before Friday's scheduled recess.

The House and Senate have approved separate bills calling for sanctions. Conference from the two chambers are expected to meet Wednesday to work out differences in the measures.

Redman said he would not speculate on whether Reagan might veto such legislation.

The administration has pursued a policy of "constructive engagement" in which the United States maintains economic and diplomatic relations with South Africa while quietly encouraging Pretoria to reform its racial policies.

The United States recalled its ambassador, Herman Nickel, June 15 as a sign of displeasure with a South African raid into Botswana.

option, Faison said chances are it wouldn't be. Even if Sanford won, improving its Poplar Avenue plant and continuing to dump in the lake, it would have to go to DER for a permit to determine how much sewage could be dumped.

The DER, possibly hostile from losing the battle, could drag out the application process a year and then deny the permit, Faison said. Or, he added, since the permit must be renewed every five years, DER could grant it one year and not renew it five years later. Not getting the permit or getting it and not having it renewed could shut the plant down and leave Sanford with no means of disposing its sewage, Faison said.

"That, I believe, is Russian roulette," Faison said. "Five years down the road we may be dead in the water."

In addition to all this, Sanford is under the pressure of a January 1987 deadline to resolve its sewage problem. That is when Sanford's temporary operating permit at the Poplar Avenue plant expires. It is possible the state won't grant another one unless the city is moving in a direction it favors. That means the city faces a moratorium on construction, Faison said.

In light of this, the commission is leaning toward the land spreading option.

Commissioner Robert Thomas said the commission should "vigorously" pursue the land spreading proposal because, "I feel the DER is going to chase us out of this lake."

Commissioner David Farr said he prefers to keep fighting but it doesn't appear as wise as going with the land spreading proposal.

The question is are the citizens of Sanford willing to gamble $8.6 million in grants?

Mayor Betty Smith said, "I personally would like to see us out of the lake anyway... If we're putting any pollutants in the lake we're not helping it."

The commission is expected to make a final decision on the sewage issue by Aug. 15.

Faison submitted five land spreading options that could cost residents anywhere from $27 to $39 a month on their monthly bills.

The commission favors expanding the Poplar Avenue plant, instead of building a new one, and pumping the sewage out to a site west of the city where it would be sprayed on the land. The plan would up the plant's capacity from 6 million gallons per day to about 7 million per day. Residents bills would be about $28.85 a month, under the plan.

The plan would require the city to win a rezoning for the spreading site from the Seminole County Commission, Faison said. The county would probably grant the rezoning if it were given a cut of the capacity — about 2 million gallons worth, Faison said.

The whole project would cost about $30 million. The system wouldn't be operational until sometime in the early 1990s.

Faison said the spreading method resembles irrigation of a farm. The sewage acts as a fertilizer and enriches the soil for grass or other crops.

Farr suggested, and the commission agreed, that the city's spreading site be a nursery to supply plants to beautify the city.

...Districts

are in each of the commission districts so they could consider whether the commission district boundaries ought to be redrawn.

But after studying Mrs. Goard's report, Price said it appears the commission "did a pretty good job of setting the boundary lines in 1981."

The law requires that each commissioner run countywide but reside in a specific geographic district. Single-member districts would require each commissioner to be elected by the voters of his district. State law permits voters to change from countywide election of commissioners to individual district elections by referendum. The commission may also opt to make the switch.

According to Mrs. Goard, the number of registered voters in the various districts in 1981 and today are:

- District 1, held by Commissioners Barbara Christensen, and including Casselberry and much of southeast Seminole County, 13,746, compared to 19,190, an increase of 5,444.

- District 2, held by Commissioner Bob Sturm and including parts of Sanford, Lake Mary and Longwood and unincorporated areas between, from 15,036 to 20,583, and increase of 5,547.
- District 3, held by Commissioner Fred Streetman and including parts of Altamonte Springs and parts of the western section of the county, from 15,367 to 20,947, an increase of 5,580.
- District 4, held by Commissioner Sandra Glenn and including parts of Longwood, Fern Park, Altamonte Springs, 16,261 to 19,020, up 2,759.
- District 5, held by Commissioners Bill Kirehff and including parts of Sanford and Geneva, 13,199 to 16,318, up 3,119.

Meanwhile Mrs. Goard said she is recommending to commissioners that some 13 precincts in the south end of the county, one of which has more than 2,800 voters, be split into two precincts. That largest precinct is number 60 and includes the Springs, west of Interstate 4 and north of State Road 434.

Mother-In-Law Wears Out Welcome Before Her Visit

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for two years to a man who never got along very well with his family. I've never met any of them.

Dear Abby

His mother wrote to us saying she would like to visit us toward the end of the summer, so we invited her to come for four or five days. She wrote back saying she was coming for a two-week visit and was bringing her sister and her sister's daughter with her!

We wrote her saying we had a very small house and were not able to have guests for two weeks, but the three of them could come for one week only. Well, she wrote back and said she had to stay for two weeks to get a reduced air fare!

Dear Abby, are we stuck with three people for two weeks? We just can't handle it! His mother is not elderly, poor or disabled, if that makes a difference. Help!

NO NAME, OF COURSE

DEAR NO NAME: Even though this woman is your husband's mother, it doesn't give her the right to stretch a four-to-five-day invitation to two weeks and bring two additional guests to boot.

Tell her that if they stay two weeks, you will be glad to make reservations at a nearby motel for the second week. And if you can't pick up the tab, send her the motel rates and ask her for preference.

DEAR ABBY: You missed the boat in your answer to "Bewildered," the couple who were sure that if they left their considerable estate to their only daughter, she would spend it all on her "no-good" husband.

You said, "There is no way you can control the way your daughter spends her inheritance." This is not so.

You should have suggested that they consult a lawyer experienced in wills and trusts, and consider leaving the inheritance in a trust for the benefit of their daughter for her lifetime. The trustee (probably a bank) could be directed to distribute the money, from the income or principal, only for the daughter's benefit, as the trustee decides is appropriate.

While the son-in-law would probably benefit indirectly from this arrangement, the daughter would get the primary benefit, and the principal of the trust would give her financial security for the rest of her life.

DONALD R. WASEL, ATTORNEY AT LAW, HARRISBURG, PA.

DEAR MR. WASEL: You are right, of course. And judging from the number of letters I received from lawyers and trust officers, I not only missed the boat, I missed the entire fleet.

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago I might have felt the same as "Disappointed Mom," but I hope that she will be thankful for her daughter's good qualities as you advised.

My daughter is nearly 20. She graduated No. 1 in her class and had her pick of the top colleges. She was beautiful and talented, but never seemed interested in boys the way most girls were.

After her freshman year of college, she told me she had fallen in love with another woman! My world fell apart, Abby. If she had had a normal heterosexual relationship, I would have overlooked everything else.

I still pray that some wonderful man will come along and sweep her off her feet. I love her with all my heart, but don't think I will ever be able to accept her lifestyle.

STILL HOPEFUL

DEAR STILL: If you love her, you will learn more about her "lifestyle." Do yourself — and your daughter — a favor, and write to PARENTS FLAG, P.O. Box 24565, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024.

The information is comforting, enlightening and free, but please enclose a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Deltona Nursing Services Sets Stop Smoking Seminar

In addition to providing affordable home health care, Deltona Nursing Service provides counseling services and helpful seminars at its Lifestyle Improvement Center.

Help is available for those who want to quit smoking. A 5-Day Plan to Stop Smoking seminar is being offered August 5-9, 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Deltona Nursing Service office at 1300 Providence Blvd. near Providence Plaza.

The seminar charge is just $25 a person. Pre-registration is required so call 574-1322.

Deltona Nursing Services can provide around-the-clock home care in Seminole and Volusia counties. Under the supervision of registered nurses, aides are available to perform any, or all, of the following: personal care, bathing, shaving, meal preparation, dressing, feeding, light housekeeping, laundry and grocery shopping.

Nurses, aides, and sitters are carefully screened before they are hired to make sure they are qualified, loving, caring individuals.

The needs and wishes of the clients are carefully carried out. Physicians' orders are followed and close contact maintained with the client's doctor.

Deltona Nursing Services is licensed, insured and bonded. Staff members are available by phone 24 hours a day, 7 days a week should any questions, concerns or emergencies arise. With all of this service, it is still the most affordable home health care service in Central Florida, a fact which also draws clients from outside the Deltona area.

Lois Whitesell, a registered nurse, who founded the Deltona agency about a year ago, has always had a special burden for helping people. Behind the scenes, she has had a lot of practical help and support from her husband, Gordon.

As the business grew, she was joined last November by her son-in-law, Frank Guerrieri, and later by her daughter, Jody Guerrieri, who is a registered nurse, previously employed at the West Volusia Memorial Hospital.

Newest member of the team is Christian counselor Sergio Manente, who has a bachelor of science degree in psychology and five years experience in the field of psychology.

Stressing the importance of dealing with the whole person—mind and body—Sergio teaches seminars dealing with family enrichment, and improving one's self image and stress control.

They believe in preventive medicine and offer help to the community through free health checks and health education services on the first Wednesday of every month from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. There will be lectures, films, demonstrations, first aid training as well as blood pressure and blood sugar checks.

These services are based on Christian principles.

Louisiana Is Top Seafood Producer

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Louisiana was the nation's top-volume fish producer last year with a harvest of 1.9 billion pounds of fish and shellfish, according to figures assembled by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Cameron is the top port nationally in terms of catch volume, while the Empire-Venice area is third and the Dulac-Chauvin area is fourth in the nation in fish volume.

The federal report shows Louisiana is far ahead of second place Alaska, where fishermen caught 1 billion pounds last year. But Louisiana was second to Alaska in catch value because of the high price of Alaskan salmon and king crab.

"Diverse harvests of such species as menhaden, shrimp, oysters, crawfish, finfish and blue crabs reflect a well-balanced seafood industry in Louisiana," said Ken Roberts, a marine economist with the Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service.

The dollar value of the catch at Louisiana's ports is not as high as at other places, but Roberts said fishing revenues have a tremendous impact on the state's small fishing ports because they are small, relatively isolated communities.

Cameron led the nation in 1984 with 679 million pounds of fish, valued at $38.2 million. The Empire-Venice port collected 384 million pounds of seafood last year, with a value of $41.6 million. Dulac-Chauvin had 327 million pounds of fish, valued at $59.7 million.

Despite Louisiana's prominence as a fish producer, many state seafood producers say they continue to suffer economic problems. Roberts said shrimp, crawfish and oysters producers have had difficulty because of the state's poor economic climate.

Shrimp prices have fallen during the past year, partly as a result of the 422 million pounds of shrimp imported last year.

Budget in Even More Peril; Reagan Rejects GOP Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's rejection of the Senate Republicans' latest budget proposal has angered influential members of his own party and thrown the budget process into a tailspin.

Reagan turned down the budget Monday, saying he would not accept three key points that Senate GOP leaders were banking on to rouse the budget from its sleep by Friday — the start of the congressional summer recess.

He rejected an oil import fee, changes in Social Security benefits and income tax indexing.

In response, a clearly upset Senate GOP leader Robert Dole predicted, "For a while at least, there'll not be too many Republican senators listening to pleas from the White House on anything."

"There's a great deal of frustration with Republican senators," said Dole. "We'll do our best to keep them on board. Maybe the long recess coming up will help."

A Senate Budget Committee aide predicted the Senate would only be able to cut about $40 billion from the deficit without a budget.

"That's what we have to decide — whether less than ideal is better than none at all," shrugged Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill reiterated that the House is proceeding to pass money bills that are under its own budget, as if the disagreement with the Senate had never happened. He also predicted the House would accomplish $56 billion in deficit reduction.

O'Neill refused to declare the president's decision a victory for the Democrats, who had opposed the Social Security cost-of-living changes and the oil tax, but noted the debate is now between Reagan and Senate Republicans.

Dole said soberly he was going to "take a head count" and see how many GOP senators would "support this watered down approach to deficit reduction" without the taxes, Social Security curbs or tax indexing changes.

"We'll take whatever we can get and see if we can find the votes for it," he said.

Following Reagan's rejection of the budget try, White House chief of staff Donald Regan went to Capitol Hill to urge that Congress work up another approach, but Senate budget leaders were not receptive to his overtures.

"We told him we appreciated it but that we didn't need his help," Domenici said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said even though Reagan rejected the plan — aimed at cutting $64 billion from the fiscal 1986 deficit — "There still remains $59.6 billion in savings" in the Senate proposal.

"Larry Speakes is not writing our budget," Domenici snapped in response.

It was the second time in three weeks that Reagan had split with senators from his own party on the budget. The first time, he rejected the curbs in Social Security the Senate budget included.

Asked how it felt to be rejected by the president twice, Domenici sighed. "I'm getting used to it."

Murder Suspect Asked For Wife's Head

ORLANDO (UPI) — A pest control worker being tried on charges he decapitated and disembowelled his wife may be spared from the electric chair if he can answer one question where is the woman's head.

A jury was not seated Monday, and the selection process in the first-degree murder trial of Lonnie Maynard Phelps, 57, resumes today. Testimony is expected to begin this afternoon.

Phelps, a Pine Hills pest control worker, is accused of killing his wife of 17 years and mutilating her body.

City workers found Hazel Phelps' nude, headless body in a garbage bin Feb. 11. It was bound with twine, wrapped in a blanket and a sheet of plastic, and was severely mutilated in an apparent attempt to hide her identity.

In pre-trial proceedings, Assistant State Attorney Ray Sharpe told Phelps' lawyers he would not seek the death penalty if Phelps would plead guilty to first-degree murder and if he could prove his wife was dead before she was decapitated and disembowelled.

He said that could be done only by producing her head.

"He'll have to prove that she didn't die in as grisly a manner" as her mutilated body suggests, Sharpe said. "If she was shot once or died as a result of a blow to the head, then I'll back off the death penalty."

Phelps has denied any knowledge of his wife's murder and prosecutors have found no witnesses to the murder or the dumping of the body. The case against Phelps rests on a fingerprint and his behavior just after his wife's death.

3 Sentenced In Pot Possession Cases

A 29-year-old Sanford man has been ordered to pay a $150 fine for possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana.

Kevin Dale Cook, 29, of 2542 S. Sanford Ave., was fined by Seminole County Judge Alan Dickey who also ordered Cook to pay the Public Defender's Office $100.

Cook was arrested Jan. 10 and charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana after Sanford police, responding to a disturbance call, reported spotting pot seeds in a wastebasket at his home.

In another possession of marijuana case, a Maitland man was fined $200 for having the illegal weed in his car when Altamonte Springs police stopped him to check his driver's license.

A man named Peter Kalogerakus, 25, of 420 E. George St., was fined by Dickey.

According to court records, after making a driver's license check stop of Kalogerakus' car on Westmont Avenue, Altamonte Springs, on April 9, officers noticed a hand-rolled pot cigarette in the car.

In a third marijuana possession case, an Oviedo man was sentenced to seven days in the county jail and then given credit for seven days already served.

Byron Williams, 25, of 520 Franklin St., was arrested Feb. 2 when marijuana was found in the car in which he was a passenger. The car had been stopped in Lake Mary and as a police officer was talking with the car's driver he noticed a marijuana cigarette butt and a clear plastic bag of marijuana in the car. Two other men arrested in the case await final disposition of their cases.

B-12 Won't Cure All Varieties Of Anemia

DEAR DR. GOTT — Would B-12 help mild anemia?
 DEAR READER — Anemia, a reduction in the number of red blood cells, has many causes, including blood loss and deficiencies of certain essential blood-forming components. Iron deficiency is the most common type of anemia in the United States, but some people may exhibit another, rarer anemia: deficiency of vitamin B-12. This is termed pernicious anemia and is probably due to a form of immune malfunction. It used to be fatal until the advent of liver shots. Now physicians can inject purified B-12 to make up the defect in dietary B-12 absorption, so pernicious anemia is entirely correctable.

To answer your question: B-12 will treat the anemia that is caused by B-12 deficiency. However, because there are other, more prevalent causes of anemia, a doctor would have to identify the precise cause of the blood disorder so that he could prescribe the appropriate antidote.
 DEAR DR. GOTT — I don't eat much, but what I eat tends to be pretty high in calories. I'm not fat, but I'm wondering if this is unhealthy.
 DEAR READER — Eating high-calorie foods is OK if your diet contains the necessary variety of nutrients. Put another way, you will not harm yourself by eating calorie-rich food as long as you consume other nutrients as well. A balanced diet is essential. The issue for a slim person is not calories; it's a question of proper protein, vitamins and other elements.
 DEAR DR. GOTT — I keep hearing that Americans eat too much protein, but I'm afraid that if I cut down, I might develop a deficiency. Is this possible or is it rare? What are the signs?
 DEAR READER — I've never heard that Americans eat too much protein, even if they did. It wouldn't cause health problems. What we do eat too much of is animal protein, which, although high-quality, involves the simultaneous ingestion of fats. So it's not the protein, but the fat that can cause problems.
 As a culture, we do not fully appreciate the readily available protein in plant sources. Grains are good sources of proteins, a fact well known by people in other societies who rely heavily on vegetable products.

Protein requirements vary according to age, sex, body build, activity and general state of health. A normal adult requires a minimum of 50 to 75 grams per day. Weightlifters and lumberjacks need more; sedentary and elderly people need less.

 The four primary signs of protein deficiency are weakness, weight loss, decrease in muscle mass and lowered immunological resistance.
 Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

As part of the Jim Jacoby Bridge Workout Program, the exercise today is in suit elimination and end play. An inspection of the card layout reveals that declarer has to lose the ace of trumps and two club tricks. To bring home the bacon, he must avoid the loss of a diamond trick.

So declarer wins the ace of spades and plays the heart king. West wins and continues spades. Declarer takes the spade king and draws trumps with the heart jack. He then ruffs a spade and continues with the club ace and a small club. The defenders can cash one more club, but then they must either give declarer a finesse in diamonds or give him a ruff by leading a black suit. That's the basic exercise.

Now let's examine the defenders' options. Best for them is to allow West to win the third club. He should now lead the diamond queen, just as though he also held the jack. If declarer falls for that ruse, he will win the king and then lose a trick to the jack in the East hand. But the right decision for declarer is to play for the diamond honors to be split between the two defenders' hands. If they weren't, an alert defender with the Q-J of diamonds would have allowed his partner to win the third club, and a small diamond would have been led up to the Q-J combination.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring... YOUR BIRTHDAY JULY 31, 1985

Conditions that affect your work or career look promising for you in the year ahead. Build upon what you have already established. Instead of looking for new fields to conquer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In matters that affect you singularly, your thinking will be on target today. When you try to make judgments for others, however, you may be way off base. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're going to be disappointed when you don't get all you hoped for, especially if you expect more than what is entitled to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're invited to a social happening today don't overstay your welcome. If you are one of the early arrivals, try to be among the first to leave.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Disagreements within your family should be settled privately today. If relatives or outsiders get into the act, problems will worsen.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may enter into a discussion today with someone who feels as strongly about a subject as you do. Unfortunately, you might be on opposite sides of the fence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You won't be suited for the roles of borrower or lender today. Being in either position could put you behind the eight ball.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you may solicit advice from others today, there's a chance you'll ignore their suggestions and wrongly go about doing things as you first intended.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 19) Be sensible regarding your physical limitations today. Don't overexert yourself or lift things that are too heavy for you to carry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extremely careful how you conduct yourself at social gatherings today. If a mishap occurs, there's a chance it could be completely blown out of proportion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not take your luck for granted today when you have a lot at stake. If you miscalculate, others may suffer as well as yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Subdue temptations to boast about your accomplishments today, even if you do something impressive. It'll sound better coming from others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be more watchful than usual of your possessions today, especially those you keep in your car. Don't walk off and leave your auto unlocked.
