

Property Damage And Death Toll Mount As Floods Follow In Wake Of Storm

Continued From Page One... The menace seemed particularly imminent in New England, as it illustrated by the Connecticut river which, at Hartford, already had passed the level it reached in the major flood of 1927.

Thousands of homes and cottages fell into smashed and decaying piles of kindling. Hundreds of palatial yachts and small craft were swamped or destroyed.

The federal government, a President Roosevelt's executive command, moved up its vast resources for rescue and protection against disease and to expedite the movement of freight for the vast job of reconstruction that must now be faced.

Federal food and drug agents were directed to make systematic inspections against contamination. Works Progress Administration Hopkins hurried from the west coast by plane to take charge of the hundreds of relief employees called to help in relief work.

In the area of disaster, thousands of troops, police, Red Cross men and women, Boy Scouts, naval reservists and civilian volunteers were at work. There was minor looting reported.

Hardest hit of the seven states were Massachusetts and Rhode Island, each of which late in the day had a death list of around 100.

New York, Connecticut and New Hampshire likewise had high fatalities. New Jersey and Vermont escaped the worst.

In Canada, the province of Quebec had a single death, but much damage.

Food supplies appeared adequate for the immediate future in most sections, but some isolated towns in Massachusetts reported shortages.

The hurricane, which appeared late yesterday to have blown itself out in the Canadian provinces of Quebec and Ontario, was followed by fire in some cities.

Half-isolated Cape Cod, jutting out from Massachusetts into the open sea, reported more than a score of deaths at its base near the mainland.

An amateur radio operator reported the small fishing village of Menemah on Martha's Vineyard, a small island off the elbow of Cape Cod, was literally swept away and at Edgartown, the county seat, scores were driven from their homes by the rapid rise of water.

The nearby island of Nantucket escaped with less punishing blows.

Peace Parley Strikes Snag At Godesberg

Continued From Page One... Polish demands might be raised. This will be the critical phase of the conference, as every indication has shown the impetuosity of the Nazi and their desire for "quick action" to liquidate the Czech problem once and for all.

Chamberlain's statement yesterday pleading for "borderline" peace. The prime minister had a conversation with the German Führer which began at 4:00 P. M. and continued until shortly after 7:00 P. M. It is intended to resume Friday morning.

Meanwhile the first essential in the opinion of the prime minister is that there should be a determination on the part of all parties concerned to insure that local conditions in Czechoslovakia shall be such as not in any way to interfere with the progress of the negotiations.

The prime minister appeal must, earnestly, they felt, be accepted to assist in maintaining a state of calmness and refrain from action of any kind that would be likely to lead to incidents.

There was no suspicion on the part of Germany to wait long for consummation of the "peace deal" with Chamberlain under which much of the Sudeten area will be ceded to the Reich.

The fact that Chamberlain appeared to attach great importance to his statement pleading for "border" among the Czechs strengthened his view.

So Horace Wilson, a member of the British delegation, asked the "widest circulation" of the statement when he distributed it to news correspondents.

Chamberlain was cheered wildly by Germans as he returned to his hotel a striking contrast to the almost silent reception that greeted his visit in the afternoon.

He appeared very tired and went immediately to his room.

The slim, 62-year-old British premier came to this little town on the west bank of the Rhine to seal a bargain he made with the German dictator a week ago at Berchtesgaden trading the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia to Germany as the price of peace.

But there were strong reports that this time Chamberlain came armed with more than offers.

With Hitler riding the high tide of success thus far in the unprecedented diplomatic negotiations virtually able to dictate the issue of peace or war the British attitude had hardened.

Deladier Says France Will March If German Troops Move Into Czechoslovakia... EGER, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Sudeten German leaders and early Friday that the Czech army was moving into the German minority areas near the Sudeten line on the borders. They charged that 16 persons were shot and killed within three hours.

Czech troops began moving into the Sudeten region, according to Sudeten leaders. They charged that 16 persons were shot and killed within three hours.

Prague's disavowal of Henlein's party issued a proclamation urging the Sudeten to "keep cool" and that is the only way to an avoid bloodshed.

Deladier Says France Will March If German Troops Move Into Czechoslovakia

Continued From Page One... Many informed British experts believed the whole issue would be settled at the first conference, and that if Hitler were disposed to reject the agreement in bulk at making any concessions of his own, the order for German troops to march could follow almost immediately.

The outcome then would rest almost entirely with France, as to whether that country would lend help to the Czechs on the one hand, or the Germans tried to push past Sudetenland.

If France should decide to march, feeling that Hitler must be stopped now if he is ever to be stopped, most informed sources believe Britain will mobilize likewise, particularly as mounting British anger at the humiliating nature of the Anglo-French capitulation probably will reach the boiling point of the German Führer's speech.

Chamberlain's peace offer. Thus the question of war or peace in Europe will be regarded as critical with the events of the next few hours likely to determine the outcome.

Czech soldiers, who looked on dejectedly Wednesday night as the Sudeten German held a victory celebration, indicated early today that as a result of the new government in Prague they intended to remain in their homes and immediately.

Thus, it is believed was seen in the streets of Eger, Aush and other towns of the Sudeten belt.

With the establishment of the new government there appeared to be sudden revival of militancy in the Czechs.

Czech authorities refused several Sudeten requests, including one for permission to hold a parade in the Sudeten armed "free corps" returning from the Reich across the border.

The Czechs' answer was that if the "free corps" returned its members would be met by Czech troops ready to shoot.

The notion by the Sudeten was in the hands of three different groups, the Sudeten German war veterans' organization, the Sudeten German party and the Sudeten German firemen.

The Sudeten German "committee of five" established soon after Prague's disavowal of Henlein's party issued a proclamation urging the Sudeten to "keep cool" and that is the only way to an avoid bloodshed.

We must not count on the immediate coming of German troops, the appeal said. "The Czech soldiers, tanks and artillery here must not be used against us. We must not be maintained in the hands of the German."

There was the intense resentment against the selection of General Sirovy as premier and Varian Fry and Sirovy pointed out that Hitler had made it clear that only the appointment of a premier "friendly" to Germany would prevent aggravation of the situation. It was generally assumed that Sirovy was not a German.

Europe Mobilizes As Hitler And Chamberlain Talks On Czechoslovak Crisis Are Concluded In Godesberg

Floods Are Abating In Sections Hit By Disastrous Storm

Receding Waters Give Survivors Opportunity To Bury Those Killed In Disaster

12,000 Families Left Homeless

100,000 WPA Workers With Survivors Begin Rehabilitation

Abating floods gave the north Atlantic states time to bury their hurricane dead nearly 500 in number, and begin task of rehabilitating areas stricken by worst storm disaster to befall the nation in a decade.

Authorities in seven affected states and at Washington, D. C., mobilized all resources of men and money.

The most pressing problem in mopping up after Wednesday's hurricane, a scourge of wind and tide that cost half billion dollars in property damage—was housing and feeding of 12,000 distressed families in New York, New Jersey and New England.

Prompt emergency health measures by the Red Cross and other relief agencies apparently had ended menace of epidemic disease. An army of 100,000 WPA workers and thousands of Army and National Guard troops and survivors poked through debris for the dead. Scores were still missing.

Forecasts of generally fair weather accompanied the subsiding of flooded rivers in New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont.

The subsiding of the rivers—the absence of any report of widespread disease—was the only good news from the storm area.

Direct damage remained impossible of real estimate, but an arbitrary figure of half a billion dollars, based in part on the official estimate of Governor Quinn that little Rhode Island alone had cost $100,000,000 in property values, appeared conservative.

No other State official even attempted a guess in dollars and cents.

The American Red Cross announced that 12,000 New England and New York State families were in acute distress. Many of these were homeless, others were living under the worst of emergency conditions. In Rhode Island were centered the greatest horrors of the hurricane's aftermath. Ravaged figures put the dead in that State at above 225, and Governor Quinn, after surveying the destruction, appealed directly to President Roosevelt for Federal aid.

The Works Progress Administration immediately detached 5,000 workers for rescue duty. Whole settlements were smashed; some families had not a single survivor. The great gale, which was disclosed to have reached 120 miles an hour, crashed the heavy sea wall at Narragansett Pier.

National Guardsmen moved into two settlements to stop looting. Providence, the capital city, had a 5 P. M. (Eastern Daylight Time) curfew and, like Woonsocket and Westerly, was under martial law.

All along 12 miles of shore—

Mr. Cates' Letter

In other columns of this page is published a letter from Mr. J. J. Cates, a prominent Seminole County taxpayer who is opposed to the construction of the proposed Seminole County hospital. We are glad to have this letter as we think it important for our readers to understand both sides of the controversy, and we think that Mr. Cates has made out the best case against the hospital which we have thus far seen.

What he appears to have overlooked is that it is not intended to operate the hospital entirely from the proceeds of the 2 mill tax levy. There will of course be some considerable revenue from the more well-to-do patients who use the hospital. There will probably be a great deal more revenue from the new hospital than from the old, as most people who can afford to pay for hospital services now go out of town, while all the charity cases, in the county must be taken care of in the local hospital.

What he seems further to have overlooked is that if the revenue from the hospital, plus the revenue from the two mill tax, is not sufficient to meet the requirements of the hospital, the tax levy cannot be increased, and the assessed valuations for the hospital cannot be increased without at the same time increasing the assessments for every other tax levied in Seminole County. This, we feel reasonably sure the County officials would refuse to do.

What seems far more likely to happen if revenues are insufficient to meet both debt service and operating expenses, is that the debt service will be neglected. It is a foregone conclusion that the government would not permit us to build a $127,000 hospital, and then neglect to operate it. Consequently there would be no alternative but to withhold part of the payments on the hospital bonds, which in this instance, will be owned by the government.

As we have previously pointed out, this would be no particular hardship on the government as this money which the government is lending to us will be lent to someone else if we do not borrow it. And the chances are that the other project for which it may be borrowed by some other community will be in no better position to repay it than we are. However, we are satisfied that we will have no difficulties of this nature as the new hospital will be more economical to operate than the old one.

As to Mr. Cates' suggestion that it would be better to modernize the Fernald-Laughton hospital, it is only fair to remind our readers that this is exactly what was attempted in the first place when a WPA project was drawn up to modernize the hospital and to install some new equipment, but the government refused to spend a single dollar on the old hospital BECAUSE OF THE FIRE HAZARD.

The Czechs Mobilize

Last night little Czechoslovakia issued complete mobilization orders calling to the colors every able bodied man between the ages of 20 and 40 within the republic. It is estimated that to the 800,000 men already under arms, reserves of more than 1,200,000 will be added. The mobilization was carried out within the record breaking time of six hours.

There was something frightfully pathetic about the reports of these young men, obediently laying down their tasks in private employment and rushing off to war. With tears in their eyes they bade goodbye to their loved ones, by train, by taxicabs, by horse drawn vehicles they moved speedily to the front, to the German border, to the Polish border, to the Hungarian border, completely surrounded by bitterly hostile neighbors clamoring for their lives.

The prospect of war has always been terrible enough. Men who left their homes for the battlefields, have always known their chances were slim of returning alive and with a whole body. But today, with long range artillery, airplanes, bombs and poisonous gas, though a man may himself survive the perils of the battlefield, he knows that at home his wife and his children are in as much danger as he is himself. And so the task of parting in modern warfare is made doubly difficult.

Just what prompted this mobilization is not exactly known, though it must have been based upon some information which the Czech government received from Godesberg where Hitler and Chamberlain had been in conference. The Czech government had agreed to the cession of the Sudetenland to Germany, so their determination to fight must have come only after some new demands by Hitler had been made known to them. One can only speculate on what these demands could have been.

Latest reports indicate that Hitler has given the Czechs until October 1, one week from today, to get out of the Sudeten districts. That, it does not seem to us, would constitute an insuperable problem to the Czechs who had already reconciled themselves to the abandonment of this territory. Nor would that, it seems to us, be an occasion for the further emergency measures which have been taken by France and Great Britain, or for the cloud of gloom which has enveloped our own government officials.

Did Hitler also demand of Chamberlain that the Polish minority areas be ceded to Poland, and the Hungarian minority areas be ceded to Hungary? Did he also demand that Czechoslovakia give up its alliance with France and Russia? Did he also demand that the present semi-military ministry of the Czech government be overthrown? Did he also demand that the republican form of government be abandoned, and in its place a Nazi dictatorship, friendly to Germany, be substituted?

It is likely that if he did not, it is only because he did not get that far. It is quite likely that before he had even made his first new demand Chamberlain insisted that to the Czechs were to give up the Sudetenland, Hitler must provide some guarantee that the new boundaries of Czechoslovakia would be respected. Very probably Mr. Chamberlain himself demanded that if the Czechs were to sacrifice themselves for the peace of Europe, Hitler must promise to keep the peace of Europe.

It is this in our opinion which caused the conference to bog down. Hitler would make no such guarantee, not in terms which Mr. Chamberlain could believe. Hitler may not want war with France, certainly not with England, but we believe he does want war with Czechoslovakia. He does want to crush the life out of this little republic in order to demonstrate to the world the fury of the Nazi military machine, to show vividly to the other little nations of Central Europe the horrible futility of resisting Der Fuehrer's might.

To Hitler's way of thinking, Czechoslovakia must not be allowed even the comforting satisfaction of a well planned suicide. She must be murdered in cold and brutal fashion and her members devoured by the blood-thirsty gorgon which surround her.

THE SANFORD FORUM

Sanford, Florida
 September 24, 1938

Editor,
 Sanford Herald,
 Sanford, Florida.
 Dear Sir:

Please allow space in your Forum for the following remarks regarding the proposed new Hospital.

Don't Be Misled

I have resided in Sanford for a good many years and believe in Sanford, and no one wants to see it grow any more than I do, but which will make it grow most, a new hospital or lower taxes?

Today the village is 68 1/2 miles, assessed valuation is $4,000,000. A 2 mill levy would raise $8,000.00 on a 100 percent collection, but the records show that only a collection of about 80 percent is ever made, which would raise approximately $7,000.00.

If the County borrows $70,000.00 for a Hospital at 4 percent interest, payable in 20 years, there would be required $1,500.00 each year for a Sinking Fund to retire principal, and there would be required $2,000.00 to pay interest; making a total expense for bonds of $4,000.00 annually. In other words, out of the $7,000.00, which will be raised from a 2 mill levy, it will take $6,000.00 to keep the bonds current, leaving a balance of $1,000.00 with which to operate and maintain a $127,000.00 institution. You know it can't be done.

The records show that the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital cost in 1917 $112,000.00 to operate at $12.00 per day, and in 1937 $19,000.00 per day. How much more will it cost per day to operate a $127,000.00 institution? Where will the money come from?

Total receipts for the year 1937, from all sources were $19,651.70, and total disbursements were $20,500.00. Of this amount the County paid $2,724.00, and the City of Sanford paid $1,200.00. This shows a loss in operating our own present hospital of $8,143.30, not considering that the County and City gave the hospital $3,921.00 of the tax payers' money as a donation and for services rendered. The 2 mill levy that you hear so much about won't be a drop in the bucket.

Where would we have been had the interest and principal on $70,000.00 bonds and the additional expense of an enlarged hospital been incurred? The present cost per day per patient in the present hospital in 1936 was $4.83; in 1937 it was $5.03, which is being operated very economically, without such additional charges as proposed.

How much of the present hospital is occupied usually? The records show that the average occupancy for 1936 was 51.6 percent of capacity, and only 49 percent of capacity for the year of 1937. Does this show that we reasonably need a 47 bed hospital as proposed?

Would it not be better for all concerned to modernize the present Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital, putting in a new operating room and other reasonable improvements, which all will approve, and continue its management under disinterested business men and women, rather than over-throw right and reason, disregarding the actual facts as they exist in black and white, and turn our hospital facilities over to the politicians to operate as they see fit?

The citizens of Seminole County are led to believe that the $70,000.00 of the present assessed valuation of $4,000,000.00 will give sufficient capital annually to meet the demands, that is MISLEADING. Figure for your self. We, as stated heretofore, never collect over 80 percent of our taxes, which on a 2 mill limit will only give us approximately $7,000.00. This is just a little over half the amount, it will take annually to retire principal, pay interest and keep bonds current, maintain and operate the proposed institution.

Where will the balance of the money come from?

I assume we would settle the deficiency as we have in the past. Refund the bonds or leave it to Sanford Doubtless to increase the assessment high enough in order that the 2 mills would be sufficient capital to take care of the proposed 47 bed hospital. Don't forget, there is no law on earth to keep Mr. Doubtless from raising the assessment in any height he may deem necessary to take care of the county's obligations, and Mr. Doubtless is an expert at that. Remember, the ultimate decision is paved with the intention of the majority.

Yours very truly,
 (Signed) J. J. Cates

GALLOPING PARALYSIS

The Briggs body plant at Detroit installed a new conveyor system for 1939 model bodies. The auto workers' union complained that it was operated at an excessive "speed-up." The management contended that the schedules were no faster than last year's. In the dispute, two union workers were fired. Thereupon 9000 workers in the plant staged a short sit-down strike, then walked out.

Next the Plymouth factory in Detroit, its supply of bodies cut off, was forced to close, and 7000 more men lost their jobs. Then the Chrysler plant in Walkerville, Ont., closed for the same reason, sending 3000 more workers home. Other auto plants began curtailing operations—and at the close of business last night it was estimated that 18,700 were already idle and the jobs of 30,000 more Chrysler workers were in jeopardy.

Unless the dispute is settled soon, 12,000 dealers in all parts of the country will be kept waiting for the new models they have promised their customers.

Thus does industrial paralysis swiftly spread. And this isn't the whole picture. If the auto factories can't get bodies, they can't expect more cars. Ignition systems, tires, windshields, if the dispute isn't settled, we can expect more cancellations of orders for motors of accessories, wiping out the jobs of other thousands of workers. And back of the processors is the basic materials and the jobs of thousands who produce and distribute these materials.

When you buy an automobile to mention a few basic items—you buy a ton and a third of steel, 25 pounds of copper and brass, 2 pounds of tin, 27 pounds of lead, 144 pounds of cast pig iron, 110 pounds of rubber, one-tenth bale of cotton, 18 square yards of upholstery fabric, 3 1/2 gallons of spraying lacquer, 37 pounds of paper and fiber board, 18 square feet of glass. But you don't buy an automobile until your dealer gets it in stock.

This particular dispute probably will not prove a serious one. Doubtless it will be settled in a few days, and the wheels of industry, slowed a few days, will move on.

Relaxation Is An Essential To Getting To Sleep

By AURELIUS KINSEY
 CHICAGO, Sept. 24. —(AP)—Getting to sleep is just a matter of letting go. Once relaxed, the next step is Dreamland.

So says Dr. Edmund Jacobson after experimenting with more than 300 persons in the University of Chicago and his own laboratories.

In his new book, "You Can Sleep Well," a summary of 30 years of experimenting, Dr. Jacobson says that coffee does not always cause insomnia; that smoking has practically nothing to do with it, that city folk often sleep as well as rural residents. He found that religion helps relaxation by quieting fears; that fresh air, a comfortable mattress and a darkened room help induce slumber. But, he says, reading in bed is bad business.

Here are the steps of a set course of muscle and nerve limbering exercises Dr. Jacobson describes as the best method for relaxing progressively:

- 1—Lie on the back with eyes closed and legs uncrossed for 20 minutes if motion, and 30 minutes if lying without disturbance.
- 2—Stretch legs, bend down feet and toes and let go limp, suddenly. Repeat twice.
- 3—Breathe a little more deeply than usual two or three times, noting that the chest relaxes as you exhale without forcing.
- 4—Wrinkle forehead and frown, letting go extremely. Do this for several minutes. Avoid wrinkling forehead when trying to efface the frown.
- 5—Relax the eyes; open them, look to the right, then to the left, up and down, holding each position 30 seconds.
- 7—Lie in your favorite position on back, side or stomach, keeping eyes closed. Count aloud to ten, noting action of tongue, lips, jaws and throat. Quit counting and relax these parts for three or four minutes, then count again, not so loudly repeat a third time under the breath. Relax the entire body. Do not bother to breathe hard nor attempt looking in any particular direction. Let all parts go together.

All of this takes practice, Dr. Jacobson warns. He suggests practicing one step and then the next on successive nights until relaxation is perfected. In the final chapter he THIEF OF A MONUMENT... Strange as it seems, the Washington Monument, 555-foot stone needle in Washington, D. C., was once actually stolen and held for four years!

Forty years after George Washington died the Washington Monument Association was formed to erect a memorial to the first President of the United States.

Another three years saw the completion of the first design for the monument—a strange combination of Greek, Egyptian and Babylonian architecture. Thirty-one years passed; the monument was up 147 feet. Authorities decided to change the design to its present shape.

Things proceeded irregularly with the work until the night of February 21, 1855, when a band of political "Know Nothings" broke into the offices of the Monument Association and stole all the records.

For four years the Know-Nothing band held the records and tried to continue the work, the general public, however, ignored their pleas for help.

Finally, in 1859, an act of Congress incorporated the Washington National Monument Association with its original members, ending the strange theft. The shaft was completed in 1888—the tallest stonework structure in the world.

"strong man" government. The streets were rife with rumors.

One of the rumors was a report, circulated during the night, that British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain had resigned.

There was a 15-minute black-out drill to familiarize the populace with anti-air raid technique. Mobilization orders were posted on the doors of city hall in the old town square, regarded by Czechs as the heart of their country.

Great cheering crowds gathered in front of President Benes' palace overlooking the city and in front of the palace where Gen. Syrovky has his headquarters.

There were no disorders in Prague but everywhere there were cheering throngs displaying arm drop—limp—and do not move. Do the same with left arm.

Stretch legs, bend down feet and toes and let go limp, suddenly. Repeat twice.

ing the greatest enthusiasm. The radio, blaring constantly a mixture of music, government announcements and news dispatches, announced that the mobilization order is not directed against anybody but is aimed merely at safeguarding the frontier and internal order in the country.

"Mobilization has been made necessary," the announcer said, "by late events and is not only approved but welcome in France and Britain, while the population of this country also has welcomed it.

Responsible leaders gained the conviction that the country's military is insufficient because of the number of Central European States which, for a long time, have been taking military measures.

"Members of the new cabinet assembled at the presidential palace this afternoon to discuss the situation. It was generally agreed that further mobilization measures were necessary and that additional classes would have to be mobilized.

"The cabinet thereupon held a meeting at which mobilization measures were adopted. The decision of the cabinet was later presented to President Benes who approved it."

Owners of food shops were ordered to open their establishments by 5:30 A. M. in order to enable the newly mobilized to buy rations.

The army includes 800,000 regulars and 1,200,000 reserves. The order specifically included all officers and non-commissioned officers, enlisted men and reservists.

The order came soon after London reported an apparent impasse in negotiations between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Adolf Hitler at Godesberg, Germany.

THA Has Minimum Requirements For Building Of Homes

New Standards Will Supplant General Rules For Nation

SHOWING DURING CZECH... Chamberlain, Dr. Kurt Schmidt, and Adolf Hitler.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.—The Federal Housing Administration has today announced a new set of minimum standards for home construction.

Minimum construction requirements for new dwellings in residential areas have been announced today.

These new standards will replace the general rules which have been in effect since 1916.

THE SAVAGE HURRICANE which swept the peninsula and three larger vessels as far as 100 feet...

These standards do not work hardship on the man who is unable to build a home on the way to home ownership.

Further, the lender has additional proof that the security of the mortgage is sound.

These standards will be in effect for all new construction of one and two family dwellings.

WHY WE NEED A NEW HOSPITAL IN SEMINOLE COUNTY

1. We do not feel that our present hospital facilities are in keeping with the needs and progressiveness of the people of Seminole County nor in keeping with the rest of our public institutions; such as, schools, churches, library, parks, etc.
2. We feel that the present Hospital facilities do not give us as doctors and surgeons the means to give our best services to the people of Seminole County.
3. In this automobile age, accidents are rarely single but multiple, and our present operating room facilities make it impossible to take care of more than one patient at a time. This operating room also has to be used as an Instrumental Delivery Room.
4. Efforts on our part for Hospital improvement began with a request from the Government for funds to add to and remodel our present Hospital. This was refused on the grounds that the Government would not spend any money on the present Hospital on account of the fire hazard.
5. Our second effort was to get a 30 bed Hospital and this was not approved, since it did not give us any substantial increase in bed capacity over our present Hospital.
6. Our present plans are Duke University Hospital plans. Hospitals using these plans have been built in three towns in North Carolina of about the same or less population than Seminole County. These plans call for 13 private rooms. The rest of the beds are in wards, providing adequate space for low cost Hospitalization.
7. We do not feel that if we do not carry through with our present efforts, we will resign ourselves to inadequate Hospital facilities for years to come.
8. We do not feel that the asking of the taxpayers of Seminole County to vote 2 mills for Hospital purposes is extravagant, since this will be the first time that Seminole County taxpayers have ever been required to invest any tax money for providing Hospital Facilities for its people. This can be said of few counties in the state. We feel that whatever ups and downs we may have in our economic condition that the care of our sick and injured will still remain as our prime responsibility.
