Obesity Affects Hiatal Hernia. DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 47 years old and have been having indigestion and problems swallowing. I have lost weight. I used to be 115 and I went down to 98. X-rays showed a hiatal hernia. I was put on medication and the condition has improved. I am eating better, but I seem unable to go beyond 105 pounds, sometimes to 108. I would like to know if surgery is necessary. Is there a diet I should follow? Would I ever be rid of this condition? Any advice you can give me on the treatment of hiatal hernia would be greatly appreciated. DEAR READER — This is a fairly common condition. It is literally a hernia of part of the stomach through enlargement of a normal hole in the diaphragm. We all have a hole where the esophagus passes through the diaphragm. In about half of people older than 40 a part of the stomach intermittently slides through the enlarged hole. Women are more likely to have this condition because of pregnancy. Anything that distends the abdomen may increase the pressure in the abdomen enough to literally push part of the stomach through the normal opening. Obesity is also a contributing factor. Whether it is fat or fetus the results are the same. The biggest problem with the hernia is that it affects the normal closure mechanism at the top of the stomach. This allows the contents of the stomach to leak backward into the lower esophagus to cause burning and this may stimulate esophageal spasms. This is probably why you were having difficulty in swallowing. Sometimes surgery is useful but the correction of the hernia may not correct the faulty closure method. In this case the symptoms will persist after the surgery because the leak is still there. Most cases can be managed without resorting to surgery. The most important aspect of the diet is that you should eat frequent small meals, not large ones, and you should wait at least two hours before lying down after eating. The purpose here is to keep the stomach empty so that there is not much to leak into the lower esophagus when you do lie down. The last meal of the day should be mostly carbohydrate and should contain little or no fat because fats slow down the emptying of the stomach. The head of the bed must be elevated so that the open stomach with the leaky valve won't be lying on its side and allow material to run into the esophagus. Avoid tight garments such as girdles or belts that press on the abdomen. Any pressure against the stomach from garments on the outside or fat on the inside will tend to squeeze the contents of the stomach into the lower esophagus and cause symptoms. It helps to decrease or eliminate the acid-digestive juices formed by the stomach. This means using antacids, avoiding alcohol, coffee, other caffeine containing beverages and cigarettes. I have explained how this works more fully in The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux. I am sending you a copy help you. Others who want this information can send $0.50 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

HOROSCOPE By BERNICE BEDE OSOL. For Tuesday, April 5, 1977. ARIES (March 21-April 19) This could be a profitable day, provided you're not dealing in anything speculative. Stay with "blue chip" lines. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't deprive yourself and others of pleasurable things today, even though they may cost a little more. The experience will be well worth the outlay. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Rather than try to duck challenges today, meet them head-on. Difficult assignments spur your ingenuity. You'll do yourself good. CANCER (June 21-July 21) Don't fret today if you find yourself in a tight spot. You'll extricate yourself very admirably. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't fret today if you find yourself in a tight spot. You'll extricate yourself very admirably. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Discard old, unworkable ways and experiment with new methods today. You will be surprised at the time and effort you can save. YOUR BIRTHDAY April 8, 1977. Be alert this year for unusual business propositions. Although they may seem outlandish, it behooves you to take a good look at them.

WIN AT BRIDGE By OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY. Reuse of England and Roger Trezel of France that gives 42 examples of blocking and unblocking plays. Point out that if South goes up with dummy's ace of hearts, trick one can be lost. The diamond finesse with impurity. The heart suit will block and South will have three spades, one heart, three diamonds and two clubs for a nice nine-trick total. Oswald: "South has no worries if hearts break 4-3. If they break 5-2, the ace play loses if West has led from king-queen. But as Resse and Trezel point out, the odds that West led from just one top honor are substantial and winning players go with the odds."

Anti-Mayor Petitions On Road To Certification

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer. Petitions submitted by citizens to the Casselberry City Council Monday night demanding a special election be called within 90 days to allow the citizens to vote on whether to repeal a resolution naming Mayor Gerald Christensen the city's full-time chief executive with a $17,800 annual salary can be certified before the end of this week. Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce said today that if she sees her entire staff to work on the certification that if South goes up with dummy's ace of hearts, trick one can be lost. The diamond finesse with impurity. The heart suit will block and South will have three spades, one heart, three diamonds and two clubs for a nice nine-trick total. $416 Million Tax Bite Called For In Askew Legislative Program

THE GRADUATE?

TALLAHASSEE — Calling for $416 million in new taxes, most of which would come from a higher sales tax, Gov. Reubin Askew today hit the legislature's opening session with an ambitious program in his State of the State message. Here are highlights of his recommendations: —Taxes. Askew called for $116 million in new taxes. Most of the money would come from raising the sales tax from four to five cents on the dollar and hiking beer, wine, liquor and cigarette taxes. —Relief. Askew called for $33 million in relief by exempting the first 750 kilowatt hours of electricity a month from the municipal utility tax, $50 million in property tax relief by providing rebates to low income homeowners and renters and $35 million in sales and property tax relief for businessmen. —Education. Recommending an additional $191 million in education spending, the governor called for a $32 million program to aid pupils who have fallen behind in basic skills. —Human services. Askew sought $13 million more to meet rising Medicaid costs and eliminate abuses and $4 million for better retardation facilities. —Transportation. He asked lawmakers to devote $7.3 million of the tax increase revenue to a program to improve Florida's roads. Askew said transportation needs have reached "a critical state." —Crime. Askew called for laws to stop infiltration of legitimate business by organized crime. He repeated his holy opposed call for registration of handguns and cautioned lawmakers that too many mandatory sentence laws could add to the problem of prison crowding. —Prisons. The governor asked legislators to build three new prisons to keep pace with a booming inmate population. —Environment. He keyed his environmental recommendations to enactment of laws protecting wetlands and state rather than federal control of Florida's drinking water program. —Insurance. Askew supported efforts to reduce insurance rates, although he said "I don't have an answer to this very complex problem." Askew did not comment on Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter's plan to abolish mandatory coverage and pain and suffering lawsuits. —Ethics and elections. Askew urged lawmakers to implement the disclosure provisions of his Sunshine Amendment. He said non-announced candidate should not be allowed to collect contributions and politicians should be prohibited from collecting slush funds for personal or future campaign use. —Human rights. Askew called for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and collective bargaining for farm workers. —Reorganization. He supported making the Public Service Commission appointive by the governor, instead of elective, and adding two members. Askew said the Department of Business Regulation should be headed by a secretary appointed by the governor instead of a board. —Gambling. Possibly fearing that casino gambling movements are gaining strength in South Florida, Askew said, "I am convinced it would be a tragic mistake for Florida. I am unalterably opposed to it." —Retirees. Programs he has outlined before, Askew said a tax increase is needed to fund state government adequately after two lean years of virtually no revenue growth. —Education. "We must provide our children with a good education," Askew said. "We must improve a neglected transportation network. We must continue helping the growing number of people who require government services. We must respond to burgeoning growth in our prison population. And we must retain quality salaries in state government, to provide these services, through salaries that are competitive with the private sector."

Seven Little Words Cause Mistrial In Murder Case

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer. No date was set for Mrs. Thomas' re-trial but court observers said it is expected in about a month. She remains free on $5,000 bond until that time. Corcoran had responded on Feb. 13 to the Thomas case, and Circuit Court Judge A. J. Hosemann Jr. granted a defense motion for a mistrial. Hosemann ruled that the words "she exercised her right to remain silent" from Det. William M. Cornez before the jury was fundamental, reversible error based on case law from the U. S. Supreme Court down to Florida appeals courts. If the trial had continued in its second day, Mrs. Thomas had been expected to describe how her husband was fatally stabbed with a steak knife the night of Feb. 13 as the couple scuffled in their living room during a domestic argument. Mrs. Thomas, on trial for second-degree murder in the death of Purvis Thomas Jr., manager of an Altamonte Springs jewelry store, had argued earlier that Sunday with her husband about a bale of hay placed near their home in a barn at Apopka, according to their 12-year-old son Brent. Brent told the five-man, one-woman jury on Monday that his dad said he was sorry he put the bale of hay in the wrong place and that he had accompanied his father on a drive to Daytona Beach. Brent testified that they returned to the 185 Jay Dr. residence near Altamonte Springs and Mrs. Thomas was eating a hamburger when Mrs. Thomas walked up and slapped him saying, "You're never going to hit me again." The youth said his parents "sort of tussled around" but he didn't see his dad hit his mother. Thomas was behind his wife and she said, "Can't you see he's hurting me? Get me a knife," Brent testified. He said he just sat on a couch instead and later went into the kitchen threatening to call the police. He said he heard more movement and arguing in the living room again when he re-entered the living room his father was on the couch "bleeding and holding his stomach" and his mother was "against the wall," holding a knife. Medical examiner Dr. G. V. Garay testified that Thomas died of a small stab wound that penetrated his heart and said the 1 1/2-inch-deep wound was "See MISTRIAL, Page 5A"
