Hearing postponed

LAKE MARY — It was hoped the law suits between Lake Mary and Seminole County governments, and Florida Power Corporation over the burial of power lines on Lake Mary Boulevard would be heard beginning at 1 p.m. Friday, but Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. yesterday ordered a postponement.

Lake Mary City Attorney Ned Julian said he expected the matter may be scheduled for the next trial period, which runs for two weeks beginning July 16. "If not," he said, "it would be the following month, and soon."

Florida Power is asking the court to temporarily prohibit the City of Lake Mary and Seminole County from making it bury its power lines along Lake Mary Boulevard, while Lake Mary, with support from Seminole County, is seeking to have the court order FPC to bury the lines.

The suit is centered on a beautification project that was to have begun this year.

Florida Power has estimated it will cost $1.45 million to bury the power lines.

'Black Widow' stay approved

ORLANDO — A federal judge issued a 24-hour stay Thursday blocking the execution of Judith Buenoano, less than four hours before the so-called "black widow" killer was scheduled to die in Florida's electric chair.

We just received word that the court in Orlando has granted a 24-hour stay," said Bob MacMaster, a spokesman for the Florida Department of Corrections in State.

U.S. District Judge Patricia C. Eawsett issued the stay at 8:12 a.m. EDT, MacMaster said. The stay is in effect until 8:12 a.m. tomorrow. That is what we are told at this time," he said.

MacMaster said the execution would be rescheduled. Meanwhile, the hearing before Eawsett continued Thursday afternoon.

Buenoano would be the second woman executed in the United States since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment.

Leaking gasoline tank excavated; Geneva water test awaited

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

GENEVA — Excavation crews removed a rusting gasoline tank with at least three holes from the ground in front of Geneva Grocery Wednesday morning, confirming as much as 800 gallons of gasoline rushed into the soil over the weekend, risking this community's fragile and irreplaceable water supply.

By Wednesday afternoon, the crews had dug about 20 feet under the ground where the tank was buried and still the backhoe brought up bucketloads of sand giving off the strong odor of gasoline. The bottom of the tank had rested about eight feet underground, meaning the gasoline had seeped at least 10 feet underground.

The bottom of the 1,000-gallon tank showed three pencil-sized holes, among more than a dozen rust spots and thin cracks at one end of the tank.

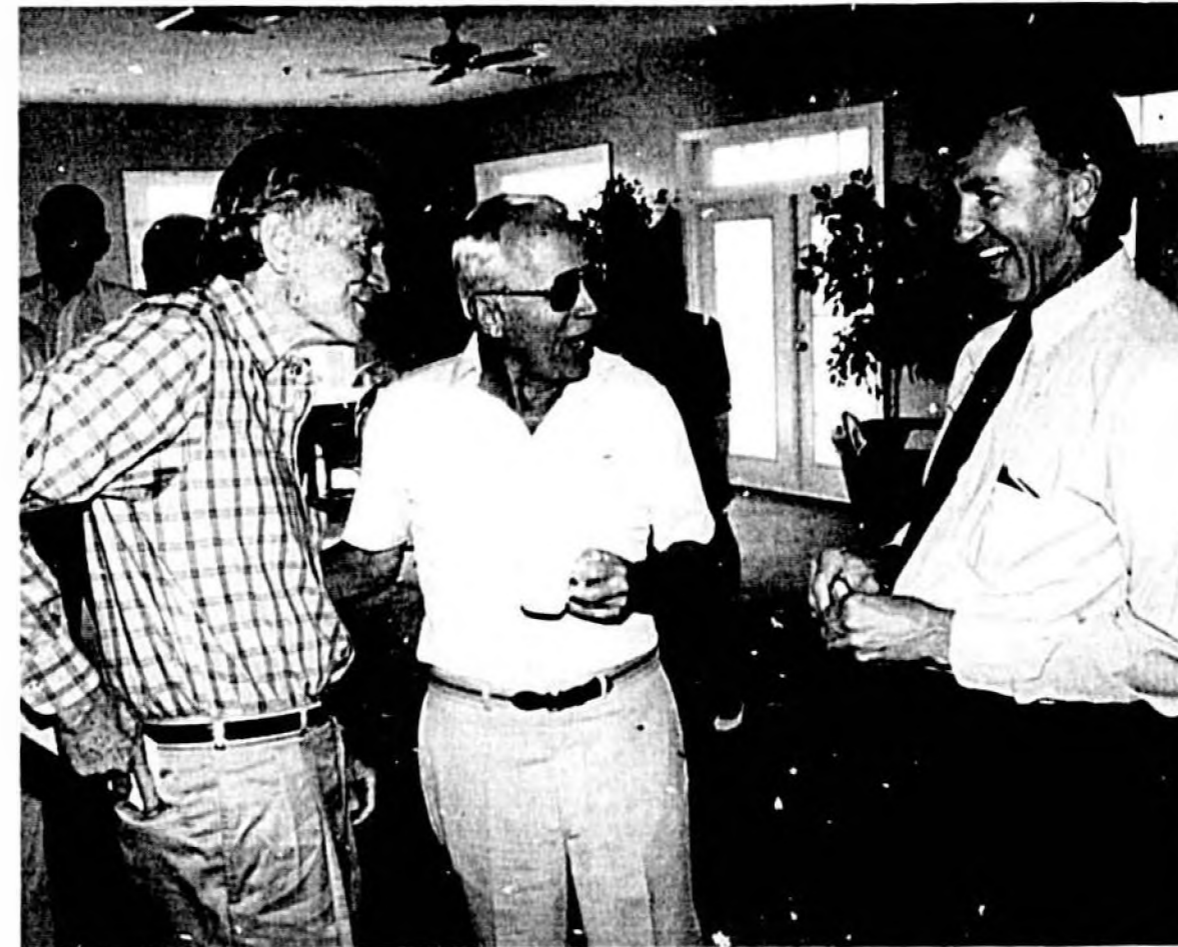

State and county officials monitoring the work Wednesday were hopeful the gasoline would be contained in the soil and not reach the groundwater which feeds the drinking-water aquifer.

Ron Bungard, an environmental consultant, said he recorded one reading of 1,000 parts per million (ppm) in the soil he tested from about two feet under the tank. Caroline Shine, an environmental specialist with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation, said any sensor readings of at least 500 ppm indicate soil is "excessively contaminated."

Democratic candidate for governor visits here

By J. MARK BARFIELD

WINTER SPRINGS — Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Lawton Chiles said this morning wages of existing Florida workers should be improved rather than importing more low-paid workers into the state.

Speaking at a fundraiser here this morning, the former U.S. Senator made these additional points:

- School officials need to develop more credibility with parents in seeking approval of locally financed school construction programs before state government should increase appropriations for the construction programs.
- Lottery dollars should not be used to replace general state revenues for education.

Road financing plan for mall modified

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Officials of Melvin Simon and Associates, developers of the proposed $200 million Seminole Town Centre, that will include office space and a hotel as well as a 1.2 million square foot shopping mall, are asking for about $13 million in tax increment financing again that would help pay for the road improvements that they will be making in the area, but the county will not be a part of the request this time. Sanford Commissioner Whity Eckstein said under the developer's new proposal only the city will establish a TF district. The money for the road improvements will be raised from property taxes from the project.

The only thing that is different is that that the county has no part in it this time," Eckstein said. "It's just the city. We really need this mall."

Under the TF, a percentage of the mall's property taxes would be used to help offset the costs of road improvements that the company intends to make.

When the developer asked the city and the county for TF aid earlier this year, county commissioners said that they did not want to put county ad valorem taxes toward use in the project.

Tom Schneider, vice president of the Indianapolis firm, said the chances of getting the financing.

TaxWatch hits Legislature's turkeys

By MICHAEL MOLINE
United Press International

FALLAHASSEE — Despite promises to curb government extravagance, the Florida Legislature stuffed 401 pork barrel projects worth $113 million into the new $27.4 billion state budget, a watchdog agency said Wednesday.

Despite a $200 million tax shortfall that forced program cuts and $1.5 billion in tax increases, lawmakers grabbed all the pork they could find and scattered back to their home districts with dreams of reelection dancing in their heads, the non-profit Florida TaxWatch group said in a report.

TaxWatch President Dominic Calabro urged Gov. Bob Martinez to veto offending items, which he said amounted to $20 for each household in Florida.

In Fallahassee, such local projects are known as turkeys.

This year, senior legislators pledged to cut down on turkeys, but we had a bumper crop anyway," Calabro said. This year, the Legislature and the special interests seem to have accelerated their frenzy, and that's part of what made it necessary to pass the largest tax and fee increase in Florida's history to balance the burgeoning budget.

The report stresses that not all the blame lies with lawmakers. It criticizes "petty parochialism" among voters who reward lawmakers for bringing home such projects.

Complicated 'report cards' being simplified for Seminole schools' pupils and parents

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald staff writer

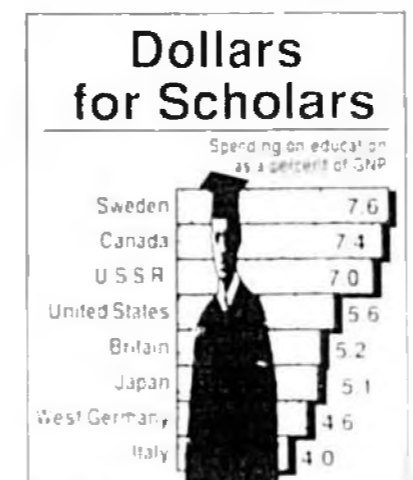

SANFORD — The Seminole County school district hopes to make it easier for parents to monitor the progress of their children with a quarterly report card that is less complicated than the current version.

The new versions have been presented to the board in a book session, but a vote has not yet been taken on the matter.

Right now there is just too much to look at," said Nancy McNamara, associate superintendent of elementary education.

The committee formed to review the old report cards had to make recommendations for the new cards and for monthly parent conferences with out the details of which items to retain and which to remove.

It was an important step," McNamara said. "It's hard to hard to agree on what should stay and what should go.

Pointing to the current kindergarten report card, McNamara explained the 126 items, including spaces to record a student's progress in recognizing certain shapes and objects and ability to do things like identify rhymes and words that begin with similar sounds, was too extensive to fill out and contained more information than many parents want.

If we cut down on the number of categories, we're still able to give the parents an accurate picture of their child's development," McNamara said.

She said that she also hopes the new operating manuals of the new program's reports will encourage greater cooperation between parents and teachers.

Guidelines to be set for office complex

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Following a controversial administrative rezoning of its property this year, Centrex Corporation is to present to the Lake Mary City Commission plans for an office complex near the Hills of Lake Mary.

The complex would be located on County Road 16 A on property that is surrounded on three sides by the Hills of Lake Mary subdivision.

In order to permit further work on the project, the city will consider a proposed developer's agreement that will set certain requirements for the individual establishments planned for the site.

The property was administratively rezoned from general commercial or C-1 to professional office, but some of the establishments planned would, under normal circumstances, fall under the commercial zoning. The planning staff has recommended approval providing the buildings are limited to a single story in height.

Centrex has proposed an office complex that would include a bank with drive-through service, a pharmacy, a child care center, a credit union, a beauty salon/barber shop, real estate offices, clinics, personal service establishments and various professional offices.

Fotopoulos, 30, of Daytona Beach, pleaded guilty to six charges in April.

He still faces trial Aug. 6 on two first-degree murder charges in Volusia County for allegedly killing a hitman and an employee of his who worked as a bartender.

In the counterfeit case, U.S. District Judge G. Kendall Sharp sentenced Fotopoulos to 33 months in prison, plus three years of supervision following his release and fined him $27,000.

Elephant crushes handler to death

FORT LAUDERDALE — An animal handler at a popular Broward County flea market was crushed to death Wednesday by a 6,500-pound circus elephant that apparently was spooked by a passing automobile, sheriff's officials said.

The handler, identified by Thunderbird Swap Shop officials as David Dickerson, 27, was taken by helicopter to Broward General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Dickerson died of a "severe crush injury to the chest," hospital spokesman Craig Bites said.

Agreement on hazardous waste sought

PENSACOLA — A firm that wants to build a hazardous waste treatment facility in the Panhandle has promised not to dispose of the waste on site, if Escambia County drops its opposition to the plan.

Steve Andrews, president of Trans Pac Inc. of Bonita Springs, told a county finance panel Tuesday that he would agree to deed restrictions prohibiting an incinerator and landfill on the site, if the county drops legal action against the company.

Trans Pac wants to build a $2 million treatment facility on 60 acres in the Escambia county community of Beulah, near the Alabama border.

It would be the first facility of its kind in Florida, and would accept hazardous wastes from other states.

Florida homes raided in betting probe

Eleven people were arrested in Pinellas County during an investigation of what may be a multi-million dollar sports bookmaking ring.

The arrests include the suspected ringleader there, Robert Meringo, 31, of St. Petersburg. His father, Lee Meringo of Blue Bell, Montgomery County, owned one of five homes searched in eastern Pennsylvania.

Police believe Lee Meringo ran the illegal operation, said Trooper Roger Hoffman of the Philadelphia state police barracks.

CentTrust official could face charges

ST. PETERSBURG — Federal regulators have prepared 10 criminal allegations against former CentTrust Bank chairman David Paul which could lead to charges of fraud, securities violations and bribery against the executive, a newspaper reported Wednesday.

Federal regulators charge in documents known as criminal referrals that Paul spent the Miami Thrift's money to bribe the mayor of Miami Beach, to buy oriental rugs and a sailboat and to renovate his lavish waterfront home on swank La Gorce Island, the St. Petersburg Times reported.

Florida man dies in I-95 wreck

POOLER, Ga. — Pooler police are trying to determine why an elderly Florida man's car ran off Interstate 95 and slammed into a parked tractor-trailer.

Harry Morgan, 70, of Holly Hill, Fla., was killed instantly in Wednesday's mishap near Pooler. Detective Sgt. Mark Revenew said there were no skid marks, and Morgan may have suffered a stroke just before his car went out of control. An autopsy will be performed.

Revenew said Morgan was traveling north when his car veered off the highway and crashed into the back of a tractor-trailer parked in the emergency lane. The truck driver, Daniel Winters, was not injured.

Police charged Winters with illegal parking.

Former tax chief pleads no contest

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Katie Tucker, former head of the state's tax office who was accused of carrying out a vendetta against her husband's union rival, pleaded no contest to a reduced charge of attempted official misconduct Wednesday and was placed on one year of probation.

Leon County Circuit Judge Ted Steilmeyer also ordered Tucker to pay $500 in court costs following her plea to the misdemeanor charge. Steilmeyer withheld adjudication, meaning the conviction would be purged from Tucker's record following probation.

Tucker had originally been charged with official misconduct, a third degree felony, following an investigation by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement into allegations she had ordered auditors of the Department of Revenue to investigate selected businesses.

One of the targets was Tallahassee businessman Donald G. Resha, who opposed Tucker's husband, Daniel Miller, in a bitter 1985 election for the presidency of the state AFL-CIO. Miller won.

The FDLE concluded that because of Tucker's orders, revenue officials audited Resha's two video stores and a book store in 1988 and investigated him for alleged involvement in money laundering, drug trafficking and other crimes. Resha was found innocent of all the allegations, but had to pay less than $500 in fines for discrepancies on his taxes.

In late January, Resha filed a $4 million defamation suit against Tucker, claiming she damaged his reputation and hurt his business and obstructed his constitutional right to seek office.

Tucker, who resigned under pressure from the DOR, denied any wrongdoing and insisted she called for a broad investigation of video stores and her instructions were misinterpreted by staff member Larry Wood.

Police: Men stole body for Dungeons ceremony

United Press International

LAKE CITY — Five young men who police said were serious players of the role-playing game Dungeons and Dragons have been arrested and charged with stealing the remains of a suicide victim, authorities said.

A tip from a young woman who had accompanied the five men to a cemetery where the corpse of Stephen Glen Morgan, 20, was stolen led to the Tuesday arrests, said Columbia County Sheriff's Investigator Russ Williams.

"I don't know what the motive was. We do know they were real serious into Dungeons and Dragons," Williams said. "As far as I know, they didn't know Glen Morgan, but they are being very uncooperative."

Sheriff's officials have charged Chris Cox, 21; Leon Thompson, 21; Fred Day, 19; Joseph Potigen, 22, and Vince Womack, 23, with disturbing the contents of a grave, a third-degree felony.

The suspects, who are all Lake City residents, were being held in the Columbia County Jail on $35,000 bond each.

Dungeons and Dragons is a role-playing game that is usually played at a table with a game board and pieces. Some players enact a more elaborate version of the game outdoors.

Critics of the game say some players blur the lines of reality and fantasy. Slayings, suicides and bizarre crimes have been blamed on Dungeons and Dragons.

Government agrees to help Noriega attorneys get paid

United Press International

MIAMI — The U.S. government agreed Wednesday to ask foreign governments to release millions of dollars in frozen assets of former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega to pay for his legal defense.

The government made the concession in an out-of-court agreement with Noriega's attorneys, who had threatened to withdraw from the case because of lack of funds to pay for Noriega's defense on drug-trafficking charges.

U.S. District Judge William Hoever approved the agreement during a 10-minute hearing, which Noriega did not attend.

Slain man's wife arrested at chapel

United Press International

TITUSVILLE — A woman who had just viewed her husband's body was arrested at a funeral home and charged with first-degree murder in connection with his death, authorities said.

Carmen Carpenter, 25, of Titusville, was charged Tuesday with murder for the shooting death of her husband, Robert, who was found dead from a rifle shot in his bedroom Saturday night.

Authorities had planned to wait for a grand jury indictment, but decided instead to arrest Carpenter after autopsy results became available Tuesday, said Brevard County Sheriff's spokeswoman Joan Heller.

Carmen Carpenter was arrested at the Brevard Funeral Home North two hours before other relatives were scheduled to view her husband's body.

The woman swooned as deputies placed her under arrest and she had to be helped into a police car and upstairs to the homicide investigator's office, officials said. She is being held without bond at the Brevard County jail.

Heller said the autopsy revealed that Robert

Carpenter was killed by a single gunshot behind the left ear.

"The autopsy indicated the wound couldn't have been self-inflicted, or (was) a wound you'd get struggling with someone else," Heller said.

Ken Studstill, a Titusville attorney representing Carmen Carpenter, said he was surprised by the arrest.

"I've been in contact with the authorities on her behalf and we certainly did not expect an arrest," he said.

Studstill said he would have cooperated with authorities to arrange an arrest at a more appropriate time and place.

Police discovered Robert Carpenter's body after his wife drove to her father's home in Orlando and told him her husband had been shot, Heller said. Her father, Marshall Hyatt, then called police.

Authorities said a neighbor told them she heard a woman yelling in the house on Saturday afternoon and then heard a loud noise. She told police she saw Carmen Carpenter leave the house quickly by car soon thereafter.

Studstill would not discuss what happened between the Carpenters Saturday.

Deputy demoted for young boy's arrest

United Press International

BROOKSVILLE — A sheriff's deputy who wanted state officials to charge a 3-year-old boy with criminal mischief for snatching a plastic flamingo from a neighbor's yard has been demoted.

Deputy Jim Burnett, 46, was placed on probation for six months and was assigned to an officer training program, a demotion from his deputy status, according to a memorandum written by Sheriff Tom Mylander released Tuesday.

A second memo detailed disciplinary action taken against Sgt. Lanny Corlew, Burnett's supervisor who reviewed the deputy's report and referred the Ridge Manor toddler to the State Attorney's Office and the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

"It is my feeling that you exhibited poor judgment and lack of common sense," Mylander wrote to Burnett, who along with Corlew was suspended for three days without pay.

Mylander criticized Corlew in one memo, saying, "either you did not read this report before approving it, or if you did read it, you did not understand the elements of probable cause for the charge placed on an individual, and in this case in particular the age of the individual."

The 3-year-old boy was referred to state officials on criminal mischief charges after the toddler uprooted a plastic flamingo from a neighbor's yard May 14. The child's mother quickly returned the lawn ornament and apologized, but the late neighbor called the Hernando County Sheriff's Office and demanded something be done.

Burnett responded to the call and agreed with the angry neighbor. He received needed charges be levied against the boy, and that the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services be notified.

A supervisor at the Sheriff's Office found the report after it received Corlew's approval and halted its progress.

The neighbor's persistence did not justify pursuing criminal charges against a 3 year old, sheriff's officials said.

Pough family reports threats

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — Relatives of James Pough were given police protection Wednesday after they reported receiving death threats in reprisal for his massacre of eight people in a loan office.

Authorities and family members refused to disclose details of the alleged threats or the steps being taken to safeguard relatives still living in Jacksonville, but Duval County sheriff's spokesman Asa Higgs said the matter was being taken seriously.

"They've had some threats on their lives. We're aware of it and we're dealing with it," Higgs said. "We're taking their word that somebody is calling them and threatening them. I feel quite sure somebody is."

The Monday attack on the General Motors Acceptance Corp. auto finance office was the final act in a two-day shooting spree that ended when Pough, 42, shot and killed himself in the loan office.

LONGWOOD — "Pave our dirt streets," was the word of almost 90 percent of city residents polled in a recent citizen attitude and opinion survey. Results of that survey, started in October, were revealed this past week by University of Central Florida graduate student Jim Coleman.

Generally, above average levels of satisfaction were evident in most city services, with the exception of maintenance of dirt streets and the cemetery, and the need to plant new trees on Longwood city streets.

Coleman, who was hired by the city to help in its strategic planning process, said, "The results of the survey will be of valuable use to city officials in various planning processes, as it is an indication of the community's attitudes, perceptions and concerns for the future."

Apart from the survey, the city commission met on May 2 to discuss goals and priorities for fiscal 1990/91, and according to Coleman, the results of his survey and the commission's goals are complementary and reinforce each other.

In compiling the citizen survey, Coleman conducted scientific random sampling procedures he believes represented all citizens in the jurisdiction of the city. The city mailed 500 surveys, and received 127 returns. Commercial establishments were not included.

Longwood's quality of life is good, according to 55.9 percent of the responses. Nearly 57 percent said they were satisfied with traffic flow on thoroughfare streets, and neighborhood street traffic was deemed satisfactory by 57.5 percent.

High marks, over 60 percent approval, were given to the city's public works water service and street maintenance, mosquito control, refuse collection and the Longwood Police and Fire Departments.

Areas of the survey where improvements in city action were indicated included the need for better lake maintenance, sidewalk construction, more progressive downtown beautification efforts, and an improvement in city employee responsiveness. Many respondents said there was too much red tape.

Coleman said, "The true value of the survey data will occur through continued, periodic surveys of the citizens of Longwood. The use of survey data will be conducive to the desirable state of proactivity rather than of reactivity. This will serve as a new focus and impetus to those programs that are currently under ongoing consideration."

Prison program must bid for state contracts

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — PRIDE Inc., the state's prison industries program, has been told by Department of Corrections Secretary Richard Dugger that it will have to submit bids to the state if it wants paint contracts.

In a June 6 memorandum, Dugger said if PRIDE wants to get into the paint-manufacturing business, it will have to bid on contracts just as any other vendor. The Gainesville Sun reported Wednesday.

"Should PRIDE decide to pursue the production of architectural (house) paints, they will be required to bid," Dugger's memo said. "Products bid by PRIDE will be tested in the same manner as other vendors' paint for conformance with the department's specifications."

PRIDE — an acronym for Prison Rehabilitative & Diversified Enterprises Inc. — was formed in 1981 by the Legislature to provide job training and experience.

A matter of time

At the Greenwich Observatory in England, there are two brass lines set in concrete in the ground. One is the Greenwich Meridian, the prime meridian, the zero point from which all the earth's longitudinal divisions are measured. The other, a few feet away, marks where the observatory mistakenly used to think the prime meridian was.

We were reminded of this by the recent publication in Nature, the British scientific journal, of a study suggesting that carbon-dating, the method scientists have relied on for more than a generation to determine the age of the oldest once-living things on earth, may not be accurate. Indeed, the older the object dated, the more inaccurate the carbon method seems to be. For a piece of coral 20,000 years old or so, which researchers retested using new methods, carbon-dating was apparently off by about 3,500 years.

That's not an insignificant error. Looked at one way, it's the equivalent of mistaking a 56-year-old for 65, something neither the person in question nor the Social Security Administration would probably take lightly. But looked at another way, how seriously would one be misled if a great-great-great-grandparent were misidentified as great-great-great-great-great?

There's no record of ships being lost at sea because of the Greenwich measuring error; nor should this new mistake, if it is a mistake, cause anyone to reconsider which came first, the dinosaur or the lap dog.

It should serve, rather, as a reminder of how imprecise some of our high-tech notions of precision really are — and of the many instances in which that doesn't matter at all. In counterpoint to those pedants and bureaucrats too bemused by test scores to socioeconomic indicators figured out to the nth place, it's good to recognize that sometimes "long ago" and "far away" are all one really needs to know.

A deadly circle

Under existing law, U.S. chemical companies can continue manufacturing pesticides that have been banned or never approved for use on food in this country because they are suspected carcinogens or pose other health dangers. The companies then ship the pesticides overseas, and all too often they come back as residues on the fruits and vegetables we import. It's all part of what's called the "circle of poison."

The Senate Agriculture Committee took an important step recently toward breaking that deadly circle at two points by approving legislation that would ban the export of these chemicals as well as the importation of produce that has been treated with them.

Although similar bills have been introduced for years, this is the furthest any such proposal had gone in Congress, and much of the credit belongs to California Sen. Pete Wilson, who persuaded his Republican colleagues to drop their traditional opposition to this kind of reform. As a result, these new prohibitions have a good chance of being approved later this year as part of the national farm bill.

A crackdown is long overdue. The World Health Organization estimates that hundreds of thousands of workers exposed to these chemicals in Asia, Africa and South America become ill every year, and thousands die. U.S. farm groups support the ban because they think the use of these dangerous chemicals — which are often cheaper than the pesticides allowed here — gives growers in other countries an unfair advantage.

And consumer groups support it because the new bill's ban will do more than the existing rules to keep these poisons from turning up in American grocery stores, where fully one-fourth of the fresh fruits and vegetables come from abroad.

Even the chemical manufacturers this year are admitting there's a need for reform. But rather than shutting down production, they'd prefer just to tighten inspections on imported produce. That might be helpful for American consumers, but it reveals a deplorable lack of concern for the health and safety of the rest of the world.

Banning the export of these pesticides from the United States doesn't mean that someone else won't start making them in another country. The chemical manufacturers, in fact, could set up shop themselves somewhere else, or lease their patents to a foreign company. There's nothing that U.S. law can do to stop that. But the European Community and the United Nations are beginning to press for stronger international pesticide controls of their own. And those efforts won't be helped if the United States keeps contributing to the problem. The time has come for this country to stop participating in this shameful traffic in chemicals that we know to be unsafe.

Military leisure under scrutiny

WASHINGTON — When it's playtime at Air Force golf courses, clubs and bowling alleys, it's pay time for American taxpayers. An internal Air Force audit shows that millions of tax dollars are being spent on fun and games, contrary to a congressional mandate to cut that spending. And, the expenses are being hidden by the local bases to fool Congress and the Pentagon.

Auditors are still crossing the "T's" and dotting the "i's" on the audit of the Air Force's Military Welfare and Readiness Division, or MWR, but we have obtained an official summary of their findings. It shows $20 million in fraud in the Air Force MWR, the agency that administers recreation and social facilities at the bases.

The Air Force Audit Agency investigated 32 of the 140 bases around the world, including the headquarters of eight Air Force commands. The auditors were looking at how these bases spend money on golf courses, tennis courts, bowling alleys, clubs, day care centers and other amenities. What they found wasn't pretty.

In 1985, Congress ordered the military to stop building major new recreational facilities and even stop large additions to the old ones. The auditors found that $8.4 million has been spent or is slated to be spent in violation of that order. Another $12.6 million in expenses were labeled by the auditors as "questionable."

Air Force sources told our associate Tim Warner that there is nothing to stop the fraud — no external or internal oversight system to keep the local brass from juggling the figures they report to the Pentagon and Congress.

The auditors found cases where base officers deliberately under-reported their expenses, or split a major construction contract into several small contracts that didn't need approval from headquarters. In some cases, the base commanders have ordered the construction of a new officers club or golf course in blatant disregard for the congressional mandate.

Four Air Force bases spent more than $1.5

It shows $20 million in fraud in the Air Force MWR, the agency that administers recreation.

million total to build or make major repairs to golf courses. Myrtle Beach Air Force Base in South Carolina spent $646,505 on golf course construction without congressional approval. The city of Myrtle Beach is already the golf course capital of the United States, but apparently the Air Force brass needs its own. Similarly, Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio spent $446,068 on a golf course in violation of the order from Congress. At Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma, it was a $772,000 skeet-shooting club.

At Yokota Air Force Base in Japan, it was a $1 million bowling alley. Also at Yokota, the brass simply had to have a $221,600 Italian restaurant. It went out of business in two years. The auditors put that one under the heading of "questionable expenditures."

The auditors also found what they called a "conspiracy" to mislead the Pentagon and Congress by splitting major construction projects into smaller dollar amounts.

Mildenhall Air Force Base in England had approval to spend $70,000 repairing the officers club. Instead, the base spent $2 million on miscellaneous repair contracts. At Ramstein Air Force Base in Germany, internal memos disclose that base officials worked out a plan to under-report their expenses, the audit says.

GEORGE F. WILL

Keep art free — from tax dollars

WASHINGTON — "This," says Rep. Newt Gingrich, speaking of (and like) George Bush, "is a traditional values kind of guy." This testimonial was elicited not by Bush's stand against the menace of flag burning but by his reversal of position regarding subsidies for the arts.

Bush no longer opposes restrictions on grants from the National Endowment for the Arts. Now he favors support for "good projects" but not obscene ones.

The controversy about protecting the flag testifies to a consensus so strong that no action is needed. The controversy about the arts testifies to the absence of the sort of consensus needed to justify the NEA.

The flag merits special protection as a symbolic summation of national values. Thus the Supreme Court is wrong in ruling that the Constitution, which both depends on and establishes those values, forbids criminalizing desecration of the flag. But the strength of public fury about flag desecration proves that it would be disproportionate to amend the Constitution to combat sporadic desecrations.

Bush says flag burning "endangers the fabric of the country." Such hyperventilating signifies insincerity; it is the synthetic indignation of the politically calculating Bush pandering to a consensus the existence of which makes his proposed amendment superfluous.

The public is far more volatile regarding the flag than art. What is notable is not that some art scandalizes but that so little art does. What distinguishes 1990 from, say, 1875 or 1913 is the indifference of the public to art.

Robert Hughes, writing in The New Republic, says, "When Parisian gallery-goers in the 1870s recoiled in horror from the 'leprous' blue shadows in a Monet, it was because they felt an important contract had been broken — the agreement between painting, as a primary form of social discourse, and reality." Painting has long since lost almost all its power to engage the public's passions.

Even before it lost its primacy to photography (a subsidized exhibition of homoerotic photographs triggered the current controversy) and other modern media, painting had lost its power by shredding the contract Hughes speaks of. That contract was shredded by the stance of modernism, with its aura of anger and repudiation toward the inherited culture and the traditional task of transmitting the culture's values.

On May 29, 1913, there was turbulence between two morally passionate groups at the Theatre des Champs-Elysees. The occasion was the premier of Stravinsky's ballet "Le Sacre du printemps." In a sense, the turmoil in the auditorium ratified the art. By turning ballet, the most graceful of arts, into a jarring experience, modernism defined itself. It was art as sensational event, as provocation severed from improving purpose. The meaning of the art was in the audience's tumultuous reaction to it.

Today the problem with public funds for the arts is not just that subsidies sometimes go to projects in which urinating (and simulated sex acts and whip handles in amuses) is important. The large problem is that there is no consensus about what art is, or why it is important.

The definition of art has been democratized: Art is whatever anyone calling himself an artist says it is. This is the philistinism of the elites. It makes the "arts community" (the phrase connotes ostentatious separation from the larger society) the most arrogant lobby. That "community" demands the most extravagant entitlement — public funds for no defined public purpose. Setting limits on the kinds of art for which public funds shall go (for example, excluding blasphemy or obscenity) is called "censorship."

If art has no improving purpose, it has no claim on public resources. Anyway, when there is no consensus concerning the purpose, or even the nature, of art, political institutions are especially ill-suited to the task of formulating standards for the intelligent disbursement of subsidies.

Some artists seeking subsidies accept the need to acknowledge a public purpose and they say: Shocking, provoking and discomfiting the public is good for it. Fair enough. They are free to do so.

But the reverse result today is that political institutions, rendered passive by the fear of being branded philistine, acquiesce in the demand for unrestricted subsidies to support the shocking, provoking and discomfiting of the subsidizers. Mark my words. It is only a matter of time before someone burns a flag, calls it "kinetic art," and gets a grant to take his act on the road.

The argument for subsidizing the arts has a distinguished pedigree. It holds that the arts elevate the public mind by exposing it to beauty that gives rise to ennobling sentiments that heaven society.

Fair enough. Let artists be free from the taint of public purpose, and thus from the burden of public funds.

Now he favors support for 'good projects' but not obscene ones.

Cheers to the Juice

I am so glad to see the Orlando Juice get a little favorable publicity. I can appreciate Mr. Campbell's enthusiasm of this team.

I too became a "Juice" fan last season. I had decided to run out to one of the games and take a few photos and get a few autographs for my brother who is a serious card collector. Well, one game and I was hooked.

I have over 200 pictures and autographs that I took during the season. The players were great, willing to pose for pictures, sign autographs, or just stand around and chat with the fans. They took kids from the stands and tossed the ball around with them before the games. Friends I took to the game were given game balls, got autographs and met a lot of the players.

The players playing on these teams are exciting, good ball players, that are fun to watch and interesting to meet. Some of my favorites are Jose Cruz, "Doc" Ellis (he's the medicine this league needs), Earl Weaver, Speedy Hect, Johnny Grubb, Bill Stein, Ozzie Virgil Jr., Ozzie Virgil Sr., Felix Millan, and Sal Butera. There are too many players to mention but each and everyone of them did their part to make this league happen. Now it's time for the fans to get behind them.

If you didn't get a chance to see these guys in action, you missed a real treat. Hopefully they will get a second chance and a lot more publicity. I'm sure if the fans know all these great players are there, and that they play a good game of ball, they will come to the park.

Support for Orlando Juice

We were very impressed with the article in Sunday's Herald about Mr. Campbell fighting to keep the Juice in Orlando.

I am also a fan of the Juice, and got to meet and know most of the players, they were all so nice.

It is not every day a family can go to a ball game and talk to the players as I did, get to know them, get autographs, take pictures with them, and hear about their family, to see these men take little kids out of the stands onto the field with them, pitch a baseball around and spend their time with kids makes you feel awful good.

I am a grandmother and I was so impressed with this team that I have collected their cards, photos, anything I can find about the Juice, these I will always treasure.

I have talked to a lot of people, and 9 out of 10 didn't even know that players like Jose Cruz, Vida Blue, Ozzie Virgil Sr. and Jr. and managers like Mr. Earl Weaver were at these games, because there was no publicity to let people know that "Great Players" like these were playing. I only wish there were more people like Mr. Campbell fighting to keep these Great Players alive.

Bakker lines up ally for appeal Chiles

By JUNE PRESTON
United Press International

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Imprisoned television evangelist Jim Bakker said Wednesday he has lined up a powerful ally to represent him on appeal, constitutional expert Alan Derahowitz.

Bakker, 50, is serving a 45-year prison term at the Federal Medical Center in Rochester, Minn. for his conviction last year on 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy stemming from money-raising tactics at PTL.

"Alan Derahowitz has joined the legal defense team along with Harold Bender of Charlotte, N.C., and Don Ervin of Houston, Texas," Bakker said. "Alan has agreed to be the voice on my appeal. He will make the presentation of our case."

Derahowitz, 51, is a Harvard law professor and widely recognized for his expertise on constitutional law.

He currently represents New York hotel queen Leona Helmsley in her tax fraud case and was recently described by Time magazine as a kind of judicial Saint Jude, the lawyer of last resort for famous criminals.

Derahowitz could not be reached for comment, but Ervin said he believes Bakker will find some measure of victory in the appeal filed Monday with the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

Ervin cited several errors allegedly made by U.S. District Judge Robert "Maximum Bob" Potter, who presided over Bakker's trial last fall in Charlotte, just 10 miles from Fort Mill, S.C., where Bakker built his PTL ministry and its religious retreat.

"We raise six grounds for appeal based on errors made by the trial court," said Ervin. "The fact is no fair jury could have been empaneled in that community."

"To make matters worse, the judge didn't do much to select a fair jury," Ervin said. "He denied individual voir dire. He denied a change of venue. He denied defense requests to individually question the jurors. He denied a request to sequester the jury."

"He failed to take those steps necessary to ensure the jury would be impartial," the lawyer said.

Chiles appeared this morning at a fundraiser at Tuskawilla Country Club sporting an open-collared plaid shirt, khaki slacks and well worn Rockport walking shoes.

Fundraiser organizer Bob Hattaway said he hoped to take in $25,000 from the two dozen people attending. Because Chiles has a self-imposed limit of $100 per contribution, Hattaway said people attending the fundraiser were encouraged to raise $1,000 each.

Hattaway said the goal was "nearly met."

Chiles said the state traditionally has promoted economic development in a way completely opposite to the manner that is most beneficial to Floridians.

"You should not try to attract people to Florida in the way that it has traditionally been done — with low wages and lots of sunshine," Chiles said. "You can't compete with countries like Taiwan. Instead we need the smart wages."

Chiles recommended enhancing programs for the existing state employees, educational program at state colleges, vocational schools, and community colleges for the existing work force in the state. Chiles said to re-educating low-wage earners to perform more skilled jobs, wages will increase and government tax bases will be expanded.

"We need to help people here rather than bring more people in," Chiles said.

Chiles also recommended state "partnerships" with business and local government to develop his vocational improvement program.

Chiles said failures of voters to approve bond issues for school construction, similar to the recent failure of the $519 million bond issue in Seminole County shows the lack of credibility school officials have with voters. Chiles said school officials need to convince voters of the real need for new schools in growing counties rather than seek additional money from the state.

"School officials need to establish the credibility they need to convince citizens they can deliver services the most effective and efficient way they can," he said.

While admitting he's not studied the issue closely, Chiles said if elected governor he finds that a significant number of counties are turning down bond issues for badly needed new schools, he would consider making more state money available for those schools.

Chiles said the state has deceived Florida residents by telling them lottery money would enhance educational programs when in fact much of the lottery revenues raised has been used to replace previous state spending.

"Outside of $50 million to pre-kindergarten education, the rest of the lottery money has been a wash," Chiles said.

Chiles said if elected he will try to find "some way" to assure that lottery revenues will actually enhance Florida education.

said. "We believe the students whose parents are involved with their education do better in school."

A new report card, which will be used for kindergarden through second grade, allows the teacher to mark 32 areas with a grade of S (Satisfactory) or N (Needs to Improve) and to further mark the grade with a check for an area of concern or an "X" to be placed in a box that is designated either at or below expectation.

The S and N grades will be used only in the general categories of Language Arts, Mathematics, Social Studies, Science, Art, Music and Physical Education.

"Students must still master 95 percent of certain essential skills before passing on to the next grade," explained McNamara. "We just give the teachers a little more freedom as to how and when they complete the work."

The lists of essential skills for all elementary grades is being revamped. The current kindergarden list has 60 skills which must be mastered before the youngster is passed on to the first grade.

A report card designed for the third through fifth grade will allow for teachers to place letter grades (A-F) in the same grade categories as well as offering room for checks and X's in areas which need improvement or where the student is meeting expectations.

The district hopes to make it just a little easier for students to make passing grades.

Under the old grading system, a grade below 70 percent was failing. Under the new proposal, youngsters earn a grade of 65 and still pass. Previously, a D was given for a grade between 70 and 75, grades of 65 to 74 will now bring the same mark. A grade of C was given for a number grade of 76 to 85, now it will be given for 75 to 84. To earn a B, students previously had to have a grade between 86 and 93 while they previously had to have an 85 to 93 grade. A score of 94 and above is still required for an A.

McNamara is pleased with the streamlined report cards.

"They will make things so much easier for everyone," she said.

The school board is expected to approve the new report cards and grading systems later this summer.

Centrex will also provide a bike path and pedestrian access to its office complex from the entrance to the Hills of Lake Mary.

The administrative rezoning came after Hills of Lake Mary residents complained about the commercial zoning granted to Centrex. The residents feared traffic from a commercial development would disturb the single family homes surrounding the Centrex property.

The commission will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers at 158 Country Club Road.

for higher ground," the report says.

The TaxWatch turkey list includes $1 million for a civic center in Panama City, $1 million to lure the 1994 World Cup soccer games to Florida, $250,000 for a task force on the Super Bowl and scores of historical preservation and cultural programs.

TaxWatch defines turkeys as projects that are not subject to agency or legislative committee review, that subsidize private concerns, benefit narrow local interests, or are of a low priority compared to other state needs.

"Turkeys also include 'fiscally offensive' items that duplicate existing programs and partial-year items that will have to be funded for a full year later, which will have greater impact on the state budget in the future.

One such "fiscally offensive" project cited is $250,000 for a meals-on-wheels program for AIDS sufferers in Dade County. TaxWatch said that item duplicates an existing state program.

district this time are better because there will be no county involvement.

"The city would be the only participant in the TIF," Schneider said. "I think the county felt it would set a bad precedent. This is a formal process of going back to ask the city to ask the county to delegate authority to allow the city, under its charter, to establish a tax increment financing district." Eckstein said the TIF money would amount to about $3.3 million over 14 years.

"If you figure it out, that only comes to about 33 percent of the taxes that we would have had," Eckstein said. "We'll get so much more money in taxes for this. We desperately need this mall."

County Commissioner Sandra Glenn said the county commission must give its approval for the TIF, even if the plan doesn't place a claim on county money.

"If the city of Sanford wants to finance it with their tax money, that's their business," Glenn said. "I don't see any problem with approving it."

City Manager Frank Faison said he could not estimate the amount of the money to be derived from the TIF.

Schneider said the company will be making about $4.7 million in road improvements, most of them to city roads.

These will include the six-laning of State Road 46 from Interstate 4 to County Road 15 and the four-laning of Oregon Avenue from Rinehart Road to County Road 15.

Developers hope to break ground for the shopping mall, the first component of the project, by spring 1991.

Geneva

"It's contaminated soil," Shine said. "The indications are this was a sudden release of gas into the soil."

Bungard said a sample taken at 15 feet in depth still showed "high levels" of contamination, but less than the 1,000 ppm reading.

Geneva Grocery owner Al Rabah said the tank was filled Friday morning to test it for leaks. He said the tank's interior had just been coated with fiberglass to protect it from leaking by Alan Chemical Co., Fort Pierce. When he checked the tank Saturday morning, he found it empty and promptly notified authorities.

Dick Stucklen, an Alan Chemical official supervising the excavation, said when the crew inspected the tank after it had been sandblasted last week, they saw no holes or cracks.

"That's all I know for now,"

Stucklen said. He said Alan would pay to remove the contaminated soil, but was uncertain who would replace the tank.

Environmental health specialists from the Seminole County Public Health Unit began taking samples of wellwater from a dozen homes near the Avenue C store which will be tested in Jacksonville for benzene and other components of gasoline. Dr. Jorge Deju, county public health director, said the test results could be obtained as early as Friday afternoon.

If those tests show drinking water at homes near the store is contaminated, additional samples will be taken from homes further from the store to be tested, Deju said.

Seminole County and DER have tanker trucks available to supply potable water to residents if needed. A young couple with two infants reportedly bought several bottles of water from the grocery Wednesday afternoon, although test results won't be known for at least another day.

Throughout the day, as Alan Chemical crews used a backhoe to dig out the hole where the rusting tank was removed, the curious drove and walked by to examine the progress.

"They need to get in here with a bigger bucket and get that dirt out of there," said Wayne Johnson, 451 Main St., about three blocks from the store.

"I'm really peeved off about this," said one man driving by. "It's the bubble they're messing with."

The "bubble" is the Geneva Bubble, the name residents give to the 20-square mile pocket of drinking water lying about 100 feet under Geneva. A three-year-old study showed the bubble is completely surrounded and underlain with undrinkable saltwater. Should the bubble become contaminated, the water may not be safe to drink until rainwater dilutes the pollutants or the contaminant is drawn out by wells dug to withdraw the pollution.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Stieb, Jays crush Boston

Both the Blue Jays and pitcher Dave Stieb are on target to achieve year-end goals, but don't talk to Stieb about it.

Stieb boosted his record to 10-2 and dropped his ERA to an American League leading 2.26. In turn, the Blue Jays increased their AL East lead to two games over Boston with their 10th victory in their last 12 games and are one game closer to a 100-win season.

The right-hander scattered seven hits over 7 2-3 innings while striking out seven and walking none.

In other AL action, New York nipped Milwaukee 5-4, Oakland pounded Detroit 12-7, Baltimore beat Cleveland 3-1, Chicago edged California 2-1, Texas pummeled Minnesota 8-0 and Seattle defeated Kansas City 3-2.

SOFTBALL

Team needed

The Sanford Recreation Department is in need of a men's softball team to complete the field for its Wednesday night "D" league that will be played at Pinchurst Park starting Wednesday June 27.

So far three teams are entered but a fourth is desperately needed. Cost to play in the league will be $275. The league will run for nine weeks with the winner advancing to the post season City Championship Tournament.

Interested parties should contact Jim Adams or Eveline Bennett at the Sanford Recreation Department during normal working hours at 330-5697, as soon as possible.

YOUTH BASEBALL

SYBA fund raiser

The raffle is being run in conjunction with Leonard Shell and first prize will be 100 gallons of gasoline. Second prize will be 20 gallons of gasoline and an oil change, filter and lube.

The drawing will be held during the final game of the sub-district tournament July 7 at Fort Mellon Park.

Tickets will cost $1 and can be obtained from any of the players who have been chosen to play on the All Star teams this year.

YOUTH BASKETBALL

Openings are still available for the second and third weeks of the 1990 Bill Payne Basketball Camp, sponsored by Seminole Community College and the SCC Foundation.

The camp is open to boys and girls ages 7-14 and is geared for the player who is still learning the basics of basketball.

The next session will start Monday, June 25 and run through Thursday, June 28. The final session will run the week of July 9-12. The camp runs from 2-5 p.m. each day.

Cost of the camp is $45, which includes insurance, instruction, T-Shirt and awards. For more information call: Bill Payne at 323-1450, extension 400.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Phillies win intrastate clash

Philadelphia has reminded Pittsburgh of the team that claimed first place in the National League East from the Pirates for one day before injuries and poor pitching plummeted the Phillies back to .500.

Aided by improved health and pitching, the Phillies beat the Pirates 7-2 Wednesday afternoon to claim their fifth victory in six games. Bruce Ruffin pitched eight effective innings and Lenny Dykstra and Tom Herr sparked the offense.

The Pirates, 38-26, lost for the fourth time in five games and allowed the 34-30 Phillies to close within four games of the division lead held by the Pirates for all but one day since April 22. That was May 26, when the Phillies grabbed a one-half game lead.

In other NL action, New York flushed St. Louis 6-3, San Diego edged San Francisco 4-3, Montreal nipped Chicago 3-2, Cincinnati overpowered Atlanta 9-8 and Los Angeles stopped Houston 3-2.

Altamonte guns down Orlando

By ROBBIE STOCK
 Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — The Altamonte Springs Big League team walked into its game with Southwest Orlando missing four bullets from its six-shooter lineup — Mike Merthie, Neill James, Chris Plecones, and Curt Prom. But they used the remaining two bullets to gun down their foe, defeating Southwest 8-2 for their 12th win of the summer.

Dwayne Clark provided one of the shots for Altamonte, tossing a five-hitter over six innings. He struck out four. Clark also helped his own cause, drilling a hanging curveball over the left-field wall for a solo homer in the second inning.

"He started out kind of bad, but he got his concentration later in the game," said Altamonte coach Woody Woodard. "He pitched a good game."

The other slug came from shortstop Jason Sewell, who made eight of the last nine putouts in the game, including a running, over-the-catch grab of a Ray Cassilas snare in the bottom of the sixth. Sewell also pitched the seventh inning and struck out the side, including Juan Santana on a fastball to end the game.

With the win, Altamonte set up a double-header showdown between themselves and Rolling Hills/Pine Hills for the league lead. The first game kicks off at 1 p.m. on Sunday in Orlando.

Sewell started the scoring off in the first. After reaching on a fielder's choice in which Steve Shelman took out the Southwest second baseman on a double play attempt, Sewell advanced to second on a Terry Brown single. Sewell then attempted to steal third and the throw slid under the third baseman's glove, allowing Sewell to score.

After Clark homered in the second inning, Altamonte struck for two more runs. Charlie Curley singled, advanced to third on Shelman's left-handed single, and scored on a passed ball. Shelman, after stealing second, scored on an error by the shortstop. Southwest made four errors in the game.

Southwest struck for two runs in the third, but then their bats turned quiet, advancing only two runners to first base in the next four innings.

Three Southwest errors and four Altamonte hits highlighted a three-run fifth inning. Paul Stein, Chuck Lamb, Joe DiFrancesco, and Brown all connected for singles while Clark got to first on an error and Charlie Curley came through with a sacrifice fly. Although they batted around, Altamonte could manage only three runs.

DiFrancesco scored the last run of the game, walking, advancing to third on a Sewell hit, and crossing the plate on a wild pitch.

While Woodard didn't seem impressed by the performance of his team — he was impressed by an individual — Terry Brown.

"He's been in a slump," said Woodard of Brown, who played for Lake Brantley this past year. "He hit the ball well. He's starting to break out of his slump."

He also stressed how important this weekend's action would be — and how he needed his four bullets back in his gun.

"We'll have our hitter's back," said Woodard. "This is the weekend."

Oviedo tops Sanford in baseball exhibition

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Oviedo Babe Ruth League Bambino All Stars and the Sanford Little Major League All Stars put on an offensive display Wednesday night as Oviedo came away with a 15-12 triumph over Sanford in an exhibition game at Roy Holler Junior Field.

Managers Bill Thomas of Oviedo and Steve Laurence of Sanford arranged the exhibition so their teams could get a game under their belts before getting into tournament play. They even played seven innings so all the players could get some action.

Oviedo does not get to savor its victory however as they open district play against Miami tonight at Longwood. Should Oviedo win the District they will advance to Tavares for the State Tournament with hopes of advancing to Regional and National Tournament level play.

Sanford still has two weeks left before it hosts the Sub-District Tournament starting July 5.

This year's tournament will be a round robin affair with each team playing the other. The schedule for Thursday, July 5 has Orlando S.A.Y. taking on Leesburg at 6 p.m. and Orlando Recreation facing Sanford at 7:30 p.m. On Friday, July 6, Orlando Recreation will play Leesburg at 6 p.m. and Sanford will challenge S.A.Y. at 7:30 p.m. The final day of the tournament, Saturday, July 7, has Sanford squaring off with Leesburg at 6 p.m. and S.A.Y. and Orlando Recreation closing the tournament at 7:30 p.m. The winner will be decided by head-to-head competition. The winner of the tournament will advance to Leesburg for the District Tournament and a right to go to the State Tournament in Panama City.

Sanford broke on top with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first inning. Corey Williams singled and Cedric Williams reached on an error. Alexis Acosta sacrificed the runners up a base and Donnie Hinson walked to load the bases. Paul Evans was hit-by-a-pitch to score Corey Williams and Shawn Eason walked to score Cedric Williams and Sanford led 2-0.

Oviedo got on the board with a five-run third inning. Joe Thomas reached on an error but Mike Scutero forced Thomas at second.

Jake Fessler walked and Chris Spies singled to load the bases. Amile Mohabar walked to score Scutero and Don Glorius singled in Fessler and Spies. Mohabar and Glorius came around to score on a pair of wild pitches to make the score 5-2.

Three walks, an Eason single and two wild pitches allowed Sanford to tie the score after three innings of play.

Oviedo came back with a seven run fourth to take the lead for good. Five walks, a Fessler single and a hit batsman accounted for the runs.

Sanford scored four runs in the fourth when Byron Deese singled, Dustin Demarco reached on an error, Bart Dixon singled in two runs and scored on a wild pitch, Phillip Reynolds singled and Alberto Williams drilled a two-run home run.

Fessler walked and scored a run in the fifth to give Oviedo a 13-9 lead before Sanford scored three runs in the bottom half of the inning to close to within 13-12.

A Corey Williams triple, a Cedric Williams double, an Acosta single and a Bart Dixon groundout scored the runs for Sanford.

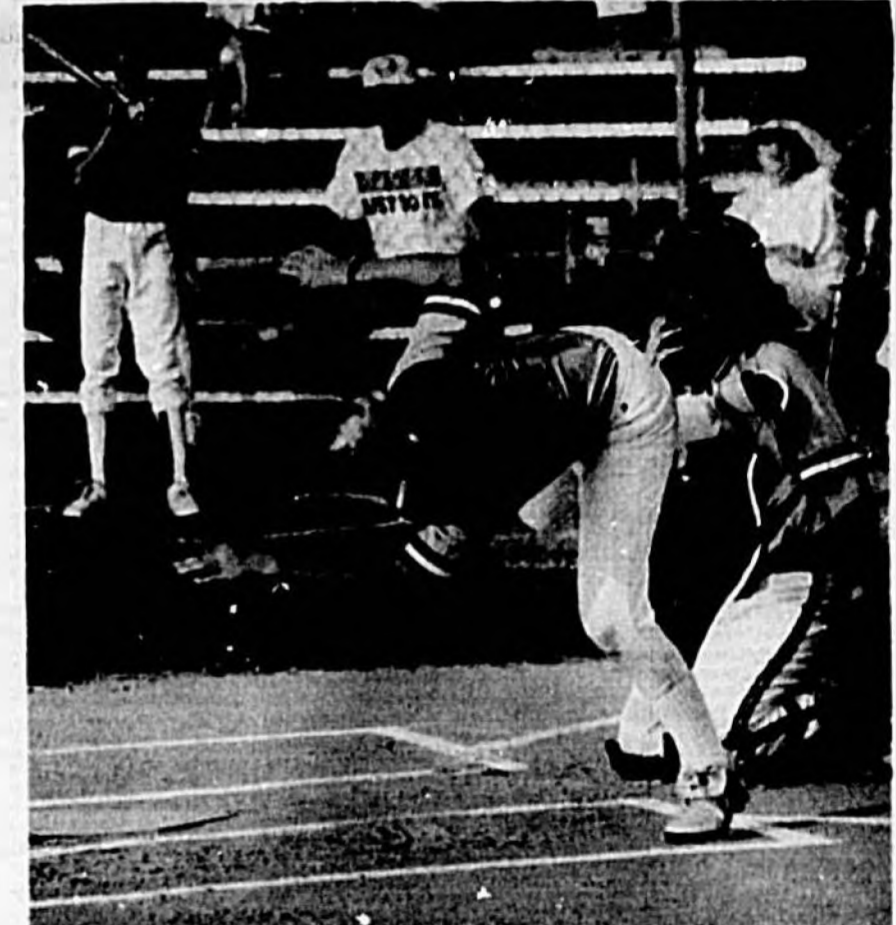

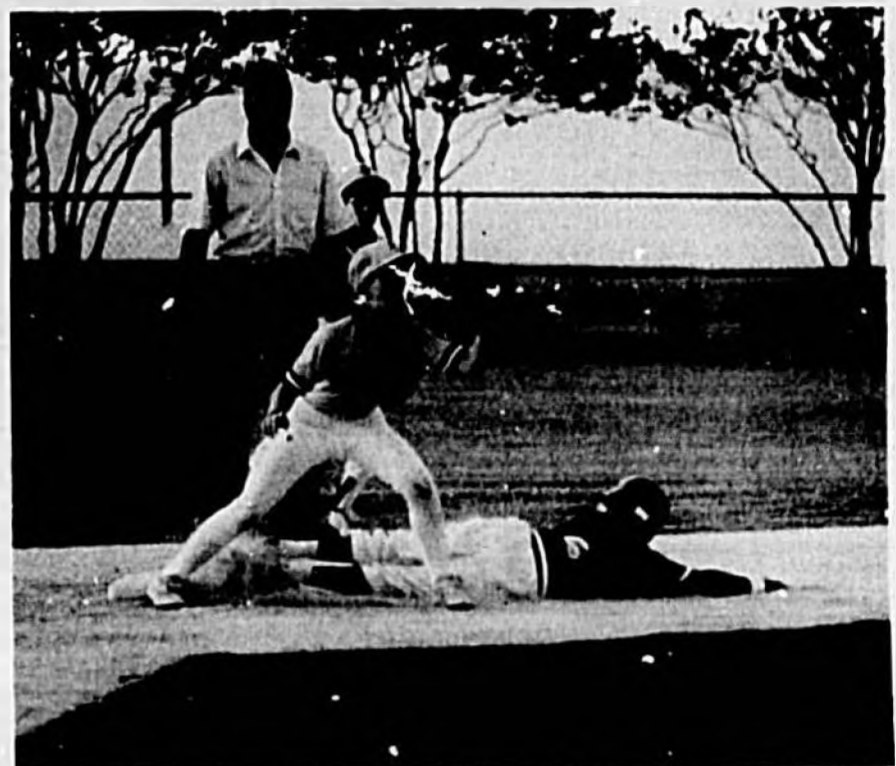

Oviedo scored two insurance runs in the sixth after two were out. Duncan Caldwell and Nathan Peck walked and both runners came around to score when Thomas reached on an error.

Sanford outhit Oviedo 13-6 in the game but Oviedo took advantage of 12 walks and two hit batters to claim the win.

Fessler led the Oviedo attack by reaching base five straight times. He was 2 for 2 with two runs scored, two walks and was hit by a pitch. Other contributors were Scutero, Spies and Glorius (one single and two runs scored each), Levi Long (single, run scored), Mohabar and Caldwell (two runs scored each) and Thomas and Peck (one run scored each).

Doing the damage for Sanford were Corey Williams (triple, double, single, two runs scored), Alberto Williams (home run, single, run scored), Cedric Williams (double, single, two runs scored), Reynolds (single, two runs scored), Acosta, Dixon, Eason and Mike Howard (one single and one run scored each), Deese (single) and Demarco (run scored).

Cedric Williams did a good job pitching the first two innings.

Cedric Williams (top, sliding) of Sanford and Jacob Fessler (getting hit by a pitch, bottom) of Oviedo, were two of the hitting stars for their respective teams in exhibition baseball action at Ft. Mellon Park Wednesday night. Williams had a double and a single and was on base four times while Fessler had two hits and was on base five times as Oviedo outscored Sanford 15-12.

Bullets bop Adcock in 9-3 victory

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — This was not the Adcock Roofing team which beat rival Lake Mary yesterday. It most certainly was not the team which shows so much promise for the future, as does the real Adcock Roofing team. Tonight a fatigued team took the field which more closely resembled the Bad News Bears: only with less heart and suffered a 9-3 defeat at the hands of the Lyman Bullets.

The game was perfectly bearable through three. In fact, Adcock took a 1-0 lead in the second when Demetry

RMC, SPBA, Crazy Wings victorious

From staff reports

SANFORD — It was a big offensive night in the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "D" Softball League at Chase Park with RMC Corporation, the Sanford Police Benevolent Association and Crazy Wings staying undefeated.

RMC stopped Harcar Aluminum Products 10-4, SPBA handled Waddles Grocery 15-6 and Crazy Wings outscored HG 21-15.

With two weeks gone in the season RMC, SPBA and Crazy Wings are all 3-0, while the other three teams are 0-3.

Next week, SPBA plays HG at 6:30 p.m., Crazy Wings faces RMC at 7:30 p.m. and Harcar squares off with Waddles at 8:30 p.m.

RMC led 10-0 before Harcar could get on the board in the first game of the evening.

Providing the offense for RMC were Brian Burgess (three singles, two runs scored), Bob Keeny (triple, double), Mike Damico (double, two runs scored), Danny Casey (single, two runs scored), Tom Tews, Rich Covell, John Damico and Dan Gill (one single and one run scored each) and Randy Covell (single).

Getting hits for Harcar were Jim Arnold and Mark Steffes (one triple each), Brian Burke, John Adams, Bill Roscoe and Howard Jones (one single and one run scored each) and Denzel Burke and Terry Roseoe (one single each).

The second game was closer than the scored indicated as SPBA scored nine runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to break a 6-6 tie.

Six singles and a walk had allowed Waddles to score four runs in the top of the sixth and tie the score. But SPBA sent 12 men to the plate in the bottom of the inning and got six singles, a walk and home runs by Matt Stewart and Mike Ansley to pick up the runs and the win.

Doing the damage for SPBA were Arron Johns (three singles, three runs scored), Ansley (home run, single, two runs scored), Stewart (home run, single, run scored), Mitch Tindel (double, single, run scored), Dave Delrosso (two singles, three runs scored), Robbie Shull (two singles, two runs scored), Kevin Keger (double) and Mike Bennett, Ralph Russell and Willie Hardin (one single and one run scored each).

Secretaries stall when queried by boss's wife

DEAR ABBY: I am one of four secretaries in a very busy office. Our boss is wonderful. So what's the problem? His wife.

She calls nearly every day, asking questions we would prefer not to answer. For example: With whom is "Mr. L." having lunch today? What time did he get to the office this morning? What are Mr. L.'s travel plans?

We think if Mr. L. wanted his wife to know these things, he would have told her. Of course we give her as little information as possible, but she is very persistent.

We don't want to be rude, but she is getting on our nerves. Any ideas?

FED UP FOURSOME

DEAR FED UP: On the chance that your boss doesn't view his wife's questions as intrusions on his privacy, tell your boss that you are unsure of how to answer these inquiries, and let him decide how they should be handled.

ADVICE

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old daughter has been living with a young man for two years. They recently became engaged. My husband and I were very hurt when, on the advice of their friends, they did not think it was necessary to ask for our blessings.

The groom's parents did not approve of their living together and gave the news of their engagement a very cool reception. We were not happy about their living together, but we love our daughter and have tried to be supportive.

Now our daughter expects us to give her a large, expensive wedding (her girlfriends have had large, expensive weddings, but they had not been living with their fiancés prior to the ceremony.)

IN THE SERVICE

Airman Richardson
Air Force Reserve Airman 1st Class Leroy A. Richardson Jr. has graduated from the U.S. Air Force medical administrative specialist course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

During the course, students were taught medical resource management, patient administrative control, filing, typing, and the use of computerized medical information systems. They also earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Richardson is the son of Sandra K. Richardson of 2000 W. 16th St., Sanford.

He is a 1985 graduate of Semmole High School, Sanford, and a 1989 graduate of Temple University, Philadelphia.

Do you feel that a large extravaganza is appropriate in view of the fact this couple has been living as husband and wife for two years? Or would a smaller, more modest celebration be more suitable under the circumstances?

Your candid expertise would be appreciated.

TRYING NOT TO BE OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR TRYING: A wedding is a gift that some parents traditionally bestow upon their daughter, but nowhere is it written that they have an obligation to do so. Under the circumstances, I think a smaller, more modest celebration would be more suitable. But your daughter and her fiancé are entitled to have any kind of wedding they wish — providing they are willing and able to pay for it.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me how to introduce my ex-daughter-in-law. We are very close and see each other often. We run into friends quite a bit when she is visiting. Do I say, "This is my ex-daughter-in-law, Annie?"

I would greatly appreciate your help. This has been puzzling me for quite some time.

HER EX-MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR EX: Just introduce her as "Annie, my son's former wife."

DEAR ABBY: I am a young widow (38) born in the Middle East and am told I am very good-looking. I met a gentleman (45) who after the first date told me I am the kind of woman he would like to marry, but first he must find out what kind of a lover I would make.

I am the kind of woman who will make love only to her husband, so what should I tell him when he suggests going on a weekend trip with him.

NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: Tell the gentleman exactly what you have told me. He might be wise to take a gamble. While putting you to the test, he could fail it.

Rectocele often requires surgery

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 75-year-old female with a rectocele. My doctor indicates I can live with the condition, yet I wonder if repair would be the proper course of action. I'm prone to diverticulosis and am bothered with an irritable bowel from time to time. Daily exercise is a mile of walking per day, which I hope is a help and not a hindrance.

DEAR READER: In women, the rectum is ordinarily held in place by supporting tissue, part of which is attached to the uterus. A rectocele is a weakness of this tissue, which allows part of the rectum to prolapse, to bulge out of position into the vaginal canal. In severe cases, the rectum may actually push part of the vaginal wall out of the vaginal opening.

Because the degree of prolapse depends on abdominal pressure, the condition is worsened by straining. However, it is not a health hazard and will not usually interfere with bowel evacuation. If the rectocele becomes a nuisance or interferes with sexual relations, it can be repaired.

During the operation, a gynecologist tightens the vaginal wall and usually removes the uterus because this organ, sagging out of position, contributes to the prolapse. Although the operation is standard fare for a specialist, your doctor is correct in reassuring you that it is not necessary. Avoiding surgery is always preferable to having it, if possible.

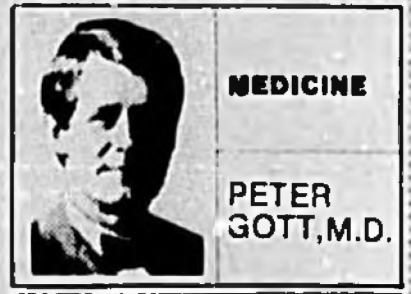

Continue your daily exercise, follow your doctor's advice and — if the rectocele becomes more of a problem — request a consultation with a gynecologist. To give you more information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "An Informed Approach To Surgery," "Diverticular Disease" and "Irritable Bowel Syndrome."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Several months ago, I had surgery on my left eye for a detached retina. My doctor says nothing causes this, yet I question that a hard fall might have triggered the condition. My past history includes cataract surgery on both eyes. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER: In a detached retina, part of the light-sensitive covering at the back of the eye peels off, leading to partial blindness. Some forms of detachment are associated with ocular injury or cataract surgery; other types are caused by diabetes or sickle-cell disease (anemia from malformed red blood cells).

To my knowledge, a hard fall

MEDICINE

that spared the eyes would not cause a retinal detachment. You should check with another ophthalmologist to determine what, if any, relation exists between your cataract surgery and the detachment.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here is another deal from the Canadian Invitational Pairs — this one played in 1990. North's bidding method was canape — the second-bid suit known to be longer than the suit opened. At any rate, the normal three no-trump contract was reached, and the West player, Joe Silver, led the three of clubs, a low "attitude" lead, indicating that he was leading from decent values in the suit. Declarer won dummy's king and played a diamond to his queen, probably hoping to lose to the ace since it was safe for West to have the lead. But Silver played low on the diamond queen. What was poor South to think? He played a diamond back to dummy's nine and East won the jack. Now came the club 10. Since it seemed that East held the diamond ace, declarer ducked the 10 of clubs and won the next club played. Then he played a third diamond. West took the ace, cashed the queen of clubs and took the setting trick with the fifth club. Silver of course made a fine play, but declarer's line of play was suspect. It's better to lead the nine of diamonds from dummy and let it ride. This play succeeds whenever East holds the jack of diamonds, and does not necessarily fail when West happens to win the jack.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 22, 1990

The year ahead may offer several surprises that could introduce some welcome changes. It's possible the unusual might breathe new life into your social and commercial affairs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to get involved in any type of partnership arrangement today with a friend who has a history of indecisiveness. Confusion could be the end product. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A failure to take care of critical matters today could result in your later having to pay a bigger price for your negligence than you anticipated. Keep current.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could turn out to be the wrong time to take a flyer on a risky venture, even if you team up with an associate who is usually blessed by Lady Luck.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of espousing unpopular opinions today, a wiser course of action might be to keep your views to yourself. What you preach won't win new support.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you may have to deal with an individual who is equally as strong willed as yourself. Try not to let anything develop to where both wills are tested.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be on guard today so that you are not jockeyed into a position where you have to ante up for someone else's errors. Appreciate the difference between generosity and foolishness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Both you and your mate could be a trifle more difficult than usual to get along with today. Be sure that you are not the one who does something silly to provoke a confrontation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's best not to even attempt to do tasks or assignments today you find utterly distasteful. Chances are you'll do a hum job and only have to do things over later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An acquaintance who is hoping to strengthen her influence over your peer group might try to use you as her foil today to make herself look good in the eyes of others. Be watchful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not deal with others in an abrasive manner today or else you could turn someone who is usually helpful into an obstructionist. This person might then deliberately place obstacles in your path.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Think before you speak today or else you might commit yourself to something that you won't take seriously, but your listener will. Eventually you may be held accountable for your pledge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Letting someone who is ill equipped manage your resources on your behalf could result in a sudden loss or complication. Be careful.
