Panel Eyes Taxing Authority For Transport Needs

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Creation of a super agency with authority to levy taxes and to plan a light rail system and whatever else is needed to unsnarl traffic in the tri-county area of Orange, Seminole and Osceola may wind up being the recommendation of the Greater Orlando Transportation Study Committee.

Jack Critchfield, chairman of the committee slated to report its findings to Gov. Bob Graham in mid January, said Thursday $1 billion plus will be needed between now and the year 2000 to pay for the transportation needs in the three counties.

He said raising gasoline taxes is "only one of the opportunities available" for raising the money for transportation "since Florida gasoline taxes are three cents less than the mean of all the states."

Critchfield said other possibilities are user fees to continue toll roads, impact fees, additional sales tax dedicated to transportation needs, property taxes and others.

"There is no question we cannot solve transportation by county lines. People living in Seminole County are using Interstate 4 to come to Orlando to work. They need to be served. We cannot build a beltway system around Orlando without looking at the region as a whole or without the region as a whole paying for it," he said.

"We (the committee) have been charged by the governor to look at the problem as a regional one. And we may recommend that a body be created that can properly and effectively, representing all three counties, be charged with levying an equitable tax," Critchfield said.

He said that $50 million can be raised statewide for each penny of new gasoline tax imposed. "We are asking the state for that to be calculated on the basis of this region," he said.

"One cent of gasoline tax might come to $5 million in the region and if those funds were all dedicated to the region and stay here, that is about as equitable as a tax can be," he said.

Critchfield said the committee is not committed to a new board, but it may well recommend an overall regional authority. "If an expressway or a belt system around Orlando is needed, the Seminole Expressway Authority may or may not see the same route. Suppose we can't get agreement or a bond issue.

"The inability to put roads to a place in a reasonable manner is probably the only justification for a regional group. If each of the counties goes on its merry way and looks after only those within their county, nothing will be done. We can't stop at our own county line. If a person lives in Sweetwater and uses a light rail system down the Interstate 4 corridor, he is not going to think of what county lines he crosses. The only logical way to solve a regional problem is with a regional answer," Critchfield said.

"The three counties have been short changed as far as federal and state dollars for transportation are concerned in the past because no one group had its act together or enough political clout to get dollars here rather than in South Florida. If there is a problem and something is not changed, the dollars won't get through," he said.

Critchfield said the committee will meet at 10 a.m., Tuesday at the Greater Orlando Aviation Board room. He decried the fact that few members of the public are showing up at the committee's meetings.

"Unless someone threatens their lifestyle they don't come out to meetings. They wait and react after a decision has been made," he said.

Casselberry Clerk Eyed For Post

Chacey's Job Hinges On Election Result

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

"I won't work for Goldberg, no way." Longwood City Administrator David Chacey said today. "If he wins in the run-off election, I will submit my resignation effective Feb. 1 or 15 to give them time to get a replacement."

Although even Chacey's most vocal critic on the city commission, Harvey Smerilson, thinks Chacey will come up smelling like a rose after his performance evaluation at Monday night's meeting, at least one possible replacement for the post has said she was approached by candidates and commissioners about taking the job.

Casselberry City Clerk Linda Garavano, when asked if she had been offered the job Thursday, told the Herald "They haven't made me an offer, but I have been being approached over the past four months by several persons," she said. "If the position comes open I would consider it and talk with them about it. It would be a step up for me, but I'm not certain this is the time to make a move. There would be a lot of things to consider, money is just one of them and not the most important."

Mrs. Garavano said she makes "just over $23,000" in her present position, while Chacey is getting $34,000 plus benefits such as a car, a $500 a year travel and expense allowance, and a $25 monthly employment development fund as administrator.

Mrs. Garavano formerly worked as Longwood deputy city clerk and clerk of the planning and zoning commission before being appointed city clerk of Longwood in 1978 on the retirement of her mother, Onnie Shomate, the city's last-elected clerk, who served for 20 years. Mrs. Garavano resigned from her position after two years on the job to move to Colorado. While there she was employed as assistant to the board of directors of a regional transportation authority. After returning to this area, she was hired to replace 20-year veteran Mary Hawthorne as Casselberry City Clerk at an annual salary of $20,033. Casselberry Mayor Charles Glascock said she was hired because of her knowledge of the area, Florida municipal law and past experience. She has a degree in business administration from Rollins College.

Smerilson said he thought his would be the only negative evaluation Chacey would get from the commission as it is now constituted and he would give him an "unsatisfactory — needs improvement."

The evaluation is on Monday's agenda to comply with the charter amendment, which passed in the Dec. 4 city election. The amendment requires an annual performance review and evaluation in December.

Chacey said this does not mean anything as he has been submitting evaluation forms to the mayor and commissioners each year. He said some of the commissioners have not bothered to fill them in. "The only derogatory comments I

Packed Elementaries May Be Rezoned

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Crowding at five south Seminole County elementary schools has prompted the school board to eye rezoning.

The board Wednesday commissioned Marlon Giannini, director of elementary education, to form a committee consisting of advisors from each school to study the problem and recommend solutions.

Five schools are at or over their capacities, Ms. Giannini said. And with the booming growth in the county and influx of students into the school system, the board is trying to alleviate the crowding until more schools can be built.

Sterling Park Elementary has 896 students — 220 students more than it's suppose to have. Casselberry and English Estates elementaries are right at capacity at 583 and 594 respectively. Longwood is 99 students over its limit with 782, and Woodlands is brimming at 773.

Ms. Giannini said the committee will study the possibility of changing the zoning so some of the students could go to Altamonte and Lake Orienta elementaries — schools that still have some elbow room.

But she added that before such a move is made, the committee will consider various factors such as safety, distance from school, number of students affected and black-white ratios. She will also contact developers who are building in the affected areas to see how many new students could be moving in.

"We're not saying we're doing anything at this particular point," Ms. Giannini said. "We're not trying to send kids across town or anything."

But if children were moved from Longwood or Woodlands to Altamonte and Lake Orienta it would only be about a mile more for them to travel, she said.

The committee will finalize its recommendations by mid-March with the board expected to act on them by April, Ms. Giannini said.

Two 7,000-Year-Old Brains Found

COCOA (UPI) — Two well-preserved human brains, each more than 7,000 years old, were unearthed from an ancient burial ground that scientists today described as "one of a kind in the world."

Researchers said they were most excited because preliminary studies of the brains confirmed the presence of DNA, the genetic blueprint of life.

"The existence of two preserved brains from one archaeological site and 7,000-year-old human DNA, makes this a spectacular scientific contribution," said William Hauswirth, a University of Florida microbiologist. "We have never had the opportunity to look at 7,000-year-old genetic material."

The skulls of containing the brains were found earlier this month at an archaeological dig site started in September at the Windover Farms subdivision near Titusville, across the Indian River from the Kennedy Space Center.

More than 1,700 bones of people believed to be hunters have been found so far, some of which have been determined to

Suffered Stroke

Schroeder Holding Own

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Bill Schroeder spent a restful night following a stroke just 18 days after receiving his artificial heart and doctors said today they were encouraged by early signs of recovery.

Schroeder was still unable to talk and his right arm remained partially paralyzed, Dr. Allan Lansing, chief medical spokesman at Humana Hospital Audubon, said.

Lansing was so optimistic that he said Schroeder still might be able to leave the hospital in four weeks if his recovery from the stroke continues at the same pace.

Asked to rate the stroke on a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the worst, Lansing said he considered it a 10 in the beginning but now ranked it a 6½.

Lansing said tests showed no permanent damage to Schroeder's right leg but motion in his right arm was restricted, indicating possible permanent damage.

He said it would take seven to 10 days to determine the cause of the stroke but said it may have been caused by artery blockage or a clot near one of the valves of Schroeder's plastic-and-metal heart.

Schroeder, 52, received his plastic and metal heart at the hospital Nov. 25. He won the hearts of many by ordering a beer after the implant and later by goading President Reagan into speeding

222 Ways To Save $600 Million

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A private watchdog organization has presented Florida taxpayers with a "Christmas gift" — a list of 222 suggestions for state government to save $600 million during the next fiscal year.

The list released by Florida Tax-Watch Thursday included proposals such as computerizing contract bids, garnishing the wages of defaulting student loan recipients, even replacing some prison guards with robots.

"Gripping about waste and inefficiency is an American tradition and a first step toward citizen involvement in the budgeting and spending process," said TaxWatch Executive Director Dominic Calabro. "The real challenge is to provide specific and constructive suggestions to improve the process."

TaxWatch's suggestions include: —Expand statewide a computerized bid system developed to combat the Department of Transportation's problems with bid rigging to save an estimated $27 million;

—Establish sliding scale tuition for public university students based on their ability to pay and increase the average proportion of the cost of education covered by tuition from 18 percent to 25 percent to save an estimated $50 million;

—Explore the use of robots rather than corrections officers for some

Vaccine Shortage Prompts Postponement Of Vaccinations

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials say a severe vaccine shortage will require an immediate postponement of some vaccinations against three childhood diseases — diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus.

If current vaccination rates continue, "beginning in January 1985, supplies of DPT will be very limited and some areas may be without DPT vaccine," the national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday. "This situation may continue throughout most of 1985."

About 19 million DPT vaccinations are given annually to children in the United States, said the CDC, which said the shortage was caused when Wyeth and Connaught Inc. ceased distribution of the vaccine.

The CDC said Lederle is the only firm currently distributing the vaccine and it "has been increasing its production and expanding its facilities to meet current needs."

Health officials recommend that five doses of the combination vaccine be given at 2, 4, 6, and 18 months of age with a fifth dose administered at 4-6 years of age. But the CDC said that effective immediately, the fourth and fifth DPT doses should be postponed until greater supplies are available.

Hostage: 'Fight Back'

By United Press International

Two Americans who were beaten and tortured and saw two of their countrymen killed by skyjackers are back home and one says the United States needs to "fight back" against terrorists to ensure that Americans can travel abroad safely.

The two American hijack survivors, New York businessman John Costa, 50, and Charles Kapar, an auditor for the U.S. Agency for International Development, arrived in the United States Thursday and immediately headed home to their families.

Cheered by neighbors singing "God Bless America," a tired but happy Kapar said, "Somebody has to do something about (terrorist hijackings) and the only way to do it is, I guess, to just fight back at them."

The Washington Post reported today that the Kuwaiti ambassador to the United States said the air pirates left Beirut last week carrying forged Lebanese passports, intent on a target that may have been deliberately selected because it carried Kuwaiti and U.S. officials.

The hijackers had demanded the release of 17 prisoners jailed in Kuwait for bombings of U.S. and French facilities by a Shiite Moslem Iraqi opposition group, Al Daawa. In the past, Iran also has pressed for the release of the 17.

Couple Get Probation For Incest

CHARLOTTE, Tenn. (UPI) — A mother and son who got married have pleaded "no contest" to incest charges and were given suspended five-year sentences on the condition they seek psychiatric help.

Mary Ann Garton Bass, 45, and Danny James Bass, 28, pleaded no contest to incest and felonious carnal knowledge charges Thursday under a plea-bargain agreement.

Mrs. Bass also pleaded guilty to bigamy and her son pleaded guilty to perjury for telling a Dickson County grand jury he did not know the woman he married in 1978 was his mother.

District Attorney Dan Cook said the defendants apparently decided to settle the case outside the public spotlight.

Bass said he joined the Army when his mother refused to divorce him.

Police Uncover Plot To Assassinate The Pope

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — A routine traffic arrest has led police to what may be a plot by an ultra-rightist group to kill Pope John Paul II when he visits Venezuela next month.

Motorcycle police investigating an auto accident on a Caracas expressway Wednesday arrested Douglas Torrealba Hernandez, 21, after he began behaving strangely, a spokeswoman for the Metropolitan Police said.

Authorities said the suspect had a .22-caliber rifle with a telescopic sight and papers showing the pope's planned itinerary in Venezuela in his car.

Torrealba also had a membership card for the international ultra-rightist group Tradition, Family and Property. The group, banned in Venezuela, denied any plot.

The suspect said the rifle, jewelry and other items belong to his girlfriend. He said they had been stolen and he had just recovered them.

Spain Eyeing NATO Pullout

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Socialist Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez faced a debate today on Spain's continued membership in NATO at his party's first national convention since it came to power two years ago.

Most Spaniards favor full withdrawal from NATO, according to opinion polls, and turned out by the tens of thousands two weeks ago for demonstrations across Spain against the alliance and the four U.S. military bases in the country.

The following persons have either pleaded or been found guilty of driving under the influence or having an unlawful blood alcohol level, according to court records. When a guilty or no contest plea is entered or if the defendant is found guilty of a charge, other charges normally are either not prosecuted or dismissed. In cases where the sentence differs, the actual sentence is reported: —James Alonzo Adams, 19, of Orlando, arrested Nov. 25 by a Florida Highway Patrol trooper after his car was seen traveling south in the wrong lane of U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park. Foggy Interstate Pileup

Three Killed In 45-Vehicle Chain Reaction

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (UPI) — A woman who stopped her car in a dense fog on an Interstate 95 bridge triggered a fiery chain-reaction pileup of about 45 cars and trucks that killed three people and hospitalized 17.

"I would consider it very fortunate that we lost no more than three," said Georgia State Patrol Lt. L.R. Jones. "It could have been far greater. You had just a conglomeration of vehicles."

Of the 17 people taken to hospitals Thursday, nine were admitted, but none was in critical condition.

Jones said the pileup began about 10 a.m. when an unidentified Florida woman stopped her car in the northbound lane of the fog-shrouded Turtle River bridge six miles south of Brunswick.

A semi-trailer truck rammed the woman's car from behind, igniting a fire that killed the woman and triggering a chain-reaction of accidents that quickly spread to the southbound lane.

Before authorities got the highway closed and traffic rerouted, about 40 cars and about six semi-trailer trucks were involved in wrecks and fires on the half-mile long bridge.

"We were on the bridge and you couldn't get off," said Kin White. "We heard the crashes from the southbound accidents, then you would hear the explosions and screams — lots of screams."

State Patrol Sgt. T. J. Crawford said the southbound accidents began when cars slowed for rescue equipment trying to reach the northbound wrecks.

"The motorists in the southbound lane began slowing for the rescue equipment and another chain reaction started in the southbound lane," Crawford said.

He blamed the accident on fog that limited visibility to about five feet and slowed rescue squad vehicles rushing to the scene.

Mark Carey, who was stopped in traffic with his family from Troy, Mich., said he saw a semi-trailer truck "come flying by" and slam into a car.

"The car flipped off the side of the road. The semi was just totally demolished — shrapnel — but they got out," Carey said.

"It looked just like cars in a scrap yard on the middle of the highway, just burning," said James F. Carey. "I was in combat in World War II and it was just like combat. I counted at least three fires at one time."

Teen Sought In Pickup Truck Sexual Assault

A 17-year-old Apopka girl reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that she went for a ride with a 17-year-old boy who parked in a wooded area, punched her in the face several times and forced her to have oral sex.

The incident began at about 1 a.m. Thursday and the attack occurred on a roadside in the boy's pickup truck, a sheriff's report said.

Following the assault, the suspect drove around and refused to take the victim home. He finally took her home at 6:30 a.m. Thursday, but told her not to report the incident to police, the report said.

Deputies have the name of a suspect, but no arrest has been made.

WANTS BACK AND FUTURE RENT

An Indiana-based finance company is suing a Michigan company doing business in Fern Park for not paying its rent and loss of future rent revenues.

Arvin Finance Corp., has filed suit against Service One Inc., doing business as Tuffy Mufflers, 207 U.S. Highway 17-92.

The case has been assigned to Seminole Circuit Judge Dominick J. Saffi. No trial date has been set.

According to the suit, Tuffy owes Arvin $7,472.82 in back rent and Arvin is demanding payment. Tuffy, according to the suit, voluntarily vacated the rented premises on Nov. 19.

Arvin is asking for the back rent, future rent which would have exceeded $5,000, court costs, interest and attorney fees.

The man apparently realized he was being chased, stopped and turned. He walked casually back toward Brown. Brown nabbed the suspect and tied him up. The man reportedly said he wanted the rubber stripping from Brown's door for his personal use.

Brown turned the suspect over to police and Homer Dennis Walker, 18, of 138 Scott Drive, was arrested at about 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Lugar: Funnel Foreign Aid Through Private Organizations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee thinks U.S. foreign aid might be put to better use if it is given to private groups in other countries rather than their governments.

Some governments are more interested in keeping themselves in power than using the aid to improve the economic situation of their people. Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Thursday.

"Private institutions, in many cases, would likely make better use of the money for economic growth as opposed to using the money for the political purposes of those in power," he said.

Lugar described his proposal as "radical," but said, "We probably need to be thinking a good bit more about where we can direct shipments to private agencies or companies or individuals to see if we can get the sparks going of an enterprise economy."

Lugar, 52, has been in the Senate since 1977. He officially becomes chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee when the new Congress convenes next month, succeeding Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who was defeated in the November election.

Discussing other matters, Lugar said Congress

Richard Lugar ...governments more interested in using money to perpetuate their own power, not helping their people probably will not agree to resume aid to CIA-backed rebels in Nicaragua. "For the foreseeable future, the 'Contras' will be supported by someone other than the United States government," Lugar said.

Eight deaths were blamed on the violent weather Thursday, including three persons killed in a fire pileup in Georgia; a man and his son killed when their car ran off a rain-slickened Oklahoma road; two people killed in a pileup during a blinding dust storm in southern California and an elderly Colorado man whose car ran slid into a ditch near Campo, Colo.

Remove Monkey Wrench Politics

When the 99th Congress convenes next month, one of the Senate's top priorities should be to revise the rules that govern its organization and operation. Absent significant change, the world's greatest deliberative body will again become mired in minutia instead of focusing on important issues.

The Founding Fathers envisioned the Senate as a gyroscope to keep the legislative branch on an even keel. With its members politically insulated by their six-year terms, the upper house would provide stability and continuity in contrast to the larger, less-tenured House of Representatives. It would resist the political winds.

But the Founding Fathers never envisioned a 100-member Senate, 126 committees and subcommittees, and a staff of nearly 1,200 persons. Nor would they have expected the Senate to fall victim to what one senator's aide calls "monkey-wrench politics" — the willingness of some senators to mangle the legislative machinery in order to achieve their goals, regardless of the consequences.

Something is wrong when the Senate can vote 92-4 to limit debate on a bill and still have that legislation talked to death by a few senators who manage to circumvent the rules that limit filibusters. And where is the legislative gyroscope when foreign aid bills and other significant legislation so often are approved without debate in the hectic, waning days of a congressional session?

Little wonder that some leaders and many members understand the need for reform. A bipartisan committee chaired by Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., is proposing significant changes in committee assignments and rules as a partial remedy for the Senate's malaise.

The aim would be to reduce committee workloads so that the quality of work could improve and senators could have more time for major issues.

Other proposed improvements would close the loophole that allows post-cloture filibusters, curtail non-germane amendments, and eliminate lengthy debates over the simplest procedural matters.

Reform is particularly difficult for legislative bodies. Forcing changes on other agencies is relatively easy, but self-imposed reform requires the utmost in self-discipline, a trait Congress is not famous for possessing.

Indeed, the Senate's lack of institutional discipline is perhaps its major problem today. Unless the Senate's new leaders can restore discipline and institute some basic reforms, monkey-wrench politics seem likely to prevail on into the future.

Uncertain Sex

There's something fishy going on down among the cliffs and caverns of undersea reefs.

Some of the girl fishes are becoming boy fishes. And some of the boy fishes are becoming girl fishes.

Don't stare at us like that. Scientists say, "It's true, it's true."

For instance, when a school of reef fish loses its single male, a female member of the clan will soon start acting macho — and within 10 days will be able to produce sperm and fertilize eggs. Converting the other way, from male to female, is less common. But it happens.

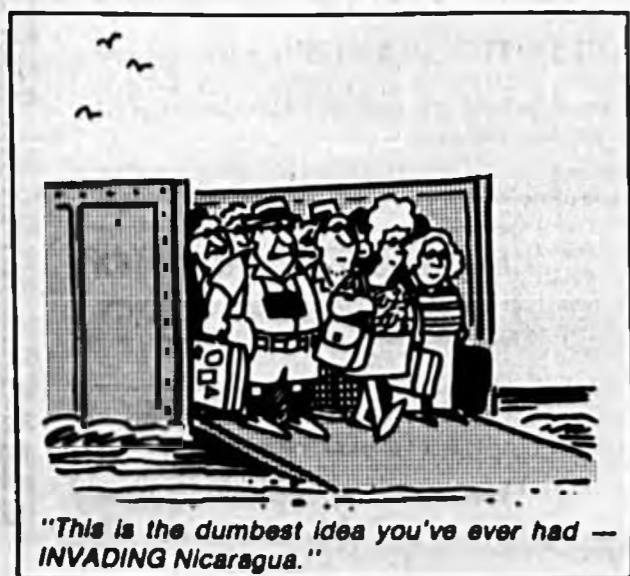

For instance, damselfish can pull this switch. A typical damselfish cluster contains a large female, a smaller male and several juveniles. If the female is removed, the male converts to female, and one of the juveniles quickly matures to male status.

Studies of this underwater turnabout have been conducted in several parts of the world. In the Philippines, there is a species of bass that seems to maintain a certain balance between male and female. When 58 males were removed from the reefs under study, 57 females changed sex and took their place.

As for reproduction, the female lays the eggs and then the male comes along and fertilizes the eggs with his sperm. There is little body contact between male and female — hence the term, "Poor fish."

When we heard that, it knocked us flatter than a flounder.

Nancy Picks Inaugural Wardrobe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nancy Reagan has selected her inaugural wardrobe, but the design of her outfits and ball gown are being kept a deep, dark secret.

She is well aware that the ball gown will go into the first lady's collection at the Smithsonian Institution.

Mrs. Reagan did reveal that she has selected her favorite designer for evening gowns — Galanos of California — to create her inaugural ball gown. "I'm superstitious," she explained, noting that Galanos had designed her inaugural gowns when her husband was governor of California and the gown for his first presidential inaugural.

She has asked Adolfo to do her daytime outfit for the outdoor swearing in on the steps of the Capitol when she will be holding the bible as her husband takes the oath of office.

The first lady wore a red outfit for the 1981 inaugural and a one-shoulder heavily beaded white gown for the several balls they attended.

The Reagan children, who skipped coming to Washington for the Christmas holidays, are all planning to attend the president's second inaugural.

In 1981, they all stayed at Blair House across the street from the White House, but this time the president's guest house is still undergoing renovation, and some may stay at the White House.

For the fourth straight year, the White House Historical Association has created a Christmas tree ornament. This year it is a replica of the historic peace medal issued by President Thomas Jefferson in 1801.

The ornament is two and one-half inches in diameter, plated in gold and designed to rotate so that both sides can be seen. On one side is Thomas Jefferson's profile and on the other side are the words "Peace and Friendship," the clasped hands of an Indian and a soldier, and a symbolic emblem of peace — the crossed tomahawk and peace pipe. The medal was taken by Merriwether Lewis and William Clark on their 1804 expedition to West to present on behalf of Jefferson to tribal chiefs along the way.

An original painting by Jamie Wyeth, which was reproduced for the Reagans' Christmas card, is on exhibit in the East Room along with all the Christmas glitter.

The first lady said the painting will be returned to the artist after the yuletide season is over.

The White House Christmas trimmings depict a breathtakingly beautiful winter scene with baby's breath resembling snow on the trees.

The Reagans were advised to skip the receiving lines for the press parties, which ran two nights in a row with 900 guests at each in 1981. But fatiguing as it is, they chose instead to follow their own tradition and give every guest a chance to shake their hands and to have their picture taken with them.

Sputtering Tax Revolt

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho (NEA) — If there's a tax revolt underway in the nation, it should have been apparent this year here in Idaho where a conservative electorate had an opportunity to repeal a 4 percent sales tax on food.

When the state's voters went to the polls last month, however, they rejected, by a substantial 53-47 margin, a ballot proposition that would have authorized removal of the highly regressive sales tax.

At the same time, voters in California, Nevada, Oregon and Michigan were voting against other ballot propositions that were promoted as crucial to reducing bloated state budgets and relieving the tax burden borne by the citizenry.

In four other states — Washington, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Ohio — advocates of similar tax revolt measures failed to even obtain the requisite number of signatures to place their proposals on this year's ballots.

Only in South Carolina did the voters approve a major package of measures mandating restrictions on taxes and limitations on state government spending in the future.

That pattern has been repeated annually during the past five years. In relatively few instances, voters have endorsed tax revolt measures that often were highly publicized. In many other cases, however, the proposals were rejected with considerably less fanfare.

That trend suggests that the long-term significance of California's famed Proposition 13, a tax limitation ballot proposition approved in 1978, may have been vastly overrated by those who promoted it as the beginning of a nationwide grass-roots uprising against excessive state and local taxes.

Indeed, subsequent developments suggest that the success of Proposition 13 may be attributable primarily to special circumstances wholly unrelated to voter sentiment in other years and in other states.

Here in Idaho, the sales tax on food was believed to have been highly unpopular and efforts to rescind it were led by organizations which effectively argued that its burden fell disproportionately upon the poor.

This year, however, the state's residents voted to retain the sales tax. There's simply no evidence of an ongoing tax revolt here and not much indication of one anywhere else in the country.

Lucky Few Escape Ethiopian War

WASHINGTON — If you can stand to study the heart-rending photos of starving Ethiopians, you will notice a striking phenomenon: Few if any of the horribly emaciated refugees in the relief camps are teenage boys.

The reason is simple: Young males old enough to carry a gun have been conscripted either by the government army or by the opposing guerrillas. The latter have been fighting the leftist regime for years in the northern areas most devastated by famine.

A lucky few, whose parents were foresighted enough and had a little money, have been able to escape the military press gangs and cross the border into Sudan. From there, some get refugee passports that allow them into Italy, West Germany or the United States.

Daniel Keleta and Leclal Negga were two of the lucky ones who were able to come to the United

A Reliable Service

This is in regard to Mrs. Roy Brown's letter concerning a pleasant, reliable garbage service. Even though I subscribe to the Evening Herald, I apparently missed the article about Lake Mary and Danjohn Garbage Service, although I'm glad to see someone finally speak out about them.

When I moved to Casselberry, from north Georgia, last March, I called Davis Garbage Service, as they had given me excellent service in Longwood.

Shortly after Davis started their garbage pick-up, my landlady informed me that Danjohn had the contract with the city of Casselberry. As we had about 40 bags of leaves we had raked up after we moved in, I figured it would be worth it to me to engage two garbage services, not only to eliminate the bags of leaves, but to also decide for myself which company gave better service.

Even though they're slightly higher ($9.00 a month), Davis Garbage Service is, in my opinion, far superior to Danjohn. With Davis, I called them and started pick-up two days later. About a month later I got a statement from them for 3-months service. When I called Danjohn, I was informed that I would have to come into their office and pay "X" number of dollars before they could begin service.

When I called Davis to begin service, the lady told me collectors would be by early in the morning on collection days. And they've always been by before 7 a.m. To me, that's reliability. It's a small thing, I know, but I don't want to put my garbage out by the road at 5 a.m., if it isn't going to be picked-up until 4 p.m. Not only is it unsightly, but neighborhood dogs and cats are attracted to it. With Danjohn, my experience was that you could look for your garbage to be picked-up anytime between 7 in morning and 4 in the afternoon.

Anyway, Mrs. Brown, I don't know if Davis Garbage Service out of Orlando even services the Sanford area, but if they do, I'm sure you will be as satisfied as I am with their service.

Confusion About Vitamins

By Gino Del Guercio
UPI Science Writer

The wrong people are often taking vitamins and minerals.

Some of those who are taking vitamins — particularly people who take megadoses — are in danger of poisoning themselves. Others who desperately need vitamins but do not get them risk severe nutritional deficiencies.

"In large doses, some vitamins are potentially toxic," said Dr. Richard S. Rivlan, chief of the nutritional service at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York. "They build up in your system and can do real damage."

Rivlan is concerned that some people have the wrong impression about vitamins. Many people seek vitamins as a way of getting increased energy or super health.

In reality, vitamins are simply chemicals the body needs in minute quantities to function properly. Like motor oil in a car, vitamins will not make the body run any faster, but without them the body will stop.

Most humans get all the vitamins they need in their food. As long as they eat a balanced diet.

"The people who are presumably healthy and have no diseases are popping large amounts of vitamins and minerals to try to give them that extra edge," he said in a lecture at the Harvard Medical School.

"We're learning that for healthy individuals who are not at risk of nutritional deficiencies, vitamins don't confer any advantages and have distinct risks," he said.

Probably the largest group at risk of vitamin deficiency are alcoholics. Alcohol prevents many important vitamins from being absorbed by the body. Combine that with lack of a well balanced diet for many alcoholics and the problem can often become severe.

"Alcohol is emerging as a major cause of vitamin deficiency in the U.S. and is probably THE major cause in the elderly," he said.

Other groups at risk for vitamin deficiencies include the elderly, drug abusers, extreme dieters and the urban poor.

Rivlan said the risk of taking very large doses of vitamins varies greatly depending on the type of vitamins a person takes.

"With respect to vitamins A and D, there is really a risk," he said. "They are toxic. They should be considered drugs."

The daily multivitamins most people take that have doses close to the U.S. recommended daily allowance, or RDA, are not likely to do any harm, although they usually do not do much good either, he said.

lived through some of the worst of the famine, and there's no doubt in his mind who's to blame for the situation that could spell death for hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of his countrymen. He holds the Ethiopian government responsible.

Leclal said it's not true that there were no vehicles to transport food to the needy. He said Sweden sent trucks to handle the relief supplies, but that the communist government expropriated the trucks for military use.

He also said that there would have been plenty of water to prevent the drought that caused the famine — but that the government failed to build dams and irrigation ditches. The Marxist rulers have been too busy trying to stamp out the guerrillas in the northern provinces.

"All of the young people are being taken to the army and have been for 10 years," Leclal explained. "There is no one left to do the building." Other refugees agreed that lack of manpower and government planning were responsible for the drought, and thus the famine.

Both boys want to go back home some day, but not until there's a different government in Addis Ababa. If he went back sooner, Danile explained, "they would only use what I have learned to hurt my people even more."

Since Congress opened the door to Ethiopian refugees in 1980, the number who have fled to the United States has hardly been overwhelming. From 939 the first year, the number arriving this year has totaled 2,536.

The number of Ethiopian immigrants — those who have relatives in this country or who have work skills — went from 1,749 in 1981 to 2,475 in 1983.

Sanford Man Sworn-In As Palm Beach Judge

A Sanford man serving as an assistant state attorney in West Palm Beach was scheduled to be sworn-in today as a county judge in Palm Beach County.

Jerome Davis, 42, was to be formally installed at a 4 p.m. ceremony in West Palm Beach, according to his brother, James Davis of Sanford.

Davis is the son of Jimmie Lee Davis and Mrs. Ruby Huston, both of Sanford.

Mrs. Huston said she was proud of her son's accomplishment and was not too surprised that he's becoming a judge.

"He always was kind of smart," she said.

Davis is a graduate of Florida State University law school and Florida A. & M. Before he went into law he was a teacher in the public school system. He has been a prosecutor for 12 years in Palm Beach County.

Davis is being appointed by Gov. Bob Graham to the elected position of county judge because it is a newly created judgeship.

Mrs. Huston said her son's accomplishment may be responsible for two of her grandchildren's educational goals. She said one grandchild will soon graduate from law school and the other from medical school.

"I think that's a real compliment to me. I think that's real nice."

Higher Insurance Rates Advocated For Smokers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The attorney who successfully sued to drive cigarette ads off the air says non-smokers should not have to subsidize the cost of health care for smokers and advocates higher insurance rates for smokers.

"Our organization has determined that smoking alone costs anywhere from $11 billion to $80 billion a year in additional health care," said John Banzhaf, head of the legal action group Action on Smoking and Health.

"Under the current system, the majority, non-smokers, are forced to subsidize health care costs."

Banzhaf said at a news conference Monday that smoking "is the major preventable cause of death and disability" and lower insurance rates for non-smokers could provide the financial incentive for smokers to quit.

"In addition, there have been several recent reports that cigarette smoke directly affects non-smokers and thus raises their health care costs, too."

"Lower costs to non-smokers would not only relieve them (non-smokers) of this additional burden, but it also would provide a financial incentive to smokers to quit," he said.

Banzhaf, who spearheaded efforts to stop cigarette producers from advertising on radio and television 10 years ago, said charging higher health insurance rates for smokers would be determined on three issues: The practice causes substantial additional costs, it is easily and objectively verifiable and the person insured can change the condition by kicking the habit.

Banzhaf's group is trying to persuade the National Association of Insurance Commissioners — an organization of state insurance regulators — to approve the measure and encourage insurance companies to implement it voluntarily.

Some life insurance companies already offer lower rates to non-smokers.

Florida Commissioner Bill Gunter said the measure, and other proposals that would offer lower insurance rates for those who keep their blood pressure and weight down — could significantly cut the costs of health care.

The association has "some" shocking statistics that tell us that 60 percent to 70 percent of all health insurance claims are for lifestyle-related illnesses," Gunter said. "Heavy smoking costs this nation tens of billions of dollars before you even include the costs of cigarettes themselves."

"Establishing wellness incentives through health insurance can open a new front in the war against rising health care costs across the country," Gunter said.

The Afghan War Comes Home To The Soviet Union

By Anna Christensen

MOSCOW (UPI) — A black-clad mother huddled over a new grave in Moscow's Vaganovsky cemetery. Tears streamed down her face, falling on a jar of fresh flowers.

"He died in Afghanistan," the woman wailed to no one. "My boy is dead."

The tombstone bore no epitaph, but a young man's face smiled from a photograph. A crucifix was planted in the ground.

At Khotkovsky cemetery outside Moscow is a grave surrounded by a green picket fence, carefully tended, two jars of fresh flowers, seemingly indistinguishable from the other graves. Etched on the granite tombstone is the image of a smooth-faced boy with dark hair, a helmet and rifle, two roses and the words: "Nikolai Valerevich Nikitin, 1961-1982, perished a hero in Afghanistan."

No mother knelt at this grave. But cemetery visitors tending neighboring plots were visibly shaken by the epitaph. Merely producing a photograph of the tombstone caused a middle-aged woman to turn pale and cry. "Don't show me that, please."

One by one, tombstones bearing images of young soldiers are appearing in cemeteries across the country, making death a reality for Soviets who otherwise would give little thought to the far-off Afghanistan war.

It's nothing like the television coverage that brought the Vietnam War into American living rooms. But five years after Soviet troops invaded Afghanistan, the war is coming home.

As the conflict drags on, reports from soldiers who have defected to the West indicate troop morale is being sapped by drug abuse, suicides, lack of discipline and questions about what they are fighting for.

At home, men who served in the prewar era tell fond tales of their days in the military to youngsters who have been in prison camps for refusing to serve. Conversations around kitchen tables turn to draft evasion.

Soviets are quick to point out that the occasional youth who dares to evade the draft has fewer options than his American counterpart. There are no conscientious objectors in the Soviet Union, no easy Canadian borders to cross. Going "underground" is virtually impossible.

It's nothing like the television coverage that brought the Vietnam War into American living rooms. But five years after Soviet troops invaded Afghanistan, the war is coming home.

A well-connected young Soviet, released last year from a three-year term for refusing to serve, maintains life in prison camps was easier for criminals.

"My first months were spent in solitary confinement with nothing to eat but bread and water," he said. "They would visit my cell regularly to tell me it was not too late to change my mind, they could still arrange my transfer to Afghanistan."

After isolation, he worked 18 hours a day in a Siberian labor camp for two years until he became so weak he couldn't stand. The flesh hung loosely from his 6-foot frame when he was released, six months early, "because they didn't want my blood on their hands."

"It's not that I didn't want to serve my country, I just didn't want to fight in Afghanistan," he said. "What are we fighting for?" asked the youth, echoing an American anti-war song of the Vietnam era.

But there is little chance the reality of the war will ever give rise to the kind of public pressure that ultimately brought American troops home from Vietnam.

"Soviet leaders have no public opposition to cope with," a Western diplomat said. "They can keep fighting indefinitely."

When the Soviets sent 85,000 troops to Afghanistan in December 1979, few realized the battle would drag on so long, just as American leaders looked at Vietnam as a quick-and-dirty conflict.

Western statistics estimate the number of Russian troops has increased to 120,000, with another 30,000 men to guard the border Afghanistan shares with three Soviet republics.

They put the number of deaths at about 1,375 Soviet soldiers annually. Only 30 percent of these are believed to be combat deaths. The remainder result from illness, accidents or suicides, according to Western reports.

Besides the cost in lives, the Soviet government sacrifices an estimated $2.7 billion a year to prop up the regime of Babrak Karmal. The sum is estimated at only about 1 percent of overall Soviet military expenditures, so economic hardship will not end the conflict.

The Kremlin, it seems, can keep up the war indefinitely and is preparing the people for just such an eventuality.

Rosy press reports of heroic soldiers who emerged unscathed after dealing major blows to a small group of bandits have been expanded to include articles about greater numbers of fierce rebels armed with sophisticated weapons.

A recent three-part series in Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya (Socialized Industry) took the reader into a Soviet home and told of a mother collapsing with grief when presented with the body of her son, a young "warrior poet" who met an agonizing death during a rebel ambush.

The young man's last wish was reported to be for a quick death, free from the "animals" torture. "To prove he has killed a Soviet officer, all he (a rebel) needs is to cut off an ear, nose, finger or take a scalp," the article said.

The article also brought up the possibility of an afterlife, a generally taboo subject in the officially atheistic country but reminiscent of a religious revival during World War II.

"If I have done something important and necessary to people, then by doing so I have earned a second life — life after death," the narrator quoted from the favorite poem of the youth, who was admitted posthumously to the Soviet Writers' Union.

"They're preparing their people for death and they have to give them a reason to die," a senior Asian diplomat said.

The Soviet Army was comprised primarily of Central Asians when the first troops went in, but they reportedly had trouble shooting at fellow Moslems.

Concerns about inefficiency and fear the troops might bring the seeds of revolution back home forced Soviet leaders to lean more on Russians to the exclusion of ethnic minorities.

"When white middle-class boys began to die in Vietnam, the war took on a different quality, so it is here with increased numbers of White Russians dying," the Asian diplomat said.

Unusual Show Brings Out Racial Issue Among Swiss

By Jan Kriesemer
Editor's Note: Kriesemer, a Swiss television and radio reporter, comments on current issues in Switzerland.
 ZURICH — Swiss television, like the tube in the United States, usually features soap operas, crime dramas and other such fare, little of it very uplifting. But a recent show, which provoked passions here, was aptly described by one viewer as "almost unbearable in its authenticity and cruelty."

The program focused on the issue of racism, which is becoming increasingly frequent in Switzerland as the Swiss, who are normally tolerant, display concern at the growing numbers of Africans and Asians arriving here in search of asylum.

Most of these refugees concentrate in the cities, surviving on welfare benefits because they cannot find jobs. Many Swiss, fearful that the country cannot absorb a large influx of immigrants, are beginning to express their worries in the form of racial prejudice.

So it was that a French sociologist, Jean-Pierre Friedman, teamed up with a Geneva station to produce a unique kind of television program designed to examine the human dynamics of racism.

Starting from the premise that the problem stems from a lack of understanding, Friedman selected four Swiss who admitted to racial sentiments and four Africans claiming to be victims of racism.

He put them together in a remote mountain chalet, and filmed their conversations over a period of several days. The television crew exercised special care to guard against a possible outbreak of violence among the subjects.

The show, edited down to two hours, touched off reactions of anger or sympathy from the Swiss audience, which rarely demonstrates emotion. Quite clearly, raw nerves were exposed.

One of the Swiss participants, a car salesman by the name of Georges, asserted at the outset that he felt a physical revulsion in the presence of blacks. Yet he did not flinch at sitting across a table from Yeye, a student from Zaïre, who voiced his disgust at white bigotry.

Daniel, a Swiss wine merchant, said rather mildly that his racist feeling merely meant that he opposed racial intermarriage. To which Abel, a jobless Moroccan, replied just as mildly: "I feel sorry for your having to suffer such nightmares."

And thus it went, day after day, as they lived and talked together, their apprehensions and strengths inevitably emerging into the open, before the cameras.

In the end, the racial distinctions separating those involved in the experiment became more and more blurred as their personal differences surfaced. Black or white, they had formed alliances for one reason or another.

Except for Daniel, who had originally seemed moderate, they expressed their respect for each other when the episode finished. He refused to alter his racist outlook, asserting self-righteously that there was nothing wrong with his attitude.

Friedman, who is writing a book on the program, submits that the experiment proves that racism is a group rather than individual phenomenon.

The televised group, he explains, subdued its racial animosities because it was isolated, and because its members had to retain cohesion as an alternative to aggression and violence. But racial bitterness might have flared up had they faced real problems.

If a generalization can be drawn from the episode, it is that racism can take hold here in peaceful little Switzerland when its people feel threatened, as many do by the incoming numbers of African and Asian immigrants.

Recently, for instance, the Swiss government expelled 1,700 Tamils from Sri Lanka, who had fled to Europe to escape persecution.

The Swiss like to believe that they are free of prejudice. But, as more and more blacks arrive here, it will be difficult to contain racial tensions. Or as Simon Eggly, a columnist in the Journal de Geneve, wrote not long ago:

"Racism as an ideology is a perversion as stupid as it is dangerous. Nevertheless, the necessity for a nation to preserve its identity and a minimum of cultural integrity is natural."

American 'Turncoat'

'I Chose To Come To China. I've Never Regretted It'

JINAN, China (UPI) — "Don't knock, just walk right in," the gruff, shrunken American yelled as he hobbled to the door of his cluttered apartment.

"You should have told me you were coming. I would have shaved," chided the 62-year-old former U.S. Army private, setting down his cane and sinking into a frumpy, overstuffed living-room chair.

Since 1954, when he came to China after his release from a North Korean prisoner-of-war camp, James Veneris has lived, labored and raised a family in this industrial town 250 miles south of Peking.

And, said the grey-haired veteran, he will die here.

Lighting up a hand-rolled cigarette and cocking back his head, the wizened Korean War "turncoat" from Vandergrift, Pa., mused on the course his life has taken.

"I was a regular army man," said Veneris, who enlisted as an 18-year-old high school graduate and fought with U.S. artillery and anti-aircraft units in Southeast Asia during World War II.

The son of Greek immigrant workers, Veneris returned home in 1945 and took odd jobs as a bartender, a painter, and a spot welder at General Motors. Then, in 1950, the Korean War broke out.

"I had to struggle over whether to join," he said. "But at that time, with McCarthyism, I thought that communists and the yellow hordes were going to take over the United States. I decided I'd try to do something for my country."

Prisoner

No sooner had he landed in South Korea in November 1950 and marched up across the 38th parallel than Chinese and North Korean forces captured his convoy in a mountain ambush a few miles south of China's border.

'...at that time, with McCarthyism, I thought communists and the yellow hordes were going to take over the United States...'

"The convoy stopped. It got dark, and then about two o'clock in the morning I heard bugles blowing — the Chinese were attacking. There was a roadblock, and a lot of us didn't get out," he said.

Veneris said he fled into surrounding hills, but surrendered after watching Chinese soldiers preparing food for their American prisoners.

Leery

"I was very leery, because I was told that if I was ever caught I would be tortured and probably killed," he said. "But there was no way out and it was getting cold."

He was sheltered in Korean homes perched on cliffs and nestled in mountain crevasses, "where the planes couldn't bomb or strafe," and was later sent to a prisoner-of-war camp.

One day at camp, he said the Chinese rounded up all the prisoners for a mock roll call, yelling out, "Truman ... Eisenhower ... General Motors ... Dupont."

"Nobody answered," Veneris said.

"You see, they were making a comparison between the common G.I.s in Korea and all the big shots back in Washington. There was a grain of truth in that." In 1953, truce brought the release of all war prisoners, but Veneris and 20 other Americans decided to go to China.

"There were rumors that we were forced to stay," he said. "But in reality, they gave us the freedom to go anywhere we wanted to ... so I chose to come to China. I've never regretted it since."

"I liked the Chinese people. Being together with them in a POW camp for three years I got to see that Chinese people are not our enemies, they are our genuine friends."

Veneris was friendly with the 20 other U.S. "turncoats" who came to China, but 18 of them went home in the 1960s. Of the remaining two, one died in China. The other, Howard Adams, teaches at a Jinan medical college and is Veneris' buddy.

Communism appealed to Veneris "to some extent," but he said he mainly wanted to get to know the Chinese people and how they lived.

Starting at the U.S. equivalent of $25 a month, he worked as a lathe operator eight hours a day, six days a week in a just took everything naturally."

In 1957 he married a Chinese woman, who died of tuberculosis 10 years later. He remarried in 1968 and had a son, Lellei, now 12, and daughter, Shaoshao, now 14, by his second wife. That marriage ended in divorce.

His current wife, Chen Xumei, is a cherub-faced professor of botany at Jinan's Shandong University. Veneris began teaching English there in 1981, when his eyesight failed and he retired from the paper mill to his tiny campus apartment.

"I call her Xumei — it means outstanding plum," he said. "Xumei is a very moderate woman, she doesn't blow her stack. And she likes people — that's right down my alley," he grinned.

Happy

In 1976, when China opened again to the West, Veneris went home for the first time since the war and visited his mother, Irene, 90, and his three sisters in Hawthorne, California.

"They treated me damn good," said Veneris. But a year later, he "got homesick and wanted to see the kids," so he returned to Jinan.

American friends still send him letters and care packages.

"Yesterday, I was so happy. I got a whole tape of Christmas carols," Veneris beamed. "Listen ..." His eyes twinkled as "Hark the Herald Angels" filled the tiny apartment.

"I hope it snows. I love a white Christmas," he said.

Bundled in a thick cotton Mao jacket and baggy blue pants, Veneris sipped sugary coffee his wife brought him.

"A lot of people wonder, well, why did you go to China? I can't become a capitalist here or a millionaire — that's out of the question," said Veneris, who now earns $115 a month.

"But I'm happy here. I have a refrigerator, a warm room and a lot of work to do."

Fellow workers taught him Chinese by tracing characters on the workshop floors.

When Mao Tse-tung launched his chaotic, decade-long Cultural Revolution in 1966, Veneris said the paper mill workers broke down into five or six hostile factions, all struggling for control.

"I wanted to join but they always told me to keep out of it, because if there was a fist fight I might get clipped. I think they were right," he laughed. "I

Language Barrier To Women's Lib In France

By Nicolas Skrotzky

Editor's Note: Skrotzky is a free-lance reporter for French television and radio.

PARIS — The French government recently created a ministry of women's rights, which has already made considerable progress toward fulfilling the objective implied in its name. But it faces one insurmountable barrier.

France has a fundamental gender gap in its language, whose nouns are either masculine or feminine. So women cannot begin to hope to attain equality as long as the French tongue itself gives them a separate and often inferior status.

Take, for instance, the problem confronting the head of the new ministry, Yvette Roudy. She is a seasoned fighter for female emancipation, yet there is nothing she can do to free her own title from the shackles of a sexist language.

She cannot call herself Madame Minister, since minister is masculine and the label would represent an unacceptable clash of genders. On the other hand, she can hardly be known as Madame Ministress, as there is no such word.

In sound French fashion, therefore, she has formed a committee to "feminize the designations of professions and functions," as its mandate reads. But its chairperson also has a problem.

She is Madame Benoit Groult, a writer. She claims to have already found 350 feminine equivalents for formerly male "designations" — except her own. The word "writer" is unalterably masculine, as is "author."

Madame Groult would like to pass on the problem to the French Academy, an august body that acts as final arbiter of the language. However, its learned members are themselves wrangling over a similar issue.

Not long ago, after centuries of masculine exclusivity, they elected a woman to their lofty ranks, the writer Marguerite Yourcenar. But they cannot invent a proper title for her, since Madame Academician is a contradiction of genders.

Another headache nagging Madame Groult is that most low-level jobs, like cashier, have feminine titles in contrast to more prestigious positions, which are almost always designated by masculine words. A riddle posed by employees at the ministry of women's rights underscores the dilemma.

A father and his daughter are in-involved in an automobile accident in which he dies and she is taken to the hospital for surgery. The surgeon looks at her and refuses to perform the operation, saying: "She is my daughter." Why?

The answer, of course, is that the surgeon is a woman. But the story seems impossible in France because "surgeon" is a masculine word — despite the fact that half of France's medical students are women. "Doctor" is also masculine.

It may be that the male chauvinist character of the French idiom merely mirrors the reality that women are not especially favored in France, even though they hold more prominent posts here than in many other countries, including the United States.

For instance, President Francois Mitterrand's Cabinet contains five women besides Madame Roudy. Still, women are scarce in the upper echelons of business, and they are a distinct minority in the legislature.

If she cannot change the language, however, Madame Roudy is very dynamically striving to eradicate other symptoms of sexism. One of her targets are advertisements that feature scantily-clad female models.

A bigger challenge for Madame Roudy, though, is the plight of nearly a million divorced or separated French women, many of whom are unable to get child support or other help from their ex-husbands. Estimates are that only half the alimony awarded by courts is actually paid.

The ministry of women's rights is taking measures designed to punish men who fail to pay alimony. It has also established an emergency fund to aid women in dire need.

Another innovation of the ministry is a commission to penalize employers who discriminate against women, either by paying them lower wages than men or by refusing to hire them on account of their sex.

One newspaper commentator remarked the other day that Madame Roudy's activities may make it imperative to form a ministry for men's rights, to protect the male species against female domination.

But the French language will stand forever as a symbol of masculine superiority. If it is going to be reformed, it would do better to get rid of its irregular verbs, which torture boys and girls alike.

Shoppers Plan No Big Yule Spending

Editor's Note: The following special Epcot Poll — done in addition to the regular weekly poll — was conducted at Walt Disney World's Epcot Center. Visitors to Epcot are polled daily and their responses are tabulated by computer. The results of the poll are analyzed by the New York research and public opinion polling firm of Allen, Shapiro and Keller-ASK Inc.

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) — Retailers hoping for rebounding profits this Christmas season may find themselves disappointed, a recent survey indicates.

More than 8,000 visitors to Walt Disney World's Epcot Center were asked: "Compared to last year, how much do you plan to spend on Christmas gifts this year?" More than one-third of those polled, or 35 percent, said they would spend the same amount this year as last, while 31 percent said they would spend less. Only 27 percent said they expected to spend more this time around.

The greatest difference of opinion turned up among younger shoppers between the ages of 18 and 34. Among this group 34 percent said they would spend more, while the same number said they would spend less. Here, only 28 percent said they would spend the same amount as last year.

The poll was conducted with 6,597 U.S. adults during the last two weeks of November.

Keeping House Plants Clean Helps Control Pest Problems

When we think of insects, usually we're thinking of outdoor plants and vegetables. But, your indoor plants are not immune to insect invasions. Usually our indoor plants are better protected, however, a number of insects may infiltrate your home in search of a leafy meal!

Major enemies of house plants include spider mites, mealybugs, aphids, scales, and occasionally a caterpillar or two. Spider mites are very small — about one-fiftieth of an inch long. They're difficult to see without a magnifying glass. They look like tiny spiders, and are usually found on the undersides of leaves. In a severe infestation, you'll see a fine webbing on the foliage.

Mealybugs are small, soft-bodied insects, about one-eighth of an inch long. They're covered with a white powdery material. Aphids are usually less than one-eighth of an inch long. They're pear-shaped, have long antennae, and two short tubes that extend from the rear of the body.

Scales range from one-eighth to one-third of an inch in length, are covered with a waxy material, and may be circular, oblong, or pear-shaped. They're found on both sides of the leaves, and on twigs and branches.

Occasionally, you'll even find whiteflies on your plants. These resemble tiny moths, are about one-sixteenth of an inch long, and guess what? They're white. You can usually tell if you have whiteflies by gently shaking suspected plants. If they're there, they'll swarm all around the plant for a few seconds. You can also find them on the undersides of leaves. When young, they resemble tiny green to whitish fish scales.

Other pests include fungus-gnat maggots, psocids, and springtails. These are soil-borne pests and cause little or no damage. Large populations can become a nuisance. Fungus-gnat maggots are white, wormlike, and reach a length of about one-quarter of an inch at maturity. Psocids are about a sixteenth of an inch or less in length. They're grayish and may or may not have wings. Springtails are really tiny, usually white, and they jump when disturbed.

These are the most commonly encountered insects outdoors — others may try to sneak in for a free meal. If you're bringing in new plants, give them a close inspection before placing them near your other plants.

If you discover bugs attacking your house plants, slow down don't grab the nearest pesticide. You could be making a big mistake! You may be applying a pesticide that would do more harm than good. You may not even need a pesticide!

Those who believe chemicals offer the only sure solution to house plant pests are at least partially wrong. While commercial pesticides usually are essential for severe infestations, many insect problems can be controlled through regular inspection and proper care. You can control them before the situation gets critical.

As soon as you get a new plant, inspect it carefully, make sure it's free of insects. Isolate it for a month or so before placing it with your collection. If it is infested, this gives you time to recognize and correct the problem before it spreads. When potting plants, be sure you use sterilized soil and containers. This will prevent attacks by soil-borne pests.

If a pest problem occurs, and only a few are seen, the simplest solution is to physically remove them. Caterpillars, slugs, and snails are easily picked off by hand. Such villains as aphids and mealybugs can be seen well enough to be removed with tweezers. Aphids and mealybugs can be removed, too, with a cotton ball dipped in rubbing alcohol and stroked gently on the infested area of the plant. Be careful, though, too much alcohol will burn the foliage.

Plants can be sprayed with a forceful stream of luke-warm water — strong enough to wash the bugs away without damaging the foliage. If you spray your plants once every two weeks, you'll eliminate nearly all of the common pests. Remember, most insects are found on the underside of leaves, so spray these areas well. Plants enjoy a frequent shower — it keeps them clean and attractive.

Washing plants with a mild soap solution is another way to control insects. Mix two teaspoons of a mild detergent in a gallon of water. Then apply the solution with a soft brush or cloth. You'll probably want to wash your plants outdoors, or in a large sink. For the very large plants that you cannot move, use a sponge or toothbrush to clean them. Most plants will benefit from a thorough washing a couple of times a year. Remember, some plants with fuzzy leaf surfaces cannot tolerate moisture on their leaves. Other methods will have to be used on these sensitive plants.

All of these methods will effectively control bugs on your house plants. They're simple and inexpensive. And, if you keep your plants clean, you probably will not have to resort to stronger measures. In cases of heavy infestations and certain persistent pests, it may be necessary to use a chemical pesticide. If so, check with your favorite garden supply store for recommended insecticides and follow directions exactly.

Happy gardening!

Mrs. Stephen Ray Ogden

Rebecca Methvin, Stephen R. Ogden Exchange Vows

Rebecca Sue Methvin and Stephen Ray Ogden were married Nov. 10, at 7 p.m., at the Community Methodist Church, Casselberry. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Ogden, 1525 Balmy Beach Drive, Apopka.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown, fashioned along the empire silhouette with a stand-up neckline and illusion front and back yoke embellished with schiffli embroidered accents and pearl motifs. The flounced hemline extended into a graceful sweeping train. A pearl tiara held her fingertip veil and blusher of imported illusion and she carried a cascade of white carnations, pink roses and baby's breath showered with streamers.

Maid of honor was Terri Methvin and matron of honor was Janice Smith, both sisters of the bride. Their dusty rose gowns were complemented with Victorian styled lace jackets. Each carried a hand bouquet of white carnations and pink and dusty rose roses accented with burgundy and pink streamers.

Bridesmaids were Patty Anderson, Ellen Schitker and Sharla Evans. They were gowned identically to the honor attendants and carried similar bouquets.

The bridegroom's father served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Micky Methvin, Steve Wilson, Ricky Seay and Shawn Sullivan.

Serena Brown was flower girl and David Smith Jr. was the ring bearer.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Bonnie Werley was the coordinator and Bridgett Floyd kept the guest book. Members of the Hope Circle assisted in serving.

Following a wedding trip to Sky Valley, Ga., and Gallinburg, Tenn., the newlyweds are making their home in Apopka. The bride is employed by Sun Bank, Apopka, and the bridegroom is an employee of Florida Hospital, Altamonte.

Young And Old Out Of Tune On National Anthem

DEAR ABBY: This is prompted by "Patriot's" letter urging you to use your influence in retiring "The Star-Spangled Banner" as our national anthem in favor of a song that's easier to sing.

Few people know that we had a national anthem before 1916. When I went to elementary school in Detroit, our singing teacher taught us the national anthem — "My Country 'Tis of thee, sweet land of liberty." That was our national anthem until I graduated from the University of Michigan in 1915. The following year, President Wilson proclaimed "The Star-Spangled Banner" our national anthem, and Congress confirmed it in 1931 when Herbert Hoover was president.

I don't know if "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was ever officially proclaimed our national anthem, or if, like Topsy, it just grew. For me it's part of my heritage. "The Star-Spangled Banner" has always seemed a poor substitute. By the way, I am 91 years old.

Asplen's Clutch Shot Ices Down DeLand

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
DELAND — The fact that they were going up against the state's top ranked (4A) team and the state's best player, Bridgette Gordon, only made Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots more determined than ever.

"Before the game, every kid on the team had fire in her eyes," Lake Brantley coach Renny Betris said. "They just weren't going to be denied."

Despite being down by as much as nine points in the second half, the Lady Patriots hung tough and came back to tie the score at 43-43 with a minute left to play.

DeLand then went to Gordon but the 8-1 senior missed her attempt to give the Bulldogs the lead. Lake Brantley then took over and whittled the clock down to 10 seconds. The Patriots set up for a last shot and Sherry "Ice" Asplen was the one who took it.

Asplen hit nothing but net from a foot above the free throw line with two seconds left and the Lady Patriots celebrated one of their biggest victories — if not the biggest ever — a 45-43 triumph over DeLand on the Lady Bulldogs' home court.

"Everybody pitched in, it was a total team effort," Betris said. "And we played some unreal defense. We don't have much of a reputation for being a strong team, but we proved tonight that we are."

Lake Brantley improved to 5-1 overall with its fifth straight win. The Lady Patriots also raised their Five Star Conference record to 2-0. DeLand now stands at 3-0 overall and 1-1 in the Five Star.

Gordon led DeLand with a game-high 23 points, but she had to work for those points as Lake Brantley applied tremendous defensive pressure.

"We double teamed her (Gordon) everywhere she went," Betris said. "She scored eight of her points on breakaway layups. We really stopped her inside, we had her frustrated."

Basketball

Along with its tenacious defense, Lake Brantley once again got balance on offense. Kirsten Dellinger, the Lady Patriots' 6-1 senior center, led the way with 11 points and she also pulled down seven rebounds. Senior guard Kim Lubenow popped in 10 points while Asplen, a junior guard, had an impressive all-around game with eight points, six assists and six rebounds. Senior forward Michelle Brown tossed in six points, pulled down nine boards and handed out four assists. Cammie Twaddell chipped in with six points and Angle May came off the bench to contribute four points.

Behind the play of Gordon and point guard Robyn Swartz, the Lady Bulldogs managed to build an early lead. But Lake Brantley wouldn't let DeLand pull ahead by more than eight points and the Patriots closed within five, 26-21, at halftime.

DeLand kept trying to build to its lead in the third quarter, but Lake Brantley continued to come back. The Lady Patriots pulled within three points, 34-31, at the end of the third quarter.

Lake Brantley stayed within three points for the first two minutes of the fourth quarter but DeLand scored three straight points to build a 39-33 lead with 5:30 left in the game.

With the Bulldogs holding a 36-33 lead, Betris was called for a technical foul with six minutes left. Gordon made one of the two free throws for a 37-33 lead. Gordon came back to hit a jumper with 5:30 left for a 39-33 DeLand lead.

Lake Brantley then tightened up on defense as it allowed DeLand just four points the rest of the way. The Lady Patriots also came through with some clutch play on offense as all five of its players on the floor scored in the last four minutes of play.

Lake Brantley battled back to tie the score at 43-43 with one minute remaining when Lubenow popped in a jumper. DeLand then set up for what could have been the go-ahead basket.

"We knew they would go to Gordon and the defense just beat her to the spot," Betris said. "She didn't even hit the rim with her shot."

Brown grabbed the rebound for the Patriots and Brantley called time out with 37 seconds left.

The Patriots went down court and let the clock run down to 10 seconds before calling another time out to set up the last shot.

"I just told the kids to work the ball around for a good shot," Betris said. "And Sherry

Sherry 'Ice' Asplen ...cools of No. 1 DeLand

(Asplen) got it and hit it and the place just went wild."

Lake Brantley goes for its sixth straight win Monday when it hosts Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks.

Lions Happy To Be Home After Setback

EUSTIS — Oviedo basketball coach Dale Phillips has unpacked his bag and he's glad to be home. Especially after Thursday night's tough 53-50 loss to Eustis, the young Lions' fourth setback in five games.

"I've done a miserable job of scheduling," said Phillips on the eve of tonight's contest with Wymore Tech. "With this young (one senior) of a team, we shouldn't be on the road so much early in the year."

"Gosh, it's great to be home."

The Lions, who host their 11th annual Oviedo Outlook Tournament next week at SCC, experienced a miserable shooting first half as Eustis assumed to a 21-14 lead at halftime behind the shooting of 6-5 Robert Williams and Chris Dent. Williams finished with 23 points and Dent had 14.

"Our first-half shooting was just horrendous. It didn't help that we didn't shoot a free throw either," continued Phillips, whose club cashed in on 16 of 18 foul line opportunities when it got a chance in the second half. "We played a lot better in the second half but when you turn the ball over 37 times, it's tough to win."

But the Lions had a chance. Junior guard Bernell Simmons, who tossed in 10 of his 12 points in the second half, dropped a bomb from the top of the key to pare the deficit to 51-50 with 12 seconds remaining. The Lions had stormed back from 12 points down with just four minutes to go.

The Lions, according to Phillips, then tried to foul a Eustis player but couldn't get the call. One long pass later, it was 53-50 and Oviedo was heading for home.

James Stewart followed Simmons with 11 points while Rob Hughes and Allen Unroe each pumped in six. Mark Stewart totaled seven.

Lyman's Denise Stevens dives for a first down over Seminole's Catherine Anderson. Anderson, a junior, took her aggressiveness to the glass Thursday night, coming away with a career-high 20 rebounds as the Lady Seminoles topped Lyman.

Mona Benton poured in a season-high 27 points and Catherine Anderson added 14 points and 20 rebounds as Seminole upended Lyman's Lady Greyhounds, 73-59, Thursday night in Five Star Conference action at Seminole High.

Benton, who hit 13 of 24 shots from the floor, also added seven rebounds, seven assists and four steals as Seminole improved to 6-1 overall and 2-0 in the Five Star.

Lyman, which has lost five straight, now stands at 1-5 overall and 0-4 in the conference. Kim Forsyth, held to just four points by Lake Mary on Tuesday, came back strong Thursday with 26 points.

Seminole coach Ron Merthie said Lyman played a much better ballgame than it did Tuesday when it dropped a 61-35 decision to Lake Mary. "They came after us," Merthie said of the Greyhounds. "They really played well the first half but we opened it up and pulled away in the second."

Seminole took a five-point lead, 18-13, after the first quarter and extended it to 10, 40-30, at halftime.

The Lady Tribe pulled away in the third quarter, outscoring Lyman, 14-9, to take a 54-39 lead in the fourth quarter. Seminole went up by as much as 20 points in the fourth quarter to put the victory on ice.

Anderson's 20 rebounds is a career high for the 5-8 junior forward. "She really got down on the boards," Merthie said of Anderson.

Behind Benton and Anderson, Seminole's backcourt tandem of Andell "Soul" Smith and Temika Alexander added 12 points each. Smith hit 6 of 12 shots from the floor while Alexander made 6 of 13. The fleet-footed duo also added four assists and three steal apiece.

Behind Forsyth for the Lady Greyhounds, Latonya Johnson tossed in 13 points and Denise Stevens added 11.

Seminole is back in action Monday as it hosts Five Star foe Lake Mary. Lyman hosts DeLand's Lady Bulldogs Tuesday night.

Lady Rams Blast Howell — Lyman Boots Brantley

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
Lake Mary's Lady Rams exploded for three goals in the last 10 minutes of the first half to take a 4-0 halftime lead and the Lady Rams went on to claim a 7-1 victory over Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks in prep soccer action Thursday at Lake Mary High.

The Lady Rams, who improved to 2-3-1 with the win, took a 1-0 lead four minutes into the game when Amy Fluett headed in a corner kick from Marian Stonerock.

Lake Howell goalkeeper Darcee Misiak kept the Lady Rams from scoring for the next 26 minutes but the Lady Hawks couldn't crack Lake Mary's tough defense for a goal.

Mario Baumeister gave Lake Mary a 2-0 lead with 10 minutes left in the first half when she drilled in a shot from 30 yards out. Two minutes later, Jodi Gall scored the first of her three goals on the night on an assist from Kirsten Jones for a 3-0 lead.

Gall came back with three minutes left in the half to score on an assist from Stonerock as the Lady Rams built a 4-0 halftime lead.

Lake Mary took a commanding 5-0 lead eight minutes into the second half on Jones' unassisted goal. Maria Casella later booted in a penalty kick and Gall added her third goal on an assist from Vickie Warner.

Lake Howell, 0-4, averted the shutout when Jennifer Rogers scored late in the second half.

The Lady Rams took 31 shots on goal Thursday compared to just five for Lake Howell. Misiak came up with 16 saves for the Lady Hawks and Laura Hellegaard had five for the Lady Rams.

"We played a lot better defense," Lake Mary coach Bill Eissele said. "Stonerock and Dorrie Ehlers played outstanding defense and Jones played really well at midfield."

Lake Mary will go for its second straight win Saturday afternoon at 1 when it travels to Trinity Prep. Lake Howell will be back in action Tuesday in the Burger King Tournament at Lake Mary High.

In other action, Oviedo's Lady Lions received a goal and an assist each from Cathy Bergman, Tiffany Baker and Chris Geltz en route to a 3-1 victory over Trinity Prep at Oviedo High School.

The victory evened coach Paul Greer's girls' mark at 1-1 while coach Ron Vierling's Lady Saints dropped to 2-1-2. "We made all the plays defensively," said Greer, who started the Lady Lions' program last year. "Tris Samberg and Kelly Price played really good games."

"Kelly used her speed to stop several breakaways and make things easier for our goalie."

Oviedo's keeper, freshman Lori Blackburn, turned back 19 shots to keep the Lady Saints at bay. Brooks McGalrick had Trinity's lone goal 12:08 into the first half on an assist by Stacy Johnson.

Oviedo broke the ice 9:38 into the game when sophomore Baker chipped the ball in front of the net to Bergman and the sophomore daughter of UCF baseball coach Jay Bergman rammed it home for a 1-0 lead.

After McGalrick's goal, Baker drilled in a 20-yarder at 13:22 high into the corner by the left post after a nice feed from Geltz. Baker picked up the assist.

Oviedo improved on its 2-1 halftime lead when Geltz took matters into her own hands and scored from 12 yards out on an assist by Bergman 23:42 into the second half.

"We only have one senior," said

Bergman about sweeper Samberg. "We're looking to have a pretty good team by the end of the year."

Oviedo takes a break over the holidays and returns to action Jan. 4 at Lake Brantley.

In Thursday's other game, Lyman's Lady Greyhounds continued to roll toward another berth at the state tournament with an impressive 7-2 victory over Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots at Lake Brantley High.

Sheila Mandy and Alyson Barnes had two goals each while Karen Abernethy, Dawn Boyesen and Stacey Roy kicked home one each as the Lady Greyhounds improved to 4-0 with a trip to Gainesville Buchholz next on the schedule Saturday.

"We played 13 or 14 minutes before anybody scored," said Lyman coach Tom Barnes. "It was anybody's game until we took control at midfield."

In boys action Thursday, New Smyrna Beach handed Seminole a 4-2 setback at New Smyrna Beach. It dropped the Tribe of coach Logan Fleck to 0-4-1 for the season.

Timmy Roberts and Sidney Grigg accounted for the Seminole scoring. The Tribe plays in the DeLand Tournament this weekend.

Maryland Coasts By Eastern Shore

By United Press International
The Christmas season had nothing to do with it. Coach Lefty Driesell found it easy to be jolly after Maryland routed Maryland-Eastern Shore Thursday night 87-48.

He even found something to be thankful for. "I was glad we were able to play the substitutes some. Everybody played well. It was a good evening," he said.

In the game played at College Park, Md., Adrian Branch scored 16 points and reserve guard Jeff Baxter had 14 to lead the Terps.

Say Goodbye, John — Lake Mary Is The Wrestling Mecca

There's no way a sports fan can be bored this weekend. The schedule goes from coast to coast. Highlights are many on the prep schedule but I wouldn't miss seeing John McKay coach his last game in Tampa Sunday.

Now, if that isn't cause for celebration, nothing is. McKay's departure, as most Buccaneer fans will tell you, is long overdue. So when the New York Jets trot into Tampa Stadium Sunday, it will mark the end of an era for the only coach in Tampa's nine-year history and hopefully the beginning of a better one for the sliding franchise...

Speaking of sliding, the Lyman Christmas Tournament came up one team short this year when Winter Park pulled out, leaving the field at 15 teams. The hosts reportedly called everywhere but could find no takers.

"We might cut it back to just 12 quality teams next year," said Lyman athletic director Skip Pletzer. "That will make it a more competitive tournament."

Too bad. Lyman and Emerson Electric have processed an excellent tournament for 13 years, but other Christmas tournaments have drawn some of the teams. Lyman used to be the wrestling focal point in the county, but no longer.

Lake Mary, with its two outstanding coaches, Frank Schwartz and Doug Peters, have developed such a following with an aggressive USA wrestling summer program that all they are far and away the hotbed of wrestling in the county — and maybe Central Florida. Schwartz and Peters have worked very hard to cultivate their program, often helping wrestlers from other schools during the summer.

When Lyman promoted Pletzer, a fine wrestling coach, to athletic director, the Greyhounds made a big pitch to hire Peters, who had a fine wrestling career at Lyman. Peters said, though, that the high-pressure tactics used by Lyman turned him off and he decided to stay at Lake Mary.

Lyman then gave the job to head football coach Bill Scott, who built Lyman's program, with Schwartz as his assistant, during the early years. The interest, though, has flickered and Lake Mary has become the mecca as indicated by its great crowds and 24 consecutive dual-match winning streak.

A yardstick to use is when a wrestler moves to Seminole County, where he does he live? Lake Mary's school district, of course. Ask Scott Ross, a transfer from Sarasota.

Thankfully for tonight's tournament, the Lyman brass didn't invite Brandon to bring its second team. Then, the other teams might be fighting for third instead of second. Lake Mary still has a long way to go before catching the Brandon juggernaut.

Sam Cook

Wrestling action begins with the first round at 6 tonight with the second round to follow immediately. The semis are at 10 a.m. Saturday with the consolation finals at 6 and the championship finals at 8. Admission is $2.50 for students and $3 for adults...

If basketball is your bag, SCC's Raiders travel to Cocoa for the Brevard Invitational. The Raiders take on Indian River for the third time. They split two earlier meetings, both winning at home.

Indian River, 9-3, is ranked fourth on coach Bill Payne's Power Rankings list of the JUCO teams. Daytona Beach, which received an 18-point performance from Sanford's Willie Mitchell Thursday night, has moved into the No. 1 spot with a 13-1 record.

Manatee (9-1), Miami Dade North (7-0), Indian River (9-3), Lake City

(10-3), Florida Junior College (9-4), Pensacola (13-2), Florida College (11-3), Hillsborough (11-1) and Gulfcoast (10-2) complete the list.

SCC, 8-5, will play Dade North Saturday at Brevard. "They're really tonight," said Payne who scouted the Miami school Friday. The Raiders will start Slim Johnson or Willie Strother along with Linny Grace, Greg "Skywalker" Bates, Mike Landell and Kenny Edwards tonight. Johnson, coming off his best game Tuesday, is questionable because of some stitches he received when hurt in Wednesday's practice.

Locally, coach Chris Marlette's Seminoles renew a strong rivalry with Lyman at home. The Greyhounds have struggled a little this year but coach Tom Lawrence always has them ready to play Seminole. Last year, the "Hounds surprised the Tribe at Lyman.

Seminole wanted to get back on the winning track after losing to Seabreeze Tuesday. Ken Gordon, super soph Rod Henderson and James Rouse have been carrying the scoring load for the Tribe. Junior Dayl Williams has been the main man off the bench.

Lyman has two good shooters in T.J. Scaletta and Brett Marshall. Ralph Philpott, a junior, is one of the best rebounders around and Reggie Douglas is an exciting performer with great hang time.

Elsewhere, there's a great shootout set for Lake Mary High when coach Greg Robinson brings his 4-1 Silver Hawks to town. Robinson's gang was blown out by Mainland Tuesday and is looking to atone.

Lake Mary, behind a week because four starters (Ray Hartsfield, Donald Grayson, Jeff Reynolds and Byron Washington) were playing football, whipped Lyman Tuesday.

Tonight's showcase will be high-flying Darryl Merthle against Lake Howell's super talent Efrim Brooks. They're probably the two best players in the county. Lake Mary's girls open the card at 6:15 against the Lady Hawks.

Elsewhere, coach Bob Peterson's Lake Brantley Patriots travel to DeLand to take on the Bulldogs. Peterson and his Pats gave highly regarded Spruce Creek a scare Tuesday and he hopes they can regroup to do the same to the Bulldogs.

Oviedo is at home against Wymore Tech. "What an unpredictable team they are," marveled Lion coach Dale Phillips.

Peterson will confirm that. A 51-point turnaround by Wymore hung a two-point loss on the Pats after they thrashed the Bobcats in the first game of the year...

Lady Raiders' Trio Crumbles 1st Cookie, Bites Dade North

MIAMI — The first cookie has crumbled. Ileana Gallagher said her Lady Raiders faced three tough cookies this week in Miami Dade North, Miami Dade South and Broward our their southern swing.

Rams Try To Seal Berth

United Press International

The NFC playoff jigsaw puzzle will begin to fit together tonight when the Los Angeles Rams attempt to seal a wild card berth with a victory against the San Francisco 49ers.

The Rams, 10-5, can still get in if they lose tonight, but might have to wait until Monday night to know for sure. If Los Angeles loses, either a Washington victory over St. Louis on Sunday or Miami beating Dallas on Monday night could put the Rams in the playoffs.

The 49ers are 14-1 and have already clinched the NFC West title and the home field advantage all through the playoffs. But if they triumph Friday, they will become the first team in NFL history to win 15 regular season games.

If the Rams win, the New York Giants can clinch the other NFC wild card spot by beating New Orleans Saturday. That would leave Washington and St. Louis to battle for the NFC East title Sunday and eliminate the Cowboys from post-season play for the first time in 10 years.

If the 49ers win, however, the Giants, Redskins and Cowboys will all stay alive in the wild card chase.

As NFC Central champions, the Chicago Bears are the only NFC team beside the 49ers to have a playoff spot guaranteed.

In the AFC, Miami has won the East, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati are still fighting for the Central, and Denver will meet Seattle with the West title at stake. The Denver-Seattle loser joins the defending champion Los Angeles Raiders as wild card teams.

The Giants will be rooting for the Rams tonight so they can clinch with a victory at home on Saturday. If the Rams lose tonight, it doesn't matter if the Giants win or lose against the Saints — it will take victories by Washington and Miami to put New York in the playoffs.

At Seattle Saturday, Denver will try to avenge a 27-24 loss to the Seahawks on

Pro Football

Nov. 25. In that game, Seattle quarterback Dave Krieg completed 30 of 44 passes for 406 yards and three touchdowns.

The Seahawks have never won a division title in their nine-year history. If they lose, they'll host the Raiders Dec. 23 in the wild card game. If Denver loses, the Broncos cannot host the wild card game unless Pittsburgh tops the Raiders Sunday.

At Cincinnati Sunday, the Bengals need a win coupled with a Steelers' loss to the Raiders to become the first team in a non-strike year to make the playoffs without a winning record. Cincinnati will be 8-8 with a victory over Buffalo.

At Los Angeles, the Steelers, 8-7, are in a must-win game with the red-hot Raiders. Los Angeles, 11-4, now has two healthy quarterbacks in Marc Wilson and Jim Plunkett. Both were hurt during Raiders' mid-season slump.

In other games Sunday, it's Philadelphia at Atlanta, Green Bay at Minnesota, the New York Jets at Tampa Bay, Chicago at Detroit, Kansas City at San Diego, Indianapolis at New England, and Cleveland at Houston.

LEADERS HUDDLE TO KEEP EAGLES

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — As city leaders huddled to plan a strategy for keeping the Eagles in Philadelphia, Mayor Wilson Goode admitted that Leonard Tooe appears to have a "real solid deal" for moving his NFL franchise to Phoenix.

"There has been a series of meetings going on all day long between the city, some banking people and people from the Eagles organization," the mayor said late Thursday afternoon.

"My information is what we have here is an arrangement where Mr. Tooe had a real solid deal in Phoenix," he said.

Loyal Sutcliffe Opts For Return To Cubs

Baseball

CHICAGO (UPI) — A sense of loyalty, a lucrative contract and a chance to complete some "unfinished" business have combined to keep Rick Sutcliffe in Chicago Cub pinstripes for another five years.

Sutcliffe, the 1984 National League Cy Young Award winner, came to terms Thursday with the club he led to its first flag of any kind in 39 years.

The bearded right-hander today will sign a five-year contract estimated to bring him $9.5 million — making him one of the highest-paid athletes ever.

The contract also gives him the chance to erase the memory of his fifth-game loss to the Padres in the National League championship series — a loss that ended the Cubs' hopes of a World Series berth.

"I think I owed the city of Chicago something for that," Sutcliffe said.

Cubs General Manager Dallas Green confirmed the agreement through a spokesman late Thursday. But he said he won't be completely satisfied until Sutcliffe actually signs the contract.

"We're getting closer by the minute," Green told a local television station. "There still is a chance that everything could fall through. Until Rick signs that piece of paper, I'm not totally happy."

Cubs Manager Jim Frey lauded the reported return of Sutcliffe.

"If it's true, that means we are going to start spring training with a strong ballclub," Frey said.

Executives of the three other clubs bidding for Sutcliffe acknowledged they had been notified of his decision to sign with Chicago.

At the outset of negotiations, Green had said he had no intention of losing Sutcliffe.

"We will not be outbid," said Green, who acquired Sutcliffe from Cleveland on June 13 in a seven-player deal. "We didn't make that trade for Cleveland to lose Sutcliffe."

The fireballing right-hander, who posted a 16-1 regular-season record with the Cubs, became a free agent after the last game of the National League playoffs in San Diego.

"I think it came down to loyalty," said Padres' President Ballard Smith. "I really don't think the money was the critical issue. Rick was loyal to the Cubs for giving him the chance, and he felt very strongly about that."

San Diego reportedly offered Sutcliffe a five-year, $9 million contract.

YANKES WILL GET BERRA

NEW YORK (UPI) — You know what his father, Yogi, says — it's never over until it's over.

Or putting it another way, the Yankees and Pirates finally found a way to complete a multi-player deal that will have Dale Berra playing third base in New York for his managing father next season, and Steve Kemp moving to Pittsburgh to beef up the Pirates' outfield.

Along with Kemp, the Pirates will get infielder Tim Lincecum, who was with them once before, in exchange for Berra and 19-year-old rookie outfielder Jay Buhner, considered one of the brightest prospects in the Pittsburgh organization.

Anxiety: Find Cause And It May Disappear

DEAR DR. LAMB — I saw a specialist who said I definitely suffer from anxiety. I have excessive sweating, heart palpitation, trembling of the hands, a trembling feeling inside and breathing difficulties.

I take three tablets of Inderal plus Ativan. I smoke moderately and I have two drinks before the evening meal.

DEAR READER — I am glad that you have seen a specialist, and I hope by that you do mean you are seeing a psychiatrist for professional counseling.

Anxiety can cause all of the symptoms you mention. One of the problems with anxiety is that it is the great imitator. It causes symptoms that people think are heart disease, or even digestive problems.

Inderal is a useful medicine in many such cases because it neutralizes the effects of adrenaline. Anxiety causes a surge of adrenaline. This is one mechanism that causes heart palpitations or a fast heartbeat.

I am concerned about your smoking. That increases the release of adrenaline and contributes to anxiety reactions. The same can be said for caffeine, so I hope you are not drinking coffee, tea or colas.

I am also concerned about your use of alcohol. It has a depressant effect, which may not be useful in your situation. Alcohol also can have a negative reaction if it is combined with Ativan, which is an anti-anxiety medicine or tranquilizer.

You need to explore why you have anxiety. If you can resolve the cause, you may not need to take medicine and your symptoms may end. That is what good professional help is all about.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 23-year-old male and have a problem with razor bumps. The skin under my neck and chin appears to be scarred with red and black lesions and bumps. In addition, small bits of dry skin and oily substances come off when the skin is rubbed.

DEAR READER — It is not the skin, but the hair. Tightly curled hair tends to act like a spring, and the free end sticks back into the flesh, causing the inflammation and literally "ingrown hair."

The one almost-sure cure is to let your beard grow. Once the hair is about a half-inch long, it stops re-penetrating the skin. If you start to shave again, the problem will return within one to three weeks. Some dermatologists recommend a foil-guarded shaver (PFB Shaving System, by American Safety Razor Co.). The serrated foil guard keeps you from shaving too close, but does not leave a visible stubble. Applying Retin-A gel or liquid is also helpful. Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here is an instructive hand on disrupting communications between the defenders. It is taken from Victor Mollo's latest effort, "Winning Bridge."

Although weak jump overcalls are the rage these days, there are certain circumstances when the logical thing is to play them otherwise — not necessarily to show a multitude of high cards, but rather to show the kind of hand that will produce a play for game, if there are a few working cards in partner's hand.

Such was the jump to three spades by South after East had raised the one-heart opening to two. North thought his club ace and spade queen to be useful cards. So the raise to four spades was normal.

The opening lead put a damper on proceedings. Apparently the diamond ace was singleton. West, who very likely had the king of spades, played a low club at trick two. If declarer allowed East to win a club trick, back would come a diamond, which West would trump.

What could be done about it? Declarer could of course play spade ace and a small spade, but if West had started with three spades to the king, he would win the king, put East in with a second club, and still get the diamond ruff to set the contract.

Declarer needed to thwart the defenders' club communications. Simple enough. He won with dummy's club ace and played the heart king. When East played low, South threw his remaining club. West won the ace, but now there was no way to get to the East hand for the desired diamond ruff.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY
DECEMBER 15, 1984
Considerable career progress will be made this coming year. However, your climb to the top may be slow rather than speedy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Let bygones be bygones today, even if you have to deal with someone you dislike. Nursing a grudge will take the sparkle out of your day. Looking for romance? The Matchmaker set can help you in your search. Send for it today by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not spend this evening with friends who are not willing to share the expenses. You won't appreciate having the tab dumped in your lap.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Ambition is an admirable quality but don't be so self-serving today that you defeat your own purpose. Know when to stop pushing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Strive to be amicable when dealing with others today, but don't be wishy-washy because this will leave an opening for a domineering companion to think for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep your guard up today if you have to deal with a cold, hard, businesslike individual. He might use unsavory methods to gain his desires.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're putting together a social happening this evening, don't invite two parties who always clash. They could put a damper on the event.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You won't be able to relax and enjoy yourself today if you know in the back of your mind that you've neglected certain responsibilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're involved in some form of friendly competition today, whether it be a game or a sport, keep betting out of the picture. Gambling invites complications.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is not a good day to discuss the family budget with your mate. Both of you may want to trim expenses in areas objectionable to the other.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In joint ventures today if you are overly concerned about the other guy holding up his end, you may let your own sag. Concentrate on what's expected of you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not put unnecessary strain on your financial means today. If there is something expensive you want, wait until you have a little surplus.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be equally as considerate and understanding to family members today as you are likely to be to outsiders. Violating this rule could spell trouble.

'No Fetuses In Make-Up'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government says it does not believe rumors circulating among anti-abortion activists that human fetuses are used in the manufacture of cosmetics.

The Food and Drug Administration, which regulates the manufacture of cosmetics, said Tuesday recent pamphlets and letters to newspapers have alleged fetuses are used in the cosmetics industry.

Officials said a French book, "The Traffic in Unborn Babies," fed the allegations, and was the basis of a recent editorial in a Vatican newspaper. The July issue of Moral Majority Report said similar allegations have been circulating in pro-life circles in the United States for three years, but the newspaper found no basis for them.

"Nor does FDA," the agency said in a statement. "Regarding the cosmetics and other products FDA regulates, FDA does not believe the allegations are applicable to the United States, and is not aware they apply in Europe."

The FDA said inspections of cosmetics firms have turned up no use of fetuses or fetal tissue.

The agency said misunderstanding may stem from the use of placenta, or afterbirth, in plasma and other medical products. Some placenta may be used for protein, called "collagen," in some cosmetics, the FDA said, but animals also are a source of collagen. Collagen injected to smooth facial lines is derived from cows.

IN BRIEF

Court Throws Out Teacher's Slander Suit Against Parent

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court says parents of school children enjoy special privileges protecting them from lawsuits for criticizing teachers' performances.

Ruling 5-2 Thursday, the justices overturned two lower courts and threw out a slander judgment won by a Broward County teacher against the father of one of her students who had publicly attacked her performance and qualifications.

Patricia Galbreath, who teaches English at Nove High School in Fort Lauderdale, charged that she was slandered by remarks made by Joseph J. Nodar at a school board meeting on May 15, 1980.

At the meeting, Nodar questioned Galbreath's qualifications to teach and alleged that she had been harassing his son, a straight-A student who had received his first B in Galbreath's 10th grade class for gifted children.

A jury agreed with the teacher and awarded her $5,000 in compensatory damages and $5,000 in punitive damages.

Refugees Cost Dade $14 Million

MIAMI (UPI) — Dade County spent $14 million on services for the 150,000 Cuban and Haitian refugees who came to the area in 1980 — nearly as much as the federal government spent for those refugees.

The figures were hastily compiled by the county manager's office as part of an effort to pressure the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to follow a strict admissions policy and to persuade the federal government it must pay all expenses for refugees.

According to the study, the federal government spent $14.4 million on the 125,000 Cuban refugees who came to Dade County during the Mariel boatlift in 1980 and the 25,000 Haitian refugees who arrived during the same year.

The county then spent $14 million of its own tax money on such things as delivering hundreds of babies for impoverished Cuban and Haitian mothers and housing 274 refugees a day in the county jail.

County officials are worried over news that the Cuban refugees, once they obtain permanent residency and citizenship under a new federal plan, would be allowed to bring thousands of relatives over from Cuba during the next few decades.

Lyman Band Selling Christmas Trees

The Lyman High School Band will sell Christmas trees again this year in Altamonte Springs on state Road 436 next to Dunkin Donuts on Florida Hospital property. Trees will be on sale from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

through Christmas Eve or while supplies last.

The band offers free tree delivery on Saturdays. Proceeds will go to meet the band's yearly budget.

have ever received from the commissioners were from Smerilison," Chacey said. Smerilison said the evaluations in the past have praised Chacey, but have not given any facts to back it up.

As to Mrs. Garavano's qualifications for the job of Longwood city administrator, Chacey said, "She is probably a pretty qualified city clerk, but to my knowledge she has no experience running a city. It is my opinion that they should hire someone with a minimum of five years experience in city management under his belt. If they don't do that they will not be doing what is best for the city."

Smerilison thinks Chacey is the big issue in the Tuesday run-off election between Larry Goldberg and David Gunter, whose slight lead over incumbent Bill Mitchell was confirmed in a recount. "I think if there is a good turnout from the newer subdivisions it will be a walk-in for Goldberg because of his anti-Chacey stance, but if they are too busy Christmas shopping to vote, it will go to Gunter. Perry Faulkner, who defeated the other incumbent candidate Mayor J.R. Grant, ran for office because of displeasure with Chacey," Smerilison said.

City Clerk Don Terry has predicted only 1,000 voters will turnout to vote at the city hall Tuesday as compared with 1,115 of the city's 4,824 registered voters at the Dec. 4 election.

"If Gunter wins, Chacey will be set for another year, but if Larry Goldberg, who has stated he wants to fire him, wins, Chacey had better think about resigning," said Smerilison. "On the other hand I would rather he resign than be fired and then he would be eligible for retirement pay of an estimated $12,000 from the city in addition to his $31,000 military retirement pay as a colonel. If fired for cause, he would receive less money."

According to state law, employees have the right to collect their benefits under the Florida Retirement system and the city has no control over the payments.

"If Goldberg is elected," Smerilison said, "we will have a tightening of requirements for the job of city manager. The way

Meat Costs Drive Wholesale Prices Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 0.5 percent in November, the most in 10 months, as meat costs went up sharply, the Labor Department said today.

The acceleration in prices was an abrupt change from the previous seven months, of which six saw prices either falling or standing still.

But because of the modest increases earlier, the November report brought the rate of inflation at the wholesale level up only to an extremely moderate 1.9 percent for the first 11 months of 1984.

The Producer Price Index measures changes in the prices of nearly 3,400 commodities, from raw materials to products ready for sale at retail.

The general trends at wholesale usually carry through to the Consumer Price Index but this year consumer prices have risen faster than wholesale prices, climbing at a rate of 4.2 percent through October.

The cost of beef to butchers and processors shot up 7.5 percent in the single month. Pork prices rose 5.8 percent and poultry prices jumped 3.3 percent. The figures were adjusted to compensate for routine seasonal price fluctuations.

Except for some supply shortages for chicken the increases were mainly triggered by sharply increased demand, a department analyst said.

But prices went down sharply for eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables.

The overall food index was up 0.7 percent, the most since July.

The Producer Price Index for November is 292.3, equivalent to a cost to business of $2.923 for goods that cost $1.000 in 1967.

The index dropped 0.2 percent in October and September. A revised figure showed a flat zero for August, like those in June and April, instead of a previously reported decline. Until November the only increase since March was in July, at 0.3 percent.

Energy prices went up 0.6 percent in November, less than half the 1.5 percent increase in October. Prices for gasoline and home heating oil were up while natural gas prices fell for a third month.

Wholesale prices went up just 0.6 percent in 1983, surprising analysts by not rebounding more in 1984.

But analysts doubt that November is anything more than a solitary interruption in a long period of very modest wholesale inflation, for no other reason than still-slipping oil prices.

Deficit Or Defense: Reagan Must Choose

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is caught in the middle of a fierce battle between his own budget advisers and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, and faces a decision that amounts to either reducing the deficit or continuing his massive defense buildup.

Reagan's advisers, led by budget director David Stockman, want Weinberger to reduce the current military spending request by $9 billion and to reduce spending even more in the next two years as part of their plan to cut the annual federal deficit by half — about $100 billion — by 1988.

Weinberger has agreed to only about $6 billion in cuts from his almost $320 billion request, and is adamantly resisting deeper reductions for 1987-88, saying the money is needed to keep the military buildup that Reagan began in 1981 on track.

White House aides insist that Reagan has not made up his mind on whether to order

Weinberger to accept deeper cuts, but leaks from the White House to news organizations made it apparent that Reagan is inching toward Weinberger's corner.

Reagan has already ordered his Cabinet to make deep spending cuts in domestic programs as a first step toward cutting the deficit and even more cuts would have to be made in those programs if Weinberger succeeds in saving most of his budget.

Congressional leaders from both parties, however, have warned Reagan that his spending cuts have little chance of passing if they are not accompanied by equally severe cuts for the Pentagon.

The skirmish between Weinberger and Reagan's fiscal advisers broke out into the open Thursday when the defense secretary made a rare appearance at a routine Pentagon briefing to criticize one money-saving proposal — a freeze on military salaries that would save about $4 billion.

The military pay proposal would freeze the pay of 2.1 million men and women in uniform for fiscal year 1986. The military is to get a 4 percent pay hike Jan. 1, which is in this year's budget. The Pentagon has proposed a 7.1 percent salary increase, which would amount to $3.5 billion, Pentagon sources said.

White House officials confirmed that Weinberger agreed to the freeze as part of the $6 billion he was willing to trim from his fiscal 1986 request.

"The idea of being unfair to the troops ... is certainly no proposal of mine or no proposal of the president," Weinberger said at the briefing.

Asked where the idea originated, he said, "There are others who are unenlightened about such matters who don't understand fully the effect of such things who may be talking about it."

Fire Nearly Destroys Dade Shopping Center

MIAMI (UPI) — Fire fighters brought a four-alarm fire under control at 11 a.m. today after a four-hour struggle that left a shopping center nearly destroyed, Metro-Dade County Fire officials said.

Lynn Aspinall, a spokeswoman for the fire department, said the fire was reported about 7 a.m. today, and dispatchers sent units to the fire at the Las Americas shopping center in a section of Dade County west of Miami.

Aspinall said two more alarms were issued shortly after the first units arrived on the scene.

"The fire appears to have started in a two-story section of the shopping center," Aspinall said. "We think this because that is where most of the blaze seemed to be concentrated."

A fourth alarm was issued about 8:30 a.m., to relieve fire fighters battling the fire, Aspinall said.

"The fourth alarm was issued to relieve fire fighters who tire quickly because of the intense heat."

Two fire fighters with undetermined injuries were taken to Baptist Hospital, and several others were treated for smoke inhalation and heat exhaustion, Aspinall said.

"The shops were empty at the time the fire was reported, so there have been no reports of injuries to shoppers or store owners," she said.

She said fire department investigators were on the scene of the fire to begin the drawn-out task of sifting through the charred remains.

be 7,950 years old while others range from 7,250 years to 7,330 years old.

But researchers said the most significant finds were the discoveries of the skulls of the 45-year-old woman and 27-year-old man with the complete brains inside.

"The Windover archaeological project has consistently proven to be a site of unmatched quality," said Glen Doran, the Florida State University anthropologist who is directing the project.

"To find preserved human brain in any site would be significant, but to find two 7,000-year-old brains in the same site, coupled with the size of the skeletal collection we already have, makes Windover one of a kind in the world."

The woman's skull was found Dec. 12.

A plug of peat at the base of the cranium was removed and scientists could see a greasy substance inside. Then the rear of the skull was cut away.

Phillip Lajtha, a University of Florida microbiologist, lifted the front of the skull and the brain slid into his hand.

On Dec. 12, the skull of a 27-year-old man was found.

The researchers intend to establish a gene "library" from the DNA recovered from the two brains that will be available to researchers worldwide.

The first brain had shrunk to about one-quarter the size of a normal human brain. The second brain was about 60-percent normal size, he said.

Doran said these are the oldest human brains to be analyzed and could be the oldest preserved brains in the world.

He said the opportunity to compare 7,000-year-old DNA to living DNA will increase man's knowledge about gene evolution.

—Extend the school day to nine hours, with the added two hours devoted to study hall or special assignments in the hope the extra time would help prevent drop-outs and reduce the prison population by five percent to save an estimated $10 million;

—Require the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to buy drugs and doctors' services through competitive bulk bids to save an estimated $28 million;

TaxWatch analysts conferred with business leaders, newspaper editorial boards and government workers from the governor down to "those in the trenches," Calabro said.

"The result is a compendium of suggestions — many new and some seasoned — that are worth more than $600 million in fiscal year 1985-86 and over $1 billion during the 1985-87 biennium," he said.

At least 30 of the 101 suggestions TaxWatch made last year have been adopted for a $65 million savings to taxpayers, Calabro said.

ordered a renewed series of tests today to try to pinpoint the cause of the stroke.

He rejected any suggestion that Schroeder's increasing activity in recent days had been a factor in the stroke.

The Jarvik-7 heart and its exterior drive systems were ruled out as a cause of the stroke, Lansing said. "There was no failure of the drive systems or the heart at any time," he said.

Clarification

Dr. Harvey Kansol, clarifying statements in a story published Thursday about the proposed fluoridation of the Seminole County water system, said today that obstetricians are not recommending that expectant mothers take fluoride to protect their baby's teeth in the formative stage. He said a study is being conducted to determine whether fluoride would protect children's teeth during that period. While fluorides appear naturally in water in some parts of India and causes mottling of the teeth in those areas, it is not a nationwide problem and not all Indians have brown teeth as a result.

doubt that Howdy Doodie has a twin sibling named Double.

There is no doubt, however, about how seriously players take it all. Sportsmanship often suffers much during the course of a TP match.

"We love to win and have almost gotten to the point of being vengeful about it," Mrs. Murphy said. "In the beginning you'll decide you're going to be flexible, but as the game goes on and somebody gets ahead it gets heavy. Winning or losing is important. It's a matter of pride.

"It's not easy and if it were it wouldn't be a challenge, but a lot of people won't play because they don't want to be embarrassed," she said. "Once they are drawn into the game they find they know more than they think.

"We play with family or friends once every week or two. But when we play we may play all night long, depending on how angry we get. A better word would be frustrated or exasperated. But it's more fun than watching television."

New York psychotherapist Linda Barbanel said people may be in hot pursuit of Trivial Pursuit because, "Conversation is deadly these days. No one knows how to talk. Also the game can be seen almost as a metaphor for life only it doesn't matter who you know, how much money you have or where you went to college.

"Everyone gets a chance to get ahead with a roll of the dice and simply because of what his interests are, which means that those who watch TV for hours and read all those out-of-date magazines in doctors' offices or under the hairdryer can prove to be the winners," Ms. Barbanel said.

The game may also serve as a means to escape into small issues to allay our anxiety about larger, more serious problems, she said.

"The insignificant becomes significant. But the irony then is that for some people the trivial becomes so important they start worrying about that, too."

If you're a Trivial Pursuit buff, you should know the answers to these questions right off the top of your head: What's the most common name in nursery rhymes, and the most popular beverage in America?

In Pursuit Of The Trivial: Insignificant Infatuation

'I Know That I Do Not Know...'

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Even those who may have cringed at the thought of having to blurt out their knowledge, or lack of it, in an oral exam during their school days are turning en masse to an addictive pursuit that puts their sagacity on the line in the name of fun, challenge and sometimes not so friendly competition.

Oops! Sorry about the digression, but you can see how easy it is to get caught up in all this.

Trivial Pursuit is of course the name of the game (all five editions, each containing 6,000 questions) that will have racked up an estimated $450 million in sales and invaded more than 22 million American homes by the time the new year rolls around. It's the hottest thing since Rubik's cube.

Some of those homes are in Seminole County and the hooked players, who test their knowledge with the original multi-categorized Genus Edition, or the Silver Screen, All-Star Sports, Music, Baby Boomer (questions dating from 1945) or Bible editions, are not fighting their vice.

They either are or aren't coming up with the answers to such lightweight, but mind-taunting, questions as, "What form of horse racing promotes the Little Brown Jug? (harness racing) or who was Howdy Doody's twin brother? (Double Doody.)"

Some of these Trivial Pursuit devotees even wax philosophic when reflecting on the eclectic virtues of this Canadian import. Michael Murphy, a 59-year-old Seminole Community College philosophy professor, said Socrates might have summed up the essence of the game when he said, "I know that I do not know the things I do not know."

Murphy's wife Lorraine, 50, and their six children, who range in age from 20 to 29, are all hooked on this devilishly compelling board game.

"It's a challenge to see if you know more than someone else," Mrs. Murphy said. "The kids think we know everything, but it's only because we've lived longer."

(Speaking of living longer, which has the longest life span, the Galapagos tortoise or ...

Back to the story:

But Mim Kaley, 70, of Winter Springs, who is also a Trivial Pursuit buff, said she believes things even out when young and old play together because everyone seems to have their own categories in which they do well.

"Older people may have the edge when it comes to questions about the 1950s or baseball, but kids know more about what's happening today," she said.

Mrs. Kaley, who plays when she can spare four hours or so for a game with her family, said she gets frustrated with herself when she can't come up with an answer, but she doesn't think people should let the fear of appearing dumb keep them out of the game.

"You have to take a chance. You may find you're smarter or dumber than you think you are. It's difficult and the questions can be quite tricky. I wish I was as smart as I thought I was."

When she doesn't know the answer to a TP question, Mrs. Kaley, like most players, will go out on a limb with a wild guess and is sometimes surprised by her luck. (TP players will, of course, claim to have known the answer all along.)

Mrs. Murphy and other players are sometimes at odds with the game and report that Trivial Pursuit sets don't always have the correct answers to the questions posed. She and her family, for example,

Travanti Play Shutter Bug On 'Gidget'

DEAR DICK — Did Daniel J. Travanti ever appear on the "Gidget" show as a 24-year-old photographer named Tom? The actor looked amazingly like I would have expected Travanti to look many years ago. Was it him? — L.P., Kalamazoo, Mich.

It seemed unlikely, but I checked with Travanti and he said, yes, he did indeed play that part almost 20 years ago.

DEAR DICK — They say the camera never lies. But, in person, Jaclyn Smith doesn't look nearly as young as she does on film. Why is that? Makeup and lighting? — J.E., Houston.

Basically, yes. Naturally, film makers want their female stars to look as young and beautiful as possible. One of Hollywood's claims to fame has always been its ability to do just that. Anyway, the Jaclyn Smith I see around town always looks gorgeous. She is 36, which is hardly ancient, and it seems to my weary eyes that she still looks in her 20s.

DEAR DICK — Who sang the theme song in the movie "High Noon"? Did anyone else have a hit record from that same song? — E.B., Palmyra, N.J.

The "High Noon" theme was sung in the film by the late Tex Ritter (John Ritter's father). It was recorded many times, but Ritter's record was the biggest hit — it was on the pop charts for 10 months.

DEAR DICK — What is Audrey Hepburn's real

Ask Dick Kleiner

name? Is she married? Does she have any children and, if so, what are their names? — T.Y., Houston, Texas.

DEAR DICK — My friend says that Katharine Hepburn and Audrey Hepburn are sisters. I say they are not related. We have asked several people and, so far, the majority agree with my friend. I still do not believe it and won't, unless I hear it from you. — C.W., Joplin, Mo.

Audrey Hepburn's real name is Edda Hepburn-Ruston. And she is absolutely unrelated to Kate in any way. She's been married twice and has one son (by Mel Ferrer) whose name is Sean Ferrer. According to Charles Higham's new biography of her, "Audrey," she also had a long and sizzling affair with William Holden.

DEAR DICK — What background information do you have on Stacy Keach? There was an actor several years ago who lost an arm and a leg in a motorcycle accident, and I had thought it was Stacy Keach, but it does not appear so. Who was that actor? — L.S.R., Madison, Wis.

It was James Stacy who had that terrible accident, not Stacy Keach.

DEAR DICK — Could you help settle a bet between my mother and I? She says that Jack Lemmon played Katharine Hepburn's brother in George Cukor's movie "Holiday." I say she's wrong. Please help — a free dinner out is riding on this. — C.G., Montgomery, Texas.

Eat hearty. You win. Lew Ayres played that part.

DEAR DICK — I have wondered why actors would not choose to just gracefully bow out of a role in a story rather than to be killed and watch their own funerals. Is this the choice of the actors or the sponsors' prerogative? I am speaking about Abby Dalton on "Falcon Crest" first, then the three who died in the plane accident. On "Dynasty," there have been at least two deaths by plane accident. — D.E., Joplin, Mo.

Nine times out of 10, the actor has no say in the matter. He is hired to do a job and if the producers elect to kill the character off, that's that. They go in, say their lines, and go home. Once in a great while, especially if it is the actor who elects to leave the show, the producer will give him a choice — does he want to get killed off, or just simply disappear (they often just go upstairs and never come back down, or go out of town on a visit and never return).

Preachy 'Highway' Turns Off Reviewer

By David Handler

NBC's "Highway to Heaven" is a syrupy hour series about a kind, serene angel named Jonathan Smith whose mission on earth is to teach people how to love each other.

It is a mission, you get the feeling, that reflects the self-image of the show's executive producer and star, Michael Landon. Landon seems to think he's the only moral man left in Hollywood, and that his high station entitles him to beat his audience about the head with a sanctimonious stick.

"Highway to Heaven" isn't so much entertainment — indeed it barely qualifies as that — as it is a platform from which Landon can preach.

I have nothing against old-fashioned values. I don't disagree with what Landon has to say in this show or his others like "Little House on the Prairie" and "Father Murphy." I love the corny old Frank Capra movies he unabashedly emulates.

It's Landon's posturing I object to. It's his smug grin. His Jonathan isn't so much a character as he is a self-possessed guru, one who dispenses Landonesque pearls of wisdom like "It doesn't take magic to cure loneliness. It just takes love" and "We all make mistakes in this world — some of us just never admit it."

Let's face it, Little Joe has become a big bore.

Each week, he travels to a new town to help people who need him. His sidekick is an earthling, an ex-cop named Mark (Victor French), who is mostly around for angelic "comic" moments.

For instance, if Mark says "It's hot as hell out today," Jonathan will immediately make the car's engine boil over.

One week they come to the aid of a sweet-voiced pigtailed girl who wants to be a country-western singer. "I guess that's kinda dumb, huh?" she asks Jonathan. "I don't think it's dumb to have a dream," smiles Jonathan.

Trouble is, her father won't let her — seems the girl's mom was a singer and ran off and left the two of them. He told the girl her mom died. Actually, she's an alcoholic who happens to be playing in the next town. You can figure out the rest.

Another week, they sign on to help a reclusive widower who thinks he's King Arthur. The man's greedy son wants to have him declared incompetent so he can take his business away from him.

Jonathan and Mark defend the widower's right to live in a fairy tale world and, of course, this brings father and son back together.

Michael Landon lives in his own fairy tale world. It's a world of white hats and black hats and nothing in between. A world where people who are the salt of the earth are good. People who are rich, are bad — unless they happen to be named Michael Landon.

I don't live in his world.

CBS Has A Ball With Lucy

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS won first place last week in the prime time Nielsen ratings, in part thanks to its party for Lucille Ball and despite the fact that ABC's "Dynasty" was the week's most-watched show.

The A.C. Nielsen prime time ratings for the week ending Dec. 9 gave CBS a 18.3 rating and a 28 percent share of the audience, ABC a 15.2 rating with a 24 share and NBC a 14.6 rating with a 23 share.

One of the top 10 slots was filled by the 34 minute runover of the CBS Sunday NFL football game. If that were eliminated from the ratings it would move 11th place "Magnum, P.I." (CBS) onto the top 10 list.

NBC was pulled down by the disappointing ratings on two specials — the first episode of the elegant and expensive two-part "The Sun Also Rises" finished 48th out of 72 shows on the ratings list, and "Children in the Crossfire" ranked 40th.

The Dr. Seuss perennial, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" (CBS), was the highest ranked Christmas show for the week, finishing 12th and outpointing "The Cabbage Patch Christmas" (ABC), which finished a respectable 25th.

On the season to date, CBS leads with a 17.1 rating and a 27 share, while NBC has a 16.4 rating and a 26 share and ABC a 15.1 rating and a 24 share.

"CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" was the No. 1 evening news show yet again, with a 15.0 rating and 25 share. "NBC Nightly News" had a 12.1 rating — its highest since last January — and a 21 share. ABC's "World News Tonight" had an 11.6 rating and a 20 share.

The top 10 prime time shows for the week ending Dec. 9, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. Dynasty (ABC)
2. 60 Minutes (CBS)
3. Dallas (CBS)
4. NFL Football runover, Dallas vs. Washington (CBS)
5. The Bill Cosby Show (NBC)
6. Simon & Simon (CBS)
7. Murder, She Wrote (CBS)
8. (tie) All-Star Party for Lucille Ball (CBS)
9. Family Times (NBC)
10. The A-Team (NBC)

Supergroup's Record Earning Big Bucks For Famine Victims

LONDON (UPI) — Sending Band-Aids to Ethiopian famine victims may not save them from starvation — but one Bandaid in London may do just that.

A Christmas record to aid the victims of Ethiopia's famine by a group of rock stars calling itself Bandaid became the fastest-selling single in pop history Tuesday.

The record — "Do They Know It's Christmas?" — has sold 600,000 copies in Britain in one week alone and 1.25 million worldwide, with projected sales of 9 million.

"It's incredible. At this rate, it'll also be the biggest selling record ever," enthused Gallup, the company that compiles the official record industry pop charts in Britain. It conveniently forgot Bing Crosby's sales of 25 million for "White Christmas."

The record features what is probably the world's most expensive choir — 38 of Britain's most-famous pop musicians including the group Duran Duran, Boy George and Jon Moss of Culture Club, Wham!, Phil Collins, Sonny Bono of U2, Bananarama, Sting of the Police, Spandau Ballet, Heaven 17, Paul Weller of Style

Council and Ultravox. They were joined by a lone American — Robert Bell of Kool and the Gang.

Duran Duran flew in from West Germany, Spandau Ballet from Tokyo and Boy George by Concorde from New York for the Nov. 25 recording session at the request of Boomtown Rat singer Bob Geldof, who got the idea after seeing a horrifying BBC report on the Ethiopian famine.

"It's wonderful and an amazing achievement to have the fastest selling record ever in Britain," Geldof said on hearing the news.

"All the pressing plants in Britain are pressing the record — everyone of them. We've now gone to 20 pressing plants on the (European) continent and there still isn't enough to fulfill the orders. It went out Monday on general release in the United States and they've pressed 6 million copies."

The record, written by Geldof and Midge Ure of Ultravox, shot into the No. 1 position on the British charts in its first week.

"It's great because practically all the great rock bands of the world are going to be No. 1 at the same time," said Geldof.
