TENNIS RANKINGS FAIL TO BOTHER BIG BILL TILDEN

Net Ace Gets 1st Position Without Struggle While Others Wait Patiently For Announcement

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(INS)—Tilden, No. 2, stood alone and alone today as the only individual prominently identified with the competitive side of American lawn tennis who was not visibly concerned in what many put out as the final meeting in Chicago two weeks hence.

That for the No. 2 spot is, at least, the longest of recent years. Alonso Hunter, last and Hennessey presented valid and insistent claims on the position at the close of the 1927 season and still insist on it. Johnstone may not have been ranked at all, due to insufficient evidence. If he gets in the "honors," quite a few think that he deserves the No. 2 spot in spite of his indifferent performance in the Davis cup challenge round.

Back On Top

Will Rogers does not make wise cracks at people who are down and out. It's the men on top, the things successful, which come in for his stinging quips and sarcasms.

We recall the larriat thrower's visit to Florida in 1925, during the height of the boom, when his cuts and thrusts at promoters and agents sank as deep as a keen edged sabre.

But in recent months this pinch hitter of all satirists has been strangely silent. He has continued his pointed remarks about the administration, about Republicanism, and we are told he has even spoken briefly of real estate on Long Island, but his "attacks" on Florida have ceased completely.

But Rogers has been in Florida again. Only last week he stepped over on his way back from the Pan-American Conference in Havana, and he saw enough of Florida to convince him that he no longer needs to leave this state out of his jokes.

"I never like to pick on anybody when they are down, that's why I have laid off the Democrats, and for over two years I have not told a joke against Florida, I know the people and I felt sincerely sorry for them. But I have just seen the state and noticed the conditions down here now, and my sympathy is getting back to the old enemy again.

Now we may expect to be cut and slashed again, we may expect to be ridiculed and sassed, we may expect to be the old time butt of many jokes. Will Rogers has seen we are not down and out; he can kid us again, with much free publicity thereby.

Chicago's Plight

The hasty departure last week of "Scarface Al" Capone from Miami following a hurried conference between him and police officials, recalls recent events in Chicago, where the gang leader's word is the law with thousands of crooks in the underworld.

It appears Capone's absence from the Windy City for the past month and half has inspired some remarkable statements from public officials. Mayor William Hale Thompson announced to the world that vice was on the wane and no less an authority than Police Chief Michael Hughes proclaimed that statistics show that Chicago was sixty-six per cent less criminal in 1927 than formerly.

A few hours before the group met in conference at the Hotel La Salle three gangsters were found dead in a fresh outbreak of war between two rivaling groups. Despite this embarrassing incident, Chief Justice Brothers of the criminal court, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, members of the Chicago Crime Commission, Police Chief Hughes, and other officials addressed the citizens, declaring they were doing their duty and quoted figures to prove it.

"I do not believe crime here is greater than it is in any other city. In thirty-six years I have lived in Chicago, I have never been held up, robbed or racketeered. By the testimony we have heard tonight we may do something to purge that fair name of Chicago."

But Chicago citizens have a greater task before them if they want to remove the stigma which has given the western metropolis the reputation of being the worst crime infested city in the United States.

The crooked element is in control and efficient organization has built a structure that is home-combined with rotten politics. The police department is dominated by gangsters, prosecuting officers are in league with them and courts are afraid to function properly because of threats from machine run bandits.

HEADING FOR HOUSTON—AND HOW.

The list grows. Hall, George, states; Ritchie, Donahay, Baker, Robinson, Reed Glass, Pomrene, Meredith, Moody, and, towering above all as a possibility, the treacherous Sible Smith.

Houston the place and the field wide open. Room in the ring for all sizes and styles of candidatorial headwear. Only a few months—and then the decision. What a prospect for the puzzle, long suffering and long eared quadruped which typifies an uncertain but expectant Democracy.

Distracted by the strains of "What'll I Do?" the faithful devotees of the party of Jefferson, Cleveland and Wilson, preparing to sing the opening anthem, "How Dry I Am," don't know for the life of the nation whether this will be followed by "The Tenth Commandment" or "The Lips That Touch Liquor Shall Never Touch Mine," or whether the nomination will be dictated by the Pope or the Imperial Wizard.

The dream of harmony visioned between poles and poles in the wee sma' hours of the Jackson dinner, is experiencing rude awakenings as the Hellins bray and the favor to some convert. We may easily foresee, as the roll of the states is called in Houston's hectic hall, 43 stentorian Brandon's announcing in radio-raking raucousness, "votes for" no less than 48 1928-model Oscars of as many sovereign

READING LIBRARY MAGAZINE

A philosopher once said: "Reading is a full-time conference with a ready man, and writing an exact man."

We recommend reading good books. Just now there is a lively popular interest in history. The amount of biography being read is astonishing. The publishers are working fast, but they are put to it to keep up with the demand.

It is an interesting development in the tastes of a people sometimes accused of being frivolous. Biography is the most human form of historical record. It is easier to read history as you find it woven into the lives of Napoleon or Bismarck, Henry Ward Beecher or P. T. Barnum than to get it from any general account of politics and wars. It is more stimulating, more illuminating, and more fun.

Biography dramatizes events by focusing them in personalities. It focuses one's attention and fixes things in one's memory.

For example, in our remarkable Riechsten series there was given a more comprehensive picture of the fighting during the war than in any narrative of the German air forces as a whole.

And the recent controversies about books on Washington probably have more intelligent curiosity all the text books ever written.

It is true that a man can make his own university in his library.

This world is every sympathy in the world to you who are a man in dress. In no way does it is but the means of expressing the beauty of your own mind.

MUZZLING TALLAHASSEE NEWS

President Coolidge believes high ranking officers of the Army and Navy should not make public statements dealing with the nation's lack of preparedness in case of attack by a hostile power.

Naturally we would expect such an opinion from the chief executive who muzzled General Sumner and countenanced the disciplining of Admiral Megrader because they had the temerity to tell the public just how pitifully inadequate is our national defense.

We would like to ask Mr. Coolidge who—other than our trained experts—are better qualified to intelligently discuss our unpreparedness and who are better equipped to make recommendations with the view of remedying these serious deficiencies?

When we are sick we call in a physician—not a plumber or blacksmith. In the matter of national defense we believe we should rely upon the opinion and recommendations of our military experts—not the politicians whose specialty is keeping the country in ignorance of its ills for fear the truth will hurt their chances for election.

Mr. Coolidge takes the attitude that statements relative to the service, but it is out of place when it's under the shirt of the man at the steering wheel.—Albany Herald.

Secret Of Miss Farrar's Success Is Recounted For Music Lovers Of Sanford

A New York reporter, who is a fine linguist, she speaks French like a Frenchwoman (this statement is made on expert testimony), German like a German and Italian like an Italian. Her enunciation in opera and concert has long been praised and there is never any difficulty in following the text of an opera or song which she sings.

Her singing is the speech of the character she is playing and she makes her voice express the characteristics and emotions of that character. Geraldine Farrar's creed is "Give your best always, take Sincerity for your guide and Work for your master." Music lovers of Sanford and surrounding towns will be privileged to hear this famous soprano at Milane Theatre on Friday evening, February 3rd.

Noah Beery Stars With Talmadge In Picture At Milane

Noah Beery's latest role is that of Senor Don Jose Maria Y Sandoval, who in his own language, considers himself "the best damn actor in all Costa Rica." He has "the eye" which is what you mean when you say a certain actor is "Costa Rican."

However, Beery in his latest role, in support of Norma Talmadge in "The Dove" at the Milane Theatre today, has the ladies seeking to know if he is "the yellow pig" or "the yellow pig" who comes around. This is the role that Holbrook Blinn played when David Belasco produced "The Dove."

Beery was born in the land of Jesse James, Missouri. He got his schooling as well as his first stage experience in Kansas City. For some years he was a member of the O. D. Woodard Stock Company, operating in Omaha, Kansas City and Minneapolis. Later he joined the Charles E. Cook Stock Company, which he had in New England, and after that he had his own stock company with his brother, Wallace, in the middle west. While on the stage, he was the "David Jud" in "The Yellow Pig" and "The Yellow Pig."

Before he left the stage for pictures, Beery married Margaret Abbott, a cousin of Benjie Abbott, well-known grand opera singer. He then the picture was about to be made, he met the actress, William De Mille, who was the "Yellow Pig" in the picture, "The Yellow Pig."

For ten years Beery has been in the picture business, and his character actor in many pictures. His most notable picture is "The Yellow Pig" in which he was the "Yellow Pig" in "The Yellow Pig." Other pictures include "The Yellow Pig" and "The Yellow Pig."

Anti-Third Term Bill Introduced

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(INS)—Characterizing any departure from the precedent set by Washington of retiring from the White House at the end of his second term as "unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with danger to our free institutions," Sen. La Follette (R) of Wisconsin today introduced an "anti-third term" resolution in the Senate.

In a statement La Follette declared the movement of New York Republican leader, "led by Charles H. Hill, vice chairman of the national committee, to obtain 'third' uninvited delegations with the idea of 'drafting' president Coolidge for a third term is 'gaining headway.'" Secretary Mellon is siding in the plan to "draft" Coolidge, La Follette asserted.

ELECTRICITY HAS PROVEN BIG HELP TO THE FARMERS

Power Company Head Thinks Agriculture Industry Has Made Greatest Strides As Result Of Electrical Aid

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 29.—(INS)—Electricity in the rural sections of the United States, is responsible for the greatest strides being made today to place agriculture abreast modern times. H. S. Hendricks, of the United Power and Light Company, declared in a farm conference address here.

Electric units on the farm are making life more attractive, more remunerative and more efficient, Hendricks said. Not only are farm homes being made as modern as city houses, but farm labor is being saved, cost of preparing products for markets being cut down and farmers are equipping their homes with electrical machinery more rapidly than they adopted telephones in the early days.

Increase In Service
Hendricks explained that a recent survey made in twenty-seven states, showed an increase of 500 percent in the number of farm homes receiving electric service, between January 1, 1924 and January 1, 1927, and he declared most of the larger power companies now are making it possible to establish rural electrical service.

Many uses of electrical energy on the farm were explained, some of which included the filling of silos and grinding of feed. The fact that water and ice problems are being solved in a satisfactory and economical way, and the work of the dairy farmer is being hastened greatly, was cited as outstanding achievement. In many cases electrical power makes it possible to irrigate farm crops as well as modernize the home in every way.

Aid To Homes
"Running water, as supplied by automatic electric pumps, is one of the most important contributions of electricity to the modernization of the farm home.

"Such units are easily arranged to be entirely automatic, thereby giving the same service that can be had from any municipal water system. These pumps also can be equipped to pump water direct from the well at the simple turn of a faucet, a feature not possible with a municipal supply.

"A small electrical pump on one of the dairy farms supplies all the water for the home with a family of seven, for the dairy, for cooking, watering live stock and during the summer, an average of 1,000 gallons a day for irrigating a fine bluegrass lawn. An average of $2,775 gallons a month was used during 1926 at a cost of $2.50 per month. If we add to this a fair depreciation, interest and repair charge for pump and well the total cost per month is only $5.30. This is cheaper than the rate for the same quantity of water in a nearby city."

Hendricks declared electrical refrigeration for the farm home is not a luxury. A comparison, he said, of the cost of ice and the cost of operating an electric refrigerator, including investment charges, is in favor of electric refrigeration without considering the convenience, cleanliness or low temperature of the latter form of refrigeration.

Atlantic Coast Is Combed Today For Two Missing Ships

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(INS)—Twenty-six vessels were combing the Atlantic coast today in search of two missing coast guard patrol boats which have not been heard from since they left Curtis Bay, Md., late Thursday night. The patrol boats, the CG-107 and CG-127, carried 14 men. They were believed to have been driven out to sea off Cape May, N. J., by the storm which swept the coast Saturday night. Both boats were equipped with wireless.

The rescue fleet includes four destroyers of the coast guard service. Meanwhile the coast guard cutter Seminole had found the Norwegian freighter Aasen, 200 miles east of Cape May, drifting helplessly with a broken rudder chain, and was towing the freighter into port. While the Aasen set out on a S. O. S. message, all broadcasting was shut down to permit the independent wireless company to communicate with her. The freighter, of 1,841 tons, was bound for Bordeaux from Norfolk, Va.

The storm caused numerous traffic accidents and five deaths in the metropolitan area.

Commercial Aviation Is Promoted By Europeans In Effort To Make It Pay

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(INS)—With commercial aviation firmly established in the principal countries of Europe, their existence is guaranteed by liberal subsidies from the governmental coffers, every possible effort is being made to make it a profitable and smooth-working proposition.

Although the statements for the year 1927 show a tremendous increase in business by practically all of the commercial air lines, it is not unreasonable to assume that they would have difficulty in existing without governmental subsidy and they admittedly are serious obstacles yet to be overcome before the airplane can take its rightful place as a medium of transportation and travel.

First, the maximum of safety must be achieved, for it is fully realized that without this the airplane will never reach the limit of its popularity. Toward this end, airplane manufacturers, operators of air lines and the governments of the various nations are co-operating hand in hand. Every mechanical improvement that is hit upon by aeronautical science is seized upon, and the efforts are being made to reduce the hazard to flying that weather presents.

Nations Co-operate
There is in existence the International Air Congress, the members of which are representatives of the principal nations of the world. It is intended to co-operate in the preparation of meteorological data, which is distributed almost hourly to public commercial pilots on their flights. The Imperial Airways claims only four fatalities and thirteen injuries to passengers in all the years of its existence, and it is reasonable to say that with the steps that are now being taken through international legislation, the hazards of flying will be greatly decreased. Compared with the number of fatal accidents on railroads in their infancy, the proportion of airplane fatalities is very little more, and with the help of international cooperation and modern science, a few years should see the danger reduced to a minimum.

Two chief obstacles still stand in the way of European flying. Lower power. One is the problem of engine flying, and the other the question of fuel. Night flying, however, is practically impossible. In the United States, where the government subsidizes a new motor but in Europe, where had a dozen different nationalities are represented in the continental market, it is a different matter. The International Air Congress is holding a conference to see that a uniform standard light engine will be of use to a foreign nation, and there is no much to be done in this direction.

Night Flying Problems
The problem of night flying, however, has not secured the patients of commercial aviation in Europe to an extent as yet. There are not too many to be accomplished, such as in America, and most of the present planes can only be covered during the day-light hours.

Aviation in Europe takes its toll on the lives of a few. An official of the British Air Ministry declared to International News Service.

Service in discussing the situation. "In the past, even by the most optimistic of us, the airplane has been looked upon as a luxury, similar to the trolley in comparison to a subway train.

"But times are changing. The program of civilization has made speed in transportation necessary, and the airplane is the logical medium for swift transportation. Certain conditions may always make it impossible for planes to offer trains and steamboats real competition, but the events of the next ten years may surprise all of us."

Certainly the thought of flying from London to Moscow, with but two changes, and for very little more expense than the train trip would cost, demonstrates the progress which has been made thus far in the field of commercial aviation in this country. And the chiefest virtue of it all is that Europe is not satisfied with things even as they are, and is exerting every force at its wide command to bring the nations of the world into a closer contact of unity and understanding with recalcitrant value to business, by the medium of the airplane.

THREE DEAD IN FIRE

CULPEPER, Va., Jan. 30.—(INS)—Three of the nine children of Mr. and Mrs. George Preacher were dead today as a result of a fire which destroyed their home here. The other six children, aged from 1 to 12, were rescued.

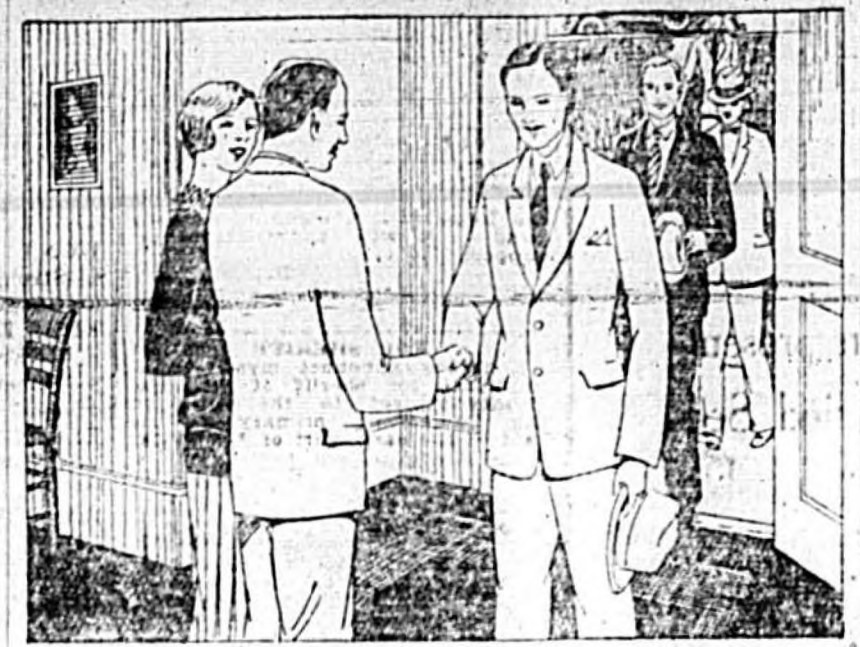

The fire broke out at 10 o'clock and the children were rescued by neighbors. The parents were badly burned and may not survive their injuries.

Daily Fashion Hint

A new interpretation of the combination dress is this model with closing at the left side. There are darts in front of the bodice, which is supported by shoulder straps of ribbon. The bloomers are attached to a fitted hip-side and trimmed with lace and embroidery. Medium size requires 1 1/2 yards of silk crepe de chine, 3/4 yard of edging and 1/4 yard ribbon.

Husbands, Too, Have Friends

"Father calls me William, Sister calls me Will, Mother calls me Willis, But THE FELLERS CALL ME BILL!"

EUGENE FIELD knew how every small boy shrills to the "gang spirit"—the peer-tribal instinct which is the basis of all communal life with its mutual interest for the common weal. All the fair sex labor, of course, back in the early stages of "the gang." Mother, Sister and even jolly Aunt Sue who knew exciting stories about Indians—"course a fellow loved them—but they weren't the gang."

Husbands are just little boys grown up! Each proud of the Best Girl in the World and the delicious dinners she serves—but liking to get together with the boys now and then. Here's an idea bringing with it the best of both worlds.

First Corn Canner Dies

AUGUST JONES—the man who put under seal the first can of corn ever packed—died recently in Portland, Maine, at the age of 91 years. Mr. Jones was a picturesque American figure, being a direct descendant of two early Rhode Island governors, one of the oldest Quakers in his vicinity, and pioneer of the corn canning industry—a 100 percent American institution.

Isaac Winslow Experiments
Isaac Winslow, Mr. Jones' uncle, began experimenting with corn-canning in 1839. He had been a sailor and knew what it was to live at sea on salt-horse and sea biscuit. If corn could be canned, it would provide a healthful and welcome addition to such limited diets. Fifteen years of experiment perfected a process.

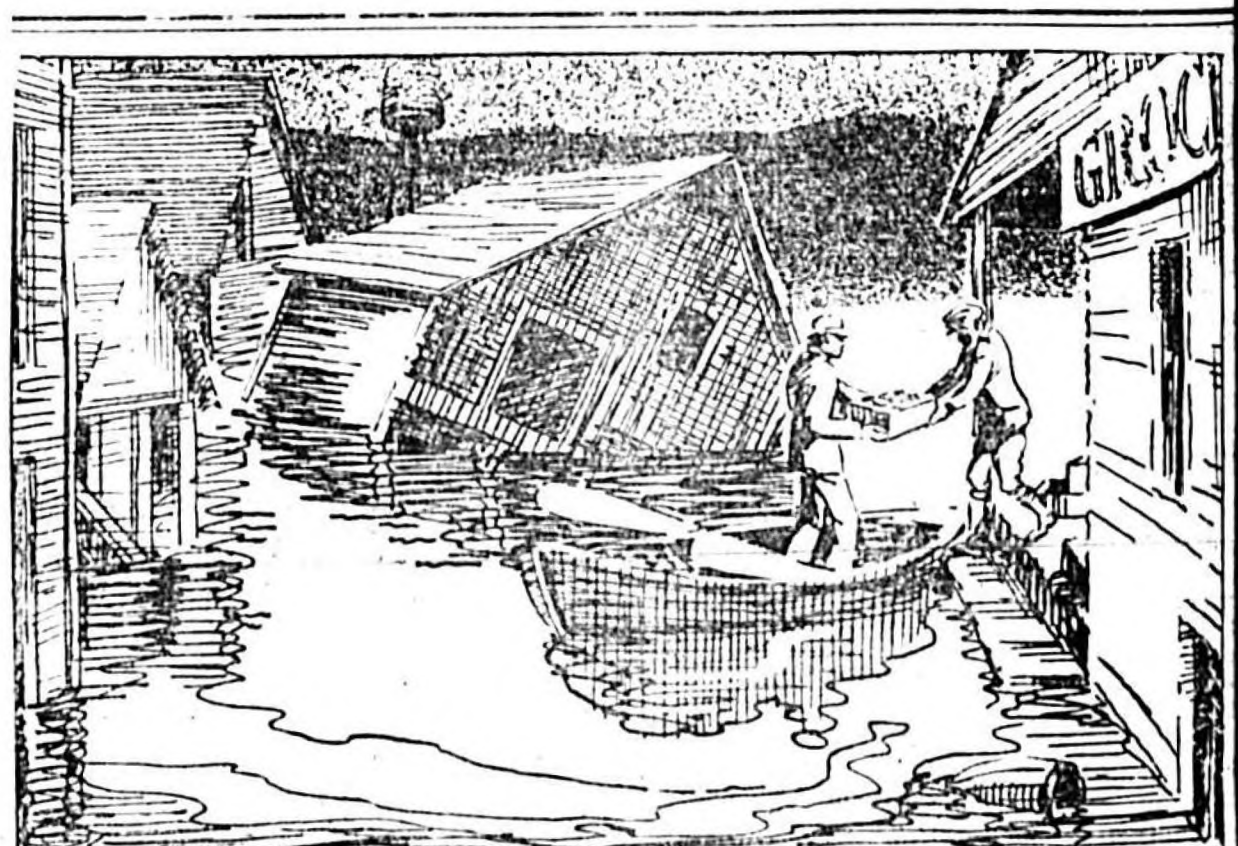

A Valentine Basket Party

Valentine parties date back to the days of lace valentines, in pink caps, and crumpled lilies with floured petticoats who poured tea from softly-cleaning powder teapots into prim Dresden china tea-cups.

Modern ladies, with flounces shown off their petticoats, are still giving Valentine parties, charming and much of the labor shorn off by the parties, showers for the engaged and tea dances—all of them joyfully choose Valentine's Day because it offers endless possibilities for attractive parties and a Basket Party.

A Basket Party is the most entertaining, lively and enjoyable of all the centerpieces. Each guest takes home a basket, and each guest takes home a basket, and each guest takes home a basket.

Exploring Delightful
Exploring the baskets with their alluring contents is a delightful part of the party. When a little thought and a little ingenuity are applied, the baskets can be made to hold a variety of things.

Foods And The Mississippi Flood

The rising waters of the Mississippi have long subsided but the shortage which they caused is being solved. Hundreds of thousands of bushels of flour and other commodities were hoarded, which means that no smaller crop was harvested in a night in immense quantities and a lot of people live a life of luxury on unnatural food conditions.

Food Buying A Problem
Buying foods which could reach the flood victims in good condition was also a problem. Food was not to be carried by large railroads to families stranded on some hilltop island. Once an order came in from Greenville, Miss., for food for 15,000 people to last three weeks—a tall order for the grocery store. In two hours, however, the food was purchased and loaded on barges headed south from Memphis.

Canned Foods Survive
When the waters receded, those warehouses which survived the flood were almost a total loss as far as food-products were concerned. In the case of canned foods, however, the outlook was brighter. Much of the canned food stock was unharmed, while the vacuum packed cans proved flood-proof. Companies putting out vacuum packed foods guaranteed their dealers against water damage, and although thousands of cans of coffee, for example, were submerged under many feet of water for weeks on end, not a single claim came in. And when the vacuum packed cans were opened and the coffee tested, its business and flavor was unimpaired.

HEROIC Vacuum Pack
An interesting coincidence lies in the fact that while vacuum packed coffee was able to play a heroic part in the Mississippi flood disaster, it was, itself, a victim of the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906. It was first commercially packed cans of vacuum coffee were made in 1903 and the business was progressing nicely when fire destroyed the equipment for manufacturing and closing the cans. It was not until 1907 that this method of packing was re-invented. In the years since the process was re-invented, all the large coffee packers on the coast are using the vacuum process.

What Movie Stars Eat

WHEN you gaze on ethereal forms of ladies who live in Shadowland, you are apt to get the impression that they subsist on a delicate diet of white-wisps and butterfly tongues. But if you have been in a Hollywood restaurant and watched the constellation of stars come in from "on location" and wrap themselves around hair-and-eggs—you'll realize that there's a lot of difference between Me and my Shadow.

"Eggs Milady"
In Florence Stratton's "Favorite Foods of Famous Women," however, tests run true to form. Mary Pickford contributes "Eggs Milady" dainty and colorful, while Gloria Swanson recommends modern Caviar Canape. Eggs Milady can be made with either canned or raw pimientos.
