Seminole, Florida Officials Meet Today

County Seeks More State Road Funds

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

More funding for Seminole County roads and transportation projects will be the message county commissioners hope to send to the state Legislature.

Commissioners are meeting with the county's legislative delegation today to discuss the county's needs for the coming year.

Transportation heads the county's wish list for the second consecutive year and the need for more funding for road improvement projects is well-documented.

The county's needs assessment survey has identified more than $110 million in road projects needed to bring county-maintained roads up to standards. Another $50 million is needed for improvements to state roads in the county.

And those figures don't begin to address two massive construction jobs which county officials believe are instrumental in meeting the long-term traffic needs of Seminole County.

Those projects—making the two-lane Lake Mary Boulevard into a six-lane highway and an elevated expressway at State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs—are projected to cost more than $200 million.

Citizen committees reviewing the two projects agreed on the necessity of building them and on the necessity of receiving state and federal support.

Legislators could help the projects by altering the formulas for allocating state and local funds and changing the methods of levying local taxes.

Currently, the state gets 4 cents of the state's 8-cent per gallon gasoline tax. The counties receive 2 cents, the cities get 1 cent and the cities and counties share 1 cent.

A 9th-cent was identified as a possible funding source for the Lake Mary Boulevard and S.R. 436 work. But the 9th cent can only be enacted if approved by voters in a referendum. One change legislators may make is to allow commissioners to implement the additional penny tax without seeking voter support.

Commissioners also have asked the state to take over bond payments on State Road 434. The road was constructed by Seminole County taxpayers and then accepted into the state's highway system.

But the county is still paying bond payments on the highway.

If the state would take over those payments, Public Works Director Jack Schuder said, the county would save about $400,000 annually which could be spent on other projects.

In another meeting this week that will focus on the county's transportation needs, the Seminole County Expressway Authority, inactive since 1979, will meet Tuesday at 4 p.m.

The authority, composed of the five county commissioners, Sanford Commissioner David Farr and Altamonte Springs Commissioner Lee Constantine, is asking for "seed money" from the state.

The state's money would be used to fund studies of possible expressway routes through Seminole County.

One area which has been eyed as a possible route for a toll road is State Road 520 between Oviedo and Orange County.

Lakefront Motel Seeks Alterations OK Of City

Fred Salgado and his partners, owners of the Holiday Inn on the Lake Monroe lakefront, will request approval from the Sanford City Commission at a 7 p.m. meeting today to refinance the motel's mortgage to undertake improvements.

The improvements include building a new lounge and converting the present lounge into a meeting room.

The owners also are asking the city to allow them to exercise an option to extend the life of the current lease of the city-owned property another 45 years.

The original lease, now 15½ years old, has 39½ years to run. If the lease extension is granted, the lease's life will be for 84½ more years.

Most of the improvements planned by the new owners, according to a memo from City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles to the City Commission, would be in the interior of the facility.

These improvements would include furniture, bedding, drapes, bed-spreadings, conversion of light fixtures, pool side furniture, indoor plants and landscaping, Knowles said, identifying these as "non-permanent" improvements.

No cost estimate for the improvements was available today.

Knowles also noted that the current lease does not permit the owners-operators to exercise the option for lease extension until sometime during the last 12 months of its term which would be in the year 2022.

The owners-operators want to refinance the mortgage on the motel for the capital to improve the facility.

Knowles also points out in his memo that the improvements being considered are not ones thought of as permanent in nature.

The new mortgage, Knowles said, would include consolidating existing loans for work already done. He said while the current lease is specific in saying that refinancing rests on work previously approved by the city, the prior work was not submitted to the city for that approval.

The city manager said that the lease holds the city liable for the mortgage in case of default, and the refinancing would place the city in the posture of paying off the mortgage if the owners-operators default.

"Extension of the lease term to 100 years (84½ years remaining) serves only the attractiveness of the lease for refinancing or sale purposes. The change in the wording of the option article as proposed, does not serve the city's interests," Knowles said.

Salgado and his partners told Knowles that they are anxious to provide a first class, clean and modern facility that the city will always be proud to have as a neighbor.

The improvement program has been on-going for the past three years, they said, and improvements are to continue during the 1983 year. — DONNA ESTES

JOLLY AS USUAL

Santa Claus, the highlight of every Christmas parade, had to compete with a newcomer this year for attention. "E.T." and his spaceship on the Pinecrest Elementary School float took the Grand Marshal Theme Award Saturday in Sanford's annual parade. Santa's float was decorated by the Sanford Garden Club. Pinecrest School also was the winner of last year's Grand Marshal Award. For the names of other winners in Saturday's Greater Sanford Christmas Parade and more photos, see story Page 2A.

Seminole Must Build Runoff Ditch

Seminole County must build a ditch to carry runoff water from neighboring property around the 11-acre estate of Harold E. Mertz.

The Florida Supreme Court Friday refused to hear the county's appeal of a lower court ruling ordering the county to channel drainage water around the Mertz property at 131 Variety Tree Circle in Sweetwater Club.

Mertz sued Magnolia Service Co., developers of Wekiva Hunt Club, in 1978 for damage to his property caused by drainage from the development.

The county's participation in the suit stemmed from its acquisition of a storm drainage easement in the area. The easement took runoff from the adjacent property along the Mertz property line.

Mertz testified he was under the impression the property had a lake when he bought it from Huskey Realty, developers of Sweetwater Club. When he learned the lake was actually a sinkhole, he spent $35,000 to construct a vinyl-lined pond and brook on the site, he testified.

When Magnolia Service Co. developed property north of the Mertz estate in 1978, a contractor accidentally knocked out a coffer dam, sending water cascading onto the Mertz property pouring silt and sand into the man-made pond.

Mertz filed suit shortly after that and in 1981

Seminole Circuit Judge Robert McGregor ruled in favor of Mertz, giving the county and the developer six months to construct the ditch.

The county's appeal of McGregor's decision was denied in May in the 5th District Court of Appeal and the county subsequently appealed to the Supreme Court.

Attorney Emery H. Rosenbluth, representing Mertz, said he would ask McGregor to set a timetable for construction of the permanent channel. Rosenbluth said the work should take between 30 and 60 days to complete.

Oviedo Woman Fatally Shot, Husband Jailed

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

An Oviedo woman is dead and her husband has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting in the couple's home.

Freddie Louis Browdy, 55, of Aulin Avenue has been charged with the fatal shooting of his wife, Freddie Mae Browdy, age unknown, also of Aulin Avenue, and was being held in the Seminole County jail today without bond, jail officials said.

Browdy was arrested at 1:37 p.m. Sunday after Oviedo police were summoned to his Oviedo home concerning the shooting. Upon their arrival, police arrested Browdy, also known as "Porkchop," and Mrs. Browdy was transported to Winter Park Memorial Hospital, where she died. Police said Mrs. Browdy was shot once in the chest with a .32-caliber pistol.

Police said Browdy, co-owner of Browdy's store on East Broadway Street, told them that the couple was arguing over the gun and it discharged, sending a bullet into Mrs. Browdy's chest.

Meanwhile, Browdy's sister-in-law Bossie Mae Browdy, is expected to testify in the upcoming trial of Charles William Francis, 24, of 540 First St. Oviedo, who is charged with killing Dennis Roger Golden, 23, of 1622 Aulin Ave., outside the Browdy's store in February.

"I hate for anyone to get shot and even more so to die," said Oviedo police Sgt. Thomas Hennigan, who investigated both murder cases. "But I have to admit I was a little shaken when I got the call and thought my witness in the Golden case had been killed."

In that case, Mrs. Browdy gave police a sworn statement saying, a man came into her store at about 9 p.m. on Feb. 8, grabbed her gun from behind the store counter and ran outside. A few moments later, gunshots were heard, the man threw the gun on the store floor and fled, she said. Mrs. Browdy said she and others who were at the store then discovered Golden's body outside and notified police.

Francis is currently free from the county jail on $5,000 bond following his arrest Nov. 14 by Delaware police.

Francis was returned to Seminole County Nov. 15 but was released without bond after County Judge Alan Dickey ruled that police and prosecutors failed to provide him with ample information to detain Golden.

Two weeks later, however, Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr., reversed Dickey's decision saying Dickey had not followed Florida rules of criminal procedure.

Florida law provides that a judge may find probable cause to detain a suspect "based upon sworn complaint, affidavit, deposition under oath, or, if necessary, upon testimony properly recorded."

State To OK Harbor Dredging

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Permits to allow dredging in the Lake Monroe Harbor and construction of some 80 new slips at the marina are being held up by the state Department of Environmental Regulation bureaucracy in Tallahassee.

Meanwhile, the cruise ship Bay Queen often scrapes bottom in the harbor.

Chuck Volk, who leases the marina property from the city through a long-term agreement, said today the permits are "on a bureaucrat's desk" in the state capital. The Orlando DER office already has given its approval.

With support from the city, Volk applied more than a month ago for the permit to dredge 14,000 cubic yards of dirt out of the harbor to deepen the water level inside the harbor area. The dirt dredged from the lake would be used on the Isle.

The proposed dredging has become even more important since then because the Bay Queen dinner ship has docked at the harbor for its twice daily and three weekend excursions down the St. Johns River.

Volk noted that with the water level down three feet since the first of October, the flat-bottomed, metal-hulled ship has been scraping bottom in several spots as it leaves the harbor daily on its voyage into the river channel.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said the only damage being done to the Bay Queen is scraping a little paint off the vessel. "The ship stirs up a little of the silt that is three to five feet deep on the lake bottom," Knowles said, noting there are no rocks there that could seriously damage the ship.

Last Monday the Bay Queen was stuck in the silt as it was leaving the harbor. Ship Capt. Bill Boelle said today he got the boat loose in less than 25 minutes and is now steering the ship 3 to 4 feet to the right of that silty area.

He said with Sunday's rain the lake level is up by about four inches and "that helps."

Volk is also planning to enlarge his operation on the leased property from the current 120 slips for boats to 200, and to extend the dock. The total cost of this portion of the project is $275,000.

The dredging operation and the extension of the bulkhead about 300 feet north is estimated to cost about $100,000. Knowles is recommending the city become co-signer on a loan Volk is pursuing to pay the costs of dredging the lake and extending the bulkhead. Volk is to handle financing for the additional slips himself.

Knowles is also recommending the city waive collection of the marina lease fee for up to $10,000 a year for the length of the loan period, if the money is used to repay the loan.

The Sanford City Commission at a 7 p.m. meeting today at city hall, 300 N. Park Ave., will consider Knowles' recommendation.

The original lease on the marina is for a 55-year period with an option to renew for another 45 years. About 15½ years of the original lease have expired.

Knowles noted today his recommendation is not a "magnanimous" one. He reminded that the marina is city-owned property and the permanent improvements increases the value of the property.

Until the permit for dredging is approved by DER, Volk said the only way to relieve the situation for the Bay Queen would be rain and a lot of it. "The weekend rain was just a drop in the bucket," Volk said.

Volk complained the lake level problem has been created by agricultural interests in Brevard County channeling water from the St. Johns River into Indian River, thus lowering water levels here.

Knowles estimated that once DER approves the permits, it can take a day or a month for a dredge operator to get his equipment into Sanford to begin the work. "Once started, the operation could be done in three-to-four weeks," he said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Chrysler Canada Approves Contract; U.S. Workers Back

DETROIT (UPI) — The overwhelming approval by striking Canadian workers of a new contract with Chrysler Corp. cleared the way for the first of some 4,600 U.S. workers to return to their jobs today.

The contract, ratified Sunday, will give the Chrysler Canada Ltd. workers their first pay raise in three years and compensates for Canadian inflation. Six Chrysler Canadian plants closed by the walkout were to reopen today.

The U.S. workers were laid off as a result of parts shortages caused by the five-week strike by 9,600 Canadian workers.

U.S. Chrysler employees will vote Friday on their contract, which was approved by union leaders Saturday. They are expected to approve it by a "comfortable margin." Many were secretly pleased they did not have to strike to get a pay hike.

Saving MX By Compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, jolted by last week's defeat in the House, is renewing his drive to save the MX missile with aides hopeful of reaching a compromise with Congress on production funding for the program.

Reagan reserved as much as three hours today for lobbying on the MX, which the House last Tuesday voted to deny $988 million in production funds. Many foes objected to his proposed "dense pack" basing mode.

The president offered Friday to consider alternatives to his basing plan, but insisted the production funds must be appropriated to demonstrate firm U.S. "resolve" to counter a Soviet military buildup.

The Senate is to take up the MX missile this week as part of a $231 billion military bill.

Gas Tax Hits Senate Snag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's proposed nickel-a-gallon gasoline tax hike breezed through the House, but is stalled in the Senate. Three talkative senators are causing the hangup.

A vote was scheduled today to end their filibuster, but even if supporters of the bill win — as they did on a 27-10 test vote Friday — another talkathon is likely during the actual debate of the measure.

The bill would raise an estimated $5.5 billion a year to repair roads, bridges and mass transit systems — creating an estimated 320,000 jobs.

Sens. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Don Nickles, R-Okla., however, opposed provisions of the bill that would extend the influence of labor unions over all federal contracts.

They also fear it may shortchange rural areas. The trucking industry is against the measure because it would greatly increase taxes on their vehicles.

Clark's Recovery Hindered

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Doctors at the University of Utah are disappointed in the progress being made by artificial heart recipient Barney Clark.

They thought it would take the retired dentist only a few days to recover from the Dec. 2 operation, but Clark has failed to bounce back from a seizure suffered Tuesday, five days after the historic surgery.

Clark, 61, remained in "critical but stable condition" early today, nurses in the university hospital's intensive care unit said. His condition has been critical since the seizure complication.

The major treatment is now 24-hour care and almost constant physical contact between Clark, the medical team and his family in efforts to stimulate his brain back to consciousness.

E.T. Float The Big Winner

Sanford Christmas Parade Simply Out Of This World

"E.T.," that lovable little extraterrestrial who has swept the country by storm this year, came out on top again Saturday in the Greater Sanford Christmas Parade. Hiding atop his space ship on the Pinecrest Elementary School float, he won the Grand Marshal Theme Award.

The theme for this year's parade was "Christmas Joy in the Morning." Pinecrest also received the first-place trophy for the float in the Public Schools category. The Seminole High School Future Farmers of America chapter took second place.

In the Private School float category, Krayola Kollege was the winner. Other trophy winners included: Marching Units — first, Rainbow Express Cloggers; second, Boy Scouts of America Troop 832 of Sanford; Religion — first, Florida United Methodist Children's Home of Enterprise; second, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Sanford; Cars — first, Lake Mary Elementary School Drummers; second, Lake Mary Extension Homemakers; Civic — first, Ballet Guild of Sanford Seminole; second, Boy Scout Troop and Pack 508; Commercial — first, First Federal of Seminole, second, Dixie Land Cloggers. In the Horse Division: Best Group — Florida Galiceno Horse Breeders Association; Best Rider, Elena Dostar; Best Groomed Horse entered by Steph Keller of Seminole County 4-H.

The bands participating in the parade were rated by the judges this year as follows: Superior — South Seminole Middle School of Casselberry, Milwee Middle School and Lyman High School, both of Longwood; Excellent — Seminole High School, Sanford Middle School and Lakeview Middle School, all of Sanford; and Tuskawilla Middle School.

Winners in the various categories will receive trophies and each band will receive a plaque at a later date, according to Parade Chairman Judy Higgins.

Mrs. Higgins said the 115-unit parade ran smoothly with no problems and the larger than usual crowd was well-behaved.

Scraping By At Christmas

WEIRTON, W.Va. (UPI) — "He'll get something for Christmas," said John Burdette, fondly tussling the hair of his 5-year-old son, "but it won't be like it used to be."

Burdette, 29, earned $26,000 in the last full year he was a steelworker. Jobless for the past 14 months, he has made up his mind to re-enlist if the U.S. Army will accept him.

"It'll be a steady paycheck coming in," said Burdette, whose eligibility for unemployment compensation expired months ago. His wife supports the family, which includes two young sons, with a $3.35-an-hour minimum-wage job as a cook in a diner.

Burdette sat down on the steps of the front porch of the modest house he began buying for $24,800 three years ago and tried to explain the economics of survival.

"We haven't missed a mortgage payment yet," he said. On top of the $283 monthly house payment, the Burdettes somehow also have managed to meet car payments of $116 a month and utility bills that average $150 monthly.

"We've scraped by and done without a lot of things we were used to," said Burdette, who knows he cannot hold out much longer unless the Army swears him in again.

"The wife's a worrier," he said. "She used to worry even when I was working."

Now Mrs. Burdette worries because she has been told she earns too much at her job to qualify for government help in paying the fuel bills. The Burdettes have been told they are not eligible for food stamps because the family car is worth too much.

New Year To Start With No Martial Law In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI)—Polish military chief Wojciech Jaruzelski announced the suspension of martial law by year's end, saying Parliament would work toward returning to civil rule on the anniversary of the military crackdown today.

Some martial controls will remain after the suspension of military rule and the nation's Military Council will oversee the transition, Jaruzelski said.

He said authorities could not fully lift martial law yet because of the continuing threat from the Solidarity underground opposition, which he charged was backed by the United States.

New Fighting In Lebanon

United Press International

Fighting among rival Lebanese militias killed 28 people, it was reported today amid indications Israel may accept U.S. shuttle mediation aimed at breaking the deadlock over the withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon.

Security sources said the main highway between Beirut and Damascus was closed today by heavy fighting in at least 11 villages the right-wing Phalange Voice of Lebanon said has left at least 25 people dead over the past 24 hours.

Social Security Panel Needs Political Muscle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Social Security reform commission, juggling the hottest potato in Washington, can go no further without help from President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, panel members say.

The panel, charged with setting a course out of the sea of red ink threatening the retirement program, has narrowed the options but cannot make the painful political choices that remain, they said.

The presidential commission is facing a Dec. 31 deadline for a report and has a meeting set for Friday — the second "final" session it has scheduled.

But Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "I doubt that much will happen (Friday) unless the president decides to take a look at Social Security and becomes actively involved."

"We're getting to the point now that if he wants this commission to make any solid recommendations, he's going to have to say to the commission, 'This is my commission, I want you to have recommendations. Within certain limits I might agree,'" said Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Dole said with "the same pledge" from O'Neill. "Then we're going to be in business."

There is no sign a summit involving the president and the No. 1 Democrat on Capitol Hill is in the works. The White House has steered clear of the issue in recent months, and Reagan aides say there are "no plans" for a meeting.

Commission Chairman Alan Greenspan has been trying to broker an agreement between the administration and congressional Democrats, and he said Sunday Reagan and O'Neill would not have to publicly announce an accord.

Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., agreed but said the two leaders must "send us a signal."

Without that political backing, Armstrong said, any proposal would be "shot down within about 5 minutes" and join the "footlockers full" of earlier reports and studies in Social Security's woes.

Greenspan and Armstrong were interviewed on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley." Dole appeared on CBS' "Face the Nation." All are members of the 15-member bipartisan commission created by Reagan last year.

The immediate problem for the pension fund is where to find the $150 billion to $200 billion it will need to pay benefit checks up to 1990. In the years beyond, the financial crunch could grow even more severe as the rolls grow longer.

Deliberations by the panel have suggested an outline of the probable solution — a slow down in cost-of-living benefit boosts, speeded up payroll tax hikes, and bringing federal workers under the system — but no one seems prepared to take the heat for changes that will affect 36 million beneficiaries and pinch taxpayers nationwide.

Armstrong, chairman of the Senate Social Security subcommittee, set the odds for agreement between Reagan and O'Neill at "about 40-60 ... 40 they will."

Artificial Hearts' Future Is Promising, Doctors Say

ORLANDO (UPI) — Artificial hearts like the one implanted in the chest of Seattle dentist Barney Clark will someday be as easy to implant and operate as the pacemaker, Central Florida cardiologists say.

Most doctors agree the plastic hearts are better than transplants from human donors, but before artificial hearts can replace human donors the bulky power sources must be stream-lined.

The cardiologists said the Jarvik-7 artificial heart is like the first pacemaker. When developed more than two decades ago, the pacemaker had a power source the size of a piano. Today, some pacemakers are as slim as a quarter.

Bingo Crackdown Begun

MIAMI (UPI) — A sharpened drive by police to investigate charity-run bingo games is based on speculation about a supposed "organized crime" element involved with the games, say representatives of the charities.

Police say they have started a new crackdown on the "criminal element" involved in charity-run bingo games because of a Dec. 2 bombing — the third this year — of a bingo hall.

Only by denying permits to charities, say police, can they stop the practice whereby charities lend their names to bingo hall operators — who charge up to 90 percent of the proceeds for use of the hall.

Conchs Abandon Key West

KEY WEST (UPI) — Natives of Florida's most famous key are leaving en masse because the former frontier town has grown too expensive for the old-time residents, called "Conchs".

While the flow leaving Key West is hard to document, local officials say thousands of Conchs have left the eight-square-mile island in the last five years. Some say as many as 40 percent or more have abandoned the former home of Ernest Hemmingway.

The 1980 census shows that the number of residents who have lived in Monroe County for more than five years dropped 5 percent in the 1970s. And officials say that more than 10,000 names have been dropped from county voter-registration lists — although the population of Key West has remained constant at about 24,000.

The reasons for the mass flight of natives run the gamut from the increase in homosexuals — who moved to Key West in the mid-1970s because of its tolerant atmosphere — to the drop in jobs caused by the closing of the Harry S. Truman submarine base in 1974. The reason given most often, however, is the soaring cost of living.

For Murdering His Girlfriend

Sanford Man Sentenced To 60 Years

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A 29-year-old Sanford man has been sentenced to 60 years in prison for the second-degree murder of his girlfriend outside a Seminole County bar.

Bobby Lee Jackson, of Alexander Avenue, was sentenced Friday by Circuit Court Judge Kenneth M. Leffler in connection with the March 14 shooting death of Gladys Hill, 32, of 44 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford. Leffler also retained jurisdiction over Jackson's sentence for the first 20 years which means that Leffler or his successor must approve efforts to parole Jackson during the first 20 years of his prison term.

Jackson was convicted Oct. 29 by a Seminole County Circuit jury of second-degree murder.

During the three-day trial, the state argued that Jackson became involved in an argument with Ms. Hill at about 1:30 a.m. March 14 outside the DeLuxe Bar on Southwest Road, slapped her, pointed a gun at her head and fired once.

Jackson maintained that the gun went off accidentally while the two were arguing. Jackson said he carried the gun for protection, but that Ms. Hill did not want him to be armed because it was a violation of his probation.

Jackson was convicted April 7, 1973 of rape and assault with the intent to commit rape against an inmate in the Seminole County jail. He became eligible for parole and was released from prison Jan. 19 of this year.

During his trial, Jackson testified that when he was released, he renewed his friendship with Ms. Hill but married another woman in February. About a month later, Jackson was charged with Ms. Hill's death.

STEREO, JEWELRY STOLEN

Thieves broke into a Sanford man's home between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Wednesday and stole $2,483 worth of stereo equipment and jewelry.

Robert Boyer, 25, of 405 E. 29th St., reported the theft of his property to police.

PAINT PILFERED

Someone stole three gallons of paint, two paint rollers and pans and two four-foot roller handles from a Sanford man's home between 2:30 p.m. Tuesday and 11:39 a.m. Wednesday.

Marcus Williamson, 23, reported the theft to police, adding that the total value of the stolen items was about $40.

MAN KNOCKED OUT, ROBBED

A 20-year-old Sanford man said someone hit him in the face with a board, rendering him unconscious, and then stole his bicycle, money and apartment key.

George Byrd, of 1810 Southwest Road, told police he was riding his bike along Olive Avenue between 8th and 10th Streets at 10 p.m. Tuesday when someone hit him in the face with a board. Byrd told police the blow knocked him out and while he was unconscious, the culprits stole his 10-speed bicycle, $20 cash and apartment key. Byrd said the stolen bike is valued at about $200.

SUITS STOLEN

Someone broke into a home near Longwood at about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday and stole suits and two end tables valued at about $900.

Thomas Emmet Wahrobe, 42, of 2521 Thicket Ridge Court, told sheriff's deputies that someone pried open the patio door of his home and stole the tables and men's and women's suits.

TOOLS TAKEN FROM SHED

Thieves broke into an Altamonte Springs man's storage shed, stealing about $500 worth of tools between midnight Wednesday and 4 p.m. Friday.

Frank N. Brubaker, 41, of 698 Douglas Road told deputies the thieves stole two saws, a drill, vice grips, a socket set, wrenches and miscellaneous hand tools.

THIEF TAKES TREE

A Geneva man told sheriff's deputies he saw a young, bearded man steal a 10-foot red cedar tree from the yard of his home at about 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Snow Hits New England

United Press International

Snow and frigid temperatures blasted the East Coast and South — burying New England under 13 inches of snow, stranding 500 people on Nantucket Island and sinking a trawler in stormy seas. Icy temperatures gripped the Midwest.

The snows caused power failures that affected thousands of people, blocked roads and forced officials to cancel school today.

At least two deaths were blamed on the weather.

The storm muscled out of the South Sunday, where it dumped 5 inches of snow, and churned up the coast to New England — burying parts of Virginia and Washington, D.C., in rare 10-inch depths of snow.

Cape Cod was buffeted by high winds and more than a foot of snow. Chatham, Mass., was hit with 13 inches and 50 mph winds roared across Nantucket. Up to 8 inches of snow was reported south of Boston and 8 inches fell on the city itself before the storm slowly headed into the Atlantic.

Coastal Connecticut reported 4 inches, Rhode Island had 5 inches, New York City had 3 inches and 6 inches blanketed Long Island.

Icy cold brought more misery for 8,500 people still kept out of their homes by floods on the Illinois River. Peoria in central Illinois reported 7 above zero.

Erie Jones, director of Illinois' State Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, said he feared the intense cold would crack foundations and walls of flooded buildings, and make soaked sandbags freeze and burst, hampering cleanup efforts.

The death toll from the past week's vicious weather stood at 26.

Student Fumes

As Auto Burns

JOHNSON, R.I. (UPI) — If Michael Broadmeadow had $25, he might still have his car.

But he didn't — and the college student could only watch as his car went up in flames because he didn't have the $25 a gas station operator demanded for the loan of a fire extinguisher.

"He has no humanitarianism. It stinks, as far as I'm concerned," said fire Lt. John Malone of gas station operator Morris J. Marsh, 54.

Broadmeadow, 21, said he asked Marsh for the Shell station's fire extinguisher when his car started spewing smoke Friday while he was driving to the Community College of Rhode Island in Warwick.

But Marsh refused to hand over the extinguisher because the young Cumberland man couldn't cover the cost of refilling it.

Good Start For Mexico

Few Mexican presidents can ever have inherited so daunting a mess as that now facing Miguel de la Madrid. Triple-digit inflation, a foreign debt of $80 billion, and a combined unemployment-underemployment rate of something like 40 percent might strike even the most determined optimist as a prescription for disaster.

Things would be worse still if Mexico's new president had begun his six-year term Dec. 1, with an inaugural address that was anything less than ruthlessly honest. Leaders of nations in trouble need to establish especially strong bonds of credibility with the citizenry if hardships are to seem both just and necessary.

To his credit, President de la Madrid set the right tone in a forthright speech reminiscent of Winston Churchill's call for "blood, toil, tears, and sweat." Mexico's new president declared that austerity was obligatory, that recovery would take years, and that the next few months would be particularly arduous. Rarely in history have Mexicans heard such a sober inaugural address.

But what was grim news to Mexicans will be reassuring to the foreign bankers who hold some $60 billion in government loans and at least another $20 billion in private sector debt. There is simply no way that Mexico can escape drastic austerity if wholesale default on these loans is to be avoided.

Accordingly, much of what de la Madrid said was obviously intended to impress foreign bankers and investors with the government's determination to get its financial house in order. That augurs well for the new government's ability to win final approval from the International Monetary Fund on a $6.5 billion bail out.

The cuts in government spending, including food subsidies, that this austerity will require should be easier for ordinary Mexicans to bear if de la Madrid can demonstrate some early progress in his declared war on official corruption. Most Mexicans have long since grown justifiably bitter about the rampant graft that enriches the powerful and well-connected at the expense of everyone else.

As a former sub-director of PEMEX, the government owned and scandalously managed petroleum monopoly, de la Madrid should know just where to start in his search for corrupt officials who might be cast swiftly into the dock. Indicting some ranking bureaucrats, rather than a few petty chiselers, will be essential if the new president's anti-corruption drive is to ring less hollow than those in the past.

The peculiarities of Mexican politics make it difficult for a new president to use his inaugural address to repudiate the policies of his predecessor. Both represent the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party and, thus must pay at least rhetorical tribute to the notion of continuity.

But within these constraints, de la Madrid left little doubt that he will temper and perhaps eventually abandon some of Jose Lopez Portillo's more foolish moves of recent months. Among them: Nationalization of all Mexican banks and a set of counterproductive, not to say unworkable, currency controls.

De la Madrid's initial cabinet appointments were also reassuring to those who believe that Mexico's salvation lies in strengthening that country's private sector, and in trimming the bloated state-owned enterprises that have become financial drains on the treasury.

A tough, honest inaugural address does not, of course, guarantee that de la Madrid can deliver Mexico from its present crisis. But he has at least demonstrated a full grasp of Mexico's predicament, and the courage to describe it frankly.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Give me a JOB — THEN I'll worry about a possible $200-billion deficit next year."

Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson, who was at city hall awaiting the word of his re-election victory last Tuesday night after the polls closed, was crowned on the spot by Kyle Keogh.

Keogh prepared in advance for Sorenson and elaborate looking, velvet-type crown surrounded by a gold medal-like frame, topped with a cross.

Sorenson is one of the few five-term city officials in the county. He came through his election with eight votes more than he needed to avoid a run off.

Sorenson celebrated the victory at the city's Cafe Sorrento with a few close friends. He noted he will continue doing in office what he feels the people want.

Meanwhile in Longwood, J. Russell Grant; who also succeeded in being elected to his fifth consecutive term on the Longwood City Commission, was celebrating with his friends at the Longwood Women's Club building on Church Street.

A large gathering attended his party. In Casselberry, Frank Schutte, who lost in a bid for a fourth term on the Casselberry city Council, has a house full of friends and supporters at his Carriage Hill home who wanted his company despite his defeat.

Seminole Sheriff John Polk is sporting a sleek new figure these days since he dropped 50 pounds by dieting and rigorous exercise.

Polk said early in 1983 he will begin planning for his annual barbecue to raise funds for his 1984 re-election campaign.

U.S. Sen. John Warner, R-Va., has introduced legislation, which he calls the first "really acceptable spoke in the wheel of New Federalism." The legislation would permit each state to manage its own unemployment compensation trust fund and to receive all the interest that trust fund earns.

Currently, federal law requires states to collect payroll taxes from employers and to send the money collected on to the federal government for distribution back to the states.

The problem, Warner says, is that most states pay far more into the system than they receive back in either administrative funds or benefits.

Warner says it is evident that this bill will not be passed during the brief lame-duck session this year but it is his intention to continue moving the concept towards enactment in 1983.

Is Tax Error Or Test?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The stillborn idea of taxing unemployment benefits led to a public-relations disaster for the White House — the greatest such fiasco in recent memory. But what Washington insiders are wondering is: Was the announcement that the plan was under consideration simply an error, or did the White House intentionally float a trial balloon that was quickly deflated?

The story began the day before Thanksgiving, aboard Air Force One. There, in an informal conversation on the way to California, White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters that "the president was considering" options other than simply accelerating the third stage of the tax cut to fight unemployment.

On Thanksgiving Day, Speakes gave what was to have been the only briefing in the four-day, nonworking holiday for the president and his staff. In it, Speakes confirmed that Reagan was considering a tax on unemployment benefits as a way to make joblessness "less attractive," and that the revenue derived from such a tax could be used for "retraining the long-term structurally unemployed."

Speakes' remarks spawned major headlines across the country and became the lead story on all television news shows.

The idea ran into a firestorm of opposition from Democrats, labor and not a few members of the president's own party — and by late Friday, the White House was announcing that the idea was dead.

Moreover, top White House aides were falling all over themselves to explain that the plan was no more than a low-level staff idea. Presidential counselor Ed Meese said it was never under "any kind of serious consideration" at high levels of this administration. Top Reagan aide Michael Deaver went even further, saying that "hundreds of people work in this White House. Ideas come forward all the time, but this one was never considered by senior staff in any way." All were very quick to say that President Reagan had never personally considered it. Said Speakes, "The president only learned about it from news reports, and killed any consideration of it immediately."

According to the White House version of what happened, a low-level working group comprised of Treasury, Labor, Commerce and White House staffers assembled a 16-page "outline" of eight possible unemployment remedies, one of which was the benefits tax. This outline — or "discussion paper," as it also is being called — was to be considered at a Cabinet Council on Economic Affairs meeting at the White House on the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. However, it was shelved in favor of a discussion regarding the proposed five-cent gas-tax increase.

However, in the normal course of White House paperwork, a copy of the outline was distributed to Speakes, who did not know that the outline had never been reviewed at the Tuesday meeting. Speakes thought that it had been, and that he therefore was free to discuss it. As he said, "It was my fault. I made a mistake."

But was it all a simple mistake in communications — a low-level staff idea that was made public before it received any high-level consideration? Or was it a calculated play — a trial balloon released in such a way as to be easily disavowed if the opposition was as great as it turned out to be?

Whiz Kid Would Profit From Tax Break

WASHINGTON — Washington lobbyists could take a lesson from Steven Jobs, the multimillionaire striping who heads Apple Computers Inc. Though he is a mere 37 years old and totally naive in the way legislation is made in Washington, the whiz kid from Silicon Valley has come within drooping distance of the most lucrative individual tax break in memory.

Jobs wants to donate Apple computers to all 53,000 public elementary and high schools in the country — if the Treasury will give his company double the normal tax break for such contributions. But this philanthropy, it turns out, would net Apple as much as $90 million just in short-term tax advantages alone.

In fact, the double tax break would mean that the government — more precisely, the rest of us taxpayers — would be picking up all but 8 percent of the computers' cost. "There's no element of giving here," said one Capitol Hill opponent. "We're buying the things."

The long-range benefits to Apple could dwarf even the immediate tax break. Not only would the company get paid for spare parts, improvements and maintenance for the 83,000 computers, its "donation" would effectively

JEFFREY HART

Nixon, Kissinger And Chile

Seymour Hersh, an investigative reporter who arose out of the New Left counter-culture of the '60s, has published an important new book called "The Price of Power: Kissinger in Nixon's White House," and the current Atlantic Monthly publishes a long excerpt from it.

The book is important, but not for the reasons Hersh thinks it is.

The argument of Hersh's book can be put simply. It is — when you clear away all the breathless details he provides — that the Nixon administration dreaded the accession to power in Chile of Salvador Allende, and, in 1970, did a lot to try to prevent it.

In Hersh's narrative, the administration tried to strengthen Allende's opponents in the 1970 election, funneled CIA and multi-national funds to political groups opposed to Allende, and considered backing both assassination schemes and a military coup, but then abandoned both of these latter options.

Hersh finds no evidence that the Nixon administration played any direct role in the eventual overthrow and death of Allende, but he shows — what, indeed, everyone knew at the time — that the Nixon administration put heavy economic pressure on the Allende regime.

Hersh presents all of this in terms of stop-the-presses revelation, his governing assumption being that it was "wrong" for an American administration to try to block the accession to power of what amounted to an intended communist takeover in Chile.

My own reaction to Hersh's narrative would surprise him. In every paragraph, I cheered the determination of the Nixon administration and the anti-communist passion of Henry Kissinger.

Nixon and Kissinger foresaw, very accurately, what the consequences of an Allende electoral victory would be. What they feared, in fact, came to pass.

Running against two relatively unattractive opponents in a three-way race, Allende squeezed in with a plurality — not a majority — and launched his country on what Marxists at the time characterized as "the Chilean path to Socialism," i.e., the communization of a country through constitutional means. The Allende regime declared war on its own economy by inflating the currency, and achieved inflation rates of over 300 percent. It attacked independent newspapers through communist-controlled unions, and it began to abolish constitutional liberties, such as freedom of travel and freedom of speech. Before he was overthrown, Allende was voted "in violation of the constitution" by the Chilean legislature. Meanwhile, the Allende regime tried to turn Chile into a revolutionary headquarters for Latin America, and Santiago teemed with Cubans, East Germans, Russians.

Today, Allende's fans exist almost solely in the Western media outside of Chile, among people like Seymour Hersh. The Allende regime had few admirers inside Chile, even among such presumptively liberal circles as university students and faculty, journalists, and labor unions. Most Chileans today feel that when Allende was overthrown by the military, the Chileans themselves had "taken their country back."

Much is made by people like Hersh of the fact that Allende, though a minority victor in a three-way race, was "constitutionally" elected.

And, of course, that is true. But the same is true of Adolf Hitler in 1933. His National Socialist Party, like Allende's, won a plurality in the 1933 elections. The German president, Hindenburg, accordingly named Hitler chancellor. There were no more elections.

Suppose the European and American democratic governments in 1933 had expressed serious displeasure with the German political direction? Suppose, indeed, they had groomed an alternative to Hitler, and overthrown the new chancellor? Would that have been "wrong"? Would it have been "interference in internal affairs"? We celebrate the heroes of the doomed officers' plot against Hitler. Why do we not celebrate the successful heroes of the military overthrow of the Allende regime?

DON GRAFF

One Man's Recession

We're in Grand Central Station shortly after eight in the morning.

The peak of the rush. Human rivers flow from commuter train platforms across the cavernous concourse to street exits, subway entrances and the four-abreast escalators to the Pan Am building where an agitated young man is thrusting green handbills at the crowd. Few hands accept them.

It could be any morning in the heat of a political campaign. But this is a month after Election Day. And Rob Seitz is not making a pitch for votes.

"EXPERIENCE" — the handbill tells us — "BETTER THAN AN MBA." It goes on to detail a six-year career in public relations that ended, at least for the time being, last May when Seitz lost his job with Newsome & Co.

He isn't the first job-hunter to go public in Grand Central. A young woman, fresh from campus with a master's in business administration, tried it a few weeks earlier and at least got a story in the New York Times. His wife warned Seitz he couldn't expect a sympathetic response, but he thought his professional record would compensate for the sex and age disadvantage.

It didn't. As of this writing, the Times hasn't found Seitz news fit to print and I am the only handbill recipient to contact him.

The experience was demoralizing. He wasn't personally humiliated. There were no unkind comments, nothing like that. But desperation turned to anger at having to beg for work after months of trying to find a job through the accepted channels.

He has tried the agencies and the want ads. The pages of job openings Ronald Reagan makes such a case of, Seitz says, run mostly to sales positions or call for technical skills. There's virtually nothing in his own field, one of the hardest hit of New York's service industries. Still, he checks out every job change he hears of, on the chance an opening has not been filled, even calling when he hears someone has died. It hasn't worked.

There have been moments of hope. Once he was one of 10 interviewed out of 400 applicants for an opening. He didn't get the job.

The day we talked he had been called in for an interview by a corporation that, he was told, had received 500 responses to a blind ad in the Times. He didn't get that one, either.

Then there was the one that fell through because Seitz was too good. "You'll get something if you sweat it out," the prospective employer told him, "but I wouldn't want to hire you for ten thousand less than you're worth." Bob Seitz is still sweating it out.

Contrary to the impression around the White House that unemployment is "attractive," Seitz finds it one of the worst experiences he's ever gone through. He applied for benefits reluctantly, knowing it was the only way he and his wife could survive in New York, although she is working.

Looking for a job has become a full-time job — all day every day. Mornings he spends on the telephone, afternoons he types application letters or checks newspapers, professional journals and trade newsletters at a library. Minimizing expenses, he doesn't subscribe.

He's willing to relocate — within reason. There's his wife's job to consider.

Footnote: An Apple spokesman insisted that the company is truly interested in the education benefits of the donation scheme. "If all we wanted to do is sell computers, we would invest the money in advertising," he said.

SCBOOGIE SLIPS UP: With its usual sensitivity, the Internal Revenue Service had a surprise pre-Christmas present for many taxpayers. The not-so-glad tidings asked the taxpayers to waive the three-year statute of limitations on 1979 tax returns — and warned the recipients to respond to the letter within 10 days.

The unspoken treat was that without the taxpayer's permission to check into the 1979 return, IRS would slap on a jeopardy assessment that could tie up the taxpayer's money and property.

What caused panic was the fact that the letters weren't mailed out until several days after the 18-day response deadline had passed. Some taxpayers didn't get the letters until 20 days after they were supposed to have been answered.

Red-faced as any sidewalk Santa, the IRS explained that improper programming had led the computer to misdate the letters.

Crippled Children To Benefit From Doll House Show

The "Merry Miniaturists" will sponsor a two-day doll house show entitled "Wee Things for Wee People" on Saturday, Jan. 8 and Sunday, Jan. 9 at the Altamonte Mall. Proceeds will go to the Elks of Florida for the Harry Anna Crippled Children's Hospital in Umatilla. The show will feature free seminars on building, electrical wiring, wall papering and decorating for doll houses. Crafts from throughout the United States will display and sell miniature furniture and fixtures. Displays will be open on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. A $1 donation may be made for a chance to win a completely furnished miniature doll house valued at $2,000 to be given away at the close of the show on Saturday. Admission is free. Show chairman is Dick Freiberg of the Merry Miniaturists and honorary show chairman is Howard Volpert, vice president of Burdines. Jim Oliver, administrator of Harry Anna Hospital is show advisor. For information, contact Ray Miller, Publicity Coordinator, Winter Park Elks Lodge at 671-5845.

Don't Expose Friend To Chilly Reception

DEAR ABBY: To get to the point, I'm gay. I am 30 and my lover (I'll call him Bill) is 36. We've lived together for three years — long enough to know that we belong together. Last summer I introduced Bill to my parents and told them the truth about our relationship. My mother has accepted Bill, but my father barely tolerates him. It's a terrible strain for me to be in my father's company with Bill, although Bill has been very sweet and understanding. My parents want me to come home for Christmas. (They live in another state.) They said, "Bill is welcome, too." He will accompany me if I ask him to, but I'm afraid

Dear Abby

Also, you might suggest that our friends be a little less cruel to those whose limited income forces them to live on "the wrong side of the river." MIFFED IN FLORIDA DEAR MIFFED: Since both you and your wife enjoy the daily newspaper, why not treat yourselves to a subscription as a mutual Christmas gift? That way you'll get the newspaper intact without having to rely on the generosity of friends. And for the cruel remarks masked as humor: For maximum effectiveness, your friends need to hear any suggestions from you. DEAR ABBY: I am an inmate at the Attica Correctional Facility in New York. Now that the Christmas season is upon us, I have a small favor to ask. Will you please ask your readers to send a card to someone they know in prison? There are many of us here who would love to hear from our relatives and old friends. It would mean so much to know that we haven't been forgotten. A card or note during the holiday season would really give us a tremendous lift. Merry Christmas, Abby, and may the good Lord bless you.

Save A Life, Learn How To Perform CPR

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband died a year ago from a heart attack. He was only 42 years old and I thought he was in good health. He had a physical only two months before at the company where he worked. He worked in a lumber yard and had to do a lot of manual labor as well as being on his feet all day.

When he came home that evening he complained of being tired and his shoulder ached, which he thought was from a particularly heavy day.

During the night he got sick at his stomach and his left shoulder and arm hurt as well as his chest. I got him in the car and drove 15 miles to the hospital but he died before I got there.

I try to think what I could have done to help him. I am particularly upset because he was a young man. I would appreciate any comments you have.

DEAR READER — You tried and that is important. No one knows if the outcome would have been different if you had done anything differently.

At the risk of upsetting you, though, your story is commonplace and the story could have a different outcome if everyone knew how to provide emergency aid to a victim of heart attacks or arrest of respiration. It is called CPR or cardio-pulmonary resuscitation. I would like to urge all my readers to check with their local organizations, Red Cross, Fire Department, Heart Association or other groups that offer courses in providing CPR.

Encourage your neighbors and friends to know how to do it. The life they save may be yours. It involves providing mouth to mouth resuscitation and compressing the chest rhythmically to provide a minimum of circulation to sustain life while you are waiting for an emergency ambulance for help. You need it in those cases where the heart has ceased to provide a pulse, the respiration has stopped, or both.

I am sending you The Health Letter 7-4, Save A Life: Heart and Lung Arrest, which outlines the procedure but everyone needs a course. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

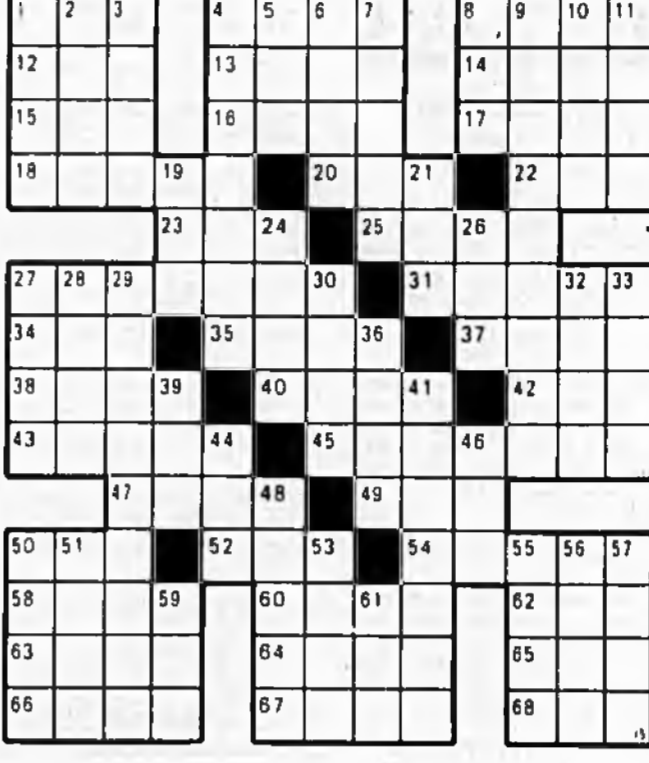

You never know who will need help. Heart attacks still are the most common cause of death and they can strike young people as well as those who are older.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 14-year-old girl and have Osgood Schlatter's disease. Does this have anything to do with your health? I'm 4-feet-11 and will probably never be over 5 feet. I have been to the doctor many times and he tells me that it will go away in two years, but he has been telling me that for four years.

I play basketball, softball, run track and drive. Is it true you can also get it in your ankles and elbow? Will this disease be with me all my life?

DEAR READER — As you probably know, the disease is characterized by painful knees. The area just below the knee cap where the large tendon encasing the knee cap is attached is the point of trouble. Activity that pulls on this tendon, such as knee bends and kicking, makes it worse. The bone is immature in that area and usually as the bones mature the problem ceases. The time it takes for this varies.

No, this will not affect other joints, and if your diagnosis is correct you will surely grow out of it as your bones mature.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, December 14, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY Dec. 14, 1982

You should do quite well this coming year in situations where you deal directly with the public in some manner. Look for ways to help you bring about this relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You won't fit comfortably in a subordinate role today, so try not to let yourself be jockeyed into that position. Your place is out front, leading the parade. Order now: The NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic combinations, compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail #2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Sagittarian Astro-Graph predictions for 1983.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Sometimes our hunches and insights can't be relied upon, but this is not apt to be true of you today. If you feel strongly about something, don't ignore it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be hopeful regarding the outcome of events today, even if the signals indicate otherwise. A positive outlook can turn failures into successes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will be difficult to do things today without calling attention to yourself, even if this is not your desire. Don't worry. You'll look good.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Treat whatever occurs today philosophically, and thus you'll quickly defuse situations which could be problems. Don't take life too seriously.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't jump in impulsively, but at least explore in depth today situations which might offer you a second source of income. You may find a winner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Play a supportive role today if your mate or associates have better ways of doing things than you do. Your role will still be important.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to do your best work today you have to be enthusiastic about your tasks. You won't get away with halfhearted measures.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to spend time today with the young at heart who have an enthusiasm for life. You need to be around people whose smiles come easier than their frowns.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It may appear at first that the breaks are going to others today. However, when the end results are tallied this is not likely to be the case.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are both a keen observer and a quick learner today. You're likely to gather information through you: contacts which you can use to advantage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions continue to look favorable in matters which could add to your financial growth and security. Try to give them top priority today.

wood of Indianapolis, Ind., almost 50 years ago. It is a must for slam addicts.

Jim: "In case any reader doesn't know it, the basic convention is simple. A bid of four no-trump asks partner to reply by showing how many aces he holds. Five clubs shows none, five diamonds one, five hearts two, five spades three and five no-trump all four. If the Blackwood bidder finds that his side has all four aces he can follow up with five no-trump to ask for kings. Note that this follow-up for kings always guarantees that all four aces are held by the partnership."

Oswald: "It didn't take long. Maybe just 10 or 15 years to find out that the five-club response could be used to show either no aces or all four aces. If you can't figure out which you really shouldn't play bridge, so this zero-four variation is now in almost universal use."

Jim: "Today's hand shows Blackwood at its best. South finds out that his partner holds four aces and the one missing king, so he bids seven no-trump. He can count at least 13 tricks and bids no-trump to avoid any possible ruff and to score 10 extra points."
