City Commission Establishes Annexation Fees

City Editor

Sanford City Commissioners have voted draw up an ordinance setting, for the first time, fees for annexation applications and reviews and revisions of site development plans.

The proposed fee for annexation applications is $185, plus engineering or total actual cost, whichever is less.

City Manager Warren Knowles said in cases of large tracts proposed for annexation and development, the annexation fee could be several thousand dollars under the proposed vertisements and notifying surrounding property owners by mail of the application,' annexation application fee "won't solve the problem" of trying to annex "pockets" of unannexed property surrounded by the city The proposed fee schedule would drop the fee "You'll be scaring them off before they can be told of the waiver provision," he said. Commissioners also voted to include in the fee ordinance a provision that would let the com-

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Gov. Reubin Askew has named a commission to examine the growing controversy over state regulation of private property. Askew announced Monday the appointment of the 26member Governor's Property Rights Study Commission to be headed by Lt. Gov.-elect Jim Williams. "We want to explore the boundaries between private property rights and the public interest," Askew said. "We need guidelines to help determine where the private prerogative should end and where the public perogative The issue of how much the state can control private

It's official. The zoo won't be losing any of its animals ecause of over-crowding. Allan Rozon, executive director of the Central Florida Zoological Society said today that the zoo has been

The commission last month gave zoo officials 30 days to eliminate over-crowded conditions in its present facility Some animals have been re-located temporarily, and zoo roditions have been improved to the extent that the state commission is satisfied with the progress, even though the 30-day deadline expired Sunday.

Arabs Seeking Real Partnership

The nervous tremors that rippled through the United States of America recently when it was disclosed that Arab nations tried to purchase a controlling interest in Lockheed Aircraft Corp. brings further into the open an issue that we will have to face squarely in the very near future.

Troubled financially or not, Lockheed is the largest defense contractor in the United States and a national resource. A significant investment in Lockheed by any foreign power — potentially hostile or otherwise — would be troublesome.

Some of that concern was expressed recently by Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. He, among the others, is urging passage of legislation that would limit direct foreign investment in large U.S. corporations by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Mr. Burns is concerned about economic dislocations that Arab treasures could

The protectionist trend in the United States is in turn, troubling OPEC nations who insist that they do not want to invest only in "Quaker Oats" type of companies as Mr. Burns suggests — or be passive money lenders. They insist on being "real partners" in a cross section of U.S. industries.

Such differences of opinion are arousing national reactions out of proportion to the real problems that face the United States and Arab

If we look at the issue in perspective, it becomes plain that Arabs want to put their money to work in the United States because we are a responsible and dynamic nation which offers the best investment opportunities in the world. And surely the Arabs, despite their probing at Lockheed, Grumman and elsewhere, realize that "real" partnership in U.S. industries does not extend to foreign domination - or even significant investment - in critical defense-oriented industries, communications or transportation.

Even if these industries are excluded - and we believe that, in general, they should be - there is ample opportunity for OPEC investment in the United States. As a whole the visible Arab investment is reflecting this fact. It ranges from real estate to arms and apartments.

So far Arab investments cannot even hold a candle to U.S. private ownership abroad of 100,000 manufacturing plants and 23,000 affiliates worth an estimated $100 billion.

Precipitate action by Congress to choke off legitimate Arab investment could set into motion a worldwide protectionist movement that could endanger the golden U.S. multinational goose.

The administration policy, expressed recently by Treasury Secretary William Simon to the Arab-American American Association in New York City is that "investment capital should be free to move to its most productive use in response to free

Given the industrial, technological and labor advantages that the United States has over the rest of the world - advantages which are attracting the Arab money here — that approach makes far more sense than hiding our heads in the sand.

$1.3 Billion Rice Crop Threatened

For three-quarters of the world's four billion people, the slender reeds of the rice plant form the greatest single barrier between nutrition and

It is a fact of our time that rice crops in the world's major growing area, which are also the areas of fastest population growth, have been unable to keep up with demand. The future looks even more critical as a result of changing weather patterns and soaring fertilizer costs.

Only the United States, which is 11th in the world's ranking of rice producers, remains in a position to export rice. Of the five million tons produced in the United States in 1973, fully 67 per cent of the crop was exported to more than 100

With two million acres currently under rice cultivation, predominantly in Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas and California, this year's crop is expected to yield 6.5 million tons, of which more than two-thirds will go to overseas

For a nation allegedly based on waste, it is worth noting that it takes the average American farmer only two man-days of labor to grow and harvest one acre of rice compared with 400 mandays per acre in most of the developing nations, where rice is the staple crop.

According to spokesmen for chemical manufacturers, however, the American farmer faces a major threat to his ability to grow the crops that will meet home demand as well as help ease the crisis in the world's rice bowl.

The threat, they say, is the attack which certain pressure groups have launched against one of the chemicals which have helped give the United States its rice-exporting capability, the pesticide 2, 4, 5-T. The pesticide manufacturers, of course, are suspect right from the start. They are in the ausiness of selling chemicals, not feeding the world's hungry or protecting the environment. Farmers have no less an important financial stake. Last year's rice crop had a record valuation of $1.3 billion.

Yet the environmentalists have occasionally seemed to be guided by the philosophy that every manmade produce or process is guilty of cousing harm until proven innocent, and have sometimes seemed less than concerned about the long-term economic and human consequences of their seventies went out the other day and bought herself a gun. She lives alone in the city and she is afraid. The gun gives her courage, even though she is so tender hearted she could never bring herself to use it.

A local store I shopped at regularly has closed: four armed robberies, one after another the past several months, were too much. The owner was certain he was going to get a slashing, a gun whipping or shot. The guys with guns were too crazy for him to take the chance of staying on. An elderly friend with a serious heart condition was mugged in broad daylight on the street smack between Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies and the Brookings Institution. He wasn't worried about his purse; he had little money. But the muggers violently knocked him down in their surprise attack, so reckless they were in their eagerness

These are not unusual stories. More's the pity. They're so common indeed we barely pay them heed unless we or our friends are the victims. The major cities have large police departments. But most officers are occupied with controlling traffic, directing crowds, handling administration and writing reports, issuing tickets for minor traffic or parking violations. dealing with drunks, responding to nuisance disturbances and carrying on a multitude of other tasks little connected with the serious crime we are concerned with.

The prosecuting attorney's office is no better. Oakland's Stabler

Trying For Release BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - A suit seeking to release

Oakland Raiders quarterback Kenny Stabler from his contract with the Birmingham Americans of the World Football League has been continued. Jefferson County Circuit Judge William C. Barber rescheduled a hearing into the case for Dec. 26. The hearing was originally set for Monday. Henry Pitts of Selma, Ala., Stabler's attorney, said the Americans have been in arrears in payment of a $100,000 bonus to the National Football League quarterback. Under the contract, Stabler is to join the Americans for the 1976 season after playing out his option with the

Bidding War To Begin

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball's owners are champing at the bit, waiting for the bidding sweepstakes to begin for the services of Catfish Hunter. But Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is in no hurry to open the starting gate.

History was made Monday when an arbitration board voted 2-1 that Hunter's contract had been broken by the Oakland A's and that the 1974 Cy Young award winner had become the sport's first free agent. The ruling would allow Hunter to sell his services to the highest bidder and the bids, owners admitted, could surpass a million

It doesn't seem likely, though, that an offer from A's owner Charles O. Finley would receive much consideration. Although Hunter stated after the ruling Monday that the A's "money is just as good as anybody's," he had said earlier that "if I become a free agent, I know I won't play for the A's. I know I won't go back because I don't think Finley appreciates me." The decision, according to a statement released by the Major League Baseball Players Association, was that Finley had broken the contract by failing to meet a $50,000 deferred payment on Hunter's $100,000 yearly salary. Aside from declaring Hunter a free agent, the board ordered the $50,000 given Hunter plus 6 per cent interest

So now the winner of more games than anyone over the last five years - 106 - will "take his time" and listen to all offers, according to Jerry Kapstein, one of his at-"I want the best contract I can get from all 24 clubs

whichever one comes up with the best figure, tax angle retroactive to August 1, when the payment was due.

and living conditions," Hunter said. Apparently, it will be a while before the ewners can whisper sweet somethings in Funter's ear. Kuhn prohibited any bidding until he had had time to establish "orderly procedures for contacts between the clubs and Hunter and to insure all clubs of an equal opportunity to talk to Mr. Hunter." Still, it didn't take long for the guessing to start: How much is he worth? How much could he get? From whom? The massive shock the owners had felt at the decision was replaced in some cases by speculation on those very "I just can not believe it," said Minnesota Twins' owner Calvin Griffith, who said Finley had assured his mates at a recent meeting there was "no way of him becoming a Moments later, though, Griffith added that he would get into the market "like anybody else. But I wouldn't want to do it until I got the official word from the commissioner of baseball that he is a free agent.

"I wouldn't say what he's worth because he's not going to get what he's worth." Other reactions differed.

"That man could be the difference for us next year," said a baseball official who asked that his name not be used. "He could put us in the World Series; he could increase our attendance; he could easily pay off what it would take to sign him."

"After the year he had last year (25 victories, 12 losses) he's due for a raise," noted Eddie Robinson, general

Choose Your Reason For Choosing The Herald

• LOCAL NEWS:

I like the way The Herald covers the news of our local area. I'm interested in keeping up with what's happening in my community and no newspaper covers it like The Herald.

I read The Herald for local news, but I want to know what's going on in the world & nation too. The Herald publishes it all in a brief, concise style that saves me time, but lets me keen i with what's important.

• GOVERNMENT:

I appreciate The Herald's coverage of our local, county & state political news. It opens a lot of doors and lets me know how well our elected officials are serving the people who elected them. I like the way The Herald tells the whole story without fear or favor.

• YOUTH:

I'm interested in our schools, churches and young citizens and I enjoy reading about the good things our local kids are doing as they go about the business of growing up. The Herald's full of news & photos of our local youth that the bigger papers don't cover.

• WOMEN:

The Herald's women's pages report the news of local women of Seminole and Volusia counties and tell us about what women are doing, thinking and accomplishing locally. I can't get that kind of coverage in a metro newspaper.

• SPORTS:

I'm a sports fan. I follow the pros and major college games and I get the scores and game stories in The Herald. But I also want to follow the high school and elementary school sports programs and Little League, Pop Warner and other youth sports that I don't get in the metro papers. That's why I read The Herald for sports producing a "bio-gas," which can be burned like natural gas.

"It sounds like a good possibility, and I'll discuss it with the utility director," said Langley Adair, Seminole's pollution control officer. And Basil Tenney, a pollution control technician in Seminole, said the pesky hyacinth chokes up streams, causing civil engineers to spray them with herbicides.

Wolverton in Bay St. Louis, Miss., is a move in the right direction.

"We'll wait until they get more results, but as far as I can see and from what I've read, they're headed in the right direction," Tenney said. Tenney said killing the hyacinth in Seminole waterways causes problems and results in fish
