The council, representing 29 protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches with a membership of 31 million persons, asked him to order an FBI investigation and the convening of a federal grand lury.

A telegram to the President, algoed by Dr. Samuel M. Cavert, the council's general secretary, asked him also to take action regarding other "recent incidents of flagrant lawiesaness in Florida."

It described as examples of lawiesaness the shooting of Negro prisoners and the bombing of Negro housing projects and Jewish synagogues in Miami and Coral Gables.

The telegram asked the President to direct Attorney General J. Howard McGrath to set the federal law enforcement machinery in mo-

Truman Urged 13 Sailors Saved From Sinking

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. 48.—Thirteen haggard seamen came ashore here Thursday night after seven days buffetting by Atlantic winds aboard a tiny, disabled cargo vessel.

Their arrival — in tow by the motorship Algerine — brought first news that their vessel, the May fall, had been in trouble. Their 321-ton craft carried no wireless. Scarcity of food, water and heat added to the crew's worries since last Friday when the Mayfall's fuel pumps failed en route from lionavista to 8t. John's.

inst Friday when the Mayfall's fuel pumps falled en route from Bonavista to St. John's.

The crew sent up rockets in hope of attracting passing ships but got no response.

As a howling Atlantic storm swept the little ship farther out to sen, the crew jamined mess tables and furniture into the furnaces in an attempt to raise steam. But they had to give this up when the bollers began to leak.

Accidental Deaths

Accident fatalities in the United States increased markedly in 1951, reversing the downward trend of the preceding three years, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reports. It is estimated that approximately 95,000 lives were lost in accidents this year, about 5,000 more than in Each of the main classes of mishaps, except home accidents, accounted for more deaths in 1951 than in the year before. Motor vehicle fatalities increased by approximately 2,500, reaching a total of 37,500, the highest annual toll in

"By far the leading cause of accidental death, motor vehicle fatalities now account for about two-fifths of all deaths from accidents," the company points out.

Mishaps in the course of and arising out of employment were responsible for an estimated 16,500 deaths, a substantial rise from the year before, reflecting the increase in industrial activity. Fatalities in public accidents, other than motor vehicle, rose to about 16,000 in 1951. On the other hand, fatal injuries in and about the home showed little change from the toll of 27,500 in 1950,

"A rise in the already large number of lives sacrificed to accidents each year would be disconcerting at any time, the Metropolitan comments, "but it is particularly so at this critical period when manpower is urgently needed for our armed forces and our national production."

Coal Export Scheme

The government is placed in a quandary by the proposal of the coal industry and the United Mine Workers to borrow a fleet of Liberty ships to carry coal abourd at reduced transportation costs. The idea is to deliver coal to foreign ports at prices meeting those of other coal exporters, in order to expand the market for American coal.

Our coal industry is definitely ailling and in need of some kind of stimulation. It is always gratifying to see management and labor get together and look for ingenious ways to cure their allments. Many of the nations to which coalmight be carried under this scheme have a real need for it.

But if it should endorse or aid this plan, the government would be helping to undercut the American merchant shipping industry, which has problems of its own. As a matter of fact the Merchant Marine receives certain subsidies from the government, in recognition of its importance to the defense of the nation. The industry will doubtless resent the implication that its profits add the margin of cost to American coal which prevents it from competing for world markets, and implication which could hardly be considered accurate in view of the cost of coal at the mines.

When the government helps individual industries to keep going, it embarks on a project which has no end. It is probably inevitable that one industry will want the government is already helping.

It is hard to name a field today that women haven't entered during the last year. The New York Stock Exchange even is about to take in a feminine member. And haven't you observed the number of lady taxi drivers is increasing daily? They wheel the cab while pappy makes extra money in a defense factory.

The year has also seen the ladies take great strides forward in the realm of the mechanical arts. A housewife who used to take pride in the fact she could fix her own in the fact she could fix her own electric iron no longer even brags about the fact she can repair a television set. I know of one fellow who gave his wife a new electric train for Christmas instead of tric train for Christmas instead of a fur coat—and got away with it. With this new self-confidence, women are letting their human politeness and chivalry come to the fore. A dazed male friend staggered up to my desk just this week and stammered, "Y-y-ou may call me a liar, but as I was coming into the office just now I saw a woman push her own way through the revolving door." Why not? Incidents like this are way through the revolving door."

Why not? Incidents like this are bound to multiply. There are bound to be many more such examples of womanly self-reliance

And they will be noted and appreciated by men, too many of whom still have the outdated idea that women rely only on wiles and pretended weakness to achieve their ends.

Yes, men will come to appreciate at last what a treasure a good strong woman is. In fact the trend has already set in. For example, Mohamed Ben Mohemed, a husband living in French Morocco, returned to his home recently to find his wife had left him.

"It is my cursed tongue that is at fault—I used it too often to criticize her," he lamented to po-lice. And to show his remorse, do you know what Mohamed Ben Mo-hemed did? He stuck his tongue out on a chopping block—and cut if off.

It certainly was little enough for a man to do who had misunder-stood a good wife—1951 model. Johnny Wooden, head basketball coach at UCLA since 1948, is a former star performer for Purdue

The fire started shortly after midnight when a Yule tree was knocked over in a scuffle by two celebrators on the third floor of the iron-roofed concrete and wood structure.
