Girls Win $5,000 In Free-Speech Battle With School Board

By Kathy Tyrity Herald Staff Writer

Two girls who attended Seminole County schools received settlements of $2,500 each Wednesday when the school board agreed it had wrongly abridged their freedoms in Christmas celebrations. The announcement was made at a press conference at the I-4 Holiday Inn with both

Olivia Myers was eight years old two years ago when it was her turn to bring "treats" for the class at Pine Crest Elementary School, according to her attorney Michael Ferris. She chose to bring Christmas cards instead, with popular children's stickers inside. Some of the stickers read, "God loves you," and some had pictures of Jesus.

Ferris said Olivia's teacher, Ariene Cotton, who happened to be Jewish, questioned whether the stickers were allowed in school, under the board's policy. So she took the stickers to the school administrators and they decided not to allow

Said Olivia about that day in school: "I was very sad. I went home and told my mother and she was surprised." So surprised and hurt was her family that Olivia was not to return to that class. She went to a private school and later moved out of the district.

School Board Attorney Ned Julian Jr. said Olivia's case was an example of the right to free speech. He said she was asserting her right to free communication, and on the part of her school, "It was an inappropriate decision to say no."

Rebecca Reichert, now a sophomore at Lake Howell High School, was an eighth grader at Jackson-Heights Middle School when her case began. Her attorney, also Ferris, said she had made a door poster in a PTA-sponsored art contest. Her team decided to draw a nativity scene for the door. But school administrators made her take it down and not participate in the contest. Rebecca said she felt bad because she was pretty sure the drawing would have won. See GIRLS, page 5A

Sky diving, aerial acrobatics and displays of vintage and experimental aircraft will be featured during Central Florida's first Aviation Expo. slated for this weekend at the Sanford Airport.

The expo has been planned by the Sanford Chamber of Commerce Aviation Committee to promote the airport, the city and provide local residents with two days of free and unique entertainment, according to committee Vice Chairman Wayne Keeling.

Featured will be aerialists from across the state, demonstrating their skills during "fly-bys," spot landing contests and flour "bomb" drops. Rosie O'Grady's will hoist its hot air balloon at the airport and on-ground displays will show off vintage and experimental aircraft, Keeling said.

Saturday's events include sky diving exhibitions, from 3 B p.m., and a flight safety seminar offered by the Federal Aviation Administration, from 1 to 3 p.m. On Sunday, navigation contests are slated between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Immediately following the contests will be overhead 'flybys."

Reagan Off To Summit Expresses Hope, No Guarantees

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan headed today for his iceland summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, saying "success is not guaran-teed" but holding out the prospect of progress in some of the tough issues facing the superpowers.

In a statement at a farewell ceremony on the White House's south lawn, Reagan announced that his goals for the weekend meeting were "peace and freedom.

The president also emphasized that American unity in supporting his foreign policy was essential in the negotiations he faces with the Kremlin leader over the coming year.

"So we go to Reykjavik for peace," Reagan said. "We go to this meeting for freedom. And we go in hope."

'Today, we are making history, and we are turning the tide of history to peace and freedom and hope." Reagan said.

The president has emphasized that his three private sessions with Gorbachev on Saturday and Sunday are designed to lay the groundwork for a full-fledged superpower summit meeting later this year in the United

"I have long believed that if we are to be successful in pursuing peace, we must face the tough issues directly and honestly and with hope," Reagan said. "We cannot pretend that differences aren't there, seek to dash off a few quick agreements, and then give speeches about the 'spirit of Reykjavík.

"In fact," Reagan said, "we have serious problems with the Soviet positions on a great many issues, and success is not guaranteed. But, if Mr. Gorbachev comes to Iceland in a truly cooperative spirit, I think we can make some progress."

Reykjavik can be a step, a useful step and, if we persevere, the goal of a better, safer world will some day be ours and all the world's."

The Reykjavik meeting, which Reagan has called a "base camp" leading to the full-scale summit, was expected at the minimum to produce a prod for the Geneva arms negotiators to reach an accord on mutual reduction of medium-range missiles in Europe and Asia, according to Secretary of State George Shultz. The date for the big summit also could be agreed upon and aides indicated that there may be some progress on chemical warfare and the negotiations on cutting back superpower long-range strategic missile arsenals.

The parient stressed, in his remarks, that "this will be essentially a private meeting between the two of us."

'We will not have large staffs with us, nor is it planned that we sign substantive agreements. Reagan said.

Trooper Survives Shot; Suspect Arrested

ORLANDO - A suspect in the predawn shooting of a Florida Highway Patrol trooper was arrested today in Alachua County after abducting a driver at gunpoint and escaping a dragnet of 100 officers, dogs and helicopters, authorities said.

Trooper Harry Dinnard, 28, was wearing a bulletproof vest when shot with a .22-caliber pistol and was in stable condition at Orlando Regional Medical Center with a severe bruise to the upper left chest caused by the impact of the bullet, doctors said.

The suspect, who was taken to Shands

Doctors could not say if the wound could have been fatal had Dinnard not been wearing the flack jacket, but they said the vest prevented more serious injury. Dinnard was to remain hospitalized overnight for observation.

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

Commission candidate David Gunter said Wednesday he is not satisfied with Longwood City Attorney Ann Colby's explanation Monday night that a commission salary increase two years ago, which he said was done fliegally, was properly done by ordinance.

He said unless the commission agrees to pass another ordinance to correct the omission, the watchdog group of which he is a part may file suit against the commissioners to force them to repay $1,439.83 each. In his latest attempt to catch city officials in a charter violation, Gunter charged that the commissioners budgeted themselves $350 a month salaries in the 1985-86 and 1986-87 fiscal years when the city code sets $250 a month compensation. With nine pages of documentation to back up his claim that the city commissioners each owe the city $1,439.83 for overpayment in the 1985-86 fiscal year, he demanded they pay up or else.

Ms. Colby quoted the city charter: . 1985.

She explained the commission passed Ordinance 655 increasing the salary from $250 to $350 on Oct. 1, 1984 and it became effective Feb. 1.

"The ordinance was properly adopted," Ms. Colby said, "and was submitted to the code company that codifies the cities ordinances, but they haven't printed an update yet. We recently submitted several changes to the code to be included."

Commissioner Ed Myers pointed out commissioners had previously been receiving $250 plus $100 expenses and told Gunter, "It was your 'lawyer' (Longwood resident Jim Ross and a member of Gunter's

Company To Seek Human Tests For AIDS Treatment

TORONTO (UPI) - A New York company said an ozone-oxygen treatment has proven effective against the deadly AIDS virus in a test-tube study and that it will seek U.S. government permission for human tests.

A Medizone International Inc. official announced Wednesday researchers used the treatment to kill the virus in vitro - or in a test tube - and that animal studies so far show no dangerous side effects.

Company officials said the firm would ask the U.S. Food and Drug Administration next week for permission to test the treatment on humans.

The key to the treatment is ozone, created by passing oxygen through an electric arc. Ozone is the same substance that leaves a pungent odor in the air after a thunderstorm.

AIDS, or aquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a blood-transmitted disease that strips the body of its defense against disease. As of Sept. 15, there were 24,859 reported AIDS cases across the United States - 55 percent of them

Jurist Seeks To Avoid Boot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Embattled federal Judge Harry Claiborne will "exhaust every conceivable remedy" to halt his impeachment trial and a Senate vote that could make him the first jurist in 50 years booted from the bench, his

The historic trial was expected to end today with the vote to determine whether Claiborne should be ousted from the judiciary, Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said Wednesday night.

Racing the clock in a legal scramble, Claiborne's lawyer. Oscar Goodman, said he will ask the Supreme Court to halt the trial if necessary because, "Once the bell has rung, it's impossible to unring."

Late Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Harold Greene denied Claiborne's request to block the trial and rejected his complaint about the way it has been conducted.

Low-Weight Baby Study Released

BOSTON (UPI) - Low-weight babies could be sent home an average of 11 days earlier, saving about $18,560 for each child, because "bables do better with their parents," researchers said.

If hospitals nationwide adopted a model program that makes the early discharges possible, the nation's annual medical bill could be reduced by as much as $334 million, the researchers said.

"In addition to efficiency and cost effectiveness, our reason for doing this was a basic philosophy that babies do better with their parents than in the neonatal intensive care unit," said Dorothy Brooten, associate professor at the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing.

The program could be used for at least half of about 36,000 infants born each year in the United States weighing less than 4 pounds, Brooten said. Extrapolating nationwide, the program could save a minimum of $167 million and as much as $334 million.

Filibuster Threatens Drug Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Several senators warn they may filibuster a House-passed anti-drug bill to get rid of a death penalty provision, echoing a House member who says the language "solves political problems, not criminal ones."

Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., told Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas that a "lengthy debate" was possible when the Senate took up the drug bill - possibly today - and that it was doubtful the Senate could finish work on the comprmise legislation in one day as a result.

The House overwhelmingly passed the $1.8 billion measure Wednesday on a 391-23 vote.

Lawmakers Urge Reagan To Sign Superfund Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) - "may be some flexibility" in the Members of Congress from both parties are urging President Reagan to sign the $8.5 billion bill despite protests from White too costly.

The House voted 386-27 Wednesday in favor of the fiveyear extension of the Superfund program, which is threatened with a shutdown because it is running out of money.

The lopsided vote, combined with the Senate's 86-8 endorsement of the bill last week, was a "legislative slam-dunk" demonstrating overwhelming support for the toxic waste sleanup effort, said Rep. Dennis Ckart, D-Ohio.

"This was an 'in your face' yote if there ever was one," he Said, noting the bill has more than enough support in Conress to secure a two-thirds vote needed to override any presidential veto.

Some administration officials are recommending that Reagan veto the Superfund bill because it prescribes new taxes on industry to finance cleanup work.

But Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said there

Eighty-one senators signed a letter released Wednesday asking Reagan to approve the bill.

"We must all compromise," they wrote. "The Environmental Protection Agency is desperately in need of funds. We cannot put this program in jeopardy while we continue to debate funding mechanisms."

EPA Administrator Lee Thomas has warned that the program's lack of money means a shutdown is inevitable by year's end unless a new Superfund law is enacted before Congress ad-

A presidential veto would have "calamitous" consequences on the program, said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the House Energy and Commerce Committee chairman.

Under the legislation, the government-financed cleanup of some of the nation's worst toxic waste sites would continue for the next five years, paid for by a combination of taxes on industry, collections of fees from polluters, and income tax funds.

The package also includes a motor fuels tax to raise $500 million for the separate cleanup of leaking underground storage

Other provisions of the bill impose cleanup standards and require the EPA to ensure that work begins on at least 375 toxic waste sites. The measure also requires the EPA to review 23.000 potential Superfund sites over four years to determine whether they qualify for government cleanup.

Rate Of Abortions In U.S. Drops Slightly

NEW YORK (UPI) — A worldwide decline in the number of abortions has begun, with U.S. women having fewer abortions than any time since the Supreme Court legalized the procedure 13 years ago, researchers said.

A worldwide study commissioned by the Alan Guttmacher Institute said the declining abortion rate is seen in most countries where abortion is legal.

The U.S. annual rate, estimated to be 27 abortions for every 1,000 women age 15 to 44, is well below the estimated international average of 37 to 55 abortions per 1,000 women, said Stanley Henshaw, author of the survey, which was released Wednesday.

He said the estimated U.S. rate has dropped from a peak of 29 abortions per 1,000 women in 1980.

"The leveling off and slight decline of the U.S. rate is characteristic of countries that have legalized abortion," Henshaw said at a news conference. "They experience a rise, then they level off and start to decline."

Henshaw and other family planning experts at the conference attributed the slight decline to the inference that countries with liberal abortion laws also have programs to promote and distribute contracep-

They said countries other than the United States, most notably those in Europe and Scandinavia, also reported a slight decline in the abortion rate several years after laws were liberalized.

The worldwide survey, the second conducted by the institute in three years. indicates abortion laws around the world are becoming more liberal and the procedure more widely available, Henshaw said.

An estimated 76 percent of the world's population - some 4.9 billion people - live in countries where abortion is available on demand or granted under medical or psychological circumstances often easy to invoke.

The rest live in countries where abortion is illegal except in rare cases where the mother's life is at stake. Henshaw said these are primarily fundamentalist Islamic countries and developing nations in Africa and Latin America.

The Soviet Union reported the highest abortion rate with 181 procedures for every 1,000 women, a figure that indicates two abortions are performed for every live birth. The Netherlands had the lowest rate reported, with 5.6 abortions per 1,000 women every year.

Atlantis On Launch Pad

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) - The space huttle Atlantis was hauled to the loomed shuttle Challenger's launch pad early today for seven weeks of morale-building tests highlighted by astronaut emergency escape drills.

Delayed two days by poor weather.

Atlantia began the 4-mile trip to launch pad 39B under clear sky at 12:26 a.m. EDT, 25 minutes late because of minor hydraulic problems with the shuttle's squat crawler-transporter. Six hours later, the spaceship had reached the top of the concrete launch stand in the first shuttle "rollout" since Challenger was destroyed Jan. 28.

"Boy, that's beautifull" one NASA employee said, watching Atlantis rolling toward the pad. "I wish we were launching." Atlantis, minus its three liquid-fueled main engines, is scheduled to spend seven weeks at the launching stand for an extensive series of tests, one of which began as soon as NASA's mighty crawler-transporter started hauling the 3-million pound spaceship from the rocket assembly building. Sensitive gauges were mounted on the three joints between the four fuel segments that make up Atlantis's right-side solid-fuel booster to measure the forces experienced by the rocket during the

Scores of other tests are planned for Atlantis during its stay on the launch pad, including tests of a new weather protection system, a mock countdown with an astronaut crew aboard and two days of escape drills to practice rescue procedures in the event of a pre-launch

The test program is viewed as a morale builder for spaceport workers, who have not had a shuttle on a launch pad since Challenger's fatal flight.

Rivers Cresting At Record Levels

rains kept rising today in the Mississippi Valley, where towns became lakes, helicopters delivered medical supplies and National Guardsmen formed human chains to rescue children.

As many as 1,000 people fled their homes in eastern Missouri Wednesday, bringing to 7,000 the number of people displaced by recent floods in that state, and hundreds of others were evacuated in Illinois and Oklahoma.

The Mississippi River was expected to crest at 40 feet at St. Louis today, more than 10 feet above flood stage and the second-highest crest on record there. The Arkansas River was near crest at almost 13 feet over flood stage at Van Buren, Ark., today, and a crest of 11 feet over flood stage was expected at Dardanelle in the asternoon.

The Missouri River crested at 37.5 feet Tuesday In St. Charles, Mo., a record high for this century. The level fell to 36.7 feet Wednesday and was expected to fall further today.

West Alton, Mo., at the confluence of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, was inundated with high floodwaters when the last levees protecting the hamlet gave way Wednesday night. "It's up to something like 4

"It's coming in fast now." said Moffett Mayor Edith Hodgens, who was trapped in her home. I've never seen water like this. I just wished I had moved out." Plooding also caused some minor damage Wednesday across the border in Arkansas. Some 500 people fled their

FOUGHT THE LAW

A 23-year-old Fern Park man who allegedly fought with Casselberry police and ended up being jabbed in the stomach with a police nightstick was examined by paramedics before being booked into jail after allegedly trying to enter a bar after being told not to by police.

The incident occurred at the ABC Lounge, U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, at about 12:45 a.m. Wednesday.

The man was reportedly in a dispute with one policeman in the doorway of the bar when a second policeman approached and the man allegedly shoved one of the officers and a struggle began.

The man was subdued and charged with battery on a policeman and resisting arrest. Luis Alberto Fernandez of P.O. Box 377, was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

East Germany's Familiar Pattern

ntEast Germany might have done the West German government a favor by agreeing to reduce the flow of Third World refugees through East Berlin to the west. But the favor came with a backhanded slap. The East Germans bypassed the government of Chan-cellor Helmut Kohl and made the deal with Köhl's main political rival.

The East Germans and the Soviets have been cynically exploiting Third World refugees for years to put more pressure on the West.

erWest Germany's constitution requires that anyone seeking asylum for political reasons is to be allowed into the country, a provision designed to accommodate refugees from Elistern Europe. East Germany has been allowing hundreds of thousands of Third World refugees, whose motives for seeking a new home are usually more economic than political, to enter East Germany on the condition that they cross immediately into West Germany.

The result has been more refugees than West Germany can handle. Approximately 5 million "guest workers" already live in West Germany. About 1.5 million are turks. Adding to this have been refugees from the Mideast and Asia seeking political asylum who are crossing into the country from East Germany. So far this year, the West German government has received 72,000 requests for political asylum, most of them from Iran and Lebanon.

East Germany, in an agreement with Social Democratic Party leader Johannes Rau, said will begin requiring people using East Germany as a gateway to the West to obtain a West German visa before leaving their home country. This would let West German authorities determine whether the applicant qualified as a political refugee.

blOfficials representing Kohl also were meetmg with the East Germans to seek a way of solving the problem. East Germany's decision to deal with Rau instead of Kohl smells like an aftempt to help the Social Democrats in next year's election.

It shouldn't be difficult to see why the East Germans and Soviets might want Rau in the chancellor's office instead of Kohl. Rau has taken positions that aren't as pro-American as Kohl's. For example, Rau is a critic of the U.S. space-based missile defense system, the Strategic Defense Initiative. Kohl in contrast, has suggested that West Germany, by participating in the research of the system, could increase its influence over SDI strategy.

"By dealing with Kohl's political rival instead of with Kohl, the East Germans continued their pattern of cynically exploiting

Installing A Black Face No Instant Solution

Autumn's coat of many colors and football fever have combined to awaken my latent bookie instincts.

So I'll give anybody 100-1 odds on the following predictions:

Sending a black diplomatic face to South Africa won't lower apartheid's bars.

 Installing a black educator's face as head of the College Entrance Examination Board won't raise black SAT scores.

 Nominating a black conservative Re-publican face for governor won't increase black median family income. Psychologists have a phrase that explains

Face validity.

It refers to questions on a test that give the "appearance in the eyes of the person taking the test or of the persons interpreting the test scores as being a reasonable indicator of what the test is supposed to measure."

The operative word is "appearance." The items are frauds. They only measure air.

President Reagan's nomination of black diplomat Edward J. Perkins to be ambassador to South Africa gives the appearance of a substantive change in the administration's subliminal support of apartheid.

But a black face in political attire can't stop

South Africa's troops from brutalizing South Africans. Nor will Ambassador Perkins be able to convince P.W. Botha to grant one-person-one-vote democracy to all South Afri-

To Botha, Perkins is just a foreign Kaffir (nigger) to play diplomatic show and tell.

Former Spelman College president Donald M. Stewart will assume the helm at the College

Stewart's pivotal credential is his black face.

In the last few years, opposition to the Scholastic Aptitude Test has intensified across a widening spectrum of public opinion because of its discriminatory impact on minorities.

The College Board trustees assumed that the installation of a black face at the top would neutralize the strong opposition of minorities and those educational psychologists whose research has proven that grades in school are more accurate predictors of performance than

Some disconcerting statistics demonstrate the massive futility of Stewart's mission.

There is a close correlation between median family income and test scores. On the average, the higher the income, the higher the test score; the lower the income, the lower the test score. But according to the latest tables of scores, a white student whose median family income is below $6,000 will nonetheless score higher on the SAT than a black student whose median family income is over $50,000!

I'm passionately curtous. How is Donald Stewart's appointment as College Board president supposed to raise the upper-income black student's 407 verbal score to the low-income white student's 415 score? In Michigan, Republicans nominated a black conservative for governor: William Lucas.

A former FBI agent, Lucas is a lovely person and a wonderfully sincere con man. His political transvestism from Democrat to Republican is so recent the ink is barely dry on the register. Face validity rides again!

Maybe change is represented by the symbol-ism of a diplomatic black face sent to an explosive country, an educational black face hired to head a major educational organization and a political black face nominated as a Republican gubernatorial candidate for the nation's eighth largest state.

Philadelphians thought electing their first black man as mayor represented change.

It did. Wilson Goode promptly ordered a bomb dropped on a black neighborhood, bringing about the deaths of 11 blacks, including three little children.

Biological Clock On In Womb

BOSTON (UPI) - The biological clock apparently begins ticking in the womb, so parents and doctors should help newborns get synchronized with their new environment. researchers say.

"What we've been able to establish is that a biological clock is working very early, even in fetal life, and it appears it is important for this clock to know what time it is," said Dr. Steven Reppert, director of the Laboratory of Developmental Chronobiology at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Everyone has an area of the brain known as the circadian pacemaker located in the hypothalamus that keeps the body's biological processes synchronized with the environment, controlling such behavior as the sleep-wake cycle.

The biological clock has also been linked to certain diseases - such as uch asthma attacks that are more likely to occur at night. Some scientists person's birth and death may be influenced by the clock.

Researchers had known the blological clock existed in adults, but had thought the pacemaker was not present in fetuses or young babies because their sleep schedules and other indicators are usually eratic.

"It's really the mother's circadian system that receives the light-dark information, processes it into some sort of signal, which interacts with the fetal clock so it keeps the same time as the mother," he said. "We don't know what that signal is."

Regardless of how the clock is controlled in the womb, once the baby is born parents and doctors should take steps as early as possible to set the clock on a 24-hour cycle so it is synchronized when the clock begins controlling biological processes, he said.

Studies with other mammals have indicated that environmental factors such as light, sound and social interactions can have a strong influence on a newborn's biological clock, according to Dr. Norman A. Krasnegor, chief of the National Institute of Child dealth and Human Development.

Although new parents are often forced to wake up in the middle of the night to care for their babies, they should they should avoid turning on the light. In addition, they should play with the babies more during the day then at night. he said.

"They will be sending very subtle signals, but they may be very important," said Reppert.

Divided They Fall?

BONN. West Germany (NEA) -The Social Democrats are fielding a have even speculated that a proyen winner as their candidate to head the next West German government.

Johannes Rau is the premier of North Rhein-Westphalia, the country's most populous state with roughly a third of all voters. He was elected to the post twice, in 1980 and '85. The Socialists won majorities both times, which is unusual in coalition-inclined Germany.

He is a dynamic, charismatic personality who consistently rates high in public popularity polls. Yet Rau is given only an outside

- very remote - chance of leading the Socialists to victory in the Jan. 25 vote for a new Bundestag.

The problem is not Rau but his divided party. An assertive left wing that brought down a Socialist government four years ago is now shaping Socialist policies. These are essentially anti-military, anti-NATO, anti-nuclear and, some say, anti-American.

The package is not seen as appealing to the German middle. whose votes are needed to produce a majority or even a plurality. Consequently, the oddsmakers are saying the only realistic hope for Rau and the Socialists is for Chancellor Helmut Kohl's governing Christian Democrat/Free Democrat coalition to make a big mistake before Election Day. That's not a very promising prospect.

But you'd never know it from Rau's performance. He is campaigning as though he really means it. He says he is going after not only first place but an absolute Bundestag majority, something no German party has managed in the last quarter of a century of store and me

It is that, however, or nothing or so Rau says. He rejects the possibility of a coalition with the anti-establishment Greens. That rejection may not last, however, as some Greens appear to hope. Rau has been known to compromise in the past.

Notably he has compromised with those to his left in his own party. He is not associated with its more extreme positions or seen as unfriendly to the United States. But he says that, as chancellor, he would request withdrawal of U.S. missiles from Germany, pull out of cooperative research on space-based missile defense and close down nuclear power plants, which supply about 30 percent of the country's electrici-

Rau is counting on his personal popularity and reputation as a moderate to overcome any negative effects the party program might have on the vital middle of the German electorate.

It might work, but at this point he appears to be almost alone in thinking that is very probable.

For the Socialists and Rau, the election is not simply a matter of winning or losing.

If they lose but finish significantly better than in 1982, when the party pulled 38 percent of the total vote, Rau would probably stay on as party leader and be a moderating influence on the far left, improving Socialist prospects for the next election.

But if they do worse than in '82, he will almost certainly be out, and a new crop of leftist ideologues in

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes denies that any misinformation was passed on to the American press with the reports last August that the United States and Libya were on a collision course, but he says "no comment" when asked about misleading the foreign press. The White House seems to forget that when it comes to news it is one world.

And credibility is not a chameleon. In fact, it is the opposite. Those who are being misled are really the American people who read these reports.

The White House does not explain how it intends to separate fact from fiction if it persists in sacrificing its credibility for a political end. It cannot and will not work. It never has in a free society. Presidents have lost their jobs because of a credibility gap that caught up with them, namely Lyndon B. Johnson in the Vietnam War and Richard

Nixon in the Watergate scandal. During the Kennedy administration, Pentagon spokesman Arthur Sylvester said the government had the right to lie in crises threatening the nation. The outery of protest then was even louder than it is today.

Mild-Mannered Senator Challenges State

By Jack Anderson and

WASHINGTON — What's gotten into Sen. Richard Lugar lately? The mild-mannered Indiana Republican has long been considered the Mr. Peepers of the Senate, a diffident, hard-working spear carrier on a stage dominated by prima donnas. But first the Foreign Relations Committee chairman challenged President Reagan over South Africa. endorsing sanctions that the White House considers counterproductive. And now Lugar has taken on Secretary of State George Shultz over an important personnel matter within Foggy Bottom.

The normally even-tempered Lugar is furious at Shultz and the Foreign Service "old boy" network for what he views as a deliberate refusal to follow clear congressional instructions on the choice of a new inspector general for the State Department. In fact, he was so steamed that he made a veiled threat to sic the department's severest critic, Sen. Jesse Helms. R-N.C., on the stubborn diplomats.

What led Lugar to invoke the dreaded name of Foggy Bottom's trascible nemests? It all began with a 1983 General Accounting Office report requested by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas. The GAO pointedly criticized the State Department tradition of appointing a Foreign Service officer as inspector general.

"These personnel face personal and external impairments to their independence when they are assigned to investigate their own supervisors, other senior post officials and individuals with whom they live and socialize at foreign posts," the GAO report noted.

So that's what Congress decided to do — or tried to in legislation last year ordering the appointment of an "independent and effective" inspector general.

Unfortunately, the law did not state explicitly that the inspector general must not be a member of the Foreign Service. For professional diplomats accustomed to interpreting every word, phrase and clause of treaties and prolix official communiques, this was all the opening they needed. But first the wily bureaucrats in Pettifoggy Bottom decided to test congressional willpower by stailing. They claimed that, because of Gramm-Rudman cost-cutting requirements, the department didn't have the money to set up an independent, fully staffed inspector general. Congress gave them $12 million,

Their bluff called, the diplocrats complained that they couldn't use that much money. Congress remained adamant.

Finally convinced that the lawmakers were serious, the department nominated an inspector general for Senate approval. He was a Foreign Service officer.

So Congress passed new legisla-tion that stated explicitly: "No career member of the Foreign Service may be appointed inspector general of the Department of State."

Wife Of American Hostage Awaits Kidnappers' Reply

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The wife of an American hostage held by the Islamic Jihad awaited a reply today from her husband's captors on her offer to mediate with the U.S. administration.

Jane Sutherland, whose husband, Thomas Sutherland, has been held captive for 16 months by Moslem fundamentalists, sent a typewritten statement in Arabic to Western news agencies and Beirut newspapers Wednesday, saying she hoped her offer to mediate for the release of her husband and other hostages would be taken up by the

In the statement addressed to the Jihad, Mrs. Sutherland gave her telephone number and address at the American University of Beirut in Moslem west Beirut.

Some Soviet Troops Withdraw

MOSCOW (UPI) - The Soviet Union has announced in advance of the Iceland summit that it will withdraw six regiments of troops from Afghanistan in the second half of October.

The statement Wednesday night from the Ministry of Defense printed by the official Tass news agency came less than 72 hours before President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev face each other in Iceland.

Reagan plans to question the Soviet presence in Afghanistan at this weekend's summit, and Moscow's one-sentence announcement that it is withdrawing about 6,000 men appeared timed to diffuse American objections.

Nicaragua Says CIA Involved

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua, calling a cargo plane it shot down proof of direct CIA intervention in Central America, promised U.S. officials they could see a captured American survivor but set no date for a meeting.

Managua officials said Wednesday an American consul could meet with Eugene Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., who parachuted out of the failing aircraft Sunday and was captured Monday.

"They haven't said when, where or how soon" such a meeting can take place, U.S. Embassy spokesman Alberto Fernandez said Wednesday.

Nicaraguan officials said they were considering putting Hasenfus on trial.

Police Say Grandmother Paid For Custody Fight With Drug Sales

GREEN COVE SPRINGS (UPI) - A woman who police livatiege was trying 16"finance a custody battle over her grandchildren has been charged with the sale and delivery of $30,000 worth of marijuana.

Cecilia Kay Lee, 44, made news in July when police issued a six-state bulletin for her 3-year-old granddaughter after the child was abducted from a Lake City, Fia., flea market while in Lee's care.

The girl was found unharmed two days later, and a 19-year-old Louisiana woman, Lisa Rene Cromer, was arrested and charged with false imprisonment of the child. Police said Lee was selling marijuana to finance a custody battle over the girl and her 5-year-old brother.

Lee and Billy Lee Renshaw, 57, were arrested Monday after allegedly selling 20 pounds of marijuana to undercover officers. Trew said. Lee was being held in the Clay County Jail under $10,000 bond and Renshaw under $25,000 bond.

Lawyers Begin Anti-Crack Program

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - The Florida Bar Association believes its anti-crack cocaine media drive, aimed at teenagers, could inspire a national campaign, president Joseph Reiter says.

Reiter said Wednesday Bar associations from two other states have already expressed interest in following the Florida example. He said he also planned to present the program to the national Bar association for its consideration.

Nina Ledger Found In Archive

GAINESVILLE (UPI) - Historians say they have found an account of life aboard the Nina hidden in a 500-year-old Spanish archive, giving them the first detailed description of one of Columbus' ships.

Eugene Lyon, a researcher with the University of Florida's Institute for Early Contact Period Studies, said Wednesday his discovery provides an accurate picture of the navigator's favorite vessel and life aboard it. The finding comes in time for the 500th anniversary in 1992 of his first voyage to the New World.

Lyon, whose research will be described in the November issue of National Geographic magazine, came across the description of the Nina in a 15th century manuscript housed at the Archives of the Indies in Seville, Spain. The Libro de Armadas (Book of the Armadas) is a 440-page long accounting of ships that went to the New World in the 1490s.

Ms. Boefinger told deputies she had told the suspect she didn't want to see him. He allegedly broke open the door of her home, relocked it and walked through the home.

The report said Ms. Boefinger went into a bedroom and called the sheriff's department as the man went to the kitchen and there took a phone off the hook. He entered the bedroom where she was talking to the sheriff's department on the telephone. The man allegedly took the gun from his pocket and asked, "Who did you call?" Ms. Boefinger said she hadn't called anyone and the suspect allegedly said, "If you called police, you're dead."

...Girls

"Kids have the rights to do the things these kids did," said Ferris, who is general legal counsel for the Concerned Women of America. It was this women's group that spons red the girls and their mothers in their lawsuit.

"All the kids in Seminole County schools have won because they now have the right to express themselves freely," he went on. And he said all school districts around the country need to pay careful attention to this decision. "No longer will Christians be considered second-class citizens because of their religion."

Part of the problem which caused the schools to be "overly careful" in the past, he said, was that the school board's policy was general and vague. Fortunately, he said, it was rewritten by the Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes in 1984, giving kids broader rights to celebrate Christmas in traditional ways. Not only that, but courts have decided in favor of students' rights in recent years, making school chiefs less apprehensive about religious overtones of school activities.

What kinds of activities can citizens expect in county schools during this coming holiday season?

"There probably won't be many plays and pageants anymore," said schools spokeswoman Karen Coleman. She said the type of pageant many adults remember - with Joseph and Mary celebrating baby Jesus as the "savior of the world" — definitely won't be permitted. "But Just a play presented as a series of historical events probably would be all right," she said.

As for choral recitals with songs such as "Silent Night" and "Hallelujah Chrous," Mrs. Coleman said they would be all right as long as there was a balance of selections on other aspects of the Christmas parties in the classrooms will be okay. And students will be able to make art projects of any type they wish - even the nativity scene, Mrs. Coleman said. A typical assignment might be to "draw a scene of what the holiday season means to you."

In general, the students have a lot of freedom to communicate among themselves, the courts have decided. Children may put up signs saying. "Merry Christmas," and holiday posters of their choice. It is the school which cannot put up any sectarian signs or posters.

Teachers have to remember also, Mrs. Coleman said, that they cannot "endorse, emphasize or demean" any religious belief.

group), who insisted we ought to be paid $350 salary instead of having an expense account."

Myers said whole thing dates back to 1984 when he, Bill Mitchell, and June Lormann. who were all on the commission at the time, ate lunch at an Oviedo restaurant while attending a seminar at the University of Central Florida and put the $12 tab on the expense account.

Myers said, "Jim Ross threw a fit about it and said the $100 should be included in our salary. Rather than go through the hassle of keeping track of every time we got in our car to go check on some city business, we took a cut in salary. We now pay taxes on the $100.

Ms. Colby said she has been reviewing the minutes and ordinances at the time and it was a legitimate act on the part of the commission which was relying on what the city attorney told them was the correct way to handle it.

"They recognized there was a problem and tried to rectify it. I would have probably done it differently, but it was a judgment call by the attorney at the time." Ms. Colby said. "You can't go back and rectify it now and tell all the commissioners then and now they have to pay MCK. What they received bince then. I don't think they made a mistake."

Ms. Colby added,"If the citizens decide they don't like it and want it made clearer, it can be done, but I see no reason why they should be penalized for acting on good faith on the advise of their attorney. Given the circumstances, I wonder if this is a matter for contention. Longwood has got a whole lot of more things to consider and I would like to be able to work on them."

Gunter said, after checking the ordinance Tuesday morning, he found it dealt with the salary increase and the city finances. when ordinances were just supposed to cover one subject.

Gunter said there are approximately 80 Longwood residents in the group and they would have to have a consensus on whether or not to go to court again. He said he and some other members of the group spend many hours pouring over old minutes and ordinances to make sure the commissioners have complied with the city charter.

return for their public apology for having been in error and promise to do better in the future plus paying a dollar a piece to the city. The suit had sought to stop construction on the new police station asked damages of $5,000 plus costs and attorneys' fees against the defendents.

Gunter said the city attorney is supposed to bring the salary matter up in her report of Oct. 20. "They said they were going to do things by the charter and that's all I want them to do. Let's get it in the record."

Gunter is a candidate in the Dec. 2 city election for the District 5 seat now held by Mayor Larry Goldberg.

Over the past few months the commission has been besieged by court suits, editorials and advertisments in an Orlando newspaper and criticism, and threats of a recall petition.

Commissioner June Lormann said the suits had caused her mental anguish and she has been speaking to her attorney.

"I have decided to ignore the things that are being said," she added, "it is not only hurting the commission, but the city, too."

There are signs the criticism may be beginning to backfire. Nan Freeman, a longtime Longwood resident, received applause from the audience when she said she "We're behind you." She is one of several residents angered by all the criticism and ridicule, who have spoken out in defense of their city and its officials at recent meetings.

Ms. Freeman said."I've been hearing all this flack every time it gets election time. The same group comes forward and abuses the commission. I think you (the commissioners) are doing a fantastic job.

"They've made a mistake and admitted it, let's get on with it. As for the police station, it is a nice building and it should have been done a long time ago," she

She said she was tired of out-of-towners calling for election of developers to the city commission; the commissioners being blamed for location of the post office when they had nothing to do with it; and criticism of Commissioner June Lormann for staying over in a hotel during the recent Florida League of Cities convention in Orlando. Deputy Mayor Lormann, was the official voting delegate representing the city.

Ms. Freeman said she didn't blame Mrs. Lormann for getting a hotel room, what with the horrendous traffic and muggings. She cited the recent mugging of a Sanford school teacher when she left a faculty meeting at 4 p.m. in broad daylight.

School Odor Puzzling

School officials still don't know what's causing the nauscating odor coming from the airconditioning system at Hamilton Elementary School, 1501 E. 8th St. In Sanford.

School Principal Carem Gager said there's been a "mildew-like" smell coming from the unit that serves four classrooms in the two and a half year-old school. He said the Health Department has been all through the school, "even on the roof! looking for the cause of the odor with no success.

"We've turned off the air in those classrooms and opened the partitions to let the air in from the other rooms," Gager said. "It's comfortable and not too warm."

Maintenance workers are attempting to correct the problem today, Gager added.

Students have been complaining about allergic symptoms — some serious 'due to the odor.

Gager said the odor first was noticed "after the Labor Day rains" and appeared again after recent heavy rains.

OPEC Ministers Favor Extension Of Output Limit

GENEVA (UPI) - All 13 OPEC oil ministers are willing to extend their temporary output ceilings until the end of the year if the cartel cannot develop a system of permanent production quotas at its meeting, one minister said today.

OPEC's temporary ceiling of 16.8 million barrels a day for September and October have pushed prices from around $9 per barrel to $14 to $15. Ministers have said if extended to November and December, the ceiling could boost prices to $17 to $19 a barrel because of greater winter demand for oil in industrial nations. The temporary ceiling expires Oct. 31.

Mana Said Otaiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, told reporters all the ministers had met in plenary session for 2 1/2 hours and all agreed to extend the 16.8 million-barrel-per day limit if they cannot come up with a new quota system.

Pats Won't Find Cure For 'Paydirtaphobia' Against 'Noles

Lake Brantley's Patriots are suffering from an acute case of "Paydirtaphobia." That's fear of the end zone.

The Patriots have been shut out in two of their four losses this season and have scored just 19 points for the season. The Patriots, 0-4, will have something else to fear Friday when they go up against one of the toughest defenses in the area in Seminole High.

The Fighting Seminoles of coach Dave Mosure have a 1-3 record overall and 1-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference. But Mosure's defense has kept the Tribe in contention in all four games so far until, this past Friday, the offense finally came alive in a 10-7

With a 24-0 loss to Winter Park. Lake Brantley's losing streak hit five games. Brantley last won the ninth game of the 1985 season and that was an upset of Lake Howell. In his second season as head coach, Fred Almon has a 1-13 record, or a 0.77 winning percentage.

Magic Total: 11,357

Special to the Herald

The Orlando Magic exceeded the 11,000 season ticket plateau Wednesday, and appears on their way to the NBA. Magic President Pat Williams, who had set 10,000 season ticket reservations as a goal early on, said they won't stop now.

"We just keep on going and going," Williams said. "Oriando is making a big impact on the league, and a big impact on the nation.'

Orlando, which leads all other cities petitioning for the franchise, also leads almost all existing NBA teams in season ticket sales as well. The Orlando contingency has recieved 11,357 deposits for season tickets as of Wednesday afternoon.

"10,000 really was the 'Magic' number," Williams said. "It's a very significant number, putting us up there with the already established teams.

"We upped our goal to 12,000

Magic: 1 (800) 323-SEAT

last week, and we should eclipse that by the weekend." He said. "The way we're going, we'll pass the Portland Traliblazers in sales this week, and catch the Lakers by the weekend."

After surpassing the Lakers, the Magic will trail only Dallas, Houston, and Boston in season ticket sales. This, in a city, that is not even sure if it has a team and has not begun construction on an arena.

"The best thing we can do to enhance our chances of the franchise, is to just keep pouring on the season tickets," said Williams. "It's up to the general public, and the business community from here on out."

Williams also stressed the paint of support from the outlying suburbs, not just from the immediate Orlando vicinity. "This support is not just from downtown," Williams said, "We need the support from the areas like Sanford and Deltona, and we're making it as easy as possible to order tickets from those areas."

From Sanford, call 1-800-323-SEAT to place the $1,00 deposit for Magic season tickets. The check is refundable should the NBA award the franchise elsewhere, but Williams hopes that won't be necesary.

Williams, and his fellow 'Magicians,' are also getting the cooperation needed from the city officials. "The deal we have with the city is as soon as the franchise is granted to Orlando, we break ground on the new arena," Williams said. "The day the league says go, we will begin on the arena, with our season to begin in the fall of 1988."

The league officials will meet to make thier decision as to which city will recieve the rights to the next NBA expansion franchise on Oct. 22, leaving Orlando and the other cities competeing only 13 days as they ail scramble in a last minute effort to enhance thier chances.

Included in the hunt for the NBA with Orlando, are Charlotte, Minneapolia, Toronto, and Miami. Miami's charge is being led by Billy Cunningham. who retired as coach of the Philadelphia 76ers two season's ago. The same team Williams served as general manager. "It's a bigarre situation for me," Williams said. "Billy's a competitor, and so am I, but we've both been so busy we haven't had a chance to talk."

Brantley's 'Fabulous 4' Rides Upset Wave Past Winter Park

"Catch The Wave" is a pretty appropriate motto for the Lake Brantley High girls swim team. Wednesday night, the Lady Patriots caught the wave and rode it to their first-ever victory over traditional state power Winter Park.

Led by the fabulous foursome of Christy Bridgewater, Kristen Pauley, Manda Davis and Lisa Moon, Lake Brantley compiled 248 points Wednesday compared to 216 for Winter Park's Lady Wildcats in a five-way meet at Sharidan Aquatic Club in Longwood.

"This is the first time we've beaten Winter Park and the first time Winter Park's been beaten in a regular season meet in about four or five years," Lake Brantley coach Clay Parnell said. "This year, with the returning people and the new people we had coming in, I felt we could be as good if not better than Winter Park."

Behind the Lady Patriots and Lady Wildcats Wednesday were Bishop Moore at 117. Apopka at 101 and Seminole High at 83. In the boys division. Winter Park demolished the competition with 259 points compared to 150 for Apopka, 138 for Lake Brantley, 99 for Bishop Moore and 58 for Seminole.

The addition of Bridgewater, a transfer from Atlanta, turned an already strong team into a powerhouse. The national-caliber competitor took a pair of first places Wednesday including the 200 freestyle (1:57.7) and the 100 backstroke (1:03.1).

Bridgewater also anchored the 400 free relay which capped off the spectacular night with a first-place time of 3:43.3. Joining Bridgewater on the team were Moon, Davis and Pauley.

Brantley also got firsts from Davis in the 200 individual medley (2:16.0) and Pauley in the 100 fly (1:01.7). Moon picked up second places in the 50 free (25.3) and 100 free (56.0) while Pauley was second in the 100 breastsroke (1:12.6) and Meg Bonella was second in diving. just one point out of first place.

Brantley has a big week scheduled next week as it has a dual meet with Lake Howell on Tuesday, then competes in the prestigious NSPI Invitational Saturday at the Justus Aquatic Center in Orlando.

"The NSPI meet is probably faster than the state meet because you have 3A and 4A swimmers going against each other," Parnell said. "We'll see how we stack up at this meet."

One team of particular interest that is expected to be on hand is Boca Raton Spanish River, which has attracted some of the top swimmers in the nation because of a top-notch training facility in that area.

"From what I've heard, Spanish River probably can't be touched," Parnell said. "They've got some Olympians and some of the top swimmers in the nation. And all of them are transfers."

Although Seminole High didn't roll up the points Wednesday, two more school records were broken. Cissy Burgess broke her own record in the 200 IM as she finished fourth at 2:26.49 and Shannon Rivers broke her own record in the 100 back with a fifth-place time of 1:13.0. Burgess also finshed fourth in the fly at 1:06.3 and Kristy Keeling was fifth in the 50 free

"We were swimming against some very strong teams tonight," Seminole coach Donalyn Knight said, "That's good for us because it makes us swim a little bit sharper. I was real pleased with everyone's performance tonight."

.The top performers for Seminole in the boys meet Wednesday included Rusty Keeling who was third in diving. Kirby Swinehart took fourth in the 100 back (1:11.0) and Matt Chock was fifth in the 100 breaststroke (1:22.1).

Brantley's top performer was Russ Gleed who won the 100 fly at 57.3 and was third in the 200 free at 1:52.6. Scott Bridges claimed a pair of thirds including the 50 free (23.8) and 500 free (5:18.2).

Lyman Boys Bury Rams

After failing one point short the last time the two teams met, Lyman High's boys team came away with a convincing 107-64 victory over Lake Mary Wednesday in a dual meet at Lyman High.

"We wanted to establish that we are the team to beat in the SAC," Lyman coach Don Clark said. "And I think we did. But Lake Mary swam a different lineup tonight so I'm sure they'll be much tougher in the conference meet."

Lyman got a pair of firsts from Charlie Rose and Tom Mooney and also took top honors in both relays. Rose, who didn't swim the first time the teams met, claimed firsts in the 100 fly (54.7) and 200 IM (2:02.0) while Mooney won the 200 free (1:49.8) and 100 back (58.4). The 200 medley relay team of Mooney, Chuck Reinighaus, Nick Radkewich and Rose recorded a timeof 1:45.40 while Sam Rennard, Jim Bandy, David Bandy and John Jones teamed up for a winning time of 3:38.0 in the 400 free

Also taking firsts for the Greyhounds were Rennard in the 100 free (53.3), Radkewich in the 500 free (4:59.3), Reinighaus in the 100 breast (1:05.0) and Mike Licht in diving (116.2 points).

Lake Mary's only first place came in the 50 free where Jaime Bojanowski recorded a time of

In the girls meet Wednesday, Staal Bojanowski and Kelly Wise won two events each as Lake Mary claimed a 99-71 victory over the Lady Greyhounds.

Bojanowski won the 200 IM in 2:34.2 and the 100 back at 1:17.2 while Wise took the 100 fly (1:04.4) and 100 breaststroke (1:14.0). Other firsts for the Lady Rams included Less Dittmer in the 200 free (2:18.9), Jennifer Caputo in diving (107.8) and Alice Reese in the 500 free (6:22.7). The Lady Rams' team of Angle Odom. Reese, Bojanowski and Elisa Maher won the 200 medley relay with a time of 2:10.8.

Lyman got firsts from Dannica Jaffin in the 100 free (1:03.3) and Karen Long in the 50 free (26.9). The Lady Greyhounds also won the 400 free relay as the team of Jaffin, Long, Chrissie Metzdorf and Cindy Winslow finished with a time of 4:08.4.

Scott's 14 Ks Scuff Up Mets

Mike Scott doctors the baseball may never be proven. One thing. however, is certain: he definitely scuffed the New York Meta' reputation Wednesday night.

Scott, who this year became the fourth National Leaguer in history to fan 300 batters in a season, continued his blazing string of strikeouts against the NL East champions.

The split-finger specialist tied a playoff-game record with 14 strikeouts and surrendered just five hits and a walk in a 1-0, Game 1 victory that must rank with one of the best postsesson pitching performances in histo-

It may have been Scott's best game of the season, even if he did pitch a no-hitter to clinch the West Division.

"No, I think it was a bigger game than the no-hitter," said Scott, who tied John Candelaria's NL playoff-game, strikeout mark. "It wasn't a do-or-die for either team, but we didn't want to lose the homefield advantage."

Scott was so impressive that Houston Manager Hal Lanier forgot postseason performances don't count in consideration for regular-season awards.

"You have to look at Mike Scott and, if he doesn't win the Cy Young Award now, I don't know who will," Lanier said. 'He just pitched the best game you could against a good club."

The Mets complained throughout about strike calls from plate umpire Doug Harvey. 'There may have been a couple of marginal calls, but the umpire certainly didn't beat us," New York Manager Davey Johnson said.

But Gary Carter, who has accused Scott of scuffing, asked Harvey to examine a ball in the first inning. Harvey kept the ball in play, the Astrodome crowd of 44,131 cheered and Carter fanned for the first of three

'Harvey said before the game that Scott doesn't cheat," Carter said. "He once caught Don Sutton doing something with the

Rams Need Win Friday To Remain In SAC Run

By Chris Pieter Herald Sports Writer

Legend has it that those who look back will be smitten. Lake Mary's Rams will keep that in mind and will attempt to march forward Friday night when they take on Lake Howell's Silver Hawks in a big Beminole Athletic Conference encounter at Lake Howell High.

Lake Mary's chances at a second straight SAC title hinge heavily on Friday night's clash. The struggling Rams go into the game with a 1-2 record overall, 0-1 in the SAC and looking to snap a two-game losing streak.

Lake Howell takes a 3-1 overall record and 1-0 SAC mark into the contest. Howell trimmed Seminole two weeks ago and then the 'Noles knocked off Lake Mary last week. Seminole has a 1-3 record overall and is 1-1 in the SAC. "We need Lake Mary to beat Lake Howell," Seminole coach Dave Mosure said. "That will help us if Lake Mary and us end up tied."

The other factors are Oviedo. Lyman and Lake Brantley. Oviedo topped Brantley for a 1-0 SAC mark. Lyman, too, dropped Brantley for a 1-0 mark. The Patriots, who play Seminole Friday, are 0-2 and out of it.

The Hawks, meanwhile, had their three-game winning streak snapped last week by Apopka. The Dunkel Power Rankings have Lake Mary as a one-point favorite.

over," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "We're not looking back. We have seven more games to play and we're only looking forward to each one."

The Lake Mary-Lake Howell rivalry has been a good one in the past with Lake Howell winning the first two meetings and Lake Mary breaking through last season with a win that sparked the Rams to a 5-0 SAC record. Both the Hawks and Rams have solid football teams in 1986 and Friday's game promises to be another good one.

"I think it's going to be another very close game.' Nelson said. "It's another war for us. I think Lake Howell is a couple notches above Seminole offensively and one notch below them defensively."

A win can put Lake Howell in good position in the SAC but Nelson feels almost anyone could win the conference at this point.

"I don't think anyone's going to go unbeaten in the conference," Nelson said. "It might be a case where everybody starts knocking everybody else off and it comes down to the last week or two."

Nelson said the Rams' practices this week have been mediocre. "We might have some changes in the lineup but I want Those first three games are to take one more look at it."

Imperfect Plays: Angels Collapse In Sun, Shadows

respecting tradition.

The California Angels and Boston Red Sox committed blasphemy Wednesday with a display of poor defense and shaky baserunning that mocked the 30th anniversary of New York Yankees right-hander Don Larsen's perfect game over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1956 World Series.

Boston fared better, winning 9.2 behind determined lefthander Bruce Hurst to even the best-of-seven, American League Championship Series at a game apiece, and Red Sox Manager John McNamara was in a forgiving mood.

It's the nature of the game to make an occasional mistake," he said. "Nobody's infallible. Errors are going to be made because this is a game played by human beings. Nothing is a sure thing."

Still, there had been two axioms concerning the Angels believed to be unshakeable.

One has been promulgated by Manager Gene Mauch, who has said repeatedly that his team 'never beats itself."

The other is more of an opinion the Angels have about their pitching staff: if Mike Witt beats you, Kirk McCaskill will be twice as tough.

In McCaskill's defense, he did pitch well after six of the first seven batters hit the ball hard.

But the Angels' defense, ironically plagued by bright sunshine that is a trademark of California, stumbled throughout the game and had a record-tying three errors in an inning, the seventh, that led to three Red Sox runa.

Mauch, after saying McCaskill "pitched a better game than anybody I've seen in my 45 years (in baseball)," stalked out of a postgame news conference when asked about Bobby Grich's disastrous day.

Grich, who hid from reporters, committed an error, lost Dwight Evans's game-winning pop double in the sun and ruined California's scoring threat in the sixth when he was thrown out after rounding third too far. Grich then visibly berated followed with his pop-up that a third-base coach Moose Stubing.

Boston had taken a 2-0 lead after two innings, despite Marty Barrett's base-running blunder.

Wade Boggs led off the first by tripling off the left-center field wall and scored on Barrett's double to right. One out later, Rice grounded sharply to Schoffeld. Barrett broke for third and Schofield tagged him out.

Don't Take Astrodome For Granted

By Mike Rabun

United Press International HOUSTON - Here is a sober: ing thought designed to bring an person to a dead stop and causen one to say, "I'll be darned."

There has never been a World Series game played indoors.

And, discounting the feelings: of those involved in the ongoing; Mets-Astros tug-of-war, it is about time something was done, about that if only to point out the historical importance of one of the most imposing structures in our land.

During the ultimately borings. opening game of the American League playoff series, the voice coming out of the television extolled the virtues of 74-yearold Fenway Pare. And that was perfectly all right, since it is, indeed, a unique piece of Ameri-

"It is a national treasure," the voice said.

Those who make a living studying the past and telling everybody else what they think they have learned from it are usually of the opinion that the art and architecture left behindit says more about a people thair their recorded deeds.

If that is the case, Fenway Park should certainly be preserved as a window through! which we could reflect on Amer. ican life in the early 20th century.

No less, however, could be said ! about the stadium in which they !! played the opening two games of fa the National League series.

Even more should be said, in fact, because the edifice that rises so dramatically out of the flatlands of southwest Houston may well be looked upon in the future as one of the most telling? symbols of our culture as it raced toward the 21st century.

It is the fear here that the Astrodome is taken for granted. and it shouldn't be.

There are as many domed stadiums around the country these days as there are presidential candidates, so many that they have become an accepted feature on the landscape.

They are in or near New! Orleans, Seattle, Minneapolis, Detroit, Indianapolis, Syracusetti N.Y., and maybe a few other it spots by now. St. Petersburg, " Fla. says it wants one.

A generation has grown up! since the Astrodome was opened 12 in 1965. Dwight Gooden, who pitches in the stadium Wednesday for the Mets, was not yet !born when construction beganite People his age accept a domed stadium as just another building. But they are more than that !! — especially the first one.

It was truly a breathtaking // experience to walk into the?: Astrodome in that first year of its'.' existence and be swept away by the hugeness of it all. It took vision and boldness to bring's about its creation and it was not'" taken for granted in those days.

And with the passing of two: decades since its opening, there is can be laid at its doorstep two: areas for the historians to tackle? First of all, the Astrodome changed the face of baseball.

It is now a part of American lore that the roof of the Astrodome produced so much glare that the fly balls disap peared. Then, when the roof was painted to remove that problem, ! the sun could not shine through and the grass died.

That brought us artificial turf and all the differences which it. has made. No longer was the game a pastoral one. It became high speed.

More importantly, however, the Astrodome has a very real chance to serve as a symbol of s how future generations view this c

It is big, for one thing, and in the latter half of the 20th century bigger seems to be !! considered better. The stadium was built for creature comforts. and we are a people who no longer put up with discomforts. :0 Its starkness gives forth a mechanical feeling rather than have human one. This, after all, is an !age that has paid as much attention to machinery and, technology as it has to the human condition.

And it is not so far fetched to !! think that the Astrodome, if it is left standing after it outlives its usefulness, would be visited by curious onlookers from future"centuries. The Coliscum in Rome, after all, has attracted a' few tourists through the years.

third baseman Wade Boggs took the cutoff near the plate and relayed to shortstop Spike Owen. Owen caught Grich in a rundown and tagged him out.

The Angels lost an opportunity to tie the score and they never again threat-

Grich slammed his helmet in disgust after the play, obviously angered by Stubing's slow reaction.

"I was watching Moose and was running as hard as I can," Grich said. "It was a tough play for us. It seemed to take the momentum away from us. That's baseball. Sometimes, gambles work and, sometimes, you get burned."

The Green Monster Indirectly saved the Red Sox from possibly being down 2.0 in the series.

"I made a wrong decision," Stubing said of the crucial play. "I waited too long to commit. I was in good position to see what was going on, but I misjudged

Green Monster Lends Friendly Hand To Hurst how quickly Rice got to the ball. It was my fault all the way.

California left flelder Brian Downing said the Green Monster's presence has a definite effect on such plays. In most parks, a runner probably wouldn't think twice about scoring in that situation.

"Left field is 25 to 30 feet closer in this park," Downing said. "It's very difficult to score on base hit to left. (Scoring the run) can happen, but if the grass is wet and the ball is hit hard, it's very hard (to

Downing experienced a similar play in the second inning, when Boston had runners on first and second with one out. Marty Barrett singled sharply to left and Spike Owen had to stop at third. The next batter, Bill Buckner, grounded into an inning-ending double play and the Red Sox were taken out of a potential big inning with only one run.

That inning proved crucial when the Angels rebounded to tie the score 2-2. Had California not played sloppily later in the game, the four men Boston left on base in the first two innings could have made a difference.

"We could have capitalized a little more earlier." Boston's Dwight Evans said. "But we had more intensity than in the last four or five games."

Before the playoffs, the Red Sox had dropped a season-ending, four-game series to New York. Boston looked flat and people questioned whether they were ready for the Angels.

'We had difficulty in the last series with the Yankees and in last night's game getting back-to-back hits." Boston Manager John McNamara said. "We got back to some power in the late innings

LSU, Georgia To Miss Fallen Stars In Saturday's SEC Clash

United Press International Louisiana State and Georgia will find out which will miss a fallen star most Saturday night when they tangle in Baton Rouge for a one-fourth share of the Southeastern Conference lead.

With current co-leaders, No. 2 Alabama and Mississippi State, both playing non-conference games. No. 7 Auburn appears a shoo-in to join them after what is expected to be a breather for the Tigers at Vanderbilt; and so will the winner of the LSU-Georgia game.

No. 16 LSU's forte is supposed to be defense. but the Tigers lost the cornerstone of that defense when linebacker Michael Brooks had to undergo season-ending surgery for a knee injury suffered last Saturday at Florida. By coincidence, Georgia, which depends on its offense to save it from a young, questionable defense, lost its top runner when sophomore tailback Tim Worley also had season-ending knee Eric Hill, a 240-pound sophomore will be in Brooks' slot. Georgia has Lars Tate, a junior who took over as team rushing leader with an 88-yard sophomore Keith Henderson, a former starting fullback, replacing Worley. "We're not going to cancel the season because Michael Brooks got hurt," said LSU defensive coordinator Mike Archer. "We'll miss him. But injuries are a part of the game and we're not

In other SEC action Saturday, Florida figures to halt a four-game losing streak as host to Kent State, unbeaten Kentucky plays Ole Miss at Jackson, Mississippi State hosts Arkansas State, and Tennessee hosts Army. GATORS LOSE BELL UNTIL NOV. 1

Untested junior Rodney Brewer will be at quarterback for Florida Saturday while long-time starter Kerwin Bell rests his left knee.

Bell suffered a strained ligament in last Saturday's loss to LSU and is expected to be out from four to six weeks. Although doctors determined he did not need surgery, the Gators say they aren't counting on him prior to their Nov. I game against Auburn.

Bell was hoping to return sooner. "I don't have much swelling in my leg, not much soreness," said Bell. "I feel like I could go this Saturday against Kent State. I don't think they'll let me do that, but I'm pretty sure I'll be ready the following

Giants Acquire Anderson

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — The New York Giants Wednesday acquired running back Ottis Anderson, the 11th leading rusher in NFL history. from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for two 1987 draft choices.

Anderson, 29, has gained more yards against the Giants than any other NFL club since coming into the league in 1979 as a first-round draft choice out of Miami (Fla.). In 12 games against New York, Anderson has run for 1.123 yards - including 55 yards on 18 carries in the Giants' 13-6 victory over St. Louis last Sunday. Anderson ran for over 100 yards five times against the Giants.

Anderson, 6-foot-2 and 225 pounds, led St. Louis in rushing his first six seasons before being slowed by a foot injury last year. Anderson set a club record with 1.605 yards as a rookie in 1979. and set an NFL record for rookies with nine 100-yard games.

Anderson is also a talented receiver who caught 51 passes in 1981, 54 in 1983 and 70 in Anderson's 7,999 career yards on 1,859 carries has him within 82 yards of Larry Csonka, the NFL's 10th leading career rusher.

Anderson said he was called off the practice field Wednesday by St. Louis Director of Pro Personnel Larry Wilson and told of the trade.

"Around here, anything is possible, you just never know what will happen." Anderson said. "We had just finished up with the offensive period and I was going for a water break. Larry walked over and said to come in, I've just been traded. I thought maybe it was a joke, but when Larry Wilson comes by to talk to you, basically there's no jokes involved."

This season Anderson gained 156 yards on 51 carries. His foot injury and the emergence of running back Stump Mitchell made him expendable. The Giants are expected to shift Anderson to fullback, where he will play opposite halfback Joe

Electrophoresis Distinguishes Between Sunshine, Striped

If you occasionally find it difficult to tell the difference between a sunshine bass and a striped bass, you are not alone. Even biologists sometimes find it difficult to tell these fish apart until they began using a technique known as electrophoresis.

Bob Wattendorf, assistant director to the Division of Fisheries with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, is an expert in the use of this new identification method. He explained that electrophoresis involves creating an electrical field in which fish tissue proteins migrate, and then observing the patterns that certain proteins make when they are subsequently stained.

The banding patterns, when compared to known information for a particular species of fish, help indicate the type of fish.

Wattendorf, who previously headed the Game and Fresh WAter Fish Commission's fish genetics study, went on to say that isoelectricfocusing, a refined type of electrophoresis, has demonstrated its value over the last year and a half in Florida.

Sunshine bass are a man-made hybrid cross between the white and striped bass. Sunshine bass usually resemble their parents, but in certain fish the distinctions are not clear enough for an easy identification.

In one case, a Florida angler caught what he thought to be a state record sunshine base and applied for recognition through the Commission's record program. Biologists could not visually identify the fish as a sunshine bass, so the isoelectric technique was used to verify the fish as a sunshine bass. That fish is still recognized as the state record.

In another case, a fisheries biologist from Georgia sent to the commission lab in Florida what he thought to be a record sunshine bass. The isoelectric test determined the fish to be a striped bass instead of a sunshine base.

Electrophoresis is also being applied to law enforcement. If a game warden has reason to believe that certain fillets of fish are being sold illegally. electrophoresis could be use to determine the species of fish.

Each species of fish tissue, when subjected to electrophoresis, exhibits its own particular banding pattern of stained proteins. The game warden simply has to compare the banding pattern on the suspect fillets to those patterns aiready established for all species of Florida fish in order to make the proper identification.

This new technology has unlimited potential for the identification of fish species and for law enforcement. It is amazing to see that new scientific advances have even affected the Florida Game and Fresh Water Game Commission.

Gaines Hooks 7-pound Bass For 450 Bucks

The monthly Osteen Bridge Bass Tournament was held last Sunday. Al Hamelin and Roy Hines won first place with 25 pounds of bass. Frank Sloan and Mike Staley came in second place with 18 pounds, 5 ounces. Jerry and Randy Malloy teamed up to catch 14 pounds, 14 ounces of bass for third place. Bobby Coppen and David Gaines came in fourth place with 14 pounds. David Gaines caught the big bass of the tournament — a 7-pounder worth $450! — Jim Shupe not going to call it on Scott." Glenn Davis provided the Astros with the game's only run in the second inning when he pounded a 1-0 pitch from Dwight Gooden into the center-field scats. -

Davis also took a run away from the Mets. With Darryl Strawberry on second in the ninth, the first baseman dove into the hole to spear Mookie Wilson's grounder. He tossed to Scott covering first for the out and the former Met fanned Ray

Knight to end the game. "I'm just as proud of the fielding play as the homer," Davis said. "It saved a run and was just as important."

The Mets will have an opportunity to square the best-ofseven series tonight when lefthander Bob Ojeda faces Nolan

"This has been a career season for me and the organization." said Ojeda, who was 18-5. "We're going to finish the job starting tomorrow. After Doc (Gooden) and Scott, my junk will be quite different."

The Mets hope so. They won 108 games — the most in the NL since 1909 - and led the league in batting, but were punchless Wednesday night. Besides Strawberry, they managed to get only two runners in scoring position.

In the sixth, Len Dykstra stole second when Keith Hernandez struck out on a disputed called strike. But Carter looked at another strike three to end the inning. Left fielder Jose Cruz had hauled in Wally Backman's long fly with his back to the wall for the inning's first out.

And in the eighth, pinch hitter Danny Heep and Dykstra singled with one out, but Scott struck out Backman and Hernandez.

"He reached back for something extra," Hernandez said. "He got something late in the game and that is the sign of a great pitcher. I was ready for him, because it was a great at-bat.

Popular Boy's Girlfriend Won't Let Him Go To Bed

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a handsome, popular, teen-age son who has girls calling him at all hours. He has to catch, the 6:45 a.m. shoool bus as he commutes to a private school, so he tries to get to bed by 9:30 on school nights, but girls call him at 10, 10:30 and 11 p.m. This disturbs everyone in the house. At first, the calls were great for his ego, but it's a source of irritation now. He doesn't want to hurt their feelings, but he really wishes they wouldn't call him. He says some of them keep him on the phone for 30 and 40 minutes about something they could have said in 10 minutes.

Don't suggest that we turn down the bell on the phone, or take the phone off the hook, because my mother-in-law is elderly and in poor health, and if she needs to reach us, our line must be open for her. This is really an open letter to girls who call boys after 9 p.m. Please print this, Abby. I'm sure other mothers have this problem. Just

MASSACHUSETTS MOM

P.S. Girls, please don't call a boy in the middle of the Ceitics. Red Sox and/or Patriots game wait until the game is over, and he will love you for your thoughtfulness.

DEAR MOM: Here's your letter, but don't expect miracles. Encourage your son to communicate his "irritation" to the girls who call him at all hours and disturb the family. He could tell those who babble too long that the line must be kept open in case his grandmother tries to reach the house - it's true and not to call after 9 p.m.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about Lassie? You published a letter from Joan Scott who had been a writer on the Lassie shows for many years. She said that there were several television viewing habits are sion, is the practice of jumping from channel to channel instead Flipping, in the case of televi- of staying with a single program.

TV Viewer's High Tech Fast Lane: Zip, Zap, Flip And Flop

The flipper phenomenon is catching on faster than "The Cosby

A study of 1,881 "carefully selected" people, just released by J. Walter Thompson U.S.A., the giant advertising agency, says flipping is a typical viewing pattern of 34 percent of all TV watchers. The figure climbs to 51 percent for viewers aged 18 to

That means there are currently 58 million frequent flippers flicking the TV dial.

"Today, one out of every three viewers is an active flipper." said Bert Metter, chairman and chief executive officer of J. Walter Thompson, the executive who directed the study.

"I thought it would wear off. but weeks went by and I was still flipping," Metter said.

"Millions of people are watching TV with their thumbs resting on remote control units. Attention spans are short and viewing choices are expanding. At the first sign of boredom flip! - people do laps around the dial.

"All of this has important implications for the future of television advertising." Metter

The flipping phenomenon takes on great importance when you consider that J. Walter Thompson spends $800 million a year on television advertising - trying to deliver its message to a particular demographic.

According to the study, men flip more than women and the young are the most restless. And a flipper will flip no matter what is on. This is because flippers watch television, while nonflippers watch programs. The study didn't chronicle the divorce rate among mixed flipper and non-flipper - marriages, but it's an easy bet that when a non-flipper is intent on "Dailas" and a flipper keeps flipping to "Miami Vice," it's only a matter of fast forward to "Divorce Court." Which brings up the difference between flipping and zapping or zipping. Some people change the channel at the first sign of a commercial. This is zapping. When you play back a recorded movie on the

With the growth of flipping. zipping and zapping, advertisers are becoming increasingly concerned that their commercials, which cost them up to $380,000 for a 30-second spot on "The Cosby Show," are not being seen

One reason for the fast flip is the dizzying array of channel choices available to the average viewer. Cable hookups are increasing and even without cable the addition of independent stations in many markets is giving the viewer more choices. In Metter stumbled on the phe- 1964, people had an average of six channels to choose from. In 1985. It was 20.

Kalb Resigns Over Disinformation Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Bernard Kalb resigned Wednesday as an assistant secretary of state and the chief spokesman for George Shultz in protest of the government's disinformation program directed at Libyan leader Moammar Gadhasi. Kalb's resignation was announced by Charles Redman, his deputy who becomes acting spokesman.

Kalb said when he accepted the post Shultz told him the guidelines involved "no lies, no misleading to be as forthcoming as possible within security constraints."

"Now a controversy has swirled up about credibility," Kalb told reporters. "You face a choice ... whether to be absorbed in the ranks of silence, or voice a modest dissent."

Kalb said he was resigning because he was "worried about faith in America ... American credibility ... and on a much lower level, my own credibility."

"I do not want my own credibility to be caught up, to be subsumed, by this controversy, so I've taken the step of stepping down," he said.

"I am making no accusations," he said. "I have nothing to offer to you as to whether there was such a program."

Kalb said he had never been asked to lie on behalf of the administration.

The Washington Post revealed Thursday that President Reagan approved a plan, drawn up by national security adviser John Poindexter, to generate a series of "real and illusionary events" to keep Gadhafi nervous about his personal and political stability.

A short time after the August 14 meeting in which Reagan approved the plan, a story appeared in The Wall Street Journal reporting that the United States and Libya were on a "collision course" and that the administration was ready to respond

At the time, White House spokesman Larry Speakes called the story unauthorized but "authoritative" - even though intelligence officials in the administration later said there was no evidence that Gadhass was about to rekindle

A former reporter with NBC, CBS and The New York Times, Kalb was appointed to the spokesman's position in November 1984 and confirmed by the Senate in January

Shultz, in a statement on the resignation, expressed his appreciation for Kalb's service, but did not give any explanation for the decision and did not name any successor.

Kalb's resignation came the day before Shultz was to leave for Iceland to serve as a chief aide to President Reagan at his weekend meetings with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The last time a leading administration spokesman resigned in a similar protest was more than a decade ago.

White House press secretary Gerald ter Horst, the first appointee of the Ford administration, resigned Sept. 8, 1974, "as a matter of conscience" over President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon following the Watergate scandal.

Ford said, "good people will differ with me on this very difficult decision."

TerHorst later said it would have been "a little awkward" for him to continue as White House press secretary to defend an absolute pardon of Nixon "but only a conditional pardon for young men who had fled to Canada to escape Vietnam as an act of conscience."

Government: Overall Crime Lowest In 13 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) - There were 700,000 fewer crimes committed during 1985, the Justice Department said Wednesday, with most of the drop in violent crimes and theft putting it at the lowest level in 13 years.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics, releasing its national crime survey for 1985, said the estimated 34.9 million crimes committed in 1985 was also 16 percent below the 41.5 million mark set in the peak year of 1981.

During 1985, the Justice Department agency said the robbery rate dropped 11 percent, about 32 percent below the peak in 1981. Personal crimes crimes of violence and crimes of theft declined 4 percent in 1985, resulting in about half a million fewer crimes than in 1984, the bureau said.

The victimization rate for robbery continued downward, the study said, with the 1985 rate - 5.1 attacks per 1,000 people - the lowest in the bureau's 13-year history.

Rapes were also down to 0.7 victimizations per 1,000 women, it

There was no measurable difference but the rate for aggravated assault with injury dropped 17 percent from 3.2 to had a motor vehicle stolen. 2.6 attacks per 1,000 people.

Personal theft was down 3 percent The bureau said the rates of most other crimes, including burglary, car thest and household larceny, stayed about the same. But the overall rate for those household crimes for 1985 - 174 crimes per 1.000 households - was lower than for any year between 1973 and 1983.

An estimated 63 of every 1,000 reported in the overall rate for assault, homes nationwide were burglarized.

Since 1973, when it first began keeping figures, the bureau said:

 Crimes of violence have dropped 8 percent:

· Robbery and motor vehicle theft are down 25 percent;

 Aggravated assault dropped 18 percent; Personal theft is down 24 percent:

Burglary dropped 32 percent, with household larceny down 9 percent. The bureau said that its crime survey, based on interviews nationwide of about 100,000 people aged 12 or older, is able to measure both crime reported to police and unreported crime.

Bureau Director Steven Schlesinger noted, "The survey has consistently shown that almost two-thirds of all personal and household crimes and about one-half of all violent crimes are not reported."

In 1985, the study said, 36 percent of all the national survey crimes were reported to the police. Only about half of all violent crimes, 48 percent, were reported to authorities.

Mayors and commissioners from around Seminole County listen to Tom Roll, schools drug resource person, at meeting Tuesday.

Seminole Officials Discuss Ways To Help Drug, Alcohol Abusers

By Kathy Tyrity Herald Staff Writer

Officials and lawmen of Seminole County and its cities gathered with drug counselors Tuesday in Winter Springs to define pathways that will get city workers and residents off drugs and alcohol and back doing a solid job.

Leading the four-hour symposium at Grove Counseling Center, Tom Roll, the school board drug resource person, told the gathering the real problem in Seminole County lies with the adults and workers. The school system, he said, is "in pretty good shape." But employers, such as city and county government, need to get on the band wagon.

"It's really simple," Roll said, "You as employers need a few things. You need policies saying there will be help available for the drug-abusing employee. You need to give your supervisors training on the program. You need to inform the employees. And, perhaps most importantly, you need to inform their families, because that's where most of the referrals will come from. That's all there is to it."

He was talking about the need for Employee Assistance Programs, and he said they could be implemented without much of a budget. The main thing to do, he said, is check group insurance policies to make sure they cover treatment for drug abuse, preferably outside of a

One suggestion he gave was for all the governments in Seminole County to get their 1.200 employees together and cover them under a "consortium agreement." Together, they could "buy" an Employee Assistance Program such as the school board has. The consortium would pay $15 to $50 per year per employee. It costs the school board $65,000 a year for this program.

Or, the municipalities could just adopt policies and procedures for employee assistance and make referrals to private practice. "You don't need money now," Roll said. "But you do need a commitment and expertise."

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith suggested the cities simply "go on record setting a policy of helpfulness" and saying that treatment will be sought, instead of using a punitive approach. Another thing to check, Roll said, was employee handbooks to make sure illicit drugs and alcohol are prohibited on the job. He criticized example-setting "commissioners" who may be seen out having a cocktail at lunch. "They're doing something you all can't do, aren't they?" he said.

Roll said two of his own youngsters had drug-abuse problems, so he knows the situation first-hand. His children were both treated at a free-standing center for drug abuse, and at that time the school board didn't carry insurance for that treatment.

"It takes a lot of work, and there ain't no quick fix," he said.

Each city mayor has set up a Drug Resource Team to continue dialogue about drug abuse and establish programs in the community. They will be participating in community railies. parades, and from Oct. 20 to 24 a "Crack Attack" with the Mid Florida Crime Commission.

On Nov. 17, a cocaine expert is coming to Sanford with the Seminole Chemical Awareness Network. And in the schools this week, it is Drug Awareness Week, and many activities are being held.

Mayor Smith said after the meeting she had just addressed a 6th grade class, and when she asked how many had ever drank beer, "just about every hand in the class went up." She said she was stunned and will do whatever she can to help Sanford fight drug and alcohol

A survey of Seminole County students revealed the top-used substances in grades 6 -12 are: tobacco, alcohol, marijuana and "speed."

The survey said the most valuable sources of drug information to a student would be (from the most valuable to the least): a former drug user; a drug counselor, a parent or medical doctor, and least of all, a police officer.

"It's a societal problem," said Roll. "We can't solve it alone. But together we can make a

Fire Station Site Targeted, Sanford Pondering Purchase

Herald Staff Writer A 4.6 acre site just west of Sanford has been targeted as likely location for the city's third fire station, and may also be used for expansion of other municipal services.

Land needed for the station is approximately one acre, so if purchased in its entirety, the site could either serve the city as equity or or be put to one of several uses, according to statements Sanford's engineering director, Bill Simmons, made to city commissioners during a work session Monday.

Commissioners were receptive to Simmons proposal that the entire site be appraised by the city as prelude to purchase discussions. Commissioners also indicated further discussion of the additional land's uses would be held after the appraisal in complete.

According to Simmons, the appraisal should be complete within a month.

He told commissioners the parcel's owner is asking $100,000 for the site, and has also agreed to annex it into the city if a mutually agreeable found guilty of sexually on charges of sexual battery to purchase price was reached.

While the owner's asking price breaks down to $21,620 an acre. the fire station needs 150 of the 210 feet of "key" Upsala road frontage the parcel covers, and because of this the city could be looking at a purchase price of $60,000 for just this one acre. Simmons said.

Simmons said for this reason and others, he recommends the iun parcei de purchased.

He cited the parcel's 650 feet of frontage along the Seaboard Coast Line right of way as increasing in value if that route is ultimately developed by the county as a roadway.

He also said land not needed for the fire station could be developed into a fire department training center, a police substation and a park and recreation facility or both. Also, the city needs some land west of the city for an elevated water storage tank, Simmons said.

Another option would be to hold onto the extra land for re-sale at a profit, according to Simmons.

The city has budgeted $25,000 to acquire a site in that area for a fire station to address the burgeoning development. If the whole parcel is bought several funding mechanisms could be considered to pay whatever balance is agreed to during purchase negotiations, Simmons said after the meeting.

$25,000 as down payment and financing the rest of the payment, "borrowing" from another budget fund, or using budget reserves, he said.

When contacted by the Evening Herald, Sanford Fire Chief Tom Hickson endorsed the site and said he has targeted construction of the new station to begin in about a year and be complete six months later.

Hickson said the new station would enable rescue services to reach western Sanford in about two minutes, which is on a par with response time to all other areas of the city. Right now, response time from the city's 1303 S. French Ave. headquarters to western Sanford is about six minutes, Hickson said.

Described another way, the new station will represent the completion of a one-and-a half

Possibilities are using the mile optimum distance between the city's service areas and fire station locations, Hickson said.

> In addition to the French Avenue headquarters, the fire department has a station in southern Sanford, at 3775 U.S. Highway 17-92. Both fire stations are manned 24 hours a

> The two stations are operating at full strength with a total of 39 men, and three new employees are slated for hiring this year, to become familiarized with Sanford firefighting operations in anticipation of their serving at the new station when construc> tion is complete, Hickson said. Also budgeted this year for the department's western station is a $35,000 down payment for a new fire truck that will be equipped with rescue apparatus.

Iranian Students Attempt To Storm W. German Embassy

By United Press International

Several hundred fundamentalist Iranian students armed with axes, saws and other tools tried to storm the West German Embassy in Tehran on Wednesday to protest the closure of an Iranian booth at a book fair in Frankfurt.

The crowd of several hundred. yelling and chanting slogans. used axes and other instruments to try to break down the steel gate of the embassy at Ferdowsi Avenue in central Tehran, said sources reached by telephone from Athens, Greece.

A group of the fundamentalists then clambered over the gates and attacked the doors, using saws and pliers to try to enter the building.

The Tehran sources, who asked not to be named, said the protesters who entered the compound stayed until police arrived and asked them to leave. Other reports from the Iranian capital said the embassy security staff used tear gas to keep the group from smashing the door down.

iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency identified the attackers as "Hezbollah (Party of God) students of the Tehran University."

The spokesman said Ambassador Horst Freitag in Tehran protested the incident and the Iranian Foreign Ministry expressed regrets. Sources in Tehran said the embassy was closed to business indefinitely after the incident.

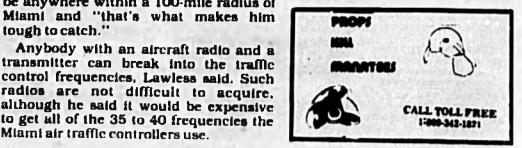

The embassy is the third foreign mission in Tehran to be attacked by Moslem fundamentalists since 1979, when the Shah was overthrown and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini established an Islamic republic.

In November 1979, a group of fundamentalists in Tehran stormed over the gates of the U.S. Embassy and took 66 cmbassy staff members hostage to protest a U.S. decision to allow the deposed Shah to enter the United States for medical treatment. The incident touched off a Canada closed its mission and withdrew the staff after its embassy gave refuge to two U.S. Embassy employees who narrowly escaped being taken hostage and later helped them leave Iran with Canadian passports.

Underwater Hotel Expects To Stay Afloat

KEY LARGO (UPI) - An already book-full converted marine laboratory will open 30 feet below the surface in a lagoon off Key Largo next month as the world's first underwater hotel, the developers said

Developers Gary Gerberg, Ian Koblick and Neil Monney plan to open Jules' Undersea Lodge Nov. 15. The lodge is named after Jules Verne, the author of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

Gerberg, 42, said the lodge is designed primarily for divers and can house three couples. It will be fully equipped with bathrooms, a kitchen and an entertalament

There will be two 8-by-12 foot private suites and a common living area where a third couple can sleep. An above-water headquarters provides fresh air for the facility and is always available for assistance.

Cooking will be done by microwave, Gerberg said, and television and other entertainment will be available.

Gerberg said insurance for the facility was tough to get, but eventually was obtained. There will be no smoking in the hotel.

Bandit Air Controller Hurls Obscenities At Pilots

大学をはないというというとは、大学の大学を大学を大学を大学を大学を大学のなどのはないないないないないないないないないというというというというというというというと

MIAMI (UPI) - Federal aviation officials said a radio operator with a foul mouth has been transmitting on air traffic control frequencies and sometimes mimics flight controllers, giving phony instructions to pilots.

In the fifth of similar incidents Wednesday, a helicopter pilot taking off from Palm Beach International Airport heard a string of obscenities from a phony flight controller.

Four such incidents have occurred in the Miami area.

"We're not sure that the one today is the same as the others," Jack Barker, spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said Wednesday.

"The (regular) flight controller picked it up right away and there was no problem," he said. "We have notified all our employees and air operators about the occurrences and everyone is on the

The bogus operator who tells pilots, "marvelous, simply marvelous" over air traffic control frequencies sometimes mimics a controller and gives out false flight instructions, FAA officials said.

The FBI, FAA. Federal, Communications Commission and "other agencies" are attempting to track down and arrest the unauthorized broadcaster, Barker said. The transmissions are broadcast on two frequencies used by controllers at Miami International Airport to direct pilots on their approach into the airport. They began Sept. 25, Barker said.

"It's a real serious thing," said Bob Lawless, a manager at the Miami air traffic control tower. "Sometimes he'll mimic a control instruction, but it's not very realistic. He's throwing around a lot of obscenities." The transmissions, which began Sept.

25, are being made on two frequencies controllers use to tell pilots how to approach Miami International Airport. Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said Tuesday one of the transmissions last week caused a jetliner pilot to make a premature descent as he approached the But Barker said controllers corrected the flight change immediately and there was no danger.

"There have been no dangerous incldents," Barker said, "but the potential for danger is there. Most of it is just obscene and vulgar. He has a bizarre sense of humor, I guess."

He has given directions to air traffic that are immediately countermanded by controllers. Pilots in the area are aware of it." Barker said. "There's no compromise to airline safety. It's more an annoyance than a safety problem."

Lawless said pilots have little difficulty distinguishing real air traffic control instructions from the phony broadcasts. "We have our own language in air traffic control," Lawless said. "It's hard to mimic that language. Most of the times he's trying to be funny. He'll say, 'Marvelous, simply marvelous.' Lawless said the radio operator could be anywhere within a 100-mile radius of tough to catch." Anybody with an aircraft radio and a transmitter can break into the traffic control frequencies, Lawless said. Such radios are not difficult to acquire. although he said it would be expensive to get all of the 35 to 40 frequencies the Miami air traffic controllers use.
