Preston sentenced to die again

SANFORD — Florida governors have signed four death warrants for Robert Preston. And a judge has just resented him to the electric chair for the third time.

But the appeal process started all over again Thursday.

"The question is: Will I live to see justice done in this case?" said Fred Roberts, who handled the 1978 investigation of the murder and mutilation of a convenience store clerk.

Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. ruled Wednesday that Preston must die for the slaying of Earline Walker. Davis followed the recommendation of a jury that voted last month for the death penalty.

Suber's lawsuit dismissed

SANFORD — Seminole Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor dismissed a lawsuit Thursday filed by Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber against five local officials for decisions they made to allow tax-saving agricultural classifications because the case was filed in court past a deadline.

Suber said this morning he will pursue an appeal of McGregor's decision.

Suber sued members of the Property Appraisal Adjustment Board in February, saying they were wrong to allow agricultural classifications on several properties he said were not being used for farming.

The PAAB was comprised of Seminole County Commissioners Jennifer Kelley, Pat Warren and Fred Streetman and school board members Joe Williams and Larry Betsinger.

State economic view

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Florida's economy is rebounding slowly from the recession that has gripped the nation, according to an economic forecast from the University of Florida.

"It's pretty grim out there. The slowness of economic recovery is what really stands out," said Carol Taylor West, director of forecasting for the university's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

By the end of 1993, the number of construction and durable manufacturing jobs will be lower than in late 1988 or early 1989, Ms. West predicted in a news release Thursday.

U.S. economic outlook

Associated Press

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — Top U.S. business leaders, struggling to cope with their first recession in eight years, hope the slump will end soon but they are generally pessimistic about the economy's growth potential once the recovery begins.

The heads of such corporate giants as American Telephone & Telegraph and General Electric said they agreed with the Bush administration's assessment that the economy will begin growing again around midyear.

County purchases Lake Mary land

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The county has agreed to pay nearly $1 million for nine parcels on Lake Mary Boulevard, including two businesses.

The property is being taken as part of Seminole County's $6.7 million widening of the road between Markham Woods Road and Country Club Road. Some of the settlements do not include attorneys and other expenses the county must pay to acquire the properties.

"There is substantial risk that it could have cost more, especially when you consider the costs that could have been incurred," said assistant county attorney, Lonnie Groot. "By the time you pay their attorneys, appraisers, planners and everything else, before you know it, you've paid a lot of money."

State law requires governments to pay "all reasonable expenses" of property owners in condemnations. The dentist offices and property of Drs. Bobby M. Sharp and John W. Canal at 515 W. Lake Mary Blvd. will be bought for $293,000, slightly less than the $308,450 cost the county estimated for the land and building replacement.

Seminole County commissioners also agreed to pay Thomas and Gail Rosser $335,000 for their property

Crooms would like to fill library, audio visual center

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Crooms School of Choice, 2200 W. 13th St. in Sanford, has been trying to make do with some rather limited resources in their media center for some time now.

Crooms opened its doors five years ago and for two years had no books or audio visual resources available for students.

Three years ago a part time resource teacher began trying to organize a few items into a library and Gail Boudreaux, a full time media specialist, was hired at the start of this school year.

Boudreaux said that the library has about 1,500 books in its current inventory and about 260 film strips, video tapes and such.

"We're quite limited in what we can offer," she said. "The funding just isn't there to do much about it either."

She noted that the state recommends that a properly equipped school media center have approximately 40 books per student.

"We have about seven-and-a-half books per student," she said.

Crooms was helped out this morning by a donation of 10 books, valued at $100, from the Seminole County Association of Media Specialists.

"We knew that they are really struggling to provide a good media center for their students," said Claire Robinson, a media specialist at Idyllwilde Elementary School, who represents the county group. "We thought this was a good project."

Boudreaux said that, because of tight budget restrictions, she is only employed part time.

"We try to do as much as we can with the limited resources and the limited time available," she said.

The school is involved in a business relationship with the Optimist Club of Semoran and with the Orlando Magic. Boudreaux said those groups

Sanford gallery opens to celebrate heritage

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — It only took a few months to transform an idea for a downtown art display location into an operational facility that will be opened to the public tomorrow.

Through the combined efforts of the St. Lucia Festival and the Sanford/Seminole Art Association, the First Street Gallery, 203 E. 1st Street, will be open five days a week, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

The gallery will become a display center for the works of local painters, sculptors, and other artists, according to Kay Bartholomew, one of the organizers.

It will also become the center for information about the local area, facts on artists in the Sanford area, listings of upcoming cultural events and artistic displays, and other items of interest to local residents as well as visitors.

To inaugurate the opening, an estimated 500 special invitations have been sent to various people to attend the Grand Opening of the gallery today from 5 to 8 p.m.

The special event, as well as the next day public opening, will honor noted local artist E.B. Stowe and his paintings of the St. John's River area.

When the doors open to the public Saturday morning, all people in the area are invited to visit the First Street Gallery, described by its organizers as "A center for the visual and performing arts to celebrate the cultural and historic heritage of the St. John's River and its environs."

Child abuse charges filed

STUART — Prosecutors formally filed charges against a man accused of holding a family against its will for 15 years, but false imprisonment was not among the counts.

Robert Mauro, 47, was charged with child abuse and possession of marijuana, explosives and destructive devices.

The Stuart man has been held in the Martin County Jail in lieu of $80,000 bond since police and the FBI arrested him April 8.

"Although the false imprisonment charge has not been filed, it is still under active investigation," Police Lt. Joe Lyons said.

Mauro allegedly used threats and coercion to hold Roland Cardin, 47; his wife, Sandra, 45; and their 12-year-old daughter, Michele, against their will.

Deputy suspended over racial slur

ST. PETERSBURG — A reserve deputy has been suspended for uttering a racial slur during a conversation inadvertently picked up by squad car microphones and broadcast over a dispatch channel.

The conversation took place last month as reserve deputies Wendell Bennett Jr. and Ralph W. Hegner waited to ride in a parade.

Bennett — who was named Reserve Deputy of the Year for 1990 — was given a 14-day suspension Wednesday for this remark: "They call themselves ... ain't nothing but a damn n-----," reports state.

In addition to the suspension, Bennett was issued a written reprimand, placed on three-month probation, ordered to attend ethnic sensitivity training and ordered to perform community service.

Hegner was not disciplined. His part of the conversation, which was taped, was inaudible.

Autopsy shows enlarged heart

SILVER SPRINGS — Preliminary autopsy results pointed to an enlarged heart — not a deputy's choke hold — in the death of an unidentified break-in suspect, a sheriff's spokesman said.

"The only thing unusual was an enlarged heart," Marion County Sheriff's spokesman Robert Douglas said Thursday of the autopsy performed by the county medical examiner. "The windpipe was intact. There was no trauma that could have been caused by a choke hold."

The incident began when two deputies responded to a frantic 911 call from a woman with a baby who said an intruder was coming into her home.

The deputies wrestled with the man in a second-story bedroom. One officer used choke hold on the suspect and restrained his hands and legs, said sheriff's Lt. Frank Alioto.

Roxanne back in court

WEST PALM BEACH — Roxanne Pulitzer, who became a celebrity during her own scandal-ridden 1992 divorce trial, is now the "other woman" in a custody battle between a French count and a Canadian heiress.

Pulitzer returned to a Palm Beach County courtroom this week to support her latest love interest, race car driver Jean de la Mousse, who is fighting his wife Francine for their two children, ages 1 and 3.

Pulitzer testified for three hours Wednesday about the intimate details of their relationship. She described de la Mousse as a caring father who fears for his children's safety when they are with his wife.

She said she hopes to be "a very good friend" to the children, but said Francine de la Mousse wasn't helping matters by teaching their 3-year-old daughter to call her bad names.

"She has three names for me — the slut, the whore and 'pig,'" Pulitzer testified amid giggles from the packed courtroom. "I don't think she means it or knows the meaning of at least two of those names."

Judge John Hoy has admonished lawyers for both sides to stop slinging abuse at each other. Accusations have involved sex-and-drug parties, alcoholism, suicide attempts, bisexuality and physical abuse.

'Leslie' has X-rated adventure

MIAMI — A rental videotape of "Leslie's Great Adventure" included six minutes of X-rated material that two children discovered while watching the movie in their family room.

About 75 minutes into the film, a Leslie look-alike began cavorting in a forest with two naked women.

"Mommy, I don't think Marc should be watching this," 11-year-old Renee Scheiner said, referring to her little brother, not quite 3.

The case might constitute a violation of federal child-exploitation and obscenity laws.

"Someone intended to shock and influence an innocent child," FBI spokesman Paul Miller said.

Gail Scheiner, a registered nurse, rented the movie for 49 cents at Spec's Music and put the tape into the family VCR.

The FBI sent the video to Washington for analysis. Spec's gave the Scheiners their 49 cents back.

Drug czar promotes prevention

By CAROL ANN COOPER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Bob Martinez, the nation's top drug fighter, wants to raise the visibility of education and prevention programs, but leaders of the anti-drug campaign in a city wracked by crack cocaine want greater emphasis on treatment.

"I will elevate drug reduction to a higher level of visibility," Martinez said after an anti-drug class with sixth-graders. "I strongly believe that we've only scratched the surface as to what we can do with education and prevention programs."

But President Bush's drug policy adviser faced a different issue when he took questions Thursday from treatment center advocates at a gathering of the Miami Coalition, a trend-setting anti-drug program linking business, education and law enforcement.

As governor of Florida, Martinez was criticized for spending more to build new prisons than treat addicts who often wind up in prison. The question of federal emphasis came up on his first official trip to Florida since his confirmation.

"Part of the drug war is recovery of those who become addicted," Martinez said. But he added that accountability was a problem because treatment programs don't compare well.

He said one of his goals is "to better document the success stories of treatment. There's a tremendous amount of debate over treatment."

Treatment center advocates said they already have the success rates and supporting documents to prove their value.

The Astronauts Memorial is posted beside a quiet legend.

Quayle, astronauts, families of dead remember 15 killed

By BARBARA PERIN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Fifteen families stood quietly, some holding hands, others weeping, during an emotional dedication of a glossy granite monument that honors America's 15 astronauts who were killed on the job.

The families were summoned one by one to the 4-story-high wall known as Space Mirror near the end of Thursday's ceremony. After everyone had gathered, Vice President Dan Quayle placed a large wreath at the base of the monument.

Nearly 3,000 people, including dozens of astronauts, watched from rows of seats in front of the monument at Kennedy Space Center.

"With the dedication of the astronauts memorial, we have etched forever in time the courageous sacrifice of 15 historic men and women," said master of ceremonies Eugene Cernan, commander of the last Apollo mission.

"But perhaps more importantly, we have now dedicated ourselves to carrying on their unfinished work, and out of their loss has come a powerful determination to bring the stars a little closer to us all," Cernan said.

Fifteen white doves were released, and four astronauts flew training jets overhead in the missing man formation.

One of the jet pilots was supposed to have been Manley "Sonny" Carter Jr. He became the most recent addition to the memorial after being killed last month in a commuter plane crash; he was on NASA business at the time.

His widow, Dana Carter, attended the ceremony with their two daughters. Five gold stars marked the spot on the monument where his name will be carved.

The low-flying jets brought tears to many eyes.

"I'm still quite choked up. Particularly the fly-by, that gets you every time," said Grace Corrigan, mother of teacher-astronaut S. Christi McAuliffe, who died with six others aboard Challenger in 1986.

Woman who accused Smith says he told her no one would believe rape

By BARA KENNEDY
Associated Press Writer

PALM BEACH — The woman who says William Kennedy Smith raped her told police she had a horrendous night in which she was overpowered, assaulted, cursed and told that no one would believe her if she cried rape.

According to a graphic, detailed affidavit authorities released Thursday, the 29-year-old woman said she ran from Smith but he tackled her.

When she tried to push him away, she said he pinned her down, "abusing his chest" against her. At one point, she told police, he yelled "stop it bitch," when she continued to struggle. Later, she said, he told her no one would believe her if she said he raped her.

Smith, the 30-year-old nephew of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was charged Thursday with one count of sexual battery and one count of battery. Rape is classified as sexual battery in Florida.

Smith, who has maintained he is innocent, says he is worried and saddened but expects to be exonerated in court.

The woman's lawyer, David Roth, says his client felt relieved and vindicated.

According to the eight-page affidavit, state Attorney David Budworth filed in the case, the woman was in a state of trauma when police interviewed her after the alleged rape occurred last month at the sprawling Kennedy estate overlooking the Atlantic Ocean.

"She was sitting on a couch with her legs drawn up to her chest, in a fetal position, and would panic at any quick movement in the room," the two investigating officers reported after seeing her March 30.

The woman said she gave Smith, a medical student at Georgetown University, a ride to the Kennedy estate after meeting him at the Au Bar nightclub in Palm Beach, according to the affidavit.

She said Smith told her that his uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and his cousin, Rhode Island state Rep. Patrick Kennedy, had left him at the club and he was stranded.

The woman said Smith invited her to see the house and walk on the beach. She said they exchanged brief kisses on the beach but that she tried to leave when Smith removed his pants.

It was then that he tackled her, pinned her down and assaulted her, she told investigators.

"She remembers hearing herself screaming and wondering why no one in the house would come out and help her, especially since she knew Sen. Kennedy was in the house," the affidavit said.

Afterward, the woman said, she hid in a pantry and used a phone there to call a friend. She said Smith found her there.

"I was petrified that he was going to start hitting me, or that he was going to rape me again, or that he was going to kill me," the woman stated in the affidavit.

Instead, she said, he sat in a chair, looking "very composed and sure of himself."

Woman wins right to marry Florida death row inmate

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A West Palm Beach woman has won a two-month battle to visit and perhaps eventually marry a Florida death row inmate, partly with the help of Gov. Lawton Chiles.

"I voted for Lawton Chiles because he believes in rehabilitation," said Wanda Eads, who does rehabilitation work at Lantana Correctional Institution.

Ms. Eads, 43, got a letter from the governor this week saying that the rule prohibiting a death row inmate from getting married was repealed as of April 23.

"The blanket restrictions on death row inmates getting married and on the marriage of one inmate to another have been removed," Chiles wrote. "Please let me know if I can be of further assistance in this matter."

Ms. Eads wants to marry Frank Valdes, 29, who was convicted of the 1967 murder of Glades Correctional Institution officer Fred Griffin.

"I'm hoping this means they're clearing the way," she said. Valdes, she said, "is starting to fall apart" because he gets no visitors at the Florida State Prison in Starke.

Criminal mischief charged

SANFORD — A Delton man suspected for smashing the window of a local store restaurant was found to have a criminal record in his car Thursday, Sanford police report.

Joseph L. Bell, 3148 S. Highway Drive, was stopped by police at his home about 10 minutes after the manager of Tostitos on South Orlando drive reported the glass front door of his business had been smashed, reports state.

The car Bell was riding in, which matched the a description given by the manager, was stopped in the shopping center parking lot. During a search, police report finding an unloaded handgun under the passenger's seat where Bell sat.

Bell was charged with criminal mischief and possession of a concealed firearm. He was held on a total of $5,000 bond.

Chilean couple arrested

SANFORD — A Chilean couple were arrested Wednesday by City-County Investigative Bureau Agents on drug distribution charges.

Myra Vazquez Munoz, 36, and Patricia Javier Munoz, 37, of 108 E. 23rd St., were arrested after OCSB agents searched their home. Agents reported finding one bag of marijuana and five smaller bags. They also report finding electronic scales and $2,000 in cash.

Both were charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana, possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Both were held on $5,000 bond.

Forgery charged

SANFORD — John David Dykeman, 31, 2627 S. Magnolia Ave., Sanford, was charged with forgery by Sanford police Wednesday after they report he cashed a stolen check in March.

According to arrest reports, Dykeman attempted to cash the $133 check made out to him by the account-holder at a local bar, but the bar refused.

Police report Dykeman then had a man drive him to his bank and co-sign the check, which was cashed against the co-signer's account. When the check was returned for insufficient funds and the man's account charged, he called the name on the account, only to find the woman had died in January and the checking account was bound in probate proceedings. Police reports state Dykeman admitted to cashing the check, but not to stealing it.

Dykeman was charged with uttering a forged instrument, dealing in stolen property and theft. He was held on $2,000 bond.

Aggravated battery charged

MIDWAY — Frederick Cole, 28, 2261 Water St., was arrested Wednesday and charged with aggravated battery.

Seminole County deputies report Cole hit a man in the head with two glass bottles and hit him in the body with an iron pipe when the man approached him. The victim, Tommy Saunders, was taken to Central Florida Hospital. Cole was held on $4,000 bond.

then conducted a series of seminars with the children.

District officials believe that Clifford may be more popular with the younger crowd than his creator, Bridwell, nevertheless, was able to offer some valuable advice on how to get their ideas on paper.

The Young Authors Conference is designed to encourage those students with a gift for writing to pursue that talent.

"This isn't designed to get the students to go after writing as a career," said Myrna Walters, coordinator of elementary reading and language arts for the school district. "We want to encourage all students to read and write for their own enjoyment."

The students were selected to attend the conference based on a portfolio of their writing and the recommendation of their teachers.

Walters said that the students have all shown "a knack" for producing good writing.

According to district officials, the youngsters who will be in attendance at the conference tomorrow will receive instruction on a variety of writing techniques from Bridwell and from the district language arts department staff.

Bridwell, a strong advocate of reading, is also expected to talk to the youngsters about reading to help improve the quality of their writing.

He will also be speaking to the Seminole Reading Council on Saturday.

Scientists, philosophers probe robotic knowledge

By BILL KASSIDY
Associated Press Writer

PENACOLA — Philosophers and psychologists have joined computer scientists at an international workshop on robotic knowledge to explore the issue of whether machines think.

Also being discussed are ethical issues such as whether people have the right to destroy thinking machines and the question of whether computers or robots can be creative.

Artificial intelligence experts "value very highly the cross-pollination from the psychologists and the philosophers so we don't reinvent the wheel," said Kenneth M. Ford, chairman of the Second International Workshop on Human and Machine Cognition.

About 40 participants have gathered at a beachfront condominium for the three-day workshop on android epistemology through Saturday. Epistemology is the study of knowledge.

"What we'd like to do is ... find out what it means when we say our machines know something. How did they come to know it, how grounded is their knowing, do they know things in the same way you and I know things?" Ford said.

Some experts contend only biological entities can think. Others, particularly scientists in the field of artificial intelligence, maintain machines also can have the power of thought.

On one side were Ford, director of the Institute for Human and Machine Cognition at the University of West Florida, which is hosting the conference, and Patrick Hayes, an artificial intelligence expert from Palo Alto, Calif. Ford and Hayes argued in favor of the thinking machine concept as the conference opened Thursday, and their presentation drew relatively little opposition.

"Machines aren't intelligent yet," Hayes acknowledged in an interview, and he added that even those of the future "won't be geniuses."

Another stand

The historical revisionists are back at work again, this time trying to remove the name of Gen. George Armstrong Custer from Montana's Custer Battlefield National Monument. Critics think the Indians who defeated Custer's 7th Cavalry in the Battle of the Little Bighorn got a historical scalping. We don't share the currently fashionable opinion that everything paleface did was bad and everything Indian did was good, but in this case the critics have a point.

Although born in Ohio, Custer grew up downriver in Monroe, Mich. He graduated from West Point at the bottom of the list in 1861. During the Civil War, he fought in almost every battle waged by the Army of the Potomac, from Bull Run to Lee's surrender. In the latter part of the war, he commanded the Michigan Brigade, the cavalry unit that had the highest casualty rate in the Federal Army. Custer had 11 horses shot out from under him and was responsible for blocking the Confederate cavalry at the critical Battle at Gettysburg.

Custer went West after the war with a reputation as a heroic cavalry commander. Although a brilliant battalion commander, he did not have the head for higher command of combined forces. Tasked with the mission of rounding up Indians and returning them to their designated lands in 1876, he underestimated the Indian force (poor intelligence) and split his forces into three parts (bad tactics) before the Battle of the Little Bighorn. His cavalry unit was overwhelmed and annihilated.

There is an initiative in Congress, led by Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, D-Colo., the only Native American in the House, and Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., to have Custer's name removed from the battlefield park site. They also want a monument erected to Native Americans, and they don't like the use of the word "massacre" in describing the 1876 event. The proper way to view what happened, they say, is that the Indians repelled an invading army.

We agree with their point about the site's name. The other historic battlefields are not named for the generals who won or lost. Gettysburg is Gettysburg, not Meade (the winner) or Lee (the loser). Normandy has not been renamed for Gen. Eisenhower nor Kuwait for Gen. Schwarzkopf, though both were winners of historic proportions.

Naming the Bighorn site for Custer reflects the anti-Indian feeling of a bygone era. More recent histories show that Custer's last stand was hardly the heroic act that frontier lore made it out to be. It would be fitting to rename the site in a more neutral fashion. The event was a shared experience, with individual glory and tragedy on both sides.

The selling of Huck Finn

Mark Twain's classic, "Huckleberry Finn," is being held hostage.

Two Los Angeles women recently discovered the first 21 chapters of the manuscript in their grandfather's trunk. But instead of releasing their find to the Buffalo, N.Y., public library, which has the rest of the manuscript, they may soon try to sell it.

Maybe Buffalo could afford to buy it. Maybe not. Twain must be rolling in his grave.

Evidence suggests the author intended the entire manuscript to go to the Buffalo and Erie County Public Library as a gift. But Twain, far better at writing than housekeeping, had lost the first part. When he finally found it, he sent it to James Fraser Gluck, a Buffalo lawyer.

The Buffalo library produced an 1887 letter indicating that Gluck intended to present them with the manuscript. But much like the hero of the novel, Twain's handwritten pages had a way of wandering.

Now, Gluck's granddaughters claim that finding the manuscript gives them ownership rights over it. Buffalo library officials are so upset that they're threatening to sue.

Twain would be the first to admit that greed and lawsuits are as American as the adventurous characters he created in his novels. But, so are selfless acts and respect for our national heritage. The "Huckleberry Finn" manuscript — the beginning as well as the end — belongs in the public domain.

The granddaughters have a choice. They can try to market this literary treasure and get rich. Or they can cover themselves with glory by donating it to the Buffalo library. Surely Twain would have wanted them to do what's honorable, not profitable.

When the political accusations fly

I should have known better than to trust the first television accounts of The Washington Post's attack on John Sununu. They reported the Post's charge that Sununu had used military jets for political and private trips. But, perhaps because they hated to spoil a good story, they failed to add, as the Post did, that a presidential spokesman had cited a White House policy, antedating the Bush administration, that requires chiefs of staff to use military planes in order to remain in secure contact with the White House at all times.

The next day's TV accounts included that crucial addendum, giving me the mistaken impression, which I relayed and for which I apologize, that it was not included in the Post's original story.

But the addendum does, in any case, spoil the story. If anything is vulnerable here, it's not Sununu — it's the policy, as The New Republic recognized in its May 13 issue, shifting its emphasis accordingly.

So Sununu is probably out of the woods. This is all the likelier because of the simultaneous revival of the 1980 hostages rumor — a story that really "has legs," as they say inside the Beltway. For it is an attempt, not to get Sununu, but to defame Reagan and ruin Bush. Coming on top of Kitty Kelley's malodorous job on Nancy Reagan, it suggests that the liberals are having quite a spring.

Since the rumor is an ancient one, we are told that it is being revived now only because Gary Sick has changed his mind and now believes it. Just why Sick's opinion should be so decisive is unclear. Sick served on the National Security Council staff straight through the Carter administration, but his services were evidently not wanted by the incoming Reagan forces — a fact that may well have left psychological scars.

Now Sick appears at the head of a whole band of carefully anonymous accusers, to contend that the late CIA chief William Casey, who was Reagan's campaign manager in 1980, conspired with a high Iranian official in Madrid that year to prevent our hostages in Tehran from being released before the presidential election — i.e., when it could do Jimmy Carter some good.

Some of the sources also identify then-vice presidential candidate Bush as having attended a similar meeting in Paris that year for the same purpose. But Sick, though not above floating this rumor, is cautious about endorsing it. Casey is another matter.

Now, it is important here to keep one's eye on the ball. In 1980, the Iran hostage crisis was a major issue in American politics. The Iranians dumped Jimmy Carter — far more, presumably, than they disliked Reagan, who after all had had no role in the hostage affair.

This is apparent from the moment they chose to release the hostages: the very day of Reagan's inauguration (though not, as conspiracy theorists would prefer, a few days later, which might have left the favorable impression that the new president had moved decisively to free the hostages).

So it is possible that one or more Iranians, authorized by the Ayatollah or otherwise, approached the Reagan forces during 1980 with some sort of deal in mind.

So Sununu is probably out of the woods.

Unfair pressure in Lake Mary

I have only recently become a resident of Lake Mary, but already I have learned of a possible ethics violation in our local government. I attended the Public Hearing meeting held April 9th and discovered that the Planning and Zoning board and staff had originally recommended to the City Commissioners not to vacate Main Road.

Later, due to pressure from the Commissioners, the board members changed their recommendation. I thought the purpose of the staff was to research a subject and render impartial advice to the Commissioners, so that they could make informed decisions.

If the staff is to be coerced into telling the Commissioners only what they want to hear, it will become useless and redundant and should be dissolved, so as not to waste taxpayers' money.

A better solution would be to arrange for Planning and Zoning and staff members positions not to be contingent on the Commissioners' approval. This would allow members to do their job to the best of their ability, and would provide a system of checks and balances by making adequate information available to the public, who could then judge the decisions of the Commission.

Even residents who are not affected by traffic on or near Broadmoor should be concerned about the Commissioners' abuse of power. If you care about ethics in government, come to ... City Hall and let the Commissioners know you will not tolerate (or re-elect) politicians who engage in unethical practices!

How forgetful

On April 18, we had the second group of the 138th AVN (EW) Squadron return to the Orlando/Sanford area. They were welcomed by the Jones High School Band (Orlando). Their music brought tears to many veterans eyes. Upon hearing that the LAST of the 138th was returning on May 3, I called Oviedo High School, trying to set up a welcome home get together for the Desert Storm troops.

After three phone calls to the principal, with no results (he was either on a lunch break or at lunch, according to his secretary) I was connected to the Activities Director. He conferred with the band director and the word I received back was "they were too busy."

HOW QUICK WE FORGET.

My son, SPC L.A. Nees, is a 1967 graduate of Oviedo High School.

In praise of Lake Mary firemen

Throughout the years, the Lake Mary Fire Department, volunteer and permanent, have contributed a valuable service to the citizens of the city beyond fire control.

The residents of the Forest are indeed fortunate to have their rescue squad respond to our emergency medical needs.

From heart attack to simple strain, from death to sickness, these firemen have given prompt and efficient service to our residents. (In at least one instance they were at the door of the patient, while the caller was still on the phone.)

With three by-pass and a pig's valve, I feel secure that, if ever it becomes necessary, that I will be in good hands.

A vote of thanks to Chief Stoddard and the men of the Lake Mary Fire Department.

Waldheim's hard fall to continue

VIENNA, Austria — One of the most discredited leaders in the world, the president of Austria, speaks boldly of re-election next year, but no one is listening. He is ignored, abandoned by his own party and a reminder of what Austria does not want to be.

There was a time when Kurt Waldheim was on top of the world. He was secretary general of the United Nations, and he parlayed that resume into the Austrian presidency in 1986. He campaigned on the slogan, "a man the world trusts."

Now he is the Pincocchio president. His lies about his war record earned him the status of "unwanted alien" in the United States. There are even charges, as yet unproven, that he was involved in Nazi war crimes.

Waldheim is a pathetic pariah, waiting in Vienna for invitations that never come to visit important countries that don't want him. Even when Waldheim gets some attention, it is embarrassing to Austrians — as when he cut a separate deal with Iraq's Saddam Hussein to gain the release of Austrian hostages last year.

It is hard to pity Waldheim. According to our sources in the United States and Austria, he brought the misery on himself. "He is not a nice man," one source said bluntly. "He's more like a head waiter, a maitre d' on the make." And Waldheim is chop. While at the United Nations, he collected American toilet paper to send back to his relatives in Austria who liked the softer stuff. One source said there were even plans to claim the right to take with him some of the secretary general's furnishings when he left the United Nations.

"But, while the guy is a colonial scumbag, that does not mean he is a war criminal," said one critic who has extensively reviewed the World War II documentation.

For years Waldheim claimed that he was wounded on the Russian front in 1941 and left the German army then. He later was confronted with proof that he served as an intelligence officer in the Balkans with a German army unit that was involved in Nazi atrocities.

Waldheim pleaded loss of memory, prompting one American talk-show host to award him a prize from "Amnesia International."

In 1987, the U.S. Justice Department put Waldheim on its list of "unwanted aliens," concluding that he was engaged in "activities amounting to persecution" of Jews, Greeks and Yugoslavs. That scarlet letter made it impossible for him to get a visa to come to the United States. Some West European nations followed suit and abhorred Waldheim too.

That ostracism prompted many in his homeland to rally around Waldheim, if only briefly. In a sense they were rallying around themselves, defending all of Austria against the accusation that they had collaborated with Hitler.

Waldheim has been slightly contrite. He told the Israeli newspaper Haaretz last year: "I was wrong not to tell the whole truth right at the beginning. I apologize that I did not bring up the Balkan matter. I confess that there was a mistake here." But he has remained adamant that he did nothing criminal while with that unit.

The Austrian Foreign Ministry has collected affidavits from Waldheim's contemporaries in the war who swear that he was a good guy, "an active, liberal Catholic and convinced anti-Nazi," who "voiced definitely anti-racist views and had many Jewish friends."

But Waldheim's political career is still over, whether he believes it or not. No amount of nationalism or rallying around this Austrian emperor with new clothes will persuade the people here to put him in office for another six years.

He is not a nice man. He's more like a head waiter, a maitre d' on the make.

Berry's World

Future of Florida discussed

Associated Press

LAKE BUENA VISTA — State government officials say Florida's economic prospects for the decade ahead will depend largely on its educational system.

That'll help determine the kind of industry Florida attracts, Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer said.

"We're not producing the kind of value-added jobs in Florida that we need," Farmer said Thursday at a forum at Walt Disney World. "The same trains and planes that bring retirees to Florida are taking our young people out West to the good jobs."

He said the state must recruit environmentally safe industries.

But, "We don't want the backwater branch offices. We want corporate headquarters. We want the whole shooting match, not just the low-paying jobs."

LI. Gov. Buddy MacKay, who headed the panel discussion at a meeting of the Florida Council of 100, said he wants the state's agencies that oversee growth management to "stay functioning as its independent bodies and function as one superagency."

The administration of Gov. Lewis Chiles wants to simplify and streamline the permitting process for development projects, MacKay said.

"We want to stop the adversarial tradition in Florida, which is another sign of immaturity, and work together to make things happen," MacKay said. "But growth management is never going to make sense in Florida without a growth policy."

Noting that the new administration has promised to reduce the size of government, MacKay said one goal of the forum was to discuss ways to reduce the complexity and cost of complying with state regulations.

"Florida's problem is not its size," the lieutenant governor said. "What Florida lacks is maturity. We ought to distinguish between growth and development. Growth is something that happens to you. Development is something you make happen."

Transportation Secretary Ben Watsa said rail transportation will be a key to making highway expansion a worrisome highway situation.

"You cannot build enough highways in Florida to meet the needs of transportation," Watsa said, adding that the emphasis must be on connecting ports and rail lines with air and bus transportation.

and offices for their business Designer Pools of Central Florida, 885 W. Lake Mary Blvd. The amount was about $25,000 higher than the county's estimate for the land and the owner's estimate to replace their building.

In a memo, Groot wrote the year-long negotiations were complicated by Lake Mary zoning codes that prevented the option of moving business buildings instead of paying for their replacement.

A construction consultant estimated it would cost $242,000 to replace the dentist office structure elsewhere, but it would cost $256,000 to move the building further from the road and meet city codes. Similarly, the Designer Pool building was estimated to cost $251,542 to replace, but $268,939 to move the building further from the road and still meet city codes.

Another settlement was for $268,912 to buy property owned by Patrick and Linda Deffore adjacent to the Oaks Shopping Center, southeast of the Lake Mary Boulevard-Longwood-Lake Mary Road. The county's appraisals ranged from $147,000 to $262,625. The owners appraisals ranged from $304,000 to $315,200.

Because the Deffore property was located next to the shopping center, Groot wrote it could be used as an extension or separate store to the center. Groot wrote there was too much of a risk of more expensive appraisals and experts to attempt to argue a lower price in a jury condemnation trial.

The fourth settlement was for land owned by George Tashjian and Marion Duffy, next to Driftwood Shopping Center. Groot wrote lengthy negotiations resulted in a smaller portion of the property being needed for the road project. Appraisers hired by the county estimated the property to cost between $105,250 and $208,853.

The owners appraisers estimated the property to be worth $224,080 and $239,400. A third land appraisal firm working for the county agreed with the owner's appraisals. The county agreed to pay $233,000 for all costs, including expenses.

Students

Shawn A. Whitaker from Lynwood High School in Lettwood.

A criterion for selection to the Dreamers and Doers roll call is that a student must have "a positive influence on the people around them" and Hughes believes that each student representing Seminole County Schools does have such an impact.

"These students all make an important impact on the lives of those around them," he said.

Hughes pointed out that students who win the Dreamers and Doers award are not necessarily the same students who consistently top the school honor rolls for their academic achievements, though sometimes they are academically gifted as well.

"These are the ones who try the hardest," he said. "Sometimes they are not recognized for that effort."

Initiated in 1984, the program recognizes one student from each school and three top winners from each county in the state.

The top Dreamers and Doers in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties, considered state winners, were feted with a lunch and an afternoon celebration at the Disney Contemporary Hotel.

In the morning, youngsters representing each school in the tri-county area, were honored in a ceremony at the resort hotel.

Each student winner was given a special medalion to commemorate the occasion.

Nation

The business leaders gathered today at a mountain resort for the start of the spring meeting of the Business Council, composed of the chief executives of 100 of the nation's largest companies.

They said the huge overhang of government, corporate and personal debt from the 1980s was likely to depress economic growth for some time to come.

While the business chiefs said they believed a recovery was at hand, they conceded that this outlook remained only a forecast because the consumer, who accounts for two-thirds of total economic activity, has not begun spending.

Can U.S. forces leave Iraq?

By BARRY SCHWED News Analysis

WASHINGTON — The slippery slope beckons in Iraq. President Bush would like to turn over to a United Nations police force the job of protecting Kurds from further reprisals from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. That would send 8,151 allied troops, including 3,286 Americans, home from northern Iraq. But U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar relayed to Bush on Thursday the "very clear rejection" of the proposal. And while a senior administration official was telling a group of reporters that Saddam might come around to accept the police force, Bush's chances of withdrawing from the mess worsened. In fact, Perez de Cuellar also told the president that a new U.N. Security Council resolution would be needed to establish a police force unless Iraq acquiesced. That could pose another problem for Bush. The Soviet Union and China are hardly in favor of expanding U.N. intervention in the country, so that could mean trouble in the form of a veto. The upshot is that the American, British, French and other allied forces now in northern Iraq may be there for some time even though Bush's first inclination was to end the war against Saddam quickly and get out. The spectre of Vietnam rose over the White House as victory approached in February, and even the sad flight of hungry

We must recognize that peace is unlikely to come to the region and to the people of Iraq as long as Saddam remains in power.

—Richard N. Haass National Security advisor

Kurdish refugees did not cause the president to get "sucked in," as he put it. Human considerations prevailed, however, and Bush's resistance to getting involved in Iraq's civil war gave way to the creation of refugee enclaves under the protection of allied troops. The last American troops rolled out of southern Iraq on Wednesday. But the U.S. forces remain in the north to shelter, feed and clothe hundreds of thousands of Kurdish refugees. The administration contends that a U.N. police force could be set up without either Baghdad's permission or further action by the United Nations. But Perez de Cuellar challenged that view in his meeting with Bush, participants said. "His thought on a peacekeeping force was that another resolution was necessary. ... That's something we're going to have to discuss further," said John R. Bolton, assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs. "I don't think we can give you a date" for withdrawing U.S. forces, Bolton said. In the meantime, the administration does not seem inclined to reach a compromise with Saddam on any front. "We must recognize that peace is unlikely to come to the region and to the people of Iraq as long as Saddam remains in power," said Richard N. Haass, who heads the Near East desk at the National Security Council. "In our view, Saddam is discredited and cannot be redeemed. As a result, all possible sanctions will remain in place until he is gone," Haass said. Overall, more than 18,000 allied troops, including about 10,200 Americans, are assisting refugees in Turkey and northern Iraq. Bush, in joint public remarks with Perez de Cuellar, said the United States still viewed its role in protecting Kurds in northern Iraq as "limited in duration." "We look forward to working with the U.N. to hasten the day when all these refugees can return home, free from fear," he said. But the administration clearly has no blueprint for bringing that about. A senior official, briefing reporters after Perez de Cuellar's visit, said candidly: "I think we need to look at what the best next step is. ... We have a number of ideas and proposals. ... We have to sort out exactly what we do now."

Bush clips aide's wings over 'necessary' travel

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — John Sununu may be flying less frequently now that President Bush is curtailing his chief of staff's right to take government jets and is making him get an OK for all trips. Bush said Thursday that "to ensure that military aircraft are used only when necessary," the White House counsel will review Sununu's travel request "on a case-by-case basis." Instead of taking the aircraft on all his personal, political and official travel as he had done previously, Sununu must meet new requirements. The policy was developed in the wake of disclosures about Sununu's frequent use of military planes, even for ski vacations and trips to the dentist. Under the previous policy, Sununu decreed which were official trips and which were non-official and required reimbursement to the government.

Patriots fall in semifinals

NICEVILLE — As it turned out, the third time wasn't the charm for the Lake Brantley Patriots. Making their third appearance in the Class 4A state semifinals in five years, the Patriots (23-4) were defeated by three-time defending state champion Palm Beach Gardens 6-3 Thursday night. Lake Brantley turned a 3-2 lead into the top of the seventh inning when two errors and a walk loaded the bases for Palm Beach Gardens (20-2). June Kapatrick then hit a grand slam that propelled the Gators into this evening's championship game against Jupiter (a 6-4 winner over Orange Park). Shelley Davis was 2-for-4 with a double and an RBI to lead the Patriots. Christa Schroefel also had an RBI for Lake Brantley.

Lyman seeks third crown

'Hounds lead county into Class 4A state track meet

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — Janet Greenberg, Kianah Bresnick, Mildred Davis and Danielle Garrett already have helped bring two state championships to Lyman High School this year. Can they do it one more time? On Saturday evening at Showalter Field, this foursome and the Greyhounds' 4 x 400-meter relay team will attempt to gather enough team points at the Class 4A state track meet to give Lyman its third state championship of the 1990-91 school year. In the fall, Greenberg, Bresnick and Davis were members of the Greyhounds' state championship team in cross country. Garrett played on Lyman's girls' soccer state championship team in the winter. Coach Larry Baker and his Greyhounds won't know where they stand until late Saturday evening. Only Garrett, who qualified for the state meet in the long jump (one of the first events contested at the state meet), will compete while the sun is still out.

Greenberg and Bresnick have both qualified in the 1,600-meter (metric mile) run, the third running event of the evening session, which is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

But after that, the Greyhounds will have have close to an hour's wait until the 3,200-meter run, the second-to-last running event. Greenberg, Bresnick and Davis all have qualified in that event. Lyman will then compete in the 4 x 400-meter relay, the final running event of the state meet.

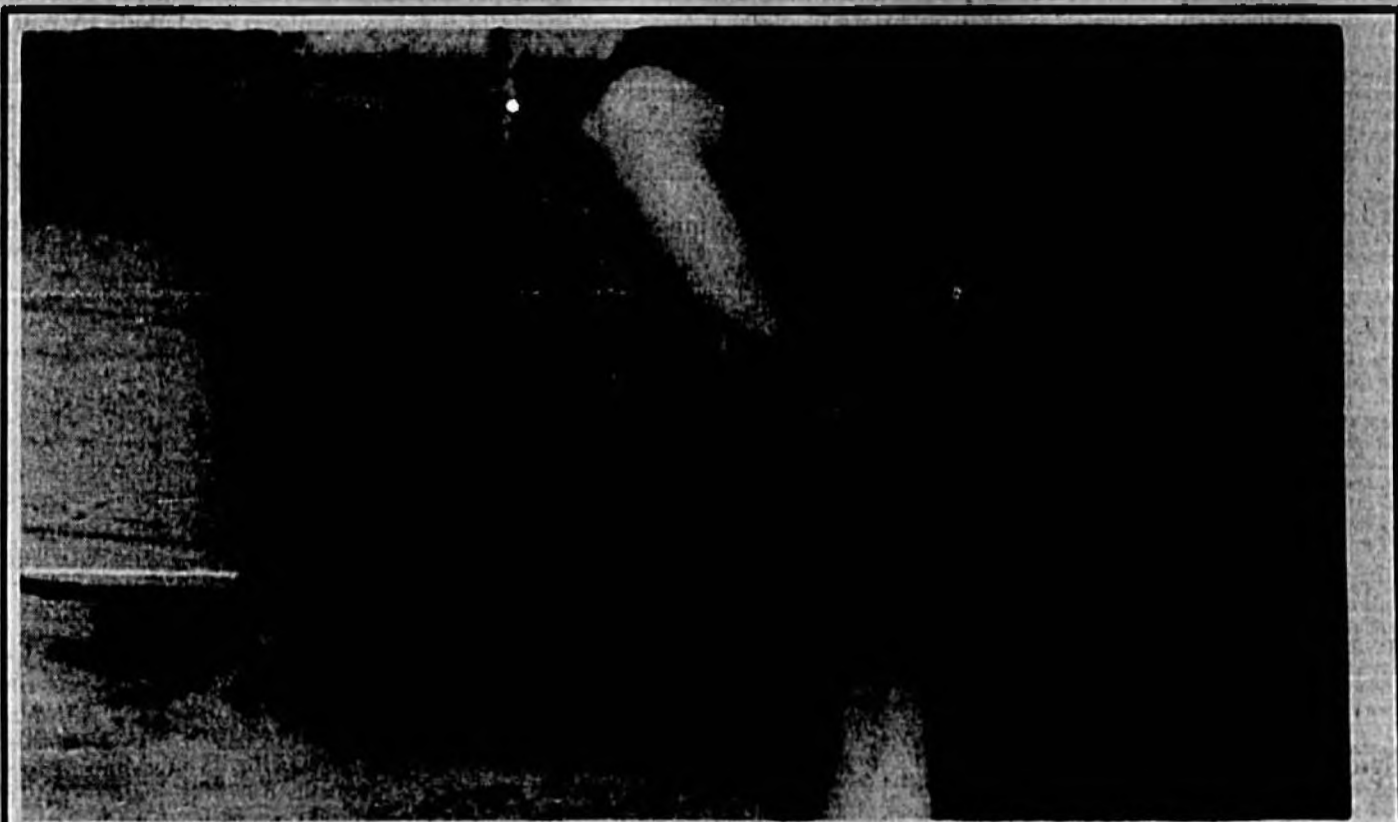

Seminole County will be represented by 10 other athletes at the Class 4A state meet Saturday.

Representing Lyman in the boys' portion of the meet will be T.J. Jarosik (high jump) and Chris Cotton (triple jump). From Lake Mary, Vivian Jones and Shannon Cook have qualified in the shot put while D.J. Lewis will represent the Ram boys in the 3,200-meter run.

Oviedo's LaTonya Thomas is the county's only other multiple qualifier besides Greenberg and Bresnick, advancing in the 100-meter and 200-meter dashes. High jumpers Wendy Peters and Mike Goins also have qualified for the state meet from Oviedo.

Lake Howell and Lake Brantley will each send one girl each to the state meet. The Silver Hawks will be represented by Kelly Robin in the discus while Cara Swingle, the Patriots' lone representative, qualified in the high jump.

A game of inches

Sometimes the difference between winning and losing can be scant inches. Safe by inches, like Seminole Mobile Radio's Dave Millon (No. 5, above) at this play at the plate and you score a run as well as keep the inning alive. Out by inches like the Olive Garden's Rick Thomas (white shirt, left) on this play at third and a rally dies. Playing at Pinehurst Park Thursday night, Millon had to avoid the tag of Olive Garden pitcher Chris Wicks to score a run in the first inning. Thomas, who led off the bottom of the first with a walk, was trying to advance from second to third on a fly ball when he was tagged out by Seminole Mobile Radio third baseman Jeff Wilson. Seminole Mobile Radio won the game 8-4 in extra innings.

Prom will benefit area older citizens

By SANDRA ELIOTT
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Pastel candles flickered on flower-decorated tables while a faceted mirrored ball twirled above the dance floor bathing the room with mock starlight. It was a scene properly befitting a senior prom, but this one had a twist.

Rather than teenagers in taffeta and tuxedos, the Senior Prom Saturday night at American Legion Post #53, Sanford was a fundraiser to benefit two Seminole County organizations devoted to senior citizens.

Sponsored by the Seminole County Better Living for Seniors, Inc., a Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), the prom brought together senior citizens and not-so-senior citizens for a prime rib dinner, dancing, a raffle and door prize drawing.

There were no teens "Voguing" to a hard rock beat at this prom. The dance's song was "Memories" while the motto for this Class of '91 was... "and the beat goes on!" The music for the evening, provided by Pizzazz, was easy listening and easy-to-dance-to classics like "Sentimental Journey," "I Want a Girl, Just Like the Girl" and the "Hokey Pokey." Couples glided smoothly around the dance floor arm-in-arm.

Some of the participants at the Saturday night dance recalled their high school prom with fond albeit slightly faded memories.

Better Living for Seniors Secretary Arghit Watts said, "We had a very nice prom," at the all-girl Catholic school she attended in Tampa. Although she did not recall that her school had a prom theme, she does remember the worst part was having to ask a date. Since the school was not co-ed, if you didn't ask a boy, you just stayed home. "You couldn't wait and have someone ask you because no boys went to the school."

Although RSVP Board member Fred Gaines and his wife, Ruth, both attended Ferdinand High School outside of Jacksonville, they did not attend the prom together.

"Shrimphoat" was a big song," Fred recalled of his high school prom year, adding that the dance had a Calypso theme. After high school, Ruth left to attend the University of Tennessee while Fred went to Jacksonville University. They started dating after her sophomore year and married in 1957.

Representatives of both senior groups would have liked more people to attend the dance that will help fund a wide variety of programs.

"I would have liked to have seen more people here," Watts said. Jean Metts, RSVP board member and senior prom committee chairperson said many persons cited the economy when declining to purchase a $20 prom ticket.

Contributions from individuals and corporate sponsors helped to make the evening a success.

Some of the programs provided by Better Living for Seniors include the Meals on Wheels program, congregate meals, transportation for seniors, a respite program which provides someone to stay with chronically ill patients so their regular caregivers can leave for a few hours, legal services, homemaker services and a new rapid response program that enables someone in need to receive hot meals within 24-hours after the request.

In addition, Better Living offers an information and referral telephone line for seniors at 831-4367. Although the group does not charge for its services, Watts says donations are strongly encouraged. Volunteers are needed, especially in Sanford for Meals on Wheels deliveries.

"We have the most to serve and the fewest volunteers there," Watts said.

RSVP is designed to help seniors put their time and talents to work helping others whether it is tutoring in area schools or providing clothing for cocaine babies. Through RSVP, 700 senior volunteers have contributed 121,000 hours to Seminole County with a cost of services savings of $847,000 according to Metts.

In addition to working in school programs, volunteers work in the Courthouse, County Services building, Sheriff's Department and the Chamber of Commerce.

Who's cooking?

The Sanford Herald welcomes suggestions for cooks of the week.

Do you know someone whose food is always the highlight of company picnics, church potlucks, receptions or covered-dish luncheons? It might be an acquaintance who has won a cooking contest or invented a new twist to the peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwich.

Submit your nomination for Cook of the Week to the Herald People editor at 322-2611, ext. 34.

The Cook of the Week feature is published in this section each Wednesday.

Woman who found lost dog was heartless to wait for reward sign

DEAR ABBY: I admire honest people who find valuable items and go to great lengths to return them. Many are not rewarded. My story is somewhat different.

My 9-year-old poodle got out of the yard by accident. She had never been loose before, and because she's partially blind, she just wandered around until she lost her way. We searched all that day, called the pound every hour, called the local vets, and went door-to-door to every house within three blocks of our house.

The next day, we did the same thing until finally I placed a large sign stating REWARD at our corner grocery store. Within an hour, our little dog was returned by a woman who lives eight houses from us! (We did not know her.) We later learned that this woman had found our dog the day before and made no effort to find the owner until the reward sign went up.

She asked for the reward, which I gladly gave her, but I found out later from my son that he had knocked on her door twice during that two-day period when our dog was missing and was told that she had not seen the dog.

What do you think of a person like that?

FLABBERGASTED IN FORT WORTH

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Your neighbor is not only a liar, she's a thief. In addition, she's heartless to have knowingly caused a pet owner to worry for two days while she waited for a reward sign to appear before returning a "lost" dog.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the school bus driver who got no respect: I am enclosing something you may get a kick out of. I did. And so did my fellow school bus drivers. Please withhold my

A BUS DRIVER'S PRAYER

Please, Lord, watch over me this day. Please help me remember to watch all five mirrors, two dozen windows, eight gauges, six warning lights, six dozen faces, three lanes of traffic, and to keep a third eye open for wobbling bicycles and daydreaming pedestrians, especially teen-agers wearing headsets who are off in another world!

Please, Lord, help me to hear all train whistles, truck and automobile horns, police sirens and the two-way radio.

Please, Lord, give me a hand for the gear lever, the steering wheel, the route book, the radio microphone and the turn-signal lever.

And, Lord, please grant me the self-control to keep my hands away from Johnny's neck! And one more thing, dear Lord, please don't let Mary be sick all over the bus.

And finally, Lord, please watch over us all so that we can do it all again next year. Amen.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the pack rat really popped my cork! I am also a pack rat, and I'm lucky I'm not married to the kind of woman who would throw out the newspaper while I was still reading it. We have been married for 34 years, and I greatly enjoy some of my hoardings, but if my wife were to throw away any of my things without my permission, I would retaliate with a "general housecleaning" in her clothes closet!

MERRITT ISLAND PACK RAT

DEAR ABBY: You have printed several letters pertaining to this subject, but please print this as a reminder:

Please, if you are a stranger, do not touch my baby. If you see us walking on the street and you want to see him do so. Do not grab his hands and play "pat-a-cake"; do not touch his head or try to pick him up. You are a stranger; I do not know you. I do not know if you have any diseases — not just the obvious ones; you may have poison ivy, a cold, you may not have washed your hands, and heaven knows where they have been.

You may admire him, ask me how old he is, smile at him and talk to him, but please do not touch him! I would hate to have to be rude to otherwise friendly well-wishers, but this has been bothering me for quite a while, as I am sure it bothers other mothers.

A FRIENDLY BUT CAUTIOUS MOMMY

DEAR FRIENDLY BUT CAUTIOUS: Your problem is one that has bothered mothers for years. Save the speech. When someone admires your baby and moves toward touching him, quickly and firmly say, "Please don't touch the child. Thank you." And if the would-be toucher is hurt and annoyed, that's his or her problem.

Bonded by Love

Emotion and suspense charge the atmosphere. The arrival of new life is imminent. Then the miracle... a labor-like cry announces the birth of yet another human life. Briefly, the physical connection between mother and child continues to pulsate. Then, with one swift motion, that bond is severed. Yet, the emotional bond which has existed between mother and child for months will remain intact always.

In time, the child will reach young adulthood. Though mother will be unable to "fix" the problems of her offspring as easily as changing a diaper, there is something she can do. While her child is small, she can introduce her son or daughter to a personal relationship with God. As Mary said to the angel in Luke 1:38, "I am the Lord's servant."

As we worship this week, may we thank God for the bonds of love between mother and child and between her child and our Heavenly Father. May they last forever.

Immune therapy won't cure cancer

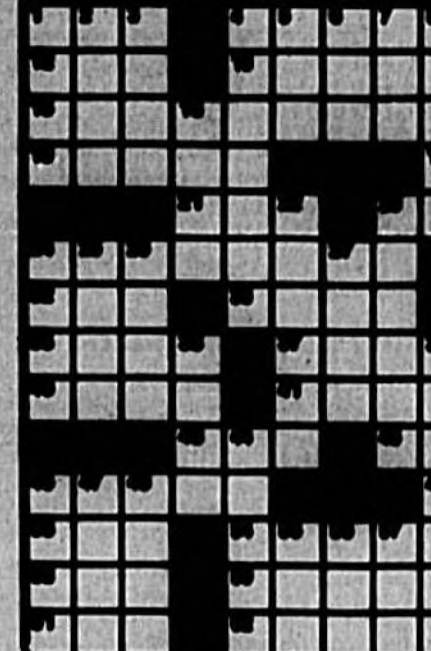

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 60-year-old mother has been diagnosed with small-cell carcinoma. This appears to be a secondary liver cancer that probably originated in the lung. I've been told it is incurable but her life may be prolonged with chemotherapy or radiation. This prospect frightens me to the degree I am considering taking her to Mexico for immune booster shots.

DEAR READER: I don't want to sound like a prophet of doom, but I think you should know that small-cell carcinoma of the lung, especially if it metastasizes (spreads) to the liver, is a very serious condition for which treatment is largely palliative (comfort-oriented). The cancer spreads rapidly and is resistant to radiation and anti-cancer drugs.

nausea, vomiting and malaise. She died exactly a year later, after putting her life in order and enjoying her grandson.

There are times when your choices of opening lead can make you feel spoiled. You have so many goodies it is difficult to know which way to turn first. But that is the time to read the map most carefully. Count your tricks and try to judge the best road to take.

Place your thumbs over the East-West cards and decide how you would play in three no-trump against a spade lead, won with dummy's queen.

It isn't often you will end in three no-trump with 29 points and the struggle is for the ninth.

The hearts look tempting. You could make the percentage play for three tricks: Cash dummy's king, and lead the six back to your ace and the eight toward the jack. This will fail to produce three tricks only when East has Q-10 or Q-9 and at least two other cards. Here you are unlucky.

Well, not so unlucky. That was a 77 percent line, whereas the diamond suit provides a 100 percent guaranteed ninth trick. At trick two, you should cash dummy's diamond ace, just in case East has a singleton honor.

If an honor appears, you dislodge the other honor. If only low cards appear, lead a low diamond back toward your jack. However the suit is distributed, you will eventually collect a second diamond trick and your contract.

True, you might survive by playing hearts first and finding them unfavorably distributed, but not if the cards are as in the diagram.

Why did West lead a spade rather than a club? Because he had a weak hand and knew declarer to be short in the

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 May 11, 1991

Temptation to make basic alterations in your lifestyle could be prevalent in the year ahead. All changes should work out well, though, provided they are not based upon impractical thinking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Under most conditions, you are a determined individual. But, friends could talk you out of doing what you know you should be doing today, and you may later feel guilty. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Disappointment is a possibility today — if you predicate your expectations upon an unrealistic premise. Try to see things for what they are, not as you wish them to be.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're too indecisive today, nothing worth bragging about is likely to be accomplished. In fact, the inability to make up your mind could also annoy companions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may spend so much time worrying about how well individuals with whom you're involved are handling things today that you might not have time to do a proper job yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Just because a certain tactic worked well for a friend doesn't mean you'll see similar results. If you attempt the same thing, you may wind up empty-handed and confused.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to steer clear of involvements where you have no say in the decision-making today; the judgments rendered may not serve your best interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could lose points with others today — if you don't hold yourself accountable for things done incorrectly. Try not to blame someone else for your mistakes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Time is a critical factor in your productivity today. Your chances for accomplishing your desires lessen in direct proportion to the time you spend dilly-dallying.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If there is something important that you and your mate are having difficulty deciding upon today, try to work it out between yourselves rather than discussing it with outsiders or in-laws.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to spare the feelings of another today, you may rework the facts a bit in regard to what you have to say. Unfortunately, when the truth is later revealed, your pal could become angry.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Share fairly today with people who helped you acquire something of value, but, by the same token, don't feel obligated to make a payoff to someone who has done nothing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others could have difficulty discerning your motives today, and there is a chance that one of your well-intentioned gestures might produce the opposite effect for which you were hoping.
