Unemployment

Seminole's Jobless Rate Inches Up To 6.7 Percent; Still Lowest In Area

By MICHEAL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's unemployment rate rose for the fifth straight month in November, but the state economist says better times are just around the corner.

The county's jobless rate rose to 6.7 percent in November, up .1 percent from October's revised 6.6 percent rate and up 1.1 percent from July's 5.6 percent rate.

Sterling Tuck, an analyst for the Florida State Employment Service's Winter Park office, said the unemployment rate should drop in December and economic conditions should continue to improve through 1983.

"I think we'll see a better rate in December," Tuck said. "It started out slow but things were picking up at the end."

The area's dependence on tourism was largely responsible for the increase in unemployment over the past few months, Tuck said. As people in other regions began to feel the economic crunch they have reduced their traveling, he said. But Seminole County's high technology industry, particularly electronics and computer facilities, have kept the employment picture relatively steady here.

Christmas employment usually reduces the jobless rate somewhat but this year's Christmas results should be even more encouraging, Tuck said.

The stores weren't gearing up as much as usual in the first part of the month, but sales picked up as December progressed and many businesses had to hire a lot of people, Tuck said.

That month-end buying surge indicates that people are less reluctant to spend, Tuck said, adding that the trend should carry over into the new year.

"I think things bottomed out in December and started on the way back," he said.

Tuck expressed some concern about the growing number of people coming to Central Florida seeking jobs.

In November, 97,103 people were employed in Seminole County with another 7,010 looking for work. About 8,000 new jobs have been created since last November when the county's unemployment rate was 7.7 percent, he said.

The three-county Central Florida metropolitan area (Seminole, Orange, and Volusia counties) had an 8.3 percent unemployment figure in November, up from 8 percent in October and 7.4 percent a year ago.

Tuck said the .9 percent increase over the year represents a 23.3 percent rise, pointing out that increase outstripped the 8.9 percent increase in new jobs over the past year.

Tuck reported that 30,500 new jobs were created in the tri-county area over the past year, but an additional 36,900 people have joined the work force.

"When you consider that an 8.9 increase in jobs is significant, the increase in unemployment is really something," he said.

Tuck said most of the new job-seekers are people who've come to Florida from the economically depressed areas of the north.

Seminole County's jobless rate has climbed steadily over the past few months but has remained the lowest in the area. Seminole's jobless rate was 5.6 percent in July, but climbed to 5.8 percent in September and 6.6 percent in October.

In nearby Orange County, the unemployment rate was 6.5 percent in July, 7.4 percent in September and 8.1 percent in October.

Tuck said the increase in the Central Florida jobless statistics is evidence that the sluggish economy has begun to affect the area which has been bucking the state and national trend toward higher and higher unemployment.

The national unemployment figure has gone to nearly 10.5 percent and the state average has climbed to 9.5 percent.

County Buying Land Needed For Expansion

Seminole County commissioners are set to buy two parcels of land which they consider crucial in the planned expansion of county facilities.

County Attorney Nikki Clayton said a contract has been signed with Geraldine C. Kirk to purchase an 8.7-acre tract near the Zayre Shopping Center in Sanford for use as a new health clinic.

Ms. Clayton said the county will pay $167,910 for the rectangular piece of property along Airport Boulevard.

She said an agreement has also been reached with Dynamic Development Inc., an Illinois investment firm, to purchase an 15.85-acre parcel adjacent to the county's Five Points complex along U.S. Highway 17-92.

Commissioners will be asked to approve the $481,000 purchase price at their Tuesday meeting. The price is the maximum that was authorized by commissioners at a work session earlier this month and is 30 percent more than the appraised value of the property.

The land purchases are significant because the acquisitions are considered pivotal to the county's plan to build more space for county offices.

The county plans to construct a $15 million, 30,000-square-foot building on the Airport Boulevard property to house the health department's Sanford clinic. Commissioners also looked at an adjacent 13.7-acre parcel with a $267,000 price tag but chose the smaller lot because its shape is more conducive to development.

The Five Points property is being eyed for construction of several county facilities including a new administrative center which would house county commissioners and some staff agencies.

Acting County Administrator Jim Easton said no timetable has been set for construction of the health clinic or any buildings on the Five Points property.

Commissioners will have to gain zoning approval from Sanford officials before they can develop either piece of property. — MICHEAL BEHA

Try Bitter Almonds And Raw Eel Washed Down With A Bloody Mary

EDITOR'S NOTE: Realizing that the dawn of 1983 may find some of our readers plagued by the aches and pains of New Year's Eve overindulgence, we thought we would try and help them through the day with some popular remedies to their malady. The various "cures" listed were gleaned from conversations with accomplished drinkers and Seminole County tavern keepers.

By BRITT SMITH

You say you started out toasting the old year, then the New Year and the last thing you remember is raising a glass in honor of 1982?

You say you'd like to watch the bowl games on TV, but you're not sure you can stand the noise?

Cheer up! There's still time before the kickoff to try one of several New Year's Day hangover remedies touted by Central Floridians in a position to know about such things.

There's one for every taste, for the hair-of-the-dog-that-bit-you man to the give-me-a-pill type. And plucked from the pages of ancient history come a few treatments that may be worse than the ailment itself.

By far the most popular remedy locally is a variation of the Bloody Mary and the most ambitious variety of this miracle cure came from a patron of The Barn in Sanford.

Greg Moore, a self-professed expert on the subject of the Morning After, says, "Before going home, I get me a bottle of Alka Seltzer and a half gallon of tomato juice. Then, I take six Alka Seltzers in three glasses of tomato juice and go to bed. I always feel pretty good afterwards."

The extra Alka Seltzers and tomato juice are presumably taken the next day if the first dose doesn't quite take.

Along the same lines, Roland Coffey, a regular at the Cavalier Motor Inn lounge in Sanford, recommended beer and tomato juice, calling the mixture "Red Eye." For really bad hangovers, Coffey recommends adding a raw egg and a good portion of milk to the brew.

The true Bloody Mary also has been said to have a wonderful restorative effect. Take two ounces of tomato juice, a like amount of gin, add the juice from half a lemon, a dash of either Tabasco or Worcestershire sauce and ice. Mike DeLucia, a beer lover at Cassidy's in Longwood, has several suggestions he has fashioned into something of a ritual.

"First of all, always eat before you go home," he says. "Take a spoonful of baking soda in a large glass of water before you hit the sack and drink a Bloody Mary and take three or four aspirin when you wake up in the morning." He guaranteed "you'll feel bright eyed and bushy tailed in no time."

Between sips of a mid-afternoon scotch and water at El Torrito in Altamonte Springs, Lowell Shirr recommended "vitamin B1 in a dose of at least 300 milligrams."

Lewis Jones Jr., sitting nearby nursing a whiskey sour, had a more colorful, if considerably messier solution. Jones said he combats an alcohol-induced throbbing headache, nausea and a feeling that the entire French Foreign Legion has marched out of the desert and across his tongue by frying "about a half pound of bacon" and soaking up the grease in six slices of white bread and making three "grease and bacon sandwiches."

Boy Killed By Rope A Good Rider

By VICTOR ASSERBOHN
Herald Staff Writer

Tragedy struck a Sanford businessman's family on Christmas Eve when their teenage son crushed his windpipe after riding his motorcycle into a rope stretched across his path.

Dwane E. Russell, 15, of State Road 415 in Osteen died four days later on Tuesday at Orlando Regional hospital without seeing the shiny new 80cc Yamaha motorcycle that was going to be a Christmas gift. His funeral was today.

Dwane, whose father and uncle own Russell Brothers Aluminum Anodizing and Coatings, Inc., 1001 Cornwell Road in Sanford, was riding a similar dirt bike in the garden of his parents' home at about 1:15 p.m. on Dec. 24 when he rode into the rope that had been stretched between a tree and a gatepost a few days earlier.

Dwane's father, Charles Russell, was too upset to talk about the tragedy but his brother, David Russell, said, "He (Dwane) and his dad were putting up a gate and the post support wasn't quite strong enough. Until they could put up a tie, a rope was put up."

The Florida Highway Patrol, which investigated the tragic accident, estimated that Dwane was probably doing 20 to 25 mph when he struck the rope.

His uncle, who speaks proudly of Dwane's achievements as a top scorer in 80cc dirt races, said, "I think he knew the rope was there. He was so involved, he was probably thinking of Christmas and wondering if he was getting a new bike."

He said his son and Dwane, who were more like brothers than cousins were both careful riders who had never been injured in a race.

Dwane, his uncle said, had gotten his first motorcycle when he was eight years old and had been racing for three years.

He was a member of Florida Trail Riders Association and the American Motorcycle Association.

"After he hit the rope he walked into the house. He knew he had crushed his trachea," his uncle said.

Dwane was a sophomore at DeLand High School and was a member of All Souls Catholic Church in Sanford and All Souls Youth Group.

Dwane, moved with his mother, father and sister to Osteen from Miami three years ago.

Dwane Russell, a 15-year-old Osteen youth who died Tuesday from injuries sustained in a motorcycle crash, is shown in action on his dirt bike.

'82 Was A Banner Year For GOP, But Democrats Vow To Come Back

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's Republican and Democratic party officials received some good news and some bad news from local voters in November.

For the Republicans, it was mostly good and for the Democrats it was mostly bad.

While statewide, there were election gains by Democrats, that was not the case in Seminole.

Democratic Gov. Bob Graham took Seminole County easily, but while Democrats U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles and Florida Secretary of State George Firestone also won, they both lost Seminole.

Seminole was one of the few in the state where the majority of voters preferred State Sen. Van Poole of Ft. Lauderdale for the U.S. Senate and State Sen. Jim Smith of South Florida, both Republicans.

And the electorate kept its all-GOP County Commission intact by re-electing incumbent Bob Sturm. Sandra Glenn did not have opposition and thus was automatically elected to a second term.

The Democratic party lost its four-term state Rep. Robert Hattaway of Altamonte Springs from the legislative delegation when Hattaway tried unsuccessfully to unseat Republican State Senator Tom Jennings of Orlando.

The party's 10-year veteran on the delegation was Sen. John Vogt who was given another two years in office. Vogt, from Cocoa Beach, is the lone Democrat on the county's seven-member delegation.

The expanded legislative delegation now has the following Republican members: State Rep. Bobby Brantley of Longwood, chairman; State Reps. Carl Selph of Casselberry and Art Grindle of Altamonte Springs, freshman members of the Florida House; State Rep. Tom Drage of Orlando; Miss Jennings, and state Sen. Dick Langley of Clermont.

In addition to being able to boast of its five member County Commission, Republicans can also point to the reelection of U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum of Altamonte Springs.

Bill Kinane, chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, said the results on election day as far as his party is concerned were very successful, "unfortunately much more successful than the party was in the rest of the state."

"I'm very proud of the caliber of candidates we were able to present to the electorate in Seminole and the voters responded to that quality," he said. Kinane said 1983 will see Seminole Republicans getting ready for the 1984 elections. "A lot more positions will be available, basically courthouse races. In the past, the party, in some situations, has not run candidates against incumbents. We would like to correct that," he said.

Currently, the Democrats hold four courthouse offices — supervisor of elections, sheriff, tax collector and clerk of the circuit court. Thirty-one year veteran Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce recently announced her retirement as of March 1 and has submitted her resignation to Gov. Graham.

Sheriff John Polk, Clerk of the Circuit Court Arthur H. Beckwith Jr., and Tax Collector G. Troy Ray Jr. have held office for many years. Polk is already planning his re-election bid and will be holding a campaign fund-raising barbecue early in 1983.

Beckwith had stiff GOP opposition two years ago, but Polk and Ray won reelection unopposed.

Neither Ray nor Beckwith have said whether they will run for re-election in 1984.

Marvin Meltzer, chairman of the Seminole Democratic Party, said party members worked together in complete harmony in the 1982 campaign and a lot of old wounds were healed.

"We got the governor 10,000 to 12,000 more votes here than he received in 1978, so we did well," Meltzer said.

"Coming into the 1983-84 election season, we are more optimistic than we were in 1980. At the rate the economy is going with President Reagan, I feel we have a very good shot at coming back again," Meltzer said.

A major goal for 1984, Meltzer said is to break the GOP dominance on the County Commission. "I have a few people we want to run for the County Commission. We are going to field candidates for all the races in 1984 and we have a good shot at getting a majority on the commission."

Seminole May Hire A 'Ditch Architect'

A Sanford engineering firm has been recommended by Seminole County Public Works Director Jack Shuder to design a court-ordered drainage ditch in Sweetwater Oaks.

Schuder has asked county commissioners to hire Conklin, Porter & Holmes, 500 W. Fulton St., on an emergency basis to design the ditch around the perimeter of Harold Merts's 11-acre Wekiva estate.

The matter is scheduled for discussion at Tuesday's commission meeting.

Merts sued the county in 1978 and two adjacent property owners after an accidental flood ruined a vinyl-lined lake he had built on the property.

But the county claimed Merts's lake was built in a natural recharge area and had altered the natural flow of water in violation of a previous development agreement.

Seminole Circuit Judge Robert McGregor ruled in Merts's favor and when the state Supreme Court last month refused to hear the case, the county was ordered to build the ditch around Merts's property by June 8.

He estimated the cost of drawing up preliminary plans for the project, a construction timetable, and a cost estimate will carry a price tag of $10,000 to $15,000.

IN BRIEF

'Accidental' Poisoning May Have Been Murder Attempt

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — A truck driver whose wife's illness originally was blamed on a cyanide-laced Anacin-3 capsule has been arrested for attempted murder.

Police said Thursday the woman was not poisoned by the headache relief medication, but they refused to say what poison sent her into a coma.

Richard R. Bowen, 29, was arrested Thursday night on charges of attempted murder and poisoning medicine. He was booked into the Santa Clara County Jail without bail.

Mrs. Bowen, 30, fell ill Nov. 26 and was admitted to a hospital in critical condition. Bowen told authorities then he thought his wife had been poisoned by an Anacin-3 capsule.

Bowen turned over a bottle of the capsules to state health department officials who found some of them did contain cyanide.

Bowen, before his arrest, retained San Francisco attorney Melvin Belli to represent him in a multimillion-dollar damage suit against the American Home Products' Whitehall Laboratories division — the maker of Anacin.

Stock Prices Take Tumble

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street enters the last day of explosive 1982 today trying to shake off the effects of a sharp and unexpected hike in short-term interest rates that drove stock market prices sharply lower Thursday.

The Dow Jones Industrial average plunged 12.23 points to 1,047.37. In the past three sessions, the market has just about erased Monday's 25.48-point surge that put the closely watched average at an all-time high of 1,070.55.

Even though seasonal factors were involved, investors were startled when the federal fund rates banks charge one another for overnight loans climbed more than a point.

Chemical Bank, U.S. Trust and Bankers Trust jolted investors Thursday by hiking the rate they charge brokers for loans to 11 1/2 percent from 10 percent and that killed an initial rally attempt.

The rise in interbank loan rates was one reason no other major bank followed the lead of Chase Manhattan which lowered its prime lending rate this week to 11 percent from the prevailing 11 1/2 percent level.

Hijacking Foiled; All Safe

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A man who allegedly tried to hijack a United Airlines Boeing 727 with 80 passengers aboard was taken into custody Thursday night after the pilot told him he was running out of fuel and had to land at Greater Pittsburgh International Airport.

No one was injured in the incident and the passengers all left the airliner safely, said Darrel Knopf, an air traffic controller at the Pittsburgh airport.

The suspect, whose identity was not immediately known, was taken into custody by FBI agents.

Book To Resume Tax Fight

The Rev. John Butler Book, minister of the North Side Church of Christ near Altamonte Springs, will resume his fight to remove the church from a county taxing district.

Book said he will resume his fight against Seminole County commissioners early in 1983. Commissioners voted in September not to allow the church to withdraw from the Florida Haven Lighting District.

County lighting districts are funded by a special tax levied upon the users of the system.

Book contends the user tax is unconstitutional. Churches are tax-exempt, he told commissioners in September.

But commissioners said the lighting district tax is really a fee. Churches are exempt only from property taxes, they said.

Book has contacted Attorney James Ball of Harrisburg, Pa., about presenting the case in Seminole County Circuit court.

Filing an appeal has been delayed pending Ball's work in the case of Bob Jones University now before the U.S. Supreme Court. A lower court has removed the school's tax-exempt status because of alleged discrimination.

"They wanted to get the Bob Jones University case behind them," Book said.

He has forwarded all the materials collected in the case to Allen's office.

Thirty other churches in the county pay lighting district fees, according to Director of Public Services and Development John Percy.

Overtown Quiet; Travel Resumes, Stores Reopen

MIAMI (UPI) — Officials lifted their restrictions on Overtown, but police today still warned white motorists away from the ghetto where two days of riots killed two people and injured 26.

About 200 policemen—the same force as usual—are to be on hand to protect the Orange Bowl parade, expected to draw 500,000 spectators despite the violence that broke out Tuesday over the fatal shooting of a black man by a Hispanic police officer.

During the violence 43 people were arrested — mostly for burglary and looting, three businesses were destroyed and at least seven others were vandalized or badly damaged.

Overtown was relatively quiet Thursday and early today and City Manager Howard Gary lifted the restrictions he had slapped on a 250-block area of the slum Wednesday. Travel through the debris-littered area resumed and bars, liquor stores and service stations reopened.

Measles Epidemic Over

MIAMI (UPI) — The measles epidemic that infected more than 200 students in Dade County this autumn, and sent thousands more scurrying for inoculations, has been declared officially over by health officials.

Dade Health Director Dr. Richard Morgan announced Thursday that the countywide "measles emergency" declared Nov. 8 will end when classes resume Monday.

He said that no new cases of rubella — called the "bumps" by students — have been reported for more than two weeks.

Sheik Faces Charge

MIAMI (UPI) — Billionaire sheik Mohammed al-Fassi faces up to 20 years in prison on charges of kidnapping his four children and taking them to Saudi Arabia, violating Florida court orders.

Authorities issued an arrest warrant for the wealthy in-law of the Saudi Arabian royal family Thursday.

Al-Fassi violated two court orders to keep his children in the state during a custody battle with his estranged wife, Sheka Dena, Dade County Assistant State Attorney Leonard Glick said.

Little Headway Made In Troop Withdrawal Talks

United Press International

Lebanon, stymied in its first two rounds of talks with Israel on the withdrawal of foreign troops from its territory, turned today to intensive talks with U.S. officials in hopes of drafting a compromise agenda for the negotiations.

Israel's state-run radio said differences still remained on Israel's demand to include normalization of relations with Lebanon on the agenda and a Lebanese request for a greater role for Washington in the negotiations.

But Lebanon has insisted the withdrawal of 30,000 Israeli, 40,000 Syrian and 10,000 Palestinian troops from Lebanon be the priority issue at the talks, the first between the two nations since they signed an armistice in 1949.

Poland Ends Martial Law

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland formally ended martial law and returned the government to civilians today with no fuss or fanfare but left intact an array of controls to prevent any resurgence of civil unrest.

Martial law, imposed Dec. 13, 1981 in a massive crackdown against the independent Solidarity labor union, was lifted at midnight Thursday in keeping with Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's goal to end military rule by the end of the year.

The ruling Military Council of National Salvation will continue to supervise a civilian government, military courts will try key political crimes, and the military will remain in control of some factories.

Under special legislation passed by parliament Dec. 18, the authorities are empowered to reimpose martial law immediately if social unrest erupts again, and have wide powers to punish its opponents with fines and possible jail terms.

Economic Picture Good, Bad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New home sales and economic indicators suggest a bright economic future. But new claims for unemployment benefits show a lot of people are suffering — now.

The government reported Thursday the sale of new houses jumped 12 percent last month — reaching a two-year high and strengthening a housing-industry recovery that may help end the recession.

The improvement came despite a record selling price for the average new house of $88,600 in November, the Commerce Department said. The annual rate of new house sales reached $69,000, the fastest pace since November, 1980.

The government also reported Thursday, the index of leading economic indicators climbed 0.8 percent in November, continuing to point toward an economic recovery eagerly awaited since spring.

Seven of the 10 individual measurements making up the Commerce Department's composite index showed improvement, making the month's change more broadly based than any since July, although still relatively shallow.

President Reagan's spokesman said the report is a signal "the economy will recover."

wide, the picture is bleak with a growing legion of new jobless people.

New claims for unemployment insurance benefits went up to 544,000 during the week ended Dec. 18, an increase of 11,000 after adjustment for unemployment patterns typical of this time of year, the government said Thursday.

The Labor Department's report showed the first increase in the seasonally adjusted total in five weeks. The increase brought the figure closer to the adjusted 598,000 level for the week ended Nov. 13 that helped produce November's 10.8 percent national unemployment rate, the highest since the end of the Great Depression.

NEW SHELTER

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Thursday for the Seminole County Humane Society's new animal shelter along U.S. Highway 17-92 near Sanford. Taking part in the ceremonies, from left, were Bryce Baker, building committee chairman; Jo Anne Prager, director; Helen Wolk, president; John Whittington, director; Barbara Woodwall, vice president; and Mary Cille, treasurer. Whittington announced Thursday he will donate $25,000 to the shelter's building fund. The society recently received a $50,000 matching grant from the Edyth Bush Charitable Foundation in Orlando.

John Lawson, Veteran Sanford Educator, Is Dead At Age 71

Funeral services were held today for veteran Sanford educator John Aaron Lawson Jr., 71, of 400 E. Eighth St. in Sanford, who died Sunday at the home of his daughter in Orlando.

The Rev. Amos Jones officiated at the 1 p.m. service at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church for the Sanford native, and lifelong resident who was born Feb. 17, 1911.

A retired school teacher, Mr. Lawson taught agriculture at Crooms High School (formerly Academy from 1936-1972. Jones, pastor of St. Paul Church and director of the Seminole Community Action, Inc., as a Crooms student benefited directly from Mr. Lawson's influence.

"What can you say about one who has influenced so many lives in good and constructive ways in his setting in the public school system," Jones said. "He was much more than a teacher, he was a mold of men, a builder of character. That trait he exhibited wherever he went in school, church or community. His influence has been felt in so many areas of the community."

Jones noted that Mr. Lawson served on the Democratic Executive Committee and after his retirement from teaching, "in its beginning years the Community Federal Credit Union was a one-man operation and he was that man."

Jones, who as a student was state president of the New Farmers of America, said his first public speaking was done as a result of Mr. Lawson's efforts. "He was an enormous benefit to me and others as well," he said.

Mr. Lawson was a graduate of Crooms and Florida A&M University. He did further study at Iowa State College and earned a master of science degree from the University of Illinois.

He was a member of St. Paul's Missionary Baptist Church where he served as superintendent of Sunday school, on the trustee board as chairman of the deacon board and church treasurer. He was a member of the Seminole County Voters' League and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, of which he was historian; the National Education Association; the National and Seminole County Retired Teachers Associations.

He was a member and worshipful master of the Masonic Lodge; he was a Shriner and a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge, Florida A&M Alumni Association, American Woodmen Celery City Lodge 542, a Royal Arch and the Knights of Pythias.

Survivors include a daughter, Jeannell L. Walden, of Orlando; one granddaughter, Joselyne Walden; one sister, Josephine Lawson Bidgood, of Reading, Pa.; one brother, Richmond J. Lawson Sr., of Winter Park; two nieces and three nephews.

Burial was in the Eichelberger Cemetery, Lawson Funeral Home, Winter Park, was in charge of arrangements.

Dental Assistant Society. Survivors include a daughter, Donna Haines, of Longwood; her father, Curtis A. Hawk, of California; her mother, Annice A. Andropov Says 'Every Chance' Of Arms Pact

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Yuri Andropov said he would "welcome" a summit meeting with President Reagan, affirming there was "every chance" of reaching agreement on arms control.

"There is no more important task in international politics than that of pushing back the growing threat of nuclear war, of checking and stopping the nuclear arms race," Andropov said in written answers to questions submitted by an American newspaper columnist.

Andropov defended Soviet disarmament proposals as "simple and logical" and urged the Reagan administration to respond with "a manifestation of goodwill."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said there appeared to be no change of position in Andropov's comments, but President Reagan "certainly would be willing to participate" in a summit provided there was reasonable chance of success.

Andropov's comments, distributed Wednesday by the official Tass news agency, were friendly in tone and seemed directed to the American people as much as the U.S. administration.

They contained no criticism of President Reagan's arms control proposals, reflecting what appeared to be a positive mood at the Geneva talks on strategic and medium-range nuclear weapons.

Speakes, in Palm Springs, Calif. with President Reagan, said of Andropov's summit overture, "With adequate preparation and a reasonable chance for success, we would certainly participate, but there is nothing in the works."

Police On Lookout For Drunk Drivers

United Press International

Police nationwide planned extra patrols to look out for drunken New Year's revelers and cab and bus companies were joined by a car dealer and a group of hospitals in a pledge to get drunks out of their cars.

The National Safety Council estimated between 300 and 400 people will die and 14,000 to 19,000 will suffer disabling injuries during the long holiday weekend, which began at 6 p.m. local time Thursday and ends at midnight Sunday.

Safety experts estimate many — if not most — of the weekend traffic deaths will be linked directly to drunken drivers.

A United Press International count early today found at least two fatalities — one each in Illinois and North Carolina.

Sheriff's deputies and volunteers in Cabell County, W.Va., will drive drinkers home New Year's Eve.

The Milwaukee County Transit System will provide free bus rides on all routes starting at 3 p.m.

The Tri-Met bus service in Portland, Ore., also is offering free bus rides to party-goers.

A Fort Worth, Texas, car dealer, hospitals in Memphis and San Diego, an Indianapolis motor club and a Vincennes, Ind., taxi company are offering free transportation for would-be drivers who had too much to drink.

Memphis' St. Joseph Hospital is sponsoring Carecab for the second straight year.

... Hangover Cures

Crude, but effective, Jones claims. Even so, it lacks a certain pizzazz characteristic of the first lovers of John Barleycorn. For instance, history tells us that in the Middle Ages, hung over Englishmen downed a mixture of bitter almonds and raw eel. Pliny, the Roman scholar, was said to favor raw Owl's eggs, and the Assyrians were fond of ground swallow's beak mixed with myrrh.

If you're fresh out of swallow's beak and myrrh, a favorite Swiss cure may be a little easier to come by — brandy with a dash of peppermint. Hearty Germans like sour herring and beer, while Russians prefer salted cucumber juice.

If your stomach has had all it can stand, try the Puerto Rican faith healer's remedy — rub half a lemon in your armpit.

All this may be unnecessary, of course, since a large part of getting drunk could simply be a state of mind.

The American Psychological Association, in a survey of studies on drinking and alcoholism, says it has found support for the idea people can get high simply by believing they will — even if all they're drinking is soda pop.

"Whatever a person feels when he or she takes a drink is a combination of physical effects and psychological beliefs about alcohol," the association quoted Barry H. Burkhardt, an Auburn University psychologist, as saying.

"If you take a drink expecting to feel high and silly, you are going to feel that way, even if there is little or no alcohol in your glass."

Be that as it may, the pain many will feel tomorrow most definitely won't be psychosomatic. But while the search for charms to soothe the savage head and stomach has gone on since the first caveman tipped one too many glasses of Dinosaur Punch, there is no real cure for a hangover, not even in this age of miracle drugs.

Dr. Franklin Clontz, chief of staff at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, said, "Basically, there is nothing you can do." Getting over the Night Before is a withdrawal process and it takes the body a certain amount of time to rid itself of the toxins which cause it to cry out for relief from the effects of Demon Rum.

Clontz explained that the over imbiber's headache is caused by alcohol dehydrating the brain, causing it to shrink.

The restorative process is slow, he said. "There is no way to speed it up."

"I've never found a home remedy that works," the doctor said. "The best cure is not to drink." But if you do, "all you can do is sweat it out."

And those are the cold, sober facts.

Power Is Interrupted

Some areas of Seminole County were without electricity for a while Thursday as the result of the second power failure at a Florida Power & Light Co. plant in three days.

In north Seminole and Volusia counties 3,900 FP&L customers were affected by the blackout, while Florida Power Corp. had about 50,000 customers affected in the Orlando area.

The FPC and Tampa Electric Co. customers were affected because the utilities are hooked into a grid system which results in a domino effect shutdown when a major problem exists.

Thursday's problems were caused by a malfunction at FP&L's St. Lucie Power Plant near Fort Pierce at about 10:25 a.m. The reactor shut down when an equipment failure occurred.

Tuesday's power blackout was a result of a malfunction at the Turkey Point nuclear plant near Miami.

The Time Has Come To Talk

As expected, Jordan's King Hussein made no dramatic advance in President Reagan's peace plan, which envisions a self-governing Palestinian entity in a confederal association with Jordan.

This is not to say, however, that no progress was made. The king set forth the conditions for his participation in negotiations with Israel, Egypt and the United States on the future of Palestinians in the occupied West Bank under the Camp David peace formula developed in 1978.

There is forward movement in the very definition of Jordan's position, which has been an enigma ever since the Arabs, at their 1974 summit in Rabat, designated the Palestine Liberation Organization as the sole authority to represent the Palestinian people.

Until the Arabs lift the PLO's monopoly on negotiations, King Hussein is technically without portfolio, he can't even speak officially on the West Bank issue. Actually, the king has been brought to the Middle East's front and center by the Reagan plan because, without Jordan, there is no plan. And because Israel and the United States are not on speaking terms with the PLO, and vice versa, King Hussein has become the de facto PLO spokesman. PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat has been quick to recognize this, conferring repeatedly with Hussein during recent weeks.

Indeed, the reconciliation of these old Arab enemies has been such that the conditions spelled out by King Hussein to President Reagan are thought to be as close a consensus as can be expected now from the splintered PLO.

As might be anticipated, the Hussein stipulations represent the optimum Arab position. They are a canny jumping off place for future negotiations: A freeze on Israeli settlements on the West Bank; advance agreement by Israel to withdraw from occupied territories; U.S. acceptance of a Jordanian-Palestinian negotiating team, including a member designated by the PLO; total withdrawal of Israel from Lebanon; U.S. guarantees of the territorial integrity of Jordan from both Israel and Syria; and, finally, surrender by Israel of East Jerusalem, which the Arabs wish to be the seat of government for any Palestinian entity in the West Bank.

Obviously, some of these conditions are altogether unrealistic. Indeed, taken together, they would leave Israel and the United States nothing to negotiate. The Israelis, for example, have sworn never to divide their capital city. And, it isn't likely that either President Reagan or Congress would agree to guaranteeing any border in the Middle East.

On the other hand, Israel can and should make certain concessions that are easily available in order to show good faith and promote the peace process. For instance, because the Israelis seem eager to extricate themselves from Lebanon as soon as necessary security arrangements can be worked out, why not formalize this intention in behalf of the Reagan plan? Moreover, holding fast against pushing more settlements into the occupied areas would cost nothing and should be a harm-free concession for Prime Minister Menachem Begin to make.

But, with Israel militarily supreme and in possession of the disputed land, there will be no resolution of the Palestinian-West Bank problem without concomitant concessions by the Arabs. Prime Minister Begin's testy assertion that there must be negotiations finds no effective rebuttal.

The Camp David accords were possible only after Anwar Sadat jumped the Arab traces and made his pilgrimage for peace to Jerusalem. Unfortunately, King Hussein is not strong enough to do that. He cannot go it alone because he is more dependent on support of Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf states, which have displayed a disappointing lack of interest in the Reagan proposal. So, a necessary requirement will be to gain support from the Saudis and their neighbor.

Now that Jordan has at least defined its position, Israel should follow suit. Perhaps Mr. Begin can be prevailed upon to do this when he visits Washington in late January or early February. Any negotiation, as a matter of fact, must begin with a definition of what both sides want.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Look at it this way, we now have an excellent climate for comedy in the nation. People WANT TO LAUGH when times are bad."

The deaths of Don and Lucille Bundy of Longwood occurred Christmas week within one day of each other. The very close couple had suffered varied serious illnesses over the years and took good care of each other.

Lucille was a registered nurse who did a lot of private duty work with the elderly before she became incapacitated herself.

Don had been public works director of Altamonte Springs for some years before his retirement just a few years ago.

And Don was devoted to his job. During the years that Lawrence Swofford was mayor there, Bundy was his right hand man. Swofford, who was not an easy taskmaster to please when it came to anything involving the city — he wanted the best for the community he created and insisted on it.

Bundy lived up to his expectations. Swofford used to be fond of telling the story about how he and Bundy were out on an inspection tour one day when Bundy insisted in an urgent fashion that Swofford stop the car immediately.

The power company or telephone company was preparing to dig in the soil at the side of a road. Bundy leaped out of the car, walked briskly to the scene and insisted on showing the workmen where to dig.

He knew the city's water and sewer system so well that he could point on site to the exact location of a utility line. And that's what he did. Swofford appreciated that dedication.

After his retirement those who were still busy working to earn their livelihoods saw Bundy and his Lucille seldom. But he was a special man and his mark, invisible as it has become as Altamonte grows, is still there.

County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, pressed with other responsibilities since her election by colleagues as chairman of the county commission, will no longer be representing the county as a delegate to the Council of Local Governments. After four years, she is giving up that task.

When some city representatives were asked recently who they preferred as county representative in 1983 the response was Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff of Sanford.

And Kirchhoff is accepting the appointment. Kirchhoff is expected to attend the Jan. 3 meeting.

It's Good Money After Bad

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If the 11 steam generators originally ordered for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor were supposed to cost a total of $56 million, how much should the Department of Energy pay for the first two units?

In the Alice in Wonderland world of the CRBR project, the "correct" answer to that question is $143 million.

Federal officials originally solicited competitive bids for the steam generator contract but rejected all of the offers received, including a proposal from the Foster Wheeler Corp. to provide all the generating units for $20 million.

They then awarded a non-competitive $56 million contract to Atomics International, a division of the Rockwell International Corp. Six years later, the government had received only two of the 11 units but had paid more than two and a half times the cost of the complete order. The contract was belatedly canceled in 1981.

That episode is typical of the CRBR project, which has become notorious for cost overruns, chronic delays and slipshod production — yet which continues to receive billions of dollars from the federal government.

When the White House made a commitment in 1972 to build the nuclear-powered generating station in Tennessee, the project was supposed to be a joint venture between the federal government and a consortium of more than 750 utilities represented by the Project Management Corp.

The original cost estimate for the project was $400 million, with the utilities pledged to pay more than half of that amount. But they secured an agreement from the federal government which limited their liability to their original commitment of $257 million.

Today, Clinch River Breeder Reactor cost estimates are in the range of almost $3.6 billion or more. "The best index of the project's true worth," says energy expert Denis Hayes, "is the private sector's adamant refusal to shoulder any of the awesome cost escalations the project has seen."

The CRBR's insurmountable problems were apparent as early as 1973, when the principal subcontractor, Burns & Roe, conducted an internal review of its involvement in the project. A company memo summarizing that examination said:

"The Project Management Corp. general manager has privately advised Burns & Roe to get out of the . . . job now, since it does not have a chance of success and could harm us badly."

By 1981, a House subcommittee had produced a report characterizing CRBR as a management fiasco and financial disaster. "The principal prime contracts have been written without binding provisions for cost, schedule or specific technical performance," noted the scathing congressional assessment. "It is not clear whether this bizarre practice is a symptom or a cause of the state of disarray in the project."

The principal rationale for the project in the early 1970s was that a breeder reactor produces more nuclear fuel than it consumes, thus providing an inexhaustible supply of fuel for the 1,000 nuclear powered generating stations then expected to be in operation by the end of this century.

Now, however, that estimate has been drastically scaled down to fewer than 150 nuclear power plants. At the same time, a glut of uranium has led to a sharp reduction in the price for that reactor fuel, down from $40 per pound in 1977 to $17 per pound today.

JACK ANDERSON

Ethics Panel Boss: Reluctant Watchdog

WASHINGTON—Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., a lanky, Yale-educated cattle rancher, is no Marshal Dillon in his role as guardian of the Senate's morality. The Ethics Committee chairman is a reluctant watchdog at best.

At one point, Wallop criticized the whole idea of a code of ethics, saying, "It's bad for the morality of the Senate and bad for the public's perception of the Senate." He suggested senators should not have to disclose all their personal financial holdings, but only potential conflicts of interest. Indeed, he felt the individual senator should judge his own potential conflicts.

A look at Wallop's record may explain his views on the code of ethics. My reporter Jack Hatfield has checked the senator's financial holdings against his legislative activities in the Senate.

The investigation shows that Wallop, who is also chairman of a key public lands subcommittee, has consistently promoted legislation that would enrich oil companies listed in his own stock portfolio.

Wallop's financial ties to the oil industry are substantial. He owns between $50,000 and $185,000 of Exxon, Chevron and Standard Oil of Indiana stock. He has also received more than $80,000 in royalties from Getty Oil since 1978. Last year he got $4,000 in speaking fees from oil-related organizations, and Big Oil pumped $115,000 into his campaign chest during 1981-82.

Despite this financial interest in the oil industry, Wallop has not shied away from legislation affecting Big Oil. And under the anything-goes spirit of the ethics code as enforced by Wallop, the legislation he has championed is considered only "incidentally related" to his personal finances. You decide:

—Wallop's Wyoming Wilderness Bill would open up 300,000 acres of public land, including the pristine Gros Ventre proposed wilderness area near Jackson Hole, to oil and gas leasing. Getty-Oil has been battling in court for the right to develop an estimated $2 billion in oil and gas reserves there. If Wallop's bill passes, the court case may be moot.

—A shale-oil bill was co-sponsored by Wallop and reported out of the Energy Committee with his help. It would dramatically expand shale-oil leasing on federal reserves in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming. Chevron, Standard of Indiana, Getty and Exxon all have shale tracts on or near the 300-billion-barrel federal reserve that Wallop's bill would open up. Standard of Indiana has publicly listed the bill as a top lobbying priority.

—Wallop orchestrated a law that opened up more than 600,000 acres of land in Utah for tar-sand mining. It allowed companies with oil leases in the area to take over valuable tar-sand rights, free of charge. Chevron is planning a $1-billion tar-sand project on a $2,000-acre tract—700 acres of which was opened up by Wallop's legislation. Standard of Indiana has oil leases on 9,700 acres within the newly opened area, and has applied for tar-sand rights under the law.

—Wallop has also pushed for a $250 million tax-credit measure for shale-oil companies in the Senate Finance Committee.

Wallop sees nothing wrong in all this. "My personal holdings are a matter of public record," he said. "They create no conflict whatsoever. . . . Specifically, I have no knowledge of what energy stocks I may own and no control over them. Such stocks are held in irrevocable trusts created years before I came to the Senate."

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

The Academic Swamps

NEW YORK (NEA) — In the course of an otherwise fairly routine liberal attack on President Reagan's policy toward the Soviet Union, an article in the winter issue of Foreign Affairs poses — and answers — one question of considerable importance to every American. In the process, it sheds considerable light not only on Mr. Reagan's attitude toward Russia but on that of his liberal critics as well.

The article, entitled "Reagan and Russia," is co-authored by Seweryn Bialer and Joan Afferica. A footnote identifies Ms. Afferica as a professor of history at Smith. As for Mr. Bialer, it happens that I first ran into him back in June 1956, when the CIA surfaced him as a recent defector to the West who, until February of that year, had been a member of the Central Committee of the Polish Communist Party. The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, of which I was then associate counsel, was given the privilege of introducing him to the press, and I remember him only as skinny, bespectacled young fellow with a large mop of black hair. But he seems to have prospered during the intervening quarter-century, and to have pleased the regnant liberals of the American academy with his views, for according to Foreign Affairs he now luxuriates in the resounding dual titles of "Ruggles Professor of Political Science and Director of the Research Institute on International Change of Columbia University."

Most of the Bialer-Afferica article is taken up with lame attempts to show that the result of President Reagan's policy toward Russia "has been a sharp worsening of U.S.-Soviet relations to a level of serious new confrontation and mutual suspicion." The implication that, under able management, American relations with the Soviet Union today would take a turn for the "better," resulting in a lower level of "mutual suspicion," comes a little oddly, in the light of recent events, from a defected high official of the Communist Party of Poland. But it was a paragraph near the end of the article that really caught my eye:

"As now formulated," it begins, "Reagan's policies offer the new Soviet leaders only confrontation or capitulation. If, as sometimes appears, the Reagan administration believes that, owing to the nature of the Soviet system, Soviet foreign policies cannot be modified in the direction of a modicum of coexistence with the West, then American foreign policy is nothing other than an instrument for creating the best possible conditions for inevitable war between East and West."

Here we are at last told bluntly that "most American specialists on the Soviet Union" (including, of course, the two authors) are wedded lock, stock and barrel to the proposition that peaceful coexistence with Russia, under its present leadership, is a safe and dependable option for the United States. Maybe it is, and maybe not. But Mr. Reagan and his advisers would be foolhardy indeed — precisely as Carter and Nixon and Kissinger were foolhardy — to build any such assumption into the foundations of American foreign policy. And this country is ill-served by academic "specialists" who would push them in that direction.

Nobody — certainly not Bialer, who has good reason to know better — can guarantee the peaceful intentions of the Soviet Union, or predict with confidence how it will respond to either carrots or sticks. The steady hum of appeasement propaganda arising from the academic swamps is one of the principal reasons that Soviet power is being asserted successfully today from Afghanistan to Central America and from southern Africa to Vietnam and Cambodia — not to mention Professor Bialer's native Poland. We are lucky indeed to have at last an administration that is wise enough to understand that.

That, of course, is pure balderdash. Essentially it is just a long-winded professorial version of the old formula for appeasement: "We must either co-exist or codie." The problem is not what "the Reagan administration believes," or how it behaves, or how it behaves; the problem is "the nature of the Soviet system."

Apparently realizing this belatedly, the authors face up to it at last: "There is one question that must be forthrightly posed by American policy makers. Are peace and regulated competition with the Soviet Union possible without substantial change in the Soviet system? Most American specialists on the Soviet Union would answer with a clear 'Yes, it is possible.' Would President Reagan and his advisers agree?"

EDWARD J. WALSH

Christmas Around A Recession

We all knew Christmas would be different this year. Clergymen and public officials can do only so much to dispel the pall of economic decline that hangs over the nation, that sapped the lightheartedness of shoppers poking at discounted merchandise in the final days and hours of the pre-Christmas "rush."

Sales were disappointing nationwide. Retailers hoped, as they hope every holiday season, for a last-minute buying spree that would make year-end figures respectable, at least. J. C. Penney projected only a minuscule 2.9 percent increase in sales for December, compared to 7 percent last year. K mart hoped for 3 percent.

The sales slump wasn't uniform, even in hard-hit areas. Higbee's, a Cleveland retailer, was enjoying its best Christmas in years. Abraham & Strauss predicted "decent" Christmas sales. But lowered projections, and lower profits were the rule. Such consumer activity as did materialize in the final days was spurred by near-suicidal price slashing. The liquidation sales at F. W. Woolworth's 336 Woolco stores, symbolic of retailing feebleness, drastically affected sales at competing stores.

All of which shows that Christmas giving has limits that have nothing to do with returning to the true spirit of Christmas. The upshot, say the pundits, is that American consumers are ushering in a new era of lowered expectations for all.

The economic numbers reinforce those expectations. The consensus of 30 economists polled by Business Week was for an increase in gross national product of only 3.6 percent in 1983 over 1982, with the bulk of it coming in the fourth quarter — a full year away. The unemployment rate, they concluded, would hover around 10 percent. Current figures remain bleak across-the-board: personal income up a weak 0.4 percent in November; domestic steel production, while up 2.9 percent in the third week of December, utilized only 35.8 percent of capacity. That's a drop of 40 percent over the same time last year. Auto production, up faintly that week to 109,500 units, still paled before last year's same-time figure of 142,000.

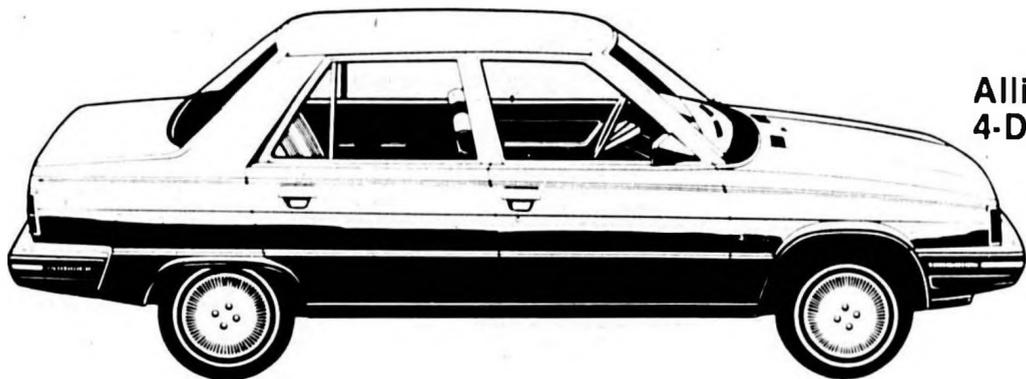

The lame-duck session of Congress, while making pious noises about the jobless, did next to nothing but pass a stand pat appropriations bill and a new 5-cent hike in the federal gas tax, intended to bilk more revenue from motorists and trucking firms.

The statistics are so disheartening. Yet the nation did celebrate Christmas, and prepared to ring in the New Year with the annual euphoria, promises, and hopes that mark the best of times. One found the hard, cold world of economics intruding on the holiday season a bit more this year. But still we celebrate, renewing our faith, and wondering, perhaps, why it seems stronger when times are hard. It may be that those of us who are favored with the gift of religious faith find it to be more precious than the wares hawked by desperate retailers. Thus in a subtle, quiet way, this holiday season resembled those of the richest of years.

OCALA — Sanford's Fighting Seminoles don't have to think too hard about a New Year's resolution after Thursday's game for seventh place in the Kingdom of the Sun Holiday Classic at Vanguard High School.

"We resolve to play all our future basketball games like the first half against Crestview and none of our games like the second half against Crestview." That will do.

Seminole put together its best basketball this year in the first 16 minutes Thursday, building a 31-19 lead against the state's number-one ranked 3A school in the final 16 minutes, however, the 'Noles fell apart like the "September Snow" of 1969 Chicago Cubs to lose a 61-48 decision and settle for eighth place (out of 16 teams) in one of the best tournaments in the South.

"I knew we were in trouble when they were laughing and joking at halftime," said coach Chris Marlette. "They thought the game was over."

 So did Crestview coach Ken Rogers. "I was counting two losses at halftime" said Rogers about his 12-1 powerhouse. "They had us on the ropes."

But the 8-6 Seminoles couldn't keep them there, partly because of second-half foul trouble to 6-2 center Willie Mitchell.

The aggressive junior turned in a devastating first half which marks Mitchell — a near miss on the all-tournament team — as a player to watch during the next year and one-half.

Mitchell scored 10 points and yanked down nine rebounds from his taller (6-4, 6-5 and 6-6) opponents as the Tribe rolled to a 12-point lead.

Point guard Vernon Law shook off a shooting slump with a 17-footer for a 2-0 lead. William Wynn followed with a basket and Bruce Franklin stole the ball and scored.

Crestview came back with jumpers by Pat Lawrence (2) and Florida-bound Joe Lawrence to tie the score at 6-6. Mitchell countered with two from inside the paint, the second on a beautiful spinning move. Wynn, who grabbed five boards in the first quarter, stole the ball and went high for a layup and a 12-6 lead.

Crestview bounced back, nevertheless, with seven straight points, the last three on a nice three-point play from Joe Lawrence for a 13-12 lead after one quarter.

Prep Basketball

In quarter two, the 'Noles took immediate control as Mitchell and senior Calvin "Kiki" Bryant each threw in six points and 6-4 Torie Hendricks added a key basket and kept the ball "alive" on the board several other times.

Seminole outscored Crestview, 19-8. The 'Noles hit 14 of 30 field goals (47 percent) and allowed Crestview just one shot at the basket. The Bulldogs hit 9 of 20 (45 percent) as Pat Lawrence tossed in eight and brother Joe had seven.

"That's the best first half we've played all year," said assistant coach Wayne Talbot. "We were really aggressive on the boards."

It wasn't the same team, though, in the second half.

An omen of what was to come occurred when Bryant grabbed the second-half tip and missed an uncontested layup which would have given the Seminoles a 14-point lead.

Moments later, Law stole the ball but threw up a brick which hit the bottom of the rim on his layup attempt. In the next two minutes, Mitchell missed four straight free throws while Richie Powell and all-tournament selection Kenny Siler started to warm up for the Bulldogs. Powell hit three jumpers, the last a three-point play to pull the 'Dogs within 35-30.

Siler, a 6-2½ leaper who was held to two points by Wynn in the first half, began to operate on the inside with the benefit of some nice lob passes.

He was fouled more often than not and the strong senior converted 11 of 12 charity tosses. Two of those gave Crestview a 37-35 lead and when Joe Lawrence, another all-tournament choice, hit one near the end of the quarter, it was 39-37 Crestview.

Hendricks immediately knocked the score at the outset of the fourth quarter, but the Bulldogs outscored the 'Noles, 10-2, in the next six minutes to put the game out of reach.

Siler, who scored 23 points to lead both teams, hit 10 consecutive foul shots in the fourth quarter. For the game, the 'Dogs converted 19 of 20. For the half, Crestview outscored Seminole, 42-17.

"We did everything we wanted to in the first half," said Marlette. "We knew they were going to press. We'd get past halfcourt and then travel or throw it away."

"We were definitely overconfident going into the second half," he added.

Bryant led the Tribe with 16 points but he had to take 24 shots (hitting eight) to do it. Mitchell had 13 points and 12 boards. Wynn added 10. Law passed the ball superbly for a season-high 12 assists. Seminole hosts DeLand in a Five Star Conference game on Tuesday before

Decatur Topples Vanguard, 53-49

OCALA — A strange thing happened to Ocala Vanguard on its way to defending its Kingdom of the Sun Holiday Classic Thursday night.

The Knights' spread offense didn't spread and Decatur, Ga. pulled out a 53-49 victory before a standing-room-only throng in the Vanguard gym.

Reminiscent of Tuesday's electrifying 67-58 victory of St. John's of Washington, D.C. Tuesday, the Knights had the ball with the score tied at 47-47 with 1:53 to play.

Reserve guard Paul Solomon, however, threw a pass a little too close to tournament MVP Darryl Gresham who took off like a greyhound down the right side for a layup and a 49-47 lead.

Vanguard coach Jim Haley signaled a time out and the Knights ran the clock down to 27 seconds before senior Phil Washington forced a shot from the foul line which bounced off.

"We wanted to take the shot with 15 seconds left and then beat them in overtime," said Haley about the strategy. "But the kids lost their composure at the end. Sometimes strategy works, sometimes it doesn't."

Decatur, which became the first out-of-state team to win the tournament in its nine-year history, received two free throws from point guard Travis Benton to seal the verdict.

Vanguard stayed in the game in the second half behind the hot shooting of junior Charles Thomas. The 5-8 sharpshooter hit five straight shots against the Decatur press to keep the Knights alive.

"Thomas can shoot, (Quintin) Cottor can't," said Haley about his diminutive guards. "That's why he was in there. But we didn't get any points inside, that's what hurt."

Thomas led Ocala with 12 points while Melvin Howard had 17 for Decatur and Gresham added 15.

Decatur, defending 4A champion of Georgia, has now won 37 straight games. The Knights fell to 8-4. — SAM COOK

'Noles Hang 31-12 Noose On West Va.

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Eight years ago in a fit of anger, a group of West Virginia fans hanged then-Mountaineer Coach Bobby Bowden in effigy.

"They put this rope around this dummy hanging from a tree and had my name on it," said Bowden, who suffered through a 4-7 1974 season in Morgantown and moved to Florida State two years later.

Bowden insists he holds no grudges toward West Virginia or its fans. But Mountaineer faithful still have little love for him, and Florida State's 31-12 whipping of No. 9 West Virginia in Thursday night's rain-soaked Gator Bowl surely didn't help things.

The 20th-ranked Seminoles, 9-3, used their explosive offense and a stingy defense to shut down the frustrated Mountaineers in the 38th annual contest.

But Bowden, who had never faced his old team until Thursday, had mixed feelings.

"It was great winning the Gator Bowl, but winning against West Virginia was not enjoyable," he said. "There was no thrill in that whatsoever. I spent 10 years up there, and those are good people."

Seminole sophomore Billy Allen turned in the big play of the game, electrifying a record Gator-Bowl crowd of 80,913 by returning a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown to break a 3-3 tie early in the second quarter.

The Mountaineers, 9-3, tried inching back as Paul Woodside booted his second three-pointer of the game, a 34-yarder with 1:13 left in the half.

But the Seminoles did their traveling in larger increments, driving 73 yards in less than a minute to take a 17-6 halftime advantage on Blair Williams' 27-yard scoring toss to a leaping Dennis McKinnon.

Florida State's Greg Allen, the nation's leading scorer this season, finished off the Mountaineers with scoring runs of 1 and 29 yards in the third quarter. He ended as the game's leading rusher with 38 yards on 15 carries.

"It was a sweet victory," said Williams, a senior who hadn't started since the second game of the season but drew the assignment because of his reputation as a strong thrower and passed for 202 yards. "They (Mountaineers) have a good team. We just caught them on a bad night."

Although West Virginia's defense is highly touted, it was Florida State's defensive unit that did the most damage. The Seminoles limited Mountaineer quarterback Jeff Hostetler to only 10 completions in 28 attempts for 118 yards.

"We had a great passing attack coming into the game," said Hostetler, who was intercepted twice by Florida State's Brian McCrary. "I don't understand what happened."

West Virginia Coach Don Nehlen refused to blame the steady downpour, which lasted most of the game, for his club's woes.

"The weather is not an excuse," said Nehlen, "but that's a long way to come to get rained on."

Florida State football coach Bobby Bowden claps some life into his Seminoles as fullback Manny Carballo looks for a spot on the bench. The Seminoles routed West Virginia, 31-12, Thursday night at the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville to the year at 9-3.

'Cross' Stetson Off Unbeaten List; Stambaugh Hits 14 But Tars Lose

WINTER PARK (UPI) — Russell Cross, who led Steve Field as the Purdue high scorer, connected on a free throw with two seconds left to give the Bolleermakers a 61-60 win over Stetson for the Tangerine Bowl Basketball Classic championship.

"I thought Stetson did a great job of defense in the first half," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady after Thursday night's game. "But we have a lot of games in the Big 10 decided in the last 10 seconds."

Cross and Reid finished the game with 13 points, and Dan Palombizio added 10. Frank Burnell led previously unbeaten Stetson in the contest, scoring 23 for a game high total. Glyn Myrick had 15 and Gary Mims added 12.

Stetson took an early 14-point lead in the game and had a 9 point, 33-23 advantage at the half.

"I think when Stetson got that 14 point lead it hurt them — they got a little lazy," said Keady.

The Hatters held the lead until a bucket by Reid with 6:54 on the clock gave the Bolleermakers their first second half edge, 50-49.

College Basketball

There were seven lead changes through the remaining minutes before Cross' free throw broke a 60-60 tie.

In earlier consolation play, Jim McLoughlin and Terrence Stansbury each scored 23 points to lead Temple to a 98-74 win over Rollins.

The Owls, 4-4, received career high scoring efforts from McLoughlin, Pete Aguilar with 18 and Charles Rayne with 17. Rollins (4-5) was led by former Seminole High student Glenn Stambaugh and Charles Frederick with 14 points each.

The game was tied four times in the early going and the lead changed hands six times before the Owls took a 15-14 lead at the 10:41 mark never to trail again.

United Press International
 It took a little while, but North Carolina apparently has developed the depth it needs to challenge for another national championship.

After a slow start, the Tar Heels were banished from the Top 20, but the NCAA champions moved back into the national spotlight with a 73-58 victory over No. 12 Missouri in Thursday night's Rainbow Classic championship in Honolulu. Do rankings matter right now?

"I honestly don't care at this point," Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina said. "I'll say this: we've improved. Missouri is the best team we've beaten and this is an important win for us."

"Our goal is to get to the NCAA and each of these games helps us en route. We're going to be a very good team. We're going to improve."

Sam Perkins scored 24 points and Michael Jordan added 19, but it was the work of three lesser-known players during a short spurt in the second half that sparked North Carolina, which avenged an earlier season loss to the Tigers.

Sophomore Buzz Peterson and freshman Brad Daugherty and Curtis Hunter keyed a 7-point spurt that gave broke the game open for the Tar Heels.

With the score tied at 52-52 and 11:11 left, Hunter connected on a field goal and Peterson and Daugherty each added 3 points to give North Carolina a 61-54 lead with 4:53 left.

Perkins then added 5 points and Jordan another pair to put the game away for North Carolina, 83.

"This is an ideal team," said Smith. "When Perkins got in foul trouble, we got crucial points from different people. I'm reluctant to talk about baskets, but those guys (Peterson, Brad Daugherty and Hunter) made tough points. Certainly we wouldn't have been able to do it without Perkins and Michael Jordan and also Matt Doherty."

For Missouri, which suffered its second loss in 11 games this season, John Sunvold scored 20 points and Steve Jipanovich added 12.

"North Carolina played a better second half," Coach Norm Stewart of Missouri said.

The top three teams in the nation won Thursday, with only No. 2 Memphis State being sternly tested. The Tigers, 9-0, proved they don't need optimum effort from 6-foot-10 sophomore Keith Lee to win with their 53-50 victory over Mississippi at Oxford, Miss.

Sugar Bowl Not Sweet For Lions

United Press International
 The Sugar Bowl has been anything but sweet to Joe Paterno and Penn State in the past.

Paterno's Nittany Lions have lost in all three previous visits to New Orleans over the last 11 years — 14-3 to Oklahoma in 1972, 13-6 to Alabama in 1975, and 14-7 to Alabama in 1978.

The second loss to Alabama cost Penn State the national championship and Paterno will be looking for his first such title when second-ranked Penn State battles No. 1 Georgia on New Year's night.

"I can't say I have fond memories of my previous Sugar Bowl visits," said Paterno. "This time, I hope we're better prepared."

The team is most concerned with stopping Heisman Trophy-winner Herschel Walker, who has 1,725 yards, 17 touchdowns and is the major reason the Bulldogs are 11-0. With 5,259 career yards, the junior is third on the all-time NCAA rushing list.

While there's no doubt Walker is a great back, Georgia Coach Vince Dooley feels he might be going up against a great team.

Dooley said, in the 19 years he's been Georgia's coach, "We've had the privilege of facing what I consider two great football teams. One was the Nebraska team of 1969 which went undefeated the next two years. The other was the Pitt team of 1976. Penn State could fall into that same category."

Paterno feels several of his 17 Penn State teams have been short-changed in the polls, so he's pleased the 1982 national championship will be settled on the field.

The Nittany Lions, 10-1, are 3-point favorites. Georgia won its first national championship two years ago by beating Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl.

"This may be the best team I've had (in his 17 years as head coach), but who's to say," Paterno said.

Tonight's bowl schedule includes No. 12 Arkansas against No. 19 Florida in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston, Tennessee against Iowa in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta and Vanderbilt against Air Force in the Hall of Fame Bowl at Birmingham, Ala.

On Saturday, No. 4 SMU takes on No. 6 Pittsburgh in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. No. 10 Oklahoma faces No. 11 Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz., No. 5 UCLA squares off against No. 17 Michigan in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., and No. 3 Nebraska takes on No. 13 LSU in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Paul "Bear" Bryant coached his last football Wednesday night and went out with a win — a 21-15 victory over Illinois in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn.

IN BRIEF

Bills, New England Shoot For Playoff Berth Sunday

United Press International
Amid the complexities of the NFL's revised playoff formula, the Buffalo Bills and New England Patriots meet in Schaefer Stadium Sunday surrounded by simplicity.

If the Bills, who are field-goal favorites, win, they advance to the AFC playoffs with a 5-4 record. A loss and they're out. The Patriots, 4-4, also will earn a playoff berth with a victory. A loss means they're out.

What about a tie?
First, Cleveland would probably ask for an NFL investigation because a tie would advance both the Bills and Patriots into the playoffs if the Browns, also 4-4, lose to Pittsburgh. That is the only scenario in which the Browns don't clinch a playoff spot Sunday. Rookie Coach Ron Meyer has the Patriots on the playoff edge after inheriting a 2-14 team, but he is not without his detractors. Among Meyer's vocal critics is All-Pro guard John Hannah, whose barbs haven't demoralized the first-year coach.

"I'm happy we're here, needless to say," Meyer said. "We're in a big, big transitional period and we can make it one of the greatest things that ever occurred by winning Sunday."

The Bills have lost two straight and Coach Chuck Knox described his club as "a not very good football team."

"We haven't been since the strike. We're 2-4 since then and that's not indicative of a good football team." But the Bills enter the game with the AFC's No. 1 defense and No. 1 rushing attack.

"You can't just pick two areas," Knox cautioned. "We have to consider the whole thing. Our pass offense has been very, very poor and we've been hurt by turnovers and penalties. You have to put points on the board."

During the pre-game buildup, Meyer has been asked more about stemming the internal friction on his team than about the Bills' offense. He is determined to put the bickering behind him.

"You win this game, and it's the start of a new season with a tremendous reward for a football team," Meyer says. "We've got to lock in mentally, alleviate the distractions and have the maturity to handle the situation, knowing the single important thing is the game."

Elsewhere Sunday, the Los Angeles Rams are at San Francisco, Chicago at Tampa Bay, the New York Giants at Philadelphia, the New York Jets at Kansas City, Atlanta at New Orleans, St. Louis at Washington, Miami at Baltimore, Cincinnati at Houston, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at Detroit, the Los Angeles Raiders at San Diego and Denver at Seattle. Dallas is at Minnesota Monday night.

Seahawks For McCormick

SEATTLE (UPI) — Some 50 members of the Seattle Seahawks, many of them starters, have signed petitions asking the club's ownership to retain interim Coach Mike McCormick for next season, it was reported today.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer said the petition was signed at a player meeting earlier this week in hopes of convincing Elmer Nordstrom, the principal owner of the Seahawks, to sign the former Baltimore Colts head coach for the 1983 season. "It's extremely flattering. I appreciate it," McCormick said.

Army Turns To Jim Young

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Jim Young, who once coached Michigan in a Rose Bowl game, is the man Army is turning to in search of its first winning season since 1977.

Young, who resigned as head football coach at Purdue last year to become the school's associate athletic director, Thursday was named to replace Ed Cavanaugh as head football coach at Army.

Cavanaugh's contract was not renewed following the 1982 season.

Young, 47, was an assistant to Bo Schembechler at both Miami of Ohio and Michigan before becoming head coach at the University of Arizona in 1973. When Schembechler suffered a mild heart attack in 1969, Young — then the Wolverines' defensive coordinator — assumed head coaching responsibilities for the 1970 Rose Bowl game.

"Jim Young brings to us the ingredients we feel are needed in order to build a winning football program," said Carl Ullrich, director of athletics at Army. "He has been a successful coach at two first-rate institutions, and we are very pleased to have Jim become a key member of our coaching staff."

Mother Wants "A Lott" More

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI) — The mother of the 3-year-old son of the San Francisco 49ers' Ronnie Lott has asked a judge to order the All-Pro defensive cornerback to increase his $75 monthly support.

Lott, a second-year player, was not in Superior Court Wednesday for a brief hearing on a complaint filed by Catherine Nece, on behalf of the child, Ryan Necem Judge Pro Tem Larry Novack set the case for Jan. 18.

Midnight Run Starts 1983

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 3,000 people will start the New Year running in The Midnight Run, an 8-kilometer race starting at the stroke of midnight Saturday.

The race, sponsored by The Runner and Brooks, starts and finishes in Central Park and is an open event. Last year's winner, Greg Meyer, will be challenged by Canada's Dave Edge and West Germany's Michael Spottel. In the women's division, English standout Wendy Smith will be joined by Laura DeWald, Marge Rosasco, and past winner Kathy McIntyre.

Jackson Plans To Resign

ATLANTA (UPI) — Bobby Jackson, defensive coordinator at Tennessee for three years and an assistant coach for six seasons, plans to resign after the Vols play Iowa in the Peach Bowl Friday, Coach Johnny Majors said Thursday.

"There comes a time in any job when you have to move on and that time has come for me at Tennessee," said Jackson, 42, who said he intends to remain in coaching, but has no specific plans.

Explosive Gators Meet Tough Hogs' Defense Tonight

HOUSTON (UPI) — Florida vs. Arkansas may be enough to make a grown man cry, especially if that man is a Bluebonnet Bowl sponsor.

Long known for its offensive fireworks and exploding scoreboard, the Bluebonnet Bowl in the Astrodome is saddled this evening with a truly outstanding defense — Arkansas' — and a truly mediocre offense — Arkansas'.

All-America end Billy Ray Smith heads an outstanding cast that leads the nation in scoring defense — although they face a strong challenge to that superiority in the best-balanced Gators' offense in years.

Record-setting quarterback Wayne Peace and senior sparkplug Bob Hewko spearhead a unit that rolled up a school record 4,500 yards.

The first meeting between the teams finds Arkansas 8-2-1 and 12th ranked while Florida is 8-3 and No. 19.

Kickoff is 7 p.m. EST in the comfy indoor stadium where there is a tradition of touchdowns.

But both teams' kicking is shaky, and indications are defense will dominate. Everything Arkansas does defensively is based Smith, the 6-foot-4, 230-pound son of the former Baltimore Colts' all-pro.

"Arkansas has great confidence in Billy Ray," said Gators offensive guard Dan Fike. "He will line up at end, tackle or nose guard. You never know where he will come from. How well Billy Ray does is how well Arkansas does."

Smith is surrounded by a supporting cast of all-Southwest Conference players who have been together for years.

On the other hand, Florida's defense is a patchwork quilt of the halt and lame — the survivors of 22 starters this season at 11 positions. But that unit faces much less of a force in an unsteady Arkansas' offense that does not have a top quarterback. And the Gators are limping less with a month to heal.

College Basketball

Arkansas is less than a touchdown favorite because of its defense.

Arkansas' Lou Holtz, who is coaching in his sixth bowl other than the Cotton since he came to the Ozarks, wants to play sophomore quarterback Brad Taylor for experience purposes. He is not as steady as senior Tom Jones but he can light the fuse on a bomb and sometimes ignite the offense.

The Gators' offense will hurl equal amounts of excellent running and accurate short passing at Arkansas in the form of backs Neal Anderson, Lorenzo Hampton, James Jones and John L. Williams — and quarterbacks Hewko and Peace.

Florida Coach Charlie Pell said he would reward senior Hewko with a start, but look for Pell to substitute quickly with record-setting Junior Peace.

"I don't like it one bit," said Peace of the non-starting role, his first in 12 games this season.

The Hogs' Smith, all-Southwest Conference nose guard Richard Richardson and all-SWC tackle Earl Buckingham stuffed opponents this year until an all-important game against Southern Methodist loomed. They lost in a game before the big game and then were tied by SMU.

As a result Arkansas, 8-3, had to settle for the Bluebonnet instead of the Cotton and was drubbed by Texas 33-7 in the final regular-season game.

Pell said former Ole Miss Coach Steve Sloan told him the Razorbacks' defense was better than Georgia's, which stopped

Senior quarterback Bob Hewko will start tonight for Florida against Arkansas in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston. The game will be televised by ABC-TV (channel 9) at 7 p.m. For ESPN viewers, the game will be tape-delayed one hour and start at 8 p.m.

the Gators 44-0 Nov. 6. Early this season, the Gators looked like a genuine worldbeater, but the teams with outstanding defenses like Louisiana State and Georgia stopped them. Oddly, neither team had a strong kicking game. Smith, playing in his last game, will handle the field goals for the first time since coming to Arkansas. For Florida, sophomore Bobby Raymond will replace the injured Jim Gainey.

Gilmore Answers Call, Free Tosses Nip Spurs

United Press International
The "Ice Man" was on the sidelines and the heat was on the men in the middle. San Antonio's Artis Gilmore answered the call with two clutch free throws, while Chicago's Dave Corzine loudly questioned an official's call and was ejected in the Spurs' 105-102 win over the Bulls Thursday night in Chicago.

Gilmore and Corzine had switched uniforms in an offseason trade and the 7-foot-2 Spurs' center was making his first return to Chicago. He scored just 14 points, but his two free throws snapped a 102-102 tie 1:45 remaining, helping to hand the Bulls their fourth straight loss. Gilmore conceded he may have been pressing too much before his former fans.

"I'm a veteran player and I should know better," Gilmore said. "Unfortunately, when you want to play well, it doesn't always happen."

Corzine scored 17 points but had been ejected by the time Gilmore sank the decisive free throws, for protesting an offensive foul called against him by referee Bill Saar with 9:55 remaining in the game and had to be restrained by teammates.

"... I feel bad because I know I cost us two technicals that put us farther behind," Corzine said. "It possibly cost us the victory."

Pro Basketball

For the second straight night, San Antonio was forced to play without leading scorer George "Ice Man" Gervin, who is nursing a bruised heel.

In other games, New York edged Cleveland, 94-89, Milwaukee dumped Dallas, 111-99, Portland trimmed Kansas City, 113-107, San Diego routed Houston, 108-90, Indiana nipped Utah, 115-114, Boston outraced Denver, 145-132, Phoenix clubbed Detroit, 115-98, and Los Angeles crushed Seattle, 137-117.

Knicks 94, Cavaliers 89
At New York, Bernard King scored 27 points, Bill Cartwright had 16 and Trent Tucker added 12 in New York's second win over Cleveland in as many nights.

Bucks 111, Mavericks 98
At Milwaukee, Marques Johnson scored 32 points and Sidney Moncrief added 19 to lead Milwaukee to its fourth win in five games. Dallas lost its third straight.

Trail Blazers 113, Kings 107

Fluke Goal Deadlocks Whalers, Capitals

United Press International
Hartford Whalers' Coach Larry Kish probably felt worse when he woke up New Year's Eve than he will New Year's Day.

The Whalers' 4-4 tie against the Washington Capitals Thursday night was rougher on Kish than any New Year's celebration could be. Hartford lost two defensesmen to injuries and were tied on a controversial fluke third-period goal as the Capitals overcame a two-goal deficit.

"I thought this was one of the games we should have won," Kish said. "We just didn't get the chance to salt it away after they tied us."

Hartford had taken a 4-2 lead 1:14 in the final period on Blaine Stoughton's 21st goal of the season. But Craig Laughlin made it 4-3 at 6:59, on his second goal of the night, beating Hartford goalie Greg Millen with a rebound of his own shot.

Forty-two seconds later, Chris Valentine, recently recalled from the minors, shot a 10-foot wrister, which just eluded Millen and barely made it across the goal line, to tie the game, 4-4.

Millen and the Whalers protested the puck had not completely crossed the goal line, but referee Denis Morel refused to change his ruling.

Hartford lost defenseman Mickey Volcan with a sprained right wrist and Ed Hospodar with a bruised collarbone midway through the game and both were taken for X-rays.

In other games, the New York Rangers bounced New Jersey, 5-2, and

Hockey

Philadelphia pounded Calgary, 6-3.

Rangers 5, Devils 2
At East Rutherford, N.J., Anders Hedberg scored two goals and Mike Rogers notched the game-winner for New York. Rogers snapped a 2-2 tie at 9:50 of the third period and Hedberg's second goal provided insurance less than three minutes later.

Flyers 6, Flames 3
At Calgary, Alberta, Bob Hoffmeyer and Paul Evans scored goals during a 1:53 span early in the second period to lift Philadelphia to its fourth straight victory, snapping Calgary's four-game winning streak. Kevin Lavallee scored at 14:56 to give Calgary a 2-1 edge but the Flyers rebounded in the second period with the Hoffmeyer and Evans goals and defenseman Mark Howe scored from the slot with 16 seconds left in the second period for a 4-2 lead.

Hedberg Storms Away
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — New York Rangers' right wing Anders Hedberg stormed from the dressing room Thursday night after scoring two goals in a 5-2 Rangers' victory over the New Jersey Devils, irate over questions concerning his linemate and compatriot JJJ Nilsson.

"No comment, I'm in a bad mood. It's not personal, I don't want to comment on that," Hedberg snapped.

At Kansas City, Mo., Mychal Thompson scored 26 points and Jim Paxson added 21 to help Portland snap a two-game losing streak.

Clippers 108, Rockets 93
At Houston, Randy Smith scored 23 points, Craig Hodges added 19 and Bill Walton had 15 points and 12 rebounds to lead San Diego to a second-half comeback.

Pacers 115, Jazz 111
At Salt Lake City, Herb Williams' 20-foot basket at the buzzer gave him 31 points and lifted Indiana. The Jazz's Darrell Griffith scored a gamehigh 36 points.

Boston 145, Nuggets 132
At Denver, Cedric Maxwell led six Boston players in double figures with 27 points, snapping Denver's three-game winning streak.

Suns 115, Pistons 98
At Phoenix, Ariz., Alvan Adams scored 23 points and added 11 rebounds and 7 assists to lead Phoenix. John Long led Detroit with 26.

Lakers 137, SuperSonics 117
At Inglewood, Calif., Norm Nixon led Los Angeles with 24 points, for its sixth straight triumph, to move 1½ games ahead of Seattle in the Pacific Division.

For Saturday, January 1, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY

Jan. 1, 1983
This coming year sudden shifts in conditions or unusual changes will prove lucky for you, especially where your career is concerned. Be prepared to move with events. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to get what you want today it may be necessary to first prime the pump. The channel for receiving will open when you start giving. Order now: The NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic combinations, compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Capricorn Astro-Graph predictions for 1983.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Authorship is not all that important today. If your companions have a better way of doing things, be supportive and go along with the group.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Put your ingenuity to work today and you'll find difficult tasks can be performed with ease. If you don't employ your thinking cap, the jobs could be tough.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) As long as you keep things light and breezy, friends will be supportive of your efforts today. However, if you start to pressure them it will be another story.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Let events run their course today, rather than try to force uncalculated changes. Things are trying to go your way, so don't bungle the blueprint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Before making any agreements today, iron out all details to avoid any unexpected conditions which could tempt you to go back on your word.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Personally handle today any situations of financial importance to you. If you delegate matters to others, they could be mismanaged.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Activities you'd enjoy today may not be equally as appealing to your mate. Take his or her feelings into consideration before making plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will go out of your way to be helpful to others today, provided it is of your own choice. If people make demands on you, you may refuse to comply.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to pin yourself down to a rigid schedule today. You'll want to avoid situations which could lock you in. Stay foot-loose and fancy-free.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is one of those days when your objectives can be fulfilled if you don't push too hard. Getting uptight is likely to impede your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to take yourself or others too seriously today. If you don't turn molehills into mountains you'll be able to step right over them.

Reader Is Harried By Hacking Cough

DEAR DR. LAMB — What can I do to stop my hacking cough? I had a bad cold three weeks ago and I'm still coughing. I take aspirin and drink lots of water but it doesn't seem to be helping. Usually when I have a cold I take aspirin and drink lots of water and it seems to help a lot but this time my cough hangs on. It is worse when I go to bed at night. I am fairly comfortable during the day but I wake up with this need to cough and it is really interfering with my sleep. Do I need antibiotics? Or should I be using a gargle to control the cough? If so, which one?

DEAR READER — It is not too surprising that your cough is worse at night. Bed rest is one of the most abused treatments for a cough. Lying down doesn't cure anything and it allows secretions from your nose to drain into your throat. They stimulate your cough reflex until you have a coughing spell. It doesn't matter whether an allergy or a cold increases the secretions, the mechanical effects of lying down that induces coughing are the same.

Aspirin may relieve the pain and discomfort that accompanies a cold but it will not help your cough at all.

Gargles won't reach the area that induces the cough so you can forget those, too.

Antibiotics are very important in controlling bacterial infections of the throat or even bacterial infections that involve the lungs, but they are useless in the presence of a viral sore throat or a virus cold that affects the nasal passages.

Of course, it is important to avoid irritants. High on the list here is tobacco smoke. If you smoke it may cause your cough to hang on.

Anyone who has had a persistent cough for 10 days or more should see a doctor. You may not be right about what is causing your cough. He may also be able to prescribe something after he knows what is causing the cough.

You need to read The Health Letter 8-10, Cough: How and When to Treat It, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a son who was infected with gonorrhea six months ago. He went to the doctor and the doctor gave him two shots of penicillin and two sulfa pills. The doctor said that would take care of it and he didn't have to come back.

He is planning on getting married soon. I have tried to get him to go back to the doctor but he won't.

I heard on TV that penicillin will not take care of gonorrhea and that they have a new medicine that will but it is very expensive. Is this true?

How would a person know if he still had gonorrhea?

DEAR READER — Your son is probably fine. While there are cases of penicillin-resistant gonorrhea, the vast majority in the United States are still sensitive to penicillin. I suspect your son really got the two large shots of penicillin with probenecid to prevent loss of the penicillin through the kidneys. That keeps the blood level of penicillin high.

We now know that some men may have gonorrhea and have few if any symptoms. Usually men have a discharge or burning. The diagnosis is made by finding the bacteria in a smear of the discharge.

For our last hand of 1982 we have picked one with no real problem in either bidding or play. South has a standard 16-point no-trump and North has a standard raise to six with his 17 high-card points. It was dealt in an IMP team match and both South players were down one at the no-trump slam. Nevertheless, it decided the match because one pair took the result lightly while the other pair made a Supreme Court case out of it.

The slam was an even proposition and no one faults a pair for either bidding or not bidding that type of slam.

At table one North said, "I guess I bid too much." "Your bid was fine," South replied. "The same slam will be bid at the other table as long as my opposite number opens a no-trump. There is nothing to worry about."

At table two, South granted, "Couldn't you have bid just four no-trump and given me some leeway? You had 4-3-3-3 distribution and no spot cards."

"Hey, I had 17 points," North said indignantly.

From then on the conversation got stronger and stronger.

Who won the match? Team one, of course. Team two's North-South pair had nothing but bad results from then on. They were too mad to think.

Linda Peterson, R.D. Easter Repeat Vows

Linda Diane Peterson and Richard David Easter were united in Holy Matrimony Dec. 10 at Pinecrest Baptist Church, Sanford. The Rev. Mark P. Weaver performed the candlelight and double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Peterson, 600 Upsala Road, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Greathouse, Clarksburg, W.Va., and Richard Easter of California.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride chose for her vows a formal white organza gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, full puffed sleeves and a fitted natural waistline accented with appliques of Venice and Chantilly lace. The bouffant skirt, edged in a deep Chantilly lace ruffle, cascaded into a graceful chapel train. Her Chantilly lace veil was accented with seed pearls and irridescent. She carried a cascade of white and burgundy Cara Mia roses interspersed with stephanotis, baby's breath, variegated holly and cedar.

Miss Darlene Hankey served the bride as maid of honor. The matron of Honor was Mrs. Phyllis Williams. Each wore a burgundy brocade chiffon dress with a fitted waistline and tiny straps topped with a matching jacket. Each carried a white muff with burgundy and white Cara Mia roses, variegated holly and cedar. Their headdresses were fashioned from the same flowers.

Allen Cloyd attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Paul Peterson, John Williams, Jere Dotten and Jeff Dallas.

Flower girls were Kristina and Lori Peterson. Jimmy Rabun was the ringbearer.

The reception was held at the Police Benevolent Association building in Sanford.

Following a wedding trip to West Virginia, the newlyweds are making their home in Crystal River where the bridegroom is assistant fuel handler for Florida Power Corp.

MRS. RICHARD DAVID EASTER

TWIGGY: 'I'VE GOT A SECRET, EMIL'

"Twiggly," an oversize version of the world-famous water-skiing squirrel by the same name, has a secret for Emil Mitchell of Sanford, a recent patient at Central Florida Regional Hospital. Twiggly whispers to Mitchell that he will be dismissed in time for Christmas at home. Twiggly, a dancing and skating "squirrel" from Melodee Skating Rink, Sanford, visited CFRH patients, delivering picture books and cheer to them during the holidays. CFRH employees added to the visits by singing to the patients.

Healthy House Plants During Winter Months

House plants often are confronted with adverse growing conditions during the winter months. The following are key factors in keeping house plants healthy, particularly during winter.

All house plants must have light. The best light is a southeastern exposure of filtered, never direct sunlight. Attempt to locate the plant in a permanent location, as constant moving exposes plants to changing light conditions. Too much light or direct light often causes burning of plant foliage.

House plants are often over-watered while a few may be under watered. Try to water as the plant needs it. The best key to watering is to allow the top of the soil in the pot to become fairly dry prior to watering, then water well, soaking the soil. Most house plants, depending on size of pot, location, type of soil and size of plant will need weekly waterings.

A lack of water will cause yellowing and wilting of plants. However, these same symptoms are characteristic of too much water. If leaves are wilted due to lack of water, they will become turgid after a good watering. If the leaves do not become turgid after a watering, then probably too much water has been given over a period of time causing damage to the root system.

Winter heat in homes is often very hard on house plants. The ideal temperature for most plants in the home is from 65 to 75 degrees during the day, and a 55 to 65 degree night temperature. Avoid placing plants near heat sources.

Humidity or moisture in the air is necessary and beneficial to most tropical house plants. A 40 to 60 percent relative humidity is ideal, yet this cannot be provided in homes during winter, as heating systems dry out the air. To increase the indoor humidity from time to time, syringe the plant foliage with a fine spray of water. Another method of increasing the humidity is placing the pots on gravel, which is covered with water. Place the pots on the pebbles, being certain that the bottoms are not sitting in the water.

House plants must have a loose, well-drained soil. Packed soils should be loosened from time to time, being sure not to damage the root system. Plan to repot plants in spring when growing conditions are best.

Most house plants require little fertilization during winter since rapid growth is not made at this time. Feeding once every two months will be adequate for most plants.

Avoid drafts and provide fresh air. Plants do not like locations which expose them to cold or hot air. They also suffer from gas fumes and products of incomplete combustion, which makes fresh air essential during winter.

Clean the plant's foliage by washing with warm water. You may add a drop or two of detergent to the water used for cleaning the leaves. Rinse washed leaves with clear water to remove soap film. Keep plants attractive by removing dead leaves and faded blooms.

All Extension Programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

About Strawberries

"SweetHeart" is a strawberry with a medium sized fruit that can be grown by home gardeners directly from seed.

According to Alan Arrowsmith, Executive Vice President of Pan-American Seed Co., West Chicago, Ill., SweetHeart is being introduced for the 1983 season and will be widely available to home gardeners both as seed through mail order catalogs and as started plants from garden centers and nurseries.

SweetHeart is an everbearing strawberry that will produce all over the United States. Seventy percent of the plants will flower and fruit the first year. Home gardeners can expect fruit about 140 days after sowing. Trials in the south showed that "SweetHeart" continued to produce fruit (although at a reduced rate) throughout the hottest weather.

In Pan-American Seed trials "SweetHeart" produced as much and more fruit than "Ozark Beauty" which is one of the best-known ever-bearing strawberries for the home garden.

Have Happy New Year By Taking A Day At A Time

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bathroom mirror where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of those resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character.

I hope you will repeat that column every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me.

NEVER TOO OLD

By popular demand, my "resolutions" column has become an annual tradition, and here it is:

DEAR READER: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own:

Just for today I will try to live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will try to be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will try to change those things that I can change and accept those things I cannot change.

Just for today I will try to improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do a good deed for somebody — without letting him know it (if he or she finds out I did it, it won't count.)

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to cut down. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise — even if it's only walking around the block, or using the stairs instead of the elevator.

Just for today I will be totally honest. If someone asks me something I don't know, I will not try to bluff; I'll simply say, "I don't know."

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself, "Is it true?" "Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk softly, act courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking.

Just for today I'll not try to improve anybody except myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and will try to get a better perspective on my life.

Just for today I will be unafraid. I will gather the courage to do what is right and take the responsibility for my own actions.

Dear Abby

I will expect nothing from the world, but I will realize that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

P.S. Have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace LOVE, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if there is an organization for people who suffer from manic depression. The local mental health center can't help me.

I have had seven nervous breakdowns; psychotherapy did not help me. I am nearing my rope's end and thought perhaps by speaking to someone with the same affliction we could enlighten each other. Any help you could provide would be appreciated.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Get in touch with Recovery, Inc., 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60603. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the address of the chapter nearest you.

This organization has been enormously helpful in providing support and encouragement for people with your problem. God bless and good luck.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PEOPLE WHO APPRECIATE CONTEMPORARY POETRY: Get "If I Loved You More," by James Kavanaugh (Dutton, $1.95) — a lovely thought-provoking collection of poems worth owning and giving to someone you love.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 32923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Donovan Snips Paperwork

Secretary of Labor Raymond J. Donovan has announced a major reduction in paperwork for nearly one-half million employers, beginning Jan. 1.

"About 474,000 employers in industries shown to be the least hazardous will be exempt from maintaining on-the-job injury and illness forms currently required by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration," Donovan said.

Department statistics show that approximately 94 percent of the employers in the industries being exempted could be expected to have fewer than two injuries per establishment on an annual basis. Since so few injuries occur in these establishments, most employers and employees would reasonably be expected to recall any injuries without the need to refer to an OSHA injury-illness log.

Donovan said the industries to which the exemption will apply include certain retail trades, finance, insurance, real estate and service industries, none of which has been subject to a general schedule inspection by OSHA over the past five years. The records — a log of injuries and illnesses, a supplementary record, and an annual summary — were primarily kept to enable OSHA inspectors to assess a workplace's condition during programmed general inspections.

At the same time, however, Donovan emphasized the firms still remain subject to inspection in response to employee complaints, the cases of fatal or multiple hospitalization accidents, or imminent danger situations. A small percentage of the firms also will be required to participate in the Bureau of Labor Statistics annual survey and maintain an OSHA injury-illness log for the survey year.

Fusion Breakthrough Hailed

PLAINSBORO, N.J. (UPI) — Scientists compared the first successful test of a nuclear fusion reactor to Columbus landing in North America and said fusion will allow cleaner nuclear power through the process that makes the sun shine.

An elated Harold Furth, director of the Princeton University's Plasma Physics Laboratory, said Tuesday the giant Tokamak fusion test reactor was turned on for the first time at 3:06 a.m. Christmas Eve following months of around-the-clock activity.

The reactor worked as intended and gave scientists hope the process could replace the atom-splitting, waste-producing fusion process today's nuclear power generators use.

"It's like Columbus finding the New World. The question is not how big it is, but that they found land," he said.

Instead of splitting an atom, fusion creates power by squeezing matter and heating it up to 300-million degrees Celsius until hydrogen atoms fuse, releasing a gush of energy.

It's essentially the same thing that happens in the core of the sun or other stars, where the nuclei of small atoms fuse to form larger nuclei without the dangerous release of radioactivity caused by fission's bombardment of relatively larger atoms like plutonium, the scientists said. The temperatures achieved in a fusion reactor are more than 10 times hotter than those at the core of the sun.

Japan, Britain, the Soviet Union and other industrialized nations are making similar experiments, but the fusion breakthrough at Princeton appeared to give the United States the current edge in the race for cheaper energy.

"What we did here isn't just for the newspapers, it's for the history books," said Dale Meade, deputy project director.

Although fusion is still in experimental stages and not expected to be available to energy users until the second quarter of the 21st century, scientists hope eventually it will be cheaper and have fewer problems of nuclear waste disposal created by fission.

The $314 million Princeton reactor is the third and largest at the university. It is hoped that by 1986 it will create as much energy for each test as it takes to run the test.

Planning is already under way for another, larger fusion reactor, which is expected to attain "ignition" — a self-sustaining fusion reaction. However, that is not expected until the turn of the century.

Country's First Test-Tube Baby Is A Year Old

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — In the year since she became America's first test-tube baby, blue-eyed Elizabeth Jordan Carr got the kind of attention grown-up models would die for — the November cover of Life magazine.

But Tuesday, Elizabeth celebrated her first birthday quietly — preparing to return to the clinic where she was conceived in a laboratory dish.

She has gained weight, grown a head of curly, Auburn hair and learned to walk.

Her picture graced the cover of Life magazine's November issue to illustrate a story about the in-vitro fertilization process and the in-vitro clinic at Eastern Virginia Medical School.

Vera Jones, spokesman for the EVMS clinic, said the toddler and her parents, Judith and Roger Carr, would return to Norfolk this week.

"She will undergo a thorough medical checkup," Jones said. "It's a practice we're going to start with all the babies, and we hope the other clinics in the country will do it, too."

Weighing 5 pounds, 12 ounces at birth, Elizabeth was delivered by Caesarean section because of slight complications during Mrs. Carr's pregnancy.

But once born, Elizabeth "cried right away," said Dr. Mason Andrews, who delivered her. "That was very reassuring. It was a relief to know this was a normal baby."

These Folks Take Their Clowning Seriously

By LORIDREW

Special to The Herald

In a world of violence, these men throw only hollow, cardboard gift boxes the size meant to mend a frown.

In a world of radical liberation, these women are merely fighting for their fair share of the smiles.

In a world where the quality of education is on the decline, these youngsters yearn for time in the classroom.

And in a world of divorce, husband and wife are a team, calling each other "Sweetheart" and "Flashy."

"Flashy" lights up his foot-long bow tie for just one reason — to light up the faces of his audience. He, his wife and their Monday night companions . . . are clowns.

At least now they are. More than 20 area residents — men, women and children — graduated earlier this month from the Fun World Alley, Clowns of America Clownology course with smiles painted on their faces.

It was a glorious occasion with the group's superhero acting as master of ceremonies. Captain Leo is his name, education officer, class coordinator, alley past president, and outstanding clown, that is, according to his invitation for all prospective clowns to join him and his cohorts for "eight fun-filled evenings of festive frivolity, 16 happy hours of harmonious harlequin humor, 960 memorable minutes of marvelously, miraculous merriment and 57,600 satisfying seconds of stupendously sensational silliness."

The course was held at the Sanlando Methodist Church, Longwood, and cost each student $20, which, according to Captain Leo, "went to paying the rent."

Why would someone pay good money to be a clown? Why do people of all ages don baggy costumes, oversized rubber shoes, red noses, white faces and great, big smiles just to get a laugh?

"Some say they've always wanted to be a clown," Capt. Leo says. "Some do it for their church. Most of them do it on a whim. Some do it for the money," he says, adding, "There's money to be made if you promote yourself."

Captain Leo, blue stars painted around his eyes and a blue coat-tailed jacket, has been promoting his clowning self at PTA carnivals, Christmas parades, the Special Olympics, churches and myriad other Central Florida events since he began his favorite "hobby" six years ago. But while the pay is low, "the smiles will make you rich."

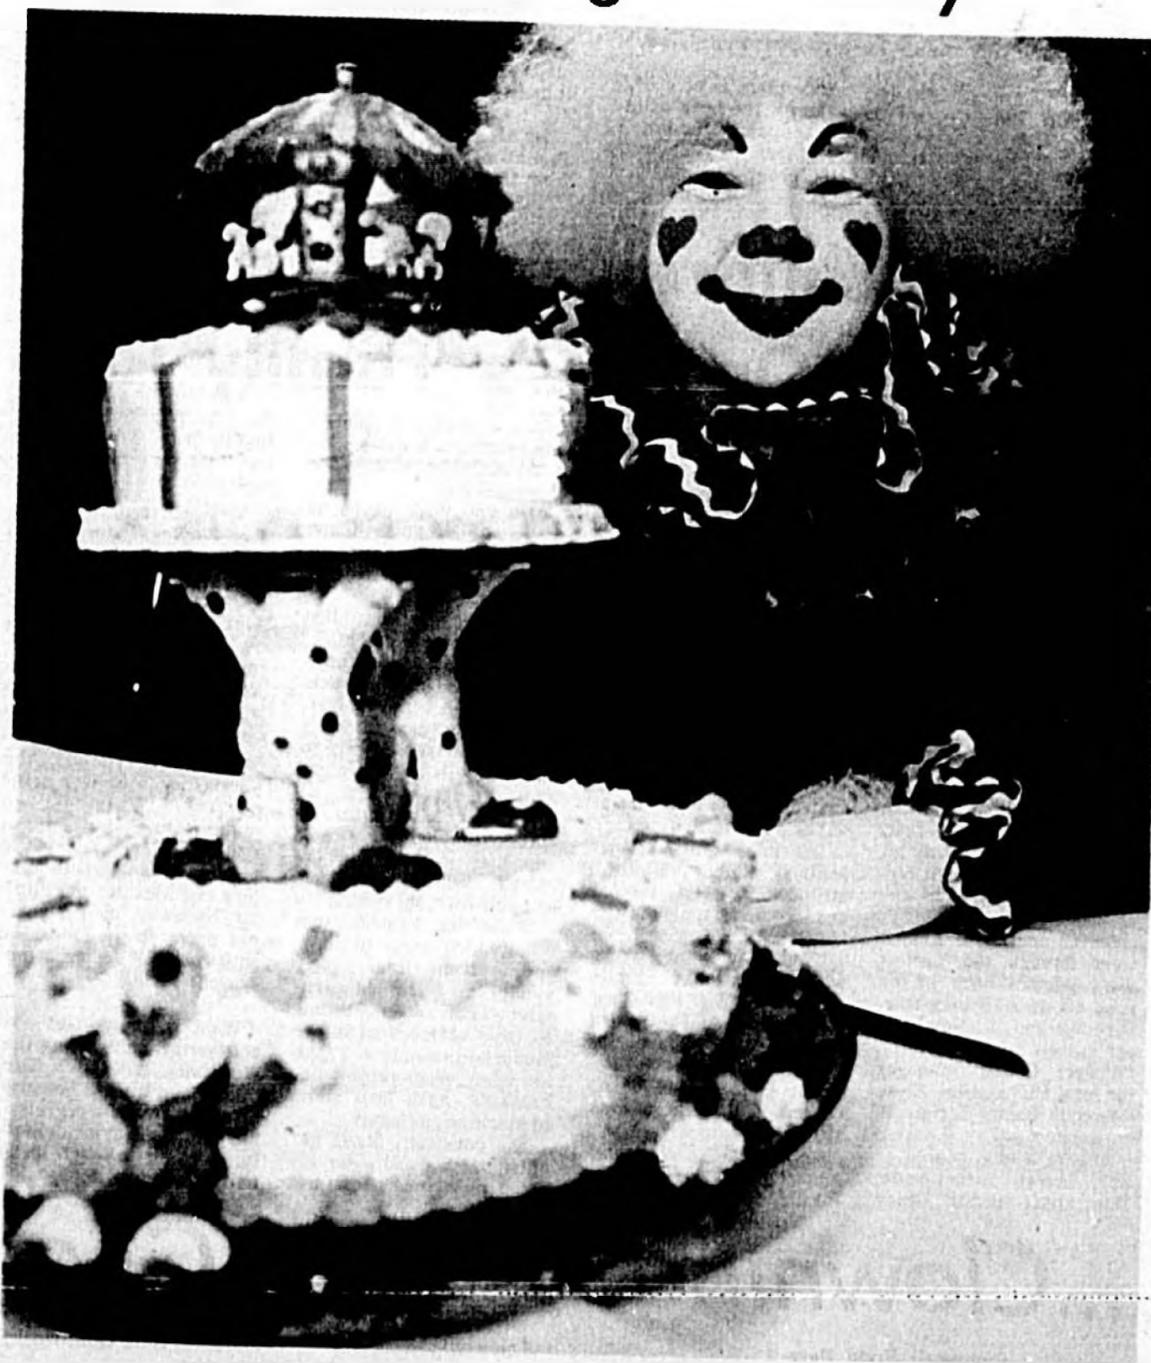

"For most of us (clowns)," he says, "99 percent of the work we do is volunteer. The reason we hold these classes is to get other people involved in clowning, hoping they'll want to help out the next time."

That, however, is not often the case. "Out of 150 we've taught (since the alley formed two years ago), probably 10 or 12 still do it with us," says the 36-year-old masked merrymaker. "As I said, most of them take the course on a whim."

The Fun World Alley boasts 35 to 40 members, but as the Captain explains, "You can count on 10 to show up — just as it is in any volunteer organization."

Undaunted, the Captain keeps clowning, performing "at least every other week," with his full-time title insurance job keeping the wolves from the door.

There exists a world of difference in Captain Leo's part-graduation exercise in Longwood where area residents learned how to paint smiles on their own and their audiences' faces.

The Woodstock generation has come of age in NBC's 'Family Ties' and according to TV critic David Handler, the show is "a corny generation gap comedy in reverse." Page 2.

Computerized crusade

Boycotting preacher the Rev. Donald Wildmon has added a computer to his arsenal pitted against advertisers who hawk their wares on 'sinful' TV programs. Page 5.

Although his 'Father Murphy' series has bitten the dust, star Merlin Olsen hasn't. From broadcasting sporting events to prime time acting, Olsen has plenty to do. Page 7.

Joan Lunden Leaving To Have Baby

DEAR DICK: I have been a steady fan of "Good Morning America" since it began. I have watched female co-hosts come and go. Is Joan Lunden on her way out, too? I ask because there seems to be a growing rift between David Hartman and Joan. Is she just another in a long line of co-hosts who were here yesterday and today and gone tomorrow? C.H., Vancouver, Wash.

She will be gone tomorrow, but just temporarily. Actually, ABC says that Joan is "solid as a rock" and is permanently a member of the team and denies any rift with Hartman. But she is expecting a child in February, and will be temporarily replaced at that time by Kathy Lee Johnson.

DEAR DICK: As a child, I remember a lot of good animal movies. Why don't they replay them for the children today? I particularly remember "Gallant Bess." Who would I contact about playing that or other movies? K.M. Punxsutawney, Pa.

The older the movie, the less chance there is of it being played today. But in recent years there have been quite a few movies and TV shows featuring animals. (I hesitate to talk about all the dogs and turkeys I've seen.) If you want to request a certain movie, contact the program director of your local station.

Flower Children Age, But Their Kids Wilt On NBC's 'Family Ties'

By David Handler

NBC's "Family Ties" signals a profound changing of the guard in TV family sitcoms. With its arrival, the Woodstock generation has at last come of age.

Headbands have given way to graying temples. Free love has yielded a houseful of kids. Political activism has gone from being a fiery passion to a cute foible.

Yes, the generation that grew up on "Ozzie and Harriet" has become Ozzie and Harriet, and if this realization makes me a tiny bit nauseous, I hope you'll forgive me. I happen to be one of them.

Steven and Elyse Keaton went through the protest wars together back in the good old days — long hair, bare feet and all. Now they are in their late 30s. Steven (Michael Gross) manages the local PBS station. Elyse (Meredith Baxter Birney) is an architect.

They're a nice couple — wry, honest, affectionate. They aren't having sleazy love affairs. They still eat bean sprouts. They haven't sold out. You like them.

So far so good. Trouble is, our next move is a horrible misstep. "Family Ties" is a corny generation gap comedy in reverse, a gimmicky what-if proposition. In the trade, it's what's known as a one-joke show.

OK, here's the gimmick: Their kids are totally square. They hate sprouts. They are conservative, neatly groomed and interested only in becoming rich. They are totally sure of themselves and amused/amazed by their parents' quaint political beliefs and their attitudes toward success and love and happiness. You hate them.

"You know what's wrong with parents today?" muses Alex (Michael J. Fox), their 17-year-old. "They still think they can change the world."

Not Alex. As far as he's concerned, the '60s are over. He belongs to the Young Entrepreneur's Club and has a picture of William F. Buckley over his bed. He

DEAR DICK: I would like to know the name of the theme music to "Simon and Simon" and who plays it. I believe it's by The Thrashers, but not sure. Where could I get the record? N.S., Saginaw, Mich.

It's just called the "Theme From 'Simon and Simon'" and it was written by Barry DeVorzon and Michael Towers and played by a group of studio musicians, nobody in particular. It has not, as yet, been recorded.

DEAR DICK: Please settle another bet. How old is Sarah Purcell of "Real People"? We have seven guesses ranging from 25 to 40! J.Y., Muncy, Pa.

The answer to your question is one of the most closely wears a necktie to school and carries a briefcase. He is all ambition. Folk music depresses him.

"Do you think maybe he was switched at birth and the Rockefeller have our kid?" Steven asks Elyse at one point.

Daughter Mallory (Justine Bateman) is a shallow 15-year-old who wears pearls, stockings, lipstick, the works. A born conniver, she rejects her mother's advice that the best way to land a boy is to be straight with him.

Mallory also finds it "gross" that her parents hug and kiss in front of her. "Don't you two have any self-control?" she sneers.

While the Keatons' two oldest kids seem to have sprung from Uranus, their youngest, 9-year-old Jennifer (Tina Yothers), seems to have been reared in the studio commissary — a fake kid from whose mouth wisecracking, adult lines come in machine gun bursts.

She constantly blasts her older brother and sister for being pushy and immature.

Ask Dick Kleiner

guarded secrets in Hollywood. Sarah just isn't saying, and none of the reference books lists a year for her birth. The best estimate, figuring on when she got started and how long she's been working, is that she's 32 or 33.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I saw the movie "Just a Little Inconvenience," with James Stacy. How did he lose his arm and leg? Did he also play in the Western "Lancer," on television? W.L., Lake Jackson, Texas.

Stacy was badly injured in a motorcycle accident. Yes, he starred in "Lancer," before his accident.

DEAR DICK: Tell me this. Who was the youngster on Carson's 20th anniversary show that did an impression of Cosell and referred to Carson as "Mr. Monologue"? I like your column but I think some of your questions must come from second graders. J.T.C., K.A.F.B., Miss.

Dana Hill was the name — an 18-year-old who could pass for 13. As for your comment — you should see some of the letters I throw away!

time hobby and the full-time world of a professional Ringling Bros. and Barnum Bailey Circus clown. In Venice, Fla., young men and women with a wanderlust for the circus work dawn to dusk for 10 weeks, with only Wednesday night and Sunday away from the clowning practice. Even after graduation from the world's only clown school, there is no guarantee of a position with the "World's Greatest Show on Earth," according to Ron Severini, who manages the unique college.

"Unlike Ringling's school, we can only hope to touch the surface," says Captain Leo. Future clowns of America receive the basics in making up their smooth or wrinkled faces. The various types of makeup and clown characters are introduced, leaving the decision of individual design up to the student.

Skits, juggling, costumes, balloon blowing and an array of clowning techniques are also covered in the eight-week, once-a-week course, the Captain says.

In spite of its limitations, the atmosphere is nevertheless professional. The voice of an experienced Captain stresses, "The main thing is to practice what you're doing before you do it. If you're going to use props improperly, don't use them at all."

He and his fellow clowning instructors make it perfectly clear, "You do not go out in public in costume and makeup if they're not perfect."

His students apparently paid attention and did their homework. On graduation night, their costumes were clearly the work of caring clowns, the makeup was painstakingly applied, and the skits were sensational.

"Let me see how long you've been here," said a straight-faced Captain Leo with yardstick in hand, measuring the height of one youngster. I guess you had to be there to fully appreciate the humor in a room filled with friends, relatives and an assortment of flashing cameras as Flashy's bow tie heaved, Scooter's scooter careened and Captain Carrot's hair rose to new heights.

"I guess a clown makes people forget about their problems," says Sanford's Captain Leo. So whether or not such a distinguished seafaring title precedes their chosen clown name, all these new clowns can be said to be superheros of a sort.

After all, in a world of violence, radical liberation, deteriorating education and divorce a smiling superhero is a tough act to follow.

By the way, if you're curious about Captain Leo's true identity, you'll just have to read between the lines. "Four men heard," but Lois Lane didn't.

Sly Stallone Throws Roses

By Cindy Adams
NEW YORK — Eddie Murphy's grandma caught the kid's film, "48 hours." After hearing his four, five and 12-letter words, grandma gave it to him: "You should be ashamed. You're talkin' too dirty!" Sylvester Stallone came to the Indigo supper club with a party of 12. The tables have roses in vases. He threw them at the showgirls — the roses, not the vases.

Ernest Thompson, author of B'way's "West Side Waltz," which stars Katharine Hepburn and Dorothy Loudon, is writing the movie. I wondered if Loudon's in it. "I wasn't asked," she humped. "And guess what? He hasn't even asked her. And if she's not in it I don't care to be either...."

Gloria Swanson unloaded 100,000 pieces of professional and personal memorabilia onto the University of Texas, including love letters from Joseph P. Kennedy, written during their heated love affair in the '20s... A Lawrence Welk film bio will soon drop on us. It won't be a surprise to Welk.

He's taping it himself... Rip Taylor's at the St. Regis working under painkillers. He has ulcers and a bruised rib... Isabella Rossellini (Ingrid Bergman's kid) will be the new Lancome cosmetics face — for about $2 million.

'Buzzard' Hunting For Fun As Well As Profit

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Donald Wildmon may favor that old-time religion, but he isn't above using new-time computers to promote it. He figures weapons forged in "Silicon Valley" will help him in his next television project which is a buzzard-shoot.

The boycotting preacher from Tupelo, Miss., has been after NBC and its parent company, RCA, for eight months now, asking his followers to shun their products and programming on the grounds NBC uses the tube to push sin, sex and violence.

Now he is going after the sponsors — not just NBC's, but all who hawk their wares via television — and this time he's installing a computer.

Wildmon said he expects his Coalition for Better Television to compile a data base second to none, with a special listing of "Buzzard Advertisers."

"Buzzards," Wildmon said, are sponsors who specialize in buying "distressed merchandise" — prime-time shows so raunchy nobody else will touch them at going rates.

"The nets normally get $175,000 to a quarter-million a minute," he said. "A buzzard program goes for $50,000 or $75,000 or anything they can get in order to fill up the time slot."

"Buzzards," their cut-rate misdeeds catalogued in detail in Wildmon's computer, will be the next concentrated target of the boycott. When one is detected, scavenging on a regular basis, a barrage of letters crying, "cease and desist" will follow.

If the advertiser does not cease and desist, he will find himself on the coalition blacklist.

"This computer is gonna give us their profiles," Wildmon said. "It will give us access immediately to any information we want."

Information, however, is not the only thing the new computer will give the coalition boycotters. Wildmon also expects it to earn its keep.

"We're gonna have a data base valuable to many advertisers," he said. "We'll make it available ... We might even sell it."

McLaglen Has Paid His Dues

By RUTH THOMPSON
Your father is a movie star with important friends. What does that do to you, or for you, when you set out to make your own living?

English-born, 61-year-old Andrew McLaglen, the son of Victor McLaglen, settled in California at the age of 4, but was totally shielded from Hollywood's most flamboyant era with a stable family life and good schools.

Being his father's son might have helped him if he had wanted to become an actor like dad. But, as good-looking as he was (and is), he says, "I never wanted to act. But I always knew I wanted to be in my father's business — as a director.

"Those were the days of big-name directors. George Cukor, King Vidor, William Wellman, John Ford (he and my father started doing pictures together in 1925) and anybody making a big picture wanted one of them. Those were the days of major studios.

"Now, and this is exciting, most films are done by independents. Just think what a long career Steven Spielberg ('E.T.') can have. He was a success at 26.

"I paid my dues for 10 years. I started at 24 answering the production office phone, and worked through the system, second assistant, first assistant. Then, you still needed your break."

Andrew's break came through John Wayne who eventually "became like a big brother." Wayne's company underwrote "The Man in the Vault" with Andrew as director and Anita Ekberg as the star.

Then CBS signed McLaglen for six years to direct for television. In 1962 Wayne summoned him back to theater features with "McIntock!" and he says, "That made all the difference. Ours is a business of survival, but I've been lucky."

He built a home four years ago in the state of Washington. "If I could, I'd play tennis there every day," but location work keeps him elsewhere.

Like a good parent, he's fond of many of his pictures — but none more than the three-part CBS Civil War epic, "The Blue and the Gray," beginning Nov. 14.

"I don't do a lot of TV any more but I just can't tell you how this appealed to me. I want it to be well received."

Farewell To 'Father Murphy'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Merlin Olsen, who is about 9 feet tall and whose voice is the sort of sound that usually follows a flash of lightning, was in mourning.

"Father Murphy" was dead, and NBC wasn't even planning a wake.

"We did pull the ratings when we first came out," he said of the prime time show on which he played the antithesis of his former role with the Los Angeles Rams, which was the systematic dismemberment of NFL quarterbacks.

"The thing that killed us was moving over to Sunday night opposite '60 Minutes.' We had ratings that were very healthy — in the 30s. Then we moved, and when you lose an audience it's much more difficult to get them back than it was to pick them up in the first place.

"It's frustrating to me because so much of what happens in that kind of situation is political."

For two seasons, Olsen — a former defensive tackle for the Rams and now a sportscaster for NBC — reveled in the persona of a gentle giant who impersonated a Catholic priest in order to rescue a frontier orphanage and defend it against various villains.

It was a good, wholesome show — the only kind Michael Landon of "Little House on the Prairie," in which Olsen made his acting debut — produces. The Niensens were kind to "Father Murphy" in the first year, but turned fickle when the show went up against "60 Minutes."

That, said Olsen, is where the politics come in.

"You're dealing with 'facts' that more and more people are coming to doubt," he growled of the all-powerful Nielsen yardstick. "I think eventually we're going to have a better way of evaluating our programs."

"I hope so because there are a lot of good shows that end up being hurt or lost because their real popularity is not reflected. One reason I was sorry to see 'Father Murphy' go is there aren't many programs that families can sit down and watch together."

Olsen's exposure on "Father Murphy" did leave him with something of a split personality where his fans are concerned. He never knows immediately whose autograph they are looking for.

"Initially, people responded to me as an athlete, rather than as an actor," he said. "But as 'Father Murphy' had more and more time on the air, people started responding more to me as an actor than as Merlin Olsen."

"It's kind of fun to talk to people who come up for an autograph because some of them aren't even aware of 'Father Murphy.' They want to talk about how their team is doing or who's going to be in the Super Bowl."

"The thing that really comes through to me is the power of television ... As an actor you really come through. You've been in their living room with them and they feel they know you."

The passing of "Father Murphy" is not likely to diminish Olsen, either in terms of exposure or income. He has plenty to do.

He will be grand marshal of this year's Rose Parade in Pasadena, Calif. — then rush to the stadium to broadcast the game for NBC — and he said he will remain as active as he can in prime time.

Actresses In The Executive Suite

By Ruth Thompson

Which noted actress, who also showed a flair for sound business decisions, was known as "the iron butterfly"? And another question: Has the women's movement succeeded to the point where executive-minded actresses are no longer targets for such name-calling?

First, a recap of the "Who was the real iron butterfly?" quiz. The respondent who threw in the name of Loretta Young, in connection with her television series, gets a "wrong." The other two names go way back to Lillian Gish, in her silent movie phase, and Mary Pickford. Mary Pickford gets the decision, in the absence of documentation, because she was one of the founders of United Artists along with then-husband Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Charlie Chaplin (and nobody cast aspersions at them for their shrewdness, by the way).

There is now a new breed of "production company" to protect the take-home pay of in-demand actors. Some exist merely to hire out the talents of the performer. Others are closer to the earlier image. Several actresses are involved in the old sense, searching out potential television (and movie) properties in which they might, but also might not, appear.

Most intriguing of all is the interest that Melissa Gilbert, from NBC's "Little House: A New Beginning," takes in her company. Her dual competence parallels the Pickford story.

Both learned the business as children. Melissa, 18, says she is going to take some courses in finance. Right now what I'm there for the casting and I can hire and fire."

"Splendor in the Grass" was the most recent TV movie from her company. She won't say yet what's next.

Searching For Tomorrow's Stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — All along Broadway, the word was out — ABC was conducting its annual talent search, combing the ranks of show business for the movie and television series stars of tomorrow.

Sharks converge upon a wounded tuna with no less gusto than do aspiring actors and actresses upon such a cattle call. Young and old, they beat a path 1,000 strong to the doorstep of Gary L. Pudney, ABC's senior executive in charge of talent, and his chief talent scouts, John Crosby and Randy James.

"It's magic we're looking for," said Pudney as one candidate after another took the small stage at the Lamb's theater to do his or her stuff.

Each one had four minutes to make that magic.

"Through the parade, as it passes by, someone jumps out, and that's the person we're looking for," said Pudney. "Out of this group, I'd hope to get half-a-dozen we can sign to development contracts."

No one really has held a job like Pudney's since the golden age of Hollywood when studios signed up "contract players," kept them on hold and groomed them for eventual stardom.

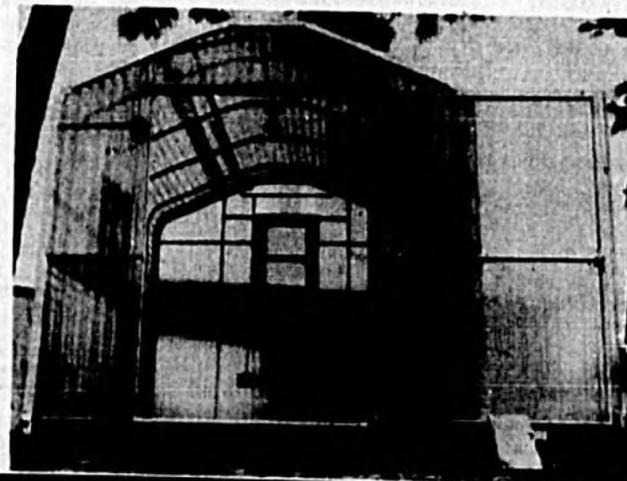

He already has launched careers for such up-and-comers as Ann Jillian, Donna Dixon, Gordon Samms. He likes making people feel better than fame and fortune.
