School fight; facial surgery for slashed girl

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Two 15-year-old Lake Brantley High School students got into a fight before the first class this morning that sent one girl to the hospital and the other to jail.

The incident had been brewing for a couple of days, principal Darwin Boothe said, and the school was planning to take some steps to intervene today.

"We wanted to short circuit this before this sort of tragic thing occurred," Boothe said.

He said that a friend of the victim had approached an assistant principal yesterday and said that "someone" was bothering her friend and asked that the school try to do something about it.

Boothe said the girl did not know the name of the student who was bothering her friend and was going to find out and tell them today. He said he planned to call both students into his office to try to "talk things out."

The victim's father has come to the school this morning to talk to administrators about the problem and to see if he could assist in any way. See Fight, Page 5A

Sgt. Darrel Presley is supervising the community policing team through the de-

Presley said the officers will be operating in two separate two-man teams. "While they would basically be assigned to bike patrol," he said, "they would have the options to use a" See Bike, Page 5A

SANFORD — A former professional football player, scheduled for a mid-September trial on sexual battery and extortion charges in Seminole County, will be sentenced today in Lexington, Ky. for making threats over interstate telephone lines.

Lewis Billups, 29, may receive a year in federal prison for threatening to end the career of professional basketball player Rex Chapman. Chapman plays for the Washington Bullets. Billups had dated Chapman's sister, Jenny.

Federal District Judge Karl S. Forester of the Eastern District of Kentucky is scheduled to sentence the former Cincinnati Bengals player at 1:30 p.m. At one time, Billups also played football for the Green Bay Packers.

"He is charged with telling a person here in Kentucky that he and his associates would hurt Rex Chapman so badly that he would probably never walk again," assistant U.S. attorney Mark Murphy said. "much less play any ball again. Actually, it (the charge) was a threatening" See Billups, Page 5A

Sad end of nine lives

Pet cat may have been shot

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — There's probably a bowl of food and fresh water in some Sanford home waiting for an orange tabby cat today who won't be coming home. The young male was shot in the chest by an unknown assailant and bled to death in the flower garden of a home next to Seminole High School.

Olivia Pilcher, Ridgewood Avenue discovered the cat's body Thursday morning in her flower bed by her front porch.

"At first, I thought it was just sleeping, but when I called, 'Kitty, Kitty,' and it didn't move, I looked closer and saw it was dead," she recalls.

A cat-owner herself, Pilcher was distressed to discover blood on the cat's chest. She also found blood on her porch and on a small shelf where she keeps a bowl of cat food.

"I thought the cat had been shot," she said. The tabby was not wearing any identification tag although it sported a bright pink or fuchsia flea-type collar.

Animal control supervisor Mike Wittmer said the tabby was probably shot with a pellet or BB gun then ran onto the Pilcher

Dad arrested over school bus stop incident

By J. MARK BARFIELD

LAKE MARY — A Lake Mary man was arrested after his stepdaughter reported he sped his car at a group of Hills of Lake Mary children waiting at a bus stop Wednesday morning, scattering them, before taking her home and beating her with a belt.

The incident occurred only two blocks from the Hills of Lake Mary bus stop where one child was killed and two others injured last year when a trailer became unhitched and rolled into a group of children.

Andrew E. Woodman, 45, 444 Country Wood Circle, was arrested at his home Wednesday morning on charges of culpable negligence, tampering with a witness and aggravated child abuse.

The child's principal, Jim Shupe, said she is in counseling. But the other children at the bus stop have not exhibited signs of being upset, he said.

Woodman's 13-year-old stepdaughter reported to police she was waiting at the Lakeview Middle School bus stop at Bright Meadow Drive and Autumn Oaks Place with four or more children when she saw her stepfather speed his Lincoln Continental at them.

The Lincoln allegedly braked and then skidded across the road and sidewalk to the area where the children were waiting. The children ran home. See Arrest, Page 5A

Insurers asking to raise comp rates

TALLAHASSEE — Workers compensation insurers are asking to raise employers' rates an average of 13.8 percent Jan. 1 and boost premiums 57.7 percent for higher-risk policies.

The National Council on Compensation Insurance, which proposed the increases, said insurance companies incurred an average of $1.60 in losses and expenses for every $1 of premium collected last year.

The 57.7 percent increase would be for policies in an assigned-risk plan for employers who can't get coverage for on-the-job injuries on the regular market.

Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher will rule this fall on what increases, if any, will be granted.

Any rise would be on top of an 8.9 percent increase granted for 1993, after insurers asked 18.5 percent, and a 24.9 percent increase for 1992, when insurers requested a 39.3 percent jump.

They called it 'mermaid' love

WEEKI WACHEE — A Long Island teen who climbed a fence and jumped into Weeki Wachee Spring to meet a "mermaid" who returned his wave from a neighboring water park won't be prosecuted.

"While we don't approve of this behavior and consider trespassing to be a serious charge, we just have to try to remember what it was like to be 19," Weeki Wachee general manager Jerry McGrath said Thursday.

Alan Letter, 19, of West Islip, N.Y., spotted the blonde, green-finned performer, whom McGrath declined to identify, in the underwater show Tuesday as he swam at neighboring Buccaneer Bay water park.

He waved. She waved back. He hopped a fence, walked to the mermaid theater, climbed a sloping roof 10 feet above the water and jumped in.

"I swam over to meet her and shake her hand," Letter said. "She said, 'I think you're going to get in trouble.'"

Security guards nabbed Letter and his friend Ed Birmingham, 20, and called the Hernando County Sheriff's Office to report a retail theft. The two hadn't paid their $14.95 admission charges.

McGrath said the two came to the spring late Wednesday and apologized. "We are going to yield to the exuberance of youth and we will not be pressing charges," he said Thursday.

Teens commit suicide by jump off bridge

TAMPA — Teen age sweethearts who said they couldn't live apart jumped to their deaths from the 175-foot high Sunshine Skyway Bridge, sheriff's spokesman Sgt. Greg Tita said.

Donna Klein's body was found floating in Tampa Bay Tuesday, and Marc Weigel's was found beneath the bridge Wednesday. Klein's mother found a note in her daughter's bedroom.

Klein, 18, wrote that she and Weigel were killing themselves because Weigel's parents were forcing him to move to his father's house in Cincinnati, and they would rather die than live a thousand miles apart.

Klein wrote that she loved her sister, told her to take anything she wanted from her bedroom, and sent everyone "a kiss and a hug." St. Petersburg Police spokeswoman Michele Jones said.

Court bans secret deals, links lawsuit damages to blame

JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Damages in personal injury and negligence cases must be limited to a defendant's share of the blame, the state Supreme Court has ruled.

"It's probably one of the most important cases to come down from the Supreme Court on tort law in the last 10 years, maybe longer," said Marguerite "Diti" Davis, a Tallahassee attorney who filed a friend-of-the-court brief on behalf of the American Insurance Association.

In a separate case Thursday, Florida's high court said it's time to stop the sinister practice of allowing secret deals in lawsuits that mislead juries and promote unethical behavior in lawyers.

"It's probably one of the most important cases to come down from the Supreme Court on tort law in the last 10 years, maybe longer."

-Marguerite "Diti" Davis

In the first case, the court handed down an interpretation of a 1986 legal reform law. Before 1986, the burden of finding other liable parties to split the damages was left to the defendant being tried — not the injured party.

As cases worked their way through the courts in the last seven years, two appellate courts reached opposite rulings. The high court spoke Thursday in a Dade County suit.

The justices ruled that a $350,000 award to Ann Marin after a lawsuit against Marie and Eddie Fabre had to be cut in half.

"The judgment should be entered against each party liable on the basis of that party's percentage of fault," Justice Stephen Grimes wrote in the 5-2 decision. "The Fabres' percentage of fault was 50 percent."

The court interpreted the intent of the 1986 law to require "a system that requires each party to pay for noneconomic damages only in proportion to the percentage of fault by which that defendant contributed to the accident."

Chief Justice Rosemary Barkett and Justice Gerald Kogan dissented.

Florida first state to regulate mercury emissions

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Florida has taken the lead in plugging incinerator smokestacks that pump tons of toxic mercury into the environment, approving regulations to sharply cut polluted emissions.

The Environmental Regulatory Commission ordered large municipal "waste-to-energy" incinerators to have the reductions in place by July 1998.

"I think its important Florida is the first state to grapple with the rule and pass it," ERC Chairman Dick Batchelor said Thursday.

The new rule won the approval of national environmental organizations and could serve as a model for other states and even the federal government.

It requires incinerators to install scrubbers with activated carbon injection systems to remove at least 80 percent of mercury emissions — or to keep the metal out of their trash in the first place.

Regulations on other smokestack sources — including medical waste incinerators and coal-burning electric plants — are scheduled to follow.

"We hope that Florida's action will lead the way to a national effort on this dangerous pollutant," said Henry Cole, a consultant for Clean Water Action. His organization has already found serious mercury contamination in other states, he said.

Mercury is a neurotoxin especially dangerous to unborn children and nursing babies. It can cause development problems, nerve damage, tremors and even blindness.

In Florida, the buildup of mercury in lakes and streams is blamed in part for the demise of the endangered Florida panther and the collapse of the Everglades wading bird population.

As of September 1992, Clean Water Action found 26 states had issued health advisories upon finding dangerous levels of mercury in fish.

Many of those states — and the federal government as well — are expected to act soon against mercury, said Walt Stevenson of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Doctors can't tell jurors whom children name as abusers

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida won't make an exemption to its ban against hearsay evidence to allow testimony from doctors who examine sexually abused children and are told the identity of their abusers.

Instead, the state Supreme Court ruled in favor of a 1985 state law that requires a hearing to determine the reliability of testimony concerning out-of-court statements victims of child abuse make to anyone.

The issue of doctors' testimony is the subject of a debate now being waged in legal circles across the country.

"It is undoubtedly difficult to balance the rights of the accused against the obvious desirability of admitting into evidence reliable out-of-court statements of child victims of abuse," Chief Justice Rosemary Barkett wrote in Thursday's unanimous ruling.

The court rejected a federal appellate ruling that makes an exception in child sex abuse cases for such hearsay evidence from doctors.

Most states have followed the federal lead, according to Barkett, who cited Arkansas, Kentucky, and North Carolina decisions.

But other states, like Maryland, have harshly criticized that policy and legal commentators have "expressed concern that in the course of laudable efforts to combat child abuse, prosecutors, courts and others have occasionally overreached," Barkett wrote.

Thursday's ruling stemmed from an Orlando case. Johnny Jones was convicted of two counts of sexual battery on a child less than 12 years old.

He was found guilty after his girlfriend's 8-year-old daughter testified that Jones had intercourse with her twice in the spring of 1987. Doctors who examined the little girl also testified that she had named Jones as her abuser.

Jones received life sentences. But the 5th District Court of Appeal in Daytona Beach reversed the convictions, ruling testimony from two doctors inadmissible.

Even though Thursday's decision said such testimony couldn't be automatically allowed, Jones still lost out.

Red Cross worker arrested

By Associated Press

DES MOINES — Red Cross officials are trying to find out if a volunteer worker from Miami accused of fraud in the Iowa flood relief effort might have taken advantage of other disasters as well.

Joan Tullock, 31, of Miami, was charged with first-degree fraud and remained in jail today in lieu of $13,000 bond. She was accused of writing $30,000 in flood-assistance vouchers to buy clothing, furniture and other merchandise for people who pretended to be flood victims.

"We're checking to see if this scheme was perpetrated in other places, possibly in Florida and maybe New York," Dale Moritz, chief of detectives for the Polk County sheriff's office, said. Red Cross officials said Tullock has been a volunteer for about a year, first signing up with a Red Cross office based in Miami to help victims of Hurricane Andrew.

"If the allegations are true, the American Red Cross is absolutely appalled at the possibility that one of its workers may have violated the trust of the Red Cross and of the American people. The Red Cross will not tolerate this kind of abuse," a statement from the national headquarters of the American Red Cross in Washington said.

"This alleged incident should in no way reflect on the more than 13,000 Red Cross workers who have worked tirelessly during the past two months to help disaster victims throughout the Midwest." Detectives studied Red Cross disaster aid vouchers in three states Thursday, trying to find out how many fraudulent ones may have been written.

"It's just mountains and mountains of paperwork to go through," said Detective Kevin Schneider of the Polk County sheriff's department.

Schneider said five to 10 more people could be charged.

"We're now tracking down the people that received the benefits and expect to charge several of them," Schneider said.

Tullock was arrested Tuesday at the West Des Moines Red Cross office, where she had been temporarily assigned. Warrants also were issued for two other Florida women, who were not Red Cross volunteers.

Stats suggest breast cancer mortality falling

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON — Federal statistics suggest that the death rate from breast cancer may be starting to fall for the first time since the 1930s, probably because mammograms are saving lives, a health expert said.

Doubt remains whether the apparent turnaround is real or only a statistical blip. But if it is a true change, it represents an encouraging contrast to the grim figures usually cited for this disease, the second leading cancer killer among women after lung cancer.

"We would expect to see a decrease in breast cancer mortality by the late 1990s," said Lawrence Garfinkel, a statistical consultant to the American Cancer Society. He spoke Thursday at a society-sponsored national conference on breast cancer.

The incidence of breast cancer has risen dramatically, especially during the 1980s. However, the death rate has remained virtually unchanged for 60 years.

Garfinkel cited statistics gathered by the National Center for Health Statistics that show a drop in breast cancer mortality in 1991 for white women between the ages of 45 and 74.

During the first six months of 1991, the death rate fell 3 percent from the previous year, and during the second six months it declined 5 percent.

"It may be a harbinger of things to come," Garfinkel said. "Maybe we are starting to see a drop in breast cancer mortality."

Clearly establishing a trend will require waiting for several years of data to accumulate. Figures can fluctuate up and down from year to year.

Garfinkel predicted that breast cancer mortality will decline 5 percent to 10 percent by the end of the decade. But he said this will depend on the success of public health campaigns in convincing women to get regular mammograms.

Garfinkel retired in 1990 as vice president for epidemiology at the cancer society. His successor, Dr. Clark Heath, was less certain the 1991 drop will continue.

"Larry Garfinkel went out on a limb," he said. "We'll wait and see."

Dr. I. Craig Henderson of the University of California, San Francisco, said the increasing numbers of older women are likely to make breast cancer an even more common cause of death.

"The most important risk factor for breast cancer is age," he said. "And if you have an aging population, as we do, you are going to have an increase in the risk of breast cancer."

SANFORD — A trustee of a Tampa-based trust now in receivership, has filed a writ in Seminole Circuit Court to recover personal property confiscated in late July.

Harry W. Marrero, a trustee of Premier Benefit Capital Trust, is asking the court to order the trust's receiver, Charles Stutts, to return personal property taken in a late July raid on a Sanford office.

Marrero wants a computer, fax machine, law books, research manuals, personal papers and affects, client files, computer programs and software returned.

The items were taken when Stutts, accompanied by officials of the state comptroller's office confiscated everything in the Sanford office leased to First Financial Foundation, Inc., 413 W. First Street on July 20. Stutts said he had information some records from the trust might be at the Sanford business.

In mid-July, Stutts was appointed the receiver for Premier by a Federal District Court in Tampa. Stutts claimed PBCT trustees, Ted Navillo and Marrero were working at the Sanford office or receiving correspondence there. Navillo was locked inside the office when the agents arrived. A locksmith was called to gain access to the building.

On July 27, David Rose, the sole director and stockholder of First Financial filed papers in the Tampa court case for the return of his property seized in the raid.

Poll: Most see progress for King's dream

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Six in 10 Americans believe the nation has made substantial progress toward the dream of racial equality the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. invoked 30 years ago, according to an Associated Press poll.

But a majority also agrees with organizers of Saturday's 30th anniversary March on Washington that getting equal justice is still a major problem for minorities.

The march planned for Saturday by a broad coalition of civil rights activists is intended to push demands for "Jobs, Justice and Peace." It may also serve to refresh what the poll found to be hazy memories of one of the greatest moments of the civil rights movement.

Nine percent of Americans are not at all familiar and an additional 27 percent are not too familiar with the Aug. 28, 1963, civil rights gathering of more than 200,000 people.

Those who were young adults during the '60s are most likely to have clear memories of the march, the poll indicates. But older Americans are almost as likely to draw a blank as young adults, whose schooling generally includes black history.

The poll taken Friday through Tuesday by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants, found:

- 59 percent say there's been "a great deal" or "quite a lot" of progress toward King's dream.
- The third who see little or no progress include 31 percent of whites and 47 percent of blacks in the poll.

- 54 percent say getting equal justice is still a major problem for minorities. Women are more likely to have this view, at 59 percent, than are men, at 49 percent. Blacks, at 86 percent, are more likely to see injustice than whites, at 50 percent.

- Three in four blacks say the nation has done too little to help racial minorities, but only 39 percent of whites agree.

Case files: Boy discusses relationship with Jackson

By MICHAEL FLEHMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — The 13-year-old boy who claims Michael Jackson molested him told investigators their four-month relationship began with hugs and kisses, then escalated into sexual acts, case files showed.

"It really got out of hand," the boy said in investigative documents reviewed Thursday by The Associated Press.

The boy told caseworker Ann T. Rosato with Los Angeles County Department of Children's Services that Jackson tongue-kissed him and performed oral sex on him while the two bathed together, the documents show. The boy says he did not reciprocate. Jackson's lawyer, Howard Weitzman, described the allegations as "totally false." He said he had not seen the papers, but had been told what they contained. A source who acted on condition of anonymity supplied the documents to the AP.

Attorneys for the boy's divorced parents did not return calls to their offices Thursday. The boy is at the center of a bitter custody fight, according to court documents.

A Children's Services spokesman said caseworkers are forbidden by state law to discuss cases publicly.

The allegations by the boy triggered a criminal investigation of Jackson by the Los Angeles Police Department.

Police have expanded their investigation of Jackson to include his relationship with a total of at least four boys, the Los Angeles Times and KCAL-TV reported. Police declined to comment on the reports Thursday.

The Los Angeles Times reported that videotapes seized from Jackson's home do not incriminate the entertainer, nor was there other physical evidence to support the abuse allegation.

Jackson has denied wrongdoing and said through his private investigator that the case grew out of allegations from somebody who tried to extort $20 million from him. Jackson rejected the extortion attempt, the investigator said.

In other developments, an 11-year-old Australian boy told a TV audience he shared a bed with Jackson but said it was all in slumber party-style fun and that the star is no child abuser.

"I was on one side of the bed and he was on the other. It was a big bed," Brett Barnes of Melbourne, Australia, told KNBC-TV late Wednesday.

Another of Jackson's young friends came to the singer's defense Thursday. Wade Robson, 10, told Fox Television that he had shared a bed with Jackson, but the entertainer never attempted any sexual contact.

Jackson, who turns 35 on Sunday, postponed another concert in Thailand until today because of acute dehydration, promoter Brian Marcar told reporters.

According to the case files reviewed by the AP, the 13-year-old boy first met Jackson in February of this year when Jackson's car broke down and he sought help from the boy's stepfather.

Festival as good as we make it

Planning is underway for this year's Pioneer Days 'N Ways and Crafts festival. It will be held October 2 and 3.

This is an annual event sponsored by the Seminole County Historical Society. It is held around the society's museum site on highway 17-92, across from Flea World.

Over the years, the festival has been responsible for bringing thousands of guests into Sanford. It provides an opportunity for education into the historical significance of the area.

Demonstrations on old-time arts and crafts are one of the big drawing cards, as are displays of antique farming tools and steam equipment. It's an opportunity for grandma and grandpa to show the youngsters what their lives were like in the early days.

Reenactments will be most prominent this year. Civil War and Timacuan Indian displays are also a crowd-pleaser.

Committees are already formed, but they will be needing help. Different displays have been determined, but they will need participants.

One additional need is financial support. Some money is available, but even the smallest donation will go a long way.

Contrary to some events billed as a "festival," where the majority of displays are offering items for sale, this one is different. While homemade crafts and food will be available, the main goal is historical education and information.

This is a situation where a festival, no matter how good, can be improved if everyone joins together in executing it. Success will be directly related to good planning and public cooperation.

Based on enthusiasm already expressed by people involved in planning, this year's Seminole County Historical Society's Pioneer Days 'N Ways festival is going to be an event of major significance. Join in and become a part of its success.

Who lost out?

During the past week your paper made mention of the fact that GoldenRule Housing and Community Development Corporation's request for funding under the low-income housing program SHIP missed the deadline by nine minutes. Considering the fact that GoldenRule has no paid staff, it's a miracle that the funding package (eight copies) arrived in the appropriate office by 2:09 p.m.

So who lost?
GoldenRule, of course, the hometown non-profit organization who has struggled for two years on less than a shoestring and whose ingenuity parlayed a $21,000 grant from the county and five lots donated by the City of Sanford into a quarter of a million dollars worth of real estate back on the tax rolls. Five low income families share the pride of home-ownership through this GoldenRule program.

Most importantly, however, the hundreds of low-income families on GoldenRule's waiting list lost. They lost a dream, a hope for a better tomorrow.

Seminole County lost. They lost an opportunity to fund a "local" non-profit with a proven track record, an organization whose main objective is helping hardworking low income families become homeowners.

Only nine minutes, you say???

When blacks testify against blacks

Michael Batchelor of Detroit and Bernadine Skillern of Houston are bound by a single sociological tragedy — the cycle of double victimhood.

Both are black. Both have been denied opportunities solely because of their skin color. Yet both believe fervently in the sanctity of law and order. For these reasons, their lives have been made miserable.

Skillern was the sole witness against Gary Graham, a black convicted murderer who was scheduled to be executed last week, despite overwhelming evidence of his innocence. Angry blacks have thrown eggs at her and telephoned threats. She plans to sell her house and move away.

Conceivably, Skillern may have made a mistake in her identification of Graham. But that's not the issue. At stake is an American citizen's constitutional right to be wrong without deadly threats forcing her to run.

Batchelor can't run from Detroit. He is the defense attorney for one of the white policemen charged with beating a black motorist to death. For his decision to uphold the Constitution, he has been harassed and threatened.

"It hurts. It really hurts," he says. His worst nightmare is the possibility that the co-defendants are "found not guilty and my client is found guilty because I'm black."

Batchelor and Skillern are not unique. Anthony Griffin and Johnnie Cochran Jr., two black defense attorneys, are defending two nationally controversial white clients.

Griffin, chief counsel for the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, is defending a Ku Klux Klan leader in Galveston, Texas, on behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union (This paradox begins to take on soap-opera proportions.)

But Cochran's advocacy is potentially more explosive. The prominent civil-rights lawyer has filed a lawsuit against the city on behalf of Reginald Denny, the white Los Angeles truck driver who was viciously beaten during the Rodney King riots by two blacks.

Both believe fervently in the sanctity of law and order. For these reasons, their lives have been made miserable.

If Denny wins his lawsuit against the city and his two young assailants are found guilty of malicious assault, Cochran could feel the psychic pain of double victimhood.

Two distinguished Third World scholars have defined the rationale behind the cycle of double victimhood, as exercised by blacks against blacks. "Their ideal is to be men," writes Paulo Freire in his epochal, "The Pedagogy of the Oppressed." "But for them to be men is to be the oppressor. ... They live in the duality in which to be is to be like and to be like is to be like the oppressor."

Oppressors invariably have the legitimacy of the law on their side — L.A.'s Gestapo-like police force, for example. In turn, young blacks in the "hood" internalize this legitimacy against their own people by becoming what Freire calls "sub-oppressors."

But the cycle of double victimhood is not a one-way street. Blacks further the cycle whenever they refuse to conform to an Afrocentric orthodoxy.

Rumors still fly about suicide

WASHINGTON — The suicide of White House Deputy Counsel Vincent W. Foster Jr. continues as a major topic of rumor and conversation during Washington's annual summer lull.

One story being widely circulated at high levels asserts that Foster, days before his death, was despondent over very bad advice he had given Hillary Clinton.

Several sources in the White House say Foster misadvised Ms. Clinton on an ethics matter that could cloud the release of the administration's health plan, and which will surely provide the president's enemies new ammunition with which to blast his wife's role in developing the plan.

One of Ms. Clinton's investments is in Value Partners, an investment group with an aggressive strategy. Ms. Clinton is said to hold about 1 percent of the group, with a value of about $100,000. In turn, the partnership is said to have about 15 percent of its assets in health-industry stocks, including several substantial short positions.

Obviously, the Clinton health plan will have a sharp effect on these holdings, especially the short positions on which investors are gambling that a stock's price will fall. However, despite this seemingly clear conflict, Foster reportedly advised Ms. Clinton neither to divest nor place her holding in a blind trust.

White House sources say Foster's advice was based on the fact that he did not believe Ms. Clinton was a "government employee" within the scope of conflict-of-interest laws that apply to government employees.

Then came the flap over whether meetings of Ms. Clinton's task force should be opened to the public. Federal law says such meetings can be closed only if all attendees are full-time officers and employees of the government. Foster soon found himself in court arguing that Ms. Clinton is a full-time government employee.

He won that argument. However, in winning that battle he exposed Ms. Clinton to potentially serious conflict-of-interest charges that might end up requiring a formal Justice Department inquiry.

Meanwhile, Washington, D.C., Park Police officers investigating Foster's death have concluded that while there was no hint of foul play, White House mishandling of the aftermath of the suicide has made it impossible to determine what motivated Foster.

When Park Police investigators arrived at the White House the morning after Foster's death, they were denied permission to search Foster's office. The investigators subsequently learned that at least four White House aides had been in the office before it was sealed midmorning after the body was found, and they believe documents were removed.

Reportedly, shortly after Foster's body was found, White House Counsel Bernard Nussbaum, Hillary Clinton's Chief of Staff Maggie Williams, and another aide entered Foster's office to search for a suicide note. The next morning one or two other aides also went into the office.

Park Police Chief Robert Langston has said publicly that a box of documents was removed from the office, and later some, or all, were returned. The White House denies this. They insist that, later in the evening, a cleaning woman removed the office trash, which was subsequently retrieved.

Investigators have written that by the time they were granted limited access to the office, the site had been so "contaminated" that any meaningful police work was impossible. Then, too, Nussbaum refused to let FBI agents and Park Police investigators examine any of Foster's papers, logs, telephone records or computer files. They had only his word that nothing he reviewed was relevant.

Days later, copies of Foster's phone records were turned over to investigators, and they were allowed, for the first time, to interview White House employees.

Likewise, police investigators are incensed over the handling of the torn-up note found at the bottom of Foster's briefcase, which listed his various frustrations and is said to show he was sufficiently despondent to have taken his own life.

The police were not notified of the note's existence until 27 hours after it had been found and reassembled with one of its 28 pieces missing. Forgetting for the moment why Foster would have written it, then tore it up and put it in his briefcase rather than the "burn bag" kept next to his desk, or that the briefcase had been previously emptied and searched, police say the note should have been reassembled in a crime lab where fingerprints could have been obtained and the missing piece certified as missing.

One story asserts that Foster, days before his death, was despondent over very bad advice he had given Hillary Clinton.

Insurance 'death spiral' hits home

WASHINGTON — Michael J. Jones is a victim of the "death spiral."

His story begins in 1982, when Jones bought an individual major medical policy from Aetna. It was the best, and most expensive coverage he could find—the Rolls-Royce of health-insurance plans. Having been treated for a major illness in the past, Jones was charged double the cost of the normal premium, which he happily paid. He thought he was covered for life.

A year later, Jones was fortunate he bought the policy. Although it took several years and dozens of hospital visits to diagnose, Jones had contracted a rare form of muscular dystrophy, a neuromuscular disease whose main symptom is severe physical weakness. But that was only the start of his problems. What he learned next might be one small example why health care is a national crisis.

What he learned next might be one small example why health care is a national crisis.

Soon after his symptoms began, Jones was too sick to work and thus quit his lucrative job in the Florida banking industry. Unable to work, Jones applied for Social Security Disability to meet his living expenses.

Jones didn't know then that going on disability would effectively destroy the benefits he signed up for with Aetna. Two years after applying for disability, Jones became automatically eligible for Medicare, even though he was only in his mid-40s at the time. But Jones wanted no part of the government's health plan. This was exactly the reason he paid top dollar for private coverage.

"I knew that if I stayed with my old insurance, then if I lost my job, I'd lose my insurance," Jones told our associate Jan Moller. "But these (individual) policies are sold on the basis that you or your family won't have to go on the public safety net if something happens."

Aetna had different ideas. In the fine print of its policy, Aetna excludes coverage for "care, treatment, services or supplies ... to the extent that benefits are provided under any Medicare plan under which a covered person could be covered." In other words, Aetna was legally entitled to require that Jones accept Medicare coverage, while still charging him full annual premiums. Aetna was now the "secondary payer"—responsible only for the difference between what Medicare authorizes and what it actually pays. It's a loophole that allows insurance companies to dump patients such as Jones on the public dole.

As Jones' coverage was pared, his premiums were rising—fast. When Jones bought the policy, he was paying about $2,400 per year. By 1990, his rates had increased to almost $9,000. The reason lies in the "death spiral."

As many insurers do, Aetna sold Jones his individual policy as part of a group. This group would then share the risks, and premiums would be based on the health of the overall group. The reasoning is that healthy subscribers who don't use their benefits help keep costs down for those who do.

But these groups don't stay open very long. Two years after Jones bought his insurance, the group was closed to new members. As the group ages and more people begin using their coverage, premiums rise to reflect the added cost. When premiums rise, the healthy subscribers often drop out and join another group with lower premiums. The sick ones have to remain, however, because they cannot be re-insured with their pre-existing conditions. The group thus gets smaller and sicker as time goes on, until eventually it folds—hence the "death spiral." In essence, insurance companies can squeeze out the sick through ever-rising premiums.

Emily just short of hurricane status

By JOHN PACENTY
Associated Press writer

MIAMI — Slow-moving, fast-forming Tropical Storm Emily continued to fall just short of a hurricane, as nervous Floridians — who marked the anniversary of Hurricane Andrew this week — rushed to buy supplies.

The storm surprised forecasters Thursday when it jumped from a nameless tropical depression to the first hurricane of the Atlantic season in the morning hours, before weakening at night to tropical storm status.

It remained far from landfall at 8 a.m. EDT today, located at latitude 26.6 north and longitude 83.9 west, or about 400 miles south southeast of Bermuda, according to the National Hurricane Center in suburban Coral Gables, Fla.

Maximum sustained winds were 69 mph — five mph short of what was needed for it to be classified a hurricane.

"It's starting to move a touch faster (8 mph) to the west," forecaster David Roth said. "The water is warm and some strengthening is possible. We do expect it to become a hurricane today, possibly tonight...This is certainly something to watch for anyone along the East Coast."

Roth said the storm is roughly in the same position where Andrew — which moved at more than twice Emily's current speed — came out of the Atlantic Ocean last August to become the nation's costliest natural disaster.

At its current speed, Emily will reach landfall sometime next week, and forecasters were waiting to see if a trough currently moving eastward over the Midwest could pull the storm northward in a few days.

"At the moment, we can't distinguish between South Florida and North Carolina as far as this hurricane's concerned," said meteorologist Miles Lawrence.

Some Floridians weren't gambling that the storm could miss the state.

"I'm not going to wait to the last minute," said Ronald Hardee buying supplies at a local do-it-yourself store. "No, I'm not."

Charles Hoffmann, loading shutters into his car, concurred: "Because of Andrew, we are going to be prepared this time."

Gov. Lawton Chiles issued a statement Thursday, reminding citizens that Emily posed no immediate threat to land, but to be prepared.

"I urge every family and business — particularly those on the east coast of Florida — to closely monitor reports about the progress of the storm and to review their own emergency preparedness plans," he said. Meanwhile, Tropical Storm Dennis, also far out at sea, was weakening.

At 8 a.m. EDT, Dennis' top sustained winds were 40 mph and the system was centered near latitude 22.2 north and longitude 43.1 west, or about 1,400 miles south-southwest of the Azores Islands. The storm was moving north northwest at near 8 mph and it was expected to continue to weaken.

The other named storms so far this season have all been tropical storms: Arlene, which went into the Texas Gulf Coast; Bret, which caused heavy rain damage in northern South America; and Cindy, which caused flooding in Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

Contamination testing

Tom Sheppard, field supervisor for Woodward-Clyde Consultants, checks soil samples taken from the site of a former gasoline station at the corner of First Street and French Avenue, now a Firestone tire store. Deborah Metrin, manager of the state's central Florida tanks program, said petroleum contamination was found when four abandoned fuel tanks were removed. The soil and groundwater tests will establish the extent of the pollution and cleanup requirements. Sanford has 107 sites of tank-related contamination.

property and eventually died.

"It is really difficult to tell exactly what happened," Wittmer explained. It was difficult to tell where the cat was shot, or if it was shot, Wittmer said, except for the small amount of blood on the chest, indicating trauma. There was no exit wound.

"If it had been shot with a .22 (caliber rifle or other gun), the bullet probably would have gone all the way through," he explained.

Wittmer said owners should tag their pets with identification so if an animal is found dead, they can be notified.

"I'd hate to have to call an owner and tell them their pet had been shot, but that might be better than not knowing what happened to it," Wittmer said.

Sanford Police have not received any other reports of animals being shot recently.

Depending upon the severity of the offense, cruelty to animals are first degree misdemeanors or third degree felonies, according to attorney Sue Pierce in the state attorney's office. As a misdemeanor, conviction for cruelty to animals might result in up to a year in the county jail, up to $5,000 fine, or both. As a felony, conviction might result a prison term.

No one may ever know who wounded the orange tabby cat or how long it took him to die. His body was taken to the animal control crematory.

"The city was able to obtain four new officers since April, through a funding grant from the government and HUD (Housing and Urban Development), with the cooperative efforts of the Sanford Housing Authority and Sanford Police Department."

The grants were to pay for additional officers to be assigned to specific neighborhood patrol areas. The two teams will primarily operate on the west side of the city in the housing authority area.

"We'll also have four officers assigned to the east side, in the downtown area, apartment section such as Bram Towers, along the lakefront and in the Georgetown area," Presley added.

"By having the bikes, it will give our officers a great deal of flexibility. And while they will be in full uniform, it will be part of their job to get to know the people in the communities they cover," he said.

The officers have recently completed a two day extensive training session held under the auspices of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

Billups pleaded guilty to the charge June 11. There is no plea agreement as to what Billups' sentence will be, according to Murphy.

Lawyer for ex-Blue Angels leader calls new probe 'outrage'

By Associated Press

PENSACOLA — The Navy removed a Blue Angels commander for his involvement in the Tailhook sexual harassment scandal before it had all the facts and now is seeking a way to justify the decision, his lawyer says.

Three prior investigations failed to turn up evidence to support the removal of Cmdr. Robert Stumpf, said attorney Charles W. Gittins.

"The government has been unable to demonstrate that Cmdr. Stumpf committed any misconduct," Gittins said told the Pensacola News Journal for a story published Thursday. "...It's frankly an outrage."

The Navy announced Wednesday it had ordered a new probe of Stumpf and four other senior officers in connection with allegations of sexual harassment at the 1991 Tailhook Association convention in Las Vegas.

Stumpf was removed as Blue Angels commander in May and assigned to a desk job at the Pensacola Naval Air Station where the flight demonstration squadron is based.

"It's a very serious thing to remove a commanding officer from command, even more so when you've shut down the Blue Angels, the Navy's ambassadors to the public," Gittins said.

Three weekend air shows were canceled so Stumpf's replacement, Capt. Greg Woolridge, the Blue Angels' commander for the past two years, could practice with the team. The commander of the six-plane squadron flies the lead jet.

A Pentagon inspector general's report determined that 83 women and seven men were assaulted at the annual meeting of current and former naval and Marine Corps aviators. It described the hotel floor where participants partied as a "free-fire zone" of sexual misconduct and drunkenness.

Stumpf, who at the time was commander of an attack squadron based at Cecil Field in Jacksonville, was accused of standing by as an exotic dancer performed oral sex on a young lieutenant.

Gittins of Washington, D.C., said his client had been at the party earlier in the evening but left before things got out of hand, and the government has been unable to produce a single person to testify Stumpf witnessed any misconduct.

The girl reported her stepfather pulled her into his car and took her home, telling her she was to go to another bus stop closer to their home. The other Hills of Lake Mary bus stop, located at County Road 46-A and Bright Meadow Drive, is where last October's tragic accident occurred.

Once home, Woodman took the girl into her bedroom, and according to the girl and her mother, beat her with his belt. When the child's mother tried to telephone "911," Woodman hung up the receiver and told the woman she would "pay" if he got in trouble over the incident, she reported.

intervention proceedings, Boothe said.

When he arrived, however, he found that his daughter had been badly cut and was being transported to the hospital.

"We were trying to prevent this," Boothe said.

According to Boothe, the girls were involved in a verbal argument near the school's business classes wing when the alleged assailant pulled out a knife and began slashing at the victim, striking her in the face and neck.

Boothe said a teacher quickly intervened in the situation and separated the girls. The victim was taken to the front office where first aid was administered by the school's trainer and resource officer, who is an Emergency Medical Technician.

The alleged assailant ran off campus, but was returned to the school by her mother. She was interviewed at the school by Altamonte Springs Police this morning and was taken first to the Altamonte Springs Police Department and then to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, Boothe said.

Police have charged her with aggravated battery. After being booked at the jail, she was released to her mother's custody.

Her first appearance in court will be on Sept. 28 at 9 a.m. at the Juvenile Justice Center in Sanford.

Barbara Grossman, a spokesman for Florida Hospital-North in Altamonte Springs where the victim was taken, said that at about 9:30 a.m., the young woman was in fair condition and undergoing surgery to close the wounds on her face and neck. She said that a plastic surgeon had been called in to assist in the surgery.

Boothe said that the school has never had such an incident and he does not want to have a knee-jerk reaction to this particular reaction.

"We don't need to install metal detectors or anything like that," he said. "I think we need to continue our policy of intervention and to deal with weapons if we see them."

He said, however that the school will "be more careful now."

The parents of the victim declined comment this morning as they waited for their daughter to come out of the operating room.

Final night odyssey

Basketball league closes with strange game

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It was the best of times, it was the worst of times at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium Thursday night.

For both teams. On the final night of the maiden season of the Sanford Recreation Department Summer Youth Basketball League, the Sanford Recreation Department Bad Boys and Medical Center met up in a game that had no bearing on the final league standings.

But the two teams played like they were competing for the league title, the Bad Boys tearing up the first half and Medical Center dominating the second half.

With Ray June netting nine points and Keith Roberts dropping in seven points, the Bad Boys raced to a seemingly insurmountable 27-12 halftime advantage.

But the first half and second half turned out to be as different as night and day as Medical Center, keyed by the double-figure scoring of Travis Perkins, Donte Jones and Richard Reddicks, exploded for 47 second-half points as it rallied for a 59-49 victory.

Perkins tallied all 17 of his points in the final period while Reddicks and Jones tickled the twine for 11 points each as Medical Center wrapped up its season with a 7-2 record, second only to champion Seminole High School Arrow Force II's 7-1 league mark.

The difference in the game turned out to be at the free throw line as Medical Center only outscored the Bad Boys 43-42 from the floor, but made 16 of 21 charity tosses to only seven of 12 chances for the Bad Boys.

Following Perkins in the scoring column for Medical Center were Jones (15 points), Reddicks (11 points), Willie Williams (eight points), Hubert Rivers (four points), Deondra Ware (three points) and Craig Martin (one point).

Doing the scoring for the Bad Boys were Keith Evans (15 points), June (13 points), Roberts (12 points), Bernard Sparrow (four points), Curtis Peterson and Nate Lawson (two points each) and Phillip Daniels (one point).

The win was the second of the night for Medical Center, which also received a 2-0 forfeit victory from Sanford Housing Authority. The Bad Boys also claimed a victory on the evening as they got a 2-0 forfeit from the Willie Hollie Five.

Trailing Arrow Force II and Medical Center in the final standings were the Willie Hollie Five (4-4), the Bad Boys (2-7) and Sanford Housing Authority (1-7).

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — For months, college football fans have been reading that Florida State is the best team in the country. On Saturday, the Seminoles get their first chance to prove it.

Top-ranked Florida State will try to back up its preseason billing when it plays Kansas in the Kickoff Classic at East Rutherford, N.J.

The game can be seen locally on WFTV channel 9 starting at noon.

"We are taking Kansas seriously," linebacker Derrick Brooks said. "We need to show that we deserve the No. 1 spot."

The Seminoles are 26-point favorites over Kansas, which went to a bowl last season for the first time since 1981.

"We don't want to overlook Kansas, but they are an obstacle in our way to a national championship," receiver Kevin Knox said. "We can't be deterred."

The Seminoles lost Butkus Award winner Marvin Jones and five other defensive starters from last year's 11-1 team, but their high-powered offense should make up for any defensive weaknesses.

Their shotgun attack is triggered by senior quarterback Charlie Ward, a dangerous scrambler who set a school record for total offense (3,151 yards) last season.

"Charlie is like a vapor," said coach Bobby Bowden, who has never won a national title despite six consecutive finishes in the top four. "Just when you think you can reach out and grab him, he's gone."

Kansas has 12 starters back from last year's 8-4 team, which beat BYU in the Aloha Bowl. But the Jayhawks know almost everyone expects them to lose to Florida State.

"This game is an opportunity," coach Glen Mason said. "All you ever ask for is a chance — that's the American way."

Kansas has lost its last six games against No. 1 teams by an average score of 47-10. That sounds about right against the Seminoles. ... FLORIDA STATE 48-17.

The second game of the season takes place Sunday in Anaheim, Calif., where No. 18 Southern Cal meets No. 20 North Carolina in the Pigskin Classic.

Much of the focus has been on Southern Cal coach John Robinson, who has returned to the school that he left a decade ago. Robinson, who won 82 percent of his games at Southern Cal from 1976-82, has 17 starters back from a team that went 6-5-1 last season under Larry Smith.

"We have lots of experience," he said. "I like our team. It's going to be good."

North Carolina went 9-3 last year, including a Peach Bowl victory over Mississippi State. Coach Mack Brown will once again go with a two-quarterback rotation, using both Mike Thomas and Jason Stanleck.

"I know people say you can't win with a two-quarterback system, but we did it last year," Brown said. "Sure, I'd rather have a clear-cut starter. However, we're fortunate to have two of the best quarterbacks in the country and we're going to use them."

The Tar Heels are 8½-point underdogs against the Trojans, who return to the site of their humiliating Freedom Bowl loss to Fresno State last December. ... SOUTHERN CAL 24-21.

Martinez nixes trade to Braves

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Dennis Martinez wanted to pitch for a contender, not merely sit on the bench for one.

So when the Atlanta Braves couldn't make room for Martinez in their rotation, he rejected a trade Thursday and remained with the Montreal Expos. Even so, the Braves accomplished one goal — they prevented him from going to the rival San Francisco Giants.

"Specifically, there were a couple of issues that weren't to Dennis' satisfaction," Expos general manager Dan Duquette said. "There was a monetary issue and the other was his position on the club his contract was being assigned to."

Agent Ron Shapiro acknowledged that Martinez would've liked some money from either the Expos or Braves in exchange for waiving his no-trade clause. But Shapiro said it was Martinez's role with another team, rather than the money, that was most important.

"There is a much more complex set of factors in a decision like this than one or the other," Shapiro said.

Other factors may have prompted the Braves, who already have Tom Glavine, Greg Maddux, Steve Avery and John Smoltz in their rotation, to pursue Martinez.

The Braves did not want Martinez to be traded to San Francisco, which leads Atlanta by 4½ games in the NL West. The Giants, along with the Braves, recently put in a claim when Martinez was placed on waivers and had a regular spot waiting for him.

The Expos worked out a deal Wednesday night to send Martinez to Atlanta for Brian Hunter, a power hitter recently demoted to the minors. But the deal required the pitcher's approval.

Martinez can veto any deal because he is a 10-and-5 man — he's played 10 years in the major leagues, the last five with the same team.

On Thursday morning, clubhouse attendants hired by Martinez packed up his belongings at Olympic Stadium and stacked them by his locker. Just before noon, however, Duquette was told by Shapiro that Martinez had decided to decline the deal.

"This is quite a Montreal story," Duquette said. "Usually, you have players squawking about playing in Montreal. Now we have a player who doesn't want to leave."

Martinez, 38, is 11-8 with a 4.23 ERA this season. The longtime Expos ace was an All-Star in 1990, 1991 and 1992, and has always been at his best with a regular turn in the rotation.

But on the Braves, Martinez would not have gotten many chances as the fifth starter. And even if Atlanta reached the postseason for the third straight year, there was no guarantee he would have pitched in the playoffs.

The Braves had no official reaction to Martinez's rejection, saying that baseball's tampering rules prevented them from commenting.

Shapiro said Martinez's rejection did not eliminate all possibility that he could be traded before Aug. 31, the date by which postseason rosters must be set. But it certainly left big doubts.

The Giants still want Martinez for a regular slot in their rotation. Martinez, though, would have to clear irrevocable waivers before a deal could be made. That would mean Atlanta or any other NL club with a worse record than the Giants would again have first crack at claiming him.

Martinez, however, can use his 10-and-5 powers to block any deal.

Martinez is in the final year of a contract worth about $2.6 million and is eligible for free agency at the end of the season. He has averaged 14 victories in his past five seasons and has had an ERA below 3.00 in all but one of those years.

Magic contract talks stalled

Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Anfernee Hardaway, the NBA's No. 3 draft pick, and the Orlando Magic are "miles apart" in settling on a salary for the former Memphis State star, says Hardaway's agent, Carl Poston of Houston.

Declining to say how much Hardaway wants, Poston said the $1.2 million a year offered by Orlando is too low.

Pat Williams, the Magic's general manager, said his team is already over the National Basketball Association's $15 million salary cap.

"We've been working to get our payroll down for three months, and I don't think we have any more opportunities to make any more trades," Williams said.

But Poston said that the Magic will have to try harder.

"They need to get rid of some more of their higher-salaried players," Poston said. "As far as I'm concerned, everybody on that team is expendable except for Shaq (center Shaquille O'Neal)."

Hardaway, who gave up his senior year in college to join the NBA, has a bit of financial breathing room while the negotiations continue.

Hardaway has a seven-figure deal with a sports trading card company and is working on a contract with an athletic shoe company, Poston said.

O'Neal is Orlando's top paid player at $3.9 million for the 1993-94 season. Dennis Scott will get $2.8 million and Nick Anderson $2.6 million.

The Magic will begin weight training and workouts in mid-September, and Williams would like for Hardaway to take part. Orlando's training camp opens Oct. 7.

"The first year is very important to a player's career, and I'm sure Anfernee wants to be here," he said.

Poston said Hardaway is scheduled to spend part of next month in Los Angeles training with former Lakers star Magic Johnson.

IN BRIEF

Gold Star Parent Luncheon planned

Veterans of Foreign Wars Dist. 18 (Orange & Seminole counties) and the Ladies Auxiliaries will host a Gold Star Parent Luncheon on Sept. 19 at 2 p.m. at the V.F.W. Post #10180, 2706 Wells Ave., Fern Park.

A Gold Star parent is one who has lost their son or daughter while in active duty. They are urged to attend the luncheon in their honor and should contact their local V.F.W. or Millie Malinowski, chairman, at 647-7953.

Disability disaster information given

Orange County Emergency management officials will advise people with disabilities what to do and how to prepare for a natural disaster. The free workshop is open to the public and will be held at the Center for Independent Living from 10 a.m. to noon on Sept. 8.

The Center for Independent Living is a private, non-profit organization that encourages persons with disabilities to lead productive, fulfilled lives in Central Florida.

For more information, call 623-1070.

Getting a fair shake at the pump

The cost of gasoline and other petroleum fuels takes a big bite out of the budgets of most consumers, and few can afford to pay for more than they receive. So, how do people know they are getting a fair measure for their money when they buy gas, diesel fuel, kerosene or fuel oil? We've been seeing the rip-offs at the gas pump in other states on numerous TV programs. The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services assures us in Florida we are safe.

The answer can be found at the Bureau of Petroleum Inspection in the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. For more than 50 years, the department has been checking the accuracy of gasoline pumps and other petroleum metering equipment at retail stations and wholesale outlets. Retail gasoline pumps are generally inspected twice a year, but if complaints are received about problems at a specific station, an immediate inspection is conducted.

Inspectors also check gasoline storage tanks for water contamination and look for other contamination of gas and other fuels.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Samples of fuels, antifreeze and brake fluid are sent to department laboratories where they are analyzed for contamination, adulteration, conformance to labeling, and adherence to quality standards.

The octane ratings of gasoline samples are also checked at the labs to ensure that the ratings posted on the pumps are accurate. Consumers should check the octane rating on the pump and not rely on the names "premium" or "regular" as posted by the dealer. To find the octane level suitable for a vehicle, owners should refer to their owner's manual. Florida requires a minimum octane rating of 90 for premium gasoline.

Of the 6.9 billion gallons of petroleum fuel distributed throughout Florida during the past year, 98.7 percent of the samples taken met state standards, which are considered among the strictest in the nation. In all, laboratory technicians at the department's laboratories analyzed 59,000 samples of petroleum fuels, anti-freeze and brake fluid. Approximately 278,000 inspections were conducted of the 123,000 retail dispensers, vehicle tanks and wholesale meters at the 10,000 petroleum facilities located throughout Florida.

Every gas pump that has been inspected should bear the department's blue, green and white inspection decal in a prominent location. The decals are initiated by the inspectors and show the date of the last inspection. The toll free hotline, 1-800-HELPFLA (1-800-435-7352), is included on the decals for consumers to call if they have concerns about the pump accuracy, fuel quality or the posted octane ratings.

Child feels responsible for mothers cocaine addiction

DEAR MARY: I'm in middle school and I've known for years that my mom uses cocaine. She used to try to hide it, but for the past couple years she's been using it more and more and doesn't pay much attention to whether I know it or not. In fact, that's about all she does around the house. She doesn't cook, do the dishes, laundry — nothing. If it gets done around here, I do it. I try to help out as much as I can after school, hoping maybe she won't be so nasty to me if I get everything done. I also try to fix stuff that she likes to eat because she's losing a lot of weight, but she just won't eat much of anything.

I want to help her and make

DRUG COUNSELOR

her proud of me so maybe she won't feel like she needs to use so much coke, but it seems like no matter how hard I try to do the right thing, she just keeps getting meaner to me and using more. What else can I do to help her stop treating herself and me like this?

TRYING HARD TO HELP

DEAR TRYING: I have both good news and bad news for you. It's not your fault that your mom uses cocaine and there is no way you can control her use or cure her of her addiction, no matter what you do or don't do, how you act or what you say. But there is something very important that you've got to do. You've got to start taking excellent care of yourself — body, mind, and spirit. It's difficult living with an addict. Find an adult that you like and trust to talk to, perhaps someone in your church, extended family, school or neighborhood. Regardless of your mom's actions, you must decide that you will do the things that are right for you to protect and nurture yourself. Believe me, you're worth it!

Woman who walks bachelor's dog can't let go of leash

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a bachelor who lives alone in my building. I'm a divorcee also living alone. It all started out with a "good morning" when we were both walking our dogs. (He has two.)

Pretty soon, he asked me to walk his dogs while walking my own. Then he started coming in after work every evening for a drink. I invited him to dinner several times and we'd watch TV, play backgammon and neck a little. He seems to like me, but he has never invited me out. Meanwhile I fell for him — but hard!

Two months ago, he said he was going away for the weekend, and I was sure he was going to ask me to go along, but instead he asked me to keep his dogs!

When he came back for the dogs, he spent the night with me. After that, I couldn't get him off my mind.

Now he goes away every weekend and leaves his dogs with me, and when he comes back, he stays all night. He's driving me crazy. I told him I was in love with him, but he's never committed himself. How can I get him interested in me? I feel like a 40-year-old teen-ager.

40 AND FOOLISH

DEAR FOOLISH: As I see it, your neighbor sleeps with you occasionally in exchange for your looking after his dogs. It's a good deal for him, but a dog's life for you. There's no way you can get him "interested" in you. Break it off now. The longer you wait, the more painful it will be.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and her husband have a French poodle they call "Zsa Zsa." They have no children, but they treat this dog just like a child. Zsa Zsa eats at the same table with them, and they even had a furrier make her a mink coat and bow to match.

They take Zsa Zsa everywhere with them. (If a place doesn't allow dogs, they won't go there.)

Abby, they even spell in front of this dog because they insist she is so smart, she "understands" every word they say.

Well, I just had a baby girl. We named her Karen Sue, and the last straw was their sending a baby gift with a card saying, "With love to my cousin, Karen Sue, from Zsa Zsa."

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Just imagine, putting our child in the same class with their dog! Are they sick, or what?

SICK OF ZSA ZSA

DEAR SICK: No. As a former poodle owner, I can understand their feelings. Don't judge them too harshly. Some poodles are almost human.

DEAR ABBY: My children are just average, but they are good kids. I have no outstanding beauties among my daughters, and while they do have friends, none of them is wildly popular. My sons are average students, just fair in sports, but none of them ever made the team.

A relative of mine has outstanding children. They are popular, good-looking and get lots of honors — and he doesn't let me forget it for a moment. What can I say when he collars me and brags on and on about his kids?

SLOW BURN

DEAR SLOW: Nothing. Just because a jackass brags doesn't mean you have to answer him.

DEAR ABBY: Add this to your collection of laughter at funerals.

I remember my mother telling this story about my mother's sister, her husband, and my mother and father — who were attending the funeral of an elderly family member.

My uncle whispered: "Did they put his pants on him?"

My mother answered: "I don't think so!"

My uncle said, "When my time comes, will you be sure they put my pants on?"

Years later, at my uncle's funeral, my mother whispered to my aunt, "Did you have his pants put on him?"

The giggling started, and they laughed and cried throughout the entire funeral.

Watering the Plants...

It is one of those things we simply know. Plants must have water to survive. So, we provide regularly for their need.

Religious education is based on the same principle. The spiritual needs of our children are just as urgent and just as continual as their need for nourishment, shelter and love. As the body grows, so must the soul.

Is your family taking full advantage of the religious training the churches and synagogues of our community offer? Are you cultivating through weekly worship that spiritual vitality in your home which will encourage your children's moral and spiritual growth? If not, why not begin today?

National day of prayer

1 million students expected to attend 'See You At The Pole'

With more than one million students across the country expected to turn out for a national day of prayer on Sept. 15, the promoter of the event is joining forces with a public interest law firm to launch a nationwide educational campaign for the student-initiated, student-led event.

The National Network of Youth Ministries and the American Center for Law and Justice are working together on "See You At The Pole," a grassroots prayer event that began in Texas in 1990.

Students from junior high, senior high and college campuses will gather around their school flagpoles at 7 a.m. during non-instructional time to pray for campus, community and national concerns.

"I believe we are on the verge of a spiritual awakening among young people in our country," said Paul Fleischmann, executive director of National Network of Youth Ministries, which is promoting the event.

"There is a tremendous need for prayer in this country, and students all over this nation want to begin that school day with prayer."

The National Network of Youth Ministries, which helped organize last year's event, estimated that about one million students took part in "See You At The Pole" in 1991. The group is working with a number of Christian church denominations and organizations to promote this year's event.

"We are hopeful that more students than ever will pray this year," said Fleischmann. "This national day of prayer can certainly become the largest youth prayer gathering in our nation's history."

The American Center for Law and Justice is sending school "bulletins," similar to those sent during its graduation prayer campaign this past spring, to nearly 30,000 public school administrators nationwide, outlining the legal position for the camaign. The "bulletins" are being mailed to each of the school board superintendents and school principals in the country.

"We are not creating a prayer event," said Fleischmann. "This national day of prayer began years ago and truly grew out of the desires and wishes to individual students around the country. We want to provide an environment where they can come forward, on their own, and pray in peace."

A toll-free hotline has been set up, 800-721-2220. Callers will receive a free brochure and packet of legal information related to the event. A recorded message of basic information is also available by calling 619-592-9200. Materials are available for promotion of the Sept. 15 event, as well as resources for starting on-going groups on campuses, dealing with legal challenges, and beginning local networks for youth ministry.

Pastor of Methodist church moves to Sanford

SANFORD — The pastor of Christ United Methodist Church, 408 Tucker Dr., and his family, have moved to Sanford.

The members of the church in Sunland Estates have spent the past two months renovating the parsonage in preparation for occupancy of Pastor Larry Armbrust, his wife Jan, and daughters, Christa and Laurel.

Since his appointment in June 1992, Pastor Armbrust has commuted three days every week from Kissimmee. The church has experienced a healthy increase in attendance in the past 15 months and the pastor wanted to be in Sanford to be closer to his congregation and to become more involved in the community.

The renovations included the repainting of all interior walls and ceilings; installation of new carpet throughout the house; and wallpapering. The exterior of the home is also being repainted.

"It's almost like living in a new home," said Pastor Armbrust.

What do ballplayers do for Sunday services?

It was 20 years ago this spring that Watson Spoelstra, a sports writer for The Detroit News, went to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn with an idea.

He offered to establish and coordinate weekly chapel services for the 12 Major League Baseball teams that would be on the road every Sunday.

As Spoelstra conceived it, the chapel services would follow a simple format. Those players who wanted to attend would meet after breakfast in a room in the hotel where the road team was staying, or in the clubhouse before pre-game batting practice. There would be a low-key devotional message by a guest speaker and a closing prayer.

Kuhn said fine, and Spoelstra went to work.

The first chapel programs were held in April 1973 for two teams — the Minnesota Twins and the Chicago Cubs.

Today, using basically the same format that Spoelstra devised, all 28 major league teams participate in the Baseball Chapel. Players, managers, coaches, stadium personnel, radio-TV broadcasters and baseball writers away from home attend the Sunday services. Many teams also have mid-week Bible studies.

What gave Spoelstra the idea for the Baseball Chapel?

RELIGION
George Plagenz
It wasn't something that you would expect from a hard-drinking sports writer who covered the Detroit Tigers (baseball) and Lions (pro football). "Waddy," as he was known, "seemed dedicated to keeping the distilleries in America on overtime," as one fellow sports writer put it.

Then something happened that turned Spoelstra's life around.

He learned that his daughter Ann, a freshman at the University of Michigan, was critically ill with a brain hemorrhage. The best neurosurgeon was called, but he said Ann's chances of pulling through were slim.

Spoelstra and his wife went together to the hospital chapel.

Later, he recalled: "I grew up with a Bible-believing mother, but I had given up going to church years before. So there in the chapel I just said 'God, my mother believed in you. If you are here, I'll make a deal with you. You do something about Ann and I'll let you do something about me.'"

Miraculously, Ann got better. She recovered without surgery. Waddy was left with his vow. He put down the bottle and turned out the neon lights that had led him around at night.

Spoelstra began attending church and reading the Bible. He even considered giving up his newspaper career. But then he read the passage in the Bible where Paul said, "Usually a person should keep on with the work he was doing when the Lord called him."

So, Spoelstra decided to remain with The Detroit News.

Is sunlight too harsh for children?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 2-year-old grandson is very uncomfortable when playing outdoors in the sunlight. He constantly covers his eyes and asks to come in. We've tried sunglasses but he's too young to tolerate them. Oh yes, he's very fair. I've read this is called night blindness caused from a lack of vitamin A, but his pediatrician doesn't agree and passes it over lightly.

DEAR READER: Most children have the innate sense to avoid situations that may harm them. Sunlight is no exception. The glare of bright sunlight is basically unpleasant (adults, over the years, learn to adapt) and can affect vision, even burn the retina.

Your grandson is appropriately trying to tell everybody to get him out of direct sunlight. Therefore, I suggest that you listen to him. Let him play outdoors in the shade, under a tree or umbrella.

Night blindness (the inability to discern objects in the dark or half light) is, as you stated, often caused by a deficiency of vitamin A. This is not your grandson's problem; he's merely being sensible.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My gynecologist tells me I have vulvar dystrophy. Do you know of any treatment other than surgery that will relieve this condition?

DEAR READER: After menopause, some women note shrinkage and dryness of the external genitals. This may cause scarring, itching, burning, painful intercourse, and contraction of tissue that may require surgery for release.

However, atrophic vulvar dystrophy can often be helped by the application of creams containing testosterone or estrogen. Sometimes cortisone creams are also used concomitantly to reduce inflammation. If you are especially bothered by this uncomfortable affliction, you should follow your gynecologist's advice.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Every now and then, you watch a deal played by experts and you cannot believe what is happening. Today's occurred during the Bridge Federation of Asia and Middle East Championships, held last June in Mauritius. I will allow the performers to retain anonymity, but there are several instructive points in the deal.

I would have overcalled one spade with that South hand. And North should make a take-out double over one spade. Also, when North overcalls two clubs vulnerable opposite a passed partner, as South I would have been thinking about three no-trump. Finally, I'm not sure I would have passed three no-trump as North. Partner is expecting a better hand for two bids like that.

10, ace, two. The commentators were confidently predicting three down when East cashed the spade ace! After West discouraged, East switched back to the diamond four: queen, king. Three down after all.

There are two key points. Would East win trick one with the diamond ace if holding the ace and king? It's unlikely. And if he had done so, he would have returned a low diamond at trick two. When instead the spade ace was cashed, it was clear East was trying to run one suit or the other. This is not a logical defense when one holds the ace and king of diamonds. So it is correct to play low on the diamond return at trick three. Then the contract makes, declarer getting his ninth trick from either major.

What a Comedy of Errors — was Shakespeare a bridge player?

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 28, 1993

Advancement in your chosen field of endeavor is a strong probability for the year ahead. Hard work and drive will play the major roles while luck will play the minor one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you want help from another today don't impose upon his/her emotions and sensitivities. Keep feelings out of the picture and stick to the facts. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually members of the opposite gender find you appealing and attractive, but today you might not get these high grades on your score card if you appear to be too self-centered.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In a career situation today there is a possibility an associate might try to take credit for something that was your doing, not his/hers. Be ready to respond in defense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Optimism is a marvelous attribute that has powerful inspirational effects while wishful thinking is merely self-diluting and usually results in disappointment. Beware of the latter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You must guard against inclinations today that urge you to spend now in hopes you'll be able to pay later. There is nothing certain about the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your mate's tolerance and patience will have its limits today, so be very careful not to make unreasonable demands on him/her. Put yourself in your spouse's shoes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will be easier to make promises today than it will be for you to fulfill them at a later date. Unfortunately, you may have to learn this lesson the hard way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your behavior patterns will be carefully scrutinized today by friends with whom you're in-olved socially. Don't put your ashes in a coffee cup or wipe your mouth on your sleeve.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your goals and objectives are likely to be clearly defined today, yet you may not be much of an achiever. This is because you might stop trying if things don't come easy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If someone in your presence does something outstanding today, be lavish in your praise. However, if you attempt to use flattery to achieve a selfish purpose, it won't work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your sense of values might be a trifle distorted today and this anomaly could become evident if you go shopping. Be careful not to pay more for things than they are worth.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tactfulness and decorum have their places today in one-to-one relationships, but don't give them precedence over substance. It is the latter that really counts. (C)1993. NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
