Man stabs woman after block party

SANFORD - A woman was stabbed last weekend after leaving a block party on 24th Place in Sanford, near Oak Avenue.

Jaime Bond was leaving the party on Dec. 11, around midnight, with sisters Kristie and Kourtney Toole when an unknown white male began following them.

According to the police report, the suspect grabbed Bond's shoulder and stabbed her in the back. Kristie Toole alleged the suspect attempted to stab her also, but instead hit her in the abdomen. They told officers the suspect never said anything and walked away after accosting them. Wayne Appling, 20, of Begonia Cove in Sanford, was arrested and charged with the forme. Appling was found on 24th Place between Myrtle Avenue and Oak Avenue, with a butterfly knife in his back pocket. Officers observed a one inch stab wound on the center of Bond's back, and Kristie Toole had a red mark about on her stomach area.

Appling told police he was at the block party with his brother, where he had several alcoholic drinks. He said the last thing be remembered was attempting to take his brother home.

Appling told officers he does not remember anything after that, and has never met Bond or the Toole sisters. He also said he did not remember possessing the butterfly knife.

Appling was charged with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon; aggravated assault with a deadly weapon without intent to kill; and battery causing bodily harm.

Fired cop decides to resign

SANFORD - The fired Sanford Police Officer who was expected to return to the force after signing a "last chance" agreement, instead submitted

He will also be reinstated for sick and personal leave time he used when he was originally terminated in August.

Trezise will not, however, be paid for the 30-day suspension he received instead of the termination.

Another aspect of the agreement is that all comments about Trezise must go through the city manager's office, Fresenius Medical Care, an international company that has maintained an office on Commercial Street for the last 25 years, was planning to use a majority of the building for a dialysis center with the remainder space leased for retail, on the request of city staff.

Crack merchants perk up for a possible sale, but the occupants of the van are not buying. The vehicle's driver and passengers study the scene as they approach. They scan the group outside, looking especially at the hands.

Every door of the van opens and the Sanford Police Department Street Crimes Unit rushes out. A suspect drops a couple pieces of crack and runs, but he doesn't get far. Ten minutes into the night's work the officers have their first arrest for drug possession.

The new unit has operated for five months in an effort to meet demands for more proactive policing, said Sgt. Tony Raimondo, the unit's

Parents worry about busing times

SANFORD - After studying 44 separate middle school rezoning plans, the general consensus among School Board members falls on Plan 37 modified, but some parents still urged members to keep children at schools closest to home.

When the plan is finalized Feb. 21, it will create the initial student body for the Markham Woods Middle School set to open in August 2006. The school will be populated by students currently attending Greenwood Lakes, Millennium and Sanford middle schools.

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

Don't faint, dear readers, your trusty Clock Keeper is back at his post. Unforeseen emergencies here at The Herald have kept me from my rounds. Thanks for all the calls and e-mails. Let's get to it.

New job: After being pressured to leave his job as the city of Sanford's finance director, Kevin Smith appears to have landed a plum job.

Smith had been with the city for almost 10 years and had received glowing evaluations for his work, including an almost perfect score for his 2004 review. Despite his past performance, Smith and former Interim City Manager Eugene Miller apparently didn't see eye to eye because Smith "resigned" unexpectedly one week before Sherman Yehl began his tenure as the city's fulltime city manager. As part his resignation,

Around the Clock

by Dan Ping

Smith received three months severance pay. Add that check to the one he's now receiving from the city of Winter Springs as the de facto assistant city manager and it looks to be a good Christmas in the Smith household this year. Smith is in charge of three city departments in Winter iterald, Dorls Dietrich, passed away last week. We received the news Monday that Miss Doris had died. About the same time we had received word that Nellie Coleman had also died. As our staff rushed to put together obits on two of Sanford's finest ladies, they began finding inconsistencies regarding the Coleman obituary.

Turns out Mrs. Coleman has not died, at least not the Nellie Coleman most Sanfordites know as the long-time teacher at Seminole High School. Our Nellie Coleman is still alive and living at the Renaissance Retirement Center on Airport Boulevard.

"She still with us," an official at the center told one of our reporters on Tuesday. "She had breakfast

To paraphrase Mark Twain, "Rumors of Nellie Coleman's passing have been greatly exaggerated."

Chamber news: The Sanford Chamber of Commerce held its election of new executive board members Friday. Chamber President Angelia Gordon wasn't thrilled with the process to say the least.

Gordon has been loosey-goosey when it comes to who serves on the executive boards. There was a time where you could join the chamber and within weeks Gordon would appoint you to the Executive Board, Ask Michael Hartmen, who became the chamber's treasurer shortly after joining the chamber. In essence, board members were serving at the pleasure of the president, Gordon, rather than the Board Chairman David Taylor insisted that the chamber follow its own bylaws on electing executive board members. Gordon fought Taylor on this issue and reportedly searched for loopholes. Taylor prevailed, and for the first time in years, The Heruld actually received a ballot to vote on new executive board members. Critics of the chamber said the balloting went smooth, although a least one current chamber member reported not receiving a ballot.

The new members of the executive board are: Bart Peterson, Paul Osborne, David Minton, Bill Elliot and Mike Fitzpatrick. Best of luck to the new board. They've got their hands full as they try to straighten out the shambles that is the chamber's finances.

Manure duty: If you thought the fat guy wearing a Santa hat and shoveling manure looked familiar on SGTV's replay of the Sanford Christmas parade, you were right --- it was me.

Now plenty of people in town will tell you I shovel manure on a regular basis in this column. Be that as it may, I was called into emergency duty two Saturdays ago when the horse-riding cowboys from the local Shriners group failed to bring their peopcr-scooper

As luck would have it, one of the horses let loose right in front of The Clock on Magnolla Square. Most of the middle school kids marching behind the horses saw the land mines in time, but one of the kids in the back wasn't as observant and stepped right in the middle of the mess.

With about a third of the one-hour parade still approaching the "drop zone," Joyce Fitzgerald, who along with her husband Bernle owns Granny's on Magnolia Square, quickly realized the situation had turned to, well, uh, crap. She brought a broom and dustpan from her store and proceeding to clean up the mess. I followed her to the middle of the street and began scooping up as much as the dustpan would hold. Then the dilemma became where to dump a dustpan of manure. The garbage cans downtown have ashtrays on top of them. There was no way to dispose of the doo-doo without smearing it all over the can.

My solution? I'm not at liberty to say, but the folks in the city's parks department might want to sharpen their pruning shears. Some of the bushes in Magnolia Square may experience a growth spurt.

Snoop Santa

When it absolutely has to be there on time, Santa Claus sometimes relies on a little help to make his yearly deliveries. This photo shows the original Snoop dog helping Santa during the Midway Elementary School annual holiday parade. Snoopy and friends were riding with Santa on the Seminole County Roads Department Christmas float during the parade.

But some members of the Planning and Zoning Board want to keep the old Eckerd site completely retail. Loeper said he doesn't understand what the problem is.

"For some reason they want to keep the building retail," Loeper said.

According to Loeper, Fresenius Medical Care has been trying to relocate and expand their physical plant and are ready to sign a long term lease.

"We're not new to this business," he said. "[We've had) community presence for a long time."

The Eckerd building was bought by competitor CVS, as well as the Eckerd on S.R. 46, near the Seminole Towns Center Mall, last year, CVS shut down the 1st Street pharmacy so it wouldn't compete with their other locations. DiAngeles, Mike spokesman for CVS, said in October 2004 that closing the Eckerd site was a business decision based on the other stores in the vicinity and the performance levels of the Eckerd drug stores.

"We looked at all of the stores since the announcement was made, and unfortunately there were some that didn't meet our business needs," DiAngeles said last

Former city manager Al Grieshaber wrote a letter to CVS District Manager Denise Blair last October, The Herald reported last year. Grieshaber called the Eckerd store an anchor of the downtown dis-

Eckerd opened its doors in 2003 and city officials, at the time, hoped it would cater to new residential projects being constructed in downtown

Since the store closed it has stood quiet as community leaders and residents wondered what might go in there.

City Manager Sherman Yehl said Friday that because the board was deadlocked the conditional use request will be heard by the City Commissioners next.

"The feeling is the commission really wants to see that area maintained as retail," Yehl said.

Hive somewhat in the flight path of those huge airliners that take off and land from the Orlando-Sanford International Airport. Watching them from time to time, I often pause to wonder; If Orville and Wilber Wright would see that plane, I bet they wound wonder how it stayed in the air. I realize the planes are traveling well over 100 miles per hour, but from the ground they often look like they are barely moving.

Dec. 17 is the anniversary of the Wright brothers' first powered.

flight in 1903. After three years of work, these bicycle shop operators and inventors took their aircraft to Kitty Hawk, North Carolina for a try-out. First Orville, then Wilbur, took their turns at piloting the craft.

Although neither flight lasted more than a minute, it is credited with being the first powered flight of an aircraft. These days, the common comparison is that neither flight flew as far as the wingspan on most of today's airliners. Previously, men had flown in balloons. On June 5, 1783, the Montgolfer brothers flew a hot-air bal-loon for 10 minutes in France, covering 7,500 feet in distance. History says this was the first time man had flown into the sky in anything.

So the Wright brothers flew a motorized aircraft 102 years ago. Look at the advances we've had since then. On Dec. 23, 1987, Dick Rutan and Jeana Yeager flew their aircraft, the Voyager, around the world, non-stop, without refueling. It took 216 hours, but was a history making flight.

Pfeifauf Prior to that, on Dec. 24, 1968, the United States had a manned satellite orbit the moon for the first time. I can imagine the Wright brothers dreaming of the day when people would fly in motor powered aircraft from places around the globe, but I doubt they could imagine a craft with enough power to reach the moon and return. Now, let's bring this into a local situation. As many of my Navy friends and many long-time Sanford residents will remember - it was a sad day when the government announced the closing of the Sanford Naval Air Station. With much of the city's economy depending on service men, their families and civilian support personnel jobs, there were those who predicted gloom and doom for the city. The Navy left Sanford. I recall the price of housing in Sanford dropped considerably as soon as the announcement was made. Yet, being in the news profession at that time, I recall doing a news story where Southern Bell announced that the number of telephones in the city increased greatly within a few months, and prosperity was able to continue. The naysayers were proven wrong.

Who was to imagine at that time, that the abandoned Sanford Naval Air Station would blossom into what it is today - a major International airport with flights to and from cities across the nation, many foreign countries in still maintaining local flight service. While the SNAS was relatively small in comparison to Naval Air Stations elsewhere in the nation, our present airport is listed as one of the top facilities in the

There have been air shows from time to time at the Sanford airport (and elsewhere around Central Florida). I have often wished I could bring Orville and Wilbur back to life for a day, and journey with them to one of these shows. What would they say when the Blue Angels filled the skies with their unbelievable aerobatic maneuvers? Could they believe the size of some of those cargo carriers that are big enough to drive trucks into the cargo hold? But Orville made his final flight into the sky on Jan. 30, 1948, while Wilbur made his final flight on May 30, 1912. Their flights this time were to Heaven.

For people like them who are inventors and creative folks, we hope the Wright brothers have set a good example. Their first manned flight was made only after two attempts in previous weeks. But persevere they did, finally making their successful flights on their third attempt. Hopefully we learned from this - two wrongs don't make a Wright.

The company was looking to integrate a paper mill and found the opportunity in Florida. But Boulos said the operation here is not doing well financially, and the current owner said it was because they didn't have support.

Boulos is interested in gaining rail access for the business if he stays permanently at the plant on St. Johns Parkway. Currently, Roses makes paper in big rolls and then transports the paper to Albuquerque, N.M. which costs them $3 million a year in transportation said. The plant in Sanford currently employs 45 people who are all from Sanford. And, they expect to employ another 15 in the next five years.

"It's a challenge," Boulos

Boulos said he delayed the closing of the business deal because he is looking at either moving completely, or expanding the current plant, based on the level of support provided by not only the Sanford City Commission, but also the Seminole County Board of Commissioners. "It makes sense to me to expand here," Boulos said. On Friday, Dec. 9, Roses submitted a Jobs Growth Incentive application to Seminole County requesting $2,000 per job. He said the company spends $2.5 million on payroll each year, which could filter into the local economy.

Commissioners said they do not have the complete ability to grant rail access to Roses, but if they were to negotiate with neighboring landowners, or acquire more land in the future, they would have the ability to be a part of the process of granting easement. Commissioners also said they would look into utilities franchise fees cap. Boulos said his company spends $6 million a year in electricity, natural gas and water services to operate the

When a man wants a drink of good water in Sanford, all he has to do is drive down an iron pipe, stick a pump on it, and work the handle and water gushes out as is did when Moses smote the rock in the wilderness. The editors of the Journal, in a fit of desperation for water one day last week, had a pipe driven and in less than two hours had all the water they wanted.

Murdered and Beheaded

The news of a very brutal murder which took place about the first of the month near Sanford has just reached us. From what we can learn, a Mr. McMillan, who lives only a few miles from Sanford, failed to return home for several days and fears of his having been murdered were entertained. Another white man by the name of Newton was suspected as being the person who committed the deed.

When Mr. McMillan failed to appear, the citizens decided to drag the nearby lake. After dragging for some time, they succeeded in finding the body at the bottom of the lake. When it was pulled up to the surface, it was found that the head have been severed from the body, having been cut off by a sharp instrument. An iron pot was attached to the body to prevent it from coming to the surface.

As suspicion rested on Newton, the citizens decided to search his property. After some delay, they found a newly dug grave on his land which it is supposed Newton had dug to bury the body in case it came to the surface. Newton acknowledged that the iron pot belonged to him and said he had dug the hole to catch coons. Newton and his wife were arrested and are in custody. Treats of lynching were numerous, but had not been carried out.

October 24, 1882

Yesterday we saw a gentleman directly from the scene of the McMillan murder and who was on the coroner's jury. He informed us that everything points to Newton's guilt. The day the murder was committed, Newton borrowed a pistol from a neighbor. He had for some time been trying to purchase Mr. McMillan's grove and on the eve of the murder, he and his wife took Mr. McMillan to their home for supper. That was the last ever seen of the unfortunate man. McMillan's head was found soon after the body was pulled up and it was revealed that he had been shot in the back of the neck. When Newton returned the pistol to its owner a day or two after the murder, it was found that one chamber had been discharged, which Newton said he had shot at an alligator. An examination of the ball extracted from the head revealed that it corresponded exactly with those in the pistol. From the above and a large number of other circumstances, Newton was arrested as the murderer, and his wife as accessory.

Mr. McMillan was a bachelor and always carried a large amount of money on him so it was supposed that he was murdered for his money. The coroner's jury returned with the verdict that it believed McMillan came to his death from a pistol wound at the hands of Newton. Newton is now having a preliminary hearing before Justice Safehouse Donations

There are six members per shift, working from 8 am to 8 am each day-24 hours on and 48 hours off. Each shift also has a trainee who works with the team after a 6 week training period. Firemen are all paramedic and/or EMT trained.

Midway, Sanford airport, Chuluota, and Oviedo are the other nearby firehouses and all work closely together. They follow the First Response mutual aid agreement that states whoever is closest will respond regardless of jurisdictional boundaries. For example, Lake Harney Woods is actually in Volusia county, but Station #42 is usually closer than the Osteen station. The Geneva station is one of 16 fire stations in Seminole county where Leeanna Raw assumed the position of chief of the county fire department on October 1,

If someone breaks a limb for example, the firemen can drive the woods truck to the scene, towing the trailer loaded with the ATV. As they near the location, they offload the ATV and hook the trailer behind it in case they need to bring someone out on a stretcher. The maneuvering capability of the ATV and woods truck are very important, especially with all the controlled burns and brush

The EMT rescue ambulance vehicle also has limited water capability. It can put out a car fire or keep a fire in check until the large engine arrives. Remote and flooded areas like Mullet Lake Park and even areas of Seminole Woods have needed help with the woods truck and ATV. During my tour I noticed how clean everything was. Lt Muse reminded me that the building has been a designated smoke-free facility, and of course they spend time making sure all the equipment is very clean. Asked what his team would like to have at the station, Lt. Muse said, "We'd love to have another bay. The weather takes its toll on the equipment." The ATV, woods truck, and trailer all need to sit out in the weather, while the engine, water tender, and ambulance stay in the bay. Maybe next year Santa can find some sort of garage covering for them...

Make sure you have working smoke detectors with good batteries; many people check and refresh the batteries when daylight savings time changes in the spring and fall.

Don't leave lights on when you're not home and check your outside and inside holiday lights for frayed wiring.

Be careful with space heaters and keep them away from combustible items and areas. Circuit breakers are supposed to kick in but sometimes Don't run your washer and dryer when you're not homepipes could break.

Candles and scented candle items can be a problem if left unattended, or if you forget about them when you leave the house or go to bed.

This can be a hectic time of year, so try to keep safety in mind to keep problems to a minimum.

The holidays are always about sharing and especially about helping kids and those less fortunate. The fire station is still accepting unwrapped toys and donations for both local kids and children of the Gulf Coast. Share your holiday spirit by dropping something by at Firehouse #42.

process began in September and included seven Core Committee meetings and two Community Input sessions.

Like previous rezoning efforts, the middle school rezoning will allow students currently enrolled at one of the three schools being rezoned to remain there.

"I know of no other district that has this provision," Pinnell said of the grandfather clause.

Pinnell was the first of many people at the meeting to thank Lake Mary resident Chad Cole for the online map tool he created.

You've seen what a great asset that's been to the process in making it very easy to see visually what a plan might look at and immediately see the impact of changing a cell or geographic region from one area to another," he said. Check out the program at chadwickdesign.com/rezoner. Some parents let the board know which plans they prefer out of the four remaining.

"Plan 37 is the plan that 1 agree with," said Craig Ruskin, Plans 37 or 37 modified would allow Ruskin's children to attend Markham Woods Middle School instead of being bused to Sanford Middle School.

"I don't have a problem with Sanford Middle School, I only have a problem with the distance to Sanford Middle School," he said.

Other parents felt the same way. Dale Meeks, who lives north of State Road 46, told board members that Markham Woods Middle School is 3.8 miles from his house as opposed to 8.1 miles to Sanford Middle School.

"It's one stop light just to get to Markham Woods versus 10-plus depending on the route the bus would take," Meeks said. He had a litany of questions for the board.

"What time would my kids have to get up in order to catch the bus? How long would it take for my kids to get there? What time will they get home when they're finished with the school day and how much recharge time will they have when they get home late in the day?" Meeks asked.

Board chairwoman Jeanne Morris told Meeks that they would get transportation answers to him. Another resident who lives north of 46 said he has spoken to parents whose children ride an hour each way to and from school.

"Two hours on a bus every day. is a little excessive," said Ethan Farrington.

His elementary school children have about an hour of free time as it is and the middle school bus ride could take even that away.

Linda Piercy, a 10-year resident of the Tall Tree subdivision, said her daughter attends Sanford Middle School. She illustrated the impact of long bus rides.

The first few weeks of school the bus was late and this made her incredibly anxious," she recalled. You know how being late to work can ruin your whole day. The ride home is even worse."

Jessica is released from school at 3:55 p.m. Her bus arrives at her stop at 5:27 p.m.

That's one hour and 32 minutes of wasted time for her," she told the board.

"I'm asking you to revise current plans to accommodate zone 4 into the new Markham Woods Middle School.

leader who has been with the Sanford Police Department for more than six years.

Currently, the sergeant and four officers, including two canine officers, comprise the unit. Their numbers so far indicate early success.

In five months, the unit has arrested more than 300 people. Raimondo said, including seven Thursday night. More than 140 felony charges have resulted from their efforts.

The statistic that Raimondo appears most proud of, however, is that the unit has had to forcefully defend itself only twice. Both times tazers were used. He also added that there have been no formal complaints about the unit. "The unit was initially organized to take care of the Goldsboro area," Raimondo said. After some success, the unit was expanded citywide. Several patrol officers joined the unit Thursday night. Raimondo said Chief Brian Tooley allows some overtime for the patrol officers to train on street crimes.

"We are proactive officers, highly trained and well versed in case law," Raimondo said in describing the unit.

Before going out Thursday, Raimondo tells the officers what will take place. He calls the type of police work a "different ani-mal". They are not answering calls, but all department policies remain in effect

"Watch the hands, they'll tell you the whole story," he advises. An undercover unit will work with the street crimes officers for part of the night.

At the first arrest, it is obvious the officers know people on the street.

"Claudia, you need to move on now," one officer tells a woman who is hanging around. The suspects know the officers as well. "Why I'm going to jail? What 1 did Shamar?" a handcuffed Andre Cashe, 28, yells to Officer Deanthony Shamar, who replies, "Possession of cocaine," The officers found the crack that the suspect dropped. "That's the easiest arrest to make," Shamar said, referring to suspects dropping the drugs as soon as they see police.

Ten minutes later, the van pulls into part of the Sanford Housing Authority, A PT Cruiser approaches from the front, going the wrong way. Officers grab stop sticks and prepare the exit as Raimondo tries to park as close as possible to the car. The driver of the PT Cruiser slams the vehicle into reverse as soon as he realizes who is in the van. An officer deploys a stop stick hoping to blow out the tire of the car, but misses by a foot. The car gets away, but is later recovered abandoned by the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

Back in the van, the group wonder aloud how long it will take until dealers start to recognize the yan.

The van drives down South Mangoustine Avenue and stops near West 14th Street. Again a Spanish song booms, Raimondo. said the music gives them a helpful extra second of cover.

Ricky Floyd's hands catch the officers' eyes this time. He drops what police discover is marijuana on the ground and takes off. Again, he doesn't get far. A canine unit is called in as the arrest is made. Officer Rebecca Wixson and her yellow Labrador Girard walk around the crime scene.

Girard sniffs around an old folded up Winnie-the-Pooh crib leaning against a tree. Wixson finds a bag of marijuana and praises Girard.

Officer Joshua Faircloth shows nine baggies of cannabis he recovered from the ground in front of Floyd, 26, who lives on 13th Street in Sanford, Faircloth also found $742 on Floyd. In his report, Faircloth notes that the marijuana is too great for personal use and the packaging is consistent with street level sale of narcotics.

Shamar notices that Floyd's vehicle has a pit bull puppy inside. Floyd says to leave the dog alone, but the windows are rolled up. When Faircloth opened the door to retrieve the dog, he smelled marijuana and Girard's keen nose is needed to search the Dodge Intrepid. Under a jacket in the back seat, police find 11 more baggies of pot and another bag under the center console of the car.

Floyd is charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell, but the charge is made more serious because the crime took place within 1,000 feet of the Holy Trinity Church of Christ, Faircloth reports. The $10,000 bond.

Back in the Housing Authority, on Edward Higgins Terrace, a suspect appears to want to deal what the officer's call a pebble-like item. They suspect crack, but Milton Peoples shoves the substance into his mouth. Peoples did not respond to verbal commands to stop or to spit out what he put in his mouth, which he eventually swallowed.

"I don't have nothing in my moutly" said People's, 43, of Castle Brewer Court in Sanford, Officers acknowledge he will probably puke it up soon.

A confidential source informs police that a serious dope dealer is in another part of the Housing Authority. The Street Crimes Unit doesn't find the large amount they expect, but they do arrest a 36-year-old woman for possession of marijuana.

This is where the cooperation between the Street Crimes Unit and the undercover unit comes into play, Raimondo explains.

The Street Crimes Unit pushes the major dealers indoors, he said. An undercover unit will go to work eventually obtaining search warrants. That moves the group back to the streets. In other words, they can't hide, Raimondo said.

"They are the undercover guys, we are the high visibility guys," he adds.

During a water break, he also explains that this is a very different of policing than a patrol officer reacting to calls from residents. Crime analysis helps the Street Crimes Unit know where

"It's a different type of policing, it really is," Raimondo suggests. He said they have arrested prostitutes, auto thieves, and many people with active warrants that run the entire specfrom of law enforcement.

Officers have to apply to be in the unit, which is expected to expand to include two more members.

Activity for the unit slows down Thursday night, most likely because their cover in the van has been blown. As the van nears known drug locations, people retreat inside.

The officers switch to patrol cars and look for drug dealers and other criminal driving on the streets in the Georgetown area. Raimondo positions himself ahead of the patrol cars. He has stop sticks ready to deploy.

Units will check cars that have violations, a tag light out or the window tinting too dark. Even if they know the person has dealt in drugs before, they must have probable cause to stop them or search the car.

pected car over. Drug dealers will run. Others will pull over.

If they run, Raimondo is ready with stop sticks, but each time the driver's pull over before getting to him. Rain begins to fall heavily. Raimondo becomes frustrated when cars pass by with obvious violations, but no officers stopped them.

Eventually, he switches places to see if he can find more cars to stop. He pulls about a half dozen cars over, but let's them all go with a warning. Finally, Shamar says on the radio that he has a likely car that ran a stop sign. Raimondo is ahead of him on Mellonville Avenue and prepares the stop sticks.

Sure enough, when Shamar hits the emergency lights, the silver Saturn takes off. Raimondo shoves the stop sticks into Mellonville, and the driver hits the sticks blowing the front driver's side tire. Somehow he remains in control of the speeding car on the slick roads. Officers follow and set up a perimeter. The Saturn pulls onto Scott Drive. A passerby in an SUV hails Raimondo and tells him the car went down a cul-de-sac named Terry Lane. Raimondo finds the Saturn at the end of the cul-de-sac. The front tire is flat, but the suspects have left. A full-service dog unit comes in, but no trail is picked up. Athens Towing loads up the Saturn, registered to an owner in Sarasota, and takes it away

Raimondo shows disappointment when nothing turns up, but it's never a dull night in Sanford, he said.

"There is such a demand from the public for this type of high visibility policing," he said. Raimondo obviously enjoys his work and the people he works with, but he doesn't hold high expectations for the drug and street

Oviedo's Andy Lark and Lyman's David Muniz will be heading to The Villages this week to prepare to play for the North squad in next Friday's (Dec. 23rd) Florida Athletic Coaches Association all-star football game at The Villages. SEALS FALL IN HUNTSVILLE

All good things must come to an end and one of those things did Thursday night in Huntsville. The Havoc stopped the Seals seven game win streak with a 3-1 victory.

Huntsville did what the Seals have done for the past three weeks, score early and build a lead. Jason deGuehery scored his second goal of the season to give the Havoc the lead just 5:37 into the game. The Seals had trou-ble most of the night passing the puck. Less than two minutes into the second period James Patterson scored his seventh goal of the year to give the Havoc a 2-0 lead. Former Seal Don Patrick would add to the lead near the halfway mark of the middle frame on the power play.

Basketball teams at top of the polls

By Dean Smith Herald Staff

Three Seminole County basketball teams got a nice surprise when the Florida Sports Writers Association (FSWA) released their State Basketball Polls this week.

The Lake Mary girls, who topped the poll for much of last season, finds themselves atop the Class 6A Poll heading into a tough tournament this weekend at Pine Castle Christian that features a powerful line-up, including No. 1 Class 2A State-Ranked The First Academy.

The Lake Howell boys, who have already knocked off three Class 6A ranked teams this season, is atop the Boys' Class 5A standings. The Silver

Lake Mary girls, Lake Howell boys No. 1 in FSWA State Poll

Hawks will probably get an idea of how good they are over the next week as they are only seeded sixth in the City of Palms Classic in Ft. Myers.

The other locally ranked team is the unbeaten Lake Mary Prep boys, who are ranked No. 6 in Class 1A this week.

The Griffins figure to move up in the next poll as they have already won by huge margina twice this week to get to 8-0 on the season

On Tuesday, LMP pounded Tavares, 94-41, and then Thursday night

whipped Geneva School, 98-39

Junior Johnny Mullen led the way against Tavares with 15 points, with fellow Juniors Bryan Benefiel and Eddle Stafford right behind with 14 points and 13 points, respectively.

On Thursday it was the inside players who did the damage as 6-foot-6 sophomore Shamar Marston led the way with 21 points, while 6-foot junior Billy Pratsch added 11 points and 6-foot-3 senior Bobby Zinsmaster 10 points. There was one upset in boys' play this See Preps, Page 2B week as Larson had 15 points and eight blocks and Mitch McGrath scored 14 points as Lake Brantley (5-3) edged Oviedo (6-3), which is getting votes this week, 61-60. DeAndre Williams scored a game-high 21 points for the Lions, who are currently playing in another big-time tournament, the Great Florida Shootout, in Kissimmee.

Lyman (5-3) also suffered a tough loss as they let a 16-point lead get away as the Greyhounds lost on the road, 60-58, to unbeaten Pine Ridge (7-0). It was the second time this season that the Panthers had edged Lyman, beating the Greyhounds, 63-59, in the season opener in Longwood.

Tough challenges await

SCC to battle national powers

By Dean Smith

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College basketball program returns this weekend from a long layoff to face some bigtime challengers.

The Raider men of coach Bobby Washington Jr. have been idle for nearly two weeks, having not played since Dec. 3rd, and have a huge weekend before them as they face Panhandle Conference powerhouses Gulf Coast Community College and Chipola Community College in the Florida JUCO Challenge at Daytona Beach Community College.

Sophomore center and UCF signee Lynette Jackson (left) and freshman guard Haakim Johnson (above) were the two hottest players for Seminole Community College prior to the recent long layoff for the basketball program. Jackson scored 51 points in wins over Brevard, Indian River and Palm Beach as the nationallyranked women went 4-1 on a recent road trip to get to 11-2 on the season heading into today's (Saturday) 2 p.m. final home game of 2005 against Okaloosa-Walton Community College, the team that handed the Raiders their first loss of the season last month in a tournament in Ocala. Johnson had 36 points and nine rebounds as the men split game with Brevard and Manatee to keep the men's record level at 4-4. The men have their hands full this weekend as they were to have played powerful Gulf Coast on Friday and will challenge the nation's No. 1 ranked squad, Chipola, today (Saturday) at 2 p.m. at Daytona Beach Community College. The men will play their final home game of 2005 on Saturday, Dec. 31st at 2 p.m. against St. Petersburg College. Admission to all home games is free.

Lyman had its way in the first half as the defense held Pine Ridge to only 8-of-28 shooting from the floor and the Greyhounds took a 30-14 lead late in the opening half when Sanchez Hughley knocked down three straightn threepointers.

The Panthers gained the momentum after that, however, as they scored the final six points of the half to close to within 30-20 at the break.

It was still a 10-point difference, 44-34, heading into the fourth period, but the hosts caught fire and took advantage of sloppy play by Lyman to outscore the guests 26-14 over the final eight minutes, capped by Iwo free throws by Alex Blue with 2.7 seconds remaining.

Hugley was the only Greyhound in double figures with 23 points.

Girls' play has also been limited with only two games being played from Tuesday through and will have also have a big challenge before them today (Saturday) when they host Okaloosa-Walton Community College from Ft. Walton Beach starting at 2 p.m.

This will be the final home game of the 2005 calendar year for SCC and not only does the game have nationally-ranked powers facing each other, it will had added incentive for SCC as Okaloosa-Walton handed the Raiders their first loss of the season last month in a tournament in Ocala.

Admission is free at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

The women are now 11-2 on the season after going 4-1 on their recent road trip. The trip started on Nov. 29th with a game in Melbourne against Brevard that was all SCC as the Raiders breezed to a 92-37 victory over the Titans.

SCC led by 29 points at the half, 50-21, then dominated the remainder of the game with its defense. For the game, Brevard shot 18 percent from the field and the Raiders held a 66-31 rebounding edge.

UCF signee Lynette Jackson led six Raiders into double figures with 16 points Also hitting double digits in scoring were Tamara Layton with 13, Ashley Armstrong and Oviedo's Sicilia LoSauro with 12 each and Aneika Henry and Oviedo's Irimar Hernandez with 10 each.

The team then headed to Miami for the Miami-Dade College Shootout where they played three games in as many days. SCC got somewhat of a surprise as on the original schedule the Raiders were to have faced a trio of the out-of-state teams, but that evidently fell through as they ended up playing three teams from the Suncoasi Conference.

Jackson had a monster game on the opening night, going for 25 points and 10 rebounds as SCC whipped Indian River Community College, 72-57. The 6-foot-4 Jackson got a lot of help from the Raiders' other 'Twin Tower', 6-foot-3 red-shirt freshman Aneika Henry, who had 19 points and 10 rebounds.

Layton also had a big game with nine points and a team-high 13 rebounds. SCC's offense then deserted the team on Saturday as the Raiders were blasted by the host Sharks, 78-58.

But the team bounced back to win a defensive battle with a very good Palm Beach Community College team on Sunday, 51-48, with LoSauro scoring 13 points. Tiffany Scott chipped in with 12 points and Jackson added 10.

The team to off a week before heading to Tampa and outscoring host Hillsborough Community College (5-7), 74-66.

Gelting back to the men, on Nov. 29th the team snapped a three-game losing streak in the most dramatic of fashion as freshman guard Houston Wright hit a three-pointer with 6.9-seconds left to give the hosts a 69-67 victory over Brevard

The game looked like it might be a heartbreaker for the Raiders as the Titans scored the first basket of the game before SCC went ahead on a three-pointer and led by as many as 20 points in the second half before BCC battled back to take its only other lead of the game, 67-66, on a lay-up by Travis Nelson, who scored a game-high 21 points, with 16 seconds left.

After a time out, Houston got the ball on the left side in front of the SCC bench and nailed his third three-pointer of the game from far behind the arc.

The Titans ran the ball down court and got the ball inside for what looked like an easy tying lay-up. But the ball rolled off the rim and two subsequent tip attempts also missed the mark as the Raiders held on for the emotionally draining victory.

Wright finished with 18 points and seven rebounds, with Haakim Johnson close behind him 17 points and six boards. Renaldo Bell added 13 points and had four assists, while the only Raider 'big man' in uniform, Stephen McMillan, had eight points with 11 rebounds. Freddie Williams added eight points and Dexter Lewis had four points and four rebounds in the win. The team then took off until Dec. 3rd before heading to Bradenton to face Manatee, whom the Raiders had beaten in overtime at home earlier in November. SCC put up another tough fight against the Lancers before falling, 83-78. The Raiders, who trailed 43-39 at half, were led by Johnson with 19 points, three rebounds and three assists. Wright added 16 points, seven boards and two assists, Bell 14 points and four assists and Lewis 12 points.

Williams added nine points and four boards, McMillan posted five points with four rebounds and newcomer Nick Struthers had six rebounds and three

After playing the two games in Daytona this weekend, the team will take off again for almost two weeks before hosting St. Petersburg College in its final home game of calendar year 2005 on Saturday, Dec. 31st at 2 p.m.

Indy 500 history

Compiled by Nick Pfelfauf Staff Writer

Even though the famous Indianapolis 500 race isn't held until around the end of May, I happened to encounter some of the history of this fantastic race.

There seems to be mixed reports on when it actually started. One of my sources says George Robertson won the first race held in 1909. That's when the Indianapolis speedway was first opened. While the racetrack was reportedly built earlier, Carl Fisher, who purchased it, resurfaced the track from a stone surface to a brick on that year. Thus the name "The Brickyard".

Another source says that Ray Harroun won the "first Indy-500" race in 1910, and still another source said he won the first race in 1911 with a speed of 74.6 miles per hour.

Three sources - three differing reports. Oh well, sports reporting wasn't what it is these days. I fried to look it up in the old Sanford

Heralds, which began publishing in 1909, but couldn't find a report on the Indy-500 race. (Dean Smith hadn't joined the paper yet as Sports Editor, which is probably the main reason).

It wasn't until 1925 when the 100-mile per hour speed was broken. Peter DePaolo made the 500 miles on the 2.5-mile track averaging 101.1 miles per hour. In 1990, Arie Luyendyk of the Netherlands took the stillremaining all-time highspeed track record of 185.98 miles per hour.

Between 1909 and 1955, the race was called the AAA National championship, but it dropped sponsorship because of a number of crashes. Then the United States Auto Club, (USAC) took over as the National Championship Races from 1956 until 1978. There were no races in 1917 and 1918, in addition to the 1942-45 season because of World War II. * EDITOR'S NOTE _ Ray Harroun won the first Indianapolis 500 in 1911 in a Marmon Wasp.
