

Premier Reynaud Is Given Almost Dictatorial Power

Frenchman Becomes a One-Man Cabinet During War Crisis

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
 PARIS, June 12.—Dapper little Paul Reynaud—a sharp-eyed man from the mountains—sits in his chair in Paris wielding more legal power than any Frenchman since Napoleon III.

France picked Reynaud at the very hour to stop Hitler's chaotically blundering. Like Britain's Churchill, he'd been sharpshooter through the years.

France found the little fellow was right. France made Reynaud premier—and more. He's almost a one-man cabinet—premier, minister of war and national defense, and foreign minister.

France got action. In came General Weygand and Petain, who believed in beating the enemy to the draw. Out went General Gamelin and others who believed in waiting behind strong defenses. Out, too, a little later, went Daldier, who had been foreign minister after Reynaud succeeded him as premier.

Reynaud's wartime job fits him like his well-tailored clothes and his bowler. He is a military strat-

Paris Line Is Holding, Allied Sources Claim

Paris Line Is Holding, Allied Sources Claim

PARIS, June 12.—(AP)—The defenders of Paris last night battled the enemy barely 10 miles from the city's northern suburbs after tank assaults carried the Germans across the Marne and drove the French from the World War sites of Chateau Thierry and Reims.

Still determined in a last ditch stand, the French fought stubbornly against the lightning German encirclement while the last civilian evacuations of Paris were rushed under a pall of oily smoke which shrouded the barricaded city.

Last night's French war communique, issued at the new government headquarters in the Loire valley to the south and transmitted to Paris, said German forces striking down the Lower Oise river north of Paris had made contact with the French defenders in the region of Beaumont, the latter only 10 or 11 miles north of the Paris suburb of Montmorency and only slightly further away from the industrial suburb of Saint Denis.

The communique indicated German tanks had stormed across the Marne, directly east of Paris, directly south of Chateau Thierry in the same sector where doughboys of the second and third divisions of the American Expeditionary force turned the German tide back from Paris in May, 1918.

The Marne was crossed by the Germans when they threw masses of troops against the French around Chateau Thierry, it was said.

The French abandoned Reims and fell back into the rugged hills to the south when they were unable to stand the blow of an entire German mechanized corps of three to four armored divisions and two or three motorized divisions, it was said.

Into this assault on Reims, a beautiful cathedral city leveled by bombardment in the World War but rebuilt in splendor with American money, Germans were

'Little Belgian Girl' Of 17 Asks U. S. Help Again

NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP)—In 1917, 1,540 people gathered at a dinner in Philadelphia to hear Secretary of War Baker.

As the last minute, Baker couldn't appear. Someone glanced at the gallery.

A young Belgian girl in native costume, who was in the gallery, was drafted as a substitute.

She was 17 and never had made a speech, but she held the audience in awe and a half with her first-hand descriptions of the horrors of war. During the next two years, she spoke as 'the little Belgian girl' throughout the United States and Canada. She was decorated four times by Belgium.

Now that girl—a middle-aged woman—again is pleading for Belgian relief.

She is Suzanne Silvercruys—author, musician, sculptor, playwright, actress, social worker, international society leader. She is the daughter of the late Baron Frank Silvercruys, a president of the Belgian Relief Committee.

She spoke as a determined Belgian, although she became a naturalized American years ago.

Intensive Aviation Brings Out New Field

SACRAMENTO, Calif., June 12.—(AP)—Intensive aviation has brought a specialized field of medicine—that of the flight surgeon.

"We have to be practically pilots as well as physicians," says Col. Robert C. Murphy of the army air depot here. He explains that the examining doctor must understand the reactions of his patients to flight tests as well as the handling of machine guns, bomb releases, etc.

Periodic examination of pilots is not only good for the men but is good business in protection of the government's heavy investment in planes, he says.

When Sgt. Tom Whitmore, serving in Palestine, wrote to the city clerk in Norfolk, England, that he had never been kissed by any other girl but his sister, the clerk published it, and 400 girls wrote that they wanted to marry Tom.

The Supreme Court of Belgium; a sister of and official hostess for the present Baron Silvercruys, Belgian minister to Canada.

"We have gone through this before," she said, "and we can do it again."

She spoke as a determined Belgian, although she became a naturalized American years ago.

type of war. He's a financial expert and, thus, holds the confidence of France's big business.

He waited twenty years to be premier. Like Churchill, he was unpopular. One commentator said, "Reynaud's fate is to foresee too late."

When Hitler began building for war, Reynaud called on France to strengthen the military forces. He urged, in his book, that France prepare with fleets of planes, tanks and armored cars operating in mass formation.

When the English pound dropped in 1931 Reynaud wanted to devalue the franc, too. He stuck to his guns for five years. Those who had laughed came around to voting for his point of view.

"It is good that it is finally done," said he, "but it comes too late."

French finances went into a desperate decline that stopped only when Reynaud agreed to DeLadler's cabinet.

Reynaud, at the start of 1930, launched a three-year plan, so severe it would have cost the head of an ordinary finance minister, in general, he put the government on a "business basis." Gold would be flowing back to France. Production increased. Unemployment decreased.

War, eight months later, interrupted the program, but those eight months of effort sent

France into the war indefinitely longer.

Then France started spending three times as much as in peace time. Reynaud's job was to find the money. He did.

He located taxes still higher, demanded that those who had money to spare invest it in government war loans. He stifled squawks by laying his cards on the table, explaining the situation in plain talk.

France's great colonial administrator, the late Marshall Lyautey, was impressed by Reynaud's "clear-headed mountain thinking," when Reynaud was colonial minister.

Reynaud was born sixty-one years ago in the Alpine foothills about Barcelonnette.

Politically he is a sort of Senator Norris. He is a right-halter but has never held himself to party ties.

He loves fast debate, fast driving, fast fencing. He took fencing lessons daily for years.

He lives on the same fashionable street as President Lebrun and Daldier—with his wife and daughter.

Reynaud is a lawyer by profession. Finance and politics, however, have occupied most of his adult life. Always ambitious, he never reflected it so clearly as when he decided to stay on as premier after scraping through a confidence vote with a one-vote majority.

Premier Reynaud Appeals To U. S. To Help Allies

Says There Is No Use Fighting Unless Victory Possible

WASHINGTON, June 14. (AP)—President Roosevelt today declared that all possible help was being extended to the Allies, and pointed to Hitler's record in response to a report that the German chancellor had announced an invasion of the Western Hemisphere.

He said that the United States was not a neutral nation, but that it was a democracy, and that it was fighting for the same principles as the Allies.

He said that the United States was not a neutral nation, but that it was a democracy, and that it was fighting for the same principles as the Allies.

At Washington, the Premier of France, Paul Reynaud, today appealed to the United States to help the Allies. He said that there was no use fighting unless victory was possible.

Reynaud's appeal came in a radio address to his people in Paris, in which he said that the Allies were fighting for the same principles as the United States.

Shielded by a smoke screen and protected by an anti-aircraft gun, German infantrymen advance "somewhere in the war."

Park To Be Constructed At Site Of Historic Fort Lane On Lake Harney

Standing on the shores of the St. Johns River where its waters pour into an embayment that is now known as Lake Harney, an observation tower stands in the misty twilight of the evening of Dec. 18, 1837, several bulky craft being pulled toward the bright sand beach and the prefrontal forest along the shore.

These craft contained two companies of the Army of the South under the command of Major Greenleaf Desbross and the military accoutrements for the establishment of a fort, one of a chain built as a defense against hostile Indians in an effort to make this frontier inalienable.

Pursuit Of Enemy Until Destroyed Is Announcement Of German Command

Hitler's armies marched into Paris, captured the vital French port of Le Havre on the English Channel and in an hour of triumph—bitter defeat for France—launched a bold frontal attack on the great Maginot line itself.

Rapidly swarming German mechanized columns poured behind the main Maginot fortifications between Paris and Montmedy to impell from the rear 1,000,000 French troops manning the steel and concrete line.

Bishop Says Patriotism Best When Guided By Christianity

Without the guarantee of freedom of conscience and freedom of religion, there can be no such thing as Methodism," the speaker said.

Mr. Holland was introduced by Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, presiding bishop at the conference, as a "fellow student at Emory College" and a "man who honors God and believes in the teaching of the New Testament."

Nazi Legions Take Le Havre, Attack Maginot Defenses

(Continued from page one) Ambassador Bullitt who flashed the first word of German troops entering Paris, was reported by the Germans in "protective custody." This prompted President Roosevelt to issue a "protective order" against what and whom? London reported the desperate flight of France had caused British to form plans for a long war, and go "all out" with resources, including airplanes for the purchase of American war materiel.

Madrid said Wednesday, vital northern sector of the Maginot line, was captured and destroyed there had been a "complete collapse" of the French all along the 200-mile Western Front.

France's last command, however, insisted that the French retreat was being carried out in the "greatest order."

Italian Air Force Attacks Town Of Toukon On Riviera

BY KRYSTOLE PACEARD

 ROME, Italy, June 14.—(AP)—The Italian air force has made its first attack on France itself, heavily bombing Toukon, chief base of the French Riviera, and causing "substantial damage," Italy's command was communique said yesterday.

Italian bombers also attacked simultaneously the big French naval base at Bizerte, on the North African coast, the communique said.

In London British military analysts based unconfirmed reports that a large number of Italian troops had been transferred to points behind the German lines about two weeks ago and that they might be used against France.

All Bizerte, the communique said, fires were started and nine French planes were destroyed about the part of the destroyed Bizerte.

naval and air base of Tobruk in Tripoli but, according to the communique, did slight damage.

It was announced officially that in yesterday's British aerial bombing of Tunis, north Italy industrial city, 14 persons, including two women, were killed and 27 were wounded. The announcement said British bombers, flying at 20,000 feet, dropped 36 bombs, of which 10 failed to explode. The others hit public markets and nearby streets but, the Italians claimed, did no serious damage.

The Italian raids on the French bases of Toukon and Bizerte, at the ends of the French life line across the Mediterranean, followed reconnaissance flight by an estimated 1000 Italian planes yesterday which covered the Mediterranean basin and extended as far as south of Ethiopia.

Campbell, Johnson Ejected As Ocala Beats Sanford, 2-1

Howington Allows Only Six Hits; Gives Up Six Walks To Yearlings

Jeter Comes In To Play First Base And Justice Moves To Second As Ump's Decision Changes Line-Up

Sanford lost another close game last night as the Ocala Yearlings beat out a 2-1 victory behind the eight hit pitching of Larry Howington. Jeter Howington allowed only six hits but gave up six bases on balls.

Sanford's Whitey Campbell and Andy Johnson were ordered off the field in the eighth inning on a disputed decision at second base when Eddie Gode, Ocala catcher, was given third base as Campbell tripped the runner. The winning run crossed the plate in this inning.

Tonight Ocala comes to Sanford for a game at Municipal Ball Park. Pierce Carley will be called upon to pull the Seminoles out of their two game losing streak accumulated on the road.

Ocala opened the scoring in the fourth inning. Ted Ross and Fred Leohart both singled and then Howington hit a wild pitch and walked Gode and Mitchell before he could retire the side. Mitchell's walk forced in the run.

Sanford came back in the seventh to tie the score. Marion Johnson, advanced to second as Gode was hit by the pitcher, and scored on Joe Justice's single.

With both Campbell and Johnson out of the game, a revised Seminoles line-up appeared on the field for the last two innings. Joe Justice moved from third base to second, Jack Russell came in at third, and none other than Cleo Jeter came in to occupy first base.

Again the Seminoles made three errors and for the second night in succession they failed to register any double plays.

Edith Hyder got the only extra base blow for Sanford, a double, which was duplicated by Ocala's Ocellina Ocellini and third baseman, Ross, collected four of Ocellina's hits.

Playground Show Draws Variety Of Children's Pets

NOTES FROM THE PRESS BOX

In spite of the excitement created by a little kitten that elected to go tree climbing, ten winners were crowned in the playground pet show held yesterday afternoon, before 115 spectators.

Kittens and cats were most prominent, there being 12, while 10 puppies were entered.

Sonny Boy Lodge offered his dog, which won first place in the largest in show, to the children for short rides.

OUT OUR WAY

FROM THE PRESS BOX

One of the strangest incidents in the history of baseball was put on the Cleveland Indians' front office in a dither. Veteran manager of the second place American league team has asked Oscar Vitt, their manager, to join the protest and these were the reasons cited by the Indian players for the dismissal of Vitt:

Some of the reasons cited by the players for the dismissal of Vitt were: Vitt ridiculed the newspaper writers, fans, and opening managers and the players; that he stomped up and down in front of the dugout ranting, raving, and moaning like a stock broker after the "9 crash; that he was insincere with his players; that he undermined their morale; and that he made snide remarks about their lack of success.

The incident that seems to have brought the dismissal petition to a head occurred in a game last Tuesday against the half hitting Boston Red Sox who were "going to town" on the offerings of the great Bob Feller. Vitt is said to have grabbed, "Look at him!" as supposed to be my ace! as supposed to win a pennant with that kind of pitching.

Now if that remark were made in the "smiling" spirit and a good natured joke it could easily be parred off. We've heard managers make worse comments than that about their ball players. Of course, in the case of Feller, it is a little different. Every manager in the country would gladly give up half his possessions and throw in the family car to get Feller to hurl them over for his team.

If Alva Rinsley, president of the Indians, should fire Vitt it would set a precedent. When a team goes on a losing streak, all it has to do is complain that it can't operate efficiently under the kind of managing it is getting. The only thing we don't understand is why the St. Louis Browns didn't initiate this sort of thing years ago.

Apparently the Indians figured they have as much chance as the next team to grab the American league hunting and that the $2000 or so that goes to each player on the World Series team is not a great deal that can be tossed aside in order to appease the whims of their manager if that manager is giving the team the "bitters" as the Cleveland players alleged.

It is, of course, true that ball players fighting for a pennant run under an enormous amount of strain and a nagging manager no vents his opinion every time only games scheduled.

Park On Site Of Historical Fort Lane Is Planned

Work is now underway on the project and it is planned to have the park opened in the Fall months.

According to information received from Samuel E. Cobb, a member of the staff for the National Archives in Washington, D. C., advised that the troops which were sent to Fort Lane were a part of the army operating under General Thomas S. Jesup from whom Lake Jesup gets its name.

The detachment set out on the march from Fort Mellon on the sixteenth of December.

By December, 1837, the Seminoles in Florida had been sufficiently subdued to ensure the white settlers a fair amount of safety.

There remained, however, scattered tribes of the Seminoles who refused to submit to the white and who continued to wage guerrilla warfare against them.

The establishment of Fort Lane was part of a program to extend the white man's frontier in Florida and to protect the settlers from further raids by the Indians. The southern part of this frontier included that territory which is now the site of the park.

player strikes out or makes an error is no asset to a club. However, Vitt's actions may have been pictured in a bad light and it may be that four or five dissatisfied players have convinced the others that they could play better ball under new management, and the others, thinking of the World Series, a baseball players' Shangri-la, were willing to follow along. The opinion in this corner is that no matter who manages the Indians, we'll still string along with the yankees.

tor between Fort Mellon and Lake Winder. It would consist of a line of forts which we know now to have been Fort Lane, Fort Christmas, Fort McNeill and Fort Taylor.

Major Dearborn's detachment traveled the distance from Fort Mellon to the site of Fort Lane with difficulty. For it is reported that the waters of the St. Johns were shallow and that the dangers of attack from the shores were constant.

With materials at hand the soldiers set to work, building a structure that would provide protection from surprise attacks and aarrison for a hundred men.

It was apparently named in honor of Colonel John F. Lane who had died of "disease unknown" at Fort Drane on October 19, 1838. Colonel Lane was a Kentuckian, a graduate of the United States Military Academy, and had, through steady and meritorious service, risen to the rank of Colonel in the Volunteers during the Florida Wars. He held this title, in addition to that of Captain in the United States Army. At the time of his death he was in command of the Second Dragoons, a volunteer regiment of friendly Creek Indians.

Shortly after Fort Lane was constructed General Jesup and his staff were stationed there and for a while, it was headquarters for the Army of the South. It is probable that as late as 1857, during subsequent Indian uprisings, Fort Lane was occupied by troops. For a company of Mounted Florida Volunteers is reported to have been stationed on the shores of Lake Harney.

La Paz, Bolivia, has a cathedral begun in 1835 and dedicated in 1933, in which 12,000 persons can worship.

The 1948 program of home building, which in April saw the $100,000,000 mark in applications for FHA assistance, continued without faltering in May when applications again topped the $100,000,000 mark.

According to the Federal Housing Administration, the number of new houses to be built under its program increased a gain of 25 percent in May over the same month last year, and about 50 percent in comparison with the same month of 1947.

A total of 23,000 mortgages amounting to $107,517,000 were submitted for approval by the FHA in May on loans to be used for the construction of new houses.

Donald said this was the largest in amount and a few days in number than the April figure of $102,000,000 and 22,000 mortgages for the month of $100,000,000.

May was also the most active month ever recorded under the FHA program for home building under its inspection. He said that a weekly average of about 1,000 new houses were being constructed under the program in May compared with about 800 in April and about 900 in May 1947. In 1946 during the month the average was about 1,200 new houses under the first time in the FHA's existence compared with the year's weekly peak of 1,150. It does not include about 1,500 houses being financed under its

HELP THE RED CROSS

By MABEL T. BOARDMAN
Secretary of the American Red Cross

THE RED CROSS OBLIGATION IS to furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of war, in accordance with the spirit of the Treaty of Geneva.

With all that we can give, with all that our hands can do, with all our minds can plan, and with all our hearts can pour out in tangible sympathy, let us as a Red Cross Chapter, as men, women and children of America go forth with all our might to fulfill the first and greatest of all Red Cross obligations.

I appeal to the men of America, to the young men who are facing danger and death themselves, must undergo the mental anguish of fear for their bewildered, suffering mothers, wives and children.

I appeal to the mothers of America, whose children sleep in the safety of their homes, who walk under peaceful skies, for help for those other mothers without their men, fleeing from their ruined homes, babies in their arms, frightened children clinging to their skirts, while bombing planes rain destruction from their skies.

I appeal to the happy childhood of America for their aid to lessen the suffering and miseries of their fellow-children overseas.

For all these men, women and children, the great beacon of hope is the symbol of the Red Cross. I plead to you for their relief and the merciful spirit of the Red Cross.

Help your local Red Cross Chapter TO-DAY!

Bishop States Church Wages Offensive War

Retirement, Transfer And Promotion Of Ministers Taken Place At Sessions

The church is waging an offensive war, constantly charging the citizens of the Holy Trinity, St. Joseph's Parish, in its sermon at the Methodist High School auditorium at noon today in addressing the annual conference of the United Methodist Church.

During his last, "Ye are the salt of the earth," Bishop Moore said that the church is in a tragic condition when it loses its spiritual vitality. He urged the congregation to follow the example of the disciples who "were" their work, but whose influence has never ended throughout the centuries.

During the business session, the Rev. D. M. Haines of the North Georgia district was appointed to the conference while the following transfers to other conferences were approved: Guyfield Evans to Cuba; James W. Martin to Northwest Iowa Conference; and H. Thompson to the Missouri Conference.

The retirement of the following ministers was approved: J. H. Elder, R. F. Kersey, M. E. Murphree, W. J. Nason, W. J. Palmer, W. E. Pines, G. W. Rogers, J. E. Steinmeyer, J. J. Traylor, Thomas Williams.

Those who were elected elders are: E. Clayton Callahan, E. David Cooney, James E. Palm, Harry Gibbons, McDonald, Jr., James Hoyt, James, David Whitford, Perry and Henry Thomas Foley.

Those who were appointed as deacons are: R. F. Halpin, L. E. Blackwell, Jack A. Davis, Hugh O. Emery, John M. McLeod, James Roberts, Mackey, Thomas H. Noyce, William E. Walker, Henry Walker, James W. Hain, Henry Hain, and James Hain.

BRITISH ENFORCEMENTS START FOR FRANCE

Soldiers and weapons in "enormous" numbers are reported moving from England to France to aid in the defense of that country. This cablephoto from London shows men of the Second British Infantry Force boarding a transport for France.

The capture of Verdun and a breach in the Maginot Line were claimed by the Germans as high Allied councils apparently were shaping momentous decisions.

A breach in the Maginot Line was said to have been made on a "broad front" south of Saarbrücken.

For two days German artillery hour after hour had hurled shells into the steel and concrete of France's bastion on the Western Front and stukas had dived down to punish with bombs in the Saar region.

Both the town of Verdun and the famous fortress fell, the Germans asserted.

British reports of vital decisions indicated that the "next 24 hours" might prove to be the climax of the fight in France.

There was no jangling of steel impending, but an authoritative, final news conference of the British government, declared:

"In view of the fact that victory is already within our closest reach, there is hardly any occasion on the German side to approach the question of French capitulation."

Britain, while stepping up the manpower of her army, and air force to carry on the fight, she declared it was to the last, disclosed the loss of her third cruiser—the 4,180-ton anti-aircraft cruiser Calypso, torpedoed, and sunk by an Italian submarine, in the Mediterranean.

In Berlin, the French situation was regarded as hopeless.

More than 200,000 prisoners have been counted since June 5, the Germans reported, and incalculable amounts of war material have been captured.

The "French are fleeing wildly," a German spokesman declared, but the French described the withdrawals under the increasing Nazi pressure as orderly and without panic, or desperation. The Poles were said

Board Okeys 2 Resolutions On Fern Park Issue But Status Is Unchanged

The issue arising from the approval of the Caselberry, Florida plat by the Board of County Commissioners several weeks ago, was at least temporarily settled yesterday afternoon when the Board, at a special meeting, adopted two resolutions, one stating that it will be "advisory" to the public welfare that the said plat in its present form be removed and the other providing that "no further action is taken."

The action of the Board in passing the two resolutions failed to change the status of the controversial issue which has divided the Fern Park groups who desire to have it called Fern Park from its principal industry and those who desire to change the name of the section to Caselberry, Fla. from the name of the plat. Both sides were present at yesterday's meeting.

Both resolutions were adopted by a 3 to 2 vote of the Board and followed a legal opinion from County Attorney E. F. Householder who said in part:

"Inasmuch as the recording of this plat is not within the jurisdiction of this Board, and that the action taken by the Board was only one step in the way to secure the recording of the plat, that the plat was never recorded but that the Board has no authority to take any action thereon."
