School district: Raise homeowners' tax cap

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A school district lobbyist says asking the Legislature to raise the tax cap county school officials can levy on homeowners is just one option for raising needed money.

When the district's legislative lobbyist Ken Bovio heads for Tallahassee next month, one of his primary objectives will be to convince legislators the local option millage rate should be raised to three percent.

and parents having continuously voiced opposition to the year round schools and double sessions, the school board has said they want to "keep their options open as much as possible."

Taxes for each household would go up about $50. It doesn't raise mega-bucks here. Chairwoman Sandy Robinson

He's been where Darwin never went

Belleville leads life of discovery

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — From the newsroom as a reporter for the Sanford Herald in the mid 70s to the waters around the Galapagos Islands, Bill Belleville has traveled around the world exploring unique ecosystems and the wonders of nature.

Recently, as part of a Discovery Channel documentary project, Belleville spent six weeks in the Pacific islands off the coast of Ecuador where Charles Darwin made his evolutionary studies.

As filming was going on for Discovery's documentary Where Darwin Never Went, Belleville accompanied the film crew on underwater explorations in dive suits and submarines taking electronic photographs. Rubbing elbows with ichthyologists and blue footed boobies (as it were), he experienced the documentary from a very personal level.

He ended each day creating an essay regarding the activities of the day, illustrated with the photos he had taken. The articles went onto Discovery's web site on the internet.

"It was instantaneous news on what was being discovered, what was being done," he explained.

Belleville said he loves coming home to Sanford after spending time on the road.

"It's a nice quiet place," he said. "I have about an acre here off of dirt road and I can go out to the middle of the property and be away from everything, from everyone."

He said he has been in Seminole County for nearly a quarter of a century and he enjoys the relaxed atmosphere and freedom he has here.

"With computers and faxes a writer doesn't have to live in New York anymore," he noted from the sunny work room he shares with a sparkling aquarium filled with tropical fish. "You can work, literally, anywhere."

Most of Belleville's writing is environmental in nature and his old cracker house near Lake Monroe is surrounded by lush tropical vegetation and filled with mementos from trips

Security director blasts tracker on TV

SANFORD — Wolfgang Halbig said he was sold on the Quadro Tracker.

But the Seminole County school district's director of security thought he better do some checking of the little black box that purportedly would lead the user to any contraband.

"I wanted it to work. I really did," Halbig said. "But I wanted to be absolutely sure."

The box did not work, he said, and he wants the world to know about it.

Halbig will appear on the television news magazine Dateline NBC next month discussing what he and many others have found about the Quadro Tracker.

Federal prosecutors say it's an empty black box on which schools, consumers and law enforcement agencies wasted more than $1

Still anger, doubt

CONCORD, N.H. — Holding a tiny Challenger T-shirt to his chest, Ben Provencal chuckled to think it fit him 10 years ago when he and his third-grade classmates traveled to Florida to watch their friend's mom rocket into space.

Most of those youngsters are in college now. But they still carry memories of the trip and the shuttle SANFORD — When tragedy strikes, most of us remember details that often escape us in happier moments.

The moment, frozen in time, stays with us more clearly than most others.

Ten years ago today, the space shuttle Challenger exploded in a fiery cloud 73 seconds after lift-off from the Kennedy Space Center, some 50 miles to our east.

"It's like it was yesterday," said Mary Dennison of Sanford. "I didn't realize it had been so long ago. I remember I had gotten out of my car out on the interstate to see if I could see the lift-off. When I saw that awful green cloud, I knew

Greenhorns: Mosey on over for some tall cowpoke tales

By NICK PFEIFAUPE

SANFORD — Late last year in honor of the Florida Sesquicentennial anniversary, over 1,000 head of cattle were driven across portions of the state. It was reported to be a very thrilling drive.

This Thursday the Seminole County Historical Society will present a special program about the drive and the people who were participants.

When asked about the drive by area cowboys, society spokeswoman Kay Bartholomew quickly responded. "Here in Central Florida, they prefer to call themselves cow hunters rather than cowboys. I guess cowboys are people who work out west," she said.

She explained this Thursday's event. "What happened each day along the trail will be related by Lynn Yarbrough Hanshaw, who drove one of the wagons during the epic drive," Bartholomew said. "She also has a rather interesting story to tell about a woman who walked the entire way."

Former teacher jailed on sex charges

MIAMI — A former high school band teacher accused of having sex with a South Florida student was in jail Saturday on old charges that he had an affair with a Michigan teenager. George Crear III, who taught at Palmetto High School, was arrested Friday on a fugitive warrant, meaning he will be held at Dade County Jail until he is extradited to Michigan. Jail authorities did not know when the extradition would occur. Crear was charged with three counts of having sex with a 13-year-old student in Flint, Mich., before coming to Florida. A Palmetto High School student has said she and Crear had an affair for three years. Crear's attorney, A.J. Goodman, had said the Michigan charges were dropped last summer. Michigan authorities reinstated the charges last month, and have refused to grant him bail. "We let Michigan know we'd be happy to surrender him if we could work out some form of bond status," Goodman said. "Their response was flatly no." Crear, 44, will likely remain in Dade County until his April trial over sexual involvement with the Palmetto student, Goodman said.

Relief for state's tomato growers

The U.S. Senate on Friday approved a bill being pushed by the Florida congressional delegation that would offer relief to the state's tomato growers under international trade rules. The bill, passed on a voice vote, amends the 1974 trade act to permit the seasonal nature of tomato growing to be considered when growers seek relief from the International Trade Commission. Currently, the act's definitions define trade on an annual basis, which has left growers unable to win relief under NAFTA safeguards when there is a seasonal surge. Tomatoes imported from Mexico during the winter pose competitive problems for Florida growers, said Wendy Selig, an aide to Rep. Porter Goss, R-Fla. "We're very happy about" passage of the Senate bill, and will seek to put the measure on a fast track for House approval next week, she said. "It's a really good first step." The House version of the bill is sponsored by Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla. Work to pass the bill began in earnest on Wednesday night, when the state's delegation met with U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman. They had sought to attach it to a stopgap spending bill to keep the government running, but failed for procedural reasons. Graham then brought the measure up by itself, and it was approved. A separate measure introduced in the House Friday by Goss would suspend tariff reductions on winter tomatoes imported from Mexico until President Clinton certifies to Congress that existing mechanisms in NAFTA are sufficient to protect the domestic industry from export surges.

Amtrak passenger with TB transferred

JACKSONVILLE — The 22-year-old man with tuberculosis, who on Sunday was taken off an Amtrak train and brought to a Jacksonville hospital, has been transferred to a hospital in South Florida. The man was transferred yesterday from Jacksonville's University Medical Center to the 100-bed A.G. Holley State Hospital in Lantana, Florida's only tuberculosis hospital. The man, whose name was not released, was taken off Amtrak's Silver Star in Sanford. Health officials have contacted some of the passengers riding with the man last week on a train trip from Chicago to Pittsburgh, on a bus trip from Pittsburgh to Washington, and on the train from Washington to Miami. The risk of infection to them is considered slight, but TB skin tests are recommended as a precaution.

Tourism numbers mixed for November

TALLAHASSEE — The number of tourists who arrived in Florida in November declined almost 10 percent compared with the same month in 1994, the state Department of Commerce said Friday. Almost 2.8 million visitors arrived last November, compared to about 3 million for November 1994. For the first 11 months of 1995, the state hosted 38.4 million visitors, a 4 percent increase over the same period in 1994 when 37 million tourists arrived. Although visitors were down, rental car surcharge collections increased 8 percent to almost $10 million in November over the same month in the prior year. Both the number of visitors who arrived by air and auto declined in November. Air visitors dropped 10 percent to 1.6 million compared with November 1994. Auto travelers decreased 8.7 percent to 1.1 million compared with November 1994.

Feather candidate for Congress

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Robert G. "Bud" Feather wants to take over the congressional seat currently held by John Mica. Feather announced his candidacy this past week in front of Mica's Winter Park home, claiming that Mica does not even live in the district which he represents. "The carpetbagger mentality is alive and well in the halls of Washington," Feather said. "Do you really want someone to continue to represent you in Washington who has never lived in the district he is being paid to represent?" Feather said he can bring a new attitude to Washington and that he, unlike his opponent, does not "represent Washington values." The candidate for the 7th Congressional District seat said he represents the people. "He is 'out of sync, out of tune and out of step' with we, the people of the 7th Congressional District," Feather said. The candidate said he is running because he really cares about the future. "I really care if our children are being cared for. I really care if our parents are being cared for. I really care if our grandparents are being cared for," he said. He describes himself as an "independent, conservative, Democrat," but said that he cares "more about the well being of the American people and the people of Central Florida than I do about partisan politics." Feather said he does not want a "bigger government Big Brother." He noted that Mica is voting on House Bill 666 which he describes as "making it easier for Big Brother to illegally search our homes, our businesses and ourselves." He said it is "atrocious" that Mica should not be able to "vote for it...and get away with it."

Feather said he wants "taxes reduced for the working family not those making $100,000 a year." Trickle down economics didn't work, he said. "I want bubble up economics." He has served eight years on the Seminole County school board and four years on the Seminole County commission. Those interested in finding out more about Bud Feather's candidacy should call 869-6009.

Family research lands local girl in magazine

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — History is not simply a subject to be endured at school. Each of us has a personal avenue through history that brings the times that came before uniquely to life. For Taylor Norvell of Sanford, the path from her family's past led directly to the pages of a national publication. American Girl magazine features a young woman in each bi-monthly issue in the form of a paper doll. The doll has several outfits featuring the styles of women in the featured girl's family going back several generations.

In the January-February 1996 issue of the magazine there is a doll with Taylor's face.

Taylor, 10, and her mother, Karen, spent nearly two years researching the women in her family and finding out about life when they were younger.

"When she was eight when they first had a paper doll in the magazine, she came up to me and said 'I can do that. I can be a paper doll,'" Karen said of her daughter.

Taylor and her brothers Trace, Travis, Tarnet and Trenton, have always been very aware of their maternal grandmother's childhood at an Arctic fur trading post. They have worn her seal-skin coats and boots and played with her snow shoes and Inuit artifacts.

"They have always been aware of their grandmother's childhood in the Arctic," Karen said, "but we had to work a little harder to go back more generations."

Taylor and her mother wrote to her grandmother and several aunts trying to learn about her great-grandmother and her great-great-grandmother.

They found information and photographs that helped them put together an exciting package about the family history. Finding some of the older photographs was difficult, Taylor said, but the family was very cooperative and helped her with the research.

Photos of her great-grandmother and her sisters bathing at the turn of the century, of her grandmother standing in the Arctic snow, of her mother with a smiling friend completed the history featured in the magazine.

"It was very interesting," the young paper doll star said. "I liked finding out about the women in my family."

While American Girl was only interested in finding out about the women in her family ("sex-")

The way we were: Industrial Sanford, 1910

Again, today, I'm giving you information from the 1910 Sanford Herald's Industrial Section.

Harry Ward
Harry Ward came to Sanford on Feb. 5, 1909 where he found relief from his asthma. In his short time in the area, he had farming interests and had also begun a small canning factory. He had put up 15,000 cans of tomatoes and beans and claimed that the results were highly satisfactory.

He wrote some of his observations on farming in Sanford in 1910 which you might find of interest.

Mr. Ward believed that Sanford had the greatest vegetable and general farming conditions of any place in the known world. He estimated that on the average, $100 net per acre could be made on one crop of potatoes, even with hiring everything done. On the same ground, previous to the potatoes, a crop of head lettuce could be grown, making $100 to $300 per acre.

Celery, after deducting expenses, returned $200 to $1,200 per acre. In Mr. Ward's opinion, the only reason for poor crops was due to the carelessness of the farmer.

Land sold here from $150 per acre, unimproved, to $1,700, in high state of cultivation. Mr. Ward believed that a person could yield 30 percent profit each year if three crops were grown.

Flowing wells, sub-irrigation, soil and climate made Sanford the enviable spot of this continent for winter season intensive farming.

Irrigation system

Why was Sanford such a great place for farming? According to an article in this newspaper, it was due to the irrigation system. I will quote the entire article so you can become knowledgeable about this highly touted system.

The successful farming in the Sanford Celery Delta is largely due to our unique system of irrigation. On a five-acre farm, the flowing well is connected with a water main running the whole length of the tract and from which tile is laid at right angles at intervals of 20 feet. Into this tiling the water is transmitted, or shut out, as desired, by means of pockets and hand plugs, thus opening or stopping the channels for water flow. Over the ends of the tile which are placed end to end about 14 to 18 inches below the surface of the ground, is laid fiber. Through this fiber the water oozes out when let into the tiling or when the flow is shut off. If there is a surplus of wet, the water will soak through the fiber

Children become 'stars' through learning program

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

S.T.A.R. (Success Through Alternative Resources) is a special learning and writing program for the fifth grade students in Dorothea Fogle's class at Goldboro Elementary School.

This program is for children who are below grade level and are judged unable to respond to regular classroom work.

Mrs. Fogle wrote a grant application and the Winn Dixie Stores responded with funding for this successful project.

This program is a basic education curriculum addressed through an integrated learning approach. The program modifies the curriculum of language arts, mathematics, reading, reasoning and writing, and a literature program to the children's level.

After adopting the Good Samaritan Home residents as partners, the students have begun to realize a new way of learning through their visits to the home. Not only have the lives of the residents been changed, but the students' academic, social skills and behavior have seen a great improvement.

Mrs. Fogle and Principal Nathan are pleased at the success of the program in its early stage.

Each student is assigned to a senior resident at Good Samaritan Home and after introduction, begins to learn. Students learn to interview the partner and gather information to help them write, research and improve their skills. The student gets first-hand knowledge of his/her partner's life experiences.

The information gathered will be written into biographies and the S.T.A.R. class will learn to improve its listening, writing, reading, and social skills.

At the Jan. 10 session, one student, Marshall Worga, said she wasn't ready to return to school because she was enjoying chatting and visiting with her senior partner. She had indeed begun to feel close to her partner, a grandmotherly person who enabled Marshall to improve her learning and social skills.

During the next five months, these students will improve their learning abilities and change their behavior through special instructional strategies and activities geared to making learning easier.

Those connected to the project salute and commend Winn Dixie Stores' cooperation in funding this project with a grant of $2,500. Fogle said the success of all children is in the hands of all citizens.

Carjacking/car thefts

Sanford police are investigating a reported carjacking shortly after midnight Friday morning near Third Street and Mangouatine, in Lake Monroe Terrace. According to police, seven or eight black males, one said to be armed with a gun, took a red 1991 Chevrolet, license number PHG-32V from a Sanford man. The man reportedly told police there were an estimated $6,483 in items including jewelry in the vehicle at the time.

A silver 1987 Toyota, with Missouri license number NYH-789, was reportedly stolen Thursday from the parking area of New Tribes Mission on E. First Street.

Check cashing

Sanford police arrested Ray Grubbs, 32, of 2619 W. 18th Street on Thursday. According to police reports, Grubbs was said to have gone to a local Sanford business on January 4, with a check in the amount of $386.27 to pay on a family account. He reportedly paid, then received some of the money back in cash. Police said he returned to the same store on January 6, with another check for $350. This time however, the store clerk reportedly discovered the check was on a closed account, and refused to accept it. A photo copy of the check was made however.

Police managed to learn that the checks had been reported stolen during a Winter Springs burglary. Grubbs was called to the Sanford police station Thursday, where he was charged with uttering a forged instrument and grand theft of property.

Prostitution arrests

Undercover officers from the City/County Investigative Bureau conducted an anti-prostitution sting Thursday near a motel on SR-434 in Longwood. Two persons were arrested, Yolanda Johnson, 27, and Angela Kaye Richardson, 25, both of Orlando, were arrested on charges of assignment to commit prostitution.

Robbery arrest

Sheriff's deputies, along with other law enforcement officers, arrested Paul C. Overly, 21, of 1185 Cowington Street, Oviedo, at his residence on Thursday. Deputies believe he was involved in a burglary on Sutton Place in Winter Park sometime between Dec. 23 and Dec. 30.

According to the arrest report, on Dec. 30, Overly reportedly pawned 60 CDs, valued at $720, at a local pawn shop for $60. The CDs reportedly were rare with many having been purchased in foreign countries.

The CDs were said to have been taken during a burglary in which a total of $72,000 in items were reported stolen.

Overly has been charged with burglary to a residence and grand theft. He has been placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, awaiting transportation to Orange County, where the burglary took place.

Domestic violence

Sanford police arrested Reginald B. Braxton, 21, of 404 E. 14th Street Thursday. According to the arrest report, Braxton was said to have battered a pregnant female and kept her from leaving the residence on January 19th. He reportedly did the same thing to the same woman on January 20th, at a location in Redding Gardens.

Police have charged Braxton with aggravated battery domestic violence, false imprisonment, and stalking domestic violence.

Retail thefts

Darryl Thomas, 39, 1830 Blackstone Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at a store in the 1500 block of S. French Avenue Thursday. He was charged with retail theft, after reportedly taking $10.44 in items from the store without paying. Police also determined he had previously been issued a trespass warning about being at the store.

Shaquanta Stafford, 19, of 917 Holly Avenue, was arrested by Sanford police at a retail store in the 3600 block of Orlando Drive Thursday. Officers said she attempted to take a $10.50 pair of sunglasses from the store without paying. She was charged with retail theft.

A woman, who police said could not be immediately identified, was arrested as Jane Doe, age 28, of 1011 W. 12th Street Thursday. Officers said she attempted to take $17.08 in meat hidden in her pants, from a store in the 3100 block of S. Orlando Drive. She was charged with retail theft and resisting an officer without violence.

Domestic case

Ola Iva Juelfs, 59, 205 Aero Lane, Sanford, was arrested by deputies at her residence Thursday as the result of a fight with a 61-year old man. She was charged with aggravated assault domestic violence, and battery domestic violence.

Judge Eaton was right

After Seminole County Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. ruled on a motion to grant a new murder trial to death row inmate Joseph, "Crazy Joe" Spaziano, a backlash of criticism followed. Outlaws Motorcycle gang member Spaziano, 50, was convicted two decades ago for the stabbing death of an 18-year old hospital clerk, whose mutilated body was found in an Altamonte Springs dump. The four-day trial in 1976 hinged on the testimony of Anthony DiLisio, then a troubled teen-ager and wannabe biker who knew Spaziano.

Twenty years ago DiLisio testified Spaziano showed him two bodies while bragging about killing young women. This past summer, while Spaziano awaited death in Florida's gas chamber, DiLisio said he lied all those years ago. Spaziano's fifth death warrant was stayed pending the outcome of a motion for a new trial.

In Eaton's courtroom two weeks ago, DiLisio testified formally that he had lied. Spaziano had never shown him the bodies, and he barely knew him.

The six-day hearing ended with Eaton's ruling Monday that "the evidence of recantation" is newly discovered material that goes to the merits of the case and "would probably produce a different result on retrial."

We heard much grumbling over that decision. Many people spouted that Spaziano should have been executed a long time ago; that a new trial is a blatant waste of taxpayers' money; that he could just walk away a free man (which he can't because he is also serving a life sentence plus five years on a rape conviction); that Eaton's decision was wrong because, of course Spaziano did it. But Eaton wasn't wrong.

This is not about Spaziano's guilt or innocence. That will once again be determined in a court of law by a jury of his peers if the appeal prosecutors have filed does not overturn Eaton's ruling.

This is about due process; about the Constitutional right of all Americans to receive a fair trial.

Spaziano's first trial was a house of cards built on the foundation of DiLisio's testimony. If DiLisio lied then, that house of cards has fallen and must be rebuilt with the newly discovered evidence at a new trial. If DiLisio's recantation is a lie, we don't doubt the very capable Assistant State Attorney Tom Hastings will prove it at retrial, ending in the same verdict as 20 years ago.

The wheels of justice are often frustratingly slow. But to deny a man due process in favor of expediency erodes the rights of everyone. Judge Eaton's decision may not have won him any popularity contests.

But he was right.

LETTER

Please write

Hello, my name is Ben Willins and I am in sixth grade in Samiah School in Sedrow-Woolley, Wash. Would you please print this letter? I would like to ask your nice readers to send me postcards and information about your area. I have already written once to another paper in your state and did not receive an answer. Lots of the other kids in my room have gotten postcards.

Our criminal justice system works

One man has been hanged, one man is preparing for his execution by firing squad, one man has been granted a new trial, and yet another man gave an interview and hawked his infomercial. Three of these men were convicted at one point of the crime of murder in the first degree, capital murder; the fourth has been acquitted by a jury but convicted in the larger court of public opinion, vilified in the press, shunned and denied by his peers.

These men share a common bond, all accused killers, they are paraded before us in a macabre theater of the absurd, and in an uncommon way, provide an opportunity to reflect on the American criminal justice system.

Of times we see our reflection and if it is not to our liking assume that the mirror is broken. This deflection of responsibility is pervasive in our modern society. We see ill in our society and blame our schools, courts and other public institutions. We expect too much of them. Schools are designed to educate children, not raise them. Courts are designed to respond to crime, not instill values, or to ensure personal safety.

We achieve nothing by getting tough on crime, when crime occurs, it is too late. We need to be tough on those things which we know breed crime. We have been raising sentences, executing people, forfeiting our civil rights, and engaging in all manner of repressive tactics in a losing war on crime.

Punishment is a response to failure. Those without vision respond to failure, those with vision prevent failure from occurring in the first place. When you are tough on crime, that inherently means a crime has occurred. A person has been victimized, and as a society, we have failed. We are reactionary when we should be positive and forward thinking. Our society is bankrupt in its response to those factors which cause crime.

Seminole Opinion

You can no more legislate personal conduct and personal responsibility than you can change the reality of your physical presence by breaking the mirror.

When we ask teachers to be surrogate parents, as the real ones abdicate their responsibility to provide any direction and guidance, moral or otherwise; when we ask our judges, jurors, and attorneys to instill values, we set ourselves up to be disappointed. Teachers, judges, jurors, police, witnesses and all the institutions of government are ill-suited to repair the problems that we face as a society. We should not be disappointed in them; we should be disappointed in ourselves.

We can fight crime by becoming a totalitarian state and simply jailing masses of people or becoming a communist state and simply not truthfully reporting it as if it does not exist. Alternatively, we can stop preaching personal responsibility and start practicing it. We are all responsible for our community — for the Spazianos, the Simpsons, the Baileys, and the Taylors.

Our system of criminal justice works, yes, it reflects the good and the bad in society, but in the same, week it both extracts the greatest retribution possible from two men, makes a courageous and unpopular stance as it relates to another man in the face of local sentiment, and accepts albeit uncomfortably, a jury's verdict as it pertains to a fourth.

For our system of justice to work, you have to believe in it. Justice is not for those who want a quick fix, it is not to make you feel good or to be a balm for your conscience. We cannot wash our hands, like Pontius Pilate, of those who are accused and appear before our courts in the face of public sentiment and return to mob violence. Yes, our system of justice works. Like medicine, it may taste bad, but it is preferable to the alternative, which is no justice at all.

Sportswriters duel: Superbowl XXX

SANFORD — A heated debate over Superbowl XXX erupted in the newsroom of the Sanford Herald Saturday. Sportswriters Gary Coatsam and Robert Sanders were the combatants, and women and small children are advised to read on cautiously. Parental discretion is advised.

Gary: I was mercilessly attacked by fellow Herald sportswriter Robert Sanders when I predicted the Dallas Cowboys would win Superbowl XXX. Robert, cut back on the caffeine. It's just a football game. Dallas is America's Team. Besides, the Cowboys want revenge for Superbowls X and XIII (the Steelers won those games 21-17 and 35-31). Besides, Dallas running back Emmitt Smith is a former Florida Gator, so I have to go with the Cowboys.

Robert: Well, Ernie Mills and John L. Williams are former Gators. Besides, I think you are getting back at me because you are a Baltimore Browns fan. Well, it doesn't really matter, because the Steelers are going to pull off the upset. Remember, defense wins championships, just ask the Miami Dolphin fans. Gary: All right, all right. Let's not get off on the tangents of the Browns-Steelers rivalry or the Florida Gator. Dallas, despite the fact that they have Barry Switzer as a head coach, will win the game. You want to talk about defense, huh? All right, let's start with Cowboys defensive lineman Charles Haley and Russell Maryland. Then there's linebacker Godfrey Miles, and cornerback Deion Sanders (of no relation to Robert Sanders). Plus Dallas has been to AND WON two Superbowls in the 1990's. You just can't beat big game experience, my friend.

Robert: Godfrey Miles? What has Miles done this year? The only reason why he is playing, is because Ken Norton, Jr. went to San Francisco. And Deion Sanders? Overated or Overpaid? BOTH. When is the last time anyone in Dallas, not counting all the bandwagon jumpers, has seen Deion Sanders make a tackle? Frankly, you would have a better chance of seeing Elvis. When Bam Morris runs all over those players you call defense, then Dallas is going to need Haley.

Gary: It's kind of appropriate that you bring up Bam Morris (yeah, like he is even in the same class with Emmitt Smith. NOT!) Bam rhymes with damn, which is what you are going to be saying when the Cowboys win today.

I find it interesting that you mention Norton, whose father, Ken Norton, Sr., is a former heavyweight boxing champion. The Steelers are going to get knocked out by the Cowboys today in Tempe. It should be a close entertaining game, with Dallas prevailing 42-35.

Robert: Gary, I know you read the paper, or I should hope so because you are a sportswriter. But, if you didn't, I will fill you in. The BEST CORNERBACK TO EVER PLAY THE GAME, no not Deion, but Rod Woodson, will be playing today. In fact, I predict Woodson is going to hit Sanders after he catches the ball over the middle, jarring the ball loose. Then, Steelers all-pro linebacker Greg Lloyd is going to pick up the fumble and run 90 yards for the winning touchdown. The Steelers will win 27-20.

Gary: Ok, tough guy, we'll see what happens on the field. Read the paper? Heck, I write a lot of the local sports articles that go into it!

Robert: Gary, maybe Dallas will win next year. It's been 11 years, and quite frankly the American Football Conference is hungry. Anyway, Dallas will have a chance next season under a different head coach. As for now, I have to go edit some of your work.

Gary: Watch it, you novice stringer.

LAKE MARY

MARY ROWELL

The curse will live on

I am not a perfect mother. I yell at my kids more than I should. I spank them sometimes. But these are not my crimes in my son's eyes. My crimes are much worse, according to my son.

I am a terrible mother to him. He has finally decided to call the police. He's going to tell them the awful truth.

I make him eat things, he doesn't like. I make him eat (gasp) vegetables.

Last night was the straw that broke the camel's back and prompted my son's threat to call the police. I made him eat turkey meatloaf. Those two bites he was forced to eat, he's sure, will ruin him forever.

Other parents don't treat their children like this, he tells me. Other parents according to my 7-year old son who knows everything, allow their children to eat anything they want, any time they want. These are the same parents who let their children stay up as late as they want even on a school night.

I have known for a long time now that my son is the pickiest child on the planet. I have tried my best. But my best will never be good enough because this is my mother's curse.

I can remember sitting at the dinner table when I was young, staring at my plate. "There are children starving in China," my mother said. "Eat your turnips!" (For the record, I have never used the China cliché and I have never forced turnips on my children.) Two hours later, as I was still staring at my plate, it happened. My mother came in the room and said, "When you grown up, I hope you have a child that's just as picky as you are!"

And, of course, I did. Although, my son is much worse than I ever was. He eats fish sticks, but only because he thinks they're made out of chicken. (I used the hot dogs are not made out of dogs argument.) After finding out that hamburgers, one of the few foods he eats, was made from cows, he announced he was going to become a vegetarian. I objected because I'm pretty sure french fries, as a steady diet, aren't healthy.

People used to tell me not to worry, he'd eat when he was hungry. But that's not true. If it's not something he likes, my son won't eat. He's a skinny, bony child. But I comfort myself with the knowledge that at his age, I was too. And now I'm, just say, real healthy.

Every parent wants to be a good parent, a better parent than their parents were. We try not to repeat the same mistakes. Unfortunately, I am not a better parent than my mother was. I have perpetuated the curse. Last night, after telling my son 12 times to just taste one bite of meatloaf, I lost my cool and said, "When you grow up, I hope you have a child that's just as picky as you are!"

The curse will live on. And when my son calls me to tell me how much trouble he's having getting his child to eat, I'll say what my mother says to me.

"Now you know what I went through."

 explosion on Jan. 28, 1986, that plunged them from innocent excitement into unspeakable shock for the whole world.
 Provencal, then 8, was photographed in a Young Astronauts cap that was too big for him. He was staring at the sky, his jacket sleeves pulled over his hands because of the cold, trying to comprehend what he had just seen.
 "I see the absolute shock," the freshman at Springfield College said this month as he looked at a framed copy of the photo. "My face is saying, 'How could they let something like this happen?'"
 His question is repeated by former classmates, who said that while the experience did not scar them, it shaped their outlook on life, risk-taking and trust — especially trust in government.
 "That was the first time that I had seen the result of how something can go terribly wrong," Trip O'Shea said. No longer would he automatically assume that "you are going to come home and sleep in your bed," even after something as mundane as driving somewhere or walking to school.

 "I never really took things for granted from then on," said O'Shea, 19, a freshman at Colgate College.
 The third-graders had gone to Florida because Scott McAuliffe was in their class. His mother, Christa, was on the shuttle, having been selected to be the first teacher in space. The children shivered on the metal VIP bleachers and watched Challenger lift off, streak through the brilliant blue sky for a little more than a minute, then explode high over the ocean.
 Provencal still has the hat he wore. It's still adjusted to the smallest size and covered with pins from the space program and Florida tourist sites.

"I have really good memories about the whole trip and the whole class and how much fun we had," the 18-year-old said. "I dwell on that stuff more than the ending."
 Provencal is studying to be an elementary school teacher. He said it is a coincidence, not an attempt to follow in McAuliffe's footsteps.
 But McAuliffe has followed him to college. He said talk among his new friends often turns to famous people from their hometowns. After major league pitcher Bob Tewksbury, Provencal usually mentions McAuliffe, and "all of a sudden, everyone stops and they all want to know."
 They ask Provencal what he did after the explosion.
 "I tell them I just kind of looked. I didn't know what to do," he said.
 Some remember little about the disaster; others recall it vividly. But they agree they did not suffer the long-term emotional harm some had predicted.

IN BRIEF

Charter meeting

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission will hold a special work session Monday afternoon beginning at 4 p.m. The single item scheduled for discussion is the proposed changes in the city charter. The present charter was adopted by the commission in November of 1972 and approved by the voters the following month.
 Now, changes in the document have been proposed by a Charter Review Committee set up last year by the commission.
 The meeting will be held in the City Manager's Conference Room, on the second floor of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Correction

A report regarding a fatal auto accident near the Seminole Towne Center mall last week contained some erroneous information from the Sanford Police Department.
 The vehicles involved in the accident in which Emma Mowery was killed were traveling east and west bound on Rinehart Road rather than north and south as the police first reported.

 into the tiling and be speedily carried away. Thus, the system of tiles also operates as a drainage system when it is wet, carrying off all surplus water into large ditches or canals which empty into Lakes Monroe or Jessup or the St. Johns River. By this means the farmer has water conditions entirely at his control. He can wet his soil just as much or as little as he wishes, and he can quickly drain it dry if he so desires.
The Sanford House
 Many of you know that the Sanford House was a luxury hotel (for the time) located on Commercial Street facing Lake Monroe. This 1910 newspaper gives a glowing description of it.
 This fine hostelry was under the management of Henry Driver and was one of the best equipped hotels on the American Plan south of Jacksonville.
 It was located in the center of the fishing district, surrounded by dozens of fresh water lakes. Good hunting was also close by.
 There was a beautiful park east of the hotel extending north to the edge of Lake Monroe (there was no bulkhead). It was shaded with palms and live oaks and bright moonlit nights that were enchanting. The hotel had verandas and there was a long pier extending into the lake.
 There was lawn tennis on the grounds and a bowling alley. Taken all in all, appointments, service, location and surroundings made this an ideal winter home. It was stated that the rates were reasonable.
Cameron City
 Two years ago (1908), there was nothing there, according to this newspaper. Now a little town had sprung up like a mushroom. A line of street cars and also steam freight ran to Cameron City from Sanford, carrying passengers and shipments. It was predicted that Cameron City was destined to be one of Sanford's important suburbs.
 Pictures were in the newspaper of the cornerstone laying for the handsome new church erected by the citizens of that interesting hamlet.

 Cameron City was located east of Sanford and south of State Road 46 in the vicinity of Cameron Avenue.
George A. DeCottes
 There is an impressive studio portrait of Mr. George DeCottes in this newspaper with a little information on him underneath.
 Mr. DeCottes was county solicitor, an able Sanford attorney and popularly known throughout Orange County. (Remember that Seminole County was not formed until 1913).
 He was a clear and forcible speaker, well versed in the law and good counsel. Among other valued traits was his disposition to boost along every move for civic improvement and of enterprising nature. He was liberal in assisting in these efforts which justly placed him in the front rank of Sanford's public men.
Lipe and Company
 This company certainly had varied interests. They had three ads which I will quote from here.
 "Tonsorial Art — Neatest, Cleanest at LiPe's. Shaves, haircuts, and every line of the barber's art at our three-chair establishment. Anybody'll point the way to LiPe's. Come once, you'll come always. Always glad to see strangers and tourists as well as our steady customers."
 "Flowing Wells — When you want flowing water, ask for LiPe and Co. If you need a good reliable well, driven through the rock to the bounteous artesian supply beneath, a well that is sure and certain and that will cost you a low and reasonable price, call LiPe and Co."
 "Nobby Tailoring — For the latest and tastiest styles, see M.P. LiPe. Call at our establishment in the Sanford House block on First Street and see the fashions in men's clothing. Suits up-to-the-minute in cut, fabric and finish at figures that will delight you.

 "And of course," Bartholomew continued, "any cattle drive needs music, and we will have some to bring back those memories of old." Piper Mike, who was considered a highlight on the trip, will be on hand to play some of the old cattle-drive songs on his

House sold

MAITLAND — The Miracle House, built in 24 hours with materials and labor donated by members of the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida was sold on January 15.

According to Ray McCoy, president of the HBA Mid-Florida Foundation, the house was sold for $200,000 cash, with the majority to be donated to the Adam Walsh Children's Fund and other Central Florida charities over the next year.

The real estate agents responsible for the sale of the house were Joan Hamilton and Linda Deitt of Ryland Homes.

A committee led by Bob Wheeler and Jeff Schnellmann of Kelly Homes spent more than a year coordinating the donation of almost all of the materials and more than 600 volunteers required to build the Miracle House.

The Home Builders Association is located at 544 Mayo Avenue in Maitland.

Lowe's opening

ORANGE CITY — Lowe's Home Improvement Warehouse (reported on in this column previously), will officially hold its grand opening February 1 through 4.

The facility is located at 901 Saxon Blvd., one mile north of Interstate-4.

The public is invited to the ribbon cutting ceremony scheduled for 10 a.m. on February 1. Following the ceremony, Store Manager Dennis Riggins will present a check on behalf of the Lowe's of Orange City employees, for over $1,600, to the Florida United Methodist Children's Home in Enterprise.

In addition to the opening, customers age 18 and older will be eligible to sign up for a $1,000 shopping spree plus many other benefits.

As is a tradition with Lowe's, rather than a ribbon cutting, the opening event will be a ribbon sawing, with the ribbon wrapped in a 2x4 to be sawed in half.

Sears salutes Spray Tech

LONGWOOD — Sears has recognized Spray Tech, Inc., of Longwood, as one of seven authorized contractors across the nation that have provided superior customer satisfaction on installed home improvements during the third quarter of 1995.

Spray Tech, Inc. received a Gold Award for its performance, the seventh that Spray Tech has received in this program's seven quarterly periods.

Spray Tech was the one of three companies to receive the Gold Award. One other was a company in West Palm Beach. The rest were from Michigan, Hawaii, New Jersey and Colorado.

Spray Tech has also announced that David Bernard has been promoted to Sales Manager at the Longwood facility. He is described as the most honored sales representative in the company's history, with sales of net installed business exceeding $1 million in 1994 and 95.

HEATHROW — The travel industry is growing by leaps and bounds. People are leaping at every opportunity, and bounding from country to country.

On February 3, AAA is presenting its annual Travel Show at the Maitland Civic Center, 641 S. Maitland Avenue.

Representatives from cruise lines, tour companies, airlines, car rental companies, rail companies and travel insurance companies will be on hand throughout the event to discuss where to go, how to get there, and how to save money.

There is no charge for admission.

"People attend this travel show to get ideas on where they might want to take their next vacation," said Stuart Hodes, district manager of AAA.

Florida's Heathrow office. "The event gives them the chance to explore a variety of travel options with the ease of going to one place."

Three vendors will present travel seminars during the show. Seminars will be given by Trafalgar Tours at 11:30 a.m., Holland American Lines/Westours at 12:30 p.m., and Globus/Cosmos at 1:30 p.m. Guests must make reservations for these seminars by January 29.

To make reservations or for additional information, phone 444-4240 or 894-3333.

Lake Mary businessman goes home to Osteen

By ROCK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Since 1988, Rick Juras, of Sanford, has owned and operated Lake Mary Automotive, an auto repair business, at 126 W. Crystal Lake Avenue in Lake Mary.

Now, in addition to his Lake Mary business, Juras has purchased Kenny's Service Station on SR-415 in Osteen. It will have a name change to "Osteen Automotive."

"While I still own the Lake Mary business," he said, "I'm actually going home by taking over this business in Osteen." Juras was born and raised in Osteen although he has lived in Sanford for a number of years.

"I'll be holding a grand re-opening in the very near future," he said, "as soon as we get some of the signs changed and some re-outfitting and rearranging of the Osteen business."

He said it will eventually be operated as a complete automotive service facility, as well as an Express Lube center. While there were indications the Osteen Automotive business may eventually be expanded to serve additional needs in automotive type service, Juras said he would prefer to keep that under wraps until all the details can be worked out.

The healing power of listening

MAITLAND — Anyone working in a helping profession instinctively knows the healing power of simply listening, letting patients know the importance of their life's stories. But there are methods that can help one hone that basic instinct into a therapeutic tool. Richard Stone, who has done several workshops for Hospice of Central Florida, produces a day-long workshop on the "Journey into the Healing Power of Story Telling." This seminar is targeted at professional caregivers and offers 7 hours of continuing education credit for both nurses and social workers, marriage and family therapist and mental health counselors. Several hospice organizations, including Hospice of Central Florida, are sponsoring the event scheduled for 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Friday, Feb. 16 at the Orlando Sheraton North, Maitland (intersection of Lake Destiny and Maitland Center Parkway near the Maitland exchange and I-4.) Cost $95. For general information about the workshop or to make reservations, call 354-2529.

Board of Directors meeting

SANFORD — Seminole County Healthy Start Coalition, Inc. Board of Directors Meeting is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 29, 8:30 a.m. at the Seminole County Public Health Unit, Airport Blvd., Sanford. The proposed agenda items are: Service Delivery Plan 6-month Progress Report; Best Practices Committee Record Review; Teen Pregnancy Committee/Skit in schools; State Association meeting, Jan. 8-9; Services to Clients; and Budget. For more information, call Susan Shewmake at 671-2005.

Cancer patients use art as therapy

By RICHARD BENKE
Associated Press Writer

ALBUQUERQUE — The more the cancer disabled the artists' bodies, the stronger their vision, the sharper their focus.

Three of these 15 cancer patients, whose works are being shown at the University of New Mexico, have died. Another lost an eye, others have lost breasts or part of a lung, but none surrendered passion or yielded to fear.

Bea Mandelman, in her 80s, had helpers hold her up while she painted and talked about change.

"I felt the need for a new direction, a breakthrough," she wrote in a note accompanying her acrylic on canvas, "Shadows No. 3." "The previous images were about gesture, these have to do with silence."

She's still working. An artist's note from Martha Slaymaker admitted she was initially terrified by her illness, but then "I sought innovative solutions to my own survival."

She changed her diet, exercised, studied self-hypnosis. "The process of making art, reconnecting with my musical background and numerous other imaginative devices, became important outlets and helped dissipate the pain in recognizing my own mortality."

She died in January 1995. The "Artlives Artlives" show, concluding March 15 at UNM's Jonson Gallery, says curator Joseph Traugott.

"Martha started the ball rolling on this but unfortunately did not live to see the exhibition," Traugott says.

Slaymaker's "Origins XVII" is the first work the viewer sees upon entering the gallery. It's a blue-gray montage of pressed clay slabs — cast in plaster — that don't quite fit but are bound together on canvas with splashes of color.

Her husband, Michael Hudson, says his wife produced hundreds, perhaps thousands, of works in the 20 years she had cancer.

Helen Hardin, a Santa Clara Pueblo artist who died in the 1980s, also is represented. Hardin's acrylic on canvas titled "Last Dance of the Mimbres," echoing traditional tribal design, was provided by her daughter, who also has a work in the show.

"This is where I live, in the search for ultimate structures," said the late Harry Nadler, whose oil painting "Night Studio III" is accompanied by works from his wife, Helen, and friend Patrick Nagatan.

Four of the 19 artists represented did not have cancer themselves, but suffered the loss of friends or relatives. Most of the works are by New Mexico artists, but some are from Rhode Island, California and New York.

There are paintings, sculptures, ceramics and photography, each work captioned with the artist's observations about cancer, life and art.

Amalia Schultess of Santa Monica, Calif., who lost a close friend to cancer, sent one of her "Assassinated Trees" sculptures — a vine-strangled tree in a coffin.

"Turning pain into art is one step up," says a poem by Cynthia Barber, whose "Ocean View," a wrought-iron triptych with sea pebbles, occupies one corner of the gallery.

Barber's brother died of cancer.

"She and her brother had both collected the rocks that are part of this sculpture," says Traugott. "The rocks are references to the timelessness of lives and souls and our memory."

Co-curator Linda Tyler, who is gallery director at Albuquerque's Tamarind Institute, says the exhibition hopes to emphasize commonalities rather than differences.

"We wish to make the point that art serves as a connector of sorts between the making of objects and the participation of the viewer. ... The making of art — not unlike the experience of illness — creates a state of mental intensity from which revelation evolves," Tyler says in the catalog that accompanies the exhibition.

The caption for a watercolor by Clinton Adams says he lost his right eye, otherwise viewers couldn't tell. His watercolor on linen, "Ampurias I," is more a celebration of the other eye.

Farrakhan told to register with government if he's Libyan agent

By MICHAEL J. SHUPPEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Is Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan enlisting as an agent of Libyan strongman Moammar Gadhafi? The Justice Department wants to know.

Foreign agents must register with the government, just as the Justice Department forced President Jimmy Carter's brother, Billy, to do when he flirted with Gadhafi 16 years ago.

Justice Department criminal division officials who enforce the Foreign Agent Registration Act drafted a letter to Farrakhan on Friday asking him about news reports of his visit to Libya this week, a Justice official said.

Libya's official news agency JANA reported Farrakhan and Gadhafi discussed how to increase the influence of American minorities in the next U.S. elections. JANA said they agreed to "mobilize the oppressed minorities" — particularly blacks, Arabs, Muslims and American Indians — "to play a significant role in American political life."

"Our confrontation with America used to be like confronting a fortress from outside," Gadhafi told JANA. "Today we have found a loophole to enter the fortress and to confront it from within."

The Justice Department letter advises Farrakhan of the foreign agent law's requirement that anyone working with a foreign entity to influence U.S. policies or politics must register with the department, said the Justice official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The registration forms require a description of work done for any foreign government, business, political party or other principal and an accounting of how money provided by the foreign entity was spent in the United States.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell declined to comment on the matter.

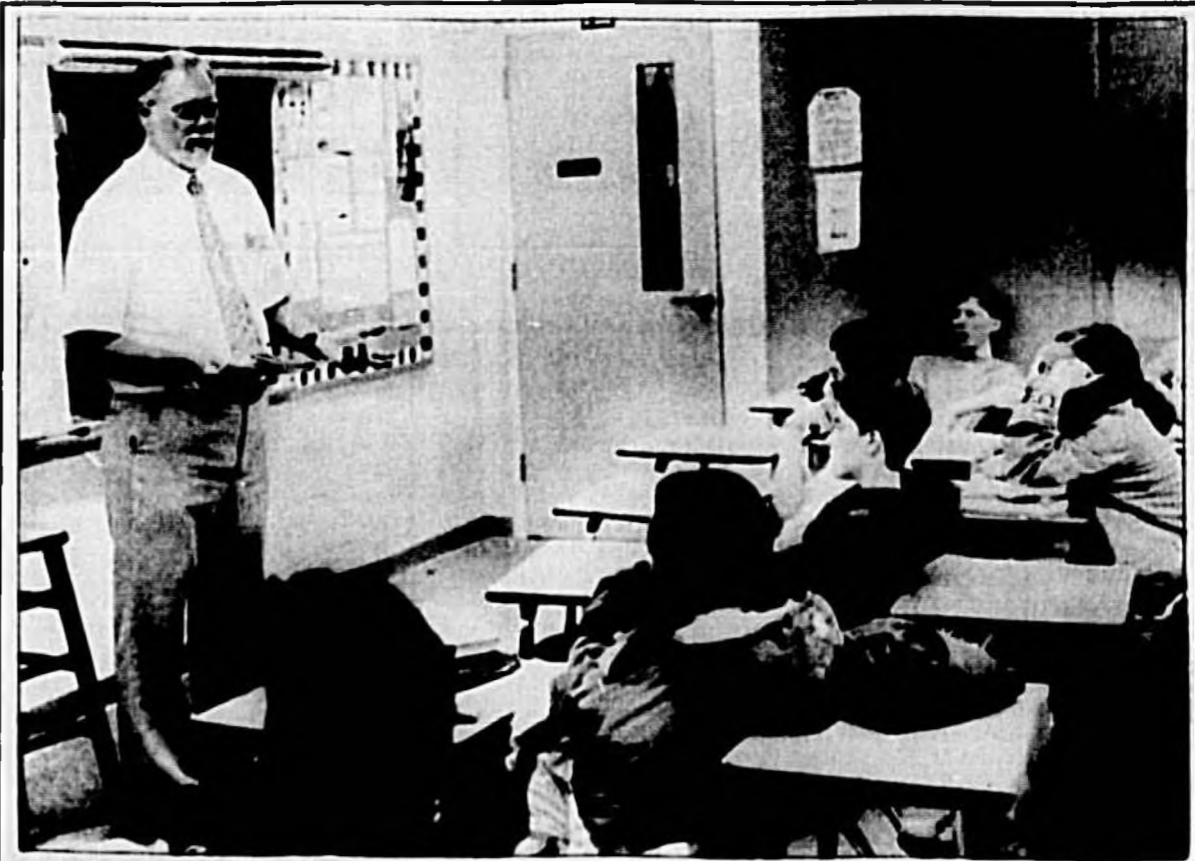

Farrakhan was quoted by JANA as praising Gadhafi for working for the liberation of oppressed people, including minorities in the United States.

"I have met my brother, Col. Moammar Gadhafi ... for the sake of unifying Arabs, Muslims, blacks and oppressed communities in America to play a strong, significant role, not only in the American elections but in American foreign policy," he was quoted as saying.

The Washington Post reported that Gadhafi pledged to spend $1 billion on Muslim causes in the United States.

There was no indication exactly how the $1 billion might be spent, but Rep. Pete King, R-N.Y., wrote Attorney General Janet Reno on Friday asking her to look into whether the agreement constituted an attempt to launder foreign money for use in political campaigns in the United States. There was no immediate response from Reno.

In 1980, the Justice Department sued Billy Carter to force him to register as a Libyan agent. Carter reached an agreement with the department July 14, 1980, to register and detail gifts and payments he had received from Libya, including a $220,000 loan. He then severed the relationship.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Questioning of first lady done for now

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton, saying she cooperated fully with prosecutors during a historic four-hour grand jury session, professes to be mystified about how her long-sought law firm records suddenly turned up in the White House family quarters.

Despite the lengthy interrogation, it was unclear whether the questioning of the first lady by Whitewater prosecutors is finished. The White House issued an open-ended statement that said, "Mrs. Clinton was not told today that she would have to return."

Mrs. Clinton spent most of Friday afternoon in a windowless room on the third floor of the U.S. Courthouse being questioned by several prosecutors in a proceeding that — as grand jury sessions always are — was secret.

Asked after it was over whether she would rather have been somewhere else, Mrs. Clinton quipped, "Oh, about a million other places."

"It's been a long day," she said.

She said she told the jurors what she has said before publicly: "I do not know how the billing records came to be found where they were found" in the White House residence.

At a reception after his wife finished her testimony, President Clinton told supporters, "I feel a lot better than I did when I got here. ... I am going home to take care of my lovely wife and daughter."

One of the days' few light-hearted moments came when a grand juror toted a copy of Mrs. Clinton's new book into the U.S. Courthouse, got the first lady to autograph it, then proudly told reporters about it.

The grand juror was one of 11 men and 10 women on the panel, composed of Washington residents. Grand juries are made up of 23 people, but there are frequent absences.

Emerging from the courthouse in the early evening, Mrs. Clinton stepped before a small army of reporters and camera crews, declaring "I, like everyone else, would like to know the answer about how those documents showed up after all those years."

She said she "tried to be as helpful as I could" to Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr, his two deputies and the platoon of lawyers working under them.

Discharge policy upsets AIDS activists

WASHINGTON — A newly passed bill requiring the discharge of service members with the AIDS virus drew fire from Congress and AIDS advocacy groups as Clinton prepares to sign the measure into law.

Critics challenged administration assertions that those discharged would retain their full medical and dental benefits. The measure is now on Clinton's desk as part of the $265 billion 1996 defense authorization bill passed Friday evening by the Senate on a 56-34 vote.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee, decried the HIV discharge policy despite his overall support for the defense bill. Nunn contrasted his opposition to the new discharge to his earlier efforts to block gays from serving in the military.

"We're talking about punitive actions. We're talking about action that does not make sense from any point of view," Nunn said.

Nunn listed several cases that have come to his attention, including that of an enlistee with 13 years in the military who has the AIDS virus and whose wife and two children also have the virus.

"He will lose his employment, lose his retirement potential, lose his access to medical care," Nunn said.

The White House presented a brighter picture for those discharged.

"They won't face any lack of support," said White House press secretary Mike McCurry. "They'll be in a situation similar to other military retirees."

McCurry said the administration will work closely with allies on Capitol Hill "to pursue legislation that would reverse this policy and do so ... within the six-month period before it takes effect."

The Defense Department said that 1,049 male and female service members would have to be discharged within six months under the terms of the bill.

Clinton has agreed to sign the defense bill because of other provisions he supports, including a 2.4 percent military pay raise and funding to improve barracks.

AIDS activists challenged the White House assertion that service members who leave on "involuntary discharge" because they carry the HIV virus will get the same medical benefits as others who retire from the military or leave on medical discharges.

The Human Rights Campaign, which follows gay rights and AIDS issues, contends that those with the virus may find it difficult to get health care services, and their family members will lose health benefits altogether.

The U.S. Office of National AIDS Policy confirmed that view, saying that family members will lose benefits, unlike other military retirees, and that the HIV carriers will get government health care only on a "space available" basis instead of the higher-priority "space-secured" level.

was wrong. Danielle Mays of Longwood said she was 10-years-old when it happened. She had stayed home from school because she was sick and saw the explosion on television.

"I cried and cried," she said. "I was in the house by myself because my mom had gone to get me some medicine and I didn't know what to do. When my mom got home she thought I was hurt because I was crying so much."

John Klavitch of Longwood said he was a college student at the time. He had decided to go to the beach with some friends and hang out and watch the launch.

"It was freezing that morning," he said. "I remember thinking that this was not why I came to Florida. It's supposed to be warm here. I had just turned to my girlfriend and said that we needed a fire when the whole sky seemed to light up and then there was that awful black cloud and we all just stared at the sky and nobody said anything. That wasn't what I meant by a fire."

Laura Estevez of Lake Mary said she and some friends had gone to Disney World that day rather than to school.

"We didn't really care about the launch so we didn't look up at the time the launch was taking place. But I remember that there were people looking up and some of them were crying. I never even thought about it at the time, but I sure remember it now."

Kara Love of Sanford said she was in labor with her first child at the time of the explosion.

"I, obviously, didn't hear about it until much later in the day," she said. "But when I heard about it, I named my daughter Krista after that teacher that was on there."

Of course, not everyone remembers where they were at the time of the Challenger explosion.

Jina Long is unaware of where she was ten years ago.

"I'm only nine," she said, shaking her head.

the school board would choose to use that option if they got it," Bovio said. "but we would like to have that option."

School board chairman Sandy Robinson said the term "option" was the key word in the proposal the school district was bringing to the legislature.

"We want to have the flexibility to finance the capital outlay projects we need," she said.

Robinson said the board had anticipated that the PECO (Public Education Capital Outlay and debt service trust fund) money would be reduced this year, but it looks as if it will not be.

"But (the local option millage increase) would give us some leverage to keep up with the capital concerns in the district," Robinson said.

million. Justice Department officials in Texas on Wednesday temporarily blocked Quadro Corp. of Harleyville, S.C., from selling or distributing the device, known as the Positive Molecular Locator or the Quadro Tracker.

Company officials of Quadro Corp. have been ordered to appear in federal court this week to determine if the order should be made permanent.

In Seminole County, Halbig said, James Randy of Scientific American magazine helped Halbig conduct a number of blind tests to prove the device did not, in fact, detect any contraband substances as the company claimed.

For Dateline NBC, Halbig reproduced some of those tests. Reporter John Reese said he was convinced of the authenticity of the tests Halbig showed him.

He said that Quadro Corp. officials, including the president of the company, were invited to come to Sanford to take part in the tests and to offer their own proof of the authenticity of their claims, but they declined to do so.

Reese said criminal investigation was also under way and attorneys general from Florida, Iowa, Missouri and Texas were conducting their

The option, if exercised, would raise the taxes for each household less than $50 per year.

"It doesn't raise mega-bucks here," said Robinson.

Still, the school district continues to struggle with more than $75 million in "unmet capital needs" with the care and renovation of so many older school facilities.

"If we need it, we would have the option of dealing with the renovation of our older schools," Robinson said.

Bovio said the smaller districts, such as Seminole, which ranks 35th of the 67 counties in the amount of money they get from the state, need to have other options for capital funding.

"And that's all we're looking for here...options," he said. "I can't see where they'd have to use it any time soon."

own investigations.

Halbig said he knows of many tests that have shown the device is nothing more than a hollow plastic box attached to an antenna.

The black plastic box, a little smaller than a video cassette, can be attached to a belt. The user inserts into a slot a small card — known as a signature card — that contains the "chip" representing an illegal drug or an item to be detected.

The person holds a companion device about the size of a TV remote control. That device has the antenna that's supposed to point to the item being hunted.

The box and its accessories together cost from $395 to $8,000.

The Seminole County tests to be featured on NBC, will hopefully save other districts and law enforcement departments from making costly mistakes, Halbig said.

"It's not just the money spent on the device," Halbig said. "You have to be sure something like this is 100 percent accurate. You can't make a mistake when you make accusations based on its findings."

The Dateline NBC episode featuring Halbig and the findings made in Seminole County will air the second week in February.

CITIZEN PARTICIPATION -
CONSOLIDATED PLAN PROCESS

Seminole County is a recipient of federal grant funds through a number of programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). These include the Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG), the HOME housing grant program (Volusia and Seminole counties formed a consortium in 1991 to qualify for this program), and the Emergency Shelter Grants Program (ESG). These programs are designed primarily to assist the County's low and moderate income residents. In order to streamline the administration of these programs, HUD has consolidated all of the local planned and citizen participation requirements of these various federal programs into a single administrative process: "The Consolidated Plan"

1996-1997 Grant Amounts:

CDBG	$2,781,000
HOME	$785,000
ESG	$92,000
TOTAL	$3,658,000

Note: These figures may change pending Congressional action.

Range of Activities: The County can undertake a wide range of activities under these programs if they benefit low/moderate income people or areas where the majority of the people living there are low/moderate income.

Applications will be accepted from eligible organizations during the period of February 1 - 17, 1996. An informational workshop will be provided on February 1, 1996 at 9:00 a.m. in the Board of County Commissioners Chambers, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida 32771 to answer any questions that may be pertinent to the program and activity eligibility.

Additional Information: A copy of the complete Citizen Participation Plan, or a Citizen Assistance Packet can be obtained from the County's CD Office. Contact Anthony Pelt at (407) 321-1130, Extension 7374.

Israeli-Syrian talks plod along

WASHINGTON — Syrian and Israeli negotiators were to meet separately with U.S. officials over the weekend as peace talks between the two countries move ahead slowly.

"Movement is not going to be produced overnight," State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said Friday. "We are talking about incremental efforts."

The talks resumed Wednesday at the Wye Plantation conference center near Queenstown, Md., discussing terms of an agreement and security arrangements should Israel vacate the Golan Heights and return them to Syria.

Chief American mediator Dennis B. Ross is expected to meet with the two sides separately this weekend in Washington. The delegations are to resume Maryland sessions Monday and meet through Wednesday.

The aim is to narrow some differences before Secretary of State Warren Christopher goes to the Middle East on Feb. 5 for five days of shuttling between Damascus and Jerusalem.

Christopher joined the negotiations at the Wye center Thursday. Burns said he urged negotiators to press very hard for movement on all issues.

Duchess negotiates for TV show

LONDON — Fun-loving, big-spending and short of cash, the Duchess of York has been offered $1 million to host her own talk show for CBS television, a London newspaper reported today.

The Daily Mail quoted an unidentified source at the network as saying Prince Andrew's separated wife is negotiating with CBS over the offer, which could include as few as six shows a year, or as many as one a week.

Meanwhile, court officials said the duchess is being sued in High Court in London over a $142,500 loan she failed to repay to a friend. The suit is the first time a member of the royal family is being pursued through the courts for payment of debts, according to the Sun, another tabloid.

The former Sarah Ferguson was reported by British papers last week to owe her bank $1.5 million or more because of her lavish spending on clothes, holidays, staff, her rented mansion and other luxuries.

Her mother-in-law, Queen Elizabeth, resolved last week to stop bailing out the duchess, known popularly as Fergie.

The Sun report said lawyers for Indian-born society hostess Lily Rathan Mahtani filed suit against the duchess Thursday, demanding repayment of the loan plus interest and legal costs.

The newspaper printed a copy of the court document, and said royal aides fear the suit could lead to similar demands from other creditors.

The Sun said Mrs. Mahtani, 38, made the loan in August 1994 so the duchess could take a six-week holiday in the south of France with daughters Princess Beatrice, 7, and Princess Eugenie, 5.

The Sun said Mrs. Mahtani claims the duchess promised to repay it after a "reasonable period" but that when she asked for it back last February, Fergie repaid only $7,500.

The 38-year-old duchess and Andrew, 35, married in July 1986 and separated in 1992. The duchess says she has cut back on her spending, but tabloids said she flew first class Jan. 18 for a four-day visit to the United States.

Attack puts tourist economy on line

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U.S. Virgin Islands — The governor of the Virgin Islands vowed to hunt down the gunman who critically wounded three American tourists, while police scrambled to make good on the promise.

Two of the victims, 53-year-old Marie Sardella and 58-year-old Walter Schenk, were in critical condition after surgery at Centro Medico university hospital in San Juan, Puerto Rico, said Dr. Benjamin Morales.

Sardella, a flower shop owner from Walpole, Mass., and Schenk, a construction company owner from Philadelphia, were shot in the head during Wednesday's restaurant shooting.

"She's moving all her limbs. She's doing pretty well considering she's been shot in the head," Sardella's daughter Lisa said.

Gov. Roy Schneider on Friday visited the third victim, Atlantic City restaurateur William Garrity, 52, who was recovering in St. Thomas Hospital following abdominal surgery.

Schneider later promised "an aggressive approach" to "expeditiously arrest suspects."

The police, who have been criticized for being weak on crime, claim they are improving. Murders in the islands — with a population of 100,000 people — dropped to 22 last year from 36 in 1994. In 1994, the U.S. Navy resumed trips to St. Thomas after nearly a year of staying away because of frequent assaults on sailors.

One of the 1995 victims was a vacationer, a Washington woman whose throat was slashed in a November robbery. Two arrests have been made.

On Thursday, Schneider ordered roadblocks, vehicle searches and a teen curfew, and asked the FBI to help investigate. But a reporter on the island Friday evening saw only one police car.

Sardella's daughter, Lisa, said she was unimpressed by the police.

"No one has contacted us to tell us what happened," she said.

Some islanders were also underwhelmed by the governor's promise and the police effort. Charles Perry complained the government was "creating hysteria."

"I wonder, if one of us got shot, what would the reaction be?" asked the 34-year-old islander.

American tried on weapons charges

HAIPHONG, Vietnam — A Vietnam War veteran who said he came back to live in peace begged a court for mercy today after a prosecutor threatened him with six years in prison for bringing weapons and ammunition into the country.

Everett Sennholz, 45, was arrested last August when a rifle, a shotgun and 300 rounds of ammunition were found in a shipment of household goods arriving in this port city 90 miles southeast of Hanoi. Sennholz said the guns were for hunting and were not military weapons.

"Your honor, I made a mistake. I want to apologize to the people of Vietnam and the people and city of Haiphong," said Sennholz during a four-hour trial in the Haiphong People's Court.

Sennholz, a self-employed tax consultant from Puyallup, Wash., said he had visited Vietnam five times since 1992 and was planning to marry a Vietnamese woman, settle in Haiphong and teach English.

Sennholz was also charged with trying to smuggle banned books and videotapes that authorities say distort the history of the Vietnam War and smear the Vietnamese army. The books included "Vietnam: A History," by Stanley Karnow, a popular U.S. general history of Vietnam; the tapes included Oliver Stone's "Heaven and Earth" and the pornographic 1970s movie "Behind the Green Door."

The case comes at a sensitive time as Vietnam tries to open its economy to the outside world. Communist conservatives have objected to creeping Western influence, inspiring a nationwide crackdown on cultural issues.

But the case has alarmed foreigners in Vietnam because Sennholz appeared to have made an innocent error and the cultural items include books and videos considered normal personal possessions outside the country.

Your car: Modify, improve, enhance

By BOB SCHWARZING
Herald Correspondent

Enhancing your car's interior

Previously we've discussed ways to keep your car in good shape and looking good. With the average new car transaction price now over $20,000, it makes sense to keep your current car for as long as possible. In this article we'll discuss ways to make your car more enjoyable and more luxurious. These tips will not only allow you to keep driving your car, but they'll also allow you to enjoy many of the same luxuries and conveniences that are available on the expensive new cars.

Interior upholstery

Over the years, the upholstery in your car can get dirty, worn out, and torn. This kind of damage cannot be repaired by a simple detailing job — for this, you need to have the upholstery redone. You can go about that one of two ways. You can either just restore the interior so that it looks similar to what it looked like when new, or you can go for a complete custom look, complete with plush tweeds and heavy padding. In either case, a complete job is not cheap. According to Doug McDuffie of Stuard Enterprises, Inc. of Sanford, a complete interior job includes the headliner, seats, carpet, door panels and kick panels can cost anywhere from $2,500 to $4,500 whether you're going for a factory look or a custom look. Also, if you need a complete job done, be prepared to leave your car at the shop for about a month. Of course, if you only need certain parts redone, such as just the seats or headliner, the cost and time needed to do the job will be correspondingly less.

Obviously, with costs like that, if you are not going for a custom look, it is much easier to try to keep your interior from becoming that worn out in the first place. Here just a little common sense is in order: Avoid eating messy foods in your car since this can cause permanent stains. Avoid placing dirty or sharp objects on the seats to prevent stains and tears. Finally, you may want to invest in some floor mats to keep the carpet from getting worn out since it's much cheaper to replace worn floor mats than worn carpet.

Convenience features of car alarms

The main purpose of a car alarm, of course, is to discourage theft and vandalism. However, many car alarms have the ability to be expanded to control a number of features in your car. For example, do you like the keyless entry feature found on most new luxury cars? This allows the owner to unlock the doors with the push of a button on a small remote control as he walks toward the car — definitely a nice feature if you're walking toward your car during a Florida thunderstorm. Well, if you already have power doorlocks on your car, then many car alarms can be hooked up to them. These alarms have small remote controls that you hook to your keychain, and these remotes arm and disarm the alarm. If the doorlocks are also hooked up to the alarm, then they will unlock automatically when you disarm the alarm from the remote. Car alarms with this feature typically start at about $250 including installation. If you don't already have power doorlocks, then they can be added to many cars for about $75 a door.

Another convenience feature that can be hooked up to many alarms is the ability to open your trunk with the remote control. If your car already has an electric trunk release (as opposed to a cable-operated trunk release), then it can usually be interfaced with an alarm for about $20 to $30 extra. If your car does not have an electric trunk release, then that can usually be added for about $80 to $150, depending on the car.

Many auto-electronics stores such as Circuit City, Best Buy and Cruising Tunes, sell this equipment and have installation departments to install it in your car. Please keep in mind that the above prices are approximate, and that they can be higher for certain luxury and European cars because of the wiring and locking systems these cars use.

Sound systems

Most of the same places that sell and install alarms also sell and install sound systems for your car. Beyond the obvious improvements in sound quality and features, a new stereo system can help give your car's dash a modern, high-tech look. If you've ever driven past one of those boom-in' bass cars that can be heard thumping from half a mile away, then you know the sky is the limit when it comes to a sound system. Of course, you don't have to go crazy just to improve your car's stereo system. For about $300 or so, you can get a CD-player for your car so you can enjoy your favorite CDs on the road. You can go a step higher for about $400 and get a CD-changer.

These typically mount in your trunk, hold cartridges of 6 to 18 CDs, and allow you to select the CD from the dashboard and play it through your stereo system. Changers can even be hooked up to your existing factory radio — they simply play the music through an FM station on your radio. Of course, if you do this, the CDs will only sound as good as your radio — it won't be the true digital-quality sound that is possible with a CD.

Other ways to improve the overall sound of your system is by upgrading the speakers and adding amplifiers. Again, you don't have to go crazy, and you don't have to want your car to be heard a mile away to benefit from this equipment. Even a small amplifier for under $100 can make the sound cleaner, with less distortion, at any volume level.

This is all just a sample of what's possible. It just goes to show you that just because your car seems old and obsolete, you don't have to trade it in. You can modify, improve, and enhance it!

Scrub jays must move before school is built

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

Another high school is being proposed in Seminole County, near Oviedo. That is, if a couple of blue jays are willing to vacate the premises.

A request for rezoning and a change to the county's comprehensive plan has been submitted.

According to county records submitted in connection with the proposal, the first round of hearings is scheduled for February 7 before the Local Planning Agency/Planning and Zoning Commission. The request will then go before the full Board of County Commissioners on February 13th.

The land is located between Lockwood Boulevard and Old Lockwood Road, east of the Carillon PUD, and southeast of the Oviedo PUD. The land, already owned by the school board, is presently zoned for Low Density Residential/High Density Residential and Commercial. The request is for a change to Public Quasi-Public (PLI).

According to the school board's statement, the site was granted a special exception for a high school in 1994, and the Board of County Commissioners subsequently upheld the special exception on the appeal.

If all approvals are granted and construction can begin as presently being planned by the school board, the school is expected to open some time between the years 2000 and 2004.

At the present time, only one complication has shown up. In the county's staff analysis report regarding adherence to regulations, the statement says, "A survey of threatened, endangered and species of special concern has revealed the presence of two scrub jays, which are considered threatened species."

Specifies on whether the jays could be relocated or how they may otherwise be dealt with were not immediately revealed.

The county staff is recommending that the school board be granted the special exception to permit construction, with the requirement of a habitat conservation plan required.

Following approval at these two February meetings, the next steps will be a development agreement to be submitted no later than June 1, followed by other site plan approvals from the Econlockhatchee River Protection, and Seminole County Land Development.

After the final site plans are approved later this year, the plans will be brought back before the County Commission for public hearings and final decisions.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Spring softball offered

CASSELBERRY — Seminole County Parks & Recreation will offer Spring Softball Leagues at its Seminole County Softball Complex and Red Bug Lake Park starting on February 19. Signups will continue until February 9. Cost for the 10-week season is $325 ($280 for league fee, $40 for a dozen Worth Blue Dot softballs, and $25 for ASA and trophy fee). For further information, call the Seminole County Softball Complex at 788-0809 or Red Bug Lake Park at 698-7113.

Baseball coaches meeting

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department will hold meetings for its youth baseball coaches next Monday and Tuesday. Monday night (Jan. 29) at 6 p.m. the 12-and-under age team coaches will meet and on Tuesday (Jan. 30) at 6:30 p.m. the Babe Ruth coaches will meet. Both meetings will take place at the Downtown Youth Center located in the lower level of City Hall. For more information call 330-5687.

Sanford Youth Baseball 1996

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department is now registering for its upcoming youth baseball season. Kids ages 5 to 15 can sign up at the Downtown Youth Center located in the lower level of City Hall or players may register the day of tryouts. Your age on August 1, 1996 will determine which league you play in. The Sanford league's are: TEE-Ball (5-8), PEE-WEE (7-9), Little Major League (10-12) and Babe Ruth League (13-15). All participants must pay a $15 registration fee and non-Sanford residents must also pay an additional $10 fee ($15 for a family). Everyone needs to register but only those new to the program or moving up to a new league will have to tryout. All returning players will be on the same team as they were last season. There will be no tryouts for TEE-Ball. Tryouts for the other leagues are as follows: Pee-Wee (Sat., Feb. 3 at 9 a.m. at Ft. Mellon Softball Field); Little Majors (Sat., Feb. 3 at 9 a.m. at Ft. Mellon Baseball Field); Babe Ruth (Sat. Feb. 10 at 9 p.m. at Sanford Memorial Stadium). For additional information call: Sanford Recreation Department at 330-5687.

February Softball Tournament

SANFORD — Sanford will be the site for a Men's Class C slowpitch softball tournament the weekend of February 9-11. Cost for the double elimination event will be $125 per team with a deadline for entry, February 9 at 5 p.m. First, 2nd and 3rd place sponsor awards and 1st (bat bags) and 2nd place (batting gloves) individual awards (minimum of 10 teams entered) will be given. For more information please call 332-1090.

Magic wilt in fourth quarter

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Hawks won their 10th in a row Friday night, holding Shaquille O'Neal without a basket in the second half as they pulled away for a 96-84 victory over the Orlando Magic. Steve Smith scored 22 points and Mookie Blaylock added 21 for Atlanta, but once again it was the Hawks defense which decided the game. O'Neal, after scoring 12 points in the first quarter and 16 in the opening half, managed only four points in the final two periods. The winning streak is the third-longest for the Hawks since they moved from St. Louis to Atlanta in 1968, and came a few hours after the team announced plans to build a 20,000-seat, $200 million arena on the site of the Omni. Orlando's other star, Anfernee Hardaway, had only one basket in the second half as Atlanta outscored the Magic 33-12 over the final 13 minutes. Orlando made only two field goals in the fourth quarter. For the seventh consecutive, the Hawks held an opponent under 100 points, and this defensive performance was especially impressive. Orlando, leader of the Atlantic Division, was averaging 102.9 points a game.

Bulls crush Heat

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bulls tied a franchise record with their 14th straight victory Friday night, using a strong defense, 25 points from Michael Jordan and Dennis Rodman's 18 rebounds to rout the Miami Heat 102-80. The Bulls forced 26 turnovers, held Miami to a nine first-half field goals in building a 48-29 lead and limited Heat center Alonzo Mourning to just 12 points, 13 under his average. Chicago, now 37-3, also won 14 in a row from Nov. 6, 1991, to Dec. 7, 1991, en route to the second of three straight NBA titles.

Lake Mary girls power past Oviedo

By TONY BOGGERMAN
Herald correspondent

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Striking early in each half, the Lake Mary Rams claimed the 6A-District 4 girls' soccer championship with a 3-1 win over the Oviedo Lions Friday at Lake Brantley High School. For the Rams (18-6-3), it was their first district title since 1993. The Lions fell to 22-6-1. Angie Olson gave Lake Mary a 1-0 lead when she hit a spinning left-footed shot off the hands of Oviedo 'keeper Karen Murray just 3:19 into the game. Fifteen seconds into the second half, Elizabeth Morris broke in and slid a shot under Murray for a 2-0 Ram advantage. "We missed a couple of opportunities to add to the lead in the first half, but I think the wind was a factor," said Lake Mary coach Bill Eisack. "Then we started the second half with a quick goal, which is exactly what we needed." "When Amie (Bradley) got the third goal (at 47:34 of the second half), that allowed us the opportunity to get everyone some quality minutes. And that's important for the future of this team and the program."

Oviedo didn't give up, cutting the deficit to 3-1 when Karyn Hall scored with just under 22 minutes left to play. But the Lions' comeback efforts were hindered considerably when Hall left the game with an injury.

"We're such a young team," said Oviedo coach Gene Lescalette. "This is a part of the learning process. We're learning what it takes to win the big games."

Both teams will play Tuesday. Lake Mary will host 6A-3 runner-up Deltona while Oviedo will be at 6A-3 champion DeLand. The Bulldogs shutout the Wolves 2-0.

Oviedo's Kim Conner (No. 3) battles Lake Mary's Adrienne Elker for the ball during the Rams' 3-1 victory over the Lions in the championship game of the Class 6A-District 4 tournament at Lake Brantley Friday night.

Lake Brantley tops No.1-seeded Lions

By TONY BOGGERMAN
Herald correspondent

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Those that don't believe in luck say that you make your own breaks. The Lake Brantley Patriots gave a classic exhibition of that very philosophy Friday night in the championship game of the 6A-District 4 boys' soccer tournament. Outworking the Oviedo Lions (ranked second in the Florida Athletic Coaches Association's Class 6A state poll) for most of the 80-minute match, the Patriots claimed the district title with a 1-0 victory. After several near misses - including a rocket by Philippe Cianculli that was headed away from the goal by Leo Mejia - Lake Brantley finally got a break when a header by Danny Fendrich found its way past Lion goalie C.J. Meert, bounced off the right post, and trickled across the goal line. "It was a great match," said Patriot coach Jim Brody. "We had two wars this week. That just shows how competitive this district is. We needed overtime to beat Lake Mary on Wednesday night while Oviedo had to go to penalty kicks to get past Lyman. "We've often said in the past that this district has been strong enough to have two teams in the state championship game. I think that's the case again this year." While the Patriots carried much of the play, the one-goal margin was terribly thin. Oviedo had a couple of outstanding chances, the best being a free kick by Travis Weeks that Lake Brantley 'keeper Philip Kopman punched off the cross bar. "That was too close," Brody said with a shake of his head. "I was concerned that we had so many opportunities in the first half but had nothing to show for it. I was afraid we might be spent." His concerns were unfounded. After outshooting the Lions 5-3 in the first half, the Patriots had a 7-4 advantage in the second half, including Cianculli's near miss and Fendrich's goal. Losing didn't bother Oviedo coach Joe Avalone as much as the way the Lions lost. "The bottom line is they (the Patriots) wanted it and we watched," said Avalone. "They played with intensity tonight. They wanted the district championship and they came out and took it." Fortunately for the Lions, Friday's loss didn't bring the curtain down on their season. Both Lake Brantley and Oviedo will play again Wednesday, the Patriots hosting the runner-up from the 6A-District 3 tournament while Oviedo travels to the home of the 6A-District 3 champion.

Lake Brantley's Shaun Phillips goes to the air to head the ball away from Oviedo's Mike Shea in the Patriots 1-0 victory over the Lions in the championship game of the Class 6A-District 4 Tournament Friday night.

Rams survive in double overtime

By ROBERT SANDERS

WINTER PARK — Jason Junker scored nine points in double overtime to help Lake Mary Rams escape with a 78-67 victory at Lake Howell Friday night. The Rams (17-4), opened up a 21-15 lead early in the second quarter behind the shooting of Matt Townsley, who paced the Rams with 20 points in the first half. The Lake Howell Silver Hawks (12-11), kept it close behind the shooting of Duane Greene, who hit three of five three-point field goals in the first half. Greene finished the game scoring a team high 22 points. After leading 29-27 at halftime and the whole third quarter, the Rams could not shake off the pesky Silver Hawks. Lake Howell had pulled to within one, 52-51 in the fourth quarter, after Anthony Bryson slammed home his first basket since the early third quarter. After a Lake Mary basket made it 54-51, freshman guard Reggie Kohn nailed a three-point shot with 1:00 remaining in regulation to tie the game at 54-54. Junker answered Kohn's shot by converting a three-point attempt of his own that put Lake Mary up 57-54 with 19 seconds remaining. Not to be outdone, Kohn attempted another three-point field goal, but this time he was fouled by Rams guard Paul Beik. With six seconds remaining, Kohn made all three foul shots to send the game to See Rams, Page 2B

What's Up in the NFL...the Super Bowl

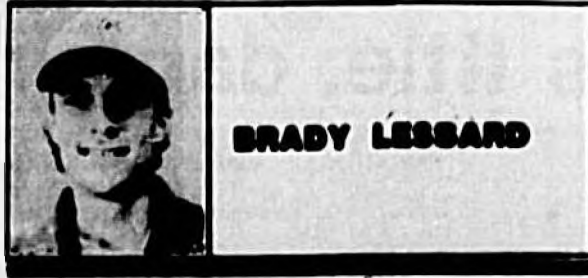

Well folks, here we are, the Super Bowl. Football fans all over the world will tune in for this matchup. In the Herald's tradition of cutting edge journalism, I have made the journey to Phoenix, and plan to witness Super Bowl XXX firsthand.

I am writing this column from a $24 per night hotel somewhere in the Arizona desert.

My trip began Thursday night as I met Gweedo and Ben in Reno. Our original plan was to gamble a little and ski a lot. A cute blackjack dealer, and free booze, made the slopes much less attractive as we spent 10 hours straight at Caesars casino.

Of course, most of this time was spent in the sports book "researching" the betting opportunities of the game. I will relay this information momentarily, but first let's take a look at the game.

The Pittsburgh Steelers have arrived with a combination of heart and luck. After a disappointing start, Steelers' coach Bill Cowher rallied his troops to eight consecutive victories. Their 3-4 record had most wondering if the Steelers would even make the playoffs. Managing to end the season at 11-5 is a tribute to this team's Cowher-inspired determination.

BRADY LISSARD

Regardless of this burning desire to perform, Pittsburgh needed luck and a couple of bad calls to advance to today's game. The Indianapolis Colts, perhaps the only team with more heart than the Steelers, were robbed in the A.F.C. Championship game. The Steelers will not get these types of breaks today, so they must play better football to be competitive.

The Dallas Cowboys, along with their intoxicated leader, have proven once again that money does buy championships.

Deion Sanders, with his multi-billion dollar contract, has made a fool of Cowboys owner Jerry Jones. There has never been a player worth that type of money, and most likely never will be. It is difficult for me to disregard my hate of the Cowboys, but as an objective journalist I will try. I don't think there is a Cowboy fan alive who doesn't feel lucky for having avoided the 49ers in the playoffs. Dallas has always had difficulties beating Steve Young in the clutch games. However, in disposing of Big Al's beloved Packers, the Cowboys seem poised to capture another Super Bowl title.

Green Bay may have not played its best game, but the Cowboys looked real good. Without a doubt, Dallas comes into today's game with much more confidence and momentum than the Steelers.

Let's take a look at the game. The Steelers have gotten an emotional lift with the return of Rod Woodson to the roster, but I think this will spell disaster on the field. I admire Woodson's courage, but I can't help feeling it will hurt the team. With Woodson unaccustomed to playing with the current defensive backs, look for Dallas to attack him warily and often.

If the Steelers can hold off this early assault, we'll have ourselves a game. If the Cowboys are successful with the attack, I'm catching an early flight home during halftime. There is no doubt in my mind that the outcome of this game will be determined in the first half.

KEYS TO VICTORY STEELERS

No. 1 — Hold off the "early assault" of the Cowboys.

No. 2 — Must maintain a solid punting game. Without a consistent offense, which they don't have, this is absolutely essential.

No. 3 — Hurt Troy Aikman. Not with dirty play, but a clean hit. If Pittsburgh can do this, the game is up for grabs.

DALLAS

No. 1 — Develop a solid passing game and exploit the Steelers secondary with big plays early.

No. 2 — Stop the rejuvenated passing game of the Steelers.

No. 3 — Break Cowher's spirit early. Without it, the Steelers will crumble.

AS my patted LOCK OF THE WEEK, I'm betting Dallas (-13). As painful as it is for me to admit, the Cowboys should have very little trouble eliminating the outgunned Steelers.

Good luck today and if you would like to help pay for my Super Bowl trip, please send donations in care of the Sanford Herald.

GFWFC considers easing gator rules

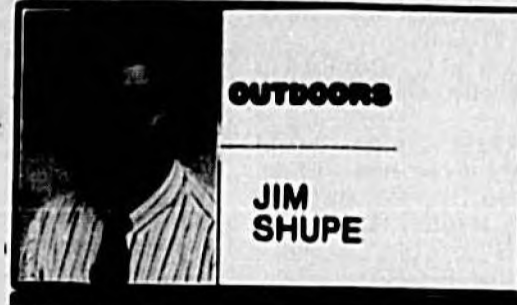

The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission heard staff proposals and public input concerning a series of alligator harvest and alligator farm rule changes during its Jan. 11-12 meeting in Tallahassee. Final action on proposed rule changes is scheduled for March 1.

Proposed rules would relax many of the restrictions and paperwork requirements for alligator hunters, farmers and processors. Specifically, permit requirements for exporting live alligators or eggs to other states would be reduced, and alligator trappers would be less restricted regarding legal equipment and assistants. Participants in the public waters alligator harvest would no longer be required to attend a training program, although they would be mailed instructional materials and invited to an optional training program.

Another proposal would delete alligators from the state's list of species of special concern.

Regarding hunting, GFC staff recommended the commission prohibit turkey hunters from taking up positions within 100 yards of game feeding stations. Staff also recommended closing fox squirrel hunting seasons statewide because of the dramatic decrease in suitable habitat for the species.

The first phase of dove hunting, under another proposed rule, would begin in the Northwest Region on the first Saturday in October, rather than the third Saturday in September.

The commission also took under consideration a series of rules to establish hunter quotas and other regulations for Type I wildlife management areas and wildlife and environmental areas.

Bow-fishermen might see their sport expanded to allow taking nongame fish, except catfish, at night with a bow and arrow statewide. Currently, nighttime bow-fishing is permitted in the Northwest Region only.

FISHING FORECAST

Predicted cold fronts this weekend will result in windy conditions. Sheltered areas such as the river will afford anglers opportunities for bass and speckled perch. The area south from Lake Monroe should be good.

Sebastian Inlet has had plenty of flounder in the 4-8 pound range on finger mullet. Also expect redfish, small bluefish, jack crevalle, and a few ladyfish.

Captain Jack at Fort Canaveral reports that high seas have kept boats in port. When seas subside, cobia will be cruising the wrecks and grouper and snapper will be on inshore reefs. King mackerel, dolphin and wahoo will be hit or miss. Inside the port, sheepshead and flounder are providing steady action. Sheepshead prefer live shrimp or fiddler crabs, while flounder prefer finger mullet or minnows. Redfish and trout are scattered in the Banana and Indian rivers.

Sheepshead are still the big news at Ponce Inlet. The tip of the north jetties is the real hot spot. Drum, redfish, small bluefish and jack crevalle round out the action around the rocks. Mosquito Lagoon has good redfish action and fair trout fishing.

Babitt opposes budget cuts

By BILL SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Interior Secretary Bruce Babitt thinks of one word when he looks at a 25 percent budget cut proposed for his department as part of a deal to keep the federal government running.

Catastrophe. "It would mean closing hatcheries, cuts in migratory waterfowl programs. It would seriously disrupt visitor programs (at parks and wildlife refuges) and be the destruction of our scientific research programs," Babitt said in an interview.

The Interior Department, he said, is particularly vulnerable to budget cuts. Many federal departments use a part of their budget to make grants, and those payments can be reduced when spending plans shrink. But Interior does not make grants.

"Ninety percent of Interior is people in uniforms administering programs. When you are cutting 25 percent of our budget, you're talking about cutting 25 percent of our people," Babitt said Wednesday night.

The secretary said the department already has carefully cut the number of its employees 10 percent over the last few years. "To put another 25 percent of top of that would be a catastrophe," he said.

Babitt is touring the country, spreading the word that money spent by his department and through other programs such as the Agriculture Department's Conservation Reserve Program produces results.

"Just look at the number of ducks we have this winter," he said. "It's due to the return of the rains, but the habitat was there due to the CRP and the North American Waterfowl Plan and our efforts to build up the refuge system all up and down the Mississippi and the Eastern flyways."

His travels have been criticized by Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, who is leading the fight to rewrite the Endangered Species Act. His bill is under heavy attack by conservation groups.

"What they'd (Young and his allies) like to do is stuff a gag in my mouth and keep me in Washington," Babitt said. "That's why I'm out here, listening and trying to start a dialogue."

His tour included fishing with members of the North Carolina B.A.S.S. Federation.

"Bass fishermen historically are concerned about clean water," Babitt said. "Fishermen know if they (Congress) repealed national (pollution) standards, it would go back to the days when businesses would shop for a state with the lowest standards."

Asked about critics of the Endangered Species Act, who say only a handful of species have recovered out of more than 900 listed, Babitt said it will take time to reverse declines that have been going on for a century or more.

Petty revs up campaign for Secretary of State

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

LEVEL CROSS, N.C. — Richard Petty, the king of stock car racing, started his political campaign Thursday by filing for the office of secretary of state.

Petty filed for the Republican nomination during the day and had an evening campaign fundraiser at his racing and museum complex in rural Randolph County Thursday night.

"Before you start a race, they say, 'Gentleman, start your engines.' I'm starting mine tonight," Petty told a crowd of several hundred supporters at the fundraiser.

Financial supporters were entertained, ate barbecue and listened to a country band in a complex of tents outside Petty's business headquarters. The event attracted a number of Republican politicians and candidates including Richard Vinroot and state Rep. Robin Hayes, who are seeking the GOP nomination for governor; House Speaker Harold Brubaker, R-Randolph; and a large delegation of Republican state house and senate members.

Petty asked the crowd to focus not just on his race, but on the entire council state. The crowd included candidates for lieutenant governor, auditor, treasurer, insurance commissioner and supervisor of public instruction.

All those jobs are now held by Democrats and have been for nearly 100 years.

Petty said that Brubaker, a friend and Randolph County neighbor "is going to be our playmaker. He's our leader."

Brubaker, the first Republican house speaker this century, said he had no doubts about Petty's ability to run the office since his racing budget is larger than the budget for the secretary of the state.

"Richard adds a whole new dimension to North Carolina politics," Brubaker said. "Politics in North Carolina will never be the same."

Champion eater Mort Hurst of Williamston also filed for the secretary of state's job Thursday. Hurst, who gave up eating contests after suffering a stroke, will face Raleigh lawyer and lobbyist Howard Kramer in the Democratic primary.

It is the first statewide campaign for Petty, who has been a fixture on the GOP fund-raising circuit for years. The 200-race winner in NASCAR served several terms as a Randolph County commissioner. NASCAR driver Geoff Bodine also attend Thursday's fundraiser.

Petty started a political action committee to help conservative candidates two years ago, and considered a bid for governor.

But he switched to the secretary of state's office after receiving only mild interest from voters and financial backers.

He had begun developing his campaign before a state audit knocked incumbent Democrat Rufus Edmisten out of a re-election bid. That audit, released in December, found evidence of mismanagement, improper use of influence and improper use of state telephones and cars by Edmisten and his staff.

Edmisten, in his second term, announced two days before the audit's release that he would not run for re-election.

Petty has scheduled little active campaigning for the next several weeks because of his extensive business commitments related to NASCAR.

Those commitments include endorsements of soft drinks, headache powders, batteries, automobiles and an oil treatment. His political advisers said Petty does not intend to give up the commercial endorsements while he is campaigning.

"He would not make any endorsements in his capacity as secretary of state," Jim Trotter, the co-chairman of Petty's campaign told the News & Observer of Raleigh. "His two roles will be sufficiently separated. There should be no criticism on that basis at all."

Trotter said it will be easy to tell when Petty is endorsing products as a retired NASCAR driver.

"When Richard does his endorsements, he would have his trademark uniform on. When he is sitting as secretary of state, he won't have his trademark uniform on," Trotter said.

Petty's uniform includes sunglasses, boots and a hat with feathers in it.

Retired District Court Judge George Bason of Raleigh, the chairman of the state Board of Ethics, said the issue of endorsements has never arisen. But he said if Petty were running for governor and planned to continue endorsing products, the ethics board would likely mention the possibility for a conflict of interest.

Personally, Bason said he found the idea of a public official endorsing products to be "offensive."

Eunice turns 95; Angela wins title; dancers receive $$

Eunice Martin will never be forgotten in the Sanford community where she was born 95 years ago. Eunice lived in the same small frame house on Country Club Road for more than 68 years until she moved to Winter Haven to live with her family. She celebrated her 95th birthday there Saturday surrounded by nieces, nephews and other family members. One of 10 children, she never had children of her own.

Eunice is a descendant of the early Swedish settlers brought to the Upsala section of Sanford by Gen. Henry S. Sanford in 1871.

And there's no doubt about it, Eunice was the center of attraction on her special day, according to a niece, Barbara Sherman. "Aunt Eunice is a special lady," she said. "She is very independent and still has her driver license."

Barbara added that Eunice "loves people and loves attention. She is proud of her Swedish heritage. I can't wait until her 100th birthday. We will have to come back to Sanford for that."

Two years ago on her 93rd birthday, Eunice's Sanford home was overflowing with family members and friends who gathered to attend the open house given in her honor. And this year was no different in Winter Haven. Among the amenities of the occasion was a congratulatory birthday card from President Clinton. Once again, Eunice reigned as queen for the day.

Gen. Sanford gave her grandparents, Elias and Christian Bengtson, five acres of land near the Idylwild community. Her grandmother was a seamstress and wove bedspreads for the king and queen of Sweden before their departure to America with Gen. Sanford's entourage.

Eunice was born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Olin Tuner on Jan. 27, 1901. At 17, she went to work as an orange packer for Chase and Co. and when she was 26, she married Emil Manguson, a bookkeeper for Chase for 50 years. She married Eunice bubbles with information about her past. She talks about activities during the horse and buggy days and follows through to the space age. She still misses her brother, Thomas O. Tyner Jr., who was killed during World War II. Nothing has ever been confirmed about his death or where he was killed.

This spry 95-year-old lady still cooks and walks daily. According to Barbara, she is very healthy. She has been a member of the First Baptist Church of Sanford for 77 years.

Summing it all up, Eunice will tell anyone who asks, "It's been a good life."

Barbara said Eunice would love hearing from her friends. Her address is: 17 Buckeye Circle NE, Winter Haven, FL 33881.

Ballet Guild gets large donation

Dallas entrepreneur and Attorney Mike Caolo was in Sanford last weekend to attend and play in the 1996 Seminole High School Alumni Baseball Game.

While visiting his mom, Jackie Caolo, Mike and Jackie presented Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole a $1,000 check from the Betty Williams Foundation. This amount is given annually to sponsor each guild dancer with the balance going toward producing the annual performance, which, this year is in March.

Mrs. Williams was Jackie's mother and Mike's grandmother who was confined to a wheelchair during her later years. But her disability did not keep her away from attending choreographer; Mike Caolo, Dallas attorney and grandson of the late Mrs. Williams; Valerie Weld, artistic director; and Jackie Caolo, daughter of Mrs. Williams. The funds will be used to sponsor each dancer and help produce the spring performance.

artistic endeavors and other activities. She loved promoting children and Ballet Guild was one of her favorite loves. This annual bequest has been made for 10 years since Mrs. Williams' death.

Mike saw a Ballet Guild performance several years ago, and he, too, became hooked on the local dance company which is now in its 28th year.

Italian Night

The Sanford Woman's Club will sponsor its Annual Italian Night on Saturday, Feb. 3, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m., at the clubhouse, 309 S. Oak Ave.

Pat Bowen, chairman, says the menu will include Gourmet Spaghetti, Tossed Garden Salad, Garlic Bread, Dessert and Beverage. Wine will be sold by the carafe or glass.

Tickets are $5 for adults and

$3 for children. They are available from any Woman's Club member or at the door. Carry-out is also available.

Mama, Mia! What a treat!

Pasture party

Joyce and Blake Sawyers were in top form as hosts Monday afternoon late when they entertained at a party at their pasture off Sipes Avenue. The afternoon and early evening weather was perfect for the congenial turnout and chill cookout in the tranquil, pastoral setting.

Tables were covered with red-checkered cloths and guests wolfed up spicy chili (served from a black wrought iron caldron), steamed long-grained rice, crisp crudites and dips, saltines and cheese squares.

After pigging out, many guests threaded marshmallows onto long spits to roast over the large glowing bonfire and eat between crispy graham crackers for tasty S'mores.

It was nice to see LeRoy Robb out and about with his wife Linda. It was probably very nice for LeRoy to be able to see everyone there since he is recovering from recent eye surgery.

It was a fun evening in spite of the fact that the cows never did come home.

56th class reunion

Members of the 1940 class of Seminole High School will meet in the Colonial Room Wednesday, Jan. 31, at 2 p.m. to decide if there is enough interest to have a 56th class reunion this year.

According to Ashby Jones, Kent Rosacker, class president from Ormand Beach, will attend this planning session. Ashby said all classmates are invited to come on down and have a cup while mulling over the fate of the proposed reunion.

Angela named Junior Miss Manatee

Angela Nicole Baragona, 13, was crowned the 1996 Junior Miss Manatee on Saturday, Jan. 20, in a pageant at Deltona High School. The event was sponsored by the Four Townes Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

The charming beauty queen is the daughter of Chuck and Sharon Baragona and has been a student of Miriam and Valerie's School of Dance Arts for nine years.

The pageant contestants were judged on casual wear, talent, evening gown and personal interview. Angela's talent was a spirited tap dance to the music of "Don't Bring Lulu." She first appeared in a shower cap, glasses and a housecoat to later unrobe and reveal a red iridescent sequin shimmy frock custom-made by Nola Ferguson of Lola's Place in Sanford.

For her interview, she wore a long black velvet gown trimmed in gold embroidery lace.

February brings cultural evenings

Sanfordites are starting this 1996 leap year off with a great wealth of African-American activities which began with the celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s life and dream.

On Jan. 25-28, thousands from all over the country passed through the city of Eatonville to witness the 7th Annual Zora Neale Hurston Festival of Arts and Humanities. It was an opportunity for people of all backgrounds to learn about the important contributions of Zora Neale Hurston to her society and world culture.

For many years the Hurstons were residents of Sanford. The home where she grew up on East Sixth Street has been named as a historical site. Hurston has passed on to this era many verses of her poetry and plays.

Gospel groups to entertain

January happenings will flow into February with many cultural evenings for gospel lovers. The Dixie Hummingbirds, well known gospel recording quartet, have performed around the world. This group has performed at Carnegie

SANFORD

MARVA HAWKINS

Hall, Madison Square Garden, and appeared in the Italian film "The World at Night." Old classics of the group include "In the Storm So Long," and "Nobody Knows the Trouble I see."

This quartet has reached the hearts of their audiences for over 60 years with the pure sound of traditional gospel music. The public is invited to attend their concert Sunday, Feb. 4, at 5 p.m., at the Seminole African-American Academy of Arts, 1017 W. 13th St. Tickets are $10 in advance, at the door, $12. This is an Act I production. Call 322-5219 for information and reservations.

The opening gospel group will be Sanford's newest quartet, The Christian-Aires, whose director/manager is Charles Jenkins.

Cultural heritage

Sanford will continue with events celebrating its black cultural heritage during the week of Feb. 7-9. Pastor R.T. Davis and "Alive in '96" with the Rev. Timothy Wright, gospel recording artist, Brooklyn, N.Y., will bring the message every evening at 7 p.m. The Sanford Workshop Community Choir and other area choirs will render the music to be held at Second Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, Airport Boulevard.

'Folklore' coming

Seminole African-American Academy of Arts, 1017 W. 13th St., will present "Folklore: Jagged Pieces of Black History - The African American" starting Sanford's own LaTressa Hawes with evening performances on Feb. 9, 10, 16, 17, 23 and 24 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults, $5 for children under 12. The director is Joseph Pinkney.

Dinner-dance

A Valentine dinner and dance will be presented by Seminole High School's START Class of '74, Feb. 10, 7 p.m., at the Sanford Woman's Club. The cost is $15 per person. Contact Mary DeRose at 322-0156 or Janice Perry at 322-6563 for reservations.

Revival continues

The revival continues into its third week at Word of Life Church of God in Christ, 700 E. 9th St. The revival will close after a month on Feb. 2. There are nightly meetings at 7:30 p.m. with Evangelist Erlene Brinson as speaker. Elder John Aaron Henderson is pastor.

Youth will be on parade at 11 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 28 at the Word of Life Church. Guest youth speaker will be Minister Roy Lawson. Dinner will be served after morning service. For information call 323-9048 or 328-7420.

Also, there will be a District Appreciation Service for Superintendent Alto Seoniers at Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ, 1405 Mangouline Ave. at 4 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 28. Dinner will be served after the service. Reporter is Sister Faye Henderson.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Monroe 'Monty' Davis

Elisabeth Brady, 'Monty' Davis exchange vows

SANFORD — In a typical Florida hammock among palms, pines and cypress trees, Elisabeth Priest Brady and Grover Monroe "Monty" Davis were married Saturday, Jan. 13, 1996. The new Mrs. Davis was reared in Sanford and chose her parents' woods as the scene of the ceremony. The groom is from Williston, S.C. where the couple will live.

The Rev. Carlton Scarborough, pastor of Pioneer Methodist Church, Lake Mary, presided and used appropriate scriptures at the brief and informal service concluding with the exchange of rings, and the singing of the Doxology by those present.

The couple was attended by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Priest of Sanford, the groom's mother, Mrs. Daisey Davis of Belvedere, S.C., and children of the bride, Jamey, Nancy, and Emily Ruth Brady of Williston.

The bride was attired in a winter white silk blouse with matching knitted vest embellished with a beaded snowflake design and a dark green skirt. The groom wore a cream mock-turtleneck shirt with a teal cardigan of Nordic design.

The bride is a graduate of Seminole High School, Sanford, Southern Methodist College, Orangeburg, S.C., and is presently a student at South Carolina State University, Orangeburg, working toward a degree in speech pathology.

The groom teaches chemistry and physics at Williston-Elko High School, Williston. He is a graduate of Duke University, Durham, N.C., where he earned a master's degree in forestry and environmental studies.

After the ceremony, the wedding party and a large group of family and friends met at the home of the bride's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Priest Jr. where they were served a wedding dinner.

Scouts hold Regatta; CIA installs

In an age of jets and motors, Boy Scout Pack 242's Raingutter Regatta uses the oldest form of boat power known to man. Wind power. Of course, at an indoor event, you can't rely on Mother Nature, so every entrant had to supply his own wind for the event held at Lake Mary Elementary School.

Each boy made his sailboat out of styrofoam. Then they painted, decorated and put the sails on. When the official starter said "Go," each boy would blow with all his might on his sail. After several heats, there were three winners. In first place, Bobby Lukens, second place, Chris Manikowski and in third, John Ardito.

Awards were also given for Most Original Design, Best Looking and Best Effort. Members of the Lake Mary Camera Club, on hand to take casual pictures for Olde Lake Mary Days, volunteered to help with the judging of these three events. The Most Original awards went to Michael Meador, Garrett Juras and Josh Swearingen. Best Looking went to Timmy Sanders, Jason Kittle and Steven Sanders. Best Effort went to Shawn Campbell, John Ardito and Will Quimtow.

CIA installs

The Lake Mary CIA (Community Improvement Association) held its first meeting of the new year on Monday, Jan. 22. After attending to some old business and a little new business, the CIA proceeded with the installation of new officers. John Montgomery swore in the officers. The new officers are: Sheila Sawyer, president; Vern Fedderson, first vice president; Mary Ellen Hawkinson, second vice president; Lois Jackson, secretary; and Millie Murray, Rosella Bonham and Jean Robinson as directors.

After the swearing in, Sheila took the helm and introduced the speaker for the evening, Anne Ruddle of the International Cultural Exchange Services. ICES is an organization that finds host families for foreign exchange students. The purpose of the foreign exchange program is to bring students here to learn about our culture and for the host families and students they attend school with, to learn about their culture. It also helps the exchange students perfect their English and get a better education. Anne also believes that this program is a bridge of peace.

Anne herself hosts students. She told the CIA about one very memorable student. Five years ago, Anne found out her husband was terminally ill. It was close to Christmas, so she offered to send her Danish exchange student home because she knew things were going to be difficult. He refused to go. He told Anne he was here to be part of a family, even in rough times. The student helped Anne nurse her husband through his final days. He held her hand at the funeral. And although he was not the son of her body, he became the son of her heart. He still comes to see Anne once a year and Anne has been to Denmark and met his family.

If you're interested in hosting a student, you can call Anne Ruddle at 332-8559 or Mary Beth Kritsky at 323-7958.

In closing the meeting, Sheila announced that the CIA will be participating in Olde Lake Mary Days again this year. The CIA will have a booth selling hamburgers, hot dogs and soft drinks. Sheila also stated that one of her goals for the year was to increase membership in the CIA.

Christian Sharing Center observes 10th anniversary

In May, 1986, 16 local churches founded the South Seminole Christian Sharing Center to help families in need by preventing the duplication of services and the resulting dependency versus independence. These churches agreed to finance this agency and to provide volunteers, food and clothing to "anyone" in need. Ten years later, the South Seminole Christian Sharing Center (SSCSC) boasts of 60 churches being affiliated with the center, providing financial support sponsoring periodic food drives and the necessary volunteers to fulfill the needs of the center.

The figures for the 1995 year have been published, and the SSCSC has served 4,066 needy families with 9,020 bags of food at a cost of $135,295; $46,180 worth of clothing has been distributed, and over $2,000 in miscellaneous items have been distributed since last July when the Thrift Store was opened. The SSCSC also aided 106 families with shelter, 142 families with utilities, 82 with prescriptions, and 68 with gas, just to name a few of the major items that are provided by the center. Other families are being assisted by the Care Couple Program, a program which assists families by providing moral support or teaching skills that will help the families to become independent. In all, the special people of South Seminole County donated 21,171 volunteer hours in 1995. This does not include the financial support of the many churches, individuals, businesses, and various civic groups who worked hard all year to make a financial contribution without which the SSCSC could not operate. The goal of the SSCSC is to support each family in need to become a fully independent and productively functioning member of society.

Each year the SSCSC sponsors a "Penny Drive," the proceeds used to purchase turkeys for needy families on Thanksgiving and Christmas. This past year, the SSCSC collected $3,881 in pennies. The Heathrow Elementary School collected and donated $987.59, and the School Spirit Committee (founded by former principal, Ted Barker) of Greenwood Lakes Middle School collected and donated $558.14 for the holiday turkeys. The Thrift Store, "Values Reborn," managed by Sam Deputy, has been an extremely successful addition to the South Seminole Christian Sharing Center in the 1995 year. Currently the volunteers at the Thrift Store are representative of 30 area churches. Volunteers donate between 1,200 and 1,300 hours of their time to the Thrift Store each month. Volunteers include Sunday School classes, youth groups, women's and/or men's organizations, individuals looking for scholarship academic credit, and, of course, individual volunteers. If you are interested in being included in this great group of friendly people, call Sam Deputy, manager of "Values Reborn," at 332-0925. The Thrift Store is also interested in any good usable merchandise for resale. The store cannot repair broken equipment, furniture or appliances and these items become a liability, a cost, when trying to dispose of unusable items. The SSCSC kindly requests that items to be donated not be dropped off at the Thrift Store if no one is there to receive them. It is against fire and lease regulations to have items stored outside the building and the agency could be fined which turns a gift into an expense for the agency. If you are interested in donating items to the Thrift Store, store hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and may be delivered directly to the store at 600 N. Highway 17-92 in the Fairmont Plaza in Longwood (North of State Road 434 and South of State Road 427 on the west side of the highway).

Another means of supporting your South Seminole Christian Sharing Center is by direct donation. Several companies have adopted a policy of matching funds that their employees make to the SSCSC. Avon Products, Kmart Corporation, Tandy Corporation, Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc., Montgomery Ward & Company, Inc. are just a few of the many companies that have instituted this policy. Check with your company and learn if your employer may be interested in initiating this program or have this donation arrangement in place already.

At present, special needs of the South Seminole Christian Sharing Center include: canned or packaged meals, tuna, spaghetti sauce, canned fruit or soup, sugar, flour, powdered milk, rice, noodles, jelly, coffee, tea, toothpaste and toothbrushes, paper towels, toilet paper, large diapers, deodorant, sanitary napkins, and any other personal item. Call 332-0925 to make arrangements.

the center at 260-9155 or the Thrift Shop at 332-0925.

Garden club meeting

Sweetwater Oaks Garden Club will hold its regular meeting on Feb. 12 at 9:30 a.m., at the Sweetwater Oaks Community Center. The program will be a success story presented by Carol Dolan, entitled, "Where There's A Will, There's A Way." For further information call Gretchen Smith at 869-6762.

Volunteers in the Values Reborn Thrift Shop of the SSCSC are (from left): Dora Young, Alta Barden, Martha Edom, Betty Jahnkow, Noreen Sardano and Rita Stevers.

Modern day pirate's digs now displayed at museum

By SUSAN WENNER Herald Staff Writer

Frank Ridgway searches for buried treasure with a metal detector.

SANFORD — Some have referred to Frank Ridgway as a modern day pirate. His hobby of searching for buried treasure with metal detector, sifter and small shovel in hand leads to many a relic or antique.

Some of Ridgway's finds are now displayed at the Seminole County Museum in Sanford. As a member of an archeological society, he is made aware of upcoming digs or more opportunities to uncover history.

One piece of property passed a medley of specimens. "I was working at a house site," said Ridgway. "It dated back to the 1820s. I was told it was a cattle ranch. I found molds from bullets. The family that lived there had made buttons. I found some of those along with coins and tokens. Some items were close to 107 years old. I was trying to find jewelry and coins."

Ridgway also travels to Indian sites to search for added treasures. "I have a homemade sifter," he said. "It's a wood box that's about two by two and has a wire mesh screen on it."

He cited that the oldest items he possesses range in age from 1,200 years and up. Pieces such as arrowheads and pottery were named as those discovered at the Indian site.

I've found toys, bullets, military things, tokens and civil war items. It's relaxing and exciting to find all these things."

Ridgway doesn't stop his collection with antiques. He also has a card collection ranging from sports and non-sports cards.

He and his wife, Dawn, share four children, Shanna, Donald, Brandon and Brittany. They have lived in Sanford for two years.

one more. "I am now trying to get some of the older science fiction cards."

Ridgway is an employee of Sears Roebuck and Peat Control and works as a termite specialist.

He and his wife, Dawn, share four children, Shanna, Donald, Brandon and Brittany. They have lived in Sanford for two years.

Daughter's time with parents is filled with pain and regret

DEAR ABBY: My mother is very hard to talk to, but she reads your column faithfully, so maybe she will recognize herself. Mother wonders why I enjoy spending so much time with my in-laws. Here are a few reasons:

My in-laws do not criticize me every time they see me. They don't say I look fat, my clothes are not appropriate or my hairstyle is outdated. My in-laws don't point out everything I do wrong with my children; they say I'm doing a good job and I should be proud of myself. (I am.)

My in-laws understand when I have to split holidays between them and my parents. They actually enjoy spending time with their grandchildren — attending ball games, school plays and kids' birthday parties, and they don't act like it's a burden or an annoyance to baby-sit. Most of all, they listen when I talk.

Abby, I would give anything to have a good relationship with my chance that your mother misses this column, it might be a good idea for you to read it to her. She needs to hear from you how hurt you are... and why.

DEAR ABBY: Your Clovis reader's mother-in-law had the right idea when she had everyone sign and date the holiday tablecloth.

My parents do the same, and every time a special family dinner occurs, the tablecloth is spread! New guests add their names and the date. (No fair signing twice!)

You should see it now! I'm more embarrassed than white, and it's a delight to reminisce over 30 years of family reunions.

KEITH ENSMINGER, MERCED, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: A Mrs. Bierstein wrote about her wonderful life in a retirement center, and you responded that in several European countries, similar facilities were available to most seniors at little or no cost. That is true, and it would be wonderful if we could have them too, but please tell the other side of the story.

In such countries, average people pay about half their income in taxes, some medical treatments are denied due to cost, medical advancements seldom keep pace with ours, and their governments are drowning in seas of red ink — even more than our own government. Simply put, "There isn't any free lunch." Sign me... TEXAS TAXPAYER

HOROSCOPE

Your Birthday

Sunday, Jan. 28, 1996

In the year ahead you will not seek accolades from others because your achievements will speak for themselves. Your status and reputation will be augmented. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should do well in commercial dealings today if you let common sense dictate your mode of action. Try to keep everything short and sweet. Aquarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not do things halfway today if you want to accomplish something important. Success is indicated if you bring all of your forces into play simultaneously. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something of considerable value that has eluded you for some time looks like it might be added to your possessions shortly. Today could be the day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) At this time, it will be important to make efforts to keep old friendships intact. Try to touch base today with pals you neglected recently. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Opportunities might enable you to fulfill a secret ambition today. However, if you're not perceptive, they might go unnoticed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Help a friend who will seek counsel or advice today because you might learn something from what you teach him or her. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you might wonder if someone close to you has your best interest at heart. The answer is yes. Do not hesitate to trust this person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Have faith in your judgment today and don't let associates influence your judgment in regard to a matter you have carefully analyzed from every angle. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take matters into your own hands today to change things in an arrangement that is not working to your advantage. Do not let capriciousness dictate your actions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something of consequence might result from a social encounter today. Make sure to be pleasant to everyone you meet. This should include familiar faces. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This will be a good day to catch up on a domestic responsibility you've neglected

WIN AT BRIDGE

It's still rule one

By Phillip Alder

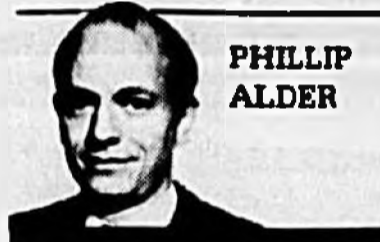

No matter how many new conventions are devised and suit combinations are analyzed, there is one thing on which everyone agrees: To play bridge well, you must count.

In today's auction, two no-trump was the Jacoby Forcing Raise.

Against six spades, West led the diamond queen. South won in hand with the ace and cleverly cashed the club ace: two, three, four. Then he played a spade to dummy's ace, East dropping the queen. Next came the diamond king, the diamond seven ruffed in hand, and two heart tricks ending in hand. Finally, South exited with a low club.

Many Wests would put in the 10 and find that an "impossible" contract had succeeded. East would have to win with the club queen and concede a ruff-and-discard, on which declarer's second club loser disappears.

BRIDGE

PHILLIP ALDER

However, from the play, it was clear that South had started with six spades, two hearts, two diamonds and therefore, three clubs. If these were A-Q-x, South, after cashing the ace, would have led a club toward his queen. The contract would make any time East had either the king or doubleton jack 10, or when West had the singleton or doubleton king.

So, East was marked with the club queen. And it was now alone. Therefore, West rose with the club king, a classic crocodile coup, to swallow his partner's queen. Then he cashed the club jack to defeat the contract.

Yes, East should have thrown away the club queen at trick two, in case South started with A-J-x, but here West could save his partner from himself.
