When the great Bronko Nagurski played football for the Chicago Bears, one of the end zone signs came down in front of the Chicago dugout. One Sunday, the Bears were on the three yard line. They really needed the score badly, so they naturally sent the Bronko to the line. Nagurski brought his big plant legs up and over. Head lowered, he ran right through the opposition. Then he kept going. He reached the rail of the dugout where he tumbled down 87 feet onto the concrete floor. Nagurski's teammates ran over to pick him up. One of them asked, "Gee, Bronko, didn't you get hurt?" The Bronko brushed himself off and said, "Now, but that last guy sure hit me hard."

Along with the vast destructive forces created by discovery of the atomic bomb principle have come equally great potential benefits to mankind. These are evident particularly in the realms of medicine and industry.

More Merry-Go-Round

I can't make up my mind about Drew Pearson. Is he hero or villain of the piece in the matter of soldier dissatisfaction overseas? In his vastly privileged position as owner of the biggest audience in the world he has played up to our men who are still under arms in ways that have made him the idol of many of them but which may have been responsible for much trouble.

It is in the nature of our foreign policy and of the wars we have won that we have got to have armies overseas for a time and that many of our men over there are going to have to wait for their return home.

One thing is true, and this matter of Mr. Pearson and the more-or-less returning soldiers underscores it. Veterans of this war, even more than of the other, are going to need not only champions but people who will champion them against some of the champions.

The returned veteran will need to make demands, for sure, but in the interest of his wounded comrade and the families of the dead, he will need to stand guard against many who will be demanding things in his name.

Roosevelt Island In Mid-Potomac To Be National Park

ALEXANDER R. GEORGE, AP Newsfeatures Writer, WASHINGTON. A wilderness island, within a mile of the White House, will take its place this year among the world's most distinctive memorials.

Officials of the National Park Service say they hope that Theodore Roosevelt Island (formerly Anacostan Island) in the Potomac river will be ready for limited use by the public some time next summer.

The 75-acre forest island, close to the heart of a teeming modern capital but with itsylvan solitude accessible solely by boat, is considered a particularly suitable memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, who was an ardent woodman and naturalist.

The island is a sort of gateway to the territory along the Potomac where President T.R. took his favorite tramping trips. It lies between the Francis Scott Key Bridge and the Memorial Bridge and is directly opposite the mouth of Rock Creek.

A simple Roosevelt memorial plaque will be placed on a wooded plateau at the southern end of the island. This plateau affords fine views of the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and Arlington National Cemetery with its tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

A ferry will take visitors to the southern shore of the island. On the northern shore there will be a dock for canoes and small boats. No automobiles or other vehicles will be allowed on the island.

Anacostan island was purchased by the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Association for $364,000 and presented to the nation in 1902. The plan for its development as a primeval forest was made by Frederick Law Olmsted, landscape architect of Brookline, Mass. For some years the National Park Service and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission have been developing the island under Olmsted's general direction, planting upwards of 10,000 trees and shrubs. The idea of the Roosevelt Memorial association is that a development along lines similar to the primeval forest of the Potomac Valley be carried on for generations, and possibly centuries. Among the better known trees on the island are red and white oak, ash, hickory, sycamore, Virginia dogwood, and the hawthorn.

Anacostan Island has a romantic history. It was inhabited by a small tribe of Indians in the 17th century when King Charles II granted a charter to Lord Baltimore giving him domain over the province of Maryland. The island became a part of the District of Columbia when Maryland ceded acreage for the formation of the district.

In 1717 it came into the possession of George Mason, father of George Mason of Gunston Hall, signer of the Declaration of Independence and the author of the famous Bill of Rights. The latter willed the island to his son, Gen. John Mason, who built a brick

Farm Would Tell Of Assorted Times If It Could Talk

By CHARLES NUTTER, AP NEWSFEATURES. FULTON, Mo.— If a farm could talk it often could tell many a story of good times and bad, happy owners and unhappy ones, prosperity, desolation, abandonment and ruin.

This is the story of a 200-acre farm near Fulton which now is back in the hands of the same government which turned it over to pioneer homesteaders in 1832. It is a story which multiplied by thousands of similar cases of prosperity to ruin in a century becomes nationally significant.

The Boswells of this farm are local government conservationists who have traced out its history. A little over a century ago the farm, known as the Adecock place, was covered with timber. It passed from government to private ownership in five tracts from 1832 to 1851, and was homesteaded by local western pioneer in 1851.

Value Climbs To $15,000. Adecock sold the farm in 1933 for $5,200 and it was sold again in 1944 to John C. Hansen for $45,000. At that time only 50 acres had been cleared, another 100 acres before 1909, when he sold it for $10,000 to John C. Douglas.

Douglas, just married and striking out on his own, built a solid four-room house and farm, a place well specializing in livestock. The Douglases had the farm paid for in 1919 when after two children had been born on the farm, they sold it for $12,000, and moved to town. The new owner, Fred Selby, sold it for $16,000 to John C. Douglas.

Land prices then were at a peak just following the first world war. They were too high, and soon began causing trouble. The farm was put in the hands of tenants, who cropped it very heavily, and soon the land showed the abuse. Yields dropped. Soil began washing away. The owner was killed in an accident and in 1931 the farm found itself on the courthouse steps in the hands of the sheriff, who sold it for $2,000. A familiar tragedy—this fate is well known to too many midwestern farmers who paid too much for land around 1920.

Sometime between 1932 and 1939 J. C. Smith bought the farm for $290, plus some court costs and taxes. In 1937 the place was abandoned, the land grew up in weeds and the gullies washed deeper as life giving top-soil disappeared. The buildings were vacant and improvements fell into an abandoned and dilapidated state. Another picture well known to the midwest.

In 1939 came the crowning blow—the farm was listed as submarginal, meaning it was impossible without rehabilitation to sustain farming operations profitably there. The government bought it for $1,250, less than 10 per cent of what it sold for 19 years earlier.

The Long Road Back. The land was washed up into the Cedar Creek forest and pasture project of the Soil Conservation Service, which has been struggling for six years to reclaim the soil. Some progress has been made and about 20 per cent already has been spent on the reclaiming operations, but the development is painfully slow.

Fertilizer, lime and soil building crops and grass have been used extensively, and the land now is being rented at $3 an acre for grazing purposes.

Farmers who bought the land are working the operations with some skepticism. "You can get grass to grow on wornout land, but it won't stay," one veteran remarked. "The trouble is getting real sod. The sod is the thing."

They were too high, and soon began causing trouble. The farm was put in the hands of tenants, who cropped it very heavily, and soon the land showed the abuse. Yields dropped. Soil began washing away. The owner was killed in an accident and in 1931 the farm found itself on the courthouse steps in the hands of the sheriff, who sold it for $2,000. A familiar tragedy—this fate is well known to too many midwestern farmers who paid too much for land around 1920.

Celery Fed Girls Demolish Jackets In 39 To 9 Tilt

Helen Bowen, Marie Pezold Set Scoring Pace For Locals

Miss Jesse Durden's high scoring Celery Fed girls basketball squad extended their string of victories to four yesterday afternoon at the high school auditorium when they completely dominated the Leesburg High girls with a display of shooting accuracy that gathered them a 39 to 9 victory.

Helen Bowen continued her high scoring pace during the tilt when she recorded 12 points from six field goals. Marie Pezold, who went in the tilt in the second half, was second in scoring honors with four field goals and two free shots for ten points.

While holding the Jackets to a single point in the opening quarter on a free shot by Conley, the Feds gathered in eight points on two field goals by Helen Bowen and single field goals by Johnny Mae Bowen and Dot Crumley.

In the second stanza, Helen Bowen accounted for three field goals, Johnny Mae Bowen recorded another and Crumley repeated with another. Johnny Mae also sank a free throw.

While scoring their 11 points, however, the Feds held the Jackets to only four points. Newell dropped in a basket and White did likewise.

The Fed defensive machine continued to operate effectively in the third period as the Jackets accounted for only two points on a field goal by Newell. Sanford continued their scoring pace when Pezold sent three field goals through the hoop and also a free shot. Yarborough accounted for two rapid field goals and Hagan sank a field shot.

In the four period, Pezold accounted for a free shot and a field goal, Johnny Mae Bowen tossed another field goal through the net and Helen Bowen recorded a shot from the floor. Leesburg scoring was limited to two points in the final period, a field goal by Newell, who scored six of Leesburg's nine points.

Legion Auxiliary Head Fears Garden Will Be Neglected

AP Newsfeatures
 CHARLOTTE, N. C. — Mrs. Walter G. Craven, newly elected national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, brings to her new post a wealth of experience in legion work.

Unopposed choice for president of the Auxiliary at its convention in Chicago, Mrs. Craven can look back over 25 years of legion service—five of those years in the national hierarchy of the Auxiliary.

Modest but not retiring, she credits her selection to lead the Auxiliary's 700,000 members to "hard work." And she should know. She has been hard at it now for longer than she wants folks to know.

At the time of Pearl Harbor Mrs. Craven was North Carolina department president of the Auxiliary. When she completed her term in 1942, she became area chairwoman—chairman responsible for 13 states and Panama. In addition she served as national executive committee woman.

Her next step up in the Auxiliary was the vice-presidency of the Southern division, a position she held at the same time she was serving as assistant North Carolina director of Civilian Defense.

After that came her appointment as national child welfare chairman. "That is really my field," Mrs. Craven says of this Auxiliary responsibility. With experience as executive secretary of the Mecklenburg County chapter of the American Red Cross, child welfare work was right down her alley.

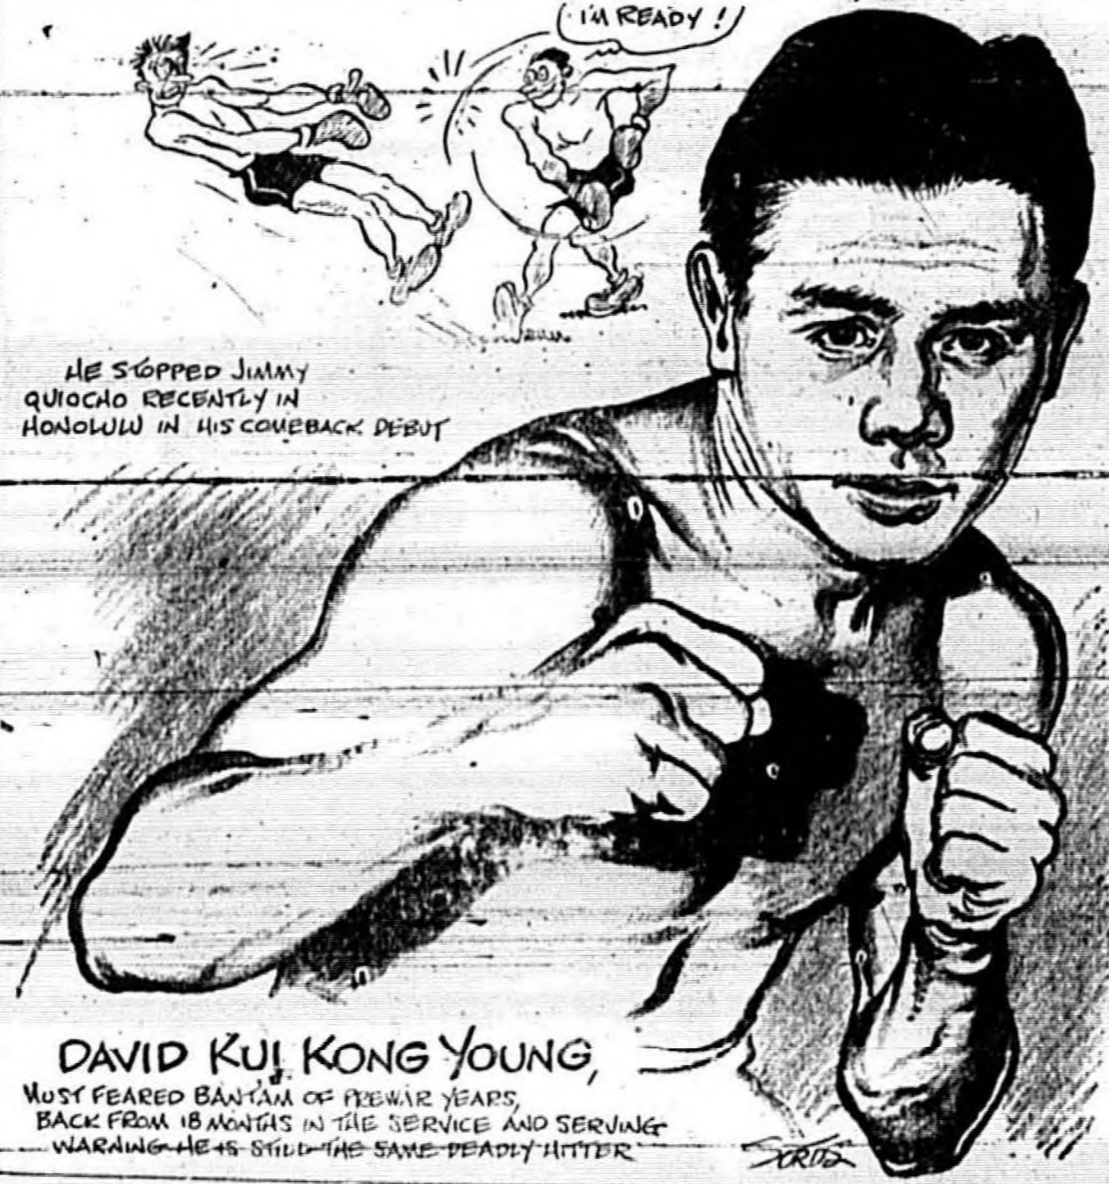

The national child welfare post came at the American Legion Auxiliary convention in the Fall of 1944. In the ensuing months she travelled the length and breadth of the continent, attending on one tour conferences in San Francisco, St. Louis, New Orleans, Philadelphia and Boston.

Taller than average, slim and dark haired, the new Auxiliary president observes:

Considering that the national Auxiliary presidency calls for considerable travel—with departments in all 48 states, Panama, Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii—there is a chance Mrs. Craven's travels will be neglected still further.

Clark And Dyess Lead Celery Feds To 38-25 Victory Over Leesburg

George McClelland's Semihole Celery Fed engers (wearing white T-Shirts, with lipstick numerals) found themselves running in perfect form yesterday afternoon and took advantage of their passing trick, Floyd Swain, Jan Jenkinson, and Anderson. Bowen also saw action during the quarter and had replaced Cullum on several earlier occasions.

Coach Ed Bruner's engers took advantage of this move and racked up five points in rapid order when Windram and Mahoney sank field goals and Mahoney later sank a free throw. McClelland brought his regulars back in the contest but Leesburg gathered in four more points before they could be stopped. Windram netted another field goal and Merrill dropped in a shot from the floor. Clark came through with a field goal from under the basket and Dyess scored on a fast break following an interception during the final quarter, sank three successive free shots and Anderson accounted for one to end the Fed scoring.

Clark was high man during the afternoon with six field goals and three free shots for a total of 15 points. Dyess was close behind him with 14 points which brought his total for the season to 71 points out of the total Fed scores of 133 points. Windram led the Jacket scores with eight points. Score by periods:
 Leesburg 8 3 5 9 25
 Sanford 9 10 11 8 38

Field Goals: (Leesburg) Windram 4, Merrill 1, Miller 1, Smith 1, Mahoney 2; (Sanford) Clark 6, Dyess 6, Kastner 2, Grantham 1.

Free Shots: (Leesburg) Mahoney 2, Knight 2, Merrill 1, Wink 1; (Sanford) Clark 3, Dyess 2, Kastner 2, Bowen 1. Free Throws Missed: (Leesburg) Windram 4, Smith 2, Mahoney 2, Knight 2, Miller 1, Wink 1; (Sanford) Clark 4, Kastner 2, Dyess 2, Grantham 1, Bowen 1. Personal Fouls: (Leesburg) Wink 1, Windram 1, Smith 3, Knight 2, Mahoney 4; (Sanford) Kastner 4, Kilpatrick 1, Grantham 4, Clark 1, Dyess 3, Cullum 4. Technical Fouls: Merrill (Leesburg); L. Orfiala; Referee, Richards; Timekeeper, Anderson, Scorer, Stenstrom.

Beginning the third quarter with a commanding lead of 19 to 11, the Fed machine continued their tight defensive play by holding the Jackets to a single field goal by Windram and free throws by Hermann Wink, Tom Merrill and Knight. During this period, however, the locals accounted for 11 points as Clark racked up two field goals along with Kastner while Grantham recorded a single free shot. Dyess only scored during the stanza was a free throw.

The tempo was Seminole 28, Leesburg 25.

Don Dyess, although he racked up 14 points but still was not high man for the afternoon, opened the scoring hostilities early in the evening stanza when he scored from the floor. Leesburg came back however, and Jim Mahoney knotted the count with a field goal. Harold Kastner placed the Feds back in the lead with a free shot but Alvin Miller of the Jackets knotted the score again with a free throw, and then put the Jackets into the lead with a field goal.

Verne Clark retaliated with a field goal and quickly followed with another. Tommy Windram came through with a field goal and after Dyess had dropped in his second basket of the period, Mahoney was fouled by Bobby Cullum and he sank his free shot.

Going into the second quarter with a 9 to 8 lead, Semihole began to break its margin and at the same time it tightened its defensive tactics well enough to hold the Jackets to three points during the entire period. Dyess exhibited his best offensive play during this period by sinking three field goals and a free shot. Clark sank a field goal and Kastner accounted for one point with a free shot. Jack Smith sank the only Jacket field goal while Lon Knight dropped in a free shot.

SLEEP ON A Sealy MATTRESS

Wake up feeling fresh and alert... enjoy sound, refreshing sleep... the kind that restores energy, builds health and keeps you young. The kind of sleep you get on a buoyant, restful SEALY mattress. You'll get years of real comfort service from this mattress that has been the choice of over three generations of users.

Sealy matching box springs—made like fine upholstered furniture—will add to the comfort and life of your Sealy mattress.
