Animal control position offered

SANFORD — Seminole County administrator Ken Hooper said today he will offer Ronald Lefebvre, former executive director of the Broward County Humane Society, the position of Animal Control Official — the department's director.

No salary has been negotiated for the position, Hooper said. He said Lefebvre has expressed a strong desire for the position and anticipates no complications with the county's annual salary range for the position of $25,000 to $36,893.

Hooper said he expects Lefebvre will be on the job in about two weeks. Lefebvre was executive director of the Broward Humane Society for nine years before resigning over conflicts with the organization's governing board.

Senate wants prison probe

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez and the Senate Corrections Committee chairman asked Wednesday for investigations into the policies that led to the recent release of an inmate accused of killing two policemen this week.

"Tragedies like the one in Miami must not be allowed to continue," Sen. Larry Plummer, D-Miami, Senate Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee chairman said of the shootings early Monday of the Metro-Dade County officers.

"That a man with a 20-page rap sheet and more than 20 documented violations while in prison can be released after serving little more than half his sentence is a travesty," said Plummer, holding a 5-foot computer printout he said documented Charles H. Street's criminal activity since 1980.

Gators win a close one

GAINESVILLE — The University of Florida basketball team overcame a nine-point halftime deficit Wednesday night to beat the Siena College Indians 71-67.

The Gators trailed by as much as 18 points early in the first half but managed to cut into the Indian lead and get back into the game by halftime.

Siena used the three-point line, sinking 13 in the game, to the Gators three. But the hot Indian shooting went cold in the second half and Florida was able to catch up.

Launch postponed

Dismal weather conditions leave Atlantis grounded until tomorrow

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The launch of the space shuttle Atlantis was postponed for the day Thursday because of dismal weather.

Atlantis, thought to be carrying a $500 million radar spy satellite in its cargo bay, had been scheduled to lift off on the 27th shuttle mission, the second since the Challenger disaster, at 6:59 a.m. EST Thursday, sources said.

But a cold front swept over the Kennedy Space Center early Thursday, apparently forcing NASA managers to delay liftoff in the hope that conditions would improve before the shuttle's "launch window" expired at 9:32 a.m.

The first of two final 10-minute "holds" in Atlantis's secret countdown was extended for 52 minutes, a source said, and a final hold at the T-minus 9-minute mark was extended as well, apparently because of weather concerns. NASA officials would not discuss the status of the countdown because the flight is a classified Department of Defense mission.

The mission was officially scrapped at 8:55 a.m.

Strapped in aboard the fully fueled shuttle were skipper Robert "Hoot" Gibson, 42, a Navy commander, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 40, and Richard "Mike" Mullane, 43, both Air Force colonels, Air Force Lt. Col. Jerry Ross, 40, and Navy Cmdr. William Shepherd, 39.

Extensive cloud cover blanketed the Kennedy Space Center as dawn broke and chief astronaut Daniel Brandenstein swooped over the shuttleport in a NASA jet to assess weather conditions.

The goal of the blacked-out military mission was widely reported to be the deployment of a giant radar surveillance satellite code-named "Lacrosse" capable of taking high-quality images of targets in the Soviet Union at night and through cloud cover.

Atlantis's countdown to launch on the 27th shuttle flight turned into a cliffhanger Wednesday with concern about bad weather and mechanical problems at the launch pad.

Despite concern about the weather, NASA managers decided to proceed with the countdown late Wednesday. Said NASA spokesman Richard Young prior to the postponement: "It's in the hands of the gods and the weathermen."

An earlier problem with two broken bolts needed to lock down a plate in Atlantis's nose section was resolved by gluing the "carrier panel" in place and shortly before fueling began, engineers reported the repair had worked.

Because of the military nature of the flight, the identity of the payload and the mission duration were classified to hamper Soviet efforts to learn details about Atlantis's satellite payload, forcing NASA to adopt a strict "no comment" policy.

The agency was not allowed to reveal the exact launch time until nine minutes before blastoff and the Air Force banned the release of any live television shots of the astronauts or communications between the crew and mission control at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

But sources said the shuttle's satellite payload was scheduled to be launched by Mullane on the second day of the mission at an altitude of about 240 miles after extensive checkout by military controllers at an Air Force ground station in Sunnyvale, Calif.

Gibson then planned to fly in formation with the satellite for several orbits, the sources said, until finally breaking off and pulling away.

If problems develop, however, Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine reported that the satellite's 150-foot-wide solar array and its radar antenna could be blown off, allowing the shuttle crew to pluck the spacecraft out of orbit for return to Earth.

Atlantis's flight, the orbiter's third, came two months after the shuttle Discovery successfully blasted off Sept. 29 on the first American manned space flight since the Challenger disaster.

Candidates say growth a key issue

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — How to cope with growth and promote development downtown are top priorities of all three candidates vying to succeed John Mercer as city commissioner representing the First District.

Two of the three believe the city needs to grow but the third wants the city to retain its smalltown image. They also differ on the proposed prison and marina fees, among other issues.

District 1 includes the northern part of the city between Mellonsville Avenue and the western city limits and the downtown area. Mercer is not seeking reelection.

The candidates are James Sweeting III, an attorney; Jay Malone, a banker and member of the Planning and Zoning Commission; and Lon Howell, a district manager for a boot company.

All the candidates believe more should be done to promote the downtown commercial area and to attract business and industry to the city.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Lottery profits to be less than expected

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Lottery will not generate as much money in the next two years as predicted, but revenues will increase annually and booming first-year sales will offset the shortfall, officials said Wednesday.

Lottery spokesman Ed George also said Lotto ticket sales have shown little decline because of relatively low jackpots over the last month. George predicted sales would inch upward with this week's $18 million grand prize.

Lottery profits for this year will be greater than expected, state economist Pam Johnson said, because of the tremendous success of Lotto. But because of smaller-than-expected CASH 3 and Instant Winner sales, economists have lowered their projection of profits over the next two fiscal years.

Six months ago, the Joint Legislative Management Committee projected 1988-89 lottery revenues of $890 million. Tuesday, Johnson and other committee economists said this year's revenues should actually be about $1.4 billion.

"When we did those last figures, the on-line games (Lotto and CASH 3) had started only about three or four days before," Johnson said. "We had no information on how the people of Florida were going to respond to the on-line games."

Lotto sales, boosted by record-setting jackpots, far exceeded what had been expected. Economists who originally thought Lotto would take in $255.9 million this budget year said Tuesday that figure would actually be closer to $832 million.

Court rejects stay of execution

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court refused today to stay the execution of Michael Lambrix, scheduled to die Friday for the 1983 death of a man and woman in Glades County.

The court declined to grant Lambrix' motion for post-conviction relief and also issued an order barring any motion for a rehearing.

Lambrix, who is on his first death warrant, was scheduled to die Wednesday, but the court extended the execution date until noon Friday to hear his petition for post-conviction relief.

No death row inmate has been executed on a first warrant since Florida resumed capital punishment in the late 1970s.

Grant wants Democratic summit

TALLAHASSEE — Rep. Bill Grant, D-Fla., said Wednesday he wanted a summit meeting of Florida Democratic leaders to discuss the party's declining political fortunes.

"The loss of a U.S. Senate seat, two U.S. House seats and two Cabinet seats have left Democrats all over our state concerned and confused about the future strength of our party," Grant said in a letter to Charlie Whitehead, chairman of the state Democratic party.

"Clearly, the Florida Democratic Party is at a crossroads," Grant said.

Democrats are losing the stranglehold they once had on state politics. In November's elections, Republicans placed two members on the Cabinet for the first time since Reconstruction, won a U.S. Senate seat and cut the Democrats' congressional lead to 10-9.

Hit-and-run case to remain closed

WEST PALM BEACH — A Palm Beach County judge has ruled that a lawyer has no right to inspect the state attorney's file in connection with a hit-and-run accident.

Attorney Joseph Farish, representing the victim's parents, asked Circuit Court Judge Timothy Poulton to force Palm Beach County State Attorney David Bludworth to open his files into the accident that killed Mark Ballin in 1986. Bludworth has said the case remains under investigation.

William Morser, a Delray Beach restaurant owner, surrendered to police Nov. 6 and was charged with leaving the scene of an accident. His identity had remained secret for 2 1/2 years.

Poulton said Tuesday Florida laws "make it clear that the information sought is exempt from the Public Records Act while the criminal charges against Mr. Morser are pending."

Most of Bludworth's file will become available during a pretrial discovery hearing, Poulton said.

Red Ribbon anti-drug campaign funded

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez on Wednesday sent $212,000 in federal anti-drug funds to Florida Informed Parents for a statewide, Red Ribbon "Just Say No" educational campaign.

Martinez said the campaign, which he will co-chair with his wife, Mary Jane, would help educate children and parents about the dangers of drugs.

Martinez chose the private, non-profit group to administer the program because of its prior efforts in anti-drug activities.

"Through this program, we can combine the resources of state government with the energy and grassroots support of a strong volunteer organization like Florida Informed Parents to create a drug-free generation in Florida," he said.

Martinez acknowledged the state has many other pressing needs for anti-drug funds, notably an overwhelming shortage of treatment facilities for addicts seeking drug rehabilitation.

Prison policies to be probed

Governor, senate leader call for investigation

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez and the Senate Corrections Committee chairman asked Wednesday for investigation into the policies that led to the recent release of an inmate accused of killing two policemen this week.

"Tragedies like the one in Miami must not be allowed to continue," Sen. Larry Plummer, D-Miami, Senate Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee chairman said of the shootings early Monday of the Metro-Dade County officers.

"That a man with a 20-page 'rap' sheet and more than 30 documented violations while in prison can be released after serving little more than half his sentence is a travesty," said

Plummer, holding a 5-foot computer printout he said documented Charles H. Street's criminal activity since 1980.

Street, 34, was charged Tuesday with first-degree murder in the deaths of officers David S. Alkowitz, 24, and Richard Boles, 41. The officers were disarmed and killed while answering a disturbance call at a trailer park north of Miami.

A memorial service for the slain officers was held Wednesday evening in Hollywood.

Street was released Nov. 18 after serving eight years of a 15-year sentence for attempted first-degree murder in the 1980 shooting of a suspected drug dealer in West Palm Beach.

Police said Street had a history of criminal offenses dating back to 1972 and prison officials said he was cited for more than 30 violations of prison rules while serving his sentence.

Martinez sent a letter Wednesday to Corrections Secretary Richard L. Dugger, ordering him to conduct a "complete investigation" into the decision to release Street and file a report no later than Dec. 2.

"Charlie Street, despite a history of violence both in and out of prison, was released just 10 days before his arrest on charges of killing two brave police officers and I demand to know how this could happen," Martinez wrote.

Plummer said he would begin public hearings next week in Tallahassee that would focus on the administrative gain-time program that led to Street's release, but said there are a number of issues relating to the state prison system that must be addressed.

The gain-time program allows inmates to have their sentences shortened by one day for each three days they spend in prison.

Street had completed 3,025 days — about 55 percent — of his sentence when he was released. Most inmates serve about 38 percent of their sentence, officials said.

"I think we need to re-evaluate" the gain-time program, Plummer said. "In my estimation, (it) needs to go back to zero and start again."

Plummer said the hearings also would look at sources of revenue for the construction of new prisons, the use of electronic collars to keep non-violent inmates under strict house arrest and longer prison sentences for violent offenders.

"I think this is not going to be a one-item approach," he said. "It is going to be multi-faceted."

Florida is under federal court order to keep its prison population down.

University opposes east turnpike route

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Formal opposition to the proposed eastern corridor of the Jacksonville-to-Tampa turnpike has been raised by University of Florida president Marshall Criser.

In a letter Tuesday to Kaye Henderson, secretary of the Florida Department of Transportation, Criser said the university was against the toll road because environmentally sensitive areas "would be literally destroyed" by its construction.

The four-lane extension passes directly through the central part of the university's Ordway Preserve and an adjacent plot of land, the Swisher Memorial Sanctuary, that UF also administers, Criser said. The two preserves contain about 9,000 acres of undisturbed wetlands and lakes connected to regional water tables.

"These ecosystems have been relatively undisturbed since the 1930s and provide an irreplaceable resource for evaluating the impact of Florida's growth upon our critical natural resources," Criser said. "This resource and current research programs would be literally destroyed by the proposed Eastern Corridor of this toll facility."

He said the proposed limited-access road would permanently disrupt vital educational and ecological activities at the Ordway/Swisher tract, which is located about 25 miles northeast of the UF campus in Gainesville.

The turnpike would disrupt research ranging from endangered species to water management and Florida would lose information critical to resolving many environmental and natural resource issues, Criser said.

In a separate letter to Gov. Bob Martinez, Criser acknowledged that the university recognizes the need to prepare for Florida's future transportation needs, but he urged the Department of Transportation to avoid the Ordway Preserve.

"This is truly an important and sensitive ecosystem for all of Florida," he said. "It is an irreplaceable resource to all of Florida."

Baker prepares giant doughnut

United Press International

CRYSTAL RIVER — Baker Ed Sanderson hopes to raise money for abused and neglected children and secure a place in the Guinness book of World Records by creating a 30-foot doughnut.

Sanderson, who owns 3 Little Bakers shop in Crystal River, said Wednesday that he is preparing for the 24-hour marathon effort scheduled for Dec. 9 and Dec. 10.

Sanderson, 37, said he is putting up a tent at a local Chevrolet dealership to build the giant ring-shaped cake on a 35-foot round table.

"It's a one-man process. We'll make it in a 20-by-20 inch fryer," he said, adding 1,100 slabs of dough will be stacked 3 inches high and stuck together with lemon filling.

The entire creation will be sprinkled with white confectionary sugar.

Sanderson said he will sell parts of the doughnut with proceeds going for the Citrus County Foster Parents Association.

"It's the third year in a row that I've been doing this for abused and neglected children," said the father of three children.

He said last year's 21.5-foot, 2,219-pound doughnut helped raise $3,000 and a pickup truck full of Christmas presents for foster children.

Sanderson adopted foster children as a cause when there wasn't enough money in their fund to celebrate Christmas. This year he said he hopes to raise between $5,000 and $10,000 and said he already has raised $1,500 for the effort.

Sanderson said Guinness officials are expected to create a new category for him. "They know I'm serious about this."

He said Guinness maintains a category for pastries, but since doughnuts are fried instead of baked, his efforts require another heading.

Congressional leader urges Bush to reveal budget

United Press International

BOCA RATON — President-elect George Bush should submit his deficit reduction plan to Congress before taking office to avoid a potential stalemate that could lead to an economic downturn, a key congressional leader said Wednesday.

Rep. William H. Gray, D-Pa., also told members of the Securities Industry Association that he is skeptical the deficit can be reduced without new sources of revenue.

But Gray, the chairman of the House Committee on the Budget, said Congress will be reluctant to take the lead in finding new sources of money. "I am skeptical about our ability to do everything we need to do without new revenues," Gray said.

Gray said those needs include a solution to the nation's savings and loan crisis — a problem he said may cost up to $100 billion to resolve — as well as additional monies for education, drug interdiction and the environment.

"It is probably going to take some fiscal restraint as well as potentially some revenue," he said. "However, do not expect Congress to lead on the revenue question."

Gray, in a 30-minute address, said the budget plan submitted Jan. 9 to Congress by the Reagan administration should reflect Bush's strategy.

He noted that Bush is the first sitting vice president in 132 years to assume the presidency.

"I would urge the new administration to take advantage of this opportunity for continuity," Gray said. "I believe that if the administration does not submit a budget, it will lead to a stalemate — rather than a solution of the basic problem of the domestic deficit."

Although Gray urged early submission of Bush's proposals, he expressed skepticism about the president-elect's plans for tackling the deficit problem.

"We have read his lips, we now want to read his program," Gray told reporters during a news conference following his speech. "I am skeptical that the numbers will all add up to do these things without additional revenue."

Bush vowed during the campaign not to raise taxes, urging voters to "read my lips."

Gray labeled as myths the notion that economic growth alone will eliminate the deficit or that a budget freeze could accomplish the task.

"We are not going to grow our way out of these deficits," Gray told the securities group. "The idea that a freeze will solve the problem and not cause any pain is, I believe, not realistic."

Man accused of kidnap, rape

LONGWOOD — Longwood police report charging a 30-year-old man with kidnapping, sexual battery and aggravated assault after he allegedly raped a woman in his yard and in his truck.

Lee Thomas Anderson, 30, of 881 E. Orange Ave., Longwood, was arrested at home at about 8:13 a.m. Wednesday.

A woman told police she was walking on North Street at County Road 427, rural Altamonte Springs, at about 2 a.m. Wednesday when a man stopped and offered her a ride home. She accepted, but said the man drove to Anderson's address after brandishing a knife and demanding sex. The woman said she was forced to disrobe and get out of the truck, where she was assaulted twice while held on the ground at knifepoint.

The attacker held a knife on the woman and threatened to kill her, police reported. She said after she and the man got back into his truck they dressed and he assaulted her again. After that attack he dropped his knife and she fled to a neighbor's house. Police arrived and went to Anderson's house where he was arrested. He is held without bond.

Police: cocaine overdose caused death

CASSELBERRY — Casselberry police report that a 22-year-old woman found dead at home Thanksgiving morning died as the result of a cocaine overdose.

Lt. Durbin Gatch said the Seminole County medical examiner who performed the autopsy on Peggy Samamo, of 531 Lilac Road, reported her lungs were congested and she had a lethal dose of cocaine in her system.

The death is considered accidental, Gatch said.

Woman arrested for littering

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputy William McNett reported jailing a woman for littering after he saw her drop a small piece of white and gold paper on the ground.

Cynthia Ann Hillery, 28, of 2371 Water St., Sanford, was arrested in front of 2331 Sipes Ave., at 12:37 a.m. today. McNett said he stopped Hillery after she dropped the paper and reported that she became "arrogant and abusive," and told him she knew it was illegal to litter. He reported she asked him about all the drug pushers on the street.

McNett told Hillery to put her hands on his patrol car so he could frisk her "for weapons for my safety."

Hillery told McNett he couldn't touch her and told him to get a female officer to search her. She said she knew her rights, he reported. At that point Hillery was arrested and jailed. Bond is $100.

Man arrested for beating boy

OVIDO — A man whom Oviedo police report battered his girlfriend's son with a switch made of tree limbs bound together is charged with aggravated battery.

Oviedo firefighters documented that a 13-year-old boy had welts on the back of his legs following the reported battery which occurred at his house at about 9:45 p.m. Wednesday.

The boy told police his mother had asked her boyfriend, Louis Smith, 34, of 71 Stephen St., Oviedo, to discipline him. The boy said at one point he was held down on the floor with Smith's knee against his throat.

Smith was arrested at home at 11 p.m. The state department of Health and Rehabilitative Services was notified of the incident.

Bond for Smith is $5,000.

Committee reaches road agreement

Three jurisdictions agree on Lake Mary Boulevard financing, codes

By SANDRA BOUGHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY -- An aesthetically designed Lake Mary Boulevard came another step closer to reality last night when a committee reached agreement on land development codes and financing.

The Lake Mary Boulevard Corridor Study committee is a cross-section of developers, planners, residential representatives and city officials from Lake Mary, Seminole County and Sanford.

Randall Morris, committee chairman, said, "I was very pleased three jurisdictions could reach an agreement. Basically, it's a real, good plan."

The boulevard runs through the jurisdiction of the three governmental bodies from Markham Woods Road to U.S. Highway 17-92.

The first phase of its widening, involving six lanes between the I-4 interchange at Lake Mary to Rinehart Road, is expected to begin next year.

The Lake Mary Boulevard Model Gateway Concept focuses on landscaping, building setbacks, signage, utility burial, landscape maintenance and interlocal agreements.

Members of the committee reviewed, point by point, the final draft of zoning regulations necessary to create a uniform appearance along the boulevard.

Seminole County suggested several changes to the original proposal by the City of Lake Mary.

One of those changes included the elimination of overhead pedestrian walkways located at Country Club Road, cutting $447,000 from the cost. The committee concurred with the suggestion.

The City of Lake Mary and Seminole County agreed to the method of distributing costs. County costs are set at approximately $964,250. The costs include (for the portion of highway from I-4 to 17-92): engineering design, $5,000; landscaping, $478,500; signals and boxes, $155,000; brick pavers, $71,750; and sound barriers, $256,000.

City of Lake Mary costs are approximately $673,164 plus $27,499 for maintenance costs. This includes: irrigation, $471,420; effluent lines, $329,994; and concrete pavers, $71,750.

The city of Sanford is not effected by the road widening until 1994 when its portion of the roadway will be widened.

Plans for the boulevard's widening have been considered for approximately six years. The committee was formed about one year ago.

Gore to be county medical examiner

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Although not the county's top choice — or even the fourth — Seminole County will hire an Orange County associate pathologist to become its first full-time medical examiner.

Dr. Shashi Gore, 54, of India, will be paid $112,000, but no benefits typical to county employees such as insurance, sick pay or other benefits, said Dr. Jorge Deju, director of the Seminole County Health Department.

Deju said Gore will be under contract to the county, not an employee. Gore has been an assistant Orange County medical examiner for about eight years, Deju said.

Deju said Gore is not a state certified forensic pathologist, but said the certification is not required for the position. Deju said the certification was a personal requirement made by State Attorney Norm Wolfinger and said Gore assured them he would seek certification.

The county will pay Gore's basic liability insurance — $100,000 per person, $300,000 per incident — but Deju said Gore will need more coverage which he will have to pay himself.

Since the county and the state attorney's office began their search, their top choice died of a heart attack, their second and third choices wanted $120,000 annually plus county fringe benefits — adding about 25 percent to expense, Deju said. The county's fourth choice wanted between $145,000 and $170,000 annually, Deju said.

Search continues for lost Osteen fisherman

A search continued today for the body of an Osteen fisherman, presumed drowned in Lake George Monday night.

Jack E. Coalter, 50, and Stanton Lewis Baxter, 42, both commercial fishermen, were reported missing Monday night when they failed to return, according to authorities. Their capsized boat was found Monday night and Baxter's body was found Tuesday morning, authorities said.

Cualter and Baxter left the Pine Island Fish Camp west of Seville about 6:30 a.m. Monday to fish for eel. When they hadn't returned by 6:30 p.m., friends began a search.

Members of the Volusia and Lake County sheriffs' departments, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission employees, and numerous commercial fishermen joined in the search.

The capsized 18-foot skip jack boat was spotted in the southwest part of the lake at 10:30 p.m. Monday by a Volusia County air rescue helicopter. Baxter's body was discovered along the lake shore about three miles away the next morning.

Volusia County sheriff's deputies said the wind picked up between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Monday and that is probably when the fishermen's boat capsized.

Lake George is 70 square miles in area and is Florida's second largest lake.

Clarification

A headline in Wednesday's Sanford Herald stated a Sanford businessman pleaded guilty to drug possession. Auguste Bartholdi "Bart" Peterson III actually pleaded guilty in November to conspiracy to possess cocaine. The charges had been reduced from felony to misdemeanor. An assistant U.S. attorney said Peterson bought grams of cocaine for personal use, not ounces for sale.

Transition efforts moving smoothly

Within 10 days of his election victory, George Bush had already named his two most important cabinet secretaries and chosen who would fill the key post of White House chief of staff. He also has held private meetings with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, and scheduled a session with Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev in December in New York.

If early indications are a reliable guide, this may turn out to be the smoothest and swiftest presidential transition of modern times.

The last time an elected president succeeded a chief executive of his own party was in 1929, when Republican Herbert Hoover took over the White House from Calvin Coolidge. Such an intra-party transfer of power affords an uncommon opportunity for close coordination and cooperation between the incoming and outgoing administrations.

President-elect Bush and Ronald Reagan appear to be making the most of these circumstances, promising a stable adjustment to a new team in both domestic and foreign affairs. In reality, the Reagan-Bush transition actually began months ago in anticipation of a GOP election win.

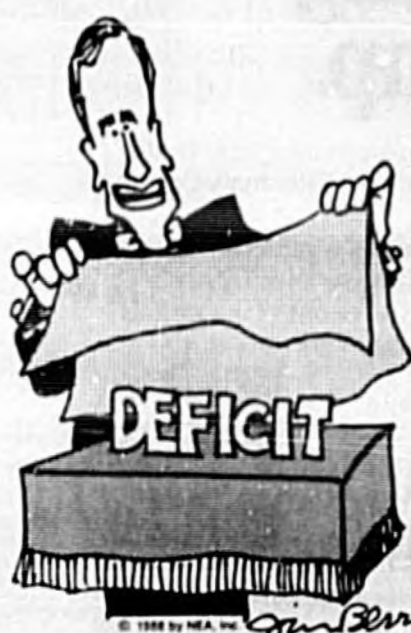

Vice President Bush had a major voice, for example, in Mr. Reagan's selection of Nicholas F. Brady as treasury secretary. At the time of the appointment last summer, it was expected that Mr. Brady would continue on in a Bush administration. The two men are longtime friends who share an Ivy League background and moderately conservative economic views. The early announcement that Treasury Secretary Brady, an experienced Wall Street executive, will oversee economic policy in the new administration helped to reassure financial markets here and around the globe.

Mr. Bush's choice of his close friend, former Treasury Secretary James Baker, to replace George Shultz as secretary of state signals a similarly promising start in foreign policy. Mr. Baker is a pragmatic conservative who has gained widespread experience in Washington during the last eight years. He has a well-deserved reputation for being a consummate problem-solver and a quick learner. His limited exposure to foreign affairs should not be a handicap.

In appointing New Hampshire Gov. John H. Sununu as White House chief of staff, the president-elect opted for an action-minded executive with a conservative agenda rather than a cautious low-key manager such as Craig Fuller, who has headed the vice president's office and campaign staffs. Gov. Sununu will bring a fresh, outside-the-beltway perspective to an administration dominated by Washington insiders.

President-elect Bush also deserves praise for restraining the size of his transition staff. Eight years ago, the Reagan team numbered more than 1,500, an unwieldy force that may have contributed to the long delays in staffing the incoming administration. With a much leaner organization, George Bush is establishing new standards of how to hit the ground running.

Bush should face 'The Vision Thing'

Early this year George Bush appeared to stumble over the most important requirement for an American president: vision, or as it was put, "The V-Thing." By summer Bush not only had a vision and spoke out about it, but it was the right one: "Freedom works."

Now, as Bush assembles a foreign policy and defense team, he and his minions should once again think big. Thus, is there a relationship of the Big V to the likely, and peculiar, nature of the 1990s? Yes. And it is more important than Star Wars, START talks, or trade balances.

To think this through, the Bushniks should trot out some old military criteria: What is the terrain? What are the conditions? What is the goal? How do you get there?

The global terrain of the '90s can be summed up in a word: "different." To begin a long list: an economically united Western Europe; a turbulent Eastern Europe, a rolling, more open Soviet Union, a booming Asia, China in a U-turn.

The global conditions, from an American point of view, are stunning. Despite talk about the economy-in-disarray and America-in-decline, there is this fact: Never has the culture of one nation been so far-flung and potent.

Consider: last year alone, 40 million VCRs were sold; the cassettes that go in them show mostly American movies and music. Important newsstands around the world now sell three American daily papers: the International Herald-Tribune, the Wall Street Journal, and USA Today. There is now a near-global television news station: Cable News Network.

There is, at last, a global language: American. It is the language of "Dallas" and silly sit-coms that are due for explosive growth in viewership as much foreign television is privatized and expanded.

Foreign students flock to American universities. Immigrants come to America; we take more legal immigrants than all other nations put together!

Democracy is becoming the system of choice. American political consultants peddle 30-second spots in the strangest places. Free-market economics are touted everywhere.

Does this help us? You bet it does. Our goal in the global game is not to conquer the world, only to influence it so that it is hospitable to our values. These values should not be slavish American imitations, only rooted in ideals we have pushed forward in the global arena: political, economic, intellectual, and scientific freedom. As Bush says: "Freedom works."

Vision is the primary commodity in geopolitics today. Before his death, Germany's Franz Josef Strauss asked this: How can you change the world? He answered: Military force is now unthinkable, revolutions are usually crushed, but the credit of ideas is more potent than ever.

The pieces of the global jigsaw puzzle will be scrambled in the turmoil of the '90s. But what will the world be like when the pieces come together? If those American values are safeguarded and extended, then Bush can count himself a success.

How do you do it? You figure out what you're trying to do and build on what you've got. America has a mighty private communications business. Several government agencies do important work.

Golden Fleece leaves senate

WASHINGTON—William Proxmire's 31-year Senate career, now winding down, peaked early. He says the high point was his arrival in 1957 at National Airport, where he was greeted as a hero by the Senate's Democratic grandees whose world he had saved. Because of several Senate deaths, his unexpected victory in a special election prevented a 48-48 tie which Vice President Nixon would have broken and enabled Republicans to organize the Senate.

The day he arrived, when the world was young and Strom Thurmond was a Democrat, Thurmond was in full flight, conducting a 24-hour filibuster. South Carolina specializes in McCarthyism. So does Wisconsin. Proxmire is a product of Wisconsin populism.

At times it seems Wisconsin should take a sedative and go sit under a tree. Since 1957, Proxmire has held the seat vacated by the death of a populist whose jingle proclaimed, "Nobody loves McCarthy but the people/And we just love our Joe." Robert La Follette, founding father of progressivism, first was governor and then, from 1906 until his death in 1925, senator. From 1925 until 1947, his son, Robert Jr., was senator. Then came Joe. So for 82 years the seat Proxmire occupies has been held by five wires.

Until recently, when his knees began to protest, Proxmire, who is 73, ran the four miles from home to office. He has the slightly cadaverous look of the aggressively healthy. Some senators will be dry-eyed about the departure of this unclubbable man, but his departure will further dilute the Senate's institutional memory.

Although the Founders thought the Senate would be a lagoon of stability, there is more turnover there than in the House, which is supposed to be a toy for the turbulent masses. This year 99 percent of House incumbents seeking re-election won. Fifty-six of the 435 seats were uncontested. Twenty winners won with 90 percent of the vote. In 369 districts, the winners got more than 60 percent. And if 55 percent makes a landslide, there were 401 landslides.

Today Proxmire is third in Senate seniority behind Thurmond and John Stennis. The retirements of Proxmire and Stennis will remove 72 years of Senate experience. When the new Senate convenes, there will be just two members who were elected in the 1950s (Thurmond and Robert Byrd) and 10 from the 1960s. The average seniority will be just 10 years.

Proxmire's favorite senator was Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), "the only world-class economist ever to serve in Congress." Douglas' motto, says Proxmire, was that you do not have to be a wastrel to be a liberal. Proxmire spent $145.10 getting re-elected in 1982 ($33.65 less than in 1976). He thinks most senators could do the same. But this is the kind of Proxmire talk that sets some senators' teeth on edge: "they like the ego trip of taking other people's money and spending it on television telling people what great guys they are." The man who won Proxmire's seat this year spent $5 million of his own money.

Of course, Proxmire, like other senators, spends millions of government dollars on newsletters, home offices and other aids to self-promotion and re-election.

Proxmire knows how to get noticed, as with his monthly Golden Fleece award, ridiculing what he considers foolish government spending. Some of his awards have been Philistine, but populism often is.

A survey of network news coverage in a recent year showed that 10 senators received 50 percent of the coverage, 20 senators got 68 percent and 17 senators never appeared on any of the 1,095 broadcasts. Proxmire, chairman of the Banking Committee, has deservedly been one of the most noticed.

A graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Business School, he worries about the things populists have worried about since William Jennings Bryan. They are economic jargonism (for example, he dislikes interstate branches of banks) and the quantity and value of money and credit.

But his worries have a conservative cast. He thinks the $2.5 trillion federal debt and $3 trillion household debt and $4 trillion corporate debt denote a constituency for inflation. And he denies that the government should try to avoid recessions "at all costs." It should ameliorate the business cycle, but recessions are a price of a free economy.

Proxmire thinks Senate procedure is too replete with blocking mechanisms, and that the Senate needs something like the House Rules Committee to limit amendments and debate.

He has long been a burr under the Senate's saddle. He once delivered a blistering speech on the Senate floor, protesting Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson's cattle-prod style of leadership. Many colleagues praised him, but did so in calls to his home, not his office.

At times it seems Wisconsin should take a sedative and go sit under a tree!

Army gung-ho over fuse

WASHINGTON — The Army is determined to get its hands on some newfangled electronic artillery fuses, even if the fuses don't work and even if Congress doesn't want to pay for them.

Before the end of its last session, Congress quietly stalled the Army's efforts to put the fuses into production by ordering the Army to wait until the lawmakers have all the facts.

The decision outraged some Army brass who think the fuse is the best thing since air-conditioned limos. With a Congress be-damned attitude, the brass certified the fuse for field use anyway. A Pentagon source told us the fuse was certified despite reservations from the Army's own weapons analysts because the Army feared losing funding for the $23 million project. Congress has already appropriated the money and the Army didn't want to let the project slip into the 1989 budget and take the chance that Congress, on second glance, would cancel the funding.

We reported last summer that at a weapons testing ground near Yuma, Ariz., the new electronic fuse showed a penchant for exploding its shells as they passed through storm clouds. Apparently the fuse may only live up to its billing if a war is fought on clear, sunny days.

The Army wants the electronic fuse to replace the 10-year-old mechanical model. The new fuses are designed to detonate artillery shells on up to 200-second flights behind Warsaw Pact lines. In tests, they have exploded as early as four seconds into flight.

Congress has never been as gung-ho about the fuse as the Army, but members of Congress are having a hard time getting answers to their questions. The House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee asked for a cost-benefit study on the fuse last December, but never got it. In September, a joint House and Senate conference committee requested an investigation by the General Accounting Office to determine whether the fuse was a good buy.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., independently wrote the Army a letter asking for a breakdown of the advantages of the fuse.

Ray Thorkildsen, a former Pentagon staff specialist in ammunition, thinks the Army will try to march the fuse into production before the GAO finishes its cost analysis.

During the next five years, the new fuse would cost taxpayers $50 million for capabilities that the old mechanical fuse already offers. Thorkildsen told the GAO in a private meeting.

The fuse may be a classic example of how the Pentagon wastes tax dollars — frittering away the money on low profile, overpriced projects that don't get much scrutiny.

In this case, the Army is resorting to Band-aids. Twenty-five fuses were tested in stormy weather last August and 14 of them exploded early. The Army put a cap on part of the fuse and fired another 25 rounds. None of them misfired, so the Army pronounced the fuse a success.

Piers Wood, a former Army field artillery lieutenant colonel, told our associate Jim Lynch that one battalion could fire off more than 25 rounds in the first two-and-a-half minutes of a war. Wood thinks the Army should fire as many as 10,000 test rounds before it feels comfortable launching mortars over the heads of U.S. troops. An Army spokesman said another 300 test rounds are planned.

In addition to fizzling on the battle field, the fuse does not even meet the original specifications.

Market moderate, prices dip

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly lower Thursday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues after rising steadily earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 12.98 Wednesday, was off 5.69 to 2108.82 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 484-222 among the 1,116 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6.755.000 shares.

The takeover battle for food and tobacco giant RJR Nabisco came to an end late Wednesday, with Kohlberg Kravis Roberts Co. snatching the company away from two rival suitors with an improved bid of about $25 billion.

The developments at RJR Nabisco come as shareholders are receiving the proceeds from several other recent takeovers, buyouts and restructurings.

Dollar slightly lower; gold, silver higher

United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly lower Thursday in light trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold edged slightly higher.

Currency traders in New York said the market was waiting for the U.S. employment figures due to be released on Friday for a lead on the dollar.

In earlier trading in Tokyo, the dollar weakened marginally against the Japanese yen, closing 0.28 yen lower at 121.57 yen.

Dealers said the dollar's weakness reflected Wednesday's decline in New York, after a report released the U.S. Federal Reserve Board indicated slower U.S. economic growth.

Currency traders in New York Wednesday reacted to a Federal Reserve report that appeared to suggest that the need to increase interest rates to slow the economy was not as pressing as previously believed.

Higher interest rates, a tool used to fight inflation in an overheating economy, also tend to support the dollar because they make dollar-denominated securities more attractive to investors.

The Federal Reserve survey made by the 12 district Federal Reserve banks, said economic expansion might not be as strong as recent government indicators suggested.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.731 West German marks, down slightly from 1.7362 marks on Wednesday.

October leading indicators up

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government's index of Leading Economic Indicators made a modest 0.1 percent advance in October, but revised September figures hinted at a continuing slow-down, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

A surge in building permits along with rising stock prices, strong manufacturers' orders and lower unemployment helped send the index up 0.1 percent in October to 193.0, the department said.

But five of nine indicators available for October held down economic growth. These included a faster rate of deliveries to stores, a change in the price of raw materials, a smaller money supply, a shorter average work week, and slower contracts and orders for industrial equipment, the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

Atmosphere around Pluto found

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — A thin gaseous atmosphere has been discovered around the planet Pluto, a finding that provides another piece in the puzzle about the solar system's uniest and most mysterious planet, astronomers said Wednesday.

There was a lot of indirect evidence that there was an atmosphere," said planetary astronomer William Hubbard of the University of Arizona in Tucson. "Now we have direct evidence."

Writing in the current issue of the British journal Nature, Hubbard and colleagues from the University of Tasmania found the atmosphere by analyzing luminosity in Pluto's vicinity when it eclipsed a star last June.

Bush, Jackson have friendly lunch

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President-elect George Bush, trying to heal wounds from the bitter campaign, held an amiable meeting Wednesday with political opponent Jesse Jackson and promised to seek his advice.

In stark contrast to the verbal attacks that flew from both sides during the race for the White House, the lunch meeting in the vice president's office was marked by an extraordinary amount of friendliness. The former Democratic presidential candidates praised Bush for opening lines of communication that would go "a long way toward healing many of the nation's wounds."

"It wasn't a burying-the-hatchet meeting. No hatchet needed to be buried," Bush said following the more than hour-long session. "We've got big differences and we've got a lot in common."

"The campaign is over. I have no arguments with the way Reverend Jackson conducted himself towards me and I hope it's the same with him on a personal basis," added Bush, who will meet Friday with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, who he defeated Nov. 8 for the White House.

"We had a very good discussion and there will be times in my presidency when I will ask for his suggestions," Bush added. "I've done that in the past over the last eight years, sometimes quietly, sometimes in a public way. But he has very good ideas on a lot of subjects that are of keen interest to our country."

Among the items discussed were the war on drugs and Bush's frequent use during the campaign of the furlough in Dukakis's home state of murderer Willie Horton, who escaped and terrorized a Maryland couple. Jackson, who was defeated by Dukakis for the Democratic nomination, and other Democrats charged that Bush was trying to stir up racial fears with the ads because Horton is black.

But Bush said he told Jackson in "unequivocal terms" that the Horton example was used merely to stress the Republican's intense opposition to prison furlough programs for murderers.

Jackson said that along those lines, he raised the matter of James Earl Ray, the assassin of Martin Luther King, who may be paroled in Tennessee.

Bush told reporters that releasing Ray would "send the wrong signal to America," and Jackson said he believes the vice president was being "consistent."

Other matters discussed included the plight of poor farmers, urban policies, South Africa, the U.S. rejection of a visa for PLO leader Yasser Arafat and ways to cut the budget deficit.

disaster. It was the first of four military shuttle flights planned before March 1990, all thought to involve high-priority payloads grounded by the Challenger disaster.

John Pike, a space analyst with the Federation of American Scientists in Washington, said the Pentagon ultimately plans to deploy four Lacosse radar surveillance satellites capable of providing imagery that could be used to direct B2 Stealth bombers to their targets in wartime.

A conceptual sketch of the spacecraft, provided by Pike, showed two giant solar panels on either side of the main body of the satellite. The radar antenna, a large rectangular structure, was shown mounted at the end of a boom running perpendicular to the solar panels.

According to the Federation of American Scientists, the solar panels and radar antenna, folded up during the launch phase, will unfold like a chrysalis after deployment in space.

"Radar sees through clouds," Pike said. "The things that it would be used for would include helping the B2 find mobile ICBMs such as the SS-25 and helping the Army and Air Force in Europe locate targets deep inside the Warsaw Pact."

Judge reviews classified documents

WASHINGTON — The judge in the Iran-Contra case began a tedious review Wednesday of classified documents to decide what material may be disclosed at a conspiracy trial of ex-White House aide Oliver North.

The review by U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell is expected to last at least until Friday and may prove crucial in determining whether North and three other defendants ever faced a jury on charges stemming from the scandal.

At issue are North's arguments that to defend himself, he must expose far more classified material than the court has ruled admissible to date.

Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh has argued that North is seeking use of an additional 3,500 to 4,000 classified documents in a blatant attempt to force a dismissal of the case to protect some of the nation's best-kept secrets.

It was unclear Wednesday whether Gesell would demand to review those extra documents before ruling on North's request, a move that could draw President Reagan into the controversy.

Missing snowmobiler found

GRAND LAKE, Colo. — One of two missing snowmobilers who spent five nights in sub-zero temperatures in the northern Colorado Rockies walked to safety Wednesday, but his companion apparently died of a heart attack three days earlier, authorities said.

James Edson, 38, of Northglenn was spotted on a county road about 2 p.m. by an employee of a logging company, said Lt. Tom Nixon of the Grand County sheriff's department.

Edson was taken to St. Anthony clinic in Granby where he was in stable condition suffering from dehydration, hospital officials said.

Edson told police that his companion, Raymond Owens, 65, of Federal Heights, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack, Nixon said. Searchers began retracing Edson's footprints in hopes of finding Owens' body before nightfall.

Edson walked for about four hours Wednesday before he was found. He was taken down to amazed rescue workers who had just called off their search for the two missing men, figuring there was little chance of even finding their bodies.

Doctor cannot be forced to remove tube

SAN FRANCISCO — The conservator for a vegetative patient may not force a doctor to remove the patient's feeding tube as long as another doctor can be found who will comply with the request, a state court of appeal ruled Wednesday.

The First District Court of Appeal did not resolve what would happen if no doctor could be found who was willing to let the patient die for lack of nourishment.

The decision stems from the efforts of Louise Childs to have the feeding tube removed from her mother, Thelma Morrison, a 90-year-old patient who has been at Laguna Honda Hospital in San Francisco since 1979.

The public hospital said Morrison's doctor objected on moral grounds to removal of the feeding tube. The hospital offered to have Morrison moved to another facility at government expense to allow another doctor to remove the tube.

Childs objected, saying she had tried and failed to find a suitable place willing to take her mother and that, as a public institution, Laguna Honda had an obligation to adhere to her mother's wishes.

The court essentially gave Laguna Honda two weeks to come up with a facility that could accommodate Morrison, according to press job Weinstein.

Settlement averts hotel strike

BOSTON — The management of nine Boston-area hotels averted a threatened strike by 3,500 workers early Thursday morning by accepting a new union contract containing unprecedented guarantees to help fund housing for their workers.

On the eve of a major citywide convention, management and union negotiators agreed on the three-year contract that increases wages by 16 percent and provides 5 cents an hour per worker toward a housing trust fund.

Members of Local 26 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union had been preparing to walk off their jobs at midnight.

The housing provision, expected to cost hotel owners about $500,000 in the first year of the contract, will help workers arrange mortgages and subsidize rents.

Pentagon cuts computer system links

NEW YORK — The Pentagon temporarily has cut links between a non-classified military computer network and a corporate and academic network that was infected with a computer virus last month, the New York Times reported Thursday.

The newspaper quoted unnamed defense department officials as saying that the decision was motivated by technical difficulties.

However, unidentified computer experts told the Times the links were probably cut in response to an incident in which an unknown intruder used the academic network to gain illegal access to computers operated by military and defense contractors.

During the past month, a computer belonging to the Bedford, Mass.-based Mitre Corp., a supplier to the Pentagon, was entered illegally several times by an unidentified person.

The Times said that officials at several U.S. and Canadian universities acknowledged that their computers had been used to invade the Mitre Corp.'s computer system.

The computer experts told the newspaper that the computer links were probably cut in a response to the Mitre Corp. incident.

However, a Mitre Corp. spokeswoman said that no classified or sensitive information was accessed when the intruder entered the system.

Former Colombo mob boss may be dead

NEW YORK — The former acting boss of the Colombo crime family has been missing for more than two weeks and Justice Department officials believe he may have been murdered in a power play, the Daily News reported Thursday.

James Angellino, 52, left his West 117th Street office at the Greater Blouise, Skirt and Undergarment Association Inc. with another man on Nov. 15 and has not been seen since, the newspaper said, citing unnamed Justice Department officials.

Angellino last year was said to have been running the Colombo crime family for imprisoned mob boss Carmine "Junior" Persico.

His disappearance was reported by his girlfriend with whom he lives in Brooklyn's Parkview section.

Law enforcement officials told the News that if Angellino has been murdered, the execution most likely was approved by the Colombo family's current street bosses, Benedetto "Benny" Aloi, 53, and Vito "Little Vic" Orena, 54.

Californians cut down on booze

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — For the first time in three decades, Californians have reduced their annual consumption in all three categories of alcoholic beverages — beer, wine and hard liquor, researchers reported Wednesday.

Statistics compiled by the California Board of Equalization showed that per capita consumption of beer in the 1987-88 fiscal year declined by 4.4 percent. Use of wine decreased by 3.8 percent and of liquor by 4.9 percent.

Third youth surrenders in sniper attack

MARFA, Texas — A third youth surrendered Wednesday in the "sniper-of-the-moment" sniper attack that killed a man and wounded his wife and their guide during a rattling tour on the Rio Grande, and the search continued for a fourth suspect.

The suspect, identified only as a minor, surrendered to Mexican authorities at Ojinaga in Chihuahua state, said Hugh Rushton, chief U.S. Border Patrol agent in Marfa.

"From what I understand, we found out yesterday that the boy's father works in the United States," Rushton said. "Border Patrol agents approached the father and convinced him that it would be better for the boy if he turned himself in."

Law enforcement agencies on both sides of the border pressed a two-nation manhunt for a fourth suspect, whose identity was known to investigators.

Border Patrol agents arrested the first two suspects on Tuesday.

Eduardo Pineda Rodriguez, 17, a legal resident alien, was arrested at his home in Redford, about 25 miles east of Presidio and was being held on a murder charge in $500,000 bond.

A 16-year-old Mexican national, whose name was withheld because of his age, was arrested by the Chihuahua state judicial police near El Mulato, Mexico, and was being held in nearby Ojinaga, across the Rio Grande from Presidio.

Pineda Rodriguez was charged with the murder of Michael Heffley, 41, of Eastland, Texas, who was shot on Nov. 19 as he, his wife, Jamie, and their guide, Jim Burr, were rafting on the Rio Grande near Colorado Canyon, about 40 miles upstream from Big Bend National Park in West Texas.

RJR Nabisco sold for $25 billion

United Press International

NEW YORK — Kohlberg Kravis Roberts Co. snatched RJR Nabisco Inc. away from rival suitors late Wednesday, improving its bid to about $25 billion for the food and tobacco giant in the largest corporate takeover in history.

KKR will pay $109 for each share of Atlanta-based RJR Nabisco in deal worked out in marathon talks that extended late into the evening.

The winning bid, totaling over $24.9 billion, edged a $108-a-share offer valued at $24.8 billion proposed by a group led by Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc., Salomon Brothers Inc. and members of RJR Nabisco's senior management.

KKR, an investment firm that specializes in buyouts, also beat out a group led by First Boston Corp. whose bid was valued at a minimum of $102 a share or $23.9 billion for RJR Nabisco.

"The merger agreement is signed, this is final," said Dick Beattie, of Simpson Thacher & Barlett, which represents KKR. He said KKR beat out its rivals because it "had the best offer."

Asked whether the $109-a-share price, which included $81 in cash, had been too high, Beattie said, "No, KKR is the best in the business and they know what they're doing."

RJR Nabisco issued a statement saying a special committee of the company's board of directors considered all three offers and unanimously chose the KKR bid "as being in the best interests of the company and its shareholders." The statement did not elaborate.

The pitched battle for control of RJR Nabisco continued well beyond a company-imposed deadline of 5 p.m. Tuesday, at which time KKR reportedly bid $102 a share or about $23.4 billion.

The deal dwarfed the previous record of $13.4 billion in 1984 when Chevron Corp. took over Gulf Oil Corp.

No winner had emerged by the late afternoon despite a last-minute proposal by the management group led by RJR Nabisco President F. Ross Johnson, which sweetened its offer to $108 in a deal valued at $24.8 billion when it looked as though KKR could get the nod.

RJR Nabisco stock rose steadily in trading on the New York Stock Exchange to close Wednesday at $93.375 a share, up $2.50.

Volcker endorses 'sin,' gasoline taxes

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker endorsed a concept that is winning bipartisan support, said Wednesday that tax increases on liquor, tobacco and gasoline could ease the budget deficit without harming the economy.

"I don't think you could argue that from an economic standpoint you're doing grave damage (by increasing such taxes) a relatively modest amount," Volcker told the National Economic Commission at a public hearing.

The so-called "sin taxes" on liquor and cigarettes, as well as the federal gasoline tax, "in real terms are lower than they were some years ago," the economist pointed out, endorsing an idea that has gained popularity among experts, despite President-elect George Bush's vow to oppose all tax hikes.

The bipartisan commission has heard testimony from prominent economists, government officials, business and labor leaders in its search for a plan to fight the federal deficit. House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas also testified Wednesday.

Volcker, who gained worldwide respect in seven years as Fed chairman under Presidents Carter and Reagan, asserted Wednesday that "unprecedented" economic expansion of recent years can be maintained under Bush "but it's going to take some change in policy, particularly budgetary policy."

"(The expansion) has been driven primarily by private consumption and public expenditures," he said, urging policies that would shift to an economy fueled by exports and investments.

"That is what should power the economy for the next five years," he told the panel. "But we haven't got the room to do that and to maintain consumption growth at 4 percent a year. We've got to cut down on consumption growth to make room for the increase in exports and investment that we want and need."

Reducing the budget deficit "by restraining expenditures, by raising taxes, or by a combination of the two" is imperative, he said. He suggested a "net budgetary restraint" of $30 billion to $40 billion a year to move the budget toward balance by 1993. He also urged reductions in spending but noted it is not likely that job can be done without also raising some taxes.

Volcker's "personal preference" is an increase in the gasoline tax, which he said would not only raise money but would have conservation advantages while reducing consumption.

Carter and former President Ford made a similar recommendation to Bush last week in a pre-election report they prepared with several advisers. Many economists and business leaders, as well, are doubtful the deficit problem can be solved with spending cuts alone and see "sin" taxes as a relatively painless way to raise needed revenue.

Volcker said he does not think increased tax revenues would be lost to increased government spending. "It kind of goes against common sense that people would go through the agony of a tax increase and immediately give it away when you're in a high deficit period," he remarked.

The commission reportedly is considering a delay in its final report as it seeks consensus on the budget problem. But Wright urged it Wednesday to stick to the March deadline established when the panel was created late last year.

"We do not have the luxury of a leisurely schedule," the speaker said, noting that the House is expected to produce a 1990 budget resolution by April 15.

Dole also urged faster movement, saying public support for a deficit-reduction plan would be greatest during the first few months of Bush's administration.

WORLD BRIEFS

China rocked by quake aftershock

BELJING — A powerful aftershock of an earthquake that killed 1,000 people shook southwest China Wednesday, injuring residents and collapsing buildings weakened by the earlier tremor, news reports said.

The aftershock, registering 6.7 on the Richter scale, rumbled through southwest Yunnan Province Wednesday afternoon, the official Xinhua News Agency said.

Communication lines to the affected region were partially knocked out and officials, who said there were injuries, were still trying to pin down exact numbers, the agency said.

Efforts to reach provincial officials late Wednesday were unsuccessful.

A number of buildings damaged by the Nov. 6 earthquake were shaken and collapsed under the shock of the latest tremor, whose epicenter was located near Lancang, a remote hill town near the Burmese border that was particularly hard hit by the earlier quake.

The earlier earthquake, which left 1,000 people dead and 200,000 homeless, registered 7.6 on the Richter scale and was China's worst earthquake this decade.

A senior government official had warned aftershocks could persist for at least two months.

Ethnic groups fleeing troubled republics

MOSCOW — Some 40,000 Azerbaijanis have fled Armenia because of fears of ethnic violence, and 20,000 Armenians sought refuge in the other direction in a growing exodus between the two republics, official sources said Wednesday.

The Moscow News newspaper said soldiers in the Azerbaijan republic's capital Baku were manning special positions at the telephone exchange, the subway, railway and bus stations and the airport because of the heavy travelers' traffic.

Soviet television showed pictures of the soldiers on duty in Baku and called the situation "tense."

The latest turn in a 10-month dispute between the Armenian and Azerbaijan communities was set off two weeks ago after an Azerbaijani man was sentenced to death at a trial in Moscow for participating in an ethnic massacre of Armenians in the Azerbaijanian port of Sumgait in February.

The latest wave of unrest has been accompanied by demands from Azerbaijan that the predominantly Christian enclave of Nagorno Karabakh, with 177,000 Armenians, remain part of Azerbaijan. Armenian demands to annex the disputed area set off the dispute 10 months ago.

First direct Tehran-Baghdad flight flown

MANAMA, Bahrain — The commander of U.N. peace-keeping forces crossed the Iran-Iraq cease-fire line Wednesday in the first direct Tehran-Baghdad airplane flight since the eruption of the Persian Gulf war eight years ago, U.N. officials said.

Also Wednesday, the official Iraqi News Agency monitored in Kuwait said Iraq had successfully tested a new anti-missile weapon, which could give Baghdad an advantage over Iran in the event of renewal of hostilities.

U.N. officials said Gen. Slavko Jovic flew to Baghdad from Tehran aboard a United Nations plane, crossing the cease-fire line for the first time since the outbreak of hostilities.

Jovic, a Yugoslav, and his aides usually alternate between Baghdad and Tehran, spending about a week at a time in each capital. But the U.N. commander's shuttle previously traveled between the countries via neutral Turkish airspace.

In Baghdad, Jovic was expected to raise with Iraqi officials Iranian allegations of violations of the still fragile cease-fire which Iran and Iraq signed Aug. 20.

NATO officials review defense posture

BRUSSELS, Belgium — NATO defense ministers Thursday began a two-day review of the state of the 16-nation alliance amid U.S. demands for European members to shoulder a greater share of the burden for their defense.

A senior NATO official said the semi-annual session would review what each nation is doing to meet the alliance's defense goals, and ways to improve cooperation.

"But the center piece of the discussions will be the issue of burden-sharing — what is called in NATO language the 'roles, risks and responsibilities in the common defense,'" the official said.

The ministers will debate a report drawn up by defense experts on how member states' efforts could be better focused to enable them to contribute more fairly and effectively toward the common defense, he said.

The official said the report "concentrated on output — what we get for our defense spending — not just on the financial input."

European NATO members recently have been under increasing pressure from the United States to shoulder a larger share of the defense burden.

Strike at U.S. air bases ends

SEOUL, South Korea — A two-day strike by 3,200 Korean employees at four U.S. air bases ended Thursday after union leaders agreed to talks with their American employers, a military spokesman said.

The 3,200 workers, members of the Union of Employees with U.S. Forces Korea, walked off their jobs early Tuesday at Osan, Suwon, Taegu and Kwangju Air Bases, demanding reinstatement of 105 fellow workers fired by a new civil engineering maintenance contractor.

The walkout temporarily closed all Army and Air Force Exchange Service facilities Tuesday and limited operations at other service facilities, the spokesman said.

Union leaders were holding talks with Brig. Gen. Peter D. Hayes, deputy commander of the 7th U.S. Air Force headquartered at Osan, 35 miles south of Seoul, the spokesman added.

Soviet shuttle performed 'brilliantly'

MOSCOW — The Soviet shuttle Buran performed so flawlessly on its maiden flight two weeks ago that the unmanned reusable orbiter landed less than five feet from its designated point of touchdown, a top space official said.

Alexander Dunayev, head of the Glavkosmos space agency, also revealed that at least one more unmanned test flight will be carried out before cosmonauts are permitted to fly the Buran, which is Russian for "snowstorm."

"The automatic program justified itself brilliantly," Dunayev said in remarks published Wednesday in the official Izvestia newspaper. Buran landed only 1.5 meters from where planned and its planned flight time deviated by one second.

But when asked when the Soviets would launch a manned shuttle, he said, "Certain space specialists consider it expedient to have still one more unmanned flight in a more complex mission. And they are correct in their way."

Dunayev said only four of the 38,000 heat-resistant tiles on the Buran had to be replaced following the shuttle's return into the atmosphere.

Soviet space officials have not announced when they will next launch the Buran, the new pride of the Soviet space program along with the Energia heavy-duty booster that lifted the 2,000-ton shuttle into orbit.

Four cosmonauts are known to be training to fly the Buran, and at least one more Soviet shuttle is being built. Soviet space officials have said the next shuttle probably will be dubbed Buran-2.

Bhutto to be Pakistan's prime minister

United Press International

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Benazir Bhutto was poised Thursday to become the Moslem world's first woman prime minister after her chief political rival abandoned his efforts to form a new government.

Officials said President Ghulam Ishaq Khan was scheduled to go on nationwide television at 7:30 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EST) to announce his selection for prime minister.

Ishaq Khan was to select a prime minister from whichever party he believes can form a government, and his choice was virtually certain to be Bhutto.

Nawaz Sharif, head of the government-backed Islamic Democratic Alliance and Bhutto's main rival, effectively ended his bid for the premiership Wednesday when he took the oath of office as a member of the Punjab Provincial Assembly in the northeastern city of Lahore. When so he was excluded from holding a seat in the lower house of Parliament in Islamabad and from becoming prime minister.

Bhutto's opposition Pakistan People's Party won the largest bloc of National Assembly seats in the Nov. 16 general elections but failed to secure an absolute majority. Both Bhutto and Sharif had claimed they could form governments with the support of independents and smaller parties.

Sharif, 38, also won a seat in Nov. 19 provincial elections in Punjab, where he is acting chief minister. His decision to become a member of the Punjab assembly means he must surrender his National Assembly seat and indicates he intends to seek reconfirmation as chief minister.

Bhutto, the 35-year-old daughter of executed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, would be the first woman leader of a predominantly Moslem nation and the youngest prime minister of Pakistan, which has been under military rule for more than two-thirds of its 41-year history.

Bhutto, her mother, Nusrat, co-leader of the PPP, and 192 other politicians elected this month were sworn in Wednesday as National Assembly members by Chief Election Commissioner Justice S.A. Nusrat.

The legislators later elected another 20 members to seats reserved for women, with the Pakistan People's Party winning 12 the Islamic Democratic Alliance five and independents three.

After the ceremony, Bhutto met with U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Armitage and Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy, a spokesman said. No details of the talks were announced. The two U.S. officials arrived in Pakistan Tuesday for a three-day visit.

Bhutto sat in the assembly seat previously occupied by the last prime minister, Mohammad Khan Junejo, whose government was dismissed in May by the late president, Mohammad Zia ul-Haq. Zia, who ruled for 11 years, eight of them as head of a military government, died in a mysterious Aug. 17 plane crash.

Bhutto arrived at the Parliament surrounded by hundreds of supporters, who chanted "Long Live Bhutto" and "Mr. Bhutto is not dead," a reference to her father, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto who was overthrown in a 1977 coup by Zia, then army chief of staff, and hanged two years later for the murder of a political opponent.

"It feels a little strange to be here," Bhutto told reporters at the modern cream-colored parliament building.

"Coming through these halls today, I realized how important the struggle has been to reach the parliament. Although there are many restrictions, we are still hopeful of bringing change."

Bhutto said she would speak again after her expected nomination, to outline the policies of the new administration.

The next prime minister is to be sworn in Friday, a day before the assembly meets to elect a speaker.

Presidential elections are scheduled for Dec. 12, with voting by an electoral college composed of members of the National and Provincial Assemblies. Ishaq Khan, a former Senate chairman and Zia's constitutional successor, is likely to be reconfirmed as head of state.

Chinese foreign minister heads for Moscow

United Press International

BELJING — Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen left Thursday for Moscow — the first such visit in three decades — for talks likely to focus on preparations for a historic Sino-Soviet summit next year and the withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Cambodia.

Speaking at Beijing's Capital Airport before his departure, Qian said conditions for a long-awaited summit "were becoming ripe" and noted that both sides were preparing for the meeting.

"My current visit to the Soviet Union and the forthcoming return visit of (Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard) Shevardnadze to China will all be part of the preparations," Qian said.

Qian, the first Chinese foreign minister to visit the Soviet Union since Premier Chou Enlai in 1957, was scheduled to begin his three-day stay in Moscow Thursday afternoon, beginning with talks with Shevardnadze.

Shevardnadze is expected to visit Beijing in January for talks aimed at attending to the final details of the Sino-Soviet summit set for the first half of next year. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev is expected to travel to Beijing in the spring for talks with Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping.

The Moscow talks are expected to be among the final steps in ending 25 years of strained relations between the two communist giants, who split in the 1960s over a series of territorial and ideological disputes.

While political relations between Moscow and Beijing remained frosty in recent years, other ties — particularly economic — have improved steadily.

"The purpose of my talks is to seek deeper mutual understanding and to promote the process of normalization of relations between the two countries through frank and earnest discussions," Qian said.

He said his talks also would focus on Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia, which Beijing considers the key remaining obstacle to normalization with Moscow.

The foreign minister said both sides were ready to discuss an early withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, but noted that "there are differences between the two sides in this regard."

But he did not identify the issues holding up the drafting of a timetable for the Vietnamese withdrawal.

The Soviet Union is Hanoi's chief economic and military backer, while China is the prime arms supplier to the anti-Vietnamese resistance in Cambodia, including the communist Khmer Rouge.

China first suggested a Sino-Soviet summit in the fall of 1985, and the offer was renewed in public by Deng in late 1986. But real progress toward a political thaw has been seen only in recent months.

U.N. condemns U.S. on Arafat visa decision

United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — The General Assembly Wednesday voted overwhelmingly in favor of a resolution deploring the U.S. refusal to grant an entry visa to PLO leader Yasser Arafat so he can address the United Nations.

The non-binding resolution, passed by a vote of 151 to 2, gave Washington 24 hours to change its mind or the assembly would vote on whether to move debate on the Palestinian question to U.N. facilities in Geneva, Switzerland.

The United States and Israel were the only two countries voting against the non-binding resolution. Britain abstained and five of the U.N.'s 159 member nations were absent.

The resolution denounced the U.S. visa denial as a violation of an international agreement that set up the U.N. headquarters in New York.

Herbert Okun, the U.S. ambassador to the U.N., told the assembly that Washington will not change its position and said the U.S. visa denial was "fully consistent with the Headquarters Agreement — and this includes our right to protect our national security."

The assembly is expected to take the unprecedented step of voting Friday to move the debate to the U.N.'s European office in Geneva to hear Arafat if Washington does not reverse its decision. The debate originally was scheduled to open Thursday but was postponed because of the U.S. move.

In his address, Arafat is expected to explain the Palestinian leadership's proclamation of an independent state in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The Nov. 15 declaration by the Palestine National Council, the Palestinian parliament-in-exile, which met in Algiers, Algeria, was coupled with implicit recognition of Israel's right to exist and a renunciation of terrorism.

Tens of nations recognized the proclaimed state and hailed the declaration as a positive peace initiative, Israel and the United States rejected it.

The United States described the proclamation as ambiguous and said it did not go far enough toward meeting the U.S. demand for a clear recognition of Israel by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Over the weekend Secretary of State George Shultz personally denied Arafat the visa, citing the PLO's alleged links to acts of terrorism against Americans. On Wednesday he again defended the decision.

Former Dominican president arrested

United Press International

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Former Dominican President Salvador Jorge Blanco was arrested Wednesday when he returned to the Caribbean nation to appeal his conviction on corruption charges.

Authorities led by Federal District Attorney Alexis Joaquin Castillo arrested Jorge Blanco, 62, upon his arrival at Santo Domingo's Airport of the Americas on a flight from Miami. Jorge Blanco, who has been sentenced to 20 years in prison and $16 million fine, was placed in an air force helicopter and flown to Ensanche La Fe prison in Santo Domingo.

Jorge Blanco was accompanied on the flight to the Dominican Republic by his wife, Aselia Mera de Jorge, his children and three lawyers.

About 200 Jorge Blanco followers and 30 leading officials of his opposition Dominican Revolutionary Party gathered at the airport to show support for the former president, and hundreds of backers gathered outside his home in the capital.

Jorge Blanco, who was president of the Dominican Republic from 1982 to 1986 and left the Dominican Republic in May 1987 to seek treatment for a heart ailment at Atlanta's Emory University Hospital, was convicted Sunday on charges he and businessmen Leonel Almonte and Juan Tomas Pena Valentin overcharged the military $5 million for equipment.

Tried in absentia, Jorge Blanco was charged with ordering the military to buy 75 percent of its vehicles, uniforms, food, and other equipment in 1985-86 at inflated prices from companies owned by Almonte and Pena Valentin.

Soviets approve constitutional reforms

United Press International

MOSCOW — The Soviet parliament voted by "an absolute majority" Thursday to adopt revolutionary proposals paving the way for multi-party elections and making the current rubber-stamp legislature obsolete, the Tass news agency said.

The Supreme Soviet approved the measures, deemed crucial to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's program of "perestroika," or restructuring, despite virtually unprecedented dissenting votes on some proposals, Tass said.

"The Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. adopted two important laws, one on elections and the other on changes to the national constitution, by an absolute majority of votes," Tass said.

"The laws clear the way to radical reform in the Soviet political system," the news agency said.

The new laws pave the way for multi-candidate elections that would select members of a new Congress of People's Deputies to replace the current, mostly nominal parliament. The new body would in turn elect a more compact, Western-style parliament that would be in session year-round to draft, debate and vote on legislation.

Gorbachev said a special plenum of the Communist Party Central Committee will be held in June to address the nation's ethnic unrest.

Central American ministers form peace commission

United Press International

MEXICO CITY — Foreign ministers from five Central American countries agreed Wednesday to set up a regional commission to monitor implementation of a peace accord signed last year and to hold a summit of the nations' presidents in January.

In a document signed before Joao Baena Soares, secretary-general of the Organization of American States, the five ministers agreed to the establishment of a commission to oversee fulfillment of the Esquipulas II peace pact signed Aug. 7, 1987, by the presidents of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

"We are giving back hope to 28 million Central American people who long for peace," said Guatemalan Foreign Minister Alfonso Cabrera. "Peace cannot be obtained overnight. We have assumed the responsibility for creating the conditions for peace — a complex process. The signing of this document is a great step toward that."

The ministers did not say where the commission will be based, how many members it will have or when it will be established.

The ministers' meeting in Mexico City was convened to give new impetus to the peace plan, which is aimed at ending the region's civil wars and democratizing its political life.

The foreign ministers agreed to hold a presidential summit Jan. 12-13 in El Salvador, to be preceded by a preparatory session of the ministers in the Nicaraguan capital of Managua.

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said the summit, the date for which had been pushed back several times because of a dispute between his country and neighboring Honduras, could prove to be a key step in bringing peace to war-ravaged Central America.

"In the next meeting we will discuss the mechanisms of verification (of the peace accord) and historic decisions will be made in January," D'Escoto said.

Honduran Foreign Minister Carlos Lopez, whose government has allowed its territory to be used as bases from which the U.S.-backed Contra rebels have waged civil war against Nicaragua's ruling Sandinista Front, said the outcome of the ministers' meeting was a breakthrough.

"In today's meeting, hopes were realized and optimism carried the day," Lopez said. "You saw us all come out of the meeting with smiles on our faces."

Besides setting up the regional commission, the document signed by the ministers calls for the five nations to take steps to probe alleged human rights abuses.

The countries' presidents were to have met Aug. 7 on the first anniversary of the Esquipulas accord, which is named for the Guatemalan town in which they gathered last year before signing the pact in Guatemala City, but a dispute between Nicaragua and Honduras delayed the summit.

The regional peace plan calls for cease-fires in the region's civil wars, political amnesty for rebels, democratic reforms and a ban on government aid to insurgents in other countries.

The accord earned the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize for its chief author, Costa Rican President Oscar Arias.

A tenuous cease-fire in Nicaragua has held since March, but representatives of the government and the Contras have failed despite several rounds of peace talks to reach a permanent settlement.

Despite the regional peace pact, leftist guerrillas in El Salvador and Guatemala have continued their wars against U.S.-supported governments in those nations.

Arias, the only Central American head of state who did not travel to Mexico.

Sweeting said population growth is inevitable for the city and city leaders must decide whether Sanford wants to be a progressive, growing city, or remain a small town.

He said the city commission can set the agenda for the future of the city. "With the growth that is coming, the city is at a crossroads and must decide where it wants to go. We have a great opportunity to make Sanford once again the queen city of Seminole County," he said.

He suggested buying vacant property and offering it for joint development to private interests, or looking at tax deferral plans or other packages to improve the downtown commercial area. "Just restoring historic buildings is not enough," he said, pointing out that a restored building at Park Avenue and

First Street is still vacant.

Malone said improving the looks of the routes in and out of the area would help promote the downtown commercial area.

Sweeting and Malone both think the city government should aggressively recruit new business and industry, and that the city needs to grow.

Howell said high-tech industry should be recruited. However, he wants Sanford to maintain its small town atmosphere.

He said one of the most important things city government can do to promote downtown business is to "make the streets safe to walk on." He said people who live in the area don't shop there because they don't want to walk on the sidewalks, especially at night.

Sweeting and Howell agree that there has not been enough communication between city government and the people of the community. Both say they can talk to all segments of the community and will if elected.

Howell was instrumental in getting the downtown residential community organized in a successful effort to have their neighborhood rezoned for single-family residences, and is a strong supporter of neighborhood groups.

He proposed stronger crime watch organizations to combat crime and suggested that they be headed by part-time city employees and block captains and be supplemented with volunteer community patrols to reduce break-ins.

He also suggested that the city contract with a home security company to allow residents to buy security systems at cut rates.

Sweeting said the city has operated as a community divided along racial and economic lines. "People play areas off each other and rarely work for the good of the entire city," he said. "There has not been uniform application of the city codes throughout the city, and the commission has not kept in touch with all parts of the community."

He said if he is elected he will open communication between city government and all segments of the community.

Malone said there are enough ordinances on the books now to clean up the First District. He said the city commission can do it through its police and fire departments by enforcing building codes and ridding the district of transients.

All three candidates endorsed scattered recreational facilities for young people.

Howell said recreational and tutoring programs should be available on a neighborhood basis. Sweeting said the city should have an outreach program to attract children who come home from school to empty houses. Malone supported the neighborhood recreation concept, but said the city commission must investigate how to pay for it.

Malone said that if he is elected, one of his priorities will be to get training for firefighters to be qualified as paramedics. "We do not have an adequate system for emergency treatment of the elderly and impaired," he said. Sweeting said the city needs to appoint a medical director in order to obtain state licensing for a paramedic program, and said he would support such an effort.

Howell strongly opposed using city-owned land near Geneva as the site for a federal prison because he doesn't think the city would benefit economically, and because he "doesn't like jamming it down Geneva residents' throats." Sweeting said locating the prison there probably would benefit Sanford, but said the city hasn't properly sold the idea to people in that area. Malone said he won't make up his mind on the proposal until after public hearings are held and he learns what people in the district want.

The candidates also disagree on the Marina Harbor boat launching fee approved by the commission last summer.

Howell thinks the fee was a mistake, and that it has hurt downtown business. Sweeting says the city should work to get a percentage of the boat trailer license fee money retained by the county and use that for boat ramp maintenance. Malone said money to maintain the ramps has to come from somewhere but he is not sure that the launching fee is the right way to raise it.

Sweeting favored working with banks and private business, as well as using available grants to improve housing in the city, but says new methods of financing using public and private funds must be found because the city cannot depend on federal money being available.

Malone said he favored investigating whatever types of grants are available to help with the housing problem.

Regatta

Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

"It's absolutely the most incredible sight I'm sure that anybody has ever seen on Lake Monroe," Farr said of the fleet of sailing craft that will dot the waterway.

The event is a tradition in Sanford. "It brings a lot of fun and excitement to Sanford. It's incredible. We're proud to have it in Sanford."

"I have seen a lot of sailboats on Lake Monroe, but with the regatta you will see more sailboats and more color on Lake Monroe than ever before. And you can see it from any point along the lake," he said.

The event, sponsored by Red

Lobster Restaurants and hosted by the Orlando Yacht Club, is open to all sailors and can accommodate boats up to 26 feet.

The event includes a Race of Champions, pitting some of the world's best sailors against each other sailing identical boats, skippers from the America's Cup race, the Olympics and Rolex Yachismen of the year will be at the helm of these boats, Gardiner said.

Three-time America's Cup skipper Tom Blackaller, is scheduled to headline the list of celebrity participants in the regatta.

Blackaller, of Sausalito, Calif., and his crew won the celebrity monohull Hunter 26.5 title at last year's Red Lobster Cup. He is best known as skipper of the "USA" in the 1987 America's Cup trials and has an extensive background in sailing. He was also captain of the "Defender" in the 1983 America's Cup trials and holds world championships in Stars, Six Meters and International Stars.

Sailors, who paid $27 to enter single-hand boats and $30 for crewed craft, also will have access to seminars, parties, prizes and a seafood banquet. Those who register late for the regatta will pay fees of $37 and $40.

Farr said non-sailors who accompany the crews to Sanford are expected to undertake shopping and sightseeing in the city.

Classes in the regatta include sailboards, single-handed and crewed monohulls, catamarans, JODAs and Prams.

Over the years, the event has grown in size and stature. In October the regatta won the One-Design Regatta Award as the nation's outstanding regatta from the United States Yacht Racing Union.

The Red Lobster Cup in July was recognized by Sailing World magazine as the eighth largest regatta in the world, including both inland and offshore races. George Middleton, associate publisher of that magazine recognized the rapid growth of the race from a small, local regatta to one of international proportion.

Middleton said the regatta has helped maintain sailing as an active and healthy sport.

South African government accuses towns of sabotage

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG — South Africa — The white minority government, seeking to distance itself from apartheid laws it introduced 40 years ago, Wednesday accused far right-wing local councils of sabotaging reforms by enforcing stricter racial separation. "No government can allow its policy to be sabotaged at a local level," Constitutional Planning Minister Chris Heunis said in an angry response to reactionary whites flexing political muscle in towns under their control since October local elections.

Labor Party refuses to join coalition

United Press International

JERUSALEM — The center-left Labor Party handed a defeat Wednesday to its leader, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, by voting to go into opposition rather than join a new government led by right-wing Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

The decision could mean that Shamir will have to ask the ultra-Orthodox religious parties to join his Likud Party in a coalition government in order to form a majority in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament.

As their price for participation in a new government, the religious parties want to more strictly define who is a Jew by banning all conversions that are not carried out by Orthodox rabbis. The threatened redefinition has angered Conservative and Reform American Jews.

"In a democratic party you have to be prepared for things like this," Peres told Israel Television. "I thought we should reach a different conclusion. I made my own views perfectly clear. I believe that today's decision reflects the views of our voters."

He said he would not try to have the decision overruled by the party's Central Committee.

Both Peres and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, Labor's two highest leaders, had asked party members to resume coalition negotiations with Shamir's Likud Party after the prime minister offered Labor two key Cabinet posts if it joined him in a government.

But Shamir's proposal to Labor would have left Likud with a one-seat majority in Cabinet, enough to counter any attempt by Labor leaders to oppose the right-wing party on key issues such as peace negotiations.

"We are not going to be the vassals, we are not going to be the servants of the Likud," Avraham Burg, an adviser to Peres, told Israel Radio.

Bass eat up wild shiners

Every bass fisherman secretly dreams of catching a lunker bass, and one of the surest ways to connect with that wall mount is to use wild shiners.

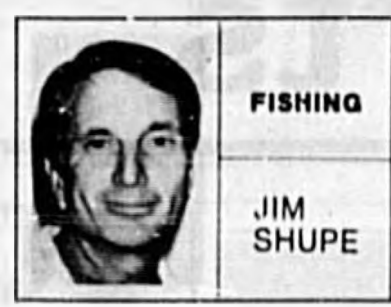

We have all read stories and seen pictures of giant bass that have been caught with these golden baitfish, and it looks so easy—simply run to the nearest tackle shop with a five gallon bucket, buy a few shiners, and big bass will jump in the boat once you are on the water.

To be truthful, fishing with shiners can be very aggravating. First of all, they are a fragile bait and demand plenty of oxygen and careful handling.

Secondly, shiners are a tad on the expensive side, and commonly cost from ten to twelve dollars a dozen.

Thirdly, everything that swims likes to eat shiners. Mud fish, catfish, gar, turbot, and even birds will dine on your one dollar baits while you wait in vain for a bass to wander by your boat.

To add insult to injury, bass are often hard to hook on shiners once you finally get a strike.

with the bait before setting the hook, and frequently your line gets wrapped around weeds, tree limbs and other obstructions that make hook setting difficult, if not impossible.

Why then, would any intelligent fisherman use shiners for bass? The bottom line is that shiners will produce more bass over eight pounds than any other lure or bait.

Read next week's column for successful methods of using wild shiners for huge bass.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

One way to keep shiners more lively is to reduce the water temperature. Simply place a bag of ice in your live well when the water starts to get too warm.

FISHING FORECAST

This time of year, the weather forecast should play an important role in your weekend fishing plans.

A cold front is predicted to hit Friday, and this could rule out offshore fishing or fishing on large bodies of fresh water where the high winds would make fishing difficult and uncomfortable.

Lemon Bluff Fish Camp

reports that the high water has made bass fishing difficult. Rule out Puzzle Lake as water is way over the banks and the bass will be out in the cow pastures.

Steve Gard from Osteen Bridge reports that specks are still scattered all over Lake Monroe in 5-7 feet of water. Anglers are catching good numbers by Stone Island and the I-4 bridge.

The recent cold front will probably put a damper on the snook fishing at Sebastian Inlet. That's the bad news; the good news is that speckled seatrout and flounder live the cooler weather and will provide plenty of good fishing the entire winter.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that offshore fishing has been non-existent due to high seas. With the approaching cold front, high seas are likely to continue throughout the weekend.

Spurs keep Heat winless (0-12)

MIAMI — Alvin Robertson decided it's time to quit fooling around.

The San Antonio Spurs guard stole a pass from Rory Sparrow and then slammed dunked a basket to give the Spurs a 105-101 victory over the Miami Heat Wednesday night at the Miami Arena before 14,298 spectators.

The loss dropped the winless Miami to 0-12 while San Antonio is now 5-8. Miami is close to breaking the record of 15 losses to start the season.

"We'll take any victory that we can," Robertson said. "It's a tough thing for us to win on the road and we had to play our best at the end to get the win."

"I was just trying to make something happen. Their guys were shooting the lights out in the final period and that's something that was hard to stop."

"We were tough on defense in the first half and tried to deny them the ball. We wanted to stop their passes to the wing. We were able to deny them that first pass which got us some points on turnovers."

The Spurs led by 19 points at halftime and 97-86 with 4:30 remaining. The Heat then scored eight unanswered points to close the gap to 97-94.

Robertson then scored on the dunk and hit a basket with 30 seconds left to seal the win.

"We knew this would be a tough game because the Heat was looking for its first win and we were looking for our first road win," Spurs coach Larry Brown said.

"We didn't want to be their first victim. Miami was much tougher the second half. They kept up the pressure and shot the ball well. We didn't show a lot of poise until the last minute. We forgot we had to score at the end," he said.

Robertson led the Spurs with 27 points while guard Johnny Dawkins added 21 points.

Kevin Edwards had 24 for the Heat and Rory Sparrow added 22.

"I'm disappointed but not discouraged," Miami coach Ron Rothstein said. "It was a tough game for us, our fourth in five nights. We will win as soon as we are good enough. We are in this for the future."

"Their defense really bothered us in the first half but we were aggressive in the second half and had a chance at the end. Alvin came through for them and that was the difference."

Rockets 101, Mavericks 89. The Dallas Mavericks tried to get along without Mark Aguirre for a night and found they did not have enough weapons left to contain the Houston Rockets.

Aguirre played only 22 minutes, sat out the last 17 minutes and scored just 8 points Wednesday night and the visiting Rockets took advantage of the surprising slack in the Dallas offense to post a 101-89 victory.

Celtics 133, Nets 100. At Boston, Kevin McHale scored 26 points and rookie Brian Shaw added 17 to help the Celtics post their first consecutive month with a winning record. Boston, 8-7, last had a sub-500 month in April, 1979. Brad Lohaus and Reggie Lewis had 16 points for Boston. Roy Hinson scored 24 points for the Nets.

76ers 114, Blazers 106. At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley scored a game-high 41 points and grabbed 22 rebounds to lead the 76ers. The victory was the Sixers' fourth in their last five games, and their ninth out of 11 games in the Spectrum.

Pistons 114, Pacers 111. At Auburn Hills, Mitch Ishak Thomas scored 20 of his 36 points in the second half and Adrian Dantley added 34 points to power Detroit. Reggie Miller and Vern Fleming led Indiana with 17 points apiece and Herb Williams added 16.

Apopka looks to run with the big boys

By JIM RICKENBACKER Herald correspondent

APOPKA — Fred Arnett, an enthusiast comes across even over the telephone. As Apopka's third-year boys basketball coach, Arnett sends out signals loud and clear that the Blue Darters have the personnel to run with the Metro Conference's big boys.

Looking at last year's team that finished 15-11 and had Oak Ridge on the ropes in the District 4A-10 semifinals, one sees Arnett's reasoning. Only Dewey Varner (Luskenger University) and Doug Arnett (eligibility exhausted) are gone from last year's lineup. The rest of the roster with the exception of newcomer Lorenzo Harper returns with a realistic shot at moving from fifth in the Metro to the conference's upper echelon.

Arnett won't have to wait long to find out whether man-child Derrick Clark, 6-foot 7, Norris Davis, hot-shooting guard Cedric Varner, 6-4 Rodney Stokes and guard LeRoy Lloyd can match up the Metro's best.

After Friday's opener at Lyman, the Blue Darters host fourth-ranked Oak Ridge next Thursday with Winter Park, Evans and New Smyrna Beach not far up the road.

"Our kids believe we can do it," Arnett said. "With a year behind them, they know what they're capable of. In the district semis, we had Oak Ridge by eight points in the second half and lost by six. And we snapped Winter Park's 12-game win streak and were the only team to beat them twice in a row."

Clark, Davis, Varner, Stokes and Lloyd not only have the experience but the talent to tackle the Darters' tough schedule. Depth is perhaps the only question, despite the durability of ninth-grader Shelby James, fleet-footed ninth-grader Jock-quid Thomas and 6-4 senior Danny Boeyers.

Clark, a 6-4, 215 senior, has enough versatility to play anywhere. Arnett said his ball-handling skills and leaping ability are equal to his range on 10-12 foot jumpers. Only his long-range shooting is suspect, yet Arnett says there's no secret. Clark is the main man in Apopka's plans.

Davis, a rail-thin senior, is a late bloomer that will be counted on to do the job inside along with Clark, the fundamentally sound Stokes, Lloyd, Boeyers and James.

Mitchell, Radkewich bound for nationals

Kinney mee runs Dec. 12

Special to the Herald

For the second year in a row Lyman High's Teddy Mitchell and Nick Radkewich have established themselves among the elite cross country runners in the nation.

After going 1-2 (Mitchell-Radkewich) in the Class 4A State Championships, the dynamic distance duo journeyed to Charlotte, N.C., this past weekend for the Kinney Southern Regional championships.

For the second consecutive year, both Mitchell and Radkewich ran well enough to qualify for the Kinney Nationals on Dec. 10 at San Diego's Balboa Park.

Mitchell, a junior at Lyman this year, finished fourth in the Kinney 5,000 meter race with a time of 15:16 followed by Radkewich, a Lyman High senior, who was fifth at 15:19. Mitchell and Radkewich will now get ready for the nationals where they are hoping to finish in the top 10. Last year, Radkewich and Mitchell made history as the first pair of runners from the same school to qualify for nationals.

The top eight finishers from the regional meet go on to the Kinney Nationals. First place went to Andre Williams of Richmond, Va., as he overcame a fall in the late going to finish with a time of 15:09. Keith Pickett of Fort Worth, Texas was second at 15:10 followed by Paul Stoneham of Waco, Texas at 15:14.

Qualifying behind Mitchell and Radkewich were Mike Lara of El Paso, Texas (15:22), Gary Butts of Newport News, Va. (15:23), and Brant Armentrout of Winston-Salem, N.C. (15:25). The only other Florida runner to finish in the top 20 was Tampa's Mike Williams who was 16th at 15:47.

In the girls event, Meghan McCarthy of Burke, Va. soared to the individual title with a nice time of 17:59. Also qualifying for nationals were Michelle Farmer of The Woodlands, Texas (18:09), Megan Flowers of Fort Worth, Texas (18:09), Judy Stott of McLean, Va. (18:10), Hollie Moore of Fairfax, Va. (18:17), Tracy Stevenson of Atlanta (18:17), Becky Runion of Edinburg, Va. (18:18), and Andrea Leng of Vienna, Va. (18:18).

The top Florida finisher was Tallahassee Leon's Michelle Jernigan who came in ninth at 18:19. She will be an alternate and will be able to run in the nationals if one of the other runners is unable to attend. The only other Florida runner to make the top 20 was Bloomingdale's Amy Jackson who finished 20th at 19:03.

Texas was the team winner in the boys race with Virginia second while Virginia was the girls winner with Texas second.

The weather was ideal and the course in excellent shape, a complete turnaround from last year's race when the weather was below freezing and the course slippery and muddy. More than 800 top high school runners competed in the day's events.

The Kinney National Cross Country Championships, the only national championships in all of high school sports, will be telecast on tape-delay on NBC on Dec. 17.

Tribe matmen rely on balance

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

The Seminole High matmen take to the canvas with a much improved attitude and coach Glen Maolini's first senior class going into the 1988-89 wrestling season.

The Seminoles will rely heavily on its seniors, Larry and Kevin Nathan, Troy Rollins, and Trent Schake plus a group of Seminole athletes that Maolini calls his homegrown team.

"All of these kids have been coached by me and me alone," Maolini, who is in his fourth year at Seminole, said. "They're all homegrown, not like some of the other programs around who have transfers come into their program. I'd rather win with my own kids. I just hope it's possible to win with kids just from Seminole."

Seminole's lineup is very uncharacteristic of years past in that it is more balanced and relies more on every wrestler on the team and less on superstars and All-Americans.

"I think that our strength will be our balance," Maolini said. "We've got a good group of kids and it's a real pleasure working with them. I've already gotten more out of this season than I have in the past two. These kids work extremely hard and I'm expecting good things from all of them."

The Seminoles' starting lineup is as follows: Dan Misurata (103), John Bass (112), Cornelius Bennett and Ryan Valerino (119), Thomas Brindle (125), Larry Nathan (130), Trent Schake (135) and Andy Blake (140).

Others include James Bass (145), Kevin Nathan (152), Troy Rollins (160), Scott Gipe (170), Julius Bennett (189), Mitch Wiggs (220), and Keith Switzer (195).

Maolini feels that grooming his own athletes instead of implanting newcomers to his program will be more than beneficial when the time comes for reversals, takedowns, and pins.

"We have some good leadership this year," Maolini said. "We don't have the all-stars of

Rams set lofty goals

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

When it comes to wrestling in Central Florida, there is one school that stands above the rest year after year. Lake Mary wrestling, which has become a dynasty over the years under head coach Doug Peters, looks toward another winning season filled with pins and victories.

"I think that we are just as good if not better than last year," Peters said of this year's squad which is ranked sixth in the state. "But we're a very dedicated team and I hope they can be dedicated enough to train me of the goals that we have... for ourselves."

After winning the conference, district, and regional titles for the past five years, the Ram matmen hope to get over the hump at the state meet and give Lake Mary its first wrestling state title in the school's history.

"We've climbed the ladder each year," Peters said of the Rams' luck at the state meet.

"We've taken 12th, 9th, and last year we took 5th, so our goal is to win a state championship. I think we have a good enough team to challenge for the state title."

Peters returns many state-class wrestlers this season and a couple of district champions in the lineup. Jeff Johnson and Robert Doniero start off the Rams lineup at 112 followed by district and conference champion Aaron Jordan at 119. Kevin Berry checks in at 125 with district champion and regional runner-up Dan Saeco weighing in at the 130 slot.

The remainder of the Ram lineup is as follows: David Petrone (135), Jose Carbia (140), Jason Belknap (145), Shane Stanley (152), Carl Bergman (160), Justin Naumovitz (171), Ori Kantor (188), Allen Lewis (220), and Chris Brael (195).

"We've got a lot of superstars, but the other guys have a lot of experience," Peters said. "Most of those kids were undefeated in the JV lineup last year."

The Rams boast one of the toughest schedules to ever be put together as they battle Miami Southridge, Miami Sunset, and Sarasota which is the number one team in the state. However, Peters feels that this type of schedule is what the Rams need in order to be prepared to challenge for the state title.

"If things go our way, we've got a very good shot at it," Peters said. "All of the pieces of the puzzle are there. We've got a tough schedule, experienced wrestlers, and things have definitely moved in our direction. We're not a young school any more and now we've got a solid program."

"Our key is our depth though. That's what makes us better than last year. We've replaced the seniors we lost last year. We've got a lot of work to do, but by tournament time we should be ready."

The Rams open their season this Friday at home against Ocala Forest. The junior varsity match begins at 6:30 and the varsity match starts at 7:30.

'Hounds working hard for coach Hess

By DAVID CORCORAN
Herald correspondent

At Lyman High there is a strong smell of sweat on the mats these days.

That's because the Greyhounds are trying to get their takedowns to a point of making their hard driving coach, Jeff Hess, happy. But Hess wasn't in a good mood, and he told his wrestlers, "to do it again, and again until it's right."

That's usually the case when you have to mold a group of young athletes that are raw in talent at first, but at the end they usually end up being champions.

And Hess, in his second year at Lyman, believes that "you do your best regardless, you don't preach for a state title... you only tell a kid to do the best he can. But if he wants to be the best, he has to pay the price."

Hess, has a top coaching background, as he began his career at Stuart Martin County. And in his first year there, SMC went 14-1, and finished 10th in the state in Class 3A. Two years later, Hess was hired to make the Greyhounds into a quality program.

"I'm planning on three years to see results," as the 'Hounds were 8-7 last year and finishing second to Lake Mary in the Seminole Athletic Conference.

But the 'Hounds have been hit hard by the loss of several seniors, and the team of '88-89 will be one of the youngest teams in the county as there are 14 freshmen, 13 sophomores, three juniors and just two seniors on the squad.

The top wrestlers for the Greyhounds will be seniors Dave Mangel (130 pounds), the team captain, and Derek Moore (109 pounds). Hess does feel that he has the foundation for the future with Thomas Caligutti (sophomore, 171 pounds), Willie Giampos (freshman, 112 pounds) and Danny Giannino (sophomore, 140 pounds).

Hess also feels that "it's a good thing that we had so many seniors last year, because this year I can mold the team in my philosophy."

The Greyhounds open their season at home this Saturday night by hosting a four team meet that includes Cocoa Beach, Lake Brantley and DeLand, starting at noon.

GEARY BUILDS LIONS
Mark Geary is the man with the plan. He hopes his young Oviedo Lions wrestling team will be one that will strike fear into many an opponent this season.

This is Geary's first year as the Lions coach and he said that "we have to develop the talent from the bottom, and work our way to the top."

There is some good young talent on the Lions roster, like Ken Schrupp (204) who won the district and regional crowns last year, and lost in the semifinals of the state tournament, and senior Brian Boxley (160 pounds).

But the future of the team will come from a group of three sophomores and two freshmen with Mark Stubb (sophomore-heavyweight) who could be a great one but only lacks experience and freshmen Nathan Prior (103 pounds) and Tyler Rothschild (220 pounds).

The wrestling Lions of Oviedo High School may not have many bright moments this year, but with guys like Schrupp, Boxley, Stubb and Prior they could pull off a few surprises when the districts come up this season.

WILDCATS EYE BIG YEAR

Winter Park's Wildcats have a top heavy team as far as talent is concerned (22 returning varsity lettermen), and two of the premier wrestlers in Orange County in Fernando Astacio and Rick Sandoval.

Johnny Rouse, who returns for his 15th season as the Wildcats' head coach, said of his two superstars, "they are as good as any in the state, and having these two on the team makes my job as a coach that much easier."

Astacio, a 112 pound junior, went 19-6 last year and Sandoval went 30-3. Both are considered major college prospects.

But if you don't think that's enough, the Cats also have seniors Joe Wallace (130 pounds), Russ Auer (135 pounds) and Chris Greiner (220 pounds) on hand to give Rouse a team that could be as good as his 1976-77 squad that was second in the state.

The Wildcats had a very good year in 1987-88, going 10-5 and finishing second in the regionals. The Wildcats' first major test will come in the Lyman Christmas Tournament (Dec. 9-10) that also includes Seminole County kingpin Lake Mary.

Anderson, Hatters gun down Bethune

By DAVID CORCORAN
Herald correspondent

DAYTONA BEACH — The Stetson Hatters, behind forward Randy Anderson's 21 points, defeated the Bethune-Cookman College Wildcats, 79-68, Wednesday night before 701 fans at the Ocean Center.

"We were very pleased with the win," said Hatters' head coach Glenn Wilkes, as the Hatters improved their record to 2-0. The Wildcats are 1-1 on the season.

BCC controlled the tempo in the early stages of the first half as the Wildcats took an early 8-2 lead, due to some hot outside shooting. BCC's quick start "had me worried at first," according to Wilkes, but the Hatters went from a zone to a man-to-man defense, and forced the Cats to go to a more physical type of game closer to the basket. And it got the Cats into early foul trouble, especially their biggest player, 6-6 center Tim Jones.

After that, Stetson slowly took control of the game, as the taller, quicker Hatters found their shooting touch, especially Anderson, the Hatters' pre-season All-American candidate. Anderson, who missed the first two games because of a suspension, saw his first action of the season at the eight minute mark of the first half, and quickly made himself a force in the game.

For the night, Anderson scored 21 points in 30 minutes of play, had seven rebounds and was 7 of 8 from the free throw line.

Other Hatters also had strong performances, with senior point guard Terry Johnson scoring 10 points and dishing out five assists, as well as forward Torbjorn Gehrke scoring 13 points and hauling down five rebounds.

Wilkes also praised forward Eric Cumble, who despite not scoring played a strong inside game that enabled the Hatters to get several fast break baskets, especially in the second half.

With the Hatters leading 33-30, they broke open the game with a 21-6 run to take a 54-36 lead, and coasted the rest of the way.

Another key for the Hatters win was their excellent outside shooting, as they shot a club record 89 percent (8-9) from three point range.

Flagler stuns Rollins, 72-67

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald correspondent

WINTER PARK — Senior Greg Gilmore got the game-winning field goal, but Clay Worden prompted a change of defense that enabled Flagler to erase a 48-39 halftime deficit and defeat Rollins, 72-67, Wednesday night before 528 fans at Enyart-Alumni Fieldhouse.

Gilmore, who played at DeLand High School and Daytona Beach Community College, wished a long-range jumper to send the Saints to a 70-67 advantage. And Wildwood's James Presley (team-high 14 points) secured Flagler's fourth consecutive victory with a pair of free throws four seconds before Rollins sustained its first loss.

"We were trying to get the ball inside to Presley, figuring he'd either get the inside shot or get fouled and make the free throw," Gilmore said. "I told myself we could work it down until it got closer to the end, but when I was so wide open I let the shot go."

Long before Gilmore's three-pointer finished off the Tars (1-1), Worden approached Flagler Coach Bo Clark and asked to guard Rollins' guard Dan Wolf. Clark, stirred by Worden's motivation, ordered the Saints to switch from zone to man-to-man for the second half.

"The zone was giving Wolf too much time to shoot (in the first half)," said Worden, one of three returning starters this season. "I told coach at halftime that if we played man-to-man, I could stop him."

Worden handcuffed Wolf, who had three of his game-high 23 points after intermission. As a team the Tars accounted for 19 second-half points, connecting on 7-of-20 from the field following a torrid first half (17 of 26, 65.4 percent).

Meanwhile, the Saints limited their turnovers by going to a deliberate offense much of the second half, working the ball inside at times and bombarding the Tars from long range by way of Worden and Gilmore. After shooting 39.5 percent (17-43) from the floor in the first half, Flagler connected on 13-of-22 (59.1 percent) in the last half. Four-of-six came from three-point land.

Worden's three-pointer with 3:37 remaining tied the score 67-67 — the first time the teams were deadlocked since the opening minutes.

"The whole key was us controlling the tempo in the second half," said Clark, a former Division II All-American and national scoring leader at UCF in the late 1970's. "We were down by eight to 10 points when we decided to go to the slow down offense. We'd take it to the basket and then pull it back out for the jumper."

Pioneers

Oak Ridge and Mainland will play Friday night at 7:15 in semifinal action.

Oak Ridge, led by the high-scoring duo of Willie Fisher (game-high 23 points) and Alonzo Harris (22) exploited Seminole's interior defense to the max Wednesday night, scoring nearly 80 percent of its points in the paint.

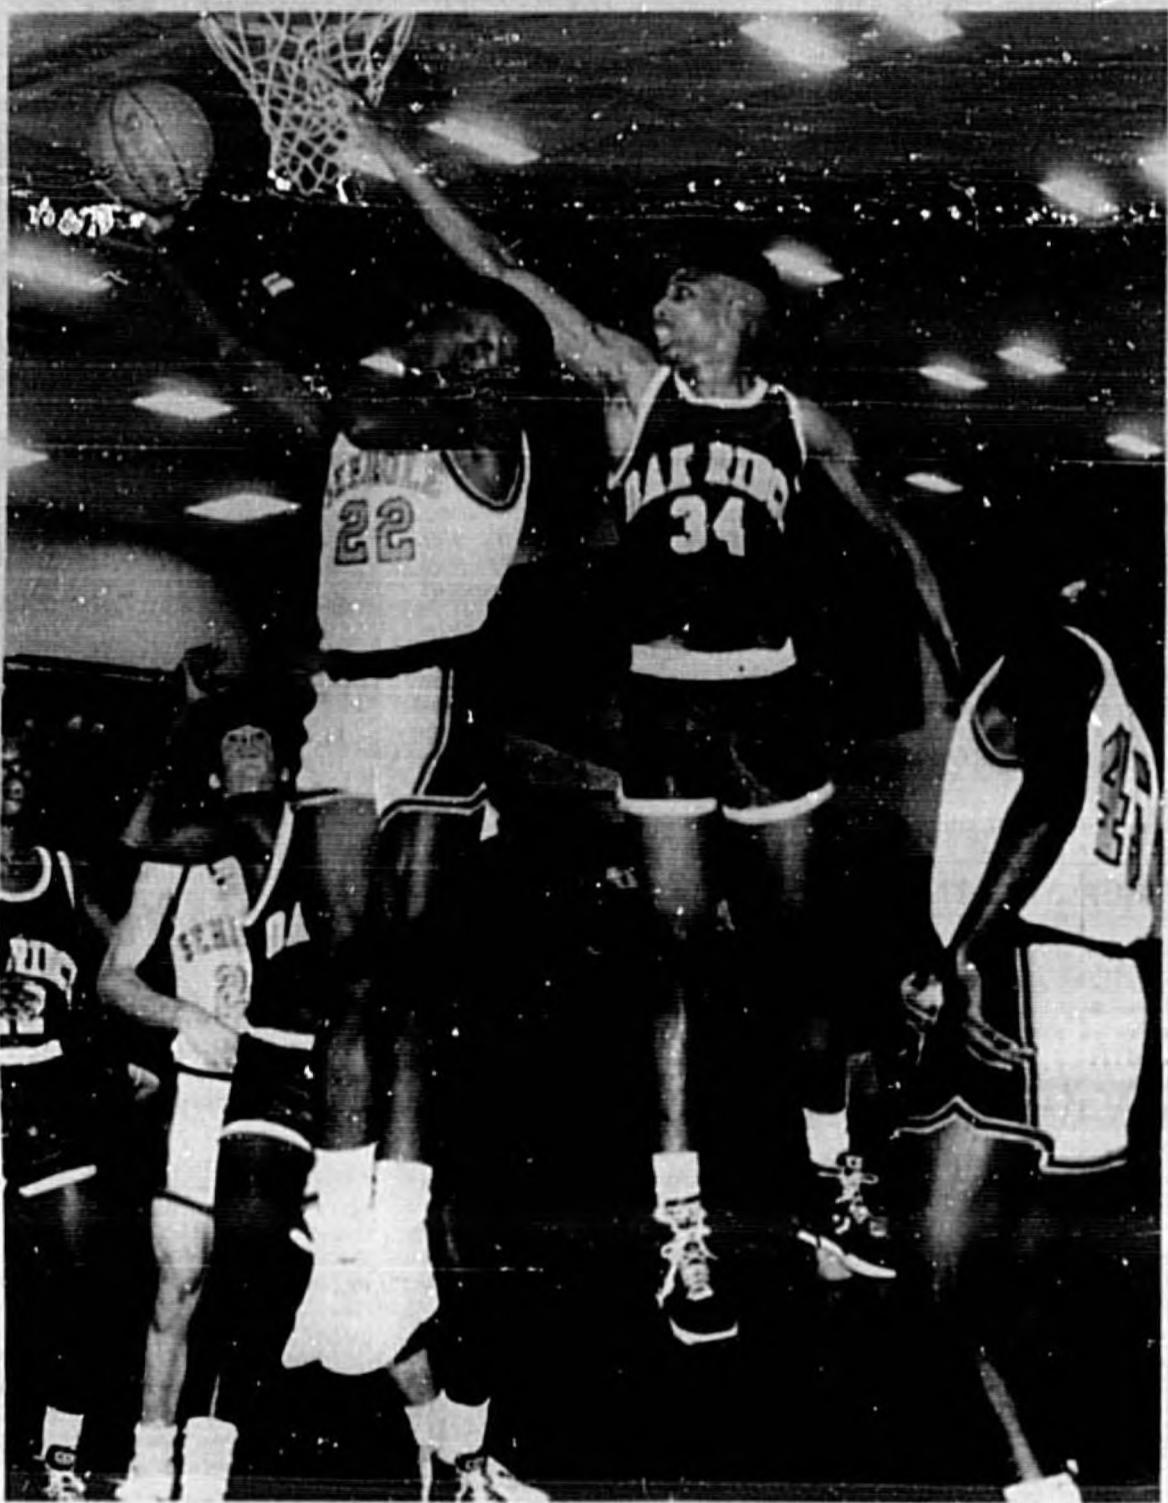

"I was disappointed in our defense in the first half," Robinson said. "We would turn our backs to the ball, and they'd go back door for an easy basket. We started to play defense and got after them in the second half and they only outscored us 35-31 in the second half."

Seminole did stay close for a few minutes and even took the first lead of the ballgame when Tony Tickenoff hit a jumper from the free throw line for a 2-0 lead. The 'Noles hung within 6-5 when Harris converted a three-point play to start a nine-point Oak Ridge run that resulted in a 15-5 lead. The Pioneers went on to take a 19-7 lead at the end of the first period.

Behind the play of Von Eric Small and Bernard Eaddy, Seminole stayed within 12 points early in the second period, but the Pioneers then shifted gears and left Seminole in the dust. Fisher scored 14 of his 23 points in the second period as Oak Ridge built a 40-20 halftime lead.

Oak Ridge led by as much as 30 points in the second half before Robert Moore and Sam Ayers led a late comeback to make the final 75-51. Moore led Seminole with 12 points while Tickenoff finished with 10. Ayers contributed eight and Eaddy tossed in seven.

Oak Ridge's ability to score inside almost at will was the main cause of the 'Noles demise, and the turnover factor also reflected Seminole's inexperience. Seminole committed Seminole's Brandon Cash goes to the reverse side to ward off the block attempt of Oak Ridge's Willie Fisher. Fisher pumped in 24 points in the Pioneers' 75-51 victory Wednesday night.

23 turnovers compared to only 10 for the Pioneers.

"Oak Ridge is a fine ballclub," Robinson said.

"They're one of the best we'll play this season."

Hoops

Forward Ricky Blanton powered LSU, 1-1, with 27 points.

In the top 20 Wednesday, No. 1 Duke routed East Carolina 95-46, No. 9 Arizona trounced New Mexico 80-67, No. 17 Villanova topped St. Francis 70-60.

At Durham, N.C., Alaa Abdelnaby made all 9 of his shots from the floor to improve to 19 for 19 this season and give Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski his 250th career victory. The 19 straight baskets by Abdelnaby is an Atlantic Coast Conference record.

"Nine for nine should not be that unexpected," he said. "I was in position to score. The guys on the perimeter are doing a good job of giving me the ball and leading me to the basket."

At Tucson, Ariz., Harvey Mason scored 20 points, including 8 in a 22-6 burst that opened the second half, to rally the Wildcats. Sean Elliott had 17 points and Anthony Cook 14 for the Wildcats in their season opener. The Lobos fell to 2-3.

At Loretta, Pa., Doug West collected 21 points and 7 rebounds to lead Villanova. Rodney Taylor added 12 points and 9 rebounds as the 17th-ranked Wildcats improved to 3-1. St. Francis, which received 23 points and 7 rebounds from Joe Anderson, dropped to 1-1.

Elsewhere Wednesday it was Pittsburgh 75, Robert Morris 62; St. John's 86, Fairleigh Dickinson 55; Virginia 75, Arkansas 65, and DePaul 66, Maine 46.

Mika Gaskill slices in for a layup in Wednesday's Mid-Florida Conference game vs. FCC-Jacksonville. Gaskill and the Raiders of SCC came out on top in the MFC opener for both teams.

Raiders

Seminole would get close, though. FCC-J would up the lead right back to six or eight points.

The Stars built their biggest lead of the half, 22-14, when Larry Hall converted a three point play followed by a steal and layup by Dennis Barnes with 8:05 to play.

SCC then shifted the momentum in its direction and reeled off 13 consecutive points. William "Wimpy" Woods then stroked a three point field goal followed by an Emerson bucket. Woods then came up with a brilliant steal and fed Terrell Barnes for a slam with 6:35 to play. Barnes then came up with a steal and fed Robert Thomas for a scored followed by a T.J. Scaletta jumper. Emerson completed the run with a short jumper that gave the Raiders a 27-22 lead with 4:51 remaining.

Brooks ended FCC-J's drought with a hoop with SCC's Thomas countering with a three point field goal. The teams traded buckets until Brooks converted on a three point play to narrow the lead to 32-29 at the half.

The two teams played evenly in the second half also with FCC-J making up the three point difference and taking the lead, 45-42, with a six point run midway through the second half.

Rishard Brown cut the lead to one with a bucket at the other end before Hall hit consecutive field goals to give the Stars a 48-44 advantage with 11:10 to play.

FCC-J coach Buster Harvey was then whistled for a technical foul and Nick Milledakis calmly sank both free throws. Woods followed with a three point field goal before Emerson came up with a steal and a layup to give the Raiders a 51-48 lead with 9:44 remaining.

The Stars made a quick run led by a three point field goal by Neil Orr and field goals by Dennis Barnes and Jack Skipper that gave them a 53-52 lead with 8:12 remaining. SCC could not find the range as FCC-J ran off six more points, capped off by a Orr field goal off a steal with 7:07 to play that upped the lead to 59-52 and forced Seminole to call timeout.

Emerson then came alive for the Raiders and, for the next five minutes, couldn't be stopped. He began with a three point play with 6:55 remaining and added another three point play after a FCC-J field goal with 6:29 left to play.

Terrell Barnes then connected on two free throws before another inside hoop that gave Seminole a 64-61 lead. The Stars then came up with a field goal by Brooks countered by a Brown field goal for SCC.

The Raiders then put together a strong run and put the game away. Thomas began the run with a short jumper off the break, Emerson added an inside hoop followed by one of two free throws by Thomas. Emerson then put down a short jumper and SCC built a 73-65 lead with 2:02 to play.

The teams then traded buckets with Woods throwing down three big free throws during the final minute of play. "We came from the Gulf Coast

High scoring night in SAC girls soccer

By CHRIS PISTER
Herald sports editor

Like scoring goals, don't ya. That's about all a few delirious goalkeepers could think of to say Wednesday night in Seminole Athletic Conference soccer action. About every time the keepers turned around, the ball was in the net in Lake Brantley's 7-0 thrashing of DeLand and Lake Mary's 6-0 rout of Oviedo.

At Lake Brantley, Stacey Fox led the scoring parade with a career-high four goals and Jennifer McMaster dealt out three assists in the Lady Patriots' whitewashing of DeLand.

At Oviedo High, Donna Rohr came up with her second hat trick of the season and Michelle Mattingly had three assists in Lake Mary's fourth consecutive shutout victory.

Also on Wednesday, Lyman didn't exactly light up the scoreboard, but struck quickly with two goals in the first half in a 2-0 victory over Seminole High.

Lake Brantley ran its record to 2-1-1 overall and 1-0 in the conference. Brantley returns to SAC action Friday night at Lyman High and the Lady Patriots go to Tampa Leto on Saturday.

The Lady Patriots converted on seven of 21 shots on goal while the defense, led by Eva Snider and goalkeeper Kimi Kurz, limited DeLand to three shots.

Following Fox in the scoring column was McMaster. Tara Harding and Cindy Becker with one goal each. Beth Schaefer added two assists with Dawn Douglas and Joyce Tullis getting one assist each.

In junior varsity action on Wednesday Lake Brantley and DeLand played to a 1-1 tie. Janice Feldman scored the goal for Brantley with the assists going to Carrie Larson and Shannon Seaver.

Lake Mary, in running its record to 4-0, completely dominated its match with Oviedo (3-2). The Lady Rams fired 19 shots on goal while holding Oviedo to just one shot. Goalkeeper Tammy Scott recorded her fourth shutout while Amy Paschoal and Sandy Powell turned in superb defensive efforts.

Lake Mary opened the scoring four minutes into the match on an unassisted goal by Amy Alexander. Rohr then scored off a Mattingly assist and Crissie Snow's goal off another assist by Mattingly, made it 3-0 at the half.

In the second half, Rohr scored on an assist by Dana Hoover. Snow scored her second goal off Alexander's assist and Rohr completed the hat trick on Mattingly's third assist to make the final 6-0.

The Lady Rams hit the road this weekend as they play at Clearwater Central Catholic on Friday and go to Tampa Gather Saturday.

Lyman opened play in the SAC on a successful note and raised its overall record to 1-1-1. The Lady Greyhounds have a big match Friday at home against Lake Brantley.

Seminole now stands at 3-1 overall and 1-1 in the SAC. The Lady 'Noles host Oviedo Friday night, then entertain West Orange Saturday afternoon.

Lyman struck for two goals in the first half, then rode the defensive play of sweeper Julia Callarman and goalkeeper Becky Carr to the victory. Lyman had 12 shots on goal compared to Seminole's seven.

After Lyman was the offensive aggressor in the first half, Shannon Sundvall, Jennifer Lindamood and Melissa Shuckman led Seminole in the second half. The Lady 'Noles threatened several times but could not get one in the goal.

Group giving holiday cards for the blind

ORLANDO — Trained volunteers of the Braille Association of Mid-Florida will be on hand Saturday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. to transcribe holiday or greeting cards.

The organization will provide both cards and personalized Braille transcriptions for no charge. The cards feature embossed Christmas scenes so that the scene outlines can be felt.

1989 calendars, also featuring embossed scenes and Braille lettering, will be on sale for $2 each.

Ruth Baughman, treasurer, said all of the association's services are free, except the calendars, which include expensive materials.

The organization also transcribes textbooks for children in Braille, the written language for the blind that uses six raised dots in different combinations to represent letters and numbers.

Not more than 25 volunteers make up the association, Baughman said.

"We need ladies who've put their last child in school and need something to do," she said of the group's need for volunteers. Those who do Braille transcriptions (which are done at home on a typewriter-like machine) need to have had a year's training in Braille, she said.

For those who have know Braille background but would like to volunteer services, the Braille association needs those who will produce "talking books" by reading textbooks aloud and recording their voices. Master copies of the recordings are retained by the association, which reproduces them for institutions across the country as they have need.

Another volunteer need of the association is for those who will make thermoform copies of Braille textbooks, Baughman said. The thermoform machine is like a photocopying machine, melting plastic over the mold of a Braille textbook page.

Baughman said all transcripts and recordings are proofed, so that the association enjoys a good reputation.

For more information about Braille Association of Mid-Florida Inc., call Ruth Baughman at 273-4432. Anyone who would like Braille greeting cards but cannot stop by Colonial Mall on Saturday may call Baughman at the same number or write her at 1031 Malaga St., Orlando, FL 32807.

Beading, sequins add drama

Newspaper Enterprise Assoc.

Holidays inevitably bring thoughts of shimmering lights and colors. This year, designers have definitely taken their cue from tradition and offer a dazzling array of jewels, sequins and beads.

In every clothing category—from evening gloves to floor-length evening dresses—beading and sequins are major accents. While the overall theme of winter's styles is that of sleek, understated elegance (unlike the pinched and puffed costume looks of a mere year ago), the addition of beading and embroidery to these leaner silhouettes makes for drop-dead glamour.

This past summer, the Paris couture shows set the stage for embellished fashions. Major designers like Yves Saint Laurent, Jean Patou and Jean-Louis Scherrer offered beaded and embroidered styles. And when couturiers look to beaded fashions, they look to one man, Francois Lesage, the Parisian master designer of embroideries.

It is said that Lesage supplies 50 to 90 percent of the embroideries used by French couturiers. Besides Saint Laurent, Scherrer, Chanel and Patou, other French houses like Dior, Nina Ricci and Givenchy utilize Lesage's talents. Here in Satin dress features a hand-painted beaded bodice and diagonal peplum over a black velvet skirt ($1,200). A reversible satin stole ($200) accompanies the dress.

America, Oscar de la Renta and Bill Blass turn to Lesage for embroideries.

According to Lynn Manulis, president of the prestigious Martha Shops in this country,

"Lesage is the sole person responsible for supplying traditional haute-couture styles with a fresh new look."

In current collections from American designers, customers will find all-over beaded jackets topping long evening sheaths from Blass—a slim black gown that commands attention, thanks to its yellow and red beaded jacket. At de la Renta, black damask evening pants are topped by a black velvet jacket bordered in brilliant red embroidery.

The chemise, also popular this year, can shimmer as well. Designer Marc Bohan at Christian Dior offers chemises completely covered in paillettes. Floor-length sheaths from America's Bob Mackie are beaded head to toe in the kind of sensuous entry-maker that recalls Jean Harlow or Marilyn Monroe. Mackie is well known for the hold-your-breath beaded styles he has created for Cher and numerous other Hollywood leading ladies.

Sequins are one of the oldest ornaments used on clothes. In the 1800s, sequins were made of gelatin; today, fortunately, they are of lighter-weight plastic. Their popularity seems to never wane.

As go the major designers, so go more affordable interpretations of their direction.

Retiring tax collectors got a party

SANFORD — A double retirement called for a double party Nov. 19 for G. Troy Ray Jr. and Sally R. Lipsey, retiring as Seminole County tax collector and assistant tax collector respectively.

The place was the Riverboat Romance in Sanford. Ray's entire staff, who sponsored the party, as well as other guests and family members showed up at the affair.

Ray began with the office in January 1965 and Lipsey in August 1956.

Albums showing different events in the retirees' lives were displayed.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of two portraits to the honorees. Sanford artist Ashby Jones had been commissioned by the party-givers to paint two portraits of the old courthouse and presented them to the honored guests.

At right, G. Troy Ray Jr., Seminole County tax collector, receives congratulations from his wife, Barbara, at his retirement party Nov. 19. Below, Sally R. Lipsey, retiring as assistant tax collector for the county, is surprised at the same party as her husband, Cecil, escorts her.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

The play of any contract is influenced by several factors: how many tricks declarer must take, for example, or even whether the final contract is doubled. The right play in today's six-heart contract is determined by the opening lead. Plan your own play after the queen of spades lead, but do not look at the East-West cards. The queen of spades lead gives declarer a small margin of safety in the play. Since the contract is for only 12 tricks, he can afford to sacrifice one trick if doing so will increase his chances of making the slam. The key to success is to set up extra winners in the diamond suit and then be able to get to dummy to use them. South should win the king of spades, play one high trump from his hand and then lead a low diamond and duck it in dummy. He can then win whatever the defenders return, play a diamond to dummy's ace and ruff a third diamond high. He can then play two more rounds of trump, ending in dummy. The remaining high diamond honor should pick up the last outstanding diamond, and dummy's long diamond becomes the slam-going trick. This approach in the play wins whenever diamonds are 4-2, although it sacrifices a trick when the diamonds divide 3-3. Why was the play affected by the opening lead? Had West led a club at trick one, declarer could not have afforded the luxury of giving the opponents a cheap diamond trick. He would then have had no choice except to get after diamonds and hope the suit was splitting evenly.

TUMBLEWEEDS

by T.K. Ryan

Conditions, medicine can cause nosebleeds

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have frequent nosebleeds. Could this be related to my high platelet count for which I take Myleran?

DEAR READER: Your frequent nosebleeds could be due either to your illness or to the medicine.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

Excessive platelets, the tiny blood cells that form clots, are often the hallmark of an underlying blood disorder characterized by disturbances in clotting. For example, acute infections, cancer — such as Hodgkin's disease and leukemia — and iron deficiency can cause an increase in platelets.

Myleran (bifrutin) is a potent drug used in the treatment of certain blood diseases, such as leukemia. It depresses the formation of blood cells in the bone marrow, including platelets. However, during treatment, the platelet count may temporarily rise.

Ask your doctor to identify whether your medicine or your condition is causing your nosebleeds and whether this is something about which you should be concerned.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I work for a road crew and in the course of my 25-year work life have been exposed to DDT, Q4D, Q4T, Dieldrin, Malibion and Capotan. I'm now having convulsions but tests are negative. Is it possible that chemical contamination could be the reason for my seizures?

DEAR READER: Yes, chronic exposure to the materials you mention could cause nervous system problems, including convulsions.

Of course, seizures can result from other causes, too. In my opinion, your doctor should order a blood test called a toxicology screen to measure the presence of dangerous chemicals in your system.

Also, your doctor will want to report your environmental exposure to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration so that other workers can be protected from the toxic compounds in your workplace.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Epilepsy: The Falling Sickness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My tongue turns black. Is this a recurrence of the leukoplakia I had 40 years ago?

DEAR READER: No. Black tongue (parasitic glossitis) is usually due to a harmless fungus infection. It is a common consequence of antibiotic therapy (which destroys the anti-fungal bacteria in the mouth) and can easily be treated with a variety of mouth washes. Ask your doctor to suggest an appropriate brand.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When I brush my teeth I also brush my lips. Will this do any harm?

DEAR READER: Aside from causing uncomfortable chafing and rawness, brushing your lips with a toothbrush is harmless, although I cannot imagine why anyone would want to engage in this practice.

Toys for tots now piling up

Six Orlando area offices will serve as official collection centers during the drive until Dec. 21.

Drop-off locations include: 180 Sausalito Blvd., Goodings Plaza II, Casselberry; 2160 W. Highway 434, Longwood; 7347 Sand Lake Road, Orlando; 937 N. Magnolia Ave., Orlando; 4207 Curry Ford Road, Orlando; and 170 W. Fairbanks Ave., Winter Park.

The Toys for Tots program has brought an estimated 60 million toys to underprivileged children in the United States. During 1987, more than 7 million toys were collected and distributed to 3.3 million children throughout the country.

The program was founded by Marine Corps Major William Hendricks with the aid of others.

Age questions getting old

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 32-year-old unmarried woman who happens to be very pretty and look younger than I am. I have a hard time dealing with people who ask me how old I am. I think that's a very personal question—like asking people how much they weigh, or how much money they make.

If I tell them the truth about my age, I get a backhanded compliment, like, "You look young for your age." If I lie, and they find out, I lose my credibility. One woman had the nerve to ask me my age in front of a crowd of people at a wedding. I was so angry, I lied. When people guess my age, nobody gets it right. They think I'm 24 or 25.

I'm starting a new job soon and I'm sure I'll be asked how old I am. How do I handle it? If I don't tell them, they will think I'm younger than I really am. If I tell them the truth, they will want to know why I haven't married at my age, etc. Please tell me how to deal with this.

AGE CONSCIOUS

DEAR AGE CONSCIOUS: The cardinal rule: Never lie. However, you do not have to answer a question simply because it was asked. No need to get defensive, sarcastic or hostile. The most effective dodge is to smile, look the person in the eye, and in a very pleasant tone say, "My goodness, that's a rather personal question that I choose not to answer. I hope you don't mind." Then change the subject.

ADVICE

Since you are asked this question often and it irritates you, I recommend practicing the above response before a mirror—and commit it to memory.

DEAR ABBY: I am 65 and so is my husband. While I am still working outside the home to make ends meet, my husband is gambling away a big part of our income in state, national and international lotteries. He doesn't buy just one lottery ticket; he buys 100 to increase his chances of winning.

He enters "contests" that require sending money and more money every time he "wins" a round. He orders merchandise and magazines we don't need in order to win something. He subscribes to cheap-looking newsletters that promise to send him the "secrets" of how to pick winning numbers.

Abby, we could get along very well with our combined incomes if he didn't gamble, but he denies that he is gambling! He says gambling is going to the races or playing the numbers.

Please check with Gamblers Anonymous and ask them if what my husband is doing is gambling. Answer soon. I fear for our future.

TIRED WIFE

DEAR TIRED: Regardless of how your husband tries to justify his spending money in order to "win" money, the name of this game is "gambling." You don't indicate where you live, but if there is a Gamblers Anonymous near you, urge him to go. It would be well worth the investment in time. He would soon learn what "gambling" is, and how to control it.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Pancakes, Santa go together in two breakfasts

SANFORD — Two unrelated "Breakfasts With Santa" will be sponsored on Saturday, Dec. 10, by organizations in Sanford to give kids the chance to tell Christmas wishes and receive gifts.

Parents are equally welcome to each breakfast. The School of Dance Arts of Sanford will add the theme of "A Nutcracker Fantasy" to its pancake breakfast at the Sanford Civic Center, 401 E. Seminole Blvd.

Seating begins at 7 a.m. and breakfast at 8 a.m. Beginning at 8:30 a.m. will be the entertainment—students at the school performing bits of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker."

Santa will arrive at 8:55 a.m. as the finale of the "Nutcracker Fantasy" and will have gifts for each child. Snapshots of children posing with Santa will be available for a fee.

Seats may be reserved at the breakfast for $7.50 each by calling 323-1900 from 9 a.m. to noon or 3-34 p.m.

"We feel so strongly about providing something for the children of Sanford that's a little special and something for the parents that's a little elegant, that they can share with their children," said Valerie Rye Weld, co-owner of the dance school.

About 325 people attended the school's Santa breakfast last year, Weld said.

The Pre-School Center of the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford is sponsoring its sixth annual "Breakfast With Santa" before the Sanford Christmas Parade takes place. Pancakes, sausage, juice and coffee will be served from 7:30 a.m. in the fellowship hall at Park Avenue and Fourth Street in downtown Sanford.

Children will be able to visit with Santa and receive a treat. Pictures will be available for $2.50 each.

After breakfast, all will take a short stroll to watch the parade.

Tickets and further information about the breakfast are available by calling the pre-school center at 321-1563. A donation of $3 for adults and children is requested.

Proceeds of the fund-raiser will go to purchase playground equipment for the non-profit pre-school center.
