On Her Mind

Speaking of a lobbyist whose lobby had failed, a senator said: "He tried to accept defeat with urbanity, but unconsciously he showed his chagrin. Poor chap, he reminded Mrs. Smythe. Mrs. Smythe called on a friend, expecting to be asked to stay for luncheon. But the friend didn't ask her, and so Mrs. Smythe, secretly much disappointed and put out, rose to go. She didn't intend in the least to show her regret, but involuntarily, as she put out her hand, she said, 'Well, goodbye, dear Mrs. Luncheon.'" - Utica Observer.

BUDGET OF OPINION JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME?

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH, "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

It is a question whether William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, is unfortunate or fortunate—whether he is a subject for sympathy or congratulation—in the nature of the criticism that has been directed toward him since he entered upon the duties of his office. While he was being attacked last summer for filling his chautauqua engagements, he took occasion to make it clear that as a public man he was a proper subject for criticism and should not utter a complaint in regard to it. Perhaps he would have stated the case more accurately had he said that as a public man, he was a subject for proper criticism; but Mr. Bryan has been in politics too long to indulge in such fine distinctions. The most he has ever asked for is fair play. This much his political foes have ever granted him.

The net result of the all-summer criticism was a showing through the records of the state department that, notwithstanding his chautauqua engagements, the business of his office had, under his careful personal supervision been most ably managed. You can have voluntary and generous testimony from the Washington correspondent of the Boston Daily Advertiser, a pronounced Republican newspaper, bearing upon this matter. Says this correspondent, under date of December 15: "He (Mr. Bryan) has done remarkably well in the department of state, and all events not in years has there been a more faithful and arduous worker there."

It has not been one of those secretaries just arriving for only half an hour of work, and sometimes not appearing for weeks. He comes early in the morning and remains late at night. This, it should be said, is in strict agreement with all other testimony on the subject. It should set at rest the charge that Secretary Bryan has at any time neglected public business.

Later criticism of him has been based upon the assumption that capable persons in the diplomatic service have been removed, and unfit persons appointed in their stead, that some of Mr. Bryan's political indebtedness might be wiped out; yet, it appears that with practically only one exception, all the important diplomatic appointments have been made by the chief magistrate himself. This has been the case. It is positively asserted, in the appointments to London, Rome, Berlin, Vienna, Madrid, St. Petersburg and Constantinople. The solitary exception to the rule has been the appointment of George Fred Williams of Massachusetts as minister of Greece.

It is hardly necessary to dwell on this matter. It carries with it all the emphasis that is necessary. Manifestly, Mr. Bryan's critics have thus far failed to make a case against him. They have only succeeded in strengthening him in the esteem of all right thinking people. For this reason it would seem ungracious to offer him sympathy.

Is the game worth the candle? Some time ago a travelling salesman committed suicide in a hotel and left a note saying that he had lived forty years alone, had seen life as he thought it existed, but burned the candle at both ends and was tired of living and had decided to end it all. He had never really lived, although he thought he was living when he was spending his money with lavish hand on himself and for his own selfish desires. He had no family ties, probably thought there was no one to love him, loved nobody and cared but little what his life was, although he had made it. This is one picture of a man throwing away the life that God gave him. A picture of a bachelor living for himself and within himself and coming to the point where he was not even a unit in the great game of life, went out by his own hand and must face his Maker and give an account of a life wasted in the endeavor to gratify a selfish desire to live within himself. And yet his nature was probably so badly warped by his selfish desires that it was a blessing for no kith or kin to mourn his loss, although a good wife would have made him a different man and he would have lived for his family if for nothing else. This life is a great profusion and as the days go by it strikes me more forcibly that few of us are making use of each shining hour that brings us closer to the time of departure.

Liquor was undoubtedly the stumbling block to the man's career. Had he been a sober, industrious man his business affairs would have so occupied his time during the day that no thoughts of suicide could have entered his brain at night.

John Barleycorn usually takes his toll. And some there are who will not even let the sight of their loved ones come between their mad desire to drink, drink, drink, until forgetfulness comes between them and all love, honor, honesty, chivalry. A man the other day with a frail wife, a month's old baby, a two year old boy comes home heavily drunk, finds the wife in bed unable to lift a hand, throws the children out of the house and beats the wife so unmercifully that the neighbors stepped in and made him desist. He is arrested and sent to the gaug, falls ill, is sent home for better care. Meanwhile the family is suffering for the bare necessities of life. Kind neighbors look after them, but exposure and suffering kill the little boy and the father follows in a few days. The mother is desperately ill with the baby of tender years. The husband has gone to meet his Maker like the man who committed suicide, only the one thought he had nothing to live for and the other had much to live for but lived his worthless life in such a bestial manner that his going must have been a relief.

And yet both of these men were undoubtedly respected in their sober moments. Both of them, in their early childhood were the pride of doting parents who had fond hopes of their sons growing up and taking their places in organized society and making a mark in the world.

But both of them were obsessed with the thought of living for their own selfish desires to the exclusion of friends, relatives, family and both of them wasted their opportunities shamefully, wantonly and disgracefully and John Barleycorn was the cause.

Is the game worth the candle?

To gain information that would enable the department better to serve rural women, the secretary of agriculture addressed letters of inquiry to the women on 55,000 selected farms covering every county. Other surveys and studies were also conducted. Analysis of the small part of the letters as yet digested shows that farm women desire assistance in all phases of home management, especially as to ways of securing running water, introducing household power machinery and labor saving arrangements, and providing better hygienic and sanitary conditions. Many seek advice as to the better marketing of the articles they produce. Others ask the department to prove to the man that their work is worth something in dollars and cents. The overwork of women and children and difficulty of securing domestic help are mentioned by a number of the writers. These letters have furnished valuable suggestions for constructive work in this field. The department believes that intelligent help to women in matters of home management will contribute directly to the agricultural success of the farm. It proposes, therefore to ask congress for means and authority to make complete studies of domestic conditions on the farm, to experiment with labor saving devices and methods, and to study completely the question of practical sanitation and hygienic protection for the farm family.

Decision Reserved. An English seamstress, says the Manchester Guardian, who was helping to make some costumes for a Browning pageant, was asked if she had ever read any of the poet. "No," she replied, "I've never read any of that sort of stuff; not Browning, nor Shakespeare neither. But then you know," she added, "my mother has her own opinion about Shakespeare."

Task of Separation. How important loom the thousand and one things that fill the daily life, yet how trivial is the bulk of them! To separate the realities from the unrealities, the significant from the trifling and non-essential—that surely is the first step to self-knowledge, the one and only royal road to self-conquest.—Collier's Weekly.

Bar to Ants. If one is housekeeping in the country and bothered by an attack of ants upon the bread box, take a common piece of chalk, such as children use for writing on a blackboard, and draw a ring around the bread box with it. The same kind of chalk ring will keep them out of closets where dresses are hanging or away from shelves.

Heavy Penalty for Carelessness. A fine of $5,000 for losing a lock of hair belonging to the German poet, Goethe, was imposed on a St. Petersburg, Russia, lawyer recently. The lock had been pawned with the lawyer for $100 by its joint owners, the sisters Boehme, of Weimar, Germany, Goethe's birthplace.

FLORIDA NEWSPAPERS

Are you interested in any particular part of Florida? If you are send for the local newspaper published there.

The Tampa Times and the Tampa Tribune have both lately issued splendid special numbers that are not heard in their nature, but rather they cover practically all of south Florida except the east coast.

The Jacksonville Metropolis will this month publish what will probably be the largest booster number ever attempted by any Florida publication.

The Lakeland Telegram is probably one of the most potent papers in Florida. Its editor is a scholarly gentleman in attainment and his editorial is noted for their soundness and the common sense they contain.

The Sanford Herald helped build the Celery City of Sanford, and Editor Holly is one of the keenest political fighters in the state.

The Plant City Courier is second to none as a booster for its own community. It is published in the heart of the great early strawberry district.

Two are left to set the machine in operation. Many inquire for details about the system and perhaps it will be a considerable time before it is generally understood by the people.

The regional bank has a stock contributed by all the banks within that district which come into the system and which under the law are required to contribute a sum equal to 8 per cent of the capital and surplus of such banks.

It is not, however, in the mere organization, but in the power of the new bank that the country is expected to derive special benefit.

The 2 per cent bonds now outstanding and issued for the protection of the notes of national banks, are to be retired at the rate of $36,000,000 a year and in place of them will be government notes issued on 8 per cent bonds.

That, then is the system: It may be elaborated very much as to the powers and duties, as well as the privileges of the banks, but the system as it is set up stands on the basis of the central bank governing the regional boards.

THE EDITOR SCORED THAT TIME Editor Benjamin of the Ocala Star was put on the stand in a murder case on trial in his own town the other day to give his opinion as to what influence reading the papers had on jurors.

When Mr. Benjamin was asked his opinion as to the effect of newspaper articles on jurors, he caught a ripple of amusement by replying that if he was a juror he would not be guided in his decision by anything he saw in a newspaper.

ROLFE GOT NELLIE

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"I wish you to encourage young Benton in his attentions, Nellie," spoke John Andrews to his daughter. Nellie did not reply in words, but her face flushed and her head dropped. The word of John Andrews was law within his family circle and his wife rarely dared to gainsay him.

Mrs. Andrews looked very solemn. She did not attempt to repress an opinion, however.

"Joel Benton dropped in to see me at the office yesterday," pursued Mr. Andrews in his usual precise lawyer-like way. "He intimated his sentiments towards you, Nellie. He was urged on to it, he explained, because a bit of rare good fortune, as he expressed it, had come his way. As you know, he had his assistant at his store, Rolfe Wilson, are related to the wealthy Jared Jones of Pittston. The old millionaire has never paid any attention to them. Yesterday Benton received a letter and a draft for $5,000 from Mr. Jones. It notified him that he might consider this royal gift as an indication that he was figuring on finding an acceptable heir to his enormous fortune."

"That is news, indeed," murmured the marvelling Mrs. Andrews.

"So, Nellie," concluded her father, "there must be no more of this foolishness with Rolfe Wilson. The half to a million is not to be picked up every day. Benton is already a young business man of standing, while Wilson is simply his clerk. Between the two there is no question as to the right choice."

"Oh, mother!" cried Nellie, rushing to the side of Mrs. Andrews and burying her tear stained face in her lap.

The lady gently stroked the head of her darling and only child. She tried to speak soothing words and finally Nellie became calmer.

"There is indeed no question of choice between Rolfe and Mr. Benton," said Nellie forcibly. "Mr. Ben-

"What is the trouble?"

poor inherited the business he owned. Rolfe gave up every dollar of his rightful inheritance to pay the old debts of his father.

"It was a noble sacrifice, dear," spoke Mrs. Andrews.

"He has gone to work like a man and he is all there is to Mr. Benton's business," continued Nellie. "I don't care if Mr. Benton has a dozen millions, Rolfe has told me that he loves me, and I believe him and I will never marry anybody else."

Mrs. Andrews sighed in her patient helpless way. She realized that her husband was a masterful man whose decisions it was hard to defy.

"I hope love will find a way, dear," she said simply and Nellie felt cheered even by her poor sympathy.

There was no fiction to the $5,000 draft Mr. Andrews had told about, whatever vagueness might appertain to the million. All the town knew that Joel Benton had money very shortly, plenty of it, and was spending it like a royal prince.

Almost simultaneously with the cashing of the draft Benton walked into the store he owned.

"I'm going to take a spell of rest, Wilson," he said. "You can run things here."

"There is that debt to the city supply house," suggested Rolfe. "You know they are pressing for payment."

"Oh, I can't bother—let 'em wait. But you have plenty of money now."

"Yes, and I'm going to take one good thing and enjoy it," retorted Benton recklessly. "See here, old Jones will probably take me for all I'll need after this. I've a higher ambition than running a store. You know the business. How would you like to buy me out?"

"I haven't the cash."

"You've got some, I know. I'll be liberal. You assume that city debt and pay me $100 a month for six months and the store is yours."

"I will do that," assented Rolfe promptly and the bargain was consummated.

Before the end of that week Joel Benton gave the town such a stir that up as the quiet hamlet had never known before. He branched out as an incipient Croesus. The suits of clothes he bought must have come from Paris, his neighbors declared. He purchased a shining red automobile, some diamonds, and took an expensive suite of rooms at the hotel.

Lawyer Andrews tabooed Rolfe Wilson. He proceeded to cultivate Benton. The latter began to call at the Andrews home regularly, much to the discomfort of poor Nellie.

Her father saw his opportunity and proceeded to talk business to Benton. On the assumption that he was a favored heir of old Jared Jones, the young spendthrift secured an option on a residence at the outskirts of the town.

"I'll make it over to Nellie the day she is my wife," pledged Benton.

As to Nellie herself she tried to give her persistent suitor to understand that her heart could never be his. Amid the glamour of his dashing machine, expensive flowers and invitations to all the shows, however, Benton fancied he was irresistible. He insisted that there should be no engagement for the present and Benton was so obtuse that he attributed all this to conventional maidenly modesty.

The months rolled away. Once in awhile Nellie met Rolfe casually. Once a week letters expressing their mutual love passed between them. Rolfe was working hard. It was a great day for his ambitious soul when he found the last debt of the store paid, together with the regular monthly instalments to Benton.

"It's all up with me!" Benton amazed him by saying, bursting into the store one morning early and looking the picture of dejected misery and ruin.

"Why, what is the trouble?" inquired Rolfe.

"That $5,000 I spent most of it. What I did not I invested in a traveling motion picture show. The manager has made off with all the funds. Yesterday I wired Uncle Jared for another instalment on my fortune. He telegraphed me back that such a spendthrift didn't suit him as an heir and I had missed my chance."

"And what about Nellie?" inquired Rolfe.

"Oh, that's all off now, of course," announced Benton. "I think she put me off forgetting what a fool I'd make of myself. After all my big ideas and boastfulness I'll never dare to look her in the face again."

And then Rolfe Wilson felt so sorry for the poor broken up fellow that he offered him a one-half interest in the little business if he would get down to earth again and work as he used to do and Benton felt as grateful as a shipwrecked mariner landed safely in the home nest.

That was not all of it. One day Uncle Jared appeared at the little store and disclosed himself.

"I think you were silly in giving away half your business to a spendthrift," he said to Rolfe, "but it shows you're good all through. From what I hear, I fancy you will know how to take care of a big store I've bought for you at Malden and the rest of my fortune, when I get through with it."

Of course Joel Benton got the little store as a generous gift and of course Rolfe got Nellie, fortune and bride being well worth waiting for. (Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman.)

SAW ADVERTISING IN STORY

Banker Used to Advantage Situation Which Many Might Have Overlooked.

In one of the large eastern cities not long ago occurred a burglary that had more than the usual amount of human interest in it. So much so, in fact, that although the total loot was small—only about $2,000—the story got a first page position in all the dailies and excited a lot of comment. Condensed into a few words, the story was this: An Italian and his wife had been in America but a few years, yet they had managed to get into the fruit business on a small but comparatively profitable scale. With the idea of some day owning a home they had been extremely frugal and laid by a large part of their profits. With a distrust of banks they had hoarded these savings in a little trunk which was kept underneath the bed in their room over the shop. In some way the secret leaked out and burglars carried off the money, trunk and all.

A banker read the stories and saw at once that there was a "real life" incident that would make strong advertising copy for his savings department. Accordingly, he got out a lot of circulars, which led off with a reprint of the newspaper story and wound up with the moral that the only way to safeguard your earnings was to put them in a strong, reliable bank. These circulars followed close on the trail of the newspaper account itself and the results were wonderful. That stolen trunk was by no means the only example of unwise stored hoarding in the vicinity, and scores of people whose sense of caution had been aroused by the clever combination of newspaper story and advertising copy began to take the sugar bowls from the pantry shelves and the wallets from the excursions in the back yard and take their contents to the advertiser's bank.

Carlyle and the G. C. B.

Although Carlyle saw absurdity in the idea of himself as G. C. B., he was sensible of the compliment, Froude tells us. "He has never spoken of Disraeli except with contempt, but Disraeli was not given to malice on such points." In the letters pressing the Grand Cross on Carlyle he implied that he did not offer him a peerage because hereditary honor would be a mockery to a childless old man, and offered a life income suitable to the rank of G. C. B. The Chelsea omnibus conductor's comment to Froude on Carlyle's refusal of the honor is complete: "Very proper of the queen to offer it, and more proper of her to say that he would have nothing to do with it. 'Tisn't they who can do honor to the likes of her."—London Chronicle.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS LOCATION

FLORIDA MAY NOT REACH THE MARK AT HEARINGS

SEVEN CITIES OPPOSE

OTHER NEWS OF THE WORLD AT LARGE FRESH FROM THE WIRES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Jacksonville will not have as good an opportunity as its friends could wish to present its claims for a federal reserve bank. The official itinerary of the trip to be made by Secretaries McAdoo and Hamilton gives a hearing to Jacksonville at Atlanta on February 13th, but as seven cities are to be heard at Atlanta on that day it does not appear that any one of them will be able to present its arguments in a very thorough manner. The seven cities are Atlanta, Jacksonville, Chattanooga, Columbia, Savannah, Charleston, Birmingham and Jacksonville. Hearings in such a hasty microscopic manner are not likely to prove very satisfactory. Representative Knolly of Indianapolis, who is a member of the banking and currency committee has accepted an invitation to attend a meeting of bankers of Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, at Savannah, Georgia next Monday to explain to them the new currency system.

Statements learned today just what it was to employ Mr. William Jennings Bryan, the Secretary of State, to deliver a lecture. The official figures are $300 for an hour and a half's talk. This is a case of course, incidentals such as food. The price the statesman charges seems known through his having been paid this sum by the men who had charge of the fair at Leesburg, Va. Mr. Bryan sent them a bill after his lecture and it has been paid.

Yokohama, Japan, Jan. 16.—Many of the Kagoshima returned here today to find their homes battered into a mass of debris by the series of earthquakes that spread destruction and death in southern Japan. The refugees camped in open spaces, were supplied with food from Japanese warships. Expedition of the debris in Kagoshima has not progressed far enough to permit an estimate of the life loss. Thirty-three persons were rescued from a waste of floating lava at the foot of the volcano of Sakurajima today. Now no living being remains as far as known on the island of Sakurajima.

Doughton, Mich., Jan. 16.—Charles E. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was today indicted for conspiracy, together with other officials of the federation in connection with the strike of copper miners. The first count of the indictment charges conspiracy to prevent by force and arms the pursuit of their vocations by employees of the mining companies.

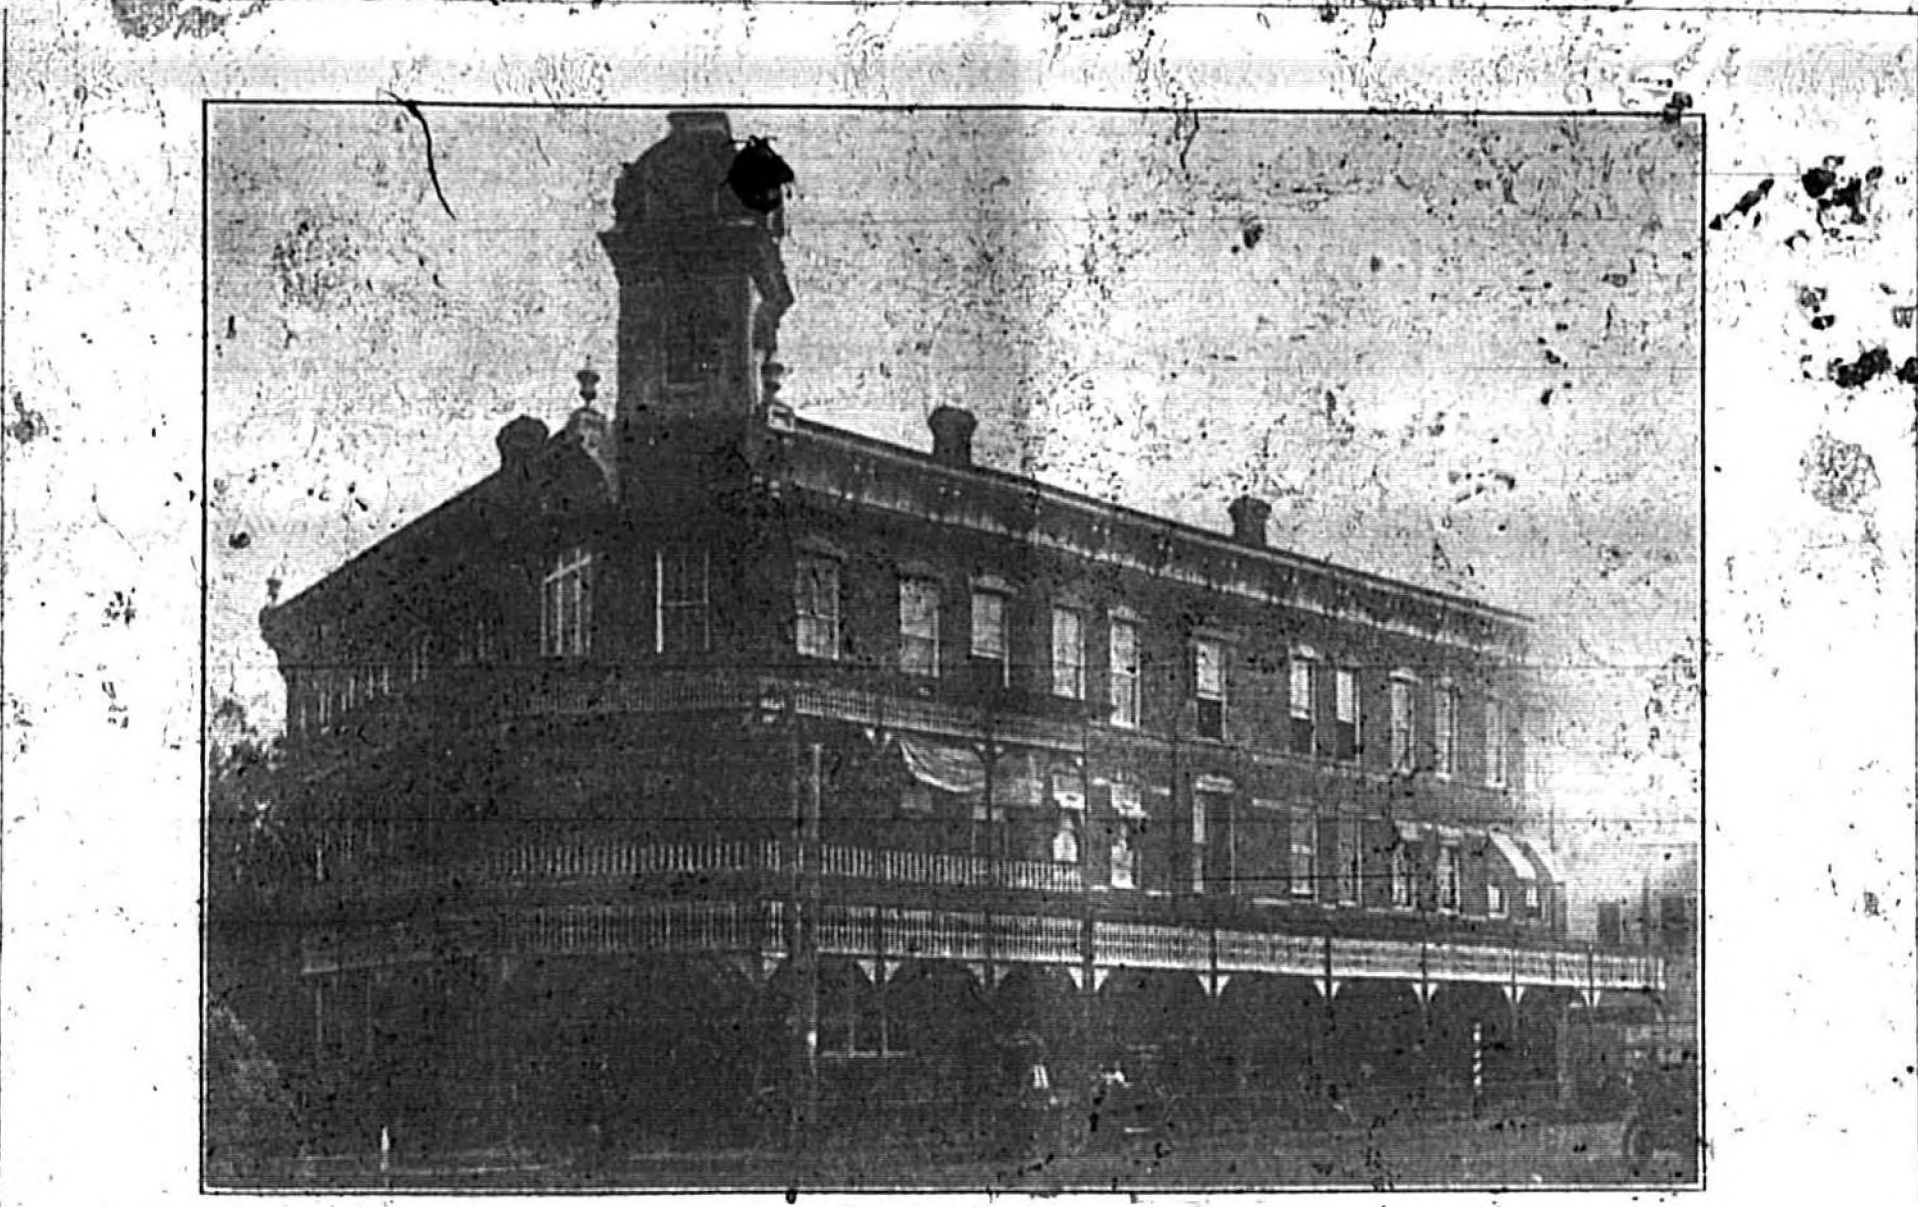

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Recent experiments conducted by the post-office department with the aim of increasing the weight limit of the parcel post have proved so successful that parcels weighing 100 pounds may be shipped soon by mail. The present weight limit of parcels is fifty pounds. "The 100-pound weight limit has no terrors for me," the postmaster general declared today. He expressed belief that 600,000,000 parcels would be transported through the mails during the year beginning July 1 next with a revenue of approximately ten cents each.

Mexico City, Jan. 16.—Americans here are alarmed and are preparing to leave the city. Retribution for the detention of members of the Federal garrison at Vera Cruz, who fled across the city when that city capitulated, is threatened and Americans in this city are preparing to appeal to the U. S. Embassy for protection. One railway line only—that from the capital to Vera Cruz—remains open and large numbers of subjects of the United States are departing hourly.

Missionary Society. The first business meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock in the church. The president, Mrs. H. H. Chappel, being unable to be present, Mrs. Mott presided at the meeting. After devotional services there were many plans, ways and means discussed and settled upon for the coming year, in which Mrs. Mott expressed many beautiful and helpful ideas, inspiring the hearts of those present with bright hopes for a prosperous and successful year.

THE FIRST SESSION OF CIRCUIT COURT IN THE NEW COUNTY OF SEMINOLE MARKS AN EPOCH IN THE BABY COUNTY

The first session of the Circuit Court of the new county of Seminole opened on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock with a large attendance. There were men here on Tuesday morning who had not been in Sanford before for twenty years and they came from every nook and corner of the county and from other counties. Court week in Seminole promises to be one of the steepest attractions and every time the "big court" meets there will be people here in attendance that would probably never come to the occupied the attention of the court for the greater part of the morning and is composed of the following members: G. W. Venable, foreman; J. F. Karnatz, clerk; A. B. Bolton, J. A. Thompson, R. R. Whitten, Albert Cruse, I. D. Hart, Sam Thomas, V. S. Arnett, G. E. Slack, E. L. Jones, E. G. Hodges, C. L. West, J. H. Lee, T. W. McClure, Alfred Erickson, G. W. Blackwelder. The most important business of the day was the trial of the case against F. W. Wilmott, who it was al-

The position taken by the attorney for the defense, Long of Starke, was that all the witnesses of any importance in the case were dead and nothing but written testimony could be adduced, hence the case was thrown out of court. At three former trials each resulted in a mistrial.

Among the other cases called and disposed of were the following: A. A. C. Co. vs. J. B. Taylor and F. B. Durham—Final Judgment. Gabe Davis vs. Atlantic Coast Line, transferred to Orange county. Mack Harris indicted for resisting an officer. Pleaded guilty and sentence suspended during good behavior. State vs. Alzgo Mack, transferred back to Justice Stringfellow's court. George A. DeCottes was sworn in as assistant state attorney.

The first hour of the morning session was taken up in the meeting of the people and various attorneys and the Big Judge and Prosecuting Attorney and various other court officials. Among the various legal lights in attendance were the local legal lights, DeCottes, Rowe, Wilson, Housholder, Rigby, Herring, Dickson, Powers and Thrasher. Giles, Davis, Victor Starbuck, Robinson, Joseph Jones and C. P. Dickinson of Orlando. Col. Bly of DeLand, E. L. Sparkman of Tampa, W. V. Long of Starke, E. J. Baldwin of Jacksonville and many others from adjoining counties who arrived later in the day. Court stenographer C. E. McCrory of DeLand is on the job early and late and one of the busiest attaches of the session. The first proceeding of importance was the empanelling of the grand jury which

SELECTING FEDERAL SITES IN FLORIDA

MANY STATES WILL HAVE PUBLIC BUILDINGS

SANFORD AMONG THEM

CONGRESS HAS AUTHORIZED THE PURCHASE OF SOME THREE HUNDRED SITES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Great activity in the selection of public building sites in Florida and other states will be displayed in the near future. Congress has authorized the purchase of about three hundred public building sites throughout the country and has provided an appropriation to pay for an inspection of the sites offered and make recommendations to the treasury department. All of these proposed sites must be inspected and the reports must be in by June 30 the close of the fiscal year, or otherwise the appropriation to employ the force will lapse. Consequently no time will be lost in dispatching the agents to the various towns that are to secure public buildings.

Florida Sites. In Florida sites are to be acquired at Lakeland, Key West, Kissimmee, Lake City and DeFuniak. The authorizations for these places are for the purchase of sites only. In addition, Federal buildings are provided for on sites not yet purchased at Palatka, Sanford, Apalachicola and Marianna. W. M. Holloway, former superintendent of public instruction in Florida, will inspect the sites in that state. In every instance the inspector will report to Byron Newton, assistant secretary of the treasury, his first, second and third choice. From these three Mr. Newton will make a selection. His choice is not final, however, until the attorney general of the United States passes upon the title to the property and pronounces it satisfactory. In investigating titles the attorney general necessarily relies upon the district attorneys in the various states. When the title is given the O. K. of the department of justice the site takes its place on a list to be reached in regular order.

Methodist Missionary Meeting

The regular monthly business meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church was held at the church last Tuesday, Jan. 13, at 3 p. m. The president being absent on account of illness, the fourth vice president, Mrs. M. P. West, presided over the meeting.

Very gratifying reports of the past year's work were read by the treasurer, Mrs. Abernathy and the vice presidents in attendance. Mrs. Mott in her report of the work of the fourth vice president very appropriately quoted the familiar lines touching upon our failures: "Nothing but leaves" Sad memory weaves "No veil to hide the past, And as we trace our weary way, And count each sad and misspent day, We sadly find at last, "Nothing but leaves"

These lines fittingly apply to the lives of many who might well ask themselves, "What have I done during the past twelve months for the moral, intellectual and spiritual uplift of the community in which I live? She made a very earnest plea that more and better work might be done during the year 1914 than was done the past year.

Many matters of important business were taken up and disposed of. Committees were appointed for the work of the new year. The ladies decided to hold a reception next Tuesday evening, Jan. 20th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abernathy in honor of the new pastor, Rev. Steinmeyer and wife, to which the entire membership of the church is invited.

I. O. O. F. Officers

The following officers of Sanford Lodge I. O. O. F. were installed last Monday night: N. G.—L. D. Wickers, V. G.—W. H. Wright, R. G.—W. S. Baldwin, Fin. Sec.—J. H. Ferguson, Treas.—W. R. Stone, Warden—J. C. Hall, Chaplain—J. J. Dickinson, R. S. & M. G.—C. F. Bronson, U. S. & U. G.—E. E. Tew, R. S. to V. G.—F. F. Dorner, L. S. to V. G.—C. C. Cobbs, Con.—G. E. Taratus, P. S. G.—W. P. Stone, P. S. G.—C. G. Morris, R. S. S.—J. Johnson, L. S. S.—B. H. Squires.

Flashes from the Bench

Among the eminent jurists attending court this week was Judge Minor S. Jones, formerly judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit. Judge Jones has a world of friends in this section and he was kept busy shaking hands with them. Judge Perkins likes a quiet and decorous court room and the judge's spittles in the court room the first day of court seemed to put a damper on the judge. As he did with some of the spittles. The new spittles (one couldn't call them spittles) were continually being used and Attorney DeCottes seemed to have a peculiar penchant for putting them about the time that every one would get quiet and finally Judge Perkins ordered them out of the room reserved for the attorneys and announced that if any of the high authority wanted to chew or smoke they could go outside and the spittles were banished from the judicial domain.

Shelton Hand looks up large in the court room. He is a handsome man and at one time in his career was a railway conductor before he fell by the wayside and became sheriff. Charlie is one of the biggest and best men in the county and his heart is just as big as his figure.

The former court stenographer for the Seventh was over six feet tall and the present one is about half that size but all the good things do not come in large packages and the present stenographer is just as efficient as the "Big one," although not as imposing in figure.

Court week in Sanford promises to be one of the big times for all concerned and will always be looked forward to by townspeople and country people.

at the evening service. Those who miss the rendition of these famous musicals will lose a very rare musical treat. The Sunday school is held at 9:45 in the morning and the numbers in attendance are gradually on the increase. The Brotherhood class is still keeping up the pace as the largest in the school. Stangers are invited to all these services on Sunday, as well as the Wednesday evening prayer service.

Special Speaker Sunday Night. Mr. Crooke, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Florida will deliver an address at the Baptist church next Sunday night. Mr. Crooke is an excellent speaker and in many places he uses the stereopticon in connection with his address. Arrangements will be made to accommodate at least 400 people for this service. All evening services begin at 7:00.
