Child care costs total billions

WASHINGTON — The average American family with employed mothers paid $49 per week for child care, according to the latest Census Bureau survey, which also showed today that child care is a $15.5 billion annual industry.

The 1987 Census figures disclosed that 29 million children of employed mothers were enrolled in child care programs. The cost of such programs increased $8 over the previous survey year, 1984-85, the Census Bureau said.

Other key survey findings showed:
• Most children of preschool age with employed mothers were cared for in a home environment, while their mothers were at work. Thirty percent were cared for in their own homes.

• Weekly child care costs were $57 in the Northeast and $43 in the South.

• Seven percent of employed mothers experienced a work disruption caused by the failure of a child care arrangement.

• Children living in poverty were more likely to be cared for in their own homes by grandparents and other relatives while their mothers were at work.

Lobster spared, sent to sea

CANONSBURG, Pa. — A 70-year-old lobster saved from a promotional raffle at a supermarket is now safe in Casco Bay off the Maine Coast, thanks to a shopper who wanted to keep him out of hot water.

Bonnie Hazen said she saw the 10-pound lobster's ugly face pressed up against the side of a glass tank in the Giant Eagle store and decided to rescue him.

Hazen negotiated with store managers to release Larry to her custody after talking with the Jacques Cousteau Society, which promised to get him out to sea if Hazen could get the crustacean to Portland.

The 16-inch-long lobster was dropped in the bay Sunday by the Maine Marine Patrol.

Saddam latest in line of Villains-of-the-Month

By David O'Reilly
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Just past midnight on Aug. 2, America suddenly had a new villain. His name was Hussein.

This was not the Hussein that most Americans knew — the small, mannered king of Jordan whose elegant wife grew up in New Jersey.

WASHINGTON — President Bush said Wednesday that the nations of the world must work together to "ensure that no goods get in — and no one drop out of oil gets out" of Saddam Hussein's Iraq.

On the eve of talks with King Hussein of Jordan, a country

Superintendent predicts OK of union pact

LAKE MARY — Supt. Bob Hughes does not see any obstacles in the path of the newly signed teachers' union contract in gaining school board approval.

"We made teachers' salaries a priority in this year's tight budget," he said. "We especially wanted to bring the starting salaries up to par with those of other districts."

In the terms of the new agreement, which is expected to be ratified by union members in a vote next week, the teachers of Seminole County will earn an additional 5.72 percent in salary for the 1990-91 school year. Combined with a new benefits package which includes insurance, retirement benefits and stepped raises based on a teacher's years of experience, they will re-

Longwood listens to future

By AMY WILSON

LONGWOOD — More than 100 Longwood residents filed into the Lyman High School auditorium last night to hear seven consultants speak on their city's future redevelopment and planning for that redevelopment at a town meeting.

After an overview of the strategic planning "Visions" process, initially sparked last fall after city commissioners attended University of Central Florida workshops on community improvement and carried through with two other town meetings, next came a presentation on Longwood's nomination to the National Register as a historic district.

Chalmer Yelding from the Yelding and Provost architectural firm, Orlando, announced that Longwood's name should appear on the list by the end of this month, offering a "major incentive to redevelop." Yelding explained that 20 percent of the money spent on restoration or redevelopment of a historic place

County delays vote on recycling program, solid waste ordinances

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Recycling for unincorporated Seminole County residents will be delayed one month because county commissioners want to be sure they have clear control of rates when mandatory garbage collection begins in Oct. 1991.

Residents won't be tossing their drink cans and milk bottles into plastic bins until Nov. 1, because commissioners delayed their vote on the program last night. Recycling was scheduled to begin Oct. 1 and 12 exclusive garbage collection franchise districts were to be established Sept. 1.

Commissioners will vote on the program Aug. 28. Gary Cinder, director of the county Environmental Services Department, said the solid waste ordinance establishing the franchises and recycling program has to be recorded with the Secretary of State before it can take effect. Cinder said haulers need time to shift to new territories.

During the first year of the program, garbage collectors can charge up to $13.80 for monthly service. Cinder said most residents will see an increase of at least $2.15 per month to help haulers defray recycling collection costs. But if a resident is paying $12 or more now, the most they will pay is $13.80 under the cap set by commissioners, Cinder said.

Although residents won't be able to change haulers if the price goes too high, they can still take garbage

Water association officers may resign

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

MIDWAY — Willie Cummings, president of the beleaguered Midway Canaan Water Association, said he and other association officers may resign in October and a growing outcry over high water rates.

"We're giving up," Cummings said. "We're getting tired of putting up with this. We've been running this business for 24 years and we've never had the number of problems that we've had this year. I'd like to see some of these people who say we're doing something wrong to try to run it for a month," Cummings said. "They'll see what we were doing was on the up and up."

Cummings said he will call a meeting of the association in October and allow association members to elect a new board of directors. Residents have complained they have been excluded from association decisions.

About 150 sworn complaints filed by Midway residents Tuesday night will be reviewed by the State Attorney's Office for criminal violations. Copies of the complaints will be sent to the Attorney General's Office and Public Service Commission to determine if other state laws or regulations have been violated.

More than 200 residents attended the meeting last night called by State Attorney Norm Wollinger to receive complaints. A similar meeting will be held

$3 million payroll seen for new manufacturer

Another boat maker talks about its Sanford move

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Eighty new jobs now, over 100 employed in a year and an annual payroll amounting to approximately $3 million, was the prediction Tuesday as Aronow Powerboats discussed details of its move from Miami to Sanford.

President and chief executive officer Gary Garbrecht, said that Aronow now is moving into new headquarters at the old Cobia Boat Company, 500 Silver Lake Drive, at south Sanford Avenue. Aronow had been located in two separate facilities in south Florida but now will be able to consolidate into a larger 125,000 square foot facility.

The details yesterday came exactly two weeks after Rex Meyer Boat Manufacturing Company announced plans to set up its headquarters at the Port of Sanford, with an expected employment of 300 persons in the next few years.

Cabinet delays vote on Franklin project

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet voted unanimously Tuesday to delay a controversial golf and residential development that critics fear could wreck the seafood-rich Apalachicola Bay.

Martinez and the Cabinet cited the potential danger to the bay's multimillion-dollar oyster industry from pesticides and other chemicals that might wash into the bay from the fairways and yards planned for the Green Point project.

"If we err, it would be a somewhat irreversible error we commit," Martinez said.

Technically, the vote was to deny without prejudice, which allows the developers to negotiate with the state Department of Community Affairs over ways to ensure the survival of the oyster and fishing industries that are the economic mainstays of Franklin County, and to ensure there will be sufficient government services to support the project.

Duval County tops state in new jobs

JACKSONVILLE — Duval County is Florida's sixth-ranked county in terms of population, but it created more new jobs — 7,991 — during the state's last fiscal year than any other county in Florida, according to Department of Commerce records.

Dade, the state's most populous county, came in second with 6,300 new jobs, followed by Hillsborough with 4,366, Broward with 3,532 and Manatee with 3,010. All but Manatee are larger than Duval.

All in all, the 1989-90 fiscal year was a good one for the entire state, said Department of Commerce spokesman Raphael Marcucci.

Garbrecht, who is classed as an expert in high performance boats and engines, is moving the entire operation to Sanford from Miami, and hopes to have the move completed by the first week in September.

"We expect to produce about 250 boats per year," he said, "and our goal will be bigger and bigger boats in the years ahead."

Aronow currently produces custom boats in lengths of 32, 37, 42, 45 and 47 feet.

"We will move into the 70-foot models a year from now, and within two years, we'll start making some 100-foot ships," he said.

The Aronow luxury cruisers not only offer lavish accommodations but high speed as well, estimated from 65 to nearly 100 miles per hour. The company has been and plans to continue sponsoring racing boats, and last year took the world record for single engine boats with a speed around 187 miles per hour.

Garbrecht expressed an interest in the recent powerboat races held on Lake Monroe, and indicated he believed they could be greatly improved, offering to become involved in future events of that type.

Extensive remodeling of the former Cobia building has begun, including a doubling of the original office spaces.

tomorrow at 7 p.m. at Midway Elementary to resolve additional complaints.

"This is kind of an unusual approach, but we wanted to get everyone together to see what's going on and to try to dispel some rumors," Wolfinger said. "We've used this kind of approach before where we've had pyramid schemes and a lot of people were affected by getting them together to get statements."

"We're here for one purpose," Wolfinger told residents. "To reach out and help you to get the solution you want."

Residents have complained about water rates that are often double the amounts charged by surrounding cities, including Sanford where the association buys water wholesale and resells it to residents. Residents also say they have been excluded from participating in the association by Midway-Cannan officials.

A PSC official said unless all residents of the association are given an opportunity to participate in association decision-making, the utility most be regulated by the PSC. Midway-Cannan Water Association rates have not currently been regulated by the PSC.

Cummings said the water rates are fair because Sanford must be paid, equipment must be maintained and meter readers must be paid. He said many residents try to avoid water bills by tapping onto neighbor's plumbing. Many other residents have leaks that also account for large bills.

Cummings said the association is also making payments on about $200,000 in loans from the Farmer's Home Administration which financed the start of the utility in 1966.

Cummings said residents have been notified about association meetings, held annually in October, but few chose to attend. Cummings said residents were issued membership certificates in 1967, the year after the association was formed. He said there were originally 400 to 500 members, but now there are about 200 to 300 voting members of the association. Cummings said new residents are not issued membership certificates.

Boy charged in teen's fetus murder

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — A teenage boy was charged with murder in the accidental shooting of a pregnant 12-year-old who survived the gunshot but lost the unborn baby she badly wanted, detectives said Tuesday.

Broward County sheriff's detectives said the suspect was playing with a .22-caliber pistol when the gun accidentally went off Monday. The bullet hit Chanel Sorrells in the abdomen and struck her unborn child in the head.

Sorrells, who was seven months pregnant, was rushed to Broward General Medical Center and an emergency Caesarean section was performed. The baby girl died Monday and Sorrells remained hospitalized in stable condition Tuesday.

The suspect, Anthony Dale Knighton, 17, was arrested late Monday on charges of second-degree murder in the death of the fetus and aggravated battery in the shooting of Sorrells. He was being held at a juvenile center in Fort Lauderdale.

Witnesses originally reported that Sorrells had been wounded in a drive-by shooting while standing in the doorway at the Deerfield Beach rooming house where her family lives.

Deputies doubted the story, and the witnesses later admitted that they had lied to protect Knighton, who was a neighbor.

"Knighton had approached the girl, asking her for 5 cents to make up a quarter for two cigarettes from a nearby store. When she refused, Knighton drew a .22-caliber pistol and playfully began to threaten her to 'give it up,'" a sheriff's report said.

"He placed the gun against her side and the weapon went off, sending one bullet through her abdomen and the fetus. Sorrells then walked into the bedroom of her apartment and lay down, realizing she had been shot, and gave Knighton the nickel," the report said. Sorrells had just completed seventh grade at the Cyesis Teen Parent Program at Seagull School in Fort Lauderdale. Her boyfriend and the father of the child, Roney Miller, 24, stayed at her bedside at the hospital.

New baby clothes hung from a laundry line in the one-room apartment Sorrells shared with her mother and four brothers and sisters.

"She wanted the baby so much," said her mother, Sarah Sorrells. "I told her she was going to have a girl and she bought a lot of clothes. I was right. She had a girl."

by any individual will be tax deductible for that person.

"One of the earliest tools in revitalizing downtown Orlando was making it a historic district," Yeilding said. "An historic district almost always experiences an increase in value. The identity that is already here just needs to be capitalized upon."

Next Herbert Heiback, Inc., the Orlando landscape architecture firm hired by the city to lay out plans for redevelopment, presented a more specific time line for its short-term and long-term proposals. Representative Carl Mumford said the city is ultimately looking at a two-phase plan, with the first stage being completed within one to five years, and the second phase taking up to 20 years.

"The number one priority will be a demonstration project, most likely Church Street, that will show residents and outsiders the city's commitment to redevelopment through an actual physical change," Mumford said.

Other short-term priorities include opening a public square on County Road 427 in front of Longwood Inn, building a new city hall facility, and upgrading other important streets, intersections and dirt roads.

Long-term plans for completion by 1999 include further street upgrading, the addition of a city parking lot, and widening and streetcapping of CR 427. Proposals for completion by 2005 included the development of areas east of CR 427, extension of Church Street, and possibly getting the city's railroad freight train traffic rerouted and adding a railroad "attraction."

Consultant Annette Perry, who presented the funding proposal, said, "It can't be accomplished overnight. It's a real balancing act when you don't have the funds, and you have to decide what to do first," she said. "It's a Catch-22 because you can't encourage redevelopment without infrastructure, and underground infrastructures just don't inspire civic pride."

As far as paying for the project, she said state statutes include a community redevelopment plan for historic districts which allows tax increment financing.

"Virtually every historic city in Orlando has one," she said. This program calls for an initial tax increase, but in the future, as property values go up due to redevelopment and improvement, a certain area can add its increased tax revenues to a special fund reserved for it alone.

"These funds will be spent only in the area it was collected. The tax dollars don't go to the general fund, but to a specific fund," she said.

City Administrator Mike Abela said this morning tax increment financing has always been a vital part of redevelopment, and the city's proposed 25 percent tax increase from $4.14 to $5.14 per $1,000 of assessed value is a "vital supplement" to the overall plan. He said the additional revenues will initially go towards public projects like the proposed public square on CR 427 and a new city hall, with increment funds reserved for private plans.

"An enormous amount of money is required for this project," he said, "and funds generated by the tax increase represent only a very small portion of it."

The next budget hearing is scheduled for Sept. 10, with a final vote slated for a city commission meeting on Sept. 24 at Longwood City Hall, 176 W. Warren Ave.

Man poisoned by tainted drink improves

United Press International

MIAMI — Federal investigators warned that 4,000 potentially deadly bottles of a Colombian malt drink may be on store shelves nationwide, tainted with lethal amounts of cocaine that left one man in a deep coma.

Maximo Rene Mendez began breathing Tuesday just hours before he was scheduled to be taken off life-support equipment, hospital officials said. It was the first time he was able to breathe on his own in seven days.

Mendez, 25, fell into a coma July 28 after drinking a contaminated bottle of Pony Malta de Bavaria. That was the first warning health officials had that something was wrong with the soft drink, which is popular among Hispanics.

The concentration of cocaine are so strong that one sip could destroy the lining of a person's mouth on contact and kill if ingested.

'Low-key' Cafe Risque has Alachua residents keyed up

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Cafe Risque is everything its name implies, and that has some conservative Alachua County residents upset.

The newly opened restaurant features nude dancers as entertainment for its beer-and-hamburgers crowd. It's all perfectly legal, too, since the county has no regulation governing adult entertainment.

At least two county commissioners say they've received complaints about the cafe. "I guarantee you," an anonymous letter-writer said, "if something's not done, we will have the same mess that Orlando had with Orange Blossom Trail..."

located. Aside from some television commercials featuring scantily clad models, there is little about the cafe itself to alert customers about the menu. Nude dancing is downplayed on the signs outside, and there are no flashing lights or blinking neon arrows.

Asher Sullivan, the local businessman who owns the cafe, said the signs are in keeping with his "low-key" approach.

"It's designed to be a restaurant, not a bar, with pretty girls for the men," Sullivan said.

For cafe patrons, the lights are bright enough to read the menu, which offers beer, wine, burgers, buffalo wings and fries. There is a $10 cover charge at night and $5 at lunch.

Sullivan said the concept had undergone some fine-tuning since he opened the cafe two weeks ago. The cover charge had come down, and his original plan — separate rooms and entertainment for men and women — has been scrapped.

"After two days, we didn't have female customers, so we knew that wasn't the thing to do," he said.

Rules governing behavior are printed at the entrance and on fliers at each table. Touching the dancers or waitresses, except to slip a tip in their garters, is prohibited.

POLICE

Couple accused in attack on deputy

GENEVA — A Seminole County sheriff's deputy reports that an Oviedo woman allegedly grabbed his arm and hit him after he drew his sidearm on her husband who was allegedly brandishing a baseball bat and challenging the deputy to fight.

The deputy had responded to a reported domestic dispute at 340 First St., Geneva, at about 7:30 p.m. Monday when he confronted Michael Terry Bazzie, 37, as Bazzie allegedly lay on a couch armed with a bat.

Bazzie allegedly advanced toward the deputy brandishing the bat. Bazzie's wife, Melody Bazzie, 43, was ordered outside for her own safety as the deputy pointed his sidearm at Bazzie. Melody Bazzie allegedly hit the deputy's arms as she was telling the deputy not to shoot her husband as the husband continued to threaten the deputy. The deputy subdued Melody Bazzie and a second deputy arrived to charge her with battery on a policeman. The two deputies disarmed Michael Bazzie and charged him with assault on a policeman and resisting arrest with violence.

Wife choked

SANFORD — Shane Bernard Vitka, 28, of 1311 Santa Barbara Drive #27, Sanford, was charged by Sanford police with battery-spouse abuse after his wife accused him of choking her at their house. The arrest was made at 10:02 p.m. Monday.

Animal cruelty investigation

SANFORD — Police Chief Steven Harriett said today police have no leads in their investigation of an animal cruelty case involving two slain cats.

The cats were found dead during the past week in the yard of their owner Patricia Martin, of Plumosa Drive, Sanford. Harriett said.

One cat had a puncture wound and the second had been bludgeoned, he said.

DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

- Carl Rex Bernhard, 34, of Winter Park, was arrested at 2:37 a.m. Monday after his car was clocked traveling 50 mph in a 35 mph zone on Montgomery Road, Altamonte Springs.
- Ronald Edwin Groskey, 41, of 2465 Stone St., Oviedo, was arrested at 3:27 a.m. Monday after police made a traffic stop of his truck on N. Central St., Oviedo.

Water fountain lead testing get school OK

By VERA BOGGS
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board agreed yesterday to allow testing of drinking fountain water at district schools to be done by a company that does not offer liability insurance.

Such insurance would require the water testing company to stand by their findings for many years down the road.

Lead testing at the water source is required by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Seminole County is going a step further and taking the EPA recommendation of also testing the water coolers at all district facilities.

Previously, the low bidder for the job of testing the water in the coolers, Bredlove, Dennis and Associates of Orlando was rejected because they could not offer the professional liability insurance.

The contract was awarded to Joyce Environmental Consultants of Orlando. The company had said they could offer the insurance, but found out later they could not.

The district was unable to find a company in the state which offered such insurances about their work. They checked with the 94 licensed water testing companies across the state, but to no avail.

According to Richard Wailes, assistant superintendent for facilities, the problem with obtaining the professional liability insurance is two-fold.

Banker wants schools to do better job

United Press International

ROCK HILL, S.C. — Public schools in the South must graduate more students and teach them at least the basic skills they will need to get a job, Hugh McColl, the chairman of NCNB Corp., said Tuesday.

"We should expect our schools to do better than losing one of every three students before graduation," McColl said in an address to about 100 business leaders at an education conference.

Public schools should also embrace job readiness as an education objective as valid as college preparation, McColl said at a conference on "Educating Tomorrow's Workforce" at Winthrop College.

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners approved the largest "borrow pit" operation in the county's history Tuesday even as they discussed tightening restrictions on mining activities.

The approval raised the ire of one neighbor who said the massive pit could affect wells in the area south of Sanford and north of Lake Jesup. The land lies north of 1,300 acres the St. Johns River Water Management District may purchase for preservation.

Commissioners unanimously approved a 2 million-cubic-yard borrow pit request for 170 acres southwest of the corner of Ingraham Avenue and Oakway Street. One cubic yard is about the size of a household clothes washing machine.

The site is owned by sister and brother Ann Esterson and Henry Schumacher who had farmed the land.

The proposed Seminole County Expressway, now slated to be under construction by fall of 1991, will pass through the southwestern corner of the property. Esterson said much of the dirt would be used to build the expressway and she requested permission to operate the business for up to four years.

Esterson also agreed to restrict mining for portions of the three-pit operation during Oct. 1 through May 15 each year 1,500 feet from an active eagle's nest on the property and to do no mining within 750 of the nest. Those are guidelines established by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Commissioners, who comprise five-sevenths of the expressway authority, agreed and allowed the operation.

After the hearing, Melanie Gilmartin, who lives north of the site, said she would ask water management officials to investigate the proposal.

"I have a 40-foot (irrigation) well on my property and (ground) pressure pushes the water up this high," Gilmartin said, indicating waist height. "This is a water discharge area. It wouldn't be so bad if it were a water recharge area."

The affect of the pits on water was a concern to other residents during a commission debate on a more stringent borrow pit ordinance Tuesday morning. Commissioners agreed to review their borrow pit regulations in October following a crescendo of complaints from people living near pits. The residents said the operations were noisy and dusty, tore up their roads and dump trucks endangered their children's lives.

A committee appointed by commissioners recommended pits should be entirely fenced and the entrance gated and locked to prevent accidental drownings or other injuries.

They also recommended the pits have gentler slopes to decrease the likelihood of someone drowning in the deeper portions of the pits after they are abandoned.

Commissioners reviewed the recommendations and will consider using them to update their existing borrow pit ordinance.

Lee Voorhees, president of the Geneva Citizens Association, said Geneva residents were concerned that the proposals offer protection to their fragile underground water supply, the "Geneva Bubble." The Bubble, which lies about 100 feet underground, is completed surrounded and underlain with undrinkable saltwater.

"The removal of the dirt leads to a loss of filtration," Voorhees said. "Without the additional dirt over the groundwater, our Geneva Bubble is exposed to more risk of contamination."

Stop giveaway

If you were to design a convoluted scheme of government aid to agriculture, it's difficult to imagine the product could be worse than the current wasteful farm program. What began as a federal effort to stabilize the shattered farm economy in the Great Depression is today a cumbersome, complex system of price supports, set-asides and export subsidies that aids some farmers but not others, costs taxpayers a bundle and hurts consumers and exports by raising food prices.

The nation's $10 billion-$20 billion annual giveaway to farmers destroys the ordinary laws of economics. Subsidies cause farmers to grow crops with inadequate regard for oversupply and under-demand. A bumper food crop, which would ordinarily mean lower prices, is bad news for consumers and taxpayers alike because the government steps in and buys the surplus to ensure a targeted price. Food prices and the prices of American commodities abroad are kept artificially high.

The bulk of America's 400-plus crops succeed or fail with little government aid. Direct federal subsidies go to only a relative handful of crops, such as cotton, rice and certain feed grains. Another group of crops, including sugar, peanuts and citrus, benefit from arcane supply-control arrangements. Small farmers receive few federal payments. Forty percent of the subsidies flow to the wealthiest 60,000 farmers.

Reps. Dick Arme, R-Texas, and Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., are leading a bipartisan challenge to the routine reauthorization of the farm program for another five years. They aim to save $1 billion by ending federal payments to farmers with adjusted gross incomes of $100,000 or more a year and by limiting other subsidies. But other critics of current farm policy are skeptical, arguing that the answer is more-fundamental reform to replace the farm dole with a free market.

Unfortunately, neither "Arme's army" nor advocates of wholesale reform are likely to prevail. Farmers throughout the country, collecting political debts from their millions of dollars in campaign contributions, traditionally close ranks to crush any opposition to the farm bill. With the new agriculture bill being crafted in an election year, farm-belt legislators are falling over each other to protect their constituents' subsidies.

Few domestic programs have attracted more criticism than aid to agriculture. Yet relatively small but powerful special interests continue getting programs enacted that deepen the federal budget deficit, heighten consumer prices and defraud the vast majority of the American people. This is outrageous. It's time to disconnect agriculture from federal life-support and let it flourish in a free-market environment — one that gives consumers and taxpayers a break as well.

Oil crisis having political impact

President Bush probably has more important things on his mind right now, but it must occasionally gall him to reflect that, if he had just stuck to his pledge against new taxes for a couple more months, he would never have needed to break it at all.

Instead, he is now on record as having reneged on a solemn and widely publicized promise to the American people, and won't even have new revenues, let alone a reduced deficit, to show for it.

Our military buildup in the Middle East guarantees, as major military operations always do, a much larger budget deficit than would otherwise be the case. At the same time, the sharp increase in the price of oil will almost certainly push the U.S. economy into a modest (or perhaps not so modest) recession, rendering any tax increase out of the question.

All this will be true even if the overall Pentagon budget is still reduced somewhat, as it probably will be. We had better make up our minds that, as long as the current Middle East crisis continues in anything like its present form, serious deficit reduction is out of the question — and so are new taxes. All that remains of that old scenario is the recollection that George Bush broke his promise.

At the same time, as recently pointed out in this space, there are certain benefits for Bush in the economic fallout from the Middle Eastern crisis.

A number of economic indicators have been suggesting recently that the U.S. economy is trembling on the brink of a recession — a not unreasonable development, after eight solid years of good health.

The sharp increase in oil prices is probably all it will take to push the economy over that brink, precisely as the OPEC "oil shock" did in 1973. Now, normally the American people will blame an incumbent president for economic hard times, whether fairly or not.

Certainly, George Bush was being set up for that honor by the Democrats on Capitol Hill, and ordinarily he would have been hard put to avoid the blame.

Indicators suggest the economy is trembling

But Saddam Hussein has barged rudely on to the scene and pre-empted the role of villain. The recession, if it comes, will be blamed by the public, with some justification, on higher oil prices, and Hussein will deserve, and get, the blame for those. So he is well situated to replace George Bush, in the eyes of the voters, as the principal initiator of the recession.

Aside from its economic impact, the Middle Eastern crisis will have enormous political consequences for Mr. Bush. Whether they are for better or worse depends, of course, on how everything turns out.

There are few things Americans like more than a swift and successful military operation against some bully who "had it coming." If Bush can contrive to deliver one of those — as Reagan did with the Libyan raid and the invasion of Grenada, and as Bush did in Panama — his popularity will soar.

But if things go badly — as they did for Jimmy Carter's disastrous helicopter raid on Iran, or in the bombing that destroyed the Marine barracks Ronald Reagan had established in Beirut — public opinion can turn against the operation (and the president) very quickly.

GEORGE F. WILL

We will defend our economy

WASHINGTON — The eruption into our lives of Saddam Hussein, glowing with energy and pawing the ground, demonstrates how one man's audacity can cause many variables to dance unpredictably. What he has done in the desert and, perhaps more important, what as a result will not be done in Washington, jeopardize that which is the controlling concern in this crisis: the economy.

In his address to the nation, the President stressed the "wholly defensive" nature of the deployment to protect "the integrity" of Saudi Arabia. Events, he said, demand that we "define who we are and what we believe." He said "standing up for our principles is an American tradition" and "America has never wavered when her purpose is driven by principle."

That is principle, spelled p-e-r-s-o-n-a-l. Far over the horizon is the principle of defending democracy, which here means Israel. Hovering in the ether and selectively invoked is the principle of acting against aggression. But the principle that drives our purpose here is: We will defend, with force if necessary, our economy.

This is not a contemptible principle. Prosperity — social surplus above subsistence — is a necessary (not a sufficient) condition of civilization's progress.

But it is a stark, chilly principle, from the frank expression of which political leaders understandably flinch, preferring more elevated themes.

It is a principle that should be stated clearly in order to make the following clear: We are assembling fleets and airlifting troops — rightly — to protect our economy. But the economy is more jeopardized by political dithering and cowardice at home than by anything done in Arabia.

If Arabia's great product were agricultural — if it were a prodigious source of, say, wheat — Iraq's aggression would be vigorously denounced, but fleets would not assemble. The fact that the U.S. intervention has been almost universally approved, even by people almost always critical of interventions, does indeed define us. The purpose Americans rally 'round is that of keeping the industrial world's economy humming.

The Saudi decision to increase production may minimize the length and economic impact of this crisis. But already Hussein, execrated as an aggressor and dictator, is being exploited as an alibi and an excuse. He is to be the alibi for any recession. And he is the excuse for evading, again, disagreeable political decisions in domestic policy that would serve the goal for which we have sent the fleet: prosperity.

In spite of economic sluggishness, inflation is still between 4 and 5 percent (slightly above what it was when the Nixon administration imposed wage-and-price controls). So the lowering of interest rates has seemed contingent on deficit reduction. But even before Saddam Hussein changed the subject, the subject of deficit reduction was being discussed in inadequate terms.

Counting the year's cost of the savings-and-loan debacle, and subtracting from revenue calculations the Social Security surplus, the fiscal 1991 deficit will be approximately $250 billion — without assuming a recession.

But now the plan (a mere aspiration, really) to nibble even just $50 billion from that deficit may be shelved, with sighs of relief all around the political system. The shelving will be because the economy already is sagging, and because Saddam Hussein has made two important components of deficit reduction, defense cuts and energy taxes, suddenly seem more problematic.

Americans spend a smaller portion of their income on oil than they did in 1973 when the first oil shock shattered the illusion that economic growth had become automatic. Because of price-induced efficiencies, Americans use less energy per unit of GNP than they did then.

And because Iraq is so isolated and so many oil-exporting nations have strong political and economic interests in exporting, today's oil-price spike may last only long enough to have one long-lasting effect: It will be used to justify inaction on the U.S. budget deficit. It will be lamented as a "tax" siphoning off consumer demand and pre-empting any taxation for deficit reduction.

Without any help from Saddam Hussein, the auto and housing markets were already depressed, the economy was littered with firms loaded with debt, corporate profits have been declining since the fourth quarter of 1988, and almost half the states report revenue collections only equal to or below the inflation rate. We do not know within half-a-trillion dollars the 30-year cost of the savings-and-loan salvage. We do know that even a mild recession will make it significantly worse. And both inflation and recession trigger entitlement spending by government.

Like a stone thrown into a lagoon, Saddam Hussein has produced many ripples. The ripples may roll America's political waters.

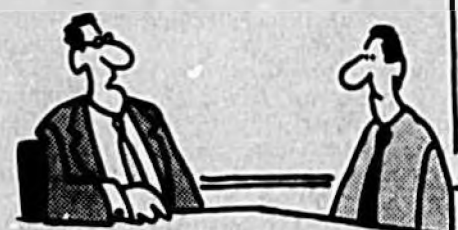

The principle is spelled o-i-l.

Firefighters raise money for MDA

LONGWOOD — The first annual Fireman's Festival, held last weekend in Reiter Park to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, brought $1,850 to the Longwood fire department's MDA fund.

The department said it will continue to raise money this year through boat drives — approaching cars at intersections and asking for donations — to reach their goal of $7,000. Although the turnout wasn't as great as the department would have liked, it plans to hold the festival again next year.

Voter registration dates set

Voter registration for Seminole County residents will be provided at the following locations:

- Academy Manor Park, off Carver Avenue in Sanford, Aug. 18 and 21, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
- Casselberry Elementary School, 1075 Crystal Bowl Circle, Casselberry, Aug. 21, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.
- Wilson Elementary School, 985 Orange Blvd., Sanford, Aug. 21, noon to 3 p.m.
- New Bethel AME Church, 3615 Main Street, Sanford, Aug. 25, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
- Castle Brewer Recreation Area, West 10th Street, Sanford, Aug. 28 and 29, 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Teachers

ceive an additional 8.82 percent over last year's package. It is a three-year contract. On the interim, each side will be allowed to annually open three items, including salary and benefits, for renegotiation.

Board members had said during budget hearings earlier this month that they wanted to bring the salary for a rookie teacher to the $20,000 per year range. The new contract shows that salary will be $20,001 per year.

"We did well," Nancy Wheeler, the union's chief negotiator, said after the final papers were signed shortly after 12:30 p.m. yesterday afternoon.

The negotiation process was long and at times it seems the teachers' union (Seminole Education Association) and the school district would never come to terms. Last Monday they met for 18 hours and, according to both sides, accomplished nothing. This week they met for 12 hours before calling a recess at 5 a.m. yesterday and returning to the table at 12:30 p.m.

"It was all but settled when we left this morning," Ernest Cowley, the chief negotiator for the district, said after signing the tentative agreement. "We just wanted to check the figures."

Included in the salary package was an additional $300 annual bonus to be paid to teachers with 20 years or more experience.

To get the approximately $155,000 needed to finance the longevity bonus for more than 500 teachers, the union agreed to take a .2 percent reduction in all salary levels except for beginning teachers.

Another item won by the union was language which guarantees teachers who have evaluations to indicate they are performing their jobs "at expectation" an interview when a vacancy occurs at another school.

"We have been fighting for that one for three years," Wheeler said.

The district also agreed to employ the services of a benefits consultant to work with a committee of three teachers and three administrators on the formation of an early retirement annuity plan.

Another committee consisting of three teachers and three administrators will convene to establish a districtwide policy regarding the criteria for sabbatical leaves for teachers. No such policy currently exists.

When the optional seventh period is implemented in high schools in January, teachers who volunteer to teach a sixth class will be paid their regular hourly wage under the new contract.

Teachers also won a clause in their agreement which stipulates that a student who is sent to the administration for disciplinary action will be punished according to the district's Code of Student Conduct. If the administration feels that the offense is not punishable under that code and returns the student to the classroom without having taken any action, the teacher must be notified.

"That was an issue that teachers felt very strongly about," Wheeler said.

Cowley said he is glad the contract negotiations for teachers are over and he is pleased with the outcome.

"I feel it is a contract that the board can live with," he said.

Wheeler gave credit to the district for finding the money to complete the deal.

"I have to give the superintendent and the board credit for allowing the money to be freed up in a difficult year when the legislature provided so little money," she said. "It took guts and a lot of intestinal fortitude to make the necessary adjustments."

Other items on the tentative contract include:

- Summer school hiring procedures will be reopened for the 1991-92 negotiations.

- Any vacancy for the coming school year that occurs after May 9 and prior to Aug. 4 must remain open for at least four working days.

- Compensatory time will be provided, when practical, to teachers for time spent beyond the work day in student or parent conferences.

- Employees who cannot prove insurability will be enrolled in the board's carrier's disability income policy for the remainder of the fiscal year.

- Payroll deductions for SEA dues will include political action contributions. SEA will no longer have to pay a fee to the board for processing dues deductions.

- Teachers who are not being recommended for contract renewal at their own school, but who have been performing "at expectation" must be furnished by May 10 with a list of available positions throughout the district.

- Teachers on jury duty will be expected to return to work the same day they are released from duty if it is before the end of the work day.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Industrial production unchanged in July

WASHINGTON — U.S. industrial production was unchanged in July on a sharp decline in the manufacturing of cars, vans and trucks, the Federal Reserve reported today.

Private economists predicted a small increase in production for last month after increases of 0.4 percent in June and 0.6 percent in May and a decline of 0.1 percent in April.

The utilization of America's factories, meanwhile, slipped from 83.6 percent of capacity in June to 83.4 percent in July, further evidence of the dwindling strength of the economy.

In May, capacity utilization also stood at 83.4 percent.

"Swings in motor vehicle production during the past few months have had a noticeable effect on total output," the Fed said. "In July, production of both autos and trucks fell sharply."

Barry announces bid for city council

WASHINGTON — Mayor Marion Barry said he decided to run for a seat on the City Council but ruled out a fourth mayoral term, saying it would be too divisive after his 10-week cocaine possession and perjury trial.

Barry announced plans to run for City Council Tuesday, four days after he was convicted on a single misdemeanor cocaine possession count in U.S. District Court. He still faces a possible retrial on 12 other drug and perjury charges.

The lifelong Democrat registered as an independent Monday to facilitate a bid for some elected office in the Nov. 6 general election, but said at the time he was keeping his "options open."

"After prayerful consideration and discussions with my family and a few friends, I have decided to run for an at-large seat on the City Council," Barry said Tuesday in a statement, released by his campaign manager, Anita Bonds. "I believe that in this position I can achieve my goal of continuing to make a contribution to the political life of this city."

Barry, a former civil rights leader and one of the nation's most prominent black politicians, said he ruled out another bid for mayor because of the scars from his trial.

Five lines holding in ravaged Yosemite

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK — Fire lines held Tuesday night around the major forest fires in Yosemite National Park and officials were optimistic of opening Tioga Pass Road, the trans-Sierra highway, on Thursday.

Park Superintendent Mike Finley said Tioga "has the first priority for reopening" and other parts of the park would be opened in stages.

"We hope to open Tioga on Thursday," Finley said. A decision of what other sections of the park would be reopened and when is to be made Wednesday.

What may delay the reopening of Tioga from Yosemite Valley to the high country is the stubborn "A" Rock fire that has charred more than 17,000 acres.

While the Steamboat fire, which has blackened 4,000 acres, and the much smaller Tuolumne Grove fire, are not presenting any potential flareups, firefighters were keeping a close eye on the "A" Rock fire.

They fear it could make a run northward toward Crane Flat on Highway 120 that is also known as the Tioga Road.

Rikers melee follows agreement

NEW YORK — More than 700 inmates at Rikers Island berated the police in their cells Tuesday night, forcing prison guards to use tear gas and setting off a melee that injured more than 45 people, officials said.

The violence erupted hours after an agreement was reached to end a two-day blockade of the jail's only bridge by guards furious about the beating of a fellow officer by three inmates last week.

Correction Department spokeswoman Ruby Ryles said 12 officers and 35 inmates were injured, one prisoner seriously.

From United Press International Reports

Democrats blamed for stalemate

By BOB NEWMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush, blaming the budget stalemate on Congress, any challenge Democrats on Capitol Hill to put up or shut up in talks to cut the federal deficit and avoid catastrophic spending cuts.

"It is the Congress that must move now to bring this deficit under control," Bush told reporters at the White House on Tuesday.

"One hundred days after I called on Democrats and Republicans in Congress to work on a bipartisan solution ... the Democrats have yet to offer one full proposal at the budget summit," said Bush, who flew back from his Maine vacation home for 24 hours of meetings in Washington on the budget and the Persian Gulf crisis.

"I've been reluctant to go public in this matter," Bush said. "We've dealt in good faith with the leaders, we have played by the rules and now it is up to the Democrats who control Congress."

With a flash of emotion, Bush

said Democrats have been "laughing all the way to what they think is the electoral bank, saying every time we throw up a proposal, they gun it down and rush off and tell the special interests of one kind or another. 'We're going to protect you.' Ha, ha. Now it's time for them to come forward."

Senate Democratic leader

George Mitchell of Maine responded with a statement saying Bush's barrage "was not accurate and not helpful."

"If there has been an abdication of responsibilities on the budget, it has been on the part of the president," Mitchell said.

"The president's anger at the lack of the Republican plan to the press by a Republican negotiator should not serve as a justification for unfair and inaccurate criticism of Democrats."

The GOP plan — detailed after Bush revealed his "no new taxes" campaign pledge — included higher taxes on beer and wine and limits on the amount of state and local taxes that could be deducted from federal income. The plan was roundly condemned and drew especially harsh attacks from Republicans in the House.

House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri, chairman of the budget talks that began May 15, issued a statement saying he was "addicted to see the president resort to partisan complaining on the budget."

Budget negotiators have been trying for months "to address a deficit that is the direct result of 10 years of Reagan-Bush economic and fiscal policies."

"Surely, the president realizes that the nation is better served by our working together, with good faith on all sides, than by ill-timed and inaccurate partisan statements," House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said in a statement.

At his news conference, Bush played down the fact that Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., leaked to reporters the GOP proposal, which never was formally presented to Democrats.

As for GOP hostility to the plan, Bush said, "I can't find anybody stated over any facet of taxes."

Bush urged Democrats to produce their own proposal "and set aside politics because it's getting tough now. It's getting right down to the crunch."

The crunch comes Oct. 1, the start of fiscal year 1991. Failure to reach and implement a deficit reduction agreement by then would mean automatic spending cuts of about $100 billion in spending cuts, split between military and domestic programs.

Stricter rules for mining sought

Mine operators must post bond for exploration jobs

By DAN CARROLL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government, reacting to criticism from Congress and environmentalists, announced stricter cleanup rules Tuesday for mining on public land but a spokesman for a key senator said it was not good enough.

The Interior Department said it was beginning a new bonding and reclamation policy affecting exploration and mining operations of more than five acres a year on public land.

Under the new policy, mine operators who have a record of compliance with cleanup rules will have to post bonds of up to $1,000 per acre for exploration and up to $2,000 an acre for mining activities.

Mine operators who have a record of non-compliance will be required to post a bond that would cover 100 percent of the cost of reclamation, even if they have a state bond. Mine operators who use cyanide or other chemicals to leach the mineral from the ore, must post a 100 percent bond, unless they already have a state bond that is equal to 100 percent.

The bond is designed to ensure adequate money is available to properly clean up mine sites after minerals are extracted. The rules do not apply to coal mines since they are regulated. It was prompted by criticism from members of the House, Senate and environmentalists about severe environmental damage from mining.

"We felt it was appropriate to address these things administratively," said Cy Jamison, director of the Bureau of Land Management. "We've been trying to come up with something that's reasonable."

In addition to the tougher bonding requirements, Jamison said the BLM was tightening its inspection requirements for mining operations.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., has offered legislation to reform the Mining Law of 1872, which governs mineral claims and recovery operations on public land.

His press secretary, Melissa Scofield, said, "We have legislation that would totally reform the 1872 mining law. We still think legislation is needed and that everyone should be required to post a bond."

Scofield said, "We think it's a step in the right direction. But they're only going to require mandatory bonding in only about 20 percent of mining operations."

A spokeswoman for the Sierra Club, an environmental group, said: "It's a small step and it falls short of what many states already require. But we're glad to see some policy change."

The federal mining law, signed by President Ulysses S. Grant 118 years ago, governs the extraction of gold, silver, copper and other non-coal minerals. Under the law, anyone who finds a valuable deposit on federal lands is generally allowed to take it.

Environmentalists say the law is too lax and has resulted in a staggering environmental toll of poisoned streams, abandoned waste dumps and mined landscapes. Industry officials say it has enabled miners to provide minerals essential to a modern industrialized nation.

Jamison told reporters, "The new bonding policy will go a long way towards ensuring that all mined land is properly reclaimed. This is the kind of responsible stewardship that helps us balance environmental concerns and prudent development of resources."

There are 1.2 million mining claims on federal land, Jamison said, although very few "get to the final stage" of mineral extraction.

Vicki Long hospitalized for pains

By G.W. GUNN
United Press International

ATLANTA — Vicki Long, whose romantic affairs with members of the clergy have caused an upheaval in Atlanta's Roman Catholic community, has been hospitalized for treatment of mysterious abdominal pain, her doctor said.

Dr. Reginald Fowler said Long checked into West Paces Ferry Hospital Monday night after visiting his office and complaining about pain in her abdomen.

Fowler said Long, 27, was undergoing tests to determine the cause of her discomfort, reported in the lower left part of her abdomen. The doctor said the source of the pain could not be immediately determined.

Reporters questioned whether Long's pain could be psychosomatic, meaning the pain could be triggered by psychological stress rather than physical problems. Fowler said he believes Long's problem is physical.

Stadium issue draws voters in primary

By BRAD SMITH
United Press International

DENVER — Josie Heath won the Democratic Senate primary and voters approved a plan to raise $97 million in new taxes to pay for construction of a baseball stadium if the city is granted a major league expansion franchise.

With 59 percent of Tuesday's vote counted, Heath led attorney Carlos Lucero, 60 percent to 40 percent. Lucero, 49, who trailed in pre-election polls, conceded the race to Heath, a former Boulder County commissioner. Heath, 52, will face five-term Rep. Hank Brown, R-Colo., in the general election. Brown is expected to win the race to succeed Republican Sen. Bill Armstrong, who is retiring after two consecutive terms.

Heath quit her county commissioner spot to run for the Senate. During the campaign, she called for turning the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant into a research park.

Rocky Flats is the nation's only manufacturing plant for plutonium triggers for nuclear weapons. Heath called for an end to plutonium production at the plant and drew opposition from labor unions representing Rocky Flats workers.

Heath said in her victory speech that she thinks voters want a change in leadership.

"The last 10 years has brought the greatest deficit in the history of this country, the greatest gap between the rich and poor, the most expensive health care, and yet more Americans are without it," Heath said. "I think they're saying those are things, those are the issues, and they want a different kind of politics."

IRAQ: The crisis continues

Developments at a glance

By United Press International

JORDAN'S KING HUSSEIN, whose nation is allowing the United States and brings with him a Jordanian-Iraq plan for solving the Persian Gulf crisis, President Bush, who plans to meet with Hussein Thursday, has warned that Jordan may be undermining efforts to enforce a U.N.-ordered trade embargo against Iraq, imposed after Baghdad invaded and occupied Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land and oil dispute. Thousands of Iraqi troops are now massed on the Saudi border.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — In an apparent attempt to gather support in the Persian Gulf region, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein offers to settle numerous issues in dispute with Gulf War rival Iran. Saddam offers to exchange all prisoners held by both countries and withdraw Iraqi troops from Iranian forces along their shared frontier. Border patrols would remain. Improved relations with neighboring Iran could offer Iraq a way around the trade embargo if Tehran agreed to receive Iraqi-bound goods at its ports along the gulf and the Caspian and Arabian seas.

WASHINGTON — President Bush gave to the Pentagon for a briefing on the massive U.S. military buildup against Iraq approved in the 44-year Persian Gulf. White House, Bush also intends to deliver a pep talk to defense employees and send out U.S. objectives in the gulf, which include the safety of as many as 5,000 Americans being held in Iraq and Iraq-occupied Kuwait. Bush said he does not believe Saddam sees the Americans as a strategic ally. "But it's a troubling situation when people are held against their will," he told a White House news conference.

TOKYO — The possibility that Iraq may be willing to negotiate a settlement in the Persian Gulf crisis pushed the Tokyo stock market to its second-biggest one-day rally of the year. The market's leading barometer, the 225-share Nikkei Stock Average, shot up 1,438.99 yen to close at 28,112.12.

BEIJING — About 50 Arab students and Iraqi children rally outside Baghdad's Beijing Embassy, cheering Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait and urging all Arabs to "hit the Americans."

SAUDI ARABIA — Senior Kuwaiti officials say the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait can only be reversed through military action by the United States, Saudi Arabia and other nations. The officials are pessimistic about the success of economic sanctions against Iraq.

CAIRO, Egypt — Kuwait's government in exile has organized small bands of resistance fighters who have been conducting nightly raids across Saudi Arabia into the occupied emirate, reportedly killing several Iraqi soldiers. There were no immediate indications of the effectiveness of the opposition.

Saddam offers 'surprise' peace plan

Hussein wants prisoners exchanged, troops removed from border areas

By UPI Staff
United Press International

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, spurned by most of his Arab allies after invading Kuwait, offered a surprise peace package today to neighboring Iraq that included a prisoner exchange and a withdrawal of troops from border areas.

Saddam's proposal came as Jordan's King Hussein arrived in the United States Wednesday with a Jordanian-Iraqi plan for solving the Persian Gulf crisis.

President Bush, who plans to meet with Hussein Thursday, has warned that Jordan may be undermining efforts to enforce a U.N.-ordered trade embargo that was imposed against Iraq after Baghdad invaded and occupied Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land and oil dispute. Thousands of Iraqi troops now are massed on the Saudi border, prompting the deployment of a multinational force dominated by U.S. troops.

Saddam's new four-point initiative was broadcast on state-run Baghdad Radio and said that if Iran agreed, his troops would start withdrawing from border positions within 48 hours.

State-owned Tehran radio said Iraq had offered to withdraw Iraqi troops from hundreds of square miles of Iranian border territory captured during the last stages of fighting, and to share sovereignty over the strategic Shatt al Arab waterway in the northern gulf.

Saddam also said easing the friction between Iraq and Iran would allow both Moslem states to ally against "evil forces," an apparent reference to the presence of Anglo-American troops in Saudi Arabia.

Iranian radio interpreted the Iraqi initiative as tantamount to capitulation by Baghdad on its former demands from the eight-year war between the two countries that share a common border along the Persian Gulf.

Gulf-based Western diplomats said Saddam's initiative appeared to be aimed at preempting any attempt in Tehran to exploit the gulf crisis by moving troops to Iraq's northernmost province of Kurdistan, where Iran claims Iraqi forces still occupy hundreds of square miles of Iranian border lands.

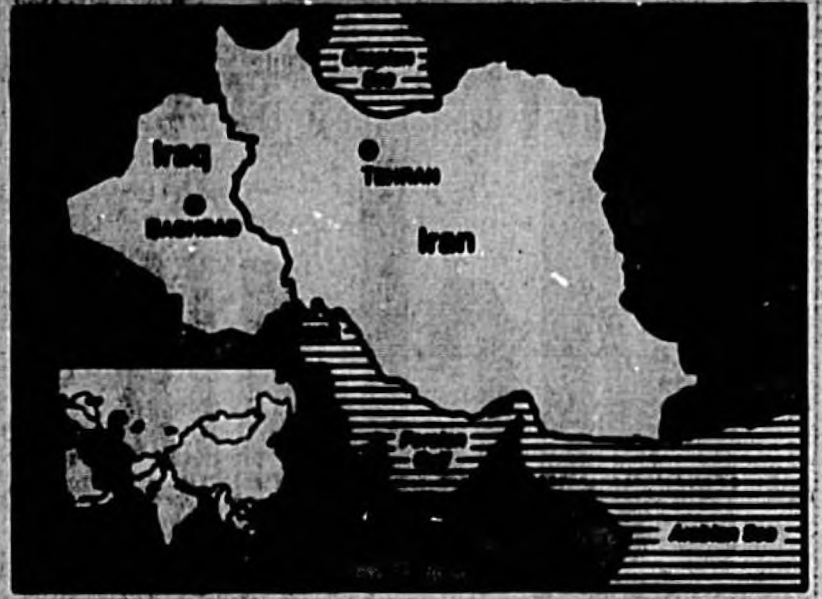

"The Iraqis are virtually isolated in the Arab world, so this initiative appears aimed at foiling any Iranian attempt to exploit the current gulf crisis," said one envoy in the Persian Gulf state of Bahrain.

"The Iraqis are keen to sign a comprehensive peace settlement with the Iraqis, so it is likely they will go along with the Iraqi move," he said.

News that Iraq might be willing to negotiate a settlement to the Persian Gulf crisis sent the Tokyo stock market Wednesday rocketing to its second-biggest one-day rally of the year, rebounding from its recent drop after Japan agreed to abide by the embargo. The talk of peace, however, prompted a flurry of dollar-selling in Europe and Japan. In Frankfurt, the dollar plunged to a record low of 1.5625 German marks.

The Pentagon said 45,000 heavily armed Marines were arriving in Saudi Arabia to confront Iraq in Operation Desert Shield, joining 28,000 U.S. troops already in the oil-rich kingdom as of Tuesday.

Iraq said about 3,000 Americans stranded in Iraq and occupied Kuwait were still being prevented from leaving the troubled region and no timetable had been set for their departure.

According to Saddam's peace initiative, Iraq said it accepted Iran's proposal for an exchange of some 100,000 prisoners of war, still held two years after both sides agreed to a U.N.-brokered cease-fire.

It said Baghdad also was willing to send a peace delegation to Tehran or to accept an Iranian delegation in Baghdad, and that as a gesture of good will, "We will withdraw all our troops that face you along the border starting Friday August 17."

Both sides have maintained thousands of troops along their 750-mile joint border, which a small U.N. force of some 300 men has patrolled since 1988.

aggression — and preserving the sovereignty of nations."

Bush made the remarks in an address prepared for delivery in the Pentagon courtyard to some 2,000 Pentagon employees, telling them that they had launched over the past 10 days "one of the most important deployments of allied military power since the Second World War."

The president met with his national security advisers, apparently for an update and a preparatory briefing on his crucial talks with Hussein during a luncheon meeting at Kennebunkport, Maine, Thursday.

Bush arranged to resume his work-play vacation at Kennebunkport, flying back immediately after his Pentagon briefing and pep talk. Meantime, Hussein was holding private talks at a hotel in Washington.

Bush stressed to the military personnel, "The American people are with us. Congress is with us. Our allies are with us. And the vast majority of the Arab people are with us."

No, this was another Hussein: Saddam, of Iraq. He had a bushy mustache and fierce, dark eyes, he wore a revolver and combat fatigues — and his tanks had just rolled into Kuwait.

During the past decade, U.S. leaders and media had referred to him as a "strongman" and, from time to time, had taken his side. Now, in the blink of a howitzer, he had graduated to America's premier foreign psychopath.

"A madman," Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat, said of Saddam.

"As crazy and ruthless as Hitler," said Republican Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato of New York.

"A madman to the teeth," said Republican Rep. Don Ritter of Pennsylvania.

A school board candidate's partisan sign.

Sign of the times: election placards

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — While some previously qualified candidates for the Seminole County school board are waiting until they qualify for the non-partisan race at the end of this week to put up their campaign signs, some candidates have had theirs up for several weeks.

Despite circuit court Judge Kenneth Leffler's ruling, based on a Supreme Court decision in Palm Beach County, that the races were to be non-partisan, some signs still proclaim party affiliation.

There's nothing that I can do from this office," said Sandra Guard, Seminole County supervisor of elections. "Someone would have to file a complaint against the candidate through the state elections office and then a hearing would be set up to see if they are in violation of the law."

Daryl McLain, a candidate in District 5, had signs in Sanford as of this morning, which proclaimed his Republican affiliation. "I've been on vacation until today," he said earlier this week. "I'm checking with the printer now to see about stickers to cover those up."

Sandy Robinson, who is running for the school board seat in District 1, has covered the party reference on her signs, which went up this week, with black paint.

"I figured I'd make the changes before I put them up," she said.

Guard said she had received no complaints against any of the candidates and added that if they were in the process of correcting the signs she would see no reason for anyone to pursue the matter.

"It's been such a confusing year for the school board elections," she said. "I know some people are probably still trying to sort it all out."

Longwood sewer plan provokes residents' ire

By AMY WILSON
Herald intern

LONGWOOD — The final recommendation of a year-long study on how this city can meet future demands placed on its sewage capacity — by purchasing both Sanlando Utilities and Longwood Utilities Inc. — met with opposition and hostility last night from many residents.

After city finance director Ric Holt explained that the city's water utilities department is facing a $430,458 deficit this year and announced that water and sewage is "in serious financial difficulty," Lochrane Engineering and Saffer Utility Consultants, both hired by the city last year to research the alternatives, presented their findings.

Lochrane representative Jeff Hart first showed a map of Longwood which outlined the city's five utility services, the largest being Sanlando with 8,531 accounts, then Longwood Utilities with 1,624 and lastly the city of Longwood with 591 customers.

He pointed out that the current city output is 350,000 gallons per day, and by 2005 up to 1 million gallons per day will be generated. "Showing a large future deficit," he said the purpose of the study was to present options of meeting the city's future needs and address the increased demands on the system which would result from the proposed downtown redevelopment plan.

Sheree Brown, president of Saffer Consultants, then presented the economic side of the issue by ranking the various options first on financial feasibility and rate impact, and then showing a final best option which also considered community development, environmental soundness and community acceptability. The final recommendation was received by groans from the audience.

"Obviously if the city can increase its customer base to over 15 times its current size, the per unit cost will decrease because it's spread out over a larger base," said Brown, after her company's proposal that the city buy both Longwood Utilities Inc. and Sanlando Utilities, which is currently on sale for $25 million dollars.

"Expansion by purchase is attractive for several reasons," Brown said. "It will be self-sustaining with fixed costs. The more customers you have, then the cost per customer goes down."

However, many residents felt that acquisition was not such a good idea. Some questioned the integrity of Sanlando Utilities, and others felt that the city has enough other things to worry about, and it should not "go into the sewer business."

YOUTH GOLF

Stressen-Reuter leads Pee Wee

ORLANDO — Todd Stressen-Reuter still has not found his putter.

But that didn't matter on Tuesday.

The Lyman High School senior knocked down flag sticks all day, hitting 14 greens en route to a one-over par 72 and a one-stroke lead in the first round of the International Pee Wee at the Merritt World Center Country Club.

"I could have played better," said Stressen-Reuter. "I hit a lot of pins and made some birdies, but I missed about four putts from within 10 feet."

Stressen-Reuter had birdies on the fifth, seventh, 11th and 13th holes. He hit iron shots close to the hole on the fifth, seventh and 11th holes and drained a 20-foot putt at the 13th.

Only two players are within six shots of Stressen-Reuter. John Grillon and Adrian Burns both posted two-over par 73's. Burns leads the 14-15 age group.

"I need to shoot 72 again," said Stressen-Reuter on his chances to win. "I hit sandwedges into just about every green. It was fun."

Lake Brantley High School's Mike Berzovich is in third place in the 14-15 age group after an opening round 79.

The tournament will conclude today.

PREP FOOTBALL

Hawk boosters plan breakfast

WINTER PARK — Lake Howell High School's Athletic Booster Club has scheduled a pancake breakfast for this Saturday morning at the school. The price is $3 for adults and $2 for students. Children under 5 eat free.

After the breakfast, football coach Mike Blaseglia will conduct a parents' meeting starting at 10 a.m. Then, once all that business has been taken care of, the Silver Hawks will hold their annual football photo day.

CROSS COUNTRY

Lake Mary runners to meet

LAKE MARY — Today at 6 p.m., Lake Mary High School's boys and girls cross country teams will conduct their first practice of the new school year.

Practices will be held 6-7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Friday, Monday and Tuesday. Once school begins next Wednesday, the teams will work out 3-4:30 p.m. after school.

For more information, contact Coach Mike Gibson (girls) or Coach Willie Calloway (boys) at the school, 323-2110.

Lake Howell registration set

WINTER PARK — Any girl interested in running cross country for Lake Howell High School should show up at the school track ready for practice today at 6 p.m.

Any girl interested in running that is new to the program should contact Coach Tom Hammonree at 678-5565 (school) to see about getting the necessary paperwork completed.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

SYFA registering players

SANFORD — Players and cheerleaders are currently being sought by the Sanford Youth Football Association for the upcoming season.

Affiliated with the Mid-Florida Pop Warner Football Organization, the SYFA has five teams for players and cheerleaders between the ages of 7 and 15. The weight limits (for players only) are 40 and 135 pounds.

Children can be registered at Chase Park. The SYFA conducts its practices. Practices began on Aug. 1 and will be conducted 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday until school begins. Once school begins, practices will be on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The minimum registration fee is required for children to practice.

To complete registration, children must have his or her birth certificate, a current picture and a report card. Parents must be present to register their children.

Registration fee is $40 for one child, $30 per child for families with more than one child participating in the league. A minimum payment of $10 is required at registration with the complete registration to be paid by Aug. 24.

The registration fee covers the use of game pants and jersey, a mouthpiece, game socks, secondary insurance and a physical for players. Parents are responsible for shoes, practice pants and the following equipment: helmet, shoulder pads and thigh, knee and hip pads. For cheerleaders, the registration fee covers the use of the uniform, socks, a physical and secondary insurance. Parents are responsible for shoes and tights.

First harbinger of fall

Preps kick off football practice

By TOMY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

For high school football players — as well as volleyball players, swimmers and cross country runners — the school year begins today.

Today is the first day that the Florida High School Activities Association allows organized practices for fall sports. For Seminole County football coaches, it's the start of the race toward the playoffs.

Preseason practice takes on a little more importance in football than other sports, mainly because of the uniqueness of football's playoff system. In all other sports, every team — regardless of record — participates in the district tournament.

In football, only the district champion (decided by intradivisional play during the regular season) advances to the playoffs. That means the first game — which is on Sept. 7 for Lyman, Lake Howell, Lake Brantley and Oviedo — is as important as the last.

Seminole: District and regional champions a year ago, the Fighting Seminoles of Coach Emory Blake will go through double sessions (4:5-4:5 p.m. and 6:15-7:45 p.m.) every week day until school starts. On Saturday, the first day teams are allowed to practice in pads, practice will begin at 9 a.m. Once school begins next Wednesday, the Seminoles will practice 3-5 p.m.

Seminole will play in a jamboree on Thursday, Aug. 30 at Lyman High School. The Seminoles' first game isn't until Sept. 14, when they will host the DeLand Bulldogs.

Lyman: Coach Bill Scott will put the Greyhounds through two sessions every week day until school starts. The first will be 6:30-8 a.m. with the second scheduled for 3:30-5:30 p.m. Saturday's schedule will be a little different.

Lyman will host Oviedo and Seminole in a jamboree on Thursday, Aug. 30. The Greyhounds will open their season at home against the Orlando-Boone Braves.

Lake Howell: Like Seminole, the Silver Hawks were district and regional champions a year ago. This afternoon, they will go three one-hour practices.

When last we saw the Fighting Seminoles football team of Seminole High School, it suffered a 37-14 loss to Lake Howell in the spring jamboree. Today, the 'Noles and Silver Hawks — both district and regional champions a year ago — and the rest of the county begin fall practice.

Top half romps over bottom half

From staff reports

SANFORD — The top three teams in the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Slowpitch Softball League won with relative ease over the bottom three teams in action at Chase Park Tuesday night.

Seko Air Freight pummeled the Honey Beers 13-1. Thermocarbon took the measure of Harcar Aluminum Products 12-3 and Ensey Inc. (Seminole High School's summer team) outscored in Home Medical 16-7.

Thermocarbon kept its record unblemished with the triumph and leads the league with a 12-0 mark, followed by Ensey Inc. (8-4), Seko Air Freight (8-5), Harcar Aluminum Products (5-7), in Home Medical (4-9) and the Honey Beers (1-10).

The last regularly scheduled games of the season (there will be make-up games next Saturday) are set for next week. In Home Medical plays Harcar Aluminum Products at 6:30 p.m., Thermocarbon faces the Honey Beers at 7:30 p.m. and Seko Air Freight tackles Ensey Inc. at 8:30 p.m.

The Honey Beers struck first in their game with Seko Air Freight as Robin Martin walked, went to third on Jodi Doyle's single and scored on a fielder's choice by Lanny Manhollen.

But after that, it was all Seko Air Freight as they exploded for six runs on six hits in the bottom of the first inning. The big hits for Seko were doubles by Sally Faust, Faye Kennedy and Peggy Pulliam.

Seko added one run in the second inning, three in the third inning, one in the fourth inning and two in the fifth inning to end the game by the mercy rule.

Doing the damage for Seko were Pulliam (two doubles, single, two

For Seko, which only had three hits, Doyle, Lisa Fisher and Peggy Wages each hit one single. Martin scored the only run while Manhollen had the lone RBI.

The offense was slow to come around in the Harcar-Thermocarbon game as the score was 0-0 going into the bottom of the third inning. But that was the end of the close game as Thermocarbon exploded for 10 runs in the third inning. The big blows of the inning were a bases-loaded

Orlando signs Kite to help plug hole in the middle

United Press International

ORLANDO — Unrestricted free agent Greg Kite, a 7-year NBA veteran most recently with the Sacramento Kings, has signed a contract with the Orlando Magic, team president and general manager Pat Williams said Tuesday.

Terms of the deal were not announced for Kite, a 6-foot-11, 260-pound center who was a member of the 1984 and 1986 Boston Celtics world championship teams. He was expected to join the Magic when training camp begins Oct. 4.

"We are very pleased to have signed Greg and firm up our center position for the coming season," Williams said. "Greg will give us the needed size and inside game that we will need to contend with the teams of the Midwest Division."

Center Dave Corzine played in only six games last season due to problems with his left knee and eventually underwent reconstruction surgery, so the center position was manned by Mark Acres and Sidney Green.

Green is under contract for this season, but Acres is a restricted free agent and has not accepted a qualifying offer from the Magic.

Kite, the Celtics' first-round draft pick out of BYU in 1983, started 47 of the 71 games he was with the Kings and averaged 3.2 points and a career high 5.3 rebounds. He also shot 43 percent from the field and blocked 51 shots.

In his seven years in the NBA, Kite, 29, has averaged 2.3 points and 3.1 rebounds a game. He is .425 from the field and has blocked 252 shots.

People

IN BRIEF

How would you spend $3 million?

State and federal funds totaling $3,119,335 will be available in 1991 to provide assistance to persons over the age of 60 with the ordinary activities of daily living. Such assistance will help older persons remain independent in their own homes as long as possible rather than requiring a nursing home.

The Area Agency on Aging of the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council will hold a public forum on Tuesday, August 21, from 2-3:30 p.m. at the Sanford Senior Center, Sanford Avenue and First Street, to inform the public about what services are available and to listen to ideas about what services are needed. Copies of the 1991 proposed AAA Plan of Action will be available. The AAA also needs to know about individual experience with finding aging services.

For more information, call the Area Agency on Aging at 623-1076.

Dietrich injured in Austria

Doris Dietrich, veteran newspaper woman, and her husband, Carl, have returned after spending nearly three weeks in Europe.

During her absence, Doris received multiple injuries including a fractured right leg in a fall on a mountainous slope. She was hospitalized 12 days in Zama, Austria and is convalescing at her home.

Her weekly column will resume in the Herald August 26.

Women artists offer workshops

The Women Artists Group offers a wide variety of workshops in arts and crafts, starting Saturday, Sept. 8. From 10 a.m. to noon "Designing and Creating Mixed Media Earrings" will be offered. Painting t-shirts and sweat shirts will be offered from 12:30 to 3 p.m.

For a complete schedule of fall workshops, call Joan Wahl at 323-8349 or write WAG, 1700 Sunset Dr. Longwood, 32750.

Learn about living wills

Living wills, living trusts, durable power of attorney and guardianships will be discussed by Attorney Douglas Whitney and State Representative Frank Stone on Friday, August 24, 10 a.m. at the Caselberry Senior Center, 200 N. Triplet Lake Dr.

Whitney has served as a probate judge, district counsel for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and has been in private and corporate practice.

Stone received the Most Effective Negotiator award presented by a committee of House members, industry lobbyists and House staff for demonstrating his ability to work with both parties.

Call 696-5187 for more information. All senior citizens are welcome. There is no charge.

Cooking is what she does best

PLYMOUTH — Ruth Garrison of Plymouth is our Cook Of The Week. Garrison is originally from Georgia where she learned some cooking skills from her mother. However, due to her mother's illness, Garrison for the most part taught herself to cook. She says that the kind of cooking style she uses is "a little of this and a little of that." She does cook everything from scratch and says, "cooking is what I do best." She can review a recipe and improve upon it. This cook has a fine appreciation for fresh veggies and uses very little meat. Her favorite meat is chicken but seafood (especially shrimp) and vegetables take precedence.

Being health conscious, Garrison rarely fries. The grandchildren are into fried chicken and she does accommodate them when they visit. She prefers to bake, broil or boil and always serves corn bread with every meal as the family values it over other breads. Her desserts are limited to a few special times. One special dessert is her pound cake. Several satisfied munchers, a recently gobbled the whole cake with delight.

Garrison has three daughters of whom she is extremely proud. One lives in Kentucky and two live in Osteen.

Our cook's attitude about family is evident by her warm speech in reference to those closest to her. She refers to her grown-up children often and draws her husband, Paul, into the conversation. She and Paul have been married for the past 14 years.

Where Garrison is modestly reticent about revealing to much of herself, Paul readily offers information about his charming wife.

Those who know Garrison, have the warmest regards and words for her. One neighbor reminds her that she always has a positive thought for everyone and never speaks ill of any person.

Garrison says that she learned about people when she ran a grocery store in Cocoa for 13 years. "I loved to serve the people. It was a challenge and every day a new experience." She smiles.

Her philosophy of cooking and living is, "the young should learn to cook at an early age, then they will have a lifetime to improve."

As to her personal lifestyle: "I've tried to never do anything in which I'd have to apologize." Continuing, she says, "I live every day and treat people the way I want to be treated. Believe me, family is first, foremost, and most important in this life."

- (steams and pieces)
 4 Tbs. soy sauce
 4 Tbs. Worcestershire sauce
 1 Tbs. curry powder
 1 Tbs. Tabasco sauce
 2 Tbs. garlic salt
 3 cans chopped tomatoes (stewed)

Use a 6-quart pot. Melt butter and saute shrimp just until pink. Add curry powder and cook 5 min. Add all spices, cook an additional 10 min. Add tomatoes, mushrooms, peppers and onions. Cook on low heat for 30 min. Serve over rice or dry stuffing.

Oil firms maintain margin over crude

But consumers paying more

By WALTER ANDREWS
United Press International

NEW YORK — The rise in gasoline prices appears to be the result of oil companies maintaining a margin over crude-oil prices that, before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, was more than double the margin of a year ago, an analysis of pricing patterns shows.

On June 22, well before the Aug. 2 invasion, crude was trading at 41.57 cents a gallon on the New York Mercantile Exchange while unleaded gasoline was selling for 61.37 cents a gallon, a differential, or margin, of 19.8 cents.

By comparison, on Aug. 10, more than a week after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, crude was trading at 62.45 cents a gallon and gasoline at 79.45 cents a gallon for a margin of 17 cents — a decline of 2.8 cents.

But on Jan. 5, when crude cost 54.96 cents a gallon, the margin was only 7.27 cents, comparable to the 7.46-cent margin of Aug. 11, 1989, when crude cost 44 cents a gallon.

The margin disparity reflects the fact that while crude prices plunged more than $1.20 a gallon in the first half of this year, wholesale gasoline prices stayed about the same and retail prices paid by consumers at the pump jumped about 7 cents a gallon.

Nationwide surveys of gasoline stations by the authoritative Lundberg Letter of Los Angeles show that the average weighted price of gasoline at the pump rose from 110.65 cents a gallon on Jan. 5 to 117.68 cents on June 22.

The operating margin for station owners minus wholesale prices and taxes remained around 12 cents a gallon during that period.

Asked to explain this disparity, Dennis Eklof of Cambridge Energy Associates in Cambridge, Mass., said Tuesday: "There's a shortage of refining capacity. It's as simple as that."

And he noted that oil companies are reluctant to invest in more refining capacity because of the costs incurred by environmental laws and the fact that proposed legislation for alternative fuels might make such capacity unnecessary.

Eklof declined to comment on whether he or Cambridge Energy Associates thought the increase in gasoline pump prices since the invasion was justified. "We've decided as a group that we don't want to get embroiled in that," he said.

"There's only one way for gasoline prices to go, and that's up," said Foster Mellen of Energy Security Analysis in Washington. "The gasoline supply worldwide remains tight. There's no spare refining capacity."

"In the last few years, the global demand for gasoline has started to bump up against global refining capacity," Mellen said. "That in itself would have sent gasoline prices upward."

The analyst also noted the margin between gasoline and crude prices in the last half of 1989 was abnormally low.

Mellen acknowledged that prices charged by oil companies for gasoline and other refined products don't always drop when crude prices fall as quickly as they rise when crude prices increase. "It doesn't always work that way," he said.

In comments to reporters Monday, Charles DiBona, president of the oil industry's American Petroleum Institute, said: "It's simply not true that prices go in only one direction."

"There has been tremendous restraint" on the part of oil companies in pricing gasoline as crude prices skyrocketed in the wake of the Iraqi invasion, DiBona said.

U.S. Moslems say Arabs subvert Islam

By Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Members of the American Moslem community are complaining that Islam has become a casualty of the Middle East crisis, with Arab leaders subverting the religion for political gain and the Western news media misinterpreting it.

Dr. Maher Hathout, a cardiologist and spokesman for the Islamic Center of Southern California in Los Angeles, charged that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi are "parasites," exploiting Islam for their own political ends.

The Saudi royal family is no better, he added, accusing members of the family of "using Islam to justify their hegemony."

Hathout and others said President Hussein's suggestion that Moslems might undertake a jihad, or what has been translated as a holy war, against the West for sending troops into Saudi Arabia is counter to Islam's clear misrepresentation of Islam.

"Saddam Hussein is not engaged in any holy war at all," said Laurence Michalak, vice chairman for Middle Eastern studies at University of California, Berkeley. "The dominant ideology in Iraq is the Baath Party, which is a form of Arab nationalism. Islam is not a religion of any particular ethnic group...."

Actually, Hathout argued, jihad does not mean holy war. He said that in Arabic it means "striving toward betterment."

AIDS treatment shows promise

By KAREN KLINGER
UPI Science Writer

BOSTON — An experimental treatment that uses a light-activated drug to attack the AIDS virus has shown promise in a small pilot study without producing serious side effects, researchers reported.

The study found four out of five patients who had a condition related to AIDS called AIDS-related complex, or ARC, appeared to benefit from undergoing a procedure called photopheresis.

Photopheresis involves giving a patient oral doses of a naturally occurring chemical called psoralen, removing blood from one arm, and then exposing the blood to ultraviolet light. The light activates the drug, which then appears to attack the AIDS virus. The blood then is reinfused into the patient.

Dr. Albert Klainer, who helped conduct the study at the Morristown Memorial Hospital in Morristown, N.J., cautioned that the results were preliminary and that the treatment needed further research.

We believe that the immune batteries in ARC patients can be jump-started.

-Dr. Albert Klainer

"This was a pilot study using a very small number of patients," he said. "Nevertheless, he said the "encouraging results" have led the researchers to expand the study to involve 20 people.

The precise way that photopheresis may fight the AIDS virus is unclear, Klainer said, but researchers believe it may help the body fight the virus by giving a boost to the immune system much the same way car batteries can be jump-started, he said.

"We believe that the immune batteries in ARC patients can be jump-started by photopheresis, so that the body can respond to the virus, just as it does early in the disease" when a person infected with the AIDS virus still has enough immune system responsiveness to remain free of symptoms, he said.

In an editorial accompanying the study, published Tuesday in the Annals of Internal Medicine, Dr. Elias Abrutyn, an associate editor of the journal, cautioned that the study was difficult to interpret because there were no untreated patients for comparison. The treatment may not have been responsible for the benefits seen, he said.

But Abrutyn said "AIDS is a calamitous illness for which we need additional therapies," and since the study did find evidence that the treatment may be effective, it should be publicized.

Photopheresis has been used to treat people with a rare cancer of the immune system and approved by the Food and Drug Administration as a cancer treatment.

Finder's keepsers on sunken treasure

By MITCHELL MILLER
United Press International

NORFOLK, Va. — A research team that won a legal battle over rights to the largest treasure find in U.S. history believes its victory has opened a new era in sea exploration.

A federal judge Tuesday ruled the Columbus-America Discovery Group of Columbus, Ohio, has legal title to gold from a 19th century shipwreck that the team has been working for years to raise from the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean.

"Every child's dream of finding sunken treasure is not just human, it's also legal," Columbus-America attorney Richard Robol said Tuesday. "Vision, hard work and ingenuity pay off."

Gold from the sidewheel steamer S.S. Central America has been estimated to be worth $450 million to $1 billion. With the assistance of an underwater robot, Columbus-America last summer hoisted more than a ton of gold.

At least two more tons — maybe more — are believed to remain with the ship, which which went down in 1857 during a hurricane, 160 miles off South Carolina.

The estimated value varies wildly because of swings in the spot market price of gold, and because some coins were chemically restored to mint condition, which moved the coins from the bullion to the pricey rare-coin market.

Columbus-America, formed by a group of adventurous men in their late 30s, has been battling in U.S. District Court to gain title to the booty. Also seeking a share were two U.S. insurance companies, seven British insurance firms, Columbia University, the state of New York and two private investors.

Robol said the ruling by U.S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam opens the world's oceans to more ambitious discovery efforts.

"It's a clearly a landmark case because it has opened up a whole new field of law," said Robol, referring to Columbus-America's use of underwater cameras to help stake its claim.

Barry Schatz, a research team member, said Columbus-America leader Thomas Thompson and others were at sea when they learned of the decision. While it may make him rich, Schatz noted the judge's handling of the case is more important in terms of the impact it will have on sea exploration.

"It's much more valuable than the gold itself, in fact," Schatz said. "Because up until this case, private individuals had no rights in over half of the world's surface. The deep ocean comprises 60 percent of the surface of the globe."

The insurance companies had claimed they were entitled to the gold because they covered its loss. Investors Harry John of Pacific Palisades, Calif., and Jack Grimm of Abilene, Texas, along with the Columbia University trustees, claimed their prior research led Columbus-America to the booty.

John and Grimm sponsored a search for the S.S. Central America in the early 1980s and claimed a Columbia University research team located the vessel by sonar before Thompson's group.

But Kellam rejected the competing claims. The judge found the Central America had been abandoned and that insurers failed to search for the lost property, which rested untouched 1 1/2 miles deep in the Atlantic for more than 130 years.

Kellam cited a lack of documentary evidence from the insurance companies, which referred to old newspaper accounts of the sinking to try to show they had insured the gold.

Gulford Ware, an attorney for the insurance companies, said he realized his side had a tough case to make, given the few documents available. "We didn't have any delusions," he said.

Ware said copies of the ruling have been sent to his clients and he would wait to hear from them regarding whether to appeal.

The treasure includes gold bars, 19th century $20, $10, and $5 gold coins, privately minted territorial coins and some foreign coins.

No cure known for inherited disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently, my aunt was diagnosed with Oculor-Rendu-Weber disease. Since I never heard of this before, I wonder if you can provide any information.

DEAR READER: Oculor-Rendu-Weber disease (hereditary hemorrhagic telangiectasia) is an unusual inherited disorder marked by vascular abnormalities of the skin and intestine; small, dark-red areas of swollen blood vessels that bleed easily. The red patches typically affect the face, lips, fingers, toes and intestinal lining. The intestinal lesions often bleed, leading to bowel hemorrhage and anemia.

The skin lesions can be treated with laser therapy or surgical excision, therapy that is close to impossible for the intestinal areas. Therefore, people with multiple bleeding lesions in the bowel may require transfusions or regular iron supplements to compensate for the blood loss.

Unfortunately, this treatment fails to address the underlying abnormality of the blood vessels, so the affliction can be treated but not cured. Nonetheless, if your aunt's doctor supervises her closely, checks her frequently for anemia, and administers iron (or, if necessary, transfusions), she should not suffer dangerous consequences from the disease.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard that a dry mouth could be an indication of a disorder within the body. At 69, I now have the condition and wake up several times a week with a mouth that can best be described as being as dry as sand. Is this a warning of some unknown problem?

DEAR READER: Xerostomia (dry mouth) is caused by a reduction in the amount of saliva. It is a symptom of several diseases, including diabetes, mouth infection, stones in the salivary ducts and Sjogren's syndrome (an unusual condition of self-allergy associated with arthritis).

Many drugs, such as antihistamines, cause xerostomia as a side effect.

People who mouth-breathe at night (because of allergies, sinus congestion or other mechanical problems in the throat) often awaken with dry mouths because the moisture is evaporated by this habit. If your mouth is dry all the time, day and night, you should be examined by a doctor to determine if there is a hidden disease or infection to blame. On the other hand, if this occurs inconsistently and only at night, you probably breathe through the mouth — and, as is usually the case, you also snore.

By James Jacoby
When South saw the dummy, he chided himself for being timid. There were 13 tricks in no-trump for the taking if either the jack of hearts came down or the diamond suit split 3-2 — overall, an excellent chance. Declarer played dummy's jack of clubs, covered with the king and ace. He cashed his king of hearts, went to dummy with the ace of diamonds and played A-Q of hearts, throwing his small spade and small club. He then played K-Q of diamonds, but East had the diamond suit stopped. And East now had a good heart — the jack. When declarer gave up a diamond trick, East cashed the heart for down one. Although declarer was a favorite to take all the tricks, he missed a way to almost guarantee 12 tricks in no-trump. Declarer was not playing in tournament competition, where his result would be compared with the results of others playing the same hand. Instead, the game was rubber bridge. South should therefore have done what he could to ensure making the small slam. After cashing his heart king, he should simply play a low diamond from the North and South hands. Either defender can win that diamond trick, but now declarer cannot be prevented from getting to dummy with the ace of diamonds to cash the A-Q of hearts, and the rest of his diamonds will be good, barring an extremely unlikely 5-0 diamond split.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 16, 1990

There is a possibility you may conceive something rather revolutionary in the year ahead that could be a boon in your field of endeavor. Use your inventive gifts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There is someone with whom you are presently involved who always attempts to pry into your confidential affairs. Today his/her curiosity is at a higher point than usual, so monitor your comments carefully. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail 82 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might be inclined to take risks today, not necessarily on yourself, but on others. There's a possibility you may back the wrong horse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) People you'll be involved with in business today could lose confidence in you if you fail to take a firm position on key matters. Don't fear of making an error cloud your judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A poor sense of timing could cost you the sale today. Don't be so anxious to make your points that it causes your presentation to appear out of sync. Think in an orderly manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A joint venture in which you are presently involved must be monitored very carefully today or else you might fall heir to the greater portion of the expenses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone whose advice you sought could get a little miffed with you today if this person sees you do just the opposite of what was recommended.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might not be as industrious as you should be today and you may look for shortcuts for assignments that require continuity and patience. Bungled results are likely.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you want your friends to treat you with generosity and warmth today, you must treat them in the same manner yourself. Don't expect what you don't deliver.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possibility you might peek it in today just when your objective is within reach. If you hope to be a winner, you must put the emphasis on your staying power.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you may be asked to relay some critical information to a second party. It would be wise to put the message on paper, because your memory might not be as reliable as usual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely careful today if you are handling funds for someone other than yourself. Something unexpected might develop that could have a negative affect on your attention span.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Indecisive people could introduce complications into your affairs today. It's best not to get seriously involved with anyone who cannot make up his/her own mind.
