Ladoczky trial offers lessons for SPD

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — The trial of Sanford Police Officer Darlene Ladoczky may be over, but investigations into ties between other police officers and convicted drug dealer Antonio Holley are only beginning.

The Sanford Police Department and Seminole County Sheriff's Office are conducting internal investigations into whether any other officers had improper relationships with Holley, 26, who accused Ladoczky of providing him with sex, crack cocaine and confidential police information.

Holley claimed to have friendships with several police officers and a Seminole County deputy sheriff. The officers and deputy described their relationship with Holley as distant. Holley did not accuse the officers of providing information or assistance in his drug trafficking.

However, the US Attorney's Office is investigating Longwood Police Officer Clint Gessli regarding allegations by Holley that he sold the officers crack cocaine on three occasions.

Throughout this week, a lesson from the trial Sanford Police Chief Brian Tooley has been discussing with officers is the danger of maintaining any kind of relationship with someone who is even suspected of criminal activity.

In fact, it is against department policy to associate with a known drug dealer or anyone suspected of criminal activity.

"I think the lesson for the police department is you don't associate with known criminals," said Sanford Mayor

Larry Dale. "You certainly don't sleep with him and expect him to change. No police officer should ever do that."

Ladoczky's defense attorney Charles Greene suggested throughout the officer's six-day trial that other police officers may have conspired with Holley.

"I take a lot of that with a grain of salt," Dale said. "That's all about slinging some mud on the wall and seeing what will stick."

Fireworks ban lifted

County drought index dips below 600, but officials still urge caution

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County fireworks ban was lifted on Friday because of increased rainfall.

The sale and use of fireworks is once again permitted in Seminole County.

"This decision was made after reviewing several indicators that we take into consideration, such as current and forecasted rainfall, number of brush fire calls, as well as fire fuel load assessments conducted by the Division of Forestry," said Terry Schenk, Fire Chief of Seminole County.

The Fourth of July holiday is less than two weeks away, and the move Friday by county officials clears the way for vendors to sell fireworks. Casselberry and Oviedo did not follow the county's lead in banning the sale of fireworks, enabling vendors in those cities to sell supplies.

"Our first responsibility is to the safety of the county's residents," Schenk said. "But, we had two cities where fireworks are already available. We also have a responsibility to give businesses a fair shake."

Fireworks demonstrations in Seminole County are scheduled to be held July 4 at Fort Mellon Park in Sanford, and July 3 at Crane's Rest Park in Altamonte Springs.

Although the fireworks ban is being lifted, Seminole County fire officials are urging residents to use extreme caution if they use fireworks.

Each year up to 200 deaths have been reported as a result of fireworks nationwide. Most of those deaths occur on July 4 and over the New Years holiday.

More than 12,000 people are hospitalized because of fireworks related accidents. Fifty-five percent of those injured are under the age of 15. About 24 percent of the victims are 16

Seminole County firefighters put out a boat fire at Wayside Park near the Seminole/Volusia county line. Crews responded within minutes of the call and quickly extinguished the fire. No injuries were reported and the cause of the fire is under investigation.

Casselberry files suit against Florida Power Corporation

By Rebecca Grillot
Herald Intern

Casselberry's electric service may be municipalized as early as next year if a court rules that the city has the legal right to purchase Florida Power Corporation's franchise.

The city filed suit against FPC on June 7 because the company refused to include a purchase option in a new franchise with Casselberry, according to Public Works Director Tony Segreto. The option would allow Casselberry to purchase the franchise, which includes the distribution system of poles and power lines, after 30 years.

FPC's 30-year franchise with the city expires in April 2001.

"We've been negotiating with them for three years and the negotiations have been totally unsuccessful," Segreto said. "We've had a good business relationship with Florida Power for 30 years and it's unfortunate that we have to go to court."

FPC declined to comment. Before making the decision to take legal action, Casselberry conducted a feasibility study to see if it could afford to provide electric service to the community. Findings show that the city could eventually make a profit of more than $2 million a year, Segreto said. The profit the city makes could be used to lower rates or to improve services to citizens.

"We're still in our discovery phase, but it appears to be feasible and we feel that it requires FPC to begin talking to us," Segreto said.

Segreto said that the public would benefit in several ways from a municipally owned electric system.

"The biggest advantage of local control is rates," Segreto said. "Municipally owned companies generally have lower rates than public systems. The profit stays in the community

Charlie Daniels will perform at Sanford Heritage Festival

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Heritage Festival will feature a legendary country music band and a classic R&B singer this fall.

The Charlie Daniels Band and Percy Sledge will perform at the third annual festival, to be held Nov. 10 through 12 in the streets of downtown Sanford.

Produced by the Sanford-Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, the festival drew 15,000 visitors its first year and 25,000 last year. This year, the festival is expected to attract 35,000 visitors, said chamber director Ron Rose.

The Charlie Daniels Band, whose hits include the 1979 classic "Devil Went Down to Georgia," will perform Friday Nov. 10 for the festival's opening night.

"This Charlie Daniels thing is big," Rose said. "We're expecting a big turnout Friday night."

Percy Sledge, 59, best known for the 1966 classic "When A Man Loves A Woman," will take the stage the following night.

Chubby Checker, who inspired Sanford to do the

Daniels

"Twist" the first two years of the festival, will not be at this year's edition of the festival.

"Chubby Checker is legendary, and we believe Percy Sledge is the same caliber of entertainer," Rose said. "We're excited about bringing an R&B and soul artist like Percy Sledge to Sanford. See Festival, Page 10A

How Uncle Nick and friends are helping Colleen Fader

Who, except the gods, can live time forever without any pain? Some suffer far more than others. Consider what has happened to Colleen Fader.

Colleen is a 34-year-old single mother of two children — Matthew (17) and Joshua (5).

She has had three brain tumors removed and has lost both breasts to cancer. Doctors are trying desperately to block the cancer before it creates more cells.

Colleen has lost all her red hair.

She has no health insurance and is not yet eligible for disability checks.

Colleen's companion, J.D. Grzeskowiak, had a heart attack while waiting for her to undergo radiation treatment last year at Altamonte Hospital.

"The sweet guy is standing one minute and the next he's passed out," Colleen said Friday afternoon. "His heart — such a great heart. I thought to myself, how much can we take? I.D.'s better now. Thank God."

Colleen, her Irish up, is determined to accentuate the posifive. "So you get a nasty thing called cancer but at the same time you get a wonderful thing called love," she said Friday. "I couldn't ask God for the love and the friends He has sent to me."

Before her cancer worsened last year, she was a bartender at Uncle Nick's in Sanford. Uncle Nick is Nick Pappas. He's 58, has a head of thick black hair, and everyone says he's a great guy. Friendly and gruff, they say. But mostly friendly. Nick's putting on a benefit for Colleen Fader on Sunday, July 9.

There will be a BBQ that day, music, a car and bike show and a 100 mile Poker Run. Hopefully, the event will help pay Colleen's rising medical expenses.

"I've never seen anyone with so much class and elegance and be fighting for their life as Colleen is," said Theresa Ouderkerk, the manager at Uncle Nick's. "When a bunch of us went to see her at the hospital, she wasn't in her room.

Colleen was down the hall helping other patients. She said one elderly lady needed an extra blanket.

"That's what we've come to expect from this special woman," Ouderkerk said. "You see those most beautiful blue eyes even in all her agony. She's lost her hair but she's still so graceful, so elegant."

Ouderkerk said most of the old crowd that came to Uncle Nick's when it was an oyster bar and later as a liquor bar are planning to be in the Poker Run. Bikers, we know, have done this sort of thing whenever a pal was in pain and needed assistance. You see them on the road and wonder what they do that actually matters. This is one of the things they do that matters greatly.

There also will be guys and gals in the Poker Run who never met Colleen, but they're willing to lend their support to her. You'll see them on their bikes, accomplishing more than the rest of society could for Colleen.

Fact is, Colleen's accomplishing more than the rest of society does for itself.

Our View

Who will fill Mac's shoes?

Of the five worthy candidates, Kerry Lyons is the best fit for the job

The untimely death of long-time Sanford City Commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan left a void in the city that went far beyond an empty seat at the city commission table. Mac's love of Sanford and his tireless efforts to make it a better place were at the heart of his service to the city. Whether attending to city business, collecting and repairing bicycles as part of the Kiwanis' community project or doing the literally thousands of private "random acts of kindness" that are only now becoming public, Mac's motto was "service before self."

On the City Commission, he was the voice of compassion, never afraid to speak up when he felt the needs of others were being trampled. He was also the balancing force, never one to stand at either extreme but rather committed to finding compromise in the middle. And Mac wasn't afraid to change with the times. He relied on the wisdom of his experience but didn't reject new ideas simply because they hadn't been tried before.

So when Mac died, he left some very big shoes to fill. The question that arose: Would there be anyone up to the challenge of living in Mac's shadow of service?

Five people stepped forward to accept that challenge and filed petitions to run for Mac's seat on the commission. All appear sincere in their desire to serve the citizens of District 3, and each brings special talents that would be an asset to the city.

Martha Yancey is 79 going on 28. A long-time activist in the city, Yancey has more enthusiasm than women half her age. She has served on numerous boards and committees, helped organize community efforts like the revitalization of Park on Park, and most recently performed a supporting role in "Social Security," the first play produced in the newly renovated Helen Stairs Theatre. There's no doubt about Martha's commitment to Sanford. In fact, she's been serving the community since before some of the candidates were born.

Mark Hoen is a newcomer to Sanford. A long-time Seminole County resident, Hoen moved to Sanford two years ago. But his short residence in the city doesn't make him any less committed to improving Sanford. He believes Sanford has an image problem and wants to focus on law enforcement and code enforcement to change that image.

Dean Ray's involvement in grass roots law enforcement efforts is a fine example of proactive participation in local government. While supportive of the police department's efforts, he knows that neighborhoods must play a role, too, if there is to be an impact on reducing crime. He has helped create neighborhood watch organizations, donating both time and money, and actively serves on the Citizens' Advisory Council, a cooperative effort between residents and the Sanford Police Department. He brings a knowledge of criminal justice issues and would be an advocate of increased police funding.

But while all of the candidates would make good commissioners, two of the candidates set themselves apart from the pack — Randy Jones and Kerry Lyons.

Both men are bright young men who see Sanford on the brink of tremendous change. Both bring fresh ideas about how to meet the challenges this change will bring. But unfortunately, both men can't be elected to office during this election. So, like the voters of District 3, we must choose one candidate. That candidate is Kerry Lyons.

We like Lyons because of the experience he brings to the commission. Having already served one term as a commissioner, Lyons is aware of the issues that are important to District 3. He is also familiar with how city government works. Lyons has a better grasp on specific details and is prepared to offer specific plans to improve Sanford. Jones is certainly capable of being an effective commissioner, but Lyons has a headstart that will serve Sanford well.

We also like Lyons deliberative, thoughtful manner. He asks good questions, is level-headed and, like McClanahan, he looks for ways to bring commissioners together on issues. Jones has promised to ask tough questions and says he plans to be "nobody's 'yes boy.'" Those are good traits we expect of all commissioners. However, Jones appears to be looking for a fight, especially when he accuses the current commissioners of having "personal agendas." To use Jones' words, we don't want a commissioner who "goes along to get along"; but by the same token, we also don't want a commissioner who brings divisiveness to the commission.

Jones has a future in Sanford politics, and we see him having a leadership role in Sanford's future, if he so chooses. But at this moment in Sanford's history, we believe Lyons upholds the example set by McClanahan, and he is the best choice for District 3 and for Sanford.

The Herald congratulates each of the candidates on their commitment to run for public office, and we hope all will choose to remain active in some form of service to the city. We also encourage the voters of District 3 to head to the polls on Tuesday to vote for the candidate of your choice.

Carpenter thinks Sanford needs a 'fresh face'

To the editor:

Sanford's water main break. Was it just a minor inconvenience or should it be a red flag? Growth should be a good thing and it can be if all the facts are considered — that is, the social economic impact each project will have on the schools, roads, parks, utilities, public safety and of course the quality of life for those for whom the growth is supposed to help.

One benchmark on growth that has commonly been ignored in the past is whether the infrastructure can support that project now and in the future. A bomb can cause "collateral damage" and its negative effects can be immediately measured, but a rock thrown in the water produces ripples that won't reach the shore for some time. We can't access their impact on the shore until after the fact. It seems to me that all the issues that are citizens' concerns are related to growth. Can we stay ahead of the curve with our infrastructure? I think that in District 3 we need a fresh face. A person un-leveraged by past politics. A person with the courage to consider in their decisions our long term future. Can we learn from the mistakes of other cities or will we pay the consequences of short term thinking? My bet on Tuesday will go with a fresh face for District 3. My opinion and my vote is worth no more than yours on this Tuesday. Please vote.

Anderson believes Yancey best candidate

To the Editor:

I am baffled as to why Sanford's Lakefront Hotel/Conference Center keeps surfacing as an issue in the upcoming Sanford City Commissioner election. It seems in all articles I have read about the candidates and the election coverage in general, the Hotel/Conference Center issue is brought up, again and again, emphasizing which candidate is for it or who's against the project.

In all, the citizens of Sanford clearly spoke in a referendum vote in favor of the Hotel/Conference Center being constructed on the Lake Monroe waterfront at Ft. Melon Park. What bothers me, is that candidate Randy Jones misguidedly sold his soul to the "Save Our Park" group on an issue that is truly a dead issue and will never come before the city commissioners again.

Candidate Martha Yancey, on the other hand, has taken the right approach on this issue. She rightfully respects the citizens' vote in favor of the project. She believes a candidate's personal position on the project is a mute issue and respects the people's right to decide. Therefore, she has focused her campaign on important issues for a better cleaner Sanford that will come before the city commission.

Sincerely,
Robert Anderson

Fire Fighters Local No. 3996 endorse Jones

To the editor:

As representative of the Sanford Professional Fire Fighters Local 3996, I am pleased to announce our unified support for Randy Jones for the office of City Commissioner, District 3.

The City of Sanford is in the beginning stages of the largest increase in population and industrial growth in its recent history. How this future growth is managed is the main concern for all of the citizens of Sanford. Sanford has an excellent group of commissioners already in office. The Sanford Professional Fire Fighters Local 3996 feels Randy Jones will make an excellent addition to the team. Randy Jones' stance of government is based on the idea: "If a city can successfully provide clean drinking water, safe streets, proper fire protection and emergency medical services to its citizens, the city will be successful in all other endeavors."

After several meetings, The Sanford Professional Fire Fighters Local 3996 have found Randy Jones to be an individual of high energy, intelligence, self confidence and one who can make decisions based on common sense. Vice President Michael

Turner stated, "Randy Jones has good moral character, who has surrounded himself with an excellent support system of family and friends."

In this abbreviated campaign, Randy Jones has been working hard to get his message out by walking his district on a door-to-door campaign, in order to meet his constituents. Randy has also attended several different home owner association meetings and spoken at churches and with other civic groups.

It is because of Randy Jones' hard working, common sense approach to this campaign, The Sanford Professional Fire Fighters Local 3996 are proud to support Randy Jones for the office of City Commissioner, District 3.

David Frost
President The Sanford Professional Fire Fighters Local 3996

Editor's note: Local 3996 is not legally recognized as an official bargaining unit with the city of Sanford. The organization is currently completing the requirements for such recognition.

Jones receives endorsement from local FOP

To the editor:

The Fraternal Order of Police, Sanford Lodge No. 140 is a proud supporter of Randy Jones for the District 3 City Commissioner seat. After hearing Mr. Jones' issues, we feel that as Sanford grows, he will be committed to making Sanford a better place to bring families and friends.

Mr. Jones is also aware of the issues with crime and public safety; he has expressed the fact that the Police department is in need of more manpower and equipment. We feel that with the positive attitude he has displayed, and his caring for not only the citizens of Sanford but also the dedicated city employees, this makes him a valuable person to be seated on our City Commission.

The Fraternal Order of Police, Sanford Lodge No. 140 believes that as Sanford progresses into the future, Mr. Jones' leadership and concerns will make Sanford a community that will be the spotlight of Central Florida for

To the editor:

I am presenting this letter in support of Dean Ray for the office of Sanford City Commissioner District 3 on behalf of our neighborhood watch "Operation Clean Sweep."

When our neighborhood watch was formed in April of 1993, Dean Ray was one of the first people to offer his help and support. At that time he was already an active member of the Citizens Advisory Board, Sanford Citizens Patrol, Dreamworld Neighborhood Watch and supportive of other neighborhood watches.

At our first watch meeting he was one of several invited guests who attended. When our first elections were held, Dean Ray was elected to be Captain of the Watch. The experience he had already gained in the other citizen activities proved to be a great asset. A large part of "Operation Clean Sweep" Neighborhood Watch success is due to his experience. When he was appointed as Chairperson of the Citizens Advisory Board, the "Watch" counted his success as our own.

Dean Ray is now in his second term as Captain of the Watch. And we look forward to his continued support.

He has proved to be a person of his word and a person who really cares about the city he lives in. They say action speaks louder than words. Well this man has proved his word by his actions.

District 3 would do well to have this man, Dean Ray, represent them as their commissioner.

Respectfully submitted,
Patricia Thompson

Life is comparable to sports for the middle-aged man

Now I know that a lot of women like sports, but I think the vast majority of sports fans are men. And predominantly middle-aged men. We're the ones sprawled out on the family room couch with an ottoman barely to catch the overflow. We're the ones who will watch any sport, anytime, anywhere. And I think I know why. In sports you are always living "in the moment." While what happened in the past may have some relevance and what will happen in the future is tinged with the hope, the main focus in sports is what is happening RIGHT NOW. Middle-aged men love that. That's where we want to be — living in the moment. Not living in the past, when we feel more of everything, from trees to hairstyle choices, where we can be criticized for our unimpaired career choices after graduation or our inappropriate behavior at last night's party. Not living in the future when we will look back at our current physical deterioration as the gold-ol' days. No, we don't want to think about that. The truth is we don't want to think about anything. But hey, that's what sports or television is for.

Red Green

With the increasing amount of leisure time available to middle-aged couples over the last few years, we're all starting to expand our interests and hobbies, and this is creating a real problem. Women are quilting, and doing needlepoint, and painting in acrylics and making dried floral arrangements. Men are doing woodwork, and building model airplanes, and renovating unused bedrooms and making lawn ornaments. Unfortunately, very few of us are any good at this stuff. What we end up with is some butt-ugly thing that they make better with a machine in January, and costs about 99 cents, and more importantly, is something you're allowed to throw in the garbage without starting World War III. Some people give their creations to their friends, but there's a risk of them returning the favor. So I say what we need are designated Hobby Centers set up by the government in abandoned hotels or whatever. We would all go there on a Saturday morning and do our hobby thing — build, or sew, or paint, or sew — and then when we're finished, and this is the important part, the thing that we make is NOT ALLOWED TO LEAVE THE BUILDING... EVER.

How to Find Your True Age

I read about some guy on the Internet who has different ways of determining your true age. I think it's a formula based on your heart rate, and blood pressure, and weight and whatever. He himself is over 50, chronologically, but is actually only 38.6 on this new measurement system. I think if you go to his Web site, you're already at least 40. Nobody young is concerned about their true age unless they get caught in a bar. But I've come up with other ways to measure a person's true age, with some amazing results.

- Alcohol Intake: Doctors say you should only take in one alcoholic drink per day. At that rate, my Uncle Ralph is 173 years old.
- Hair Loss: On average, men have experienced 50 percent hair loss by the age of 40 and a 70 percent hair loss by the age of 65. By this measurement, boxing promoter Don King is 11.
- Waist Measurement: A person's girth increases by 2.5 cm (1") every decade. This means I age 15 years each Christmas.
- Favorite TV Shows: Since viewers relate best to people of their own generation, a person's true age is reflected in the television shows they watch. If you watch "Southpark," your true age is 9. If you watch "Baywatch," your true age is 30. If you watch "The Lawrence Welk Show," you are re-encarnated.

A lot of guys my age have somewhere they can go where they can be alone and have peace and think or timber around or whatever. Sometimes it's a club in town or a bowling alley or a bar. More often it's a place in their own home. Sometimes a basement workshop or a garden shed, but usually it's the garage.

You'll see a guy's garage and he'll have an old couch and a TV and a beer fridge in there. It's a place that's all his. Where he can do whatever he wants, and say whatever he wants, and more importantly, eat and drink whatever he wants. And if there's a lawn mower lying there in 50 or 60 pieces with no hope of ever being reassembled, well, that's nobody's business.

Compared to the intimidating environment of the house, with the designer furniture and the fancy drapes and the expensive carpets, the garage is pure comfort and relaxation. Sit anywhere in dirty clothes and put your feet up. You are the master of your environment instead of vice versa.

So to the rest of the family: Don't worry about Dad spending time out there in the garage. You know where he is. You know there's only so much trouble he can get into. He's there if you need him. And he will eventually come back into the house a much happier man.

Solarveil offers people option in sun protection

By Rebecca Grilliot
Herald Intern

With skin cancer as one of the leading diseases in the country today, many people are looking for more ways to protect themselves from the sun's damaging rays.

Sanford-based Solarveil America Inc., offers a line of clothing that protects skin from UV rays without wearing sunscreen. The company, founded and co-owned by Bill Snyder and David Leslie in 1997, moved to its NorthStar Business Park home in 1998.

Leslie first heard of a fabric that protected skin from UV rays while working in an Atlanta storeroom in 1997. When he flew up to Canada to view the material, he was disappointed to discover that it was made of curtain-like material and was only 50 percent effective in blocking UV rays.

Leslie then had the idea to develop a fabric that offers reliable protection from the sun and approached his best friend Snyder, who was then in retirement, with his plan. The two friends formed a partnership and asked textile company Milliken to design a fabric that filters up to 80 percent of the sun's UV rays. Snyder's son Rob Ireland is the Vice President of Marketing and his wife Julia is the CFO.

"I was retired and 53 at the time. To work with my wife, son and best friend seemed like a good idea and a good business opportunity," Snyder said.

A textile chemist designed the formulation for the material which is a complex yarn structure of polyester which the company says reflects, refracts and absorbs UVA and UVB rays. Even though the lightweight material is see-through, according to Snyder, a single layer of Solarveil clothing blocks up to 80 percent of UV rays, while a double layer blocks up to 90 percent.

"It's the only clothing that provides coolness and comfort while protecting the skin against the evil UV rays," Snyder said.

A variety of styles of clothing are available including hats, beach cover-ups, T-shirts, polo shirts, pants and jackets are available in 10 colors. Prices range from $9 to $77, Snyder said that the company's single biggest selling item is the women's beach cover-up.

"We're not trying to be Tommy or Ralph," Leslie said. "We're stylish, but our purpose is to offer sun protection."

Although most of Solarveil's business is through mail order from catalogs or the internet, Solarveil also receives walk-in business at its Sanford headquarters. Solarveil has 130 stores in the country and three in the Orlando-area.

Leslie said that after an article on Solarveil appeared in "Prevention" magazine's June issue, the company has received thousands of calls.

"Our maker can't get the clothing made fast enough," Snyder said.

The company takes orders from around the world, as far away as Australia and China.

"Our mission statement is to cover the world with Solarveil," Snyder joked.

To purchase Solarveil products, visit the company website at www.solarveil.com, call 407-328-5150 or visit the Solarveil store, 610 Central Park Drive, Sanford.

Morgan's Gourmet Cafe opens doors in Sanford

By Michelle Jerla
Managing Editor

Mike Morgan loves to cook. And, it appears the people of Sanford love to eat what he's serving.

Morgan's Gourmet Cafe quietly opened its doors for the first time in downtown Sanford Wednesday. But, even without a lot of publicity, front house manager Pamela Esposito said the dining room was full.

"We had a very good opening day," Esposito said.

It's been three months since Morgan closed the Times Square Bistro, which was located almost directly across the street from his new restaurant, and people still remember his specialty recipes. On Friday, two women walked into the restaurant and ordered "that wonderful shrimp scampi," without even looking at the menu.

Customers will find old favorites on the menu, including the shrimp scampi and Morgan's gourmet hot dog topped with tomato provolone cheese and mayonnaise, but the chef said he is going back to the classics when it comes to his dinner fare.

Entrees include Beef Wellington topped with wild mushrooms and served with a Bordelaise sauce, crab meat stuffed grouper and fresh frog legs sautéed in chopped garlic and butter.

"We kind of have a logo. We're a cafe by day and gourmet by night."

According to Morgan, the restaurant uses only the finest ingredients, including black Angus steak and fresh vegetables. He imports a large quantity of food from Louisiana.

After closing the Bistro following a disagreement with the building's owner, Morgan said he knew he was going to open another restaurant in downtown Sanford.

"There are a lot of great people here, and I enjoy the area," he said. "And, there isn't a fine-dining restaurant in the area unless you want to go to downtown Orlando."

"We offer quality dining, and we've really cleaned the restaurant up," he said. "We are not a bar. We offer a nice, upscale environment."

Although born in Kansas, Morgan has strong ties to Sanford. Most of his family is from the area, and his great grandmother owned a boarding house in the city years ago.

Morgan has no formal cooking training, but his love of cooking has given him a well-known name in the food industry. Recipes created by the local chef are currently being used throughout Central Florida.

"I just have a passion and love for cooking," Morgan said. "I knew when I was 7 years old I was going to open a restaurant."

And, he is excited about his newest endeavor. Along with the rest of his staff, including Bartender/Server Carth M. Kinney, Hostess/Pattie Casen and Sous Chef Gregg Gladwin, Morgan promises people an enjoyable dining experience.

Morgan's Gourmet Cafe is open 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Thursday through Saturday. The restaurant is closed Sunday. Morgan's also offers services in catering, not a chef, weddings, meetings and all special occasions and has gift boxes to go.

Morgan also plans to offer cooking classes in the near future.

Air conditioners combat heat

If you've put off buying a window air conditioner — or sweated through subpar cooling with your old unit — you may want to hit the stores now, before the summer's heatwaves turn air conditioners into a precious commodity.

Room air conditioners can cool one or two rooms in climates with a short hot season. A unit's cooling capacity is measured in British Thermal Units per hour (Btu/hour). Some models are rated as high as 13,000 Btu/hr, but most range from 5,000 to 15,000 Btu/hour. Too little capacity won't cool adequately. A unit with too much cooling power, meanwhile, may not dehumidify properly because its compressor will cycle off too often.

A tag on each new air conditioner lists its energy efficiency rating (EER) — its capacity in Btu/hour divided by power consumption in watts. A model with an EER of 10 should use about 20 percent less energy than one whose EER is 8, other factors being equal. A high EER may cost extra, but you should recoup that expense, especially if you use the air conditioner often. Using less energy can also help prevent summertime brownouts caused by excessive power demands.

Beginning with units made after Oct. 1, 2001, the U.S. Department of Energy will require window-mounted air conditioners rated at less than 8,000 Btu/hour to have an EER of at least 9.7. Larger units 8,000 to 13,999 Btu/hour must meet a minimum EER of 9.8. Many units currently available already comply with these stricter standards.

Many units also have electronic controls, whose precise digital temperature readouts are an improvement over the vague "warmer" or "cooler" settings found on models with mechanical controls. Programmable comfort is another convenient, energy-saving feature of electronic controls. A control panel lets you input a time for the air conditioner to switch on. Some air conditioners even have remote controls.

Before setting off in search of a room air conditioner, determine the right size unit for the space you're cooling. You can consult the interactive worksheet on our Web site — www.ConsumerReports.org — or follow these general guidelines:

— For 100 to 350 square feet, select a unit with a cooling capacity of between 5,000 and 5,500 Btu/hour.

— For 175 to 450 square feet, look for a capacity of 6,000 to 6,600 Btu/hour.

— For 200 to 500 square feet, consider models with capacities of 7,000 to 8,000 Btu/hour. We recently tested a number of models with cooling capacities ranging from 5,000 to 8,000 Btu/hour and found most to be fine performers. Here are some of the standouts:

— 5,000 to 5,500 Btu/hour. Electronic controls, a remote control and an EER of 10 make the 5,400 Btu/hour Kenmore 78056 the top performer in this category. Its $190 price tag makes it a CR Best Buy. Other very good performers include the $300 Sharp Compact Series AF-R09X (5,500 Btu/hour, 9.7 EER) and the $220 Goldstar MS400 (5,400 Btu/hour, 10 EER).

— 6,000 to 6,600 Btu/hour. The Amana Quiet Zone 7M11TA ($370) and the similar Kenmore Innovative Line 78079 ($365) are both 6,600 Btu/hour, 10 EER models featuring electronic controls. They scored "excellent" in our tests.

— 7,800 to 8,000 Btu/hour. Two high-rated — and highly efficient — models in this group are the $410 Panasonic CW-C807U (7,800 Btu/hour, 11 EER) and the 8,000-Btu/hour, 10 EER Carrier G Series CCA081B — at $320 a CR Best Buy. Neither has electronic controls.

You'll find the best selection of air conditioners through the first major heatwave. Shopping during a heatwave, however, means braving long lines and short-tempered sales staff. Late in the summer, prices may drop — on any models still on store shelves.

The Way We Were: Buried treasure in Longwood

The following is edited from a recent oral history interview with Jenny Alice Bryant Coleman who was born in Longwood April 12, 1908. Betty Jo Stockton was the interviewer and her results were in an article in "Buried Treasures," Volume 32, No. 2, a quarterly published by the Central Florida Genealogical Society.

Alice Bryant's parents were Eliza Miranda Burkett (born in Alachua County in 1863, died in Apopka in 1945) and Guy Austin Bryant (born 1873 in Connecticut, died 1960 in Apopka).

Bryant's grandparents were Orville and Alice Bryant who came to Florida from Connecticut after the Civil War. They had settled in Longwood before 1887 as O. Bryant is listed as an orange grower there in the 1887 Orange County Directory. At that time, Longwood's population was 1027. According to the directory, it had three hotels, an express and telegraph office, two saw mills and eight stores. There were also Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian and Congregational churches. The "Longwood News" was a weekly paper and chief businesses were oranges, manufacturing and mercantile. The directory said, "This little city is the most important place between Sanford and Orlando."

Guy Bryant, Alice's father, worked as a picker in the orange groves. The wagon would pick up the men on Monday morning in Longwood and they would work in the grove for one or two weeks until it was picked clean. Since Bryant lived over two miles from Longwood, he would have to walk there on Sunday nights to be ready to go early Monday morning. The men slept under the wagons on a bed of moss. For their meals, they fished and hunted squirrels which they put in a big pot for stew.

Eliza Bryant, Alice's mother, at first walked her children (there were eventually eight) to school. She later got a job taking them plus other children to school by horse and wagon. She was paid $1 a month for each child. Her next step was to buy a 1914 Ford. Some children would walk to their house while others had to be picked up at Lake Jessup.

Grace Maria Stinecpher

Because of the long distance, they usually started way before daylight.

The school was in the center of Longwood, about a country block from the old hotel. It had two rooms with about 30 total students. Bryant thought it was from first to seventh grades. Each class had its own work and would be called up front to recite. Alice and her siblings would bring their lunch in a bucket—probably a lard bucket—and would all sit and eat from the same bucket. They would have grits and squirrel or rabbit, whatever their mother could find in the woods.

The Bryants had a large two and a half story house. Each child had lots of chores. Bryant said that she did whatever her mother told her to do such as sweep, clean or stir grits. She began cooking at about age five. When she would get burned, her mother would say, "That's part of it."

They had cows, chickens and ducks. Once one of the kids caught a polecat and threw it in a barrel which of course created an awful stink. Bryant said that if they didn't own up to what they did, everyone got a whipping.

Part of the house was later torn down to build a store. It was a general store—just called "the store" — which sold such things as rice in a barrel and sugar at nine cents a pound. Both of her parents ran the store. Alice was just a little kid so she mostly just ran around.

In about 1914, Eliza Bryant opened a restaurant in Longwood. The railroad agent had offered her a box car if she would open one so he'd have someplace to eat. The railroad car was pulled up under a tree. A log about three feet high was rolled into the store which was planed smooth and used for a counter.

Eliza cooked dinners for the railroad agent and the men from the store for 25 cents each. These meals consisted mostly of vegetables such as beans and peas. Sometimes Whites Grocery from Sanford would deliver meat. Since there was no refrigerator, she would salt the meat down to keep it. She would cook the meat with lots of vegetables.

Eliza would also cook enough food for her children who ate after the men finished. Other towns people also ate there.

Eliza also made ketchup and carried it to Longwood to sell. They would go to Lake Jessup in an old wagon and pick tomatoes and come back with a wagon load. After the season was over, the farmers would let people pick all they wanted. Eliza would put the ketchup in bottles that looked like drink bottles. She would cork them with a wooden cork that she whittled herself and then seal them with paraffin. Some was sold in the restaurant or people would stop by their house.

Bryant remembered that when her grandmother died, she was laid out in the house on an ironing board. The children were afraid to walk past her so they went around the house and climbed in a window to their beds.

Bryant married J.G. Coleman in 1929. They moved to Mount Dora where she had a barbecue stand on Highway 441. She said that most of the "speed cops" came there to eat. She also said that the building is still there.

J.G. Coleman was a field foreman in the orange groves for Gentile Brothers and others. They moved to Polk County in the 1930s where Alice had a full fledged restaurant.

In 1925, Alice's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.A. Bryant, bought the Oaks Hotel in Apopka and managed it for the rest of their lives. It had 17 rooms. After their deaths, Alice kept it open as an apartment house.

Alice is now widowed and living on the outskirts of Apopka. Her memories of childhood in Longwood are still sharp, but the Longwood she remembers has no resemblance to what we see today.

If any of you long time Longwood residents have memories of your early days there, do share them with me. I don't have much easy access to the early history of Longwood or any other cities in the county besides Sanford. I would like to be able to write about the early days in your town, too but I need your input. Put your memories down and send them to me in care of the "Seminole Herald" or call me at (407) 322-4381. I'd also appreciate pictures for the Vintage Views.

Seminole County is still under the burn ban issued by the Department of Agriculture on May 17.

Because of drought conditions and the threat of wildfires, the state has banned all outdoor burning, except in backyard barbecue grills.

The ban makes it a misdemeanor to light outdoor fires, including burning trash, building campfires or doing controlled burns to clear out vegetation. Violators face a fine of $1,000 or more.

Seminole County officials will continue monitoring conditions throughout this drought period.

Seminole County had a drought index level this week of 570. The Keetch-Byram Drought Index, used to measure the level of moisture in the ground, ranges from 0 for monsoon conditions to 800 for desert conditions.

Any level above 600 is considered dangerously dry, and 700 represents an extreme wildfire threat. At one point during this summer's drought, the county's drought index level rose to 750.

Constantine: 'We're going to get the midges'

By Bill Kerne
Staff Writer

SANFORD — State Rep. Lee Constantine has come a long way since working in his father's restaurant while attending Lyman High School.

"My mother told me not to tell my father I was the manager," Constantine said. "I was making $12,000 a year, and still going to my father for an allowance. That's how I put myself through college. My mother put the money in a savings account for me."

In 1992, Constantine (R-Altamonte Springs) was elected to the state House of Representatives. He rose to serve as a ranking member on the House Education Appropriations Committee, but after eight years is leaving his office because of state term limits.

He is Vice President of Business and Development for Welsh Companies in Orlando, and a graduate of the University of Central Florida.

Constantine, a former Altamonte Springs city commissioner, is seeking the state Senate seat currently held by Toni Jennings. She is vacating the seat because of term limits. The district generally stretches from the Orlando International Airport to the Orlando Sanford Airport.

Constantine was the guest speaker Friday during a Sanford-Seminole County Chamber of Commerce member luncheon at the Best Western Marina Hotel.

On an ironic note, one of the candidates to replace Constantine in the state House of Representatives, Larry Strickler, gave the introduction. However, Constantine declined to endorse a successor.

Constantine vowed that Sanford will receive state funding to control midges, the pesky insects plaguing the city's downtown waterfront during summer months. Gov. Jeb Bush vetoed funding for midge control two consecutive years.

"We're going to get the midges," Constantine said. "We're going to kill those things. We just have to get the funding."

He also said he hoped Sanford would receive funding for renovations to Historic Sanford Memorial Stadium, which was also vetoed for the second consecutive year by Bush.

"We kind of knew we would have a hard time with that one," Constantine conceded. "But, we'll keep trying."

Constantine said his top priority as a legislator is to promote education.

"Everything starts and ends with education," Constantine said. "This is the key to our present and our future."

He supports the controversial A-plus plan of Gov. Jeb Bush, crediting the grading standards for schools for improved test scores throughout the state.

The state's budget included a record $1.6 billion increase in education spending, for a total of $15.6 billion, including incentive pay for teachers at low performing schools.

Seminole County received the third highest increase in education spending in the state, at 9.6 percent, while Orange County received a 10 percent increase. The state average was an increase of eight percent in education spending per school-district.

Sanford lifts boil water notice

By Bill Kerne
Staff Writer

SANFORD — The boil water notice for customers of the Sanford Utility Department was lifted on Friday.

The notice was originally imposed on Tuesday, following a water main break in the western portion of Sanford. The city and its 40,000 customers were affected. Sanford continued to flush, sample and test the water until it was assured the water was safe.

Tests performed Wednesday and Thursday do not indicate the presence of bacteria in the city's water supply. City utility customers are no longer being advised that all water used for drinking and food preparation should be boiled vigorously for at least one minute, or to use bottled water.

The problem originated Tuesday at a construction site just west of the Airport Boulevard and SR-46A (25th Street) intersection near construction of the new expressway.

A contractor for the city was running a new waterline and closing the old line in the area.

The line that broke was a major artery between the city's two water plants.

The break occurred when the old line was being shut down in preparation for the new line opening.

The break caused a reduction in the water pressure throughout the city, which continued until the break was closed Tuesday night. The water from the actual break reportedly did not come in contact with any sewer lines.

Updates on the situation are available on the city's hotline at 407-330-5678.

VISION FOR THE 21st CENTURY

MARTHA YANCEY

WISDOM FROM THE 20th CENTURY

To The Voters of District 3, City of Sanford,

This Tuesday, June 27th, you will have the opportunity to vote for one of five candidates who will represent you on the Sanford City Commission.

The issues in this election we should be concerned about are:
Growth, Public Safety, and Code Enforcement/Oversight.

We must prepare to meet the coming growth and manage it properly to assure that we maintain our quality of life. We must provide the necessary city services our citizens expect - police and fire protection, better street lighting, water, waste management, parks and street maintenance, and city beautification.

Sanford is facing the need for improved and expanded police facilities. The citizens should no longer tolerate a situation where the police "do the best they can with what they have."

We need to do whatever is necessary to attract new quality businesses to our city that will generate increased tax revenues. Our property taxes in Sanford are nearly double the taxes homeowners and businesses pay in other Seminole County cities. I pledge to do whatever I can to get our property taxes lowered.

I would greatly appreciate your vote of confidence this Tuesday, for Martha Yancey. There is only one location to cast your vote - the First Church of the Nazarene, 2581 Sanford Avenue, Sanford.

in April 1996 a wiretap of Holley's phone was cut short when Holley discovered the operation.

"Tony Holley changed to cell phones," Deputy Jeff Durcan of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office testified. "I concluded the investigation was compromised somehow."

In his closing statement for the defense, Greene charged that another police officer may have tipped Holley on to the wiretap. Holley testified Ladoczky told him about a wiretap. She claimed to have not met him until 1998.

"Somebody told him about the wiretap in '96," Greene said. "He never told us who. We know he had a lot of relationships with other police officers. He was probably using them."

Holley was athletic and popular while attending Sanford Middle School and Seminole High School. He was an All-Star in Sanford's baseball and football youth leagues. However, he testified he started selling drugs along 13th Street in 1990, at age 16.

"Tony Holley was a fairly well-known drug dealer," testified Sanford police Sgt. Randy Smith. "Most of the officers working the streets were familiar with him."

Agents for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) testified Holley became more sophisticated at evading investigations in the late-1990's, as his stature grew on the streets. He also fathered 13 children and claims to have had sex with more than 200 women.

Holley claimed several police officers and a deputy sheriff purchased custom CDs in his store, Jamland Music, which doubled as a drug front.

Two Sanford school resource officers testified they asked Holley to be a deejay at dances at the request of teachers, unaware he was still dealing drugs on the street. The deputies testified the functions had security, and there was no drug dealing.

On two other occasions, Holley also claimed to have asked a Sanford police officer and deputy sheriff to run warrant searches for him. It is legal for an officer to run a warrant search upon request.

"I don't think the fact that some police officers went to Tony Holley's record store, or asked someone in the music business to deejay for kids, is evidence of any wrongdoing," Dale said.

Holley did not accuse the officers of giving him information about investigations, drugs, or sex. There are no salacious tales, unlike the vivid details he provided of his relationship with Ladoczky.

Ladoczky, 34, admitted to carrying for Holley during an 18-month relationship. The relationship peaked in August and September 1999 when they talked on the phone daily, and went on two dates. Although they touched in a sexual manner, they never had sex, she testified.

However, she did have sex on one occasion in 1996 with convicted drug dealer Julian Wimberly, 24, while serving as his case agent on a charge of selling crack cocaine. He pled guilty to the charge.

On Friday, Ladoczky was found guilty on two counts of making false statements to federal agents regarding audio-taped phone calls designed to test whether she would give away information to Holley's girlfriend about undercover police sport-utility vehicles. Ladoczky was found not guilty of conspiracy to distribute crack cocaine and possession of a firearm during a drug trafficking offense.

She is living in her Sanford home with her husband, Longwood Police Officer Robert Ladoczky, 31, until her sentencing on Sept. 25. She faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and $500,000 in fines.

According to federal sentencing guidelines, she is likely to serve a few years in prison. Federal District Judge Patricia Fawcett is expected to consider that this is Ladoczky's first offense. However, Fawcett may also raise the sentence because the crime represents a breach of public trust in a law enforcement officer.

Meanwhile, because of his testimony against Ladoczky, Holley may receive a reduction in his sentence of 92 months in federal prison for selling crack cocaine to undercover agents.

Festival

Sanford.

The third and final day of the festival will feature a Battle of the Bands. Local bands have until Oct. 1 to submit video and audio recordings to the chamber, and the top five bands will compete at the festival.

"This could draw more people than either Charlie Daniels or Percy Sledge," Rose said.

The winner of the Battle of the Bands competition will be considered for representation by Capital International Productions in Pompano Beach, which would promote the band for participation in other festivals.

"I've never seen a local festival quite like this, at this price, with the rides, food and concerts," said Dave Musselman, co-owner of Capital International Productions. "It's a wonderful way to promote Sanford."

Other attractions at the festival will include the Bahaman

Market Place, Midway Rides, four entertainment stages, an arts and crafts section, displays by the Sanford Historic Trust, and more than 100 exhibits and events.

The festival is patterned after The Jensen Beach Pineapple Festival started in 1988 by the Jensen Beach chamber while Rose was serving as executive director. The Pineapple Festival, held in November, draws 70,000 visitors each year to the scenic Martin County town.

"It's a musical event, and it's a celebration of our heritage," Rose said. "We're doing something that brings people to our city, and having fun. There's a real sense of accomplishment in the creation of something that brings people so much joy."

Daniels, 63, broke through as a record maker with the 1973 album Honey In The Rock and its hit Purple Song "Uneasy Rider." His rebel anthems "Long Haired Country Boy" and "The South's Gonna Do It" propelled his 1975 collection Fire On The Mountain to double platinum status.

In 1979, "The Devil Went Down to Georgia" topped both country and pop charts, won a Grammy Award, and became a cornerstone of the Urban Cowboy movie soundtrack, propelling Daniels' Million Mile Reflections album to triple platinum sales levels.

In total, Daniels has recorded five platinum and three gold albums.

Meanwhile, Sledge enjoyed a series of hits beginning in 1966 with "When a Man Loves a Woman." Other hits included "It Tears Me Up," "Warm and Tender Love," and "Take Time To Know Her." Over the course of his career, Sledge has made five gold and two platinum albums.

Sledge charted with "I'll Be Your Everything" and "Sunshine" during the 1970's. In 1989, the R&B Foundation chose Sledge to be one of the recipients of the association's first Career Achievement Awards.

Admission to the festival will be $5 each day, with free admission for children 12 and under. For more information, call the chamber at (407) 322-2212.

and the owners are the community."

Casselberry also studied Florida cities that provide their own electric service such as Leesburg, New Smyrna Beach, Ocala, Vero Beach, Gainesville, Tallahassee and Lakeland.

"Their residents get excellent service. If a city owns the system they get to know their customers."

There are a lot of advantages to local control," Segreto said. "Service is the biggest key. When there is an outage, the response will be much quicker."

"If we don't look at this now, we won't have the opportunity for 30 years. The city would be remiss if it didn't take advantage of this."

Funeral mourning isn't excuse for stealing public property

DEAR ABBY: I was bicycling through the park when I noticed a young woman dressed in black picking lilies along the side of the path.

I stopped and asked her why she was picking flowers. "I am going to a funeral today," she replied. I told her that while I understood why she was picking the flowers, she was still wrong to do so, because no one else going through the park would be able to enjoy them.

Abby, now I feel guilty that I confronted her. Didn't she have enough to worry about? After all, she was going to a funeral! Although I still feel that I did the right thing, was there another way of handling this?

CIVIC-MINDED BUT CONFUSED

DEAR CIVIC-MINDED:

Your direct approach was appropriate at the time you first noticed her picking the flowers. Black is a popular fashion choice, and you couldn't have known she was on her way to a funeral.

You were right. She should not have been picking the flowers, and your comment should give her food for thought. However, I suspect you'd be feeling less guilty right now if — once she told you about the funeral — you had expressed your condolences for her loss and then quietly gone on your way.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are married to brothers whose wealthy aunt invites the family for Easter dinner every year. This is a potluck meal, and she requests that we each bring double recipes. This year, my sister was asked to bring two cakes and another guest to bring pies. After our main course was served, the table was cleared and out came thin slices of pie. There was no sign of my sister's cakes!

After the meal, this aunt was busy in the kitchen putting away all of the leftover food. No one was offered anything to take home. Do you think my sister should have asked for her two cakes that were not served? She has a large family, and those cakes would have been enjoyed by them.

This is not the first time this has happened. By the way, there are only 12 adults at this gathering. What do you think of this?

DISGUSTED IN DETROIT

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think your hostess takes the cake! For a hostess to solicit double portions for a potluck dinner, and then to board the goodies for another occasion, shows poor manners, worse judgment, and creates abysmal family relations. It would have been entirely appropriate for your sister to ask for at least one of the cakes to take home to her family. Next year, suggest to this aunt that any food not served be split among the guests.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. My roommates are ruining my life. I'm a female freshman in college and live in South Carolina. I am living with three guys. Most of the time they're great — until I bring home my dates.

They all have great social lives, so I see no reason why they feel the need to take apart my car, hide my clothes and scare my dates. They say it's for my own protection, but at this rate, I'll be an old maid forever. What can I do to stop their foolishness before they scare away Mr. Right?

DATELESS AND HOPELESS

DEAR DATELESS: Your roommates may regard their behavior as funny, or brotherly and protective. However, their methods are heavy-handed, intimidating, and an indication of their immaturity.

Make other living arrangements and get out of there as quickly as possible. And next time, share accommodations with female roommates.

Wake up the couch potatoes

Glenn Miller's gone; Ann Miller's busy dancing; Arthur Miller prefers drama to football. Reggie Miller's hooked on basketball. Russ White

So why the surprise? Dennis Miller was the only Miller available to ABC to do Monday Night Football.

The man is quick, sarcastic, irreverent... just what MNF needs. Dandy Dennis will remind us of Dandy Don Meredith. Some of his barbs will go right over everyone's head—like a Trent Diller pass. Couch potatoes are going to get sacked if they aren't alert.

"I know football like a nerd," Miller said Thursday. That's perfect. Most of the TV announcers know football like a nerd. Each one sounds alike. Miller won't be like anything we've ever known. Imagine having to think a few hours each Monday night.

Miller also said he won't pontificate. That's even better news. Instead, I suspect, he'll pontificate. He'll have big time, hang time. Miller will be an athletically incorrect MNF superstar.

Go ahead kick me if I'm wrong.

In order to keep America tuned to football on Monday nights, ABC seriously needed to juggle its lineup. Word leaked that Rush Limbaugh was a candidate for the booth. Not so, ABC wanted to raise MNF not raise it. Rush wasn't right. Neither was Regis.

Al Michaels, the best play-by-play man in America, anchors the 2000 MNF team. Hall of Fame quarterback Dan Fouts will be the analyst. The chemistry is good — better with Miller. The ratings started going up at the ABC press conference on Thursday.

Few of us have seen Dennis Miller on TV much before midnight. He had those HBO specials and late night stuff. His wit was wacky and wicked at times. He'll have to launder the act — just like many of the football players he'll be watching.

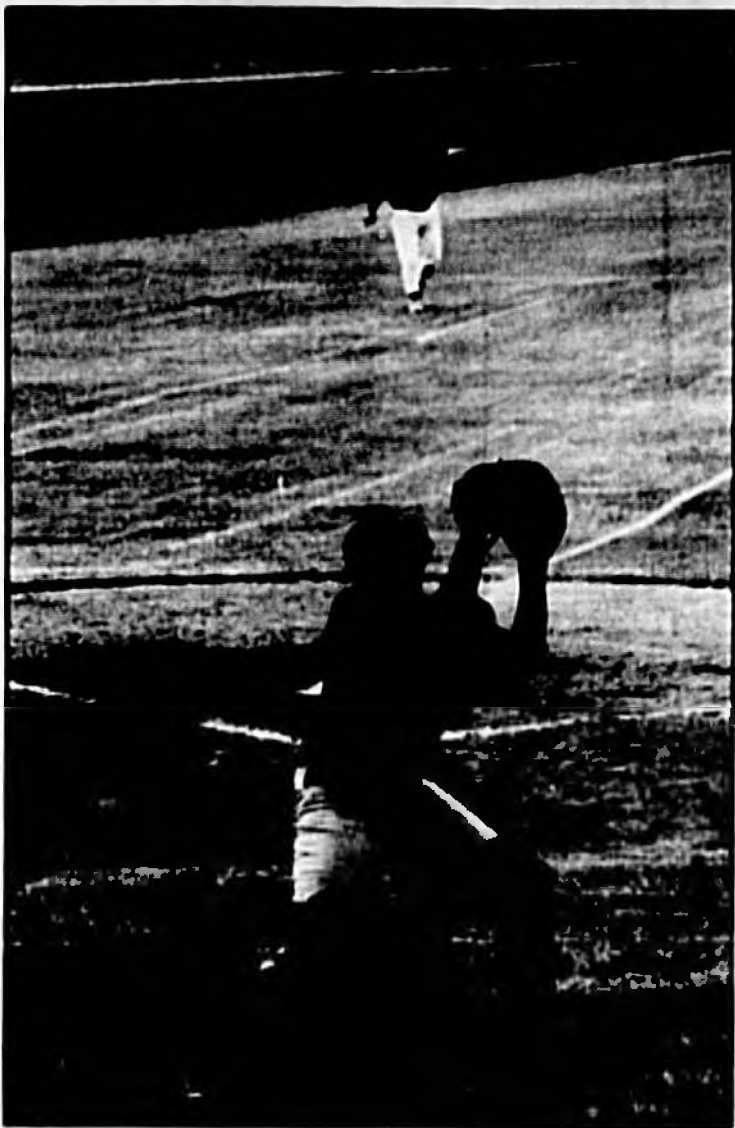

What makes MNF so special is that all the players not with the two teams on the field watch. They've played on Sunday, they've had much of Monday to themselves and the Monday night game is a great busman's holiday. It's like being with family.

Everything Dennis Miller says on Monday nights will be talked about the rest of the week in every pro football clubhouse. His best lines will become the best lines of the NFL. Miller will be on the covers of Sports Illustrated, ESPN the Magazine and Time.

If this deal was played out 50 or 60 years ago, the whole country might be talking about how sweet it would be to have Will Rogers do Monday Night Football. Is there a man out there who could meet Will Rogers and not like him?

Same for Dennis Miller. What's there not to like?

Tournaments put on hold

Antone Anderson had a good day behind the plate for the Sanford Senior All-Stars on Thursday, catching three pop ups, and firing to second to turn one into a double play, and also threw out an Altamonte Springs All-Star base stealer, but unfortunately his efforts came in a 6-3 loss.

Anderson and the other Babe Ruth stars hope to return to action today after having Friday's action rained out.

Afternoon storms wash out Friday action

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD — What was that that was falling out of the sky Friday evening?

It was probably upsetting to the players and fans of the All-Stars teams to see the thunderstorms hit the area last Friday, but I doubt anyone was really complaining.

The first real rain to hit Sanford in over two months forced the players to cool their heads for another 24 hours as the wet stuff washed out Friday's schedule in the Babe Ruth Baseball District Tournaments.

The rain forced tournament directors to scramble to reschedule the rained out contests, but it should not be very hard, weather permitting of course, for the tournaments to get back on track.

Some of the tournaments were scheduled to possibly end today (Saturday), but now will be pushed back to Sunday and possibly Monday.

Games were scheduled to

Standings still tight in Church softball

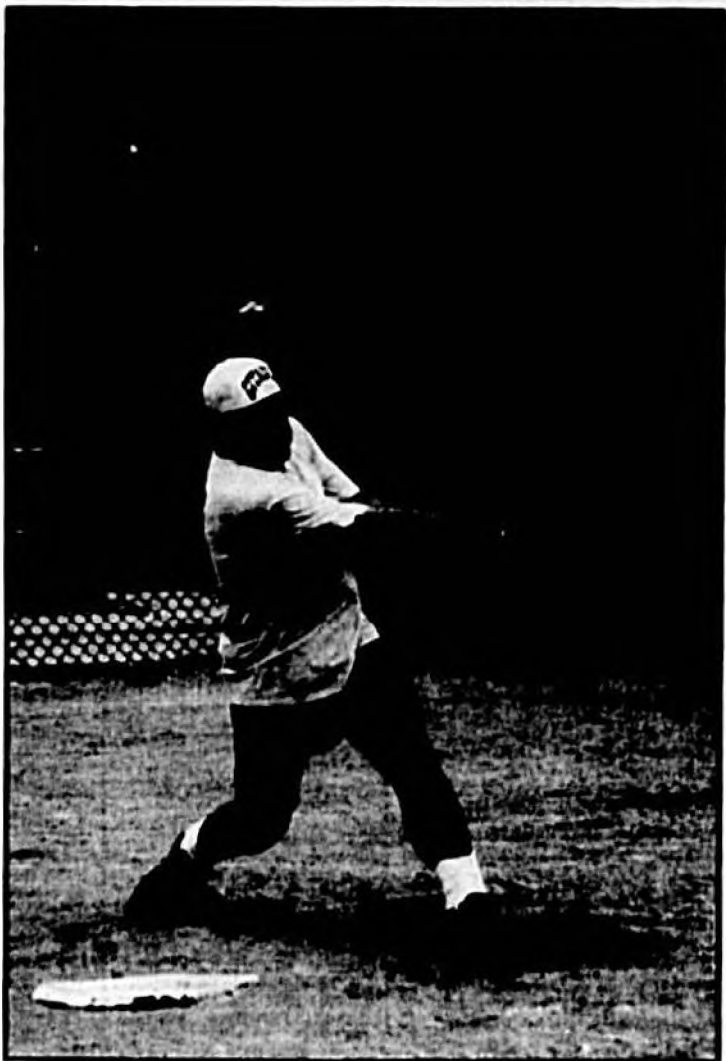

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD — Sanford Central Baptist Church held on for dear life, Christians United kept their amazing streak alive and Centro Cristiano put itself right back into the B Division race in the City of Sanford Parks and Recreation Department Spring Church Slow Pitch Softball League at Zinn Beck Field last Monday night.

Sanford Central Baptist Church never trailed, but it also could never get a comfortable lead in its scoring battle with Westview Baptist Church, surviving, 15-13, as Craig Jones and Asa Evans combined to drive in 10 runs.

The Knights of Columbus took a 6-0 lead in the top of the first inning and led 9-4 going into the bottom of the third inning, but Christians United fought back to tie the game at 9-9 after four innings before taking the lead for good with a run in the fifth.

Speedway Community Open House to offer fun for entire family and special appearance by NASCAR Racers

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH — Daytona International Speedway will once again open its doors to local residents and there will be plenty of activities for the entire family.

According to Speedway President John Graham, the third annual Community Open House, scheduled for Tuesday, June 27 from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Frontstretch Hospitality Village, is designed as a thank-you to the local community.

"Community members provide their support throughout the entire year," said Graham. "And this Open House is a gesture of our appreciation."

The Community Open House is free of charge and open to the public.

Local residents will get a close-up view of Daytona International Speedway and its many offerings.

After mingling in the new Hospitality

Village, guests will be invited to tour the Winston Tower's Houston Lawing Press Box, Corporate Hospitality Suites, Daytona Club and a special grandstand viewing area.

Beginning at 8 p.m., attendees will have an opportunity to witness the Speedways multi-million dollar lighting project just as it will appear for the nighttime running of the July 1 Pepsi 400.

"Doty the Clown" will be on hand, providing entertainment for both the young and the young at heart. "Stormin' Norman and the Karaoke Sing Thing," featured at local Daytona Beach area venues, will offer karaoke and Top 40 hits.

The NASCAR Racers costumed characters will make an appearance during the event, located in the Speedway's Hospitality Village.

inning and then closing out the scoring with a six-run sixth inning to upset the Co-A Division leaders, 16-9, and increase its own winning streak to six games.

Sanford First Church of the Nazarene fell behind early, but built a nice 7-2 lead going into the bottom of the sixth inning when Centro Cristiano exploded for six runs to take the lead and then added an insurance run in the sixth inning to hand Nazarene its fifth straight loss, 9-7.

With the results the standings are very tight in both divisions, but with only two weeks left in the regular season in all actuality the races can be decided this Monday night.

In the A Division, Sanford Central Baptist Church is back on top at 8-1, while the Knights of Columbus (All Souls Catholic) are 7-2. Christians United (Markham Woods Baptist Church) are now 6-3 and Westview Baptist Church is also over .500 at 5-4.

In the B Division, Sanford First Church of the Nazarene still leads with a 3-5 record but the pack is nipping at their heels with Sanford Church of Christ and Centro Cristiano (both 2-6) and Lighthouse Baptist Church (1-7) getting closer to the top.

This Monday night at Zinn Beck Field, Sanford First Church of the Nazarene can clinch a tie for the title if it can break its losing streak against Lighthouse Baptist Church at 6:30 p.m.; but if Nazarene loses, the winner of the 7:30 p.m. matchup between Sanford Church of Christ and Centro Cristiano will move into a tie for first; and the 8:30 p.m. game holds the same scenario. If Sanford Central Baptist Church defeats the Knights of Columbus it clinches, but if K of C wins, the division will be in a tie.

Providing the offense were:
Sanford Central Baptist Church: Craig Jones (two home runs, one single, two runs scored, seven RBI), Aaa Evans (one home run, two singles, one run scored, three RBI), Tracey Saxon (three singles, three runs scored), Jay Critchfield (three singles, two runs scored), Brian Morgan (one home run, one single, one run scored, one RBI), Josh Berryhill (two singles, two runs scored, one RBI), David Moss (two singles, one run scored, one RBI), Rob Thacker (two singles, one run scored), Joey Perry and Ken Perry (one single and one run scored each) and Joe Perry (one single).

On the shores of Lake Monroe

By Nick Pflouf
Staff Writer

Perhaps the St. Johns River and Lake Monroe don't really exist. Although the St. Johns is one of the few rivers in the world which runs northward, it is not listed in "Major Rivers of the United States" in the World Almanac. Lake Monroe is also not listed.

However, the lake does indeed exist. According to the Sanford Historical Society, the lake has had many different names, including Second Lake, Middle Lake, Lake Grant, Lake Valdez, Monroe Lake, and finally, Lake Monroe.

The most common explanation for the name Monroe is that it was named in honor of President James Monroe, the fifth president of the United States (1817-1825). He is credited with obtaining Florida from Spain. A number of books pertaining to Central Florida however, neglect to mention the presidential tie-in and state the lake was named after Fort Monroe, which was located in the Sanford area. Whether the fort may have been named for the president is not clear.

St. Johns River Water Management District officials do not have much information about Lake Monroe. "It's not one of the areas we handle, so we have hardly any information about it."

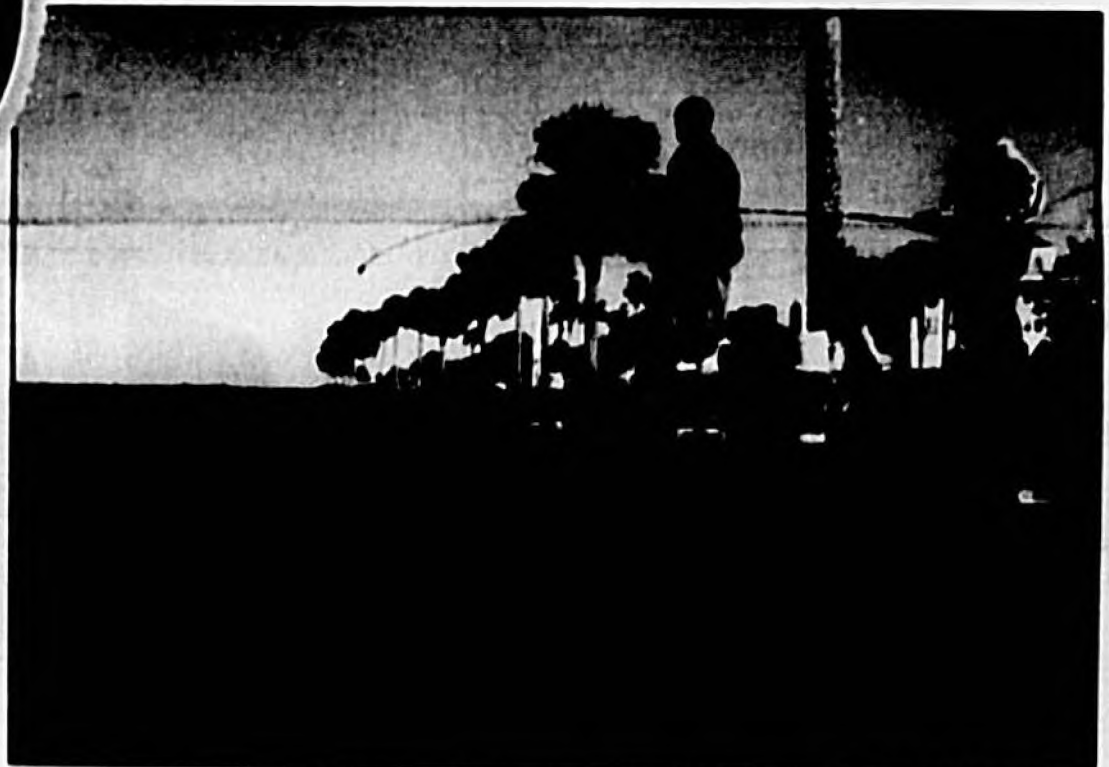

The only statistics supplied by the SJRWMD listed Lake Monroe as the 17th largest lake in the state, with a total coverage of 9,406 acres. In comparison, Lake Jesup, also in Seminole County, is 15th, with 10,011 acres. Back in the days of riverboats, the river and Lake Monroe certainly played a big part in helping bring people and products to Central Florida. Lake Monroe was considered the southern most navigable area of the river, and the Sanford area was as far as they went.

Ed Manning renders ministry at Sanford Police Department

For nearly 20 years, Ed Manning cheerfully yet humbly has gone about his maintenance duties — and a unique ministry — at the Sanford Police Department. Chief Brian Tooley says Manning's volunteer services as an SPD chaplain are "critically important." Law enforcement, Tooley said, is a tough business and even the toughest on the job require spiritual reinforcement from someone there all the time, part of the department.

That someone has been the Rev. Ed Manning, who preaches at the Free Will Holiness Church of God. Manning was honored recently by Daytona Beach Police Chief Kenneth Small for providing a balance needed to ensure the safety and security to that city's visitors and residents during Black College Reunion Week in 1999 and 2000. Manning, 39, was one of 50 "God Squad" volunteers at the Black College Reunions. He worked from 8 p.m. each evening to 3

A. The call from God came to me when I was 19. I began working with the Rev. Mike Farley at Free Will Holiness Church in Apopka. He was my mentor. Eventually, I became an associate pastor. I knew this was very important and that I would be directed wherever I might go to preach. In the beginning I preached mainly to black Christians whose Sunday church experiences have long been very emotional.

appropriate. When someone with the department had spiritual and emotional needs, I offered them assistance. As they began to know more about me, more came to me. It was at Cpl. Sharon Sheaffer's funeral (three years ago), when I gave one of the eulogies, everyone saw me in a suit and collar and then they knew all about Rev. Ed Manning. Someone put "Ed Manning, Employee of the Month" on the bulletin board at the station.

and 4 a.m. Manning has represented the Sanford Police Department at a number of International Police Chaplain conventions. He went to Boca Raton for one in April. While he continues his maintenance duties, Manning, who was born in Mount Dora, is taking a number of courses for advancement at the SPD. Chief Tooley said last week that Manning was an excellent candidate to be a community service officer. Meanwhile, the Rev. Manning spends his "off" time accompanying SPD officers on patrol. Ed and Marcell Manning have been married and have five children.

Q. And, you continued this at the SPD?
A. When it was appropriate.

Q. How did you find out about the needs for a "God Squad" at Black College Reunion Week?
A. I found out at one of the chaplain conventions I've attended. One at Punta Gorda. I immediately volunteered to go over. We were well received. Each member of the "God Squad" wore a "God Squad" shirt and baseball cap. There were some incidents two years ago. We tried to ease some of the tension. This past year everything went very well. There were more of us on the "God Squad" this time. I'm extremely proud of the recognition from Police Chief Small. It was given to be at a Sanford City Commission meeting.

Q. You ride quite often with the officers on patrol — did you ever want to be in law enforcement?
A. I wanted to help people. I appreciated the work in law enforcement as much as I love preaching. We constantly need both kinds of help.

Q. Who helped you the most when you were a child?

A. My grandmother was the one who raised me, who taught me the love of the Lord. I never knew my father and my mother went off to live in the East.

Q. You used to talk about faith with Sharon Shaefer, the SPD officer who died three years ago and visited her in the hospital. Her husband asked you to be part of the service for her, right?

A. Yes. I believe she knew that she was going home to be with the Lord and was not in pain. I prayed for her, and will never forget her. I pray none of us will forget her.

Circle honors Edith

Edith Myers just knew that when the family car rounded the curve and picturesque Lake Monroe in 1952 headed toward Sanford, that this was home. Her husband, Chief Petty Officer Gerald Myers was being transferred to Sanford Naval Air Station.

When the family settled down in their new nest, she told Gerald, "You'll never move me out of this house." And he didn't.

But the time has come when Edith wants to take a year's leave from Sanford and move to Palatine, Ill. to share some special time with her daughter and family.

Local musician George Myles inducted into Hall of Fame

Local artist and musician George Myles was recently inducted into the St. Louis Blues and Jazz Hall of Fame. St. Louis and East St. Louis on the Mississippi River have been home to many stellar and lesser lights in the world of blues, jazz and gospel. Myles' drummer came by the way of Waycross, Ga. He was picked by Sonny Boy Williamson in Jacksonville who carried him to St. Louis. They played all the juke joints in and around East St. Louis.

With the Bernie Lee Trio, Myles has performed all over the world, both as a dance band drummer and concert band percussionist. He plays all styles of music from classical to swing and bebop.

As with any great musician, George's playing enhances the performance of the group. He is known as more than just a drummer. His love of music and the use of his equipment makes him a true percussionist—a guy who has the ability to play multiple percussion instruments equally as well.

George has nationwide experience. He has been on the music scenes of New York City and Chicago, traveling with the Chattering Circus with the Original Drifters and Dee Clark.

He has been with Central Florida's best group, the Bernie Lee Trio for over 20 years. He can also be heard dueling with pianist Zeid Aleem on the latest CD, "Have Bass will travel."

George's outside musical interests have been to perform with the Orlando Jones High School Alumni Band, under the baton of James L. Button, and Chief Wilson, a native of Sanford and retired band director who gave 40 years service to the community.

Jesus plus education equals success. St. John Metropolitan Baptist church honored its year 2000 students for their successful educational achievements.

The young people of St. John were leaders of the worship service for the morning.

Youth Director Marion Wilson gave words of inspiration to the class 2000. Musical renditions were by the mass choir. The morning's message was given by minister Terry Dilliguard. He spoke words of wisdom to the students who were being honored, encouraging them to work, study, love and have conversations. He also said they must work for success, be ready to study, and love themselves and others. He reminded them that one is judged by their words that come from the heart.

Students should be willing to give of themselves, as it is more blessed to give than receive, the youth director continued. He said to pray, and remember that God changes people and things. Ask and it shall be given, he said. Ask, seek, knock, pray daily, have faith

Lake Mary Girl Scouts spend day with Miracle

Brittany Spears, Christina Aquilera and Mandy Moore. These are the girls many adolescents look up to. And there's nothing really wrong with that, but it's nice to live near a town where there are sports heroes for girls to look up to. The Orlando Miracle is the first women's basketball team in Central Florida. Now girls in the area can look up to women athletes. Nykesha Sales, Tiffany Wait, A.J. Johnson and Carla McGhee are not just good athletes, but genuinely nice people girls love to cheer for. The Miracle held their first Girl Scout Day of the year

Mary Rowell

Saturday, June 17. It wasn't just attendance at the game that brought the girls out. The Miracle planned special activities just for the Girl Scouts. Girls from Lake Mary Troops 148, 262 and 458 went to the first Girl Scout Day of the year. Although the game wasn't scheduled until 7:30 p.m., special sessions just for the Girl Scouts, started at 2 p.m. All of the Girl Scouts attending were divided into three groups. The Girl Scouts from Lake Mary were in the second group. Their first session of the day was making spirit cards with poster board and crayons. One poster read

"We've got Miracle (in the shape of a pill), to get rid of Fever!" (The Miracle was playing the Indiana Fever). In their second session, the girls got to go on the court at the Orena with one of the Miracle coaches to learn some of the basics. Dribbling is more effective, the girls were told, if you can do it with both hands. It's great to be able to get a basket from the 3-point line, but it's just as important to be able to get the ball to a teammate who's under the basket and can score a certain 2 points. Teamwork is a major part of basketball, the coach said.

The third session for the Lake Mary Girl Scouts was a motivational speaker. A motivational speaker didn't sound like that great of an idea for the Lake Mary girls, who ranged in age from 8 to 16. They changed their minds when they heard the speaker, Veraunda Jackson did a great job of tailoring her speech to appeal to the girls attending and still kept the adults interested. The adults in the audience were just as riveted by her speech as the girls were. Jackson talked to the girls about choices. Bad choices can affect your whole life, she said. Jackson told the girls how she was called a nerd in school and teased because she made good grades. But the good choices she made then, to work hard and study, are what has made her a success now. Some of the people she went to school with and made fun of her, now envy her. Jackson, a former lawyer, is also the author of a book "Everything Has A Price."

At the session wrap up, the Lake Mary Girl Scouts were very excited when one of their own won one of the two basketball day camp scholarships that were given away. "It's like we all get to go to camp," one of the girls said. The next Girl Scout Day with the Miracle is scheduled for August 6.

Lake Mary AARP Learns About CAT

It's 3 a.m. and your phone rings. It's the police. They've called to tell you they've recovered your stolen vehicle. And you haven't even reported it stolen yet! How is this possible? Sgt. Linda Belliore from the Lake Mary Police Department explained how the CAT system works to the Lake Mary AARP at its June meeting. CAT stands for Combat Auto Theft. CAT is a program through the Seminole County Sheriff's Department that is designed to make it easier to catch car thieves.

Most vehicles are stolen between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. And most stolen vehicles are driven between those hours. CAT is a voluntary vehicle registration program. Registered vehicles are marked with two CAT decals. By displaying these decals, the vehicle owner is allowing law enforcement to stop the vehicle between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. to determine if the vehicle has been stolen. The program is perfect for people who never or seldom drive between those hours. You can register your vehicle at the Lake Mary Police Department or any Sheriff's Department office.

Crime prevention wasn't the only thing on the June agenda. AARP members were fortunate enough to be entertained by flutist Karen Nunez. It was an enjoyable way to end its meetings for the summer. The Lake Mary AARP will resume its monthly meetings in September.

Was that a sniff I heard during the telephone interview? "I'm already homesick for Sanford," she said. "I'll miss Sanford and all my friends, but I have to be part of my family time up there. Edith also plans to visit her son in San Antonio. She has three children, six grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

During her 48 years in Sanford, Edith recalls meeting Clayda Jones who took her under her wing. "We have been friends all through the years, Edith said." She and her family attended the First United Methodist the first Sunday she was in town and has attended. She has also played carasta every Thursday with a group of friends for 17 years.

Before departing, Edith was honored by the Sarah Circle of the church's United Methodist Women. Mary Williams, the circle leader, hosted a lovely luncheon at her charming home. What a trooper that Mary is! She had a serious fall before the luncheon but managed to pull everything together with her usual poise. "It was such a lovely time — we had a wonderful time," Edith said.

Mary whipped up a marvelous chicken salad artfully arranged on a lettuce-lined plate with a slice of tomato topped with asparagus, assorted fruits and breadsticks. There were two cakes for dessert, a pound cake and a jelly cake made by Nancy Terwilliger. During the luncheon, guest

Josephine (Jo) Stankowicz and Nancy Jones recently had an enjoyable visit to Washington, D.C. where they attended the dedication of Mary's Garden at

The statue of Mary, Protector of Faith, was dedicated to Bishop Emeritus Thomas Grady of the Orlando Diocese. The beautiful garden was made possible by women all over the country forming the National Council of Catholic Women who raised funds for the shrine.

During their visit, Jo and Nancy did D.C. and covered numerous historical sites. They report a good flight both ways.

Bye-bye, Baba
One of Sanford's long time residents has hit the road to make her new home in Boca Raton. Harriett (Baba) Duns sold her home and is on the way out. She lived here for 42 years and is retired from the Seminole County School Board. Baba bought a new home to be near her children and their families. She has added much to the Sanford community and will be sorely missed. Her new address is 7706 Solimar Circle, Boca Raton, FL 33433.

Sea of Galilee in North Israel. The two lakes are the same approximate size — 13 miles long, five miles across.

"In the trip Jesus made on the Sea of Galilee," he said, "if it were Lake Monroe, he would have got in the boat near where Sanford is, and traveled to the area where I-4 crosses the river on the west." He suggested people think of the similarity when they look at the lake.

The lake has had its ups and downs — literally. High water marks several years ago are still visible on the breakwalls near the marina. On the other hand, there have been times when boats have run aground because of low water, even in some of the navigable areas.

There was also a time in history when raw sewage was emptied into the lake — yet on the other hand, there was a swimming beach in the area north of what is now the Civic Center and Fort Melon Park.

Sanford is one of the few cities which border on a lake the size of Lake Monroe. It's a favorite place for shore fishing, alligator watching, various types of boating regattas, private boating, sailboarding, and of course river cruises which draw tourists from great distances.

The Sanford Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee is planning on further improvements, which will add to the physical appearance and benefit of Lake Monroe. One concept is the riverwalk, a walkway to run from Mellonville Avenue in the east to possibly the Central Florida Zoo in the west.

Other plans call for additional docking areas and walkways over the water, with possibly shops and recreational activities as well as a fishing pier along the existing breakwater and a series of screened picnic and fishing pavilions along the seawall.

Your Birthday
Wednesday,
June 28, 2000

The harder you try in the year ahead, the luckier you'll become. You have the chance to bring about a marked improvement in both your personal and material affairs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Don't give up on your optimistic attitude regarding a project or endeavor that has not proven successful as yet. It could occur today by continuing to do things to the best of your ability. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1770, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10116. Be sure to state your Zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
"Proceed, not postpone" should be your motto today. Focus all of your energies on your most meaningful objective, and don't take a breather until everything is a finished.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Almost all of your involvements or personal encounters will produce something of value today. Although not necessarily visible now, rewarding applications will be found in time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
As long as someone who is managing a critical matter for you is successful, don't charge horses for change sake. This person is about to become even luckier for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Persons with whom you're associated will, in large part, be responsible for some fortuitous things happening for you today. Their luck will rub off on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
You could experience a turn for the better today in a critical area where your personal efforts have been severely hampered. Opportunities abound in the same places you've met resistance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Be nice to everyone you encounter today regardless of their station in life, because through new friendships you develop now, good things could start to happen for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Don't be upset if early indicators don't look too good today. Although you're apt to have a little trouble getting out of the starting blocks, you'll be an excellent stretch runner.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Only if you permit yourself to move about freely both mentally and physically today can you feel productive and happy at the same time. Even mundane tasks will take on new meaning.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Generally luck comes more readily to those who have prepared themselves for success through hard work. Today, through your efforts, you'll be lucky in turning a sow's ear into a silk purse.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Through your tenacity, willingness to take personal control and responsibility and an ability to bounce back, success in your endeavors are reasonably certain today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Assets you now possess that are not readily available today to persons who compete against you, in reality, come from past hard work. Armed with accomplishments, people want to help you succeed.
