Gunman kills one, wounds two

WATSONVILLE, Calif. — A gunman killed one woman and wounded two other people Tuesday at a mushroom farm and then drove to a nearby high school, where he took his own life.

The killer, identified as Ignacio Vasquez Segura, 25, of Watsonville, shot three people at Monterey Mushrooms, located midway between Salinas and Watsonville. He then left the scene in a car and was chased by the California Highway Patrol to North Monterey County High School, where he shot himself in the car. Lt. Robert Baehr of the Monterey County Sheriff's Department said.

"He stopped at the entrance (to the high school), revved up his motor until he blew (it) and then shot himself," Baehr said.

Ditch may deter smugglers

WASHINGTON — The federal government is planning to dig a ditch 4 miles long near San Diego to stop illegal immigrants and drug smugglers from crossing into California from Mexico in vehicles, it was reported Wednesday.

The 14-foot-wide, 5-foot-deep ditch is to be constructed of soil and concrete next to the port of entry at Otay Mesa, a flat area where vehicles can now cross easily, sources in the Bush administration told the Los Angeles Times.

Although immigrants' rights advocates expressed outrage at the plan, a Bush administration official defended it as necessary to prevent illegal crossings.

Bundy execution: The day after TACOMA, Wash. — "You'll always be my precious son," were the last words serial killer Ted Bundy heard from his mother less than five hours before he was executed in Florida Tuesday.

Louise Bundy, a slightly built woman with short gray hair and large glasses, talked twice by telephone with her son late Monday night, according to a copyright story in the Tacoma News Tribune.

"He sounds wonderful," she said when the call was over. "He sounds very much at peace with himself. He said 'I'm so sorry I've given you all such grief ... but a part of me was hidden all the time.' And then he said, 'But the Ted Bundy you knew also existed'."

During their first 10-minute call, the time allowed by prison officials in Starke, Louise Bundy told her son, "We just want you to know how much we love you and always will."

UCF clips Baptist College

ORLANDO — Bob Blackwood's steal in the final seconds on Tuesday night to help clinch the University of Central Florida's 73-71 win over the Baptist College Buccaneers was reminiscent of John "Hondo" Havlicek's steal against the Los Angeles Lakers in the finals of the 1965 NBA playoffs.

With about 12 seconds left, Blackwood left the man he was guarding and stepped in front of a pass by Baptist's Mike Acuff. He got the ball to teammate Vernon Pinkney, who was fouled a few seconds later.

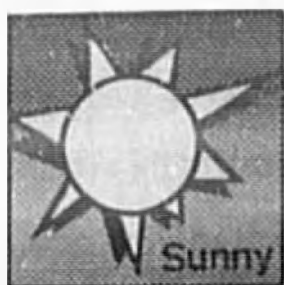

Pinkney missed the front end of the one-and-one opportunity giving the Buccaneers one last shot to win, but Brad Dobbels' three-point attempt at the buzzer hit the front of the rim and bounced away.

Kelley to pay for copies

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioner Jennifer Kelley said Tuesday she will pay for copies of documents she orders from the county as part of her effort to establish a central computerized record source.

She decided to pay for the copies after determining the cost would not amount to very much, she said. "It's not worth fighting over," she said. Complaints that the copies would cost taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars are exaggerated, according to Kelley.

County Manager Ken Hooper said Kelley has incurred $650 in charges for documents and duplicates of computer files and another $750 for duplicates of audio tapes.

Kelley said she would pay those costs personally as well as any other copying expenses the county incurs in providing duplicates to her.

She has made most of the copies of documents, files and audio tapes spanning an 18-year period herself, using her own machinery and employees or relatives.

Kelley may face a much larger bill from Clerk of Court Maryanne Morse.

Morse presented commissioners Tuesday with an opinion from her attorney, H. Terrell Griffin, who said Kelley should be required to pay for copies from the clerk's office whether she is a commissioner or not.

Griffin further wrote Kelley may provide her own machine but it must be operated by clerk's personnel so to assure the protection of the public documents.

Kelley declined to comment on the opinion, saying she must consult with her own attorney first.

Last Tuesday, Kelley's son Chris tried to copy audio tapes of county commission meetings, stored at the clerk's county records office using Kelley's own tape duplicator and blank tapes and was told she could not unless she paid the regular $3 per tape charge.

Kelley shocked county officials and her fellow commissioners on Dec. 20 by requesting thousands of pages of documents, hundreds of audio tapes of recorded meetings and dozens of computer files — all within 10 days.

Hooper said the request would require shutting down county operations either to provide staff to actually perform the copying or because other staff would be unable to perform their duties in the turmoil created by fulfilling the request. The weekly county salary budget is about $500,000, Hooper said.

After Hooper apprised her of the difficulty and expense of providing the copies, Kelley extended

Lake Mary to buy land from county

City needs parcel for new town hall

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — The city wants to buy a portion of land which the county agreed yesterday to sell to it.

The parcel in question is owned by Mary Mize on the northwest corner of Country Club Road and Lake Mary Boulevard that the county has purchased from the owner for $202,500, according to Deputy County Manager Jim Bible.

The county needs the land for the Lake Mary Boulevard road-widening project scheduled to begin by the year's end, according to officials. The city is interested in the property because it is part of a larger piece of land which the commissioners have been eyeing for the new city hall site and a park associated with it.

At a meeting last week, the commissioners voted unanimously to buy that portion of land that remains after the county's purchase of a retention pond. The price is not to exceed $145,500. It was contingent upon the county's decision to sell it.

"The feeling of this commission it seems, is that this entire block and the city hall block will be a downtown cornerstone for Lake Mary. This is the only opportunity the city is going to have," Commissioner Paul Tremel said Tuesday.

"The price is reasonable," Commissioner Tom Mahoney said at last week's meeting.

Bible said about one acre will be sold to the city. The remaining portion, or about three-quarters of an acre, is needed by the county for a water retention pond.

Bible said the county is selling "most of the high and dry stuff" to Lake Mary.

"They're looking at how it would fit in with the proposed city hall," Bible said.

According to Tremel, there are actually three lots within that parcel known as "Block 52." It includes about 1 acre of land owned by Jerry Farella and another 3/4 of an acre which is owned by Sharon Fricke. The city is not interested in the Farella property but will go through the same negotiation process with the county for the Fricke lot, according to Tremel.

The county has already purchased the Farella property but the Fricke land is still under negotiation, according to Bible.

Tremel said the idea is to end up with a city hall that has a park associated with it.

Impact fees topic of review

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A committee met last night to discuss new impact fees for police and fire protection in the city.

The committee reviewed existing fees and recommendations for new fees based on projections for growth. Studies commissioned by the city to determine impact of growth on city facilities released last month were the focus of committee review.

Impact fees are used to offset increased costs from expanding services needed to serve a growing population. Typically, the fees are assessed on developers who pass on the cost to buyers of the property. The city is projecting that population in Sanford will reach more than 43,000 within 15 years.

The committee agreed that the recommended impact fees for police and fire protection are in line with the costs of projected growth.

The studies recommend a fire impact fee of $52.91 per residential unit and 3.1 cents per square foot of nonresidential development.

Those figures are based on data showing residential areas placing the greatest demand on the city fire department. Of about 3,500 calls for service to the department in 1987, 59 percent were from residential units.

The recommended impact fee for police protection is $25.87 per dwelling unit and 7.9 cents per square foot of nonresidential development.

Local residents applaud, decry two road projects

County commission gives thumbs down to Red Bug Lake Road widening project

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners said "No" on Tuesday to six lanes on Red Bug Lake Road — a measure applauded by area residents and decry by two commissioners saying the road will someday become another traffic-snarled State Road 434.

"I am convinced, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that some board (of county commissioners) will have to undo the mess ... that we do tonight," said commissioner Fred Streetman.

"I would rather be accused of foresight, than praised for shortsightedness," said Commissioner Bob Sturm.

But Streetman's and Sturm's fellow commissioners felt differently and sided with the 75 to 100 residents in the audience Tuesday night who said Red Bug Lake Road doesn't need to be widened from two lanes to six.

Commissioners voted 3-2 to limit the road to 120 feet, wide enough for four lanes and turn lanes.

Because of the commissioners' decision to limit the road to a 120-foot path, county officials said the widening project will have to be redesigned at a cost of $250,000 to $300,000, but also saving $750,000 in right of way costs over a 140-foot, six-lane path. The redesign will also delay widening the road by a year.

"(Homeowners) feel that six-laning will unbridle growth in that area," said Wendell French, vice

County will pay for Lake Mills drainage, but residents must pay paving expenses

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A resident of Lake Mills Shores subdivision near Chuluota said her neighbors should be willing to pay more than $1,700 apiece to be able to get to their homes on rainy days.

"It's a disgrace what the county has allowed," Peggy Beck said Tuesday.

Seminole County commissioners approved unanimously a plan to pay for the labor and cost of materials to drain the 221-lot subdivision and to leave the paving expense to the residents.

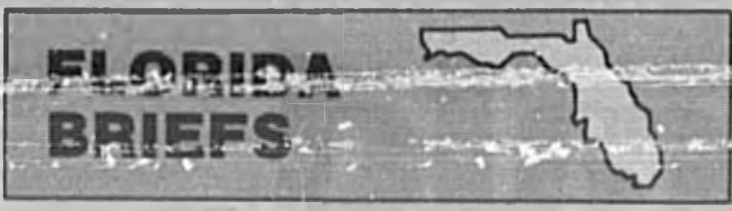

Residents had previously given approval to a labor-materials split, supplying the materials for the county to construct the drainage system and pave the three miles of unpaved roads often flooded in even minor rainstorms.

The cost would amount to $1 million, with lot owners splitting the $270,691 cost of the materials at $1,252 apiece.

But commissioners Fred Streetman and Bob Sturm said two weeks ago that such a plan would set a potentially costly precedent because several other large neighborhoods in the county are unpaved and would seek similar agreements. The county hasn't paved neighborhoods before, Streetman said.

It was Streetman's suggestion that the county pay for the drainage improvements — both labor and materials — and the residents pay

Cabinet orders turtle protection

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet, reacting to a 10-fold increase in the deaths of endangered Kemp's ridley turtles, Tuesday ordered turtle protection devices placed on shrimp boats operating off the Northeast Florida coast.

"There are less than 600 (Kemp's ridley) nesting females on the earth right now," Marine Fisheries Commission spokesman Charles Snider told the Cabinet. "The commission views this as an extreme resource emergency."

The order was prompted by the high number of dead turtles that have washed up on northeast Florida beaches near Amelia Island. About 157 turtles — including 56 critically endangered Kemp's ridleys — have been found since October.

The number of dead turtles, which coincides with heavier than usual shrimping in the Atlantic Ocean near Jacksonville, is 10 times higher than in an average year.

Martinez and the Cabinet approved the rule after hearing state and national marine scientists say drowning in shrimp nets is a major cause of death among sea turtles.

All seven species of sea turtle, including the five native to Florida waters, are endangered species.

The turtle excluder devices — TEDs — must be in place on boats shrimping north of the Brevard-Volusia county line by Feb. 1.

Work begins on collapsed bridge

PENSACOLA — Work got under way Tuesday to shore up a vital bridge that collapsed 11 days ago when a barge knocked down a support, but even a partial opening for traffic is still nearly two weeks away.

Officials with the Florida Department of Transportation said limited traffic can begin using the 3-mile-long Pensacola Bay Bridge after the temporary repairs are completed. They hope to have traffic moving on the bridge Feb. 4.

Commuting in the Pensacola area has been a problem since Jan. 14, when an empty barge slammed into a support under the south-bound lanes at the center of the span linking Pensacola to suburban Gulf Breeze.

The north-bound lanes were undamaged, but officials decided to prohibit traffic of any kind for fear the harmonics of heavy traffic would cause further damage.

As a result, what used to be a short trip across the bridge is now a 60-mile detour. Some commuters have chosen to take one of the ferries operating between the two cities, but those vessels are not equipped to handle vehicles.

GAO to study Florida refugee crisis

MIAMI — South Florida's refugee crisis will be the topic of discussion when federal officials make a fact-finding visit to Miami next week, officials said Tuesday.

The meetings, with representatives of the General Accounting Office in Washington, were scheduled after formal requests by Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., and Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla. They are planned for Feb. 1, according to a statement released by the Florida lawmakers.

"We believe these meetings in Miami will be crucial to the GAO's understanding of the refugee situation," the statement said. "It's important that we continue to talk with officials in all areas of government concerning the refugee crisis so we can all work together toward solving the problem."

Central Americans, mainly from Nicaragua, have been pouring into the country in recent months, many of them traveling through Guatemala and Honduras to Matamoros, Mexico, where they cross the Rio Grand River to Brownsville.

From there, many of them hop buses and come to Miami because of the large Hispanic community already in Dade County. Officials estimate that about 3,000 Nicaraguan refugees have come to Miami in the last two months.

Man arrested for selling aphrodisiac

TALLAHASSEE — A hunting guide was arrested Tuesday by Florida wildlife officials for selling bear gall bladders that were to be shipped to the Far East for use as an aphrodisiac, a state wildlife official said.

Phillip B. Copp, 57, of St. Cloud, was arrested at his home about 8 a.m. Tuesday after he sold 37 black bear gall bladders for $3,000 to an undercover wildlife officer said Scott Ball, a Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission spokesman.

The undercover agent posed as a buyer who planned to ship the gall bladders to the Far East where they are dried and sold by the gram as an aphrodisiac, Ball said.

Florida officials were alerted to Copp's activities after his name surfaced during a three-year investigation by U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials into the illegal commercial sale of wildlife in the Northeast.

The investigation involved federal and state wildlife officials in New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Florida. Ball said it originally centered around the illegal sale of white-tail deer parts for commercial purposes.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Bundy's mother says goodbye

United Press International

TACOMA, Wash. — "You'll always be my precious son," were the last words aerial killer Ted Bundy heard from his mother less than five hours before he was executed in Florida Tuesday.

Louise Bundy, a slightly built woman with short gray hair and large glasses, talked twice by telephone with her son late Monday night, according to a copyright story in Tuesday's Tacoma News Tribune.

"He sounds wonderful," she said when the call was over. "He sounds very much at peace with himself. He said 'I'm so sorry I've given you all such grief ... but a part of me was hidden all the time.' And then he said, 'But the Ted Bundy you knew also existed.'"

During their first 10-minute call, the time allowed by prison officials in Starke, Louise Bundy told her son, "We just want you to know how much we love you and always will."

Much of the first conversation was taken up with messages Bundy, 42, asked his mother to relay to friends and family members.

A short time after the call ended, the phone rang again.

Bundy had been permitted to make a second call to his mother.

"We're all praying for you," Louise told her son, later telling reporters. "He said God's spirit was with him. He kept saying how sorry he was that there was another part of me that people didn't know."

At the end of the second call, Louise Bundy told Ted, "You'll always be my precious son."

Calling Ted the "light of our lives," Louise Bundy said she and her husband had managed to get through the past week because "we are surrounded by love in this house."

"What he says he did — those are awful things — but I believe God forgives. I feel so very, very sorry for them (the victims' families). I think of my own girls and I feel such sadness."

Although Louise and her husband, John Bundy, calmly talked to friends, neighbors and reporters at their home, she expressed anger when asked about her son's death sentence.

"I think it is barbaric," Louise Bundy said. "What good does it do? It's legalized murder in all. It's not a deterrent. They've been killing people for thousands of years and what good has it done?"

Mom defends taking baby

United Press International

TAMPA — A woman who went into hiding after she defied a state order and took her 7-month girl from the hospital says she did it because authorities had no right to hold the baby, a published report said Tuesday.

Thelma Robinson, 23, said she and her baby, Natasha, are staying with friends and the infant is in good health. She said she has no plans to surrender Natasha, who was ordered held at Tampa General Hospital by the Florida Department of Health and Human Services.

"I'll leave the state, if it comes down to it," Robinson said in a telephone call to the Tampa Tribune. "I don't know how HRS came to investigate me. They've never been in my house. I have no idea why they want to take the baby away. I've never been arrested. I have no criminal record."

Police are searching for her based on a criminal affidavit accusing her of interfering with child custody.

Natasha was withheld from her mother because HRS was conducting a psychological evaluation of the woman at the hospital, said police spokesman Steve Cole.

HRS spokesman Tony Edwards would not give specifics on HRS' interest in the Robinsons.

"We put a hold on the baby because its safety might be in danger," Edwards said. "I can't say what kind of danger."

Hospital spokeswoman Emily Stehle said the facility posted a security guard on the floor where the child was taken, but said she was unsure how Robinson was able to get the girl Sunday afternoon without being seen.

Natasha, born Jan. 18, was visited by Robinson at 12:10 p.m. Sunday at the hospital, Cole said. At 12:45 p.m., the baby's empty bassinet was found next to an elevator and the mother and child were missing.

Robinson said she does not know why HRS wants to take away her baby.

"I found out that somebody had stated to HRS that I had hit my husband, which is not true, except for horseplay. They consider that dangerous," she said. "What gives them the right?"

Two cousins, guard split $9.5 million

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A pair of cousins from High Springs and a Polk County corrections officer said Tuesday they planned to buy new homes with their winnings from the $9.5 million Florida Lotto jackpot.

"I was shaking like a jackhammer," said Paul Jarrett, 37, of Lakeland, who will receive half of last Saturday's Lotto prize for his winning ticket that matched the six numbers drawn.

Jarrett will receive $238,000 annually for the next 20 years, the same amount that will be split between Robert Lee Waters, 53, and his cousin, Roy A. Waters, 48.

Robert Waters, a dairyman, said he and his family discovered they had purchased the other winning ticket when they looked at their tickets Sunday. His wife, Kathy, said at first the couple thought they had matched only five of the six numbers.

But she said her son looked at the ticket again and said, "Hey, we got them all."

"I said, 'I don't believe it,'" said Kathy Waters. "I still don't believe it. Nothing like this has ever happened to us."

Kathy Waters said the money would be used to pay off a van, to buy a new home and to move her husband's mother from a nursing home.

Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul has estimated this week's Lotto jackpot at $9 million.

Genzman has several strong backers, including Gov. Bob Martinez.

State GOP Chairwoman Jeanie Austin, who also serves as vice chairwoman of the National Republican Committee, said she supported Genzman. Austin said she knew other people were interested in the job.

"But my philosophy is: If it ain't broke, don't fix it," she said.

U.S. Rep. Michael Bilirakis, a Palm Harbor Republican who represents Pasco County, remained neutral in the Genzman-Allweiss competition.

Support for Genzman grows

United Press International

TAMPA — Interim U.S. Attorney Robert W. Genzman, who worked with the House Iran-Contra committee, should receive a presidential appointment to fill the Florida position fulltime, Sen. Connie Mack said Tuesday.

Mack, R-Fla., in a letter to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, recommended Genzman for the job as U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Florida. The district covers an area from Fort Myers to Jacksonville and includes Tampa and Orlando.

"It would be a great honor for me to serve as U.S. Attorney," Genzman said.

"Mr. Genzman's qualifications, combined with his reputation as a competent and dedicated individual, make him an outstanding choice to serve as chief prosecutor for one of the fastest growing areas in the nation," Mack said.

Genzman has held the position on an interim basis since September.

Pasco County Assistant State Attorney Allen Allweiss also is under consideration, but get the shotgun, he would have killed the officers and injured bystanders.

At the urging of Jones, Grant used his revolver and fired at Riley, striking him in the thigh. But Golden said Riley continued to struggle with Jones for the shotgun.

Jones finally got the shotgun as he fell back fired a shot at Riley, said Golden. The prosecutor said there was conflicting testimony about whether Riley was on the ground or whether he was moving toward Jones when he was shot. But he said all the witnesses who were nearby agreed it was a "life-and-death struggle."

ARCADIA — The Florida Press Association has protested the action of DeSoto County Sheriff's Lt. Frank West posing as a newsman covering a Ku Klux Klan demonstration Sunday.

West, chief of technical services for the sheriff's department, attended the demonstration in civilian clothes with two cameras around his neck and a press card from the sheriff's office attached to his jacket lapel.

Deputy cleared in shooting death

United Press International

SHALIMAR — No criminal charges will be filed against an Okaloosa County deputy in connection with the December shooting death of a Crestview man, State Attorney Curtis Golden said Tuesday.

"From a totality of circumstances, the officer was justified in reasonably concluding that it was necessary for him to use fatal force to protect himself and others from harm," said Golden.

The shooting occurred Dec. 18 in Shalimar after two deputies stopped a car for a traffic violation. Golden said the suspect, Douglas G. Riley, 35, got out of his car and knocked Deputy Larry Grant to the ground.

"One witness said his feet lifted off the ground," said Golden.

The state attorney said the other deputy, Pete Jones, leveled his shotgun at Riley but changed his mind and tried to use it as a club. Golden said Riley and Jones began struggling for the weapon and they fell to the ground.

"All of the witnesses, every witness said that Riley was completely out of control," said Golden, adding that witnesses said that if he had been able to

Burns, Craig honored by airport authority

SANFORD — The Sanford Regional Airport Authority yesterday honored a retiring member of its original board and a long-time security guard.

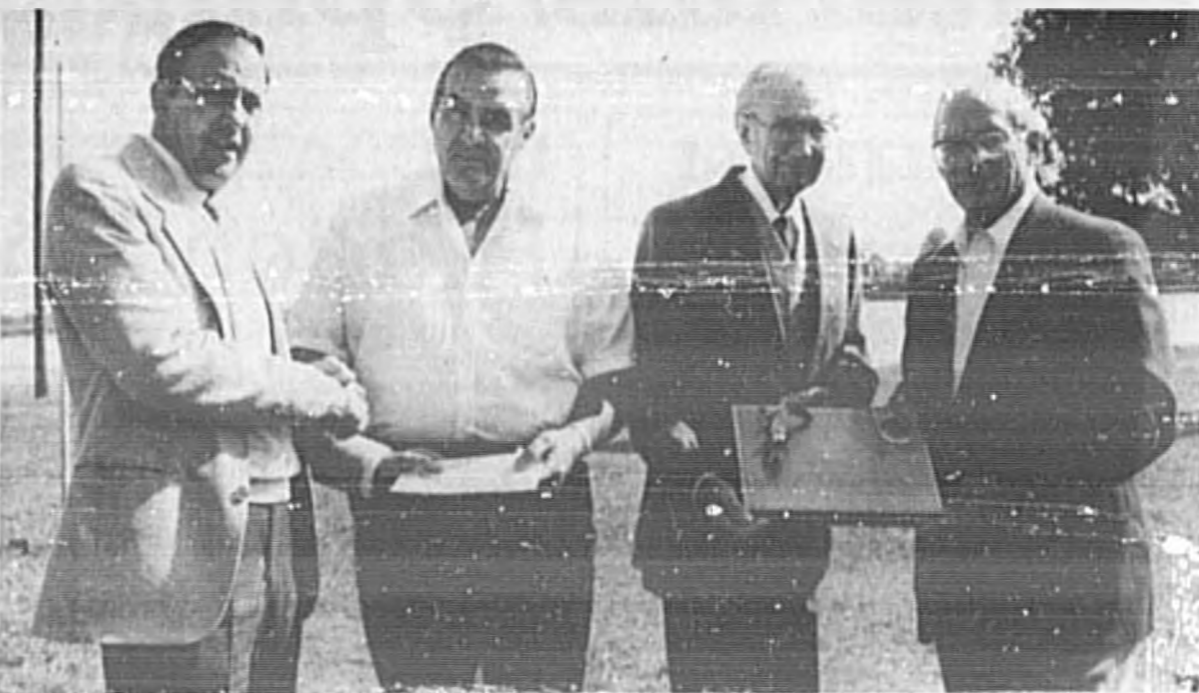

Scott Burns, a member of the authority since 1971, retired Sept. 30. Authority chairperson A. K. Shoemaker presented Burns with a plaque honoring his service to the board.

Burns was appointed to the first seven-member airport authority board in 1971, when the city of Sanford acquired Sanford Regional Airport.

Burns, who retired from Florida Power and Light in 1981 after more than 46 years, is a Rotarian.

At a luncheon yesterday, the authority also honored a retiring security guard, Glenn Craig, with the airport police for 6 years was honored by airport authority director of aviation Mack LaZenby. Craig is leaving the force because of poor health.

Craig came to Sanford in 1968, when he retired from the U.S. Navy.

Court ruling may not affect local police

From staff and wire reports

The Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Monday that police may use helicopters to view backyards in search of marijuana patches and other signs of crime without first obtaining a search warrant.

Lt. Donald Eslinger, commander of Seminole County's City County Investigative Bureau, said the ruling won't impact on his operation because when conducting such surveillance his agents use a fixed-wing aircraft, flying at a higher altitude.

"Low-level hovering is the Fourth Amendment issue," Eslinger said. "The technique we use is at a higher altitude with a fixed-wing aircraft. We have a right to travel this county at a certain altitude, regardless of our mission, whether we're searching for marijuana or transporting prisoners."

In 1988 several fields of marijuana were spotted from the air in Seminole County including a forest of 68 marijuana "trees" found just west of Sanford, behind a house in a subdivision.

The U.S. Supreme Court has given its approval to similar intrusions by helicopter.

The opinion by Justice Byron White reversed a ruling by the Supreme Court of Florida, which threw out evidence against a suspected drug dealer because police failed to get a warrant before conducting the flyover.

The case involved Michael Riley, who was accused of growing marijuana in a greenhouse on his 3-acre property. Riley was arrested after police flew over the land at about 400 feet to check out an anonymous tip.

It's time to wake up and smell the budget

It's true that the 1990 federal budget that outgoing President Reagan sent to Congress is "an amiable fiction," as Senate majority Leader George Mitchell dubbed it. When lawmakers sit down in February to begin hammering out the real budget, their attention will be focused not on Reagan's proposals but on the amended budget proposals George Bush promises to send to Capitol Hill. But irrelevant as it may be, the Reagan budget is illustrative of the problems ahead for the new president.

Reagan says that his $1.15 trillion budget shows that it is possible to bring down the federal deficit to the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings target without increasing taxes. What it really shows is precisely the opposite.

As has been his habit, Reagan reaches his deficit target by dint of too-rosy economic projections, phony savings from the sale of government assets and machete attacks on federal domestic programs. Some of the 82 programs Reagan proposes for extinction would not be missed. But Congress, with good reason, is not about to eliminate Amtrak, the Legal Services Corp. and mass transit grants, to name a few of the necessary programs he would jettison. Nor does the Reagan budget make provisions for the new social spending that Bush proposed during the campaign — for child care, health, the homeless and education — to deal with unmet national needs. Bush and lawmakers seem headed in the direction of a net increase in social spending.

Where, then, will the new president find the deficit reduction he needs? Some will come from trimming Reagan's unrealistic requests for 2 percent real growth in defense spending. Bush recognizes that fiscal discipline requires the Pentagon to live with a steady-state budget, and he will have to be bolder than Reagan has been in eliminating weapons systems that the nation can't afford, as Bush's opponent Michael Dukakis proposed. But holding the line at the Pentagon won't be enough to get the deficit down. That leaves only Social Security, which is politically sacrosanct, and taxes to do the rest of the job.

In his budget, even Reagan asks for some new revenue, both from higher user fees for government services and from extending the Medicare payroll tax to public employees who are currently exempt. Bush and Congress will have to go further. Whether the task is accomplished through closing income tax loopholes, raising sin taxes or putting higher taxes on gasoline, it will take more than Reagan has proposed for George Bush to achieve his goal of a nation that is both gentler and more fiscally responsible.

Science is important

Although media attention is focused on high-level Cabinet posts and other plum jobs in the Bush administration, one of the most important happens to be the low-visibility national-science adviser. We hope Mr. Bush will heed the cogent recommendations of the Carnegie Commission of Science, Technology and Government, which reflects the collective wisdom of some of the nation's top scientists and science administrators. The report's most significant recommendation is that Mr. Bush's science adviser be given standing in the administration, direct access to the Oval Office and a greater role in developing the nation's science policy.

The recommendation is urgent because this was not the case during the Reagan administration.

As the Carnegie report makes clear, there is much to be done. Priorities must be established for the nation's space program, which was set back by the Challenger disaster. Environmental problems such as the greenhouse effect and depletion of the earth's ozone level cry out for solutions.

Research and technological advances are essential if American industry is to compete in the global economy. Public-health concerns, beginning with AIDS and drug abuse, must be high on the national agenda. And finally, the quality of science education must be upgraded so this nation continues to produce topflight scientists who will address these and future challenges.

A prominent science adviser who has the president's ear could have a significant impact in determining the nation's scientific and technological destiny.

Hidden taxes may plague Bush

WASHINGTON — Almost everyone in Washington is unhappy with Ronald Reagan's final budget. Although they are not saying so publicly, among the unhappiest are the members of George Bush's budget team. Reagan's budget may paint them into some difficult corners.

Apparently Reagan and his Office of Management and Budget forgot to read Bush's lips during the campaign. The new fiscal 1990 budget contains at least $14 billion in new or increased taxes. The trick is that the budget's designers don't call them that.

For instance, about $6.5 billion of a total of about $8.5 billion in what have to be considered new taxes are labeled "premiums" because they cover the fees that older taxpayers will have to pay next year for the new catastrophic insurance protection under Medicare. The administration insisted on the surcharge, which, by 1993, will amount to as much as 25 percent of the average older American's annual tax liability.

An additional $5.5 billion in 1990 increases are labeled increased or new "user fees," or even more deceptively, "new revenue initiatives."

A president's final budget is often considered a meaningless exercise since it is invariably ignored until it is revised or totally rewritten by the new president. Still, sometimes it serves as the departing president's final statement about spending priorities for the future.

Many key players in the annual budget drama are paying even less attention than usual to this final budget because, as one high-level congressional budget staffer put it: "It isn't worth the paper it's written on if it were sold in bookstores, they would have to put it on the fiction shelves."

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget limitation calls for a steadily declining federal deficit until fiscal 1993 when it mandates a balanced budget. The new Reagan budget forecasts bettering the Gramm-Rudman deficit target in fiscal 1990 by holding the deficit to $92.5 billion and fulfilling the requirement for a balanced budget in 1993 by forecasting a $2.4 billion surplus.

But these are based on certain economic assumptions apparently only believed by the current inhabitants of OMD.

For instance, interest rates are critical in federal budgeting. The federal debt is so huge that every 1 percent increase in the interest rate will cost taxpayers $11 billion next year, $20 billion in fiscal 1992 and $29 billion in fiscal 1994.

The interest rate currently stands at about 8.28 percent. This is up from the average of 6.7 percent during fiscal 1988. Virtually every economist sees short-term interest staying around this level for a while.

As for long-term 10-year rates, currently about 8.9 percent, the CBO sees them remaining at 9 percent or slightly higher in 1990.

This is not the view of Reagan's budget team. They see interest rates falling, and falling sharply, to a level almost 3 percent lower for both short- and long-term than the CBO predicts. This would mean that if the CBO is correct, all other things being equal, the actual 1988 deficit could be $33 billion higher than the new Reagan budget forecasts; and the 1993 budget could end up $60 billion to $70 billion in the red.

Many key players in the annual budget drama are paying even less attention than usual.

DAVID S. BRODER

Ruminating on Barbara Bush

WASHINGTON — The gush is on about Barbara Bush. The same journals that were enthralled by Nancy Reagan's chic for eight years are now suddenly enchanted by Barbara Bush's crow's feet and comfortable stoutness. Time magazine, borrowing what is purportedly a family nickname, put her on its cover as "The Silver Fox," suggesting with wild inappropriateness that she is like a luxury fur. She will bring "a refreshing new style to the White House." Time promised its readers before the new mistress on the mansion ever set foot in the place.

The New York Times, not to be outdone, said on its front page: "With a sigh, Barbara Bush acknowledges that she now views herself as a role model for many American women. 'My mail tells me a lot of fat, white-haired, wrinkled ladies are tickled pink,' she said."

When the press is in the grip of this kind of gushiness, the prudent thing to do is to stay away from the topic. A political columnist has the freedom to say, "I don't do first ladies," and as a general rule, I don't. To ignore the special qualities of Barbara Bush, however, would be to miss one of the most important clues to the character of this new administration.

The women most Americans have known only as the white-haired matron with three strands of (fake) pearls has the capacity — and likely, the inclination — to become a major influence on her husband and the nation.

Mrs. Bush has cautioned reporters that she dislikes that comparison to Eleanor Roosevelt, who was not as beloved in the Republican household where Barbara Bush was reared as in many other Depression-era homes. But that exact comparison is made by Susan Baker, spouse of Secretary of State James A. Baker III and a close friend of the Bushes.

"She sees needs, she involves herself with them; and she gives others the strength and encouragement they need to involve themselves," Susan Baker said.

The strengths Barbara Bush brings to her role are evident to anyone who knows her. She is direct, honest, clear about her loyalties (most importantly to her husband) and her values. Perhaps as a result of raising her own large, diverse batch of children, she also has exceptionally keen antennae for the moods and needs of other people. As a reporter, I have seen her, more than once, defuse a tense situation simply by slipping her arm through the aggravated party's arm and walking and talking until the hurt and anger have passed.

What is less evident — because she has tended to downplay her role during the past eight years out of deference to Mrs. Reagan — is her strong personal awareness of the problems that blight too many lives in this outwardly affluent society. Her special cause has been the fight against illiteracy, and those who share it — like Ruth Graves and Anne Richardson of "Reading Is Fundamental" — testify that Barbara Bush's involvement has been intense and unstinting.

In the last few years, Mrs. Bush has begun working with groups aiding the homeless and has encouraged many of her friends to put their energies into that effort. These are personal causes, but they spill over into consciousness-raising for her husband, the President. Last spring, Bush told David Hoffman of The Washington Post that after he had talked about aiding the homeless in a Republican candidates' debate, "some guy that's all involved in one of these homeless programs wrote Barbara saying, 'I know you care about the homeless, but I listen to your husband (and) he doesn't.' So we got into a big argument. She had been telling me I had to do more, and I think she's right."

It may seem exaggerated to suggest that Barbara Bush will be the conscience of this White House, but my guess is that she will be more: an example to the country. She comes from a tradition that says that those who are favored with wealth and power thereby acquire reciprocal obligations to those who lack any advantages.

In a speech last autumn in San Francisco, George Bush talked about what "a shallow ambition" economic growth is. "Let's remember that prosperity has a purpose and it's to pursue what Lincoln called 'the better angels of our nature.'"

"As I get older," he continued, "I find myself almost haunted by the lives being lived by the children of our inner cities, children growing up in the loveless environment, amidst violence and horror. What is going to become of them? The answer is up to us. The answer is in each individual act of kindness, multiplied by tens of thousands. The answer is in a new engagement in the pain of others."

She is direct, honest, and clear about her loyalties.

JACK ANDERSON

Baker's staff wary of Soviet motives

WASHINGTON — As James Baker prepares to take charge of U.S. foreign policy, he appears to be in easy command of an awesome array of strategic concepts and tactical details. He already exercises a calm mastery over foreign affairs.

But sources close to Baker tell us that, privately, he feels insecure about foreign policy. He has deployed two seasoned veterans to protect his flanks — Brent Scowcroft as national security adviser and Lawrence Eagleburger as deputy secretary of state.

It all came out of Henry Kissinger's shop, a consulting firm called Kissinger Associates. This could mean that Kissinger will be the shadow secretary of state, guiding foreign policy from behind the scenes.

Eagleburger is as cynical and pragmatic as Kissinger. He alternates cigarettes with an inhaler to clear his lungs. Scowcroft is a modest, conscientious man who shuns the spotlight.

A source who knows both men says they share Kissinger's distrust of the Soviet Union. They suspect that behind Mikhail Gorbachev's amiability could be a move to diminish American influence in Europe. As Kissinger, Scowcroft and Eagleburger see it, that could lead to a Europe dominated by the Soviet Union. Then the Soviets could nourish their sick economy by feeding off of Western Europe.

Kissinger Associates doesn't regard Gorbachev as a born-again Western liberal, but as a hard-bitten communist who has been forced by a failing economy to adopt Western methods.

In the Kissinger view, Gorbachev cannot count on continued public support just because he has reformed and softened the Soviet system. Most Soviets have adjusted to the communist dictatorship; they have learned to live with it. At this point, they are more concerned about food on the table than about any intangible new freedoms.

To maintain popular support for his reforms, Gorbachev must improve the quality of daily life in the Soviet Union, so he is turning to Western ideas for a quick economic fix.

Meanwhile, his reforms are opposed by the entrenched commissars and bureaucrats who support the hardliners in the Kremlin. Should Gorbachev falter, he would likely be succeeded by a repressive regime which would discard his reforms, crack down on the populace and revive the Cold War.

Kissinger and company believe it would be a dangerous mistake for the United States to let down its guard and base its foreign policy on Gorbachev.

They fear the greatest danger could come from Eastern Europe. Now that the Soviets have relaxed their grip on their satellites, they might show too much independence and antagonize the Kremlin.

The views of Kissinger, Scowcroft and Eagleburger add up to a Europe-first policy. But other strategists believe the danger lies not in Europe but in Asia. They point out that national security has three dimensions — military, economic and political. The United States may be a military superpower, but if its economy declines and its people lose confidence in the government, then the nation would become vulnerable.

Thus, these strategists contend, the real threat to U.S. security is posed by Japanese economic power, not Soviet military power. But with Scowcroft and Eagleburger in positions of influence, Kissinger's view is likely to prevail.

The views of Kissinger, Scowcroft and Eagleburger add up to a Europe-first policy.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Wednesday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending sharp gains won in the previous session.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which soared 38.04 Tuesday, was up 3.03 to 2259.48 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 489-317 among the 1,285 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 11,743,000 shares.

Stock prices soared in heavy trading Tuesday as a rally in both the dollar and bonds led investors to stage a buying spree that allowed the market to erase the last of its losses from the 1987 crash.

The Dow Jones Industrial average surged 38.04 to close at 2256.43. It was the first time since the market crashed Oct. 19, 1987 that the blue-chip index closed above 2246.74, the level from which it began its 508-point plunge.

Analysts attributed the surge to renewed strength in the dollar and bond prices and to computer buy programs resulting from stock-index arbitrage.

Hildegard Zagorski, market analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., said bargain hunting strengthened stock prices.

Dollar opens higher

United Press International

LONDON — The dollar opened mostly higher Wednesday in trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold was lower.

In earlier trading in Tokyo, the dollar closed at 127.65 Japanese yen, up from 126.95 yen on Tuesday.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8420 West German marks, up from 1.8325 marks on Tuesday.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.5625 Swiss francs, up from 1.5525 francs on Tuesday. In Paris, the dollar opened at 6.2685 French francs, up from 6.2105 francs the day before.

The dollar started the day in Brussels at 36.73 Belgian francs, up from 36.53 francs on Tuesday and opened in Italy at 1,348.50 Italian lire, up from 1,338.90 lire Tuesday.

In London, the British pound began the day at $1.7715 compared with $1.7685 on Tuesday.

On the bullion markets, gold opened $3 an ounce lower in Zurich at $405 and $1.50 lower in London at $405.50.

Silver opened 7 cents lower in Zurich at $6.15 an ounce and opened 7 1/2 cents lower in London at $6.125 an ounce.

Consider tax on deposits

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady said Wednesday the administration is considering a tax on customer deposits in banks and savings and loans to pay billions of dollars toward a bailout of the thrift industry.

Brady insisted the proposal should not be viewed as a tax, but nonetheless acknowledged in a pair of television interviews that the idea could amount to a fee of 25 cents for every $100 deposited at a federally insured institution.

"In my mind, that's like any other insurance premium," the secretary said on ABC's "Good-Morning America" show. "If we finally go to that option it would be very small. Some of the suggestions are 25 cents per $100 for this very valuable insurance. The main thing is, though, that we continue the federal guarantee on these deposits; that's what the president wants to do."

Brady stressed on NBC's "Today" show, "We haven't even spoken to President Bush yet about this," adding there is no plan recommended by the Treasury.

He argued that any customer fee should be seen as minor, saying, "If there were to be an insurance-based premium deposit, it'd be so small nobody would notice it."

ment.

The studies recommend increasing the open space fee, an impact fee for recreational services, from $150 per dwelling unit. The studies make two recommendations, based on different appraisals of park land value. One recommendation, based on the cost per acre to develop park land, is $602 per dwelling unit. The second, based on Seminole County appraisals of park land, is $411 per dwelling unit.

The existing open space fee, an impact fee for recreational services, is a provision for 600 square feet of on-site open space for each dwelling unit, or $150 per unit in lieu of open space. No open space fee is required for industrial development.

The studies on city recreational services, released in November, indicate a need for a sports complex, swimming pool and senior citizen center within the next five years.

The committee will meet Feb. 21 to further discuss the fees.

Last year the city commission authorized the committee to review existing fees and the possibility of charging additional fees to support projected growth.

Paving

the entire cost of paving the subdivision. After recalculating the cost share, county officials said residents will now pay an estimated $1,615 apiece.

Streetman also recommended the county hire a private engineering firm to perform final engineering and preliminary cost estimate work for the county, an added $15,000. The additional expenses will increase the homeowner's share by $120 apiece, for a total of $1,735.

Beck said the homeowner should pay the cost whether they want to or not to protect Lake Mills.

Commissioners approved the plan and when a final estimate for the work is received, will send petitions to lotowners seeking their approval.

If more than two-thirds of the lotowners approve, then the project will be built.

several of her deadlines by a month or more.

But Hooper and the commissioners were unsure whether they — using taxpayer's funds — should provide the copies without charge. County policy has been to provide copies to commissioners for free, but Hooper said the county has never had a request for such a voluminous amount of copies.

Hooper proposed a written policy stating copy requests by commissioners for routine research on current issues would still be provided free, but large-scale general requests of copies would be charged at the regular public rate of four cents per page.

Although commissioners Fred Streetman and Bob Sturm argued Tuesday such a policy would address similar future situations should they arise, commissioner chairman Sandra Glenn and commissioner Pat Warren sided with Kelley, saying such a policy wasn't needed.

"I have a philosophical problem with implementing a policy over a single issue," Glenn said. "I am not willing to write a new policy over what I think is a one-time thing."

"Most of our policies are formulated over one single item," Sturm responded.

Sturm and Streetman failed to convince their fellow commissioners such a policy was needed and the policy failed 3-2.

Rocky road predicted for Tower, Sullivan

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate prepared to confirm three of President Bush's Cabinet members but two others, John Tower, picked for the Defense Department, and Louis Sullivan, tapped to head Health and Human Services, ran into trouble Tuesday.

The Senate was scheduled to vote Wednesday on the nominations of James Baker as secretary of state, Elizabeth Dole as secretary of labor, and Richard Darman as budget director.

Baker, Dole and Darman, the first of Bush's top team to be approved by Senate committees, were assured easy confirmation, probably by unanimous vote.

They would join three Reagan administration holdovers — Attorney General Dick Thornburgh at the Justice Department, Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady — who do not have to be confirmed again.

In addition, Secretary of Commerce-nominee Robert Mosbacher breezed through his confirmation hearing Tuesday and appeared assured of approval, probably before the end of the week.

But Tower, the vest-pocket former Texas senator and arms negotiator, and Sullivan, president of Morehouse College and the only black chosen for the Cabinet, ran into difficulties.

Neither nomination was considered in danger but their confirmation hearings could provoke controversy.

Sullivan's position on the emotional issue of abortion came into question when The New York Times reported that he told a Republican lawmaker he favored letting stand the Supreme Court's Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortions.

That would put him in direct conflict with Bush, who favors reversal of the 18-year-old ruling, and could cause him serious trouble with anti-abortion forces in the Senate.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., a leading abortion foe, said he has no doubt that the nomination will be approved, despite questions about his stand on Roe vs. Wade.

"Let's put it plainly," Humphrey told reporters. "Dr. Sullivan is the only black nominee to the Cabinet. It would be embarrassing to the president, embarrassing to the Republican Party, if that nomination encountered any trouble. We don't want that."

Nonetheless, Humphrey said the Senate vote on Sullivan's nomination could become "the abortion vote of 1989."

"It is a problem, if he did in fact say he does not support overruling Roe vs. Wade," Humphrey said. "I do not know what Dr. Sullivan's views are. At best, he is confused on the issue."

Sullivan almost was denied the Cabinet nomination last month when he told an interviewer he personally favored a woman's right to have an abortion "but that uproar died down after Sullivan said he supports Bush's position of opposing abortion in virtually all cases."

The Times quoted what it described as a senior Republican lawmaker who spoke on condition of anonymity as saying, "He said that he did not want to overturn Roe vs. Wade."

president of the Holbrook Homeowners Association. "Four lanes will keep it manageable."

County engineer Jerry McCollum said traffic on Red Bug Lake Road currently averages between 17,600 to 29,300 cars per day between State Road 436 and Tuslawilla Road, although the two lanes are designed to only carry 13,050 cars per day.

But within the next 20 years, the development potential of the area will likely increase the amount of traffic to 48,000 to 50,000 cars per day, McCollum said.

Gotti pleads innocent, free on bail

NEW YORK — Reputed Gambino crime family boss John Gotti, unruffled by a night in jail, pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges he ordered the shooting of a labor leader who wrecked a Mafia-run restaurant and was released on $100,000 bail.

Still dapper in the brown double-breasted suit and yellow turtleneck he was wearing when arrested Monday evening, the reputed boss of the nation's most powerful crime family slipped into a waiting Lincoln Town Car, which roared off through a red light to escape a swarm of reporters.

Gotti, 48, and two associates, Anthony "Tony Lee" Guerrieri, 60, and Angelo Ruggiero, 49, were charged with first-degree assault and fourth-degree conspiracy for allegedly ordering the 1986 shooting of carpenter's union leader John O'Connor, who was wounded in the buttocks and the backs of his legs.

Acting State Supreme Court Justice George Roberts ordered Gotti released on $100,000 bail after receiving assurances he would not flee the area.

Mishap prompts removal of warheads

WASHINGTON — An MX missile became detached from a mooring in its underground silo in Wyoming last year, prompting the Air Force to remove nuclear warheads from five of the $80 million strategic missiles. The Washington Post reported Wednesday.

Quoting unnamed senior Defense Department officials, the Post said the decision to remove the 50 warheads — a tenth of all warheads deployed on MX missiles — was made to prevent additional damage to the weapons.

Despite the removal of the warheads, public affairs officials at F.E. Warren Air Force Base near Cheyenne, Wyo., claimed last month that the missiles achieved "full operational capability" on Dec. 30. The Post said the force of 50 MX missiles is deployed at the base.

The Post said authoritative sources have studied the problem extensively since June, when the trouble with one of the missiles was first detected.

Pilot was unaware engine had fallen off

CHICAGO — The pilot of a Piedmont jetliner that dropped its right engine shortly after takeoff from O'Hare International Airport last week was apparently unaware the engine had fallen off until he landed about 4 minutes later, according to cockpit tapes released Tuesday.

"What happened to it, the unqualified pilot calmly asked after the tower informed him the 737 had lost the engine.

"Piedmont 1480, it looks like you've lost the engine. Can you make a right turn back for runway 32R?" a tense air traffic controller asked.

The pilot was aware he had lost thrust from his right engine, but it wasn't until 4 minutes later after he had landed safely that the pilot confirmed the engine was gone.

"Hey ground, tower, whoever I'm talking to. This is Piedmont out here on the runway. We've lost the engine. I don't know what's even happened to it," the pilot said.

"It fell off the aircraft about a half mile past the end of the runway," the controller responded.

Remains of 25 possible MIAs returned

HONOLULU — Remains believed to be those of 25 U.S. servicemen missing in action since the Vietnam war arrived on U.S. soil Tuesday from Southeast Asia to full military honors.

An Air Force transport plane bearing the 25 sets of remains, which were turned over to U.S. officials in Hanoi earlier, landed at Hickam Air Force Base Tuesday morning.

Members of an honor guard and a color guard representing all branches of the service saluted as the flag-draped caskets were carried one by one from the plane to a waiting bus.

The remains were taken to the Army's Central Identification Laboratory, which will try to identify them.

This was the eighth repatriation of remains since a visit to Vietnam by special Presidential envoy retired Gen. John Vessey.

Long Island's water may be threatened

NEW YORK — Long Island's drinking water is threatened by a "bewildering array of toxic hazards and radioactive wastes" at a vast federal laboratory in Suffolk County involved in nuclear research, a consumer group charged Tuesday.

Brookhaven National Laboratory lies within a 5,000-acre site on a prime recharge area where water filters down to the three layers of Long Island's aquifers.

Large amounts of deadly waste are created with the lab's research projects, which include nuclear medicine and energy technologies. A preliminary report by the Energy Department, which owns the facility, cites numerous potential and known hazards from the wastes to the region's water supply.

The report, obtained by the New York Public Interest Research Group, lists concerns including:

- 16 known disposal areas "where disposal of hazardous substances is known or suspected"
- a site where radioactive-contaminated animal carcasses from nuclear experiments and 10,000 cubic yards of chemicals may have been dumped
- 25 sites where soil appeared to have been stained with oil or other unidentified, hazardous substance spills where drums and other containers were abandoned
- 13 cesspools with "the potential for serving as sources of groundwater contamination where the report said failure to sample these cesspools upon abandonment and test for groundwater contamination may result in undetected groundwater contamination"

Meat Institute opposes inspection plan

WASHINGTON — The American Meat Institute urged withdrawal of a proposal Tuesday for a major restructuring of the federal inspection system at meat processing plants, saying it has serious problems with the plan.

The proposal presented last Nov. 3 would reduce inspections at plants with good records and intensify surveillance at those with bad records. Opponents, including consumer groups and labor unions, call it the most radical change ever in the inspection system.

Under the plan, inspectors might visit plants with excellent records less than once a day. Plants would have no advance warning of when inspections would occur. Plant employees would have a greater responsibility to assure operations followed federal rules.

There would be no change in federal inspection of slaughterhouses under the proposal. They are under constant inspection.

There are about 6,000 meat processing plants in the nation, conducting work that ranges from slicing and deboning meat to making hot dogs, beef steaks and packaged dinner entrees.

"Overall, the proposal is overly complex, cumbersome and burdensome to the regulated industry," said Marly Molpus, president of AMI, a trade group representing the meat packing and processing industry.

Molpus said AMI still supports the idea of risk-based inspection programs, but it would be better for the Agriculture Department to withdraw the plan and try to work out a better one.

The department is prohibited from discussing details of a program while it is still in the proposal stage. The department is accepting comments on the inspection revisions until Feb. 2.

AMI was a backer of changes in inspection laws that granted the government flexibility in its inspection operations.

Chicago financial fraud probe begins

United Press International

CHICAGO — FBI agents Tuesday began delivering subpoenas to hundreds of clearing firms at the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, the focus of a federal grand jury investigation into alleged fraud.

A source familiar with the FBI undercover probe of the two exchanges said a federal grand jury began examining evidence in the case Tuesday and could return the first indictments by mid-February.

As agents delivered more grand jury subpoenas for trading records and bank records, a dozen former sales people and sales managers of the now-defunct First Commodities Corp. of Boston pleaded innocent to commodities fraud charges arising from another case.

The 12 arraigned in U.S. District Court Tuesday are among 18 former First Commodities employees accused of bilking investors out of some $40 million between 1980 and 1987.

when First Commodities filed for bankruptcy.

The defendants, former employees at First Commodities' offices in Oak Brook and Chicago, are charged with misrepresenting themselves and the state of the market to induce customers to invest in commodities. They were indicted on Jan. 17, two days before news of the massive, two-year FBI undercover investigation into alleged fraud at the CBOT and CME became public.

Two FBI agents began deliv-ing subpoenas Tuesday to clearinghouses that process CBOT and CME trades, 137 on the CBOT and 90 on the CME.

One clearinghouse employee said the agent who delivered the subpoenas to his firm said he had "several hundred" subpoenas to deliver Tuesday and Wednesday, suggesting more individuals could receive subpoenas. But no individuals were known to have received subpoenas Tuesday. The subpoena ordered firms to produce "any and all records in your custody."

Bush creates ethics regulations for staff

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush, with campaign promises to keep, moved slowly but deliberately Tuesday toward creation of tougher ethics regulations crafted to hold his aides to the highest standards of conduct.

Despite a week-long emphasis on ethics, however, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush will not make specific proposals until a commission he will formally establish Wednesday completes its review.

"The emphasis is on coming up with a commission and new legislation," Fitzwater said, "having the general public know the emphasis the president places on this matter."

As to new regulations to buttress his commitments made through the campaign, Fitzwater said, "He's not doing it today."

"We'll do it on our timetable and let you know."

Bush was to meet with members of his commission Wednesday but, as of Tuesday, he had discussed the question only briefly with the head of the existing government ethics office, reviewing current laws "as they apply to federal employees — what their responsibilities are under existing ethics law," Fitzwater said.

In his inaugural address Friday, Bush pictured a nation in which public service was placed ahead of personal gain — "we are not the sum of our possessions" — and said he would "ask every member of my government" to be among the "brightest of the 'thousands of points of light' motivated by 'duty, sacrifice, commitment and patriotism.'"

He also pledged to establish a separate White House ethics office that would police employee activities.

Government discloses charges in Drexel case

United Press International

NEW YORK — The federal government Tuesday disclosed for the first time the charges to which Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. agreed to plead guilty as part of a settlement the firm accepted to stave off a racketeering indictment.

The information charges Drexel with participation in two criminal arrangements — one between Drexel and Ivan Boesky, and the second between Drexel and Princeton/Newport Partners — through which Drexel manipulated securities prices, engaged in insider trading and unlawfully facilitated merger and acquisition activities. U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said in a statement.

Drexel agreed in principle last month to plead guilty to six felony counts involving securities fraud and pay $650 million in fines and restitution to avoid being indicted on racketeering charges.

Drexel struck the deal after a 2-year investigation by the government as part of a wide probe of insider trading. Imprisoned stock speculator Boesky agreed to cooperate with the investigation as part of his settlement of insider trading charges in 1986.

The court document detailing the charges, known as an information, was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

Four of the six counts named in the information were fraud in the sale of securities in the Pennsylvania Engineering Corp.'s takeover of Fischbach, the manipulation of Stone Container Corp. common stock, a Phillips Petroleum transaction, and a Boesky organization's purchase of Harris Graphic's Corp. common stock.

The remaining two counts were for mail fraud, one in Golden Nugget's sale of MCA Inc. common stock. The other involved the sale of securities of C O M B Co., a Minnesota company engaged in retail sales. The information described the count as part of "an unlawful arrangement" Drexel had with Princeton-Newport Partners, a small New Jersey-based investment group.

Drexel, still one of Wall Street's most powerful securities firms, issued a statement saying in part: "We believe that this settlement is in the best interests of our firm, its employees and clients."

The firm said it would plead guilty to the criminal counts "cited in the information relating to six specific transactions, which the company is not in a position to dispute, and not to allegations relating to other transactions."

The settlement reached in December also is contingent on Drexel's settling charges filed against the firm in September by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Hahn admits to buying cocaine

United Press International

ALBANY, N.Y. — Jessica Hahn, the church secretary whose sexual encounter with Jim Bakker toppled the PTL founder, acknowledged Tuesday she bought and used cocaine during a "hard time" in her life but said she had only experimented with the drug.

Hahn made the admission to reporters after her former boss and alleged lover, the Rev. Gene Profeta, pleaded guilty to trying to have Hahn change her testimony before a grand jury and to filing a false state income tax return.

A state investigator testified Monday that Hahn had told investigators she bought $7,000 worth of cocaine in 1983 and allegedly extorting $12,000 from the PTL television ministry as hush money to keep quiet about her sexual encounter with Bakker.

Hahn on Tuesday denied buying $7,000 of cocaine, saying she had given half of $7,000 in her possession to a friend and spent some or all of the rest of the money on the drug. She was unsure of the exact amount, but said it "could be" as much as $3,500.

Experimented with cocaine. It was a hard time in my life. Hahn told reporters.

Cities face limits on contaminants in sewage sludge

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The EPA proposed new limits Tuesday on 28 toxic contaminants in sewage sludge but said the rules do not apply to sludge dumped in garbage landfills — the nation's largest single disposal method for the semi-solid waste.

The new Environmental Protection Agency regulations cover only those city sewage treatment plants that use alternative — and in some cases environmentally preferable — methods of sludge disposal, such as recycling it as garden fertilizer, applying it to farmlands and abandoned mine lands or burning it in incinerators.

The contaminant limits, effective October 1991, include toxic metals such as lead and cadmium, common industrial solvents such as trichloroethylene, pesticides such as DDT and chlordane and industrial chemicals such as benzene and PCBs.

Sludge is the semi-solid residue of organic material, metals and chemicals left over after waste water goes through city sewage treatment plants.

The 28 contaminants were selected out of 200 chemicals and metals for regulation through a precedent-setting and highly controversial risk-assessment process.

As a result, the EPA has set aside an extra-long public comment period — six months — to take public comment before issuing final rules.

EPA officials said the limits were needed to ensure sewage treatment plants produce "clean" sludge that does not contain dangerous levels of contaminants that would pollute the air when incinerated or leach into ground water when used as soil fertilizer.

However, the regulations apply to only one-third of the nation's 15,300 municipal sewage treatment plants — the 5,300 that have turned to alternative disposal methods. The EPA said those plants handle about 50 percent of the nation's sludge.

The contaminant limits will not be imposed on the estimated 6,700 sewage plants nationwide that dispose of sludge with household refuse in city garbage dumps, a method that accounts for 41 percent of the country's sludge output.

The limits also do not apply to 3,300 small sewage plants deemed to present little environmental risks. EPA officials said ocean disposal of sludge was excluded because that practice will be banned by 1992.

Martha Prothro, director of the EPA's Office of Water Regulations and Standards, said it was not necessary to impose the contaminant limits on garbage dump sludge because dumps are covered by rules requiring pit liners and other safeguards to prevent ground water pollution.

She also said sludge represented only 5 percent of all garbage in the average municipal dump and therefore would not add significantly to the risk of offsite pollution.

However, environmentalists said the high water content of sludge created more runoff from garbage dumps, aggravating pollution risks. In addition, organic acids formed in the decomposition of sludge can accelerate the leaching of toxic metals.

U.S. gives asylum to Soviet seaman

BANGKOK, Thailand — A Soviet merchant seaman has defected to the United States and been granted asylum by the U.S. government, a U.S. embassy spokesman said Wednesday. "A Soviet merchant seaman asked to be resettled in the United States," said U.S. Embassy spokesman Ross Petzing. "He was admitted to the United States by the Immigration and Naturalization Service and left Bangkok this morning," Petzing said, who added that no other details about the seaman could be released.

Soviet quake toll less than first reported

MOSCOW — Radio Moscow said Wednesday the death toll from the Tadzhikistan earthquake is "much smaller" than the original estimate of 1,000 people, and material damage amounted to about $19.2 million. The report said "a great majority" of those killed were buried in landslides triggered by the Monday quake in the southern republic.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said five schools, two hospitals and more than 400 apartment buildings were either damaged or destroyed by the quake and subsequent landslides.

Measuring 7 on the 12-point Mercalli scale, the quake struck at 5:02 a.m. local time Monday with its epicenter 31 miles southwest of the Tadzhik capital of Dushanbe near the village of Sharora. The quake measured 5.4 on the Richter scale.

Sharora, a village of 600 people, was buried under 50 feet of mud. According to the official Tass news agency, rescue teams have pulled more than 100 bodies from the debris in that settlement. One person has so far been found alive.

Earthquake jolts northern Japan

TOKYO — A strong earthquake rumbled through wide areas of northern Japan early Wednesday, toppling objects off shelves, causing cracks on roads and knocking out electricity supply to some 3,800 households, officials said.

Police said there were no reports of casualties. The Meteorological Agency said the tremor, measuring 5.8 on the Richter scale, was recorded at 5:03 a.m. (1:03 p.m. EST Tuesday). It was centered about 25 miles underground in southern Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island.

The quake was followed by three weaker aftershocks, the agency said. The earthquake's epicenter was about 60 miles southwest of Mt. Tokachi, a 6,813-foot high volcano, which erupted last month, forcing thousands of evacuations in the immediate area.

Army base siege ends with 36 killed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — President Raul Alfonsin told the nation his troops captured the last stronghold of unidentified guerrillas who took control of an army base in a 30-hour siege that left at least 36 people dead.

Earlier Tuesday, an hour after authorities had said the siege was over, a sniper outside La Tablada Infantry base fired at the facility's main gate just as Alfonsin arrived by helicopter to inspect the heavily damaged facility.

That touched off an intermittent four-hour gunfight in streets in the area near the base between snipers and security forces. The military apparently remained in control of the base itself.

A radio station said one sniper was killed but that report was not immediately confirmed by government sources.

In a nationally televised address Tuesday night, Alfonsin said 36 people died in the fighting, including seven Argentine soldiers, a provincial policeman and 28 rebels. He said 63 government troops — 38 soldiers and 25 policemen — were wounded and that 14 of the rebels were captured.

Alfonsin said the rebels were "ultra-leftists" whose identity would eventually be made known, but he did not say when authorities would identify them.

Takeshita rejects call for reorganization

TOKYO — Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita, facing the biggest test of his 15-month-old administration, rejected demands Wednesday that his entire Cabinet quit following the resignation of one of his most trusted ministers over the insider trading scandal.

Ken Harada, 69, state minister and director-general of the Economic Planning Agency, stepped down Tuesday in connection with the stock market affair — the third Cabinet minister in Takeshita's government to resign in 45 days.

Harada was regarded as a "de facto" deputy prime minister in the Takeshita Cabinet.

Immediately after his resignation, three major opposition parties, led by the Japan Socialist Party, demanded that Takeshita's cabinet resign en masse or dissolve parliament to take responsibility for Japan's worst political scandal in 12 years.

Takeshita, however, rejected the demand Wednesday, saying, "It's a matter to be decided by myself and I am not thinking of dissolving parliament."

He told reporters he will try to regain public confidence in politics when the Diet, Japan's parliament, reconvenes Feb. 10. Opposition parties have pledged to step up attacks against the government at that time.

Brother of executed man praised

BEIJING — A man in southern China was executed for murder, arson and gun theft after being turned in to authorities by his younger brother, who was awarded a pay raise, an $800 bonus and a merit citation, an official newspaper reported Wednesday.

Authorities in Jiangxi Province executed Li Jitao, an unemployed worker, and two accomplices for the arson-murder last October of a local policeman after Li's younger brother, a militiaman, discovered evidence from the murder in the family's courtyard home, the China Daily reported.

The younger Li, 18, a demobilized soldier and a tungsten mine employee, turned in his brother Nov. 2. The three men were executed Dec. 9.

"To praise Li Yutao's action of justice, the Jiangxi Provincial government gave him a bonus of 3,000 yuan ($400) and his salary was raised, too," the China Daily said. "The prefectural party committee awarded him a citation for merit, first class."

A police station in Sanhengshan town was set afire last October, apparently to cover a weapons robbery.

Three dead in mine fires

United Press International

LIMA, Peru — Self-employed miners who lost a turf war over an abandoned gold mine deliberately set a fire that trapped their rivals in smoke-filled caverns, killing at least three people, the government said Tuesday.

Energy and Mining Minister Jose Carrasco Tavera said any where between 15 and 200 miners were trapped inside the Sol de Oro mine in arid southern Peru.

Miners who ventured into the main shaft earlier in the day tapped on a wall and "received an answer," indicating miners have survived trapped for four days since the still-smoldering fire was set, he said.

Bodies of three miners have been recovered, and two miners are hospitalized, he said after returning to the capital of Lima from the disaster site.

Officials had earlier said six bodies had been recovered from the mine. There was no official explanation for the discrepancy.

The huge Sol de Oro mine pierces a hillside in parched desert near the city of Nazca, 230 miles southeast of Lima.

Police said self-employed miners found a gold vein, leading to a quarrel on Friday night over control of the mine, Carrasco Tavera said.

"The cause of the disaster was intentional," he said. "The group that lost the fight, when they left (the mine), wanted to cause damage to those who won."

Police have opened a criminal investigation, he said.

Meanwhile, specialized rescue squads and firefighters cleared away rubble from cave-ins and tried to ventilate the mine of dense smoke caused by the fire, authorities said.

Rescue workers from the state iron company, Hierro Peru, "have entered to where the first cave-in is and have declared to us that there are fires inside," Nazca Mayor Enrique Li Vera said.

Rival Moslem militias agree to a cease-fire

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Rival Moslem militias in Lebanon have agreed to an immediate cease-fire in their 10-month battle for control of the war-torn nation's Shiite community, Syria announced Wednesday.

Damascus radio described the truce as "an initial agreement" that will be followed with further efforts toward an in-depth settlement between the militias — the Syrian-backed Amal movement and the Iranian-inspired Hezbollah.

"At the end of two days of talks (in Damascus) sponsored by the Syrian Arab republic and the Islamic Republic (of Iran), an agreement was worked out, stipulating an immediate cease-fire and halting the war of words between Amal and Hezbollah," the official radio said.

The latest cease-fire is the first arranged directly by the Syrian and Iranian governments. Previous negotiated halts in fighting, which inevitably failed, were arranged by the rival groups' field commanders and Syrian officers.

The radio said further deliberations will be pursued "in order to tackle the reasons behind the explosions for the sake of liberating Lebanon from the Israeli occupation."

Israel maintains a 3- to 9-mile "security zone" on its northern border with Lebanon, and has made numerous air strikes into southern Lebanon against what it terms terrorist bases where guerrillas would launch an invasion into Israel.

Analysts noted that Syrian President Hafez Assad has become personally involved in ending the violence between the two sides, fearing continued fighting would exhaust the two groups and give way to followers of PLO chief Yasser Arafat — Assad's old foe — to regain a foothold in southern Lebanon.

The latest round of fighting for control of Lebanon's Shiite community erupted Dec. 31 in Beirut's suburbs and spread to southern Lebanon, killing at least 161 people and wounding 310.

Tension remains high around the shell-pocked village of Jabaa, 28 miles south of Beirut, where the Moslem militias staged one of their fiercest battles.

Arafat's followers, who were defeated by the Israeli army in 1982 in Lebanon, have rebuilt bases around the southern port city of Sidon, 24 miles from Beirut.

SHS, Brantley matmen triumph

Seminole High School's wrecking crew dominated the middle weights and ripped St. Cloud, 47-25, Tuesday night in prep wrestling action at St. Cloud High School.

John Bass gave Seminole its first points in the 112 pound weight class when he decided Ron Kempthor 7-2. After St. Cloud took a 15-3 lead, Thomas Brendle started the SHS rally with a win by forfeit, Larry Nathan, who ran his record to 14-0, then pinned Matt Miller at the 1:18 mark to pull the Tribe even.

Trent Schake followed up with a pin over Scott Ferdie, sticking him at the 3:35 mark. James Bass gave Seminole a comfortable lead by pinning Seant Butler in the 145 pound weight class. Kevin Nathan added a pin over Brett Butler to build the lead to 33-15.

Troy Rollins, who also has a 14-0 mark, then battled Jason Kempthor to a 15-12 decision. Julius Bennett added a technical pin in the 189 pound weight class as he hammered Chris Reddick 16-1. Keith Switzer closed the scoring for Seminole as he won by forfeit.

In other action Tuesday, the Lake Brantley Patriots thrashed Spruce Creek, 50-17.

The Patriots got more than a gift from the Hawks as the inexperienced Spruce Creek team had to give up forfeits in the first five matches. Scott Meredith was winning his match, 16-3 before the referee disqualified his opponent for biting him on the hand, giving the Patriots six points instead of the usual five for the 13-point victory. Jim Kelly took the bite out of his foe by pinning him in 2:44, and Tim Warren got a hard-fought 11-9 win at 171.

Lendl dominates McEnroe

MELBOURNE, Australia — Ivan Lendl completed an important step in his quest for his first Australian Open championship game Wednesday with a 7-6 (7-0), 6-2, 7-6 (7-2) triumph over rival John McEnroe in the quarterfinals of the $3 million tournament.

Lendl, who holds a 15-14 edge in his series with McEnroe, will meet 11th seed Thomas Muster of Austria in the semifinals. The other semi-final will be between unseeded Jan Gunnarsson of Sweden and ninth seed Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia, who crushed teenage qualifier Goran Ivanisevic, 7-5, 6-0, 6-3.

Muster advanced to the finals Wednesday when fourth-seeded Stefan Edberg was forced to withdraw because of a back injury. Edberg tore a back ligament Tuesday in a match against Australian Pat Cash.

Gleason hits 23 in Rams victory

Now that it appears Heather Gleason is comfortable playing in the Sunshine State, Lake Mary's Lady Rams are looking for a bright finish in the final stages of the 1988-89 season.

Gleason, who transferred to Lake Mary from Texas this school year, pumped in a season-high 23 points, had 13 steals, six rebounds and three assists to lead Lake Mary's Lady Rams to a 60-39 hammering of Evans in prep girls basketball action at Evans High School on Monday night.

Lisa Johnson added seven points with Tara Jackson, Lori Winnall and Wiltha Hartsfield all contributing six. Angie Merthie led Evans with 15 points as Kairina Lomans chipped in 11.

SCC dons David role vs. Daytona Goliaths

By MARK BLYTHE Herald sports writer

Although its another David and Goliath story, this time Goliath appears to be wearing an armored suit.

Seminole Community College's mens basketball team will hope to find ways to dent the armor tonight when it travels to play arch rival Daytona Beach Community College in a big Mid-Florida Conference battle (tipoff 7:30 p.m.).

DBCC is all alone at the top of the conference with a 6-0 record and will enter the game with a nice 21-1 record while being ranked as the state. Seminole is coming off its first loss in the conference and is just a game behind the Scots at 5-1, while putting together a 17-6 record overall.

"Daytona's too quick to press and they're too good for us to pack it in because they shoot so well." Seminole coach Bill Payne said. "We can only hope they have a bad night, you don't get to be 21-1 with mirrors."

The game, which is always exciting, whether it be an important matchup or not will have the added pressure of the conference lead for the first time in three years.

The past two years has had Seminole and Florida Community College of Jacksonville battling it out for the conference title. This year it is SCC and DBCC.

"The game sounds like a lot of fun," Payne said. "It should come down to who has the better inside game, they have the better guards and they definitely have more talent than we do it will depend on whether we can get the ball inside."

The game should be an excellent perimeter game, since that's where the strength of both teams lie. The Scots are led by Elgin Downey (21.1 ppg) and Kevin Simmons (19.7 ppg) while Sean Sears gives strong help with his three point shooting and Cliff Sykes beating the boards.

"They are without a doubt the best team we will have played," Payne said. "They really have a tough team, their inside game hasn't picked up any this year but they have a lot of talent on the perimeter. We don't have an inside game so the game should be decided on who shoots better."

Seminole will hope to get Terry Acox (18.4 ppg, 9.0 rpg) into the flow along with Terrell Barnes (14.9 ppg, 7.3 rpg). The Raiders will be without the services of 6-5 Vince Emerson who made a trip home for personal reasons.

"We'll have to good performances from everyone," Payne said. "Daytona has good balance and we'll have to have the same to stay in the game."

SHS tips Pats

SANFORD — The experience of senior guards Aretha Riggins and Adrian Hillsman and the aggressiveness of junior center Sheri Reddicks offset the fine shooting performance of Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots Tuesday night in a key Seminole Athletic Conference contest.

Reddicks pumped in 32 points while Riggins dished out 13 assists and Hillsman made some big plays in the late going as SHS, ranked fifth in the state in Class 3A, remained unbeaten in the SAC with a 67-60 victory before 101 fans at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Seminole improved to 15-2 overall and 6-0 in the conference with every other team in the league having at least three losses. Lake Brantley now stands at 10-6 overall and 3-4 in the SAC.

"Brantley forced us to play their game most of the night," Seminole coach John McNamara said. "But our girls played tough when it came down to the nitty-gritty."

Reddicks, who has scored 97 points in the last three games, also ripped down 14 rebounds Tuesday night. Hillsman finished with eight points, five assists and six steals while Riggins added six points and four steals to her season-high 13 assists. Seniors Chinita Gilchrist (eight points, 11 rebounds) and Liz Long (eight points, three blocks) also had solid performances for the Lady 'Noles.

Rams top Wymore in overtime

LAKE MARY — Senior forward Bernard Mitchell, made three of four free throw attempts in the final 18 seconds of overtime Tuesday night as Lake Mary's Rams posted an 88-86 victory over the Bobcats of Wymore Tech before 131 fans at Lake Mary High.

Lake Mary, which trailed by as many as 14 points in the third quarter, improves its record to 8-7 on the season. Wymore falls to 12-8 on the season.

The Rams were led by Mitchell who scored a game high 29 points. Also in double figures for the Rams was sophomore point guard Mike Merthie with 15, junior forward Jaimon Perry with 14, and junior center Chris Davidson with 13 points. Merthie added five assists and Davidson had four blocked shots.

Wymore was led by junior guard Cory Chandler with 23 points. Others in double figure scoring were Henric Murray with 19, Rodney Paul with 13, Ed Cason with 11, and Hervey Owens added 10. Chandler tied Merthie for game high honors with five assists.

"Bernard (Mitchell) had a bad shooting night but it was one of his better games," said Ram coach Willie Richardson. "He played pretty good defense, he can play better, he rebounded well and got some good stickbacks, he also showed some leadership out there tonight which we have been trying to get from him."

In the overtime period a tip in by Perry put Lake Mary ahead 83-81, before a 3-point shot by Murray put Wymore back on top. Perry hit a five foot baseline jumper after a pass from Carlos Hartsfield to reclaim the lead.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — To say Seminole High has Lake Brantley's number in boys soccer this season is an understatement.

In games against other foes, SHS has a record of 0-7-3. But throw in an earlier 5-3 triumph and Tuesday night's 2-1 victory over the Patriots, and the Tribe's overall season record is 2-7-3.

Seminole, which has put together some strong performances in the second half of the season, looks to knock off another Seminole Athletic Conference foe when it plays at Lake Howell on Thursday.

SHS scored both of its goals in the first half Tuesday night. The opening score came 16:20 into the game when Sean Sundvall scored off an assist from Geordie Davidson. The 'Noles made it 2-0 with eight seconds left in the half when Andy White scored off a corner kick from Jimmi Reynolds.

Lake Brantley would make it 2-1 with 23:53 left to play on James Waczewski's goal, but the 'Noles held on in the last 20 minutes. Seminole took 11 shots on goal compared to nine for Brantley while Seminole goalkeeper Chris Bowlin preserved the victory with six saves.

Seminole's junior variety also had its best performance of the season on Tuesday as it tied the Brantley JV, Oviedo improved to 13-6 overall and hosts Lyman Thursday in a game that will most likely decide second place in the conference.

Waisanen opened the scoring on an assist from DeRose and Rob Mills and Jeff Karson had dual assists on Waisanen's second goal. Chris Scroggins made it 3-0 on Karson's second assist and Al Balaudo then scored off a DeRose assist.

Oviedo made it 5-0, still in the first half, when Mills scored off assists from Waisanen and DeRose.

Lake Mary dominates Howell, 4-0

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary exploded for three goals in the first 21 minutes of play Tuesday night and never looked back as the Rams ripped Lake Howell's Silver Hawks, 4-0, in Seminole Athletic Conference action at Lake Mary High.

The Rams, 16-2 overall, moved closer to their first SAC title as they improved to 8-0-1 in the league.

Darren Forde put the Rams ahead to say eight minutes into the match when he rocketed in a shot from 25 yards out.

Seven minutes later, John Mora outfoxed the Lake Howell offside trap and scored on an assist from Jon Brooks. Lake Howell had pulled its defense up to set up the offside when Brooks passed the ball to Mora who nodded it over the Lake Howell defense, picked it up himself and put in his 29th goal of the season, tying the Lake Mary school record.

Brooks then volleyed in a shot from 25 yards out for a 3-0 Lake Mary lead with 21 minutes gone in the match. Brooks scored another goal early in the second half on an assist from Jim Spicher to make the final 4-0.

"The first half may be the best soccer we've played all year," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said. "We moved the ball half and went on to rout Orlando Edgewater, 4-0, in nonconference play Tuesday at Lyman High.

CASSELBERRY — Tara Jackson and Heather Gleason led an inspired Lake Mary team to a 60-58 upset of Lake Howell in a Seminole Athletic Conference thriller Tuesday night before 301 fans at Lake Howell High School.

The Lady Rams improved to 12-8 with their fifth consecutive win and tied for second in the SAC with a 4-3 mark. The Lady Silver Hawks dropped to 12-9 overall and 3-4 in the conference.

"We came out determined to do what it takes to win in the fourth quarter," Lake Mary coach Anna Van Landingham said.

Jackson led the Lady Rams with a game-high 20 points and added 11 rebounds. Gleason contributed 10 points, eight in the fourth quarter to trigger the Lake Mary comeback. Anita Mitchell and Lisa Johnson aided in the performance with nine points each.

Lake Mary came out strong in the first quarter and built a quick lead by going to its inside game. The Lady Rams couldn't capitalize from the free throw line, hitting 1-7 in the frame but managed to put together a pair of runs to take a 15-10 lead after the opening eight minutes.

Blackwood's steal secures UCF victory

By TONY DEBORMIER

ORLANDO — Just call him Hondo.

Bob Blackwood's steal in the final seconds on Tuesday night to help clinch the University of Central Florida's 73-71 win over the Baptist College Buccaneers was reminiscent of John "Hondo" Havlicek's steal against the Los Angeles Lakers in the finals of the 1965 NBA playoffs.

With about 12 seconds left, Blackwood left the man he was guarding and stepped in front of a pass by Baptist's Mike Acuff. He got the ball to teammate Vernon Pinkney, who was fouled a few seconds later.

Pinkney missed the front end of the one-and-one opportunity giving the Buccaneers one last shot to win, but Brad Dobbels' three-point attempt at the buzzer hit the front of the rim and bounced away.

"I saw my man slide up," explained Blackwood. "I wanted to protect the basket. He (Acuff) just threw it into my hands. I don't know if he saw me, but the ball just came right to me."

"We watched game films this afternoon of the game they played against Georgia Tech and they scored at least 10 layups on throwing the ball inside. I figured the guy closer to the basket was the greater threat. I'd rather give up a 15-foot jump shot than an layup."

As it turned out, he made the right move. According to UCF coach Phil Carter, who coached at Baptist College for three years (1980-83), the Knights were prepared for the possibility.

"Bob's play was well-executed and well-timed on his part," said UCF coach Phil Carter, whose team won for the third consecutive time to improve its record to 4-12. "It came out of scouting and preparation."

"Everyone we talked to in preparing for this game said that Baptist's real strength was posting up. We knew Bob could cheat away to help out."

Baptist coach Gary Edwards said his team was also prepared for the possibility of someone stepping in to cut off the play, having an option to kick the ball out to the wing man that Blackwood left.

"The guard (Blackwood) helped out from the wing," said Edwards. "We're supposed to try to recognize that and go to the

Lady Hawks tie Rams

CASSELBERRY — There was no time showing on the game clock, but Crissie Snow's goal still counted in the official scoring Tuesday night and it gave Lake Mary a 1-1 tie against Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks.

The Lady Rams, who have already clinched the Seminole Athletic Conference title, now stand at 19-2-2 overall while Lake Mary is 14-6-2. Lake Mary will go for its 20th win Thursday at DeLand in the regular season finale. Lake Howell plays at Seminole on Friday.

Lake Howell took a 1-0 lead in the first half when Dana Boyesen scored on a long throw in from Michelle Harris. The Lady Hawks maintained the 1-0 lead until Snow scored with approximately three minutes remaining on an assist from Michelle Mattingly.

The referee extended the match by three minutes after the scoreboard clock had expired because Lake Howell had no people to chase down the errant balls.

"Lake Howell came out and really took it to us," Lake Mary coach Bill Eissle said.

Lake Brantley then put together a nice rally sparked by Brandenburg and Tara Gibson. Brandenburg tied the score at 33-33 with a 15 foot jumper, then fed Billmyer for a short jumper that gave the Patriots a 35-33 lead. Gibson then came up with a steal and a layup as Brantley built a 37-33 lead with 3:33 left in the third quarter.

Santa Fe smokes Lady Raiders, 78-42

SANFORD — Santa Fe put four players in double figures and limited the Lady Raiders of Seminole Community College to only 18 field goals en route to a 78-42 thumping in women's basketball action Tuesday night at SCC.

The Lady Raiders could do no right on the error-prone evening as the much quicker Santa Fe team jumped out to an early 46-23 halftime lead. Leading the way for Santa Fe was point guard Astrid Soulette who pumped in a game-high 23 points. Soulette also recorded 12 assists on the night pacing the offense to the blistering start.

Beth Buchanan (19 points), Jenny Mingo (14), and Pam Cox (13) were the other players in double digits for Santa Fe.

Lady Raider guard Kathy Cleveland poured in a team high 19 points for SCC, 15 of which were in the first half, however the Lady Raiders were not ready for the explosive offensive attack by the more aggressive Santa Fe squad.

The game was never close with the visiting team holding the Lady Raiders to only 19 second-half points. Cox and Chrissi Terest dominated the boards for Santa Fe with 10 and eight, respectively, while Cox clogged up the middle for 10 first half points.

Santa Fe started out quick as Buchanan started off the half shooting five for five from the field, giving Santa Fe a 13-6 lead with 14:41 left in the first half. Cox jumped into the scoring pot with two buckets in a row and Soulette ran the court like a general in the heat of battle — calm and collective.

The game was put out of reach early when Santa Fe, leading 17-10, went on a 29-13 run to end the first half.

City woman's a little bit country

By JANE HALE
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — A country girl who's moved to the city, our Cook of the Week still likes to think of herself as a country cook.

Annabelle Hamill of Orlando was born in Louisville, Miss.

"The town of Louisville is just about in the middle of the state of Mississippi and is not very far from the Tombigbee National Forest, and the Choctaw Indian Reservation," Hamill said. "It was a nice quiet little town where everyone knew everyone and it was a pleasure to live in."

Her father, Talmon Eubanks, was from Highpoint, Miss., and worked as a farmer and a lumberman. "He was a very hard working man who worked from sunup to sundown," she said.

Her mother, Mary Beulah Bell Eubanks, was also from Highpoint, Miss. "She was a housewife who was just content staying at home taking care of her husband and her family."

Hamill has one older sister and two older brothers. "Being the youngest child, I usually got my own way and I was spoiled by my older brothers," she said.

Her sister lives in Pensacola. One brother lives in Memphis and the other still lives in Louisville.

Hamill attended the local schools in Louisville and graduated from Panhandle High School.

"Childhood was a great time in my life," Hamill said. "I grew up in a very warm loving family."

She gives credit to her mother for teaching her how to cook. "She taught me when I was very young," she said. "My mother was the very best cook I knew. She made everything from scratch and it would just melt in your mouth."

"Since daddy was a farmer we had plenty of fresh vegetables," she said. "When the vegetables came into season we spent a lot of time in the kitchen canning, so we could have plenty of fresh vegetables during the winter."

The first dish Hamill learned to cook was cornbread and fresh green beans. "Mama made sure I did everything right or she would make me do them over," Hamill said.

Fried chicken was another favorite of Hamill. Being from the South, she quickly developed an expertise in Southern dishes.

She met her husband, George, through his mother.

"She was working at the same place I was and she introduced us," Hamill said. "We've been married 40 wonderful years."

George is self-employed and works on heavy equipment.

The Hamills have two children. Their daughter, Judy, is married and lives with her husband in Winter Springs. Son Steve lives in Sanford and is also married.

They also are blessed with three beautiful grandchildren. Michelle, 18, lives with her grandparents. Grandson Joshua is 9 and granddaughter Heather is 2.

"They are great kids and I love them very much," Hamill said.

The Hamills moved to Florida in 1956 and in 1957 moved into the house that they live in now. "That's 32 years in the same old place and it's really home," Hamill said.

She herself works as a secretary/cashier for the Independent Life and Accident Insurance Company in Fern Park.

"I have been there nine years and have enjoyed every minute of it," she said. "Before I went to work at the insurance company I worked for the Top Value Stamp Company and before that I was a housewife and a mother."

Hamill's only hobby, she said, is bowling. "I bowl twice a week. One night is on a ladies' league, and one night is on a mixed team with my husband."

Hamill said her philosophy on life is "Be considerate and friendly with everyone you come in contact with."

Some of her recipes that her family likes best follow:

NEW NEIGHBORS

Colandreo, family make the move

By CYNTHIA AUSTIN
Herald correspondent

LONGWOOD — Mike Colandreo and his family—wife, Norma; son, Chip; and mother-in-law, LaVelle Ray—moved recently from the Florida panhandle in Longwood to start up a new life in Central Florida.

Colandreo was brought up in West Palm Beach. His goal, though, has always been to live in Central Florida.

After 17 years of living in the panhandle, he finally made the "big" move. His wife, Norma, was shocked when her husband told her the news. He had quit his job of 17 and had a new job in Orlando.

The family's first two months here were indeed difficult, but all are now settled and content.

"I am amazed we adjusted so well," Norma said.

She is especially pleased with the Seminole County School System. Chip, 10, is currently in a gifted program at Woodlands Elementary.

Schools in the panhandle are rated No. 1 in Florida, Norma said. However, she feels that Seminole County schools are more innovative.

The school system was a major factor in the Colandreo's decision to live in Longwood. Another factor was the house they found; it had a separate "mother-in-law" wing for LaVelle.

LaVelle is quite busy in the community: a member of the Woman's Club of Sanford, a songstress with the club's chorus, a member of Seminole Spokes, and active in her church.

"She is quite a Southern lady," her daughter commented, adding that LaVelle makes worlds of friends wherever she goes.

Help welcome Colandreo and LaVelle to Seminole County.

Paris hotels finding grand cuisine anew

United Press International

PARIS — There was a time, not too long ago, when the grand hotels of Paris were the perfect places to leave when it was time for a memorable meal. Now, guests and locals alike are heading in rather than out for dinner.

Thanks to an increased commitment to food as a source of both revenue and loyalty, restaurants in the finest hotels have actually begun to outshine the small, trendy places that for years attracted nearly all the attention.

In addition, there are distinct advantages to dining in a hotel restaurant known only by those who care enough to ask and experiment. These go far beyond the ability to keep body and soul together without venturing out into the night air.

For starters, hotel restaurants almost never close, are rarely booked weeks in advance and can usually deal far more successfully than independent eateries with strange requests made on the basis of health or unorthodox taste.

In addition, the finances of the situation often work in the diner's favor, contrary to popular belief.

Whereas a free-standing restaurant must pay its own way each day by either constantly raising prices or constantly cutting corners, a hotel restaurant has far greater leeway to purchase only the best and hire only the best people to prepare it.

In a sense, in the grandest hotels, the rooms subsidize the food operation—with the food lover as the beneficiary.

Meatless dishes are healthful

Meatless dishes have become more and more a part of our meal planning. This is because of our need to reduce the amount of red meat in our diets and, I suppose, also budget constraints and emphasis on vegetables and whole grains.

Many families strive for a meatless meal especially during Lent. This year, the Lenten seasons begins on Feb. 8.

Whatever reason you may have for a meatless meal, you'll find these recipes quick, easy, delicious and nutritious.

This meatless casserole features a colorful array of vegetables smothered in a cheese sauce. A fruit and cottage cheese salad and crusty rolls makes for an easy meal.

VEGETABLE MEDLEY CASSEROLE

- 2 large potatoes, peeled and sliced
- 1 cup sliced carrots
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup frozen peas
- 1/2 cup cubed pasteurized process cheese

Combine potatoes, carrots, onion and water in 1 1/2-quart glass casserole dish. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on high for 7-8 minutes or until potatoes are just tender, stirring twice.

Combine milk, flour, salt, mustard and pepper. Add to vegetables along with frozen peas. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring twice. Stir in cheese. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 1 1/2-2 minutes or until cheese is melted.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Here's a colorful, flavorful combination for a meatless meal or light supper:

BUTTER-GLAZED SPAGHETTI AND MUSHROOMS

- 8 ounces spaghetti
- 1/2 cup margarine
- 1 green onion, thinly sliced
- 1 cup (4 ounces) sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1/2 cup snipped fresh parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup chopped pimento or black olives
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- Parmesan cheese

Cook spaghetti as directed on package. Drain and rinse in cold water. Set aside.

Combine butter, onion, and mushrooms in 1-quart glass casserole dish. Microwave on 100 percent power 3 1/2-4 minutes or until onion and mushrooms are tender, stirring once. Stir in parsley, walnuts, pimento, garlic salt and pepper.

Place spaghetti in glass serving dish. Spoon butter mixture onto spaghetti; toss lightly to mix. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Cover with a plate cover or an overturned plate. Microwave 2-4 minutes or until heated through. Makes 4-5 servings.

Americans eat more meat than other people of the world. Maybe that is why as we change our meat-eating habits, we adopt food from other lands. Case in point: Mexican. You'll love these meatless enchiladas.

FAST AND EASY ENCHILADAS

- 8 corn tortillas
- Vegetable oil
- 1 can (16 ounce) refried beans
- 8 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 jar (10 ounces) mild enchilada sauce
- Shredded lettuce
- 2 large tomatoes, diced
- Sour cream

Brush each tortilla lightly with oil; stack on top of one another and place between two moist paper towels. Microwave on 100 percent power for 1-1 1/2 minutes or until warm. In small bowl, mix refried beans with 1/2 of the shredded cheese; add salt and pepper and stir well. Divide mixture into 8 portions of approximately 2 1/2 tablespoons each. Place bean mixture in center of tortilla and fold sides toward center so that they overlap. Place seam side down in a 12-by-8-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Repeat with remaining tortillas. Pour enchilada sauce over tortillas and top with remaining cheese. Cover and microwave on 50 percent power for 6-10 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Let stand one minute. Top with shredded lettuce, tomatoes and dollops of sour cream.

One of my favorite meatless meals is Italian: fettuccini, Alfredo, a crisp green salad, crusty bread, and fresh fruit.

FETTUCCINI

- 8 ounces fettuccini noodles
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 package cream cheese (3 ounces)
- 1/4 cup half & half, or milk
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon onion salt
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese (2 ounces)

Cook noodles as directed on package. Drain and rise in cold water. Set aside. Microwave on 100 percent power the butter and cream cheese in 1 1/2-quart glass serving bowl 20-30 seconds, or until softened. Mix until creamy. Blend in half & half and salts. Mix in cooked noodles. Cover with bowl cover or overturned plate. Microwave on 100 percent power 4-5 minutes, or until heated through; stirring twice. Mix in Parmesan cheese. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 1-2 minutes or until heated.

- 1/2 cup chopped onions
- 1 small jar chopped pimientos
- 1 can Chinese noodles

Mix all the above ingredients together and pour into a greased casserole. Top with crushed potato chips and bake for 30 minutes in a 350°F oven.

They'd disconnect phone solicitations

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest your columns about telephone solicitation, and agree it is sometimes a nuisance. But I am chairman of the fund-raising committee for a local symphony orchestra, and we could never survive without telephone solicitations. We write letters first, but most people ignore letters, so we resort to telephoning—and we do not give up until we have made five telephone calls.

I do not like to call people, and I can understand their irritation if they are interrupted in lovemaking or some other pleasurable activity. However, lovemaking can be resumed later—a dead symphony orchestra is not easily revived, so I continue to call.

Abby, any advice that can free me from having to call people to beg for money is welcome.

don't want to be disturbed."

Abby, that response was the most uninformed response I have ever read in my adult life. Maybe it's time you considered stepping down to let a more rational, knowledgeable person give advice to the public.

Dr. George Gallup Sr. years ago reported that the most genuine responses are recorded in an anonymous telephone interview.

National companies need to know what consumers really think. Their survival depends on quality information. Our client list of manufacturers, retailers, banks and dentists are most interested in gathering information so they can better fulfill consumer needs. To say that market researchers should find a better way to gather information reflects your total ignorance of what telephone research really does.

I, too, grew up in Iowa, and it is obvious that you have lots of the common-sense perspective associated with Midwesterners.

By the way, we get many more positive comments than negative ones from people our company has interviewed. It is with much sadness that I read your poorly thought-out column.

PROFESSIONAL RESEARCHER,
CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR RESEARCHER: Sorry, I stand by my original opinion: Telephoning the general public either to sell something or to gather information for whatever purpose is an invasion of their privacy and should be abolished. Furthermore, my mail is running 100-to-1 in favor of my view. So, sue me.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

DEAR DR. LOFGREN: Believe me to understand your problem, but I still maintain that the telephone is in the home for the convenience of the person who pays for it.

Read on, please:

DEAR ABBY: The problems created by aggressive telephone solicitation can be more than merely disturbing.

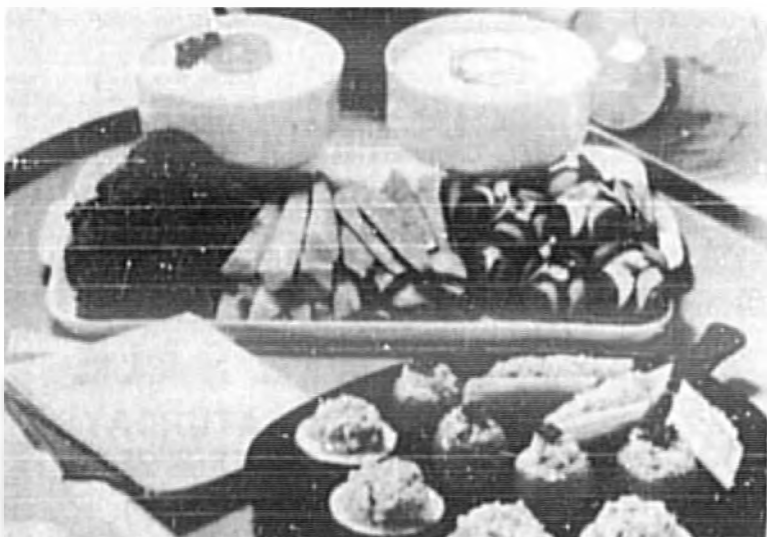

Not long ago, my wife, who is undergoing chemotherapy treatments for cancer, received a phone call from a local cemetery, telling her that she had "won" a cemetery lot worth $500!

She replied, "Thank you, but I am not ready to die yet!" She was visibly upset and wondered aloud if perhaps the American Cancer Society might have given them her name. Of course they had not, but it is apparent that some controls over telephoning people to solicit business are desperately needed.

ANGRY IN MANSFIELD, OHIO

DEAR ANGRY: My stand on telephone solicitation for any reason, which includes consumer researchers who want only to ask busy homemakers what kind of soap or cleanser they use, met with some angry responses from professional researchers. For example:

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Market researchers should find another way to gather information. Some people sleep at odd hours; others may be ill and Vegetables mixed with cottage cheese or cream cheese make special dips and spreads for an assorted fresh vegetable platter.

Vegetables, dips are life of parties

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Raw vegetables in season make perfect party appetizers, no matter how informal or elegant the gathering. Cut the cost of serving a crowd by selecting vegetables that are in season. These crudites in nature's mix of colors dress up a party table and also are nutritious and low in calories. Here is a spread and a dip to accompany your fresh vegetable tray.

SPRING VEGETABLE SPREAD

- 1/2 bunch fresh broccoli
- 2 medium carrots, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 2 scallions, including green tops
- 1/2 cup cottage cheese
- 2 teaspoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Raw vegetables: cherry tomatoes, celery pieces, mushroom caps, zucchini or cucumber slices, etc.
- Parsley
- Cut florets (tops) from broccoli reserve to use with vegetable dips. Cut broccoli stems into 1-inch pieces. In container of electric blender or food processor, combine broccoli stems, carrots, scallions, cottage cheese, lemon juice and salt

Blend or process until finely chopped. Use as filling for cherry tomatoes, celery pieces or mushroom caps, or spread on zucchini or cucumber slices. Garnish with fresh parsley, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 1 1/2 cups spread.

FRESH TOMATO DIP

- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened at room temperature
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 large tomato, cut in quarters
- 1 small onion, quartered
- 2 cloves garlic
- 1 large rib celery
- 2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Few drops hot pepper sauce
- Assorted fresh vegetables: carrot strips, celery strips, zucchini rounds, broccoli florets, cherry tomatoes, snow peas and radishes
- In container of electric blender, combine cream cheese, mayonnaise, tomato, onion, garlic, celery, lemon juice, salt and hot pepper sauce. Process until smooth. Cover. Chill. Serve with assorted fresh vegetables cut into mouth-sized pieces. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 2 cups dip.

Dueling pianos

Actually, Melvin Stecher (left) and Norman Horowitz are complementing one another's playing in their concert Sunday afternoon in the Lake Mary High School auditorium. Despite a consistent drizzle and the fact that it was Super Bowl Sunday, about 250 showed up to hear the classical duo-piano team and brought them back for an encore, said Shirley Milas, president of the sponsoring Seminole Community Concert Association.

Intestinal disorders share symptoms only

DEAR DR. GOTT: My sister was diagnosed with a spastic colon and lactase deficiency. She alternates between diarrhea and "rabbit pellets," has cramping with every movement, is lethargic and has lost 40 pounds in two years. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER: Spastic colon is an extremely common intestinal disorder characterized by bowel irregularities, frequent diarrhea, bouts of abdominal distress and excessive gas. The condition is also called irritable bowel syndrome. No physical cause is found for this ailment, which appears to be related to stress that causes the intestine to empty too quickly. Bulk-producing agents, such as Metamucil, and anti-diarrheal drugs are often helpful in controlling the symptoms of irritable bowel.

On the other hand, lactase deficiency is a purely physical disorder. As they age, some adults develop a deficiency in lactase, an intestinal enzyme necessary for the digestion of milk sugar (lactose).

Because the symptoms of irritable bowel and lactase deficiency are so similar, many experts would not give your sister two diagnoses when one (lactase deficiency) would do. I think that she should be examined by a gastroenterologist (an intestinal specialist), to determine which of the conditions is present. Since treatment is available for both ailments, a proper diagnosis would be important to control her symptoms and enable her to maintain an appropriate body weight.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been told I have lumbar spinal stenosis. Is this the same as arthritis?

DEAR READER: Spinal stenosis (literally, narrowing of the spinal cord) is an uncommon condition marked by intermittent, sharp pains in the buttocks or thighs. It is caused by pressure on the nerves that exit from the spinal cord. Ordinarily, the cord lies within (and is protected by) the doughnut-shaped spinal bones. Arthritis and other bone disorders, such as Paget's disease, can produce bony outgrowths that extend into the spinal canal to press on nerves or (rarely) the spinal cord itself.

Treatment includes special exercises to improve posture and, in severe cases, decompression laminectomy. Osteoarthritis, the age-related wearing down of joints, does not usually cause spinal stenosis.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

Rather, this common condition is more often associated with an alteration of the exterior shape of the spinal bones, leading to back stiffness and pain.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

"Darn!" exclaimed South. "I knew I should have bid a slam." So he won the ace of spades, played a heart to dummy's ace and ruffed a heart. Then he played the club ace and ruffed a club. Next he ruffed another heart with the seven of diamonds. Surprise! West overruffed with the nine of diamonds and returned a diamond. Now the 12 tricks that South thought were in the bag dwindled to 10.

Declarer's responsibility is to ensure making his contract if possible. Here unlucky distribution could always have wrecked his chances. What if the second heart was overruffed, or even the second club when that suit was first ruffed in dummy? But once declarer scored one ruff with a low trump in his hand and another with a low trump in dummy, he had no excuse for going set. All of dummy's remaining hearts can be ruffed with the A-K-J of diamonds, and declarer's third and fourth clubs with dummy's Q-10 of diamonds. Then the last club can be ruffed with dummy's diamond eight. Of course the defenders will eventually come in with their trump nine, but declarer will still have 11 tricks and his contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
January 26, 1989

You may place greater emphasis in the year ahead on acquiring knowledge pertaining to self-improvement. Worthwhile outlets will be found to utilize what you learn.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) At the last minute today, you might make a switch in your plans that could be less effective for you than your original ideas. Be emphatic, not impulsive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you've been depending upon to be of assistance to you in a current involvement might suddenly withdraw the offer owing to circumstances over which this person has no control.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Where your career is concerned today it's best not to use an intermediary to relay information for you to others, especially if what you have to say is important.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are having work or service performed for you today, be very explicit regarding what you want done. Don't give the assignee too much liberty to alter your instructions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a possibility that everything might not go as smoothly as anticipated today. Be prepared for the unexpected and ready to move with shifting circumstances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you are presently involved with will lose respect for you if you renege on your promises or commitments. Don't agree to anything to which you know you can't comply.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though an associate may do something you dislike today, don't take it upon yourself to embarrass this person through criticism in front of others. Have your say in private.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Outside pressures and the urgency to get things done quickly might lead you to take some chances in a business situation that you normally wouldn't. Be careful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to be successful and effective today, you must be consistent. If you worked out a good game plan, don't deviate from it when you meet a little resistance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When it comes to keeping secrets today, it might not be your strong suit. It's not that you'll be a gossip. It's just that you could be too loose with your words.

BAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before accepting a business suggestion offered by a friend today, quiz this person thoroughly to be sure that it is feasible from personal experiences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your possibilities for fulfilling your material objectives look encouraging today. However, there is a chance you might do something which does not serve your best interests and will lessen your gains.

'Bride' says goodbye to by-the-book weddings

By UPI

In their "Bride's Book of Etiquette" for 1989, the editors of Bride's magazine have come up with a multiple-choice guidebook rather than a set of rules.

"We used to say, 'You must do this.' Now we say, 'You could do this, or you could do that, or if you want to, perhaps you could also think about this,'" said Barbara Tober, editor in chief of Bride's. "People aren't just doing things by the book any more."

The guide has sold 500,000 copies since it was first published in 1948 and this is the sixth edition (Perigee, 240 pp., $8.95, available Feb. 1). It was last updated in 1984.

The editors hadn't planned to revise it so soon, but the last five years have brought a rapid evolution in the wedding ceremony. Modern brides and grooms are not scrapping traditions like in the 1960s, but they are not submitting to any rigid formulas either, Tober said. Instead, they are adapting all the traditional elements — the dress, flowers, invitations, rehearsal dinners, vows, music, cake and so on — to reflect their own tastes or interests.

If they are square dancers, the wedding may have a country theme with a barbecue reception. If they're cyclists, there may be a miniature bicycle instead of a little plastic bride and groom on top of the cake.

"There are ethnic weddings, renaissance weddings, medieval weddings, Victorian weddings, day in the country weddings. The emphasis is personalization, personal choice," Tober said.

"We're not through with icky white cakes because there are still people who make them and people who make gorgeous ones. But you can have carrot cake, chocolate cake, fruit cake, which is classic. You can have genoise filled with apricots. You can have a five-layer cake with something different for every layer." One of other biggest changes is the trend toward long weekend weddings that also serve as a big family reunion, she said. "They have a rehearsal dinner Friday night, the wedding Saturday, a pool party or brunch Sunday."

It can be held at a posh resort, a family campground or at home. It may include a reaffirmation ceremony or anniversary party for the parents or grandparents. Instead of leaving for their honeymoon immediately, the couple spends the weekend with the clan.

This type of wedding is most popular with brides over 25, Tober said.

"This is the opportunity of a lifetime to see all your relatives in one place. They may not value it as much if they are 18. But if they're 25 or so, in their early 30s or older, they suddenly turn around and maybe Grandma is very, very old."

Progressive weddings also have become common, Tober said. The bride and groom have a small ceremony in the city where they live then travel to receptions in each hometown.

That reflects the fact that couples are marrying later in life. The average bride today is 23 and the average groom is about 26. "You don't marry the boy next door any more. You're older and you met him while skilling in Colorado, away at school or at your job," Tober said.

The guide has been expanded to include regional and ethnic customs. Sections on addressing invitations and organizing the receiving line now give examples for a wide range of family structures.

"We have how to address an invitation to guests that are separated but not divorced. There are eight different ways to word the invitation when the parents are divorced, separated, living apart, for parties living together," Tober said.

An entire chapter discusses second weddings, noting that in 37 percent of weddings today, either the bride or the groom has been married before.

Though lifestyles have changed, the basic rules of wedding etiquette have not. Kindness and common sense are still the key, she said.

Other changes in the 1989 edition:
—AIDS testing requirements have been added to the state-by-state list of marriage laws.

—The tipping chart, which previously listed flat percentages, now lists a range of percentages and urges that the amount be based on the quality of service. "What we did was give it more attitude. We're talking about merit here," Tober said.

—The wedding photo section now includes videotaping guidelines.

—Black is no longer taboo. Bridesmaids at evening weddings, mostly in urban areas, are turning up in black and white dresses, or black with a color, though not solid black.

—RSVP cards have gained grudging acceptance.

Custom-made gowns fit tastes

By UPI

NEW YORK — A small but growing number of American brides are getting married in custom-made wedding dresses that satisfy their most personal tastes, at a cost that is competitive with ready-to-wear gowns.

Industry sources estimate that about 8 percent of brides in 1989 will be wearing custom-designed and custom-made dresses, and that figure could increase to 10 percent the following year.

Some of these dresses will be ordered from top designers such as Oscar de la Renta, Carolina Herrera and Arnold Scaasi, but most will come from nameless dressmakers whose names are circulated by word of mouth.

"The little old ladies in New Jersey don't advertise, but the customers know who they are," said Amsale Abera, a New York designer of custom bridals. "My work has been featured in leading fashion and bridal magazines, but most of my business comes from word of mouth, too."

Abera, who came to America from her native Ethiopia in 1973, studied at the Fashion Institute of Technology and served her apprenticeship with a women's apparel manufacturer before going into business for herself in 1986.

She is credited with bringing the custom-made dress to the mainstream at prices that are affordable. Her heirloom quality dresses begin at $1,300 and can go up to $3,000 or more, about the same or even less than comparable "better" dresses from the bridal departments of leading department stores.

"There is no middle man, no mark up," she pointed out in an interview at her showroom near Manhattan's garment district. "I can offer more value."

"The savings can go into the very best fabrics, which is all I work with. Fabrics in ready-made dresses tend to be cheaper looking. Most of the expense of a custom made gown goes into design, fitting and handsewing and trimming anyway. My staff is made up of European-trained craftsmen."

Many people who come to her showroom already have been searching for a wedding gown and have been frustrated—they either can't find what they want or, in the case of older brides, are annoyed at the limited selection.

"The ones who come to me are not so interested in avant-garde or high fashion but in simplicity and quality," she said. "When you go into a store and ask for something simple, they think you mean something cheap or dowdy.

"Most clients just want to look different, not the princess look that is so prevalent in retail design. They've seen a lot of dresses that look alike and they don't want to have to settle for them. Sometimes they want a dress designed around antique embroidery or lace.

"They want to have what they want, not to feel a waist is too low or a sleeve too puffy. In custom design, you avoid all that because you can adjust and change as you go along. I see customers one at a time. We take an hour or more to come up with a design. There are three fittings."

The process begins with a muslin pattern, made from body measurements taken at the first fitting, which shows the line of the dress. The dress is then cut in the actual fabric and basted together for the second fitting, during which most adjustments can be made. The third fitting is for the final touches.

"In discussing a design with a client, we decide on the bodice and neckline first, then the sleeve and whether the skirt is to be short, long, full narrow, train or no train," said Abera. "I find the scalloped neckline is the most popular."

"Color is next, usually white or ivory which is a good compromise for brides who don't look good or feel comfortable in white. I personally have never liked using color, such as lilac and pink, but it can be used nicely for bridesmaid dresses."

Abera works mostly with silks—taffeta, satin, organza or raw silk, which is becoming more popular because of its slubby texture and full body. She also uses French machine-made laces and ribbon laces, and sequin or pearl beading applied by hand.

"Even people who hate beads see what delicate beading can do for a dress and decide they like it," she said. "We build the beading up as we go according to the customer's desire."

Abera also designs coordinating headpieces, often dressing up a simple dress with elaborate veiling. She also will design dresses for bridesmaids and for the mother of the bride.

What about the bride on her second time around? No white dresses and no trains, she said.

"Usually she does not want to look like a first-time bride and can't find anything in stores except ordinary evening dresses. So it is a distinct advantage to second-timers to have their dresses custom-made, possibly something they can wear again after the wedding."

Take care to keep the ritz in that engaging ring

By UPI

That engagement ring on your hand—be it a diamond, a ruby, a sapphire or an opal—is going to dazzle friends and family alike for awhile but without proper care it's going to get a little worn.

William Underwood of the American Gem Society, a non-profit organization of 3,200 retail jewelers nationwide, recommends the following cleaning tips to keep your precious stones and pearls looking like new:

—The best way to have your gems and jewelry is to take them in for a professional cleaning, or you can purchase a commercial cleaning solution from your jeweler. Another cleaning process you can do at home is:

1 tablespoon liquid detergent (Mr. Clean or equivalent)

1 tablespoon of pharmaceutical ammonia (sometimes called stronger ammonia water, available from your pharmacist)

1/2 cup warm water
Dip the jewelry in this solution and let it soak for five minutes. Then gently brush clean with a very soft toothbrush.

Be sure and use pharmaceutical ammonia. Household ammonia will leave a film.

After cleaning, jewelry should be dried on a lint-free towel.

This household solution should not be used on porous gemstones that might lose their color: lapis lazuli, coral, turquoise, opals and pearls. This solution is for harder, more durable gemstones.

—Diamonds are hard, not tough. Store your diamonds separately to keep them from scratching softer gemstones. Diamonds also can scratch other diamonds; they also can chip or break if knocked against a hard object. Avoid wearing your diamonds when doing housework, playing rough sports or working with tools.

—Use caution with ultrasonic cleaners. Commercial ultrasonic cleaners for home use can do a good job of cleaning but are not recommended for all types of gems, Underwood cautioned. Consult your jeweler for a list of gems and jewelry that can be safely cleaned with an ultrasonic device. If you use an ultrasonic cleaner, have your jeweler check the stone's settings every six months to ensure against loosening.

Avoid using bleach to clean any type of jewelry. Bleach, chlorine and other chemicals—such as those found in hairspray and perfumes—can damage gemstones and fine jewelry.

—Clean diamonds often to renew their sparkle. Diamonds attract grease and can cloud over after a few days' wear. Clean them with a solution or an ultrasound device to keep them glittering.

—Pearls are best cleaned professionally. Due to their organic nature, pearls are more fragile than many other minerals.

If you must clean them at home, Underwood suggests the following method:

1 tablespoon of very mild liquid detergent per cup of warm water.

Lay the pearls out flat on a clean, soft towel. Using a very soft toothbrush, dip the brush in the solution and gently scrub the pearls. Towel dry to absorb moisture.

You also can keep the soft gleam on your pearls by wiping them with a soft chamois cloth after each wearing. This removes natural oils and acids deposited by the skin.

Pearl necklaces should be restrung about once a year, depending on frequency of wear.

—Wear your opals often, it's a beauty treatment for them. Underwood said. Like pearls, opals are fragile. They tend to pick up moisture from your skin so simply wearing them can keep them glowing.

—Use a good, non-abrasive silver polish for sterling silver jewelry.

—Toothpaste can brighten your karat gold jewelry. Using a soft bristle brush, gently scrub your karat gold jewelry as you would when brushing your teeth. Follow the brushing by dipping the gold in the same cleaning solution you use for pearls. The toothpaste will leave a film on the gemstones mounted in the piece and therefore must be cleaned off with the solution.

—Use a plush-lined box for storing jewelry at home, with a different compartment for each piece of jewelry. Ideally, each piece should be stored separately in a small plastic bag. Do not overstuff by storing more than one piece of jewelry in each compartment; you risk scratching the softer gemstones.

Some engagement showers go co-ed

By UPI

Wedding showers used to be sedate little affairs where the bride and a few friends gathered in a bridesmaid's living room on a Sunday afternoon, sipped punch, munched cookies and oohed and aahed over the toasters, homemade potholders and paper towel holders bestowed on the guest of honor.

But that Norman Rockwell-like image of a blushing young bride sitting on a sofa surrounded by a group of giggling girlfriends at a low-key party has been replaced by the high-powered, extravagant wedding shower of the late 1980s.

Many of today's showers are fancy, catered soirees, complete with ice sculptures, lush flower arrangements and upscale food. Some are even staged in hotel banquet rooms or ballrooms.

Don't even dare call these social functions "bridal" showers. The new and socially correct term is "engagement" showers, a moniker designed to recognize the recent trend of including the groom in pre-wedding activities, said Bill Heaton, president of Bridal Expos Inc.

That, of course, means showers are no longer the cozy domain of the bride, her attendants, female friends and relatives, mother and future mother-in-law. Men are now being invited to crash the previously feminine festivities.

"We are seeing a sociology change here," said Heaton, whose Long Island company produces bridal shows in 27 cities across the country.

"The groom has become more involved. You are dealing with two-career couples today. Both are involved in the wedding planning and all the details related to the wedding, so why shouldn't he be involved more in the shower?"

"I don't know why he was left out" in the first place, said Elizabeth Post, author of "Emily Post on Weddings." "Men are much more involved in their weddings than they used to be, the planning and paying for it, and I think they should be involved in a shower, too."

Homemade cookies, bakery cakes decorated with sugary-sweet icing flowers and fruity punches fizzed up with ginger ale are out at today's sophisticated engagement showers.

Instead, the menu is often the province of a caterer and the edibles can range from fancy cocktail finger food to an elaborate full-course meal.

"They get quite elaborate," said Gregory Burke, co-owner of Food Fantasies, a Bryn Mawr, Pa., catering company that serves Philadelphia's posh Main Line.

"Sometimes they do a brunch with spinach salad and smoked salmon," he said. "A lot of people now are doing heavy hors d'oeuvre parties, all butler style rather than doing a buffet."

Even the hors d'oeuvres have become upscale. Cocktail meatballs and crab balls have been cast aside in favor of more elegant selections such as crab and bric in phyllo, miniature designer pizzas and cucumbers stuffed with smoked salmon, Burke said.

"It's getting much closer to a wedding reception, actually," said Nina Corso, owner of Epicurean Excellence, a catering company serving the South Jersey Shore.

"The engagement shower certainly does not yet rival the wedding itself, but it's catching up," agreed Heaton. "It's starting to become an important social function."

Although showers are still held in homes, more and more couples are moving their engage-

Be choosy in choosing gown

By UPI

Like any project, choosing the right wedding gown requires a little bit of research, a few ground rules and lots of patience.

"Selecting a wedding gown and ensemble is a special event in a woman's life," said Amsale Abera, a New York designer of custom bridal wear. "And taking the time to look around, research and ask questions is important to ensure the best quality, value and the most flattering style."

Abera suggested the following for brides-to-be searching for the perfect gown:

1. Look through bridal magazines. They will give you a sense of what you like and what is available, as well as an overview of the generally appropriate attire for your type of wedding.

2. Set a budget for yourself. Be sure to include the price of the gown as well as the headpiece and charges for fittings and alterations.

3. Check the construction of the gown, the finishing and details, such as beading and trim. Does the finishing have a clean, well-done appearance? Are the beads sewed or glued on?

4. Check the fabric—is it all natural, a blend or man-made? Usually the more natural the fiber content, the more expensive the gown.

5. Consider some of the following basic guidelines to match a gown to your figure. If you are short, consider a natural waistline, high neckline and chapel train. Avoid a very full skirt. If you are heavy, look to a princess line style, simple lines and lace with a small, delicate pattern. Avoid heavy beading, puff sleeves and stiff fabrics. Tall women may consider a full skirt, cathedral train and dropped waist.

6. Remember less is often more. Your gown should flatter, not compete with you. Consider simple lines and understated ornamentation.

7. Plan for the reception as well as the ceremony when choosing your headpiece and train. Your comfort and ability to move is important.

Love's still the biggest matchmaking factor

By UPI

The 1980s have been singled out as a decade dedicated to life, liberty and the pursuit of status, but when it comes to marriage, traditional values are what count, a survey says.

A survey by the market research firm R.H. Bruskin and Associates, conducted for Korbel Champagne, reported that 19 percent of men and 9 percent of women cited "loneliness" as a motivation for marriage.

"Our latest survey reveals that American men are tired of being single," said Marie Rama, director of weddings and entertaining for Korbel. "They are actively seeking companionship, and statistically, they are twice as lonely as women."

Respondents were asked to consider 29 different emotional, financial and psychological reasons that might weigh on their decision to wed. Reasons ranged from money, status and sexual compatibility to parental pressures and good looks.

Overwhelmingly, the No. 1 motivation to marry—cited by 92 percent of men and women, single and divorced, and by residents of every region in the nation—was simple, old-fashioned love.

"Contrary to what is often portrayed on television dramas, almost three-quarters of the population, 73.4 percent, thought that 'money' was not an important motivation to marry," said Rama.

"We also discovered that other factors people may have assumed significant, such as 'parental pressure' and 'all my friends are getting married' were among the least important of the 29 variables listed. And apparently, almost none of the respondents would consider marrying for 'business/professional reasons.'"

The survey results, in order of importance:

1. Love. With a 92 percent overall response, it was the overwhelming reason men and women cited for marriage.

2. Companionship. More men (80 percent) than women (74 percent) cited this as a motivation but overall, 77 percent of respondents agreed that companionship was important.

3. "I wanted to share my life with someone." Overall, this reason garnered a 73 percent response but regionally, more Southerners (76 percent) said this was a prime consideration.

4. Common values. This was cited as important by both men (62 percent) and women (68 percent) in all regions of the country and to all ages and income brackets.

5. Wanted a family. Slightly less than half (48 percent) of all respondents said "wanting a family" was their prime motivation. Interestingly, more men than women cited this, 50 percent vs. 46 percent.

6. Sexual compatibility. This reason earned a 47 percent response overall with more men than women citing its importance, 54 percent vs. 41 percent. However, half of all respondents from the West, 50 percent, cited this factor as a major marriage motivation.

7. Security. Cited as equally important by men and women, 36 percent and 37 percent respectively, and predictably, cited as less important by individuals earning $40,000 or more a year.

8. "Because he/she was the most romantic person I ever met." Overall, 34 percent cited romance as a factor. However, more men (40 percent) cited it as important, compared to 29 percent of women.

9. "Because it was time to settle down." Overall, 29 percent cited this as a motivation and again, more men than women considered it a prime reason, 36 percent vs. 23 percent.

10. Good looks. Cited by 24 percent overall as important, but in an interesting twist, it was cited as most important by men and women 65 years and older.

Showers

ment showers out of the living room and into a fancier setting.

Along with the glitzy room and gourmet fare come larger guest lists and more expensive gifts. Salad spinners are out. Cuisinarts are in.

"Ten years ago, a traditional shower gift was a toaster or a blender," said Heaton. "Today, it might be four place settings of china or a place setting of crystal valued at over $100."

"If you go back into the '60s, many of us remember all those fondue sets, bun warmers, et cetera. We are at a whole different level of gift giving today. The quality is much more substantial."

But not everyone is happy about the grand scale of today's wedding showers.

"It just seems that showers used to be best friends, maybe a few relatives—nice, quiet little affairs," Post said. "Now it's become almost a second wedding reception. Often the entire guest list is invited. I think it's wrong."

Post said showers should be restricted to close friends and relatives "who would like to give an extra present, but less than a wedding present," instead of imposing the burden of two major gifts on acquaintances.

Post said she was puzzled about the trend towards lavish showers. Corso suggested the trend has less to do with the obvious theory that power showers are just another manifestation of the "yuppie" materialistic mentality and more to do with convenience.

"It has more to do with people having less time to prepare for this thing in their home," said Corso. "They would just rather have somebody else organize it for them. It's not just the day of the shower that you have to set aside. You have to set aside days ahead to prepare for it."

"People just don't have time for that any more."

Wedding attendants do more than stand

By UPI

So you've been asked to be a bridesmaid or an usher for your friend's wedding. You're honored but you're also a little unsure. Aside from showing up at the church in the proper attire, what else are you supposed to do?

Pay attention to what's going on around you, says Letta Baldrige in an article in Bride's magazine. Look for occasions where a small, thoughtful gesture will make a big difference to someone else.

Baldrige, who worked as White House social secretary for Jacqueline Kennedy, had a few suggestions for wedding attendants who want to help the bride and groom make their special day truly special:

—Put yourself in your friend's shoes. What would mean the most to him or her at this exciting but hectic time? It might be something as simple as offering to walk the dog a couple days a week, run a few errands or volunteering to help with a few wedding details.

Remember, many brides- and grooms-to-be may be uncomfortable asking for help, even when they need it most, so don't be afraid to offer assistance.

—Extend your generosity to out-of-town visitors. Today's weddings often bring together family and friends for as many as three or four days, and the bride and groom don't have the time to make sure that everyone feels at home. As understanding attendant can make all the difference.

Offer to help with out-of-towners who may need transportation or other kinds of assistance. If you know the best recreation areas, movie theaters and hairdressers in town and are willing to spend a few hours with out-of-town guests, you can be an invaluable asset.

—Record the wedding day in a special way. If you're good with a camera or videocamera, this can be easy: the bride and groom can't be everywhere at once, so go after shots that the professionals might miss. Or, if you're artistically inclined, write a poem or song in their honor or make a sketch of the couple.

—Spend a moment at the reception with guests who might feel left out.

Talk to the groom's great-grandfather when the music has lured everyone else to the dance floor. Remember that a youngster may be feeling abandoned as she watches her older brother or sister be the center of attention. Find her a dance partner, cheer her up and help her remember this is a day to celebrate.

—Plan a surprise for the couple when they get home. Offer to water their plants while they're gone, then fill the house with fresh flowers, and stock the refrigerator with champagne, fresh fruit or chocolate in time for their return.

Such thoughtful gestures and creativity go a step beyond what's expected and are truly gifts from the heart.

Groom should dress to suit occasion

By UPI

To many people, "cut-away coat" sounds like a prop Sid Caesar might have used on his TV show 25 years ago. "Ascot tie" sounds like something Louis Nye might have used to keep Sid down.

Many men view the word "tuxedo" in the same vein—and with a lot of fear and trepidation thrown in, especially if they're unsure of what kind of formal wear is appropriate for their wedding day.

The International Formalwear Association, an industry trade group, has a few suggestions on proper wedding attire for men, depending on the time of day and type of ceremony.

One of the most popular kinds of weddings is the contemporary, semi-formal daytime affair. For this, the groom should wear a tuxedo or tailcoat. Dark shades are called for in fall and winter, but pastel shades are fine for spring and summer. A white shirt, pleated or flat, and patent leather shoes complete the outfit.

A traditional, very formal wedding—usually held in the evening—calls for a black, full-dress tuxedo with tailcoat. The shirt should be pleated and formal, with a bow tie, vest or cummerbund to match. Shoes should be in patent leather.

For traditional, very formal daytime weddings, the groom is advised to wear a cut-away coat, gray striped trousers, gray vest, ascot or striped four-in-hand tie. Shoes should be patent leather. A top hat, spats and gray gloves are optional.

Groomsmen at daytime weddings have a bit more latitude in their dress, the IFA says, and suggests they be dressed similar to the groom but with a "possible variation in tie or vest." The fathers of the bride and groom and a ring bearer should be "dressed identical to the groom and groomsmen."

The IFA offers a pamphlet with suggestions on proper formal dress for weddings. To receive a copy, send $1 and a business-sized (No. 10) stamped, self-addressed envelope to: The International Formalwear Association, 11 East Wacker Dr., Suite 600, Chicago, IL 60601.

Cakes of a different color catching on

By UPI

Traditions are made to be broken in things matrimonial. That goes as much for the design, content and color of the wedding as it does for bridal fashions.

And when it comes to wedding cake, anything goes.

"Sticking with white wedding cakes has changed. For a long time in America, they were all white. Now couples order any kind of cake you can think of," says Felicia Pritchett, award-winning pastry instructor at Johnson & Wales University's culinary arts division in Providence, R.I.

In her travels, and in filling custom orders, Pritchett has encountered chocolate mousse cakes, chocolate cakes with chocolate icing, even a 3-inch-tall cheese-cake with strawberries on top. No frills, no flowers, no plastic bride and groom on top.

"Cakes change, just as fashion dictates wearing a shorter dress or a gown with no sleeves," Pritchett said. "People remember how beautiful the dress was, or how lousy the cake was. Cakes today have become either so elaborate you can't find the bride on the top or so simple there is no bride."

Pritchett is a big fan of the elaborate cakes. She specializes in the ornate European style that considers the wedding cake an art form, more for decoration than consumption.

"In America, it takes a bakery an average of an hour to decorate a wedding cake. In Europe, the decoration alone may take 50 hours," Pritchett said.

Her own award-winning cakes, crafted for international pastry competitions, involve about 100 hours of work. Pritchett, in her third year of teaching at the culinary arts school, previously created pastries for L'Escargot in Chicago.

The wedding cake tradition dates to early Roman times, when the couple offered a salted round barley biscuit, called panisferreus, to the god Jupiter. The cake was baked by vestal virgins in a special ceremony.

At the wedding, the bride and groom would share a wedge—as is still the custom today—then the groom broke the rest over the bride's head. The guests would take leftover crumbs home for good luck.

At Anglo-Saxon weddings, hard biscuits were the norm. During the Middle Ages, they were replaced by sweet buns brought by the guests. They stacked the little buns in a mound in front of the couple, who were challenged to kiss over them. If they succeeded, it supposedly assured lifelong prosperity and many children.

Solid confections entered the picture during the Restoration period when King Charles II returned to England from exile in France, and brought his French pastry chefs with him. They covered their cakes with hardened sugar, then topped the mass with toys and figurines.

In Victorian times, the ornate wedding cake was strictly for decoration. A separate spicy fruit cake, or groom's cake, was sliced in advance and packed in individual boxes for guests to take home.

America's traditional white wedding cake first appeared during the Civil War as finely ground flour, baking powder and baking soda became available.

"Spice and fruit cakes are still the norm in Europe," Pritchett said. "And they are now having resurgence in America. People are trying to be more trendy with carrot cake weddings and cheese cake weddings."

"The groom's cake tradition is also coming to this country."

Ridgewell's Caterers in Washington, D.C., says there are many distinctions from country to country, from cake to cake.

In England, the traditional choice is dark, spicy fruit cake covered with marzipan and royal icing. In France, the rage is croquembouche, a tiered cake made of cream puffs covered with caramel syrup. Italy favors a cream-filled rum cake.

Mexican wedding cakes are a tiered fruit and liquor-soaked pastry with six prizes hidden inside for bride, the groom and their parents. Greek cakes are baked with sesame seeds, honey and quince, with the sweet and sour tastes symbolizing that the couple is married for better or worse.

In Bermuda, the traditional white cake is baked by the entire community, then topped with a tree seedling the couple plants after their reception.

The wedding cake tradition also has its share of superstitions.

It is bad luck for the bride to bake her own cake. And the bride who steals a taste before the cake is cut forfeits her husband's love. On the other hand, saving a slice ensures his lifelong fidelity.

A bridesmaid who carries wedding cake in her pocket until the bride and groom's honeymoon is over will soon marry. After the first wedding in a family, some of the wedding cake must be kept in the house until all unmarried daughters are wed, to ensure a husband for each.

Gifts for attendants say 'thanks'

By UPI

NEW YORK — A bride-to-be faces all kinds of decisions for her wedding, and one of the most important is selecting gifts for her attendants.

"Giving gifts to wedding attendants who help you through the last-minute details and dilemmas has become a tradition," said Alice Kolator of Lenox China & Crystal.

"When choosing your token of thanks, consider items they will enjoy long after your wedding."

Kolator suggested giving keepsakes such as a crystal perfume bottle, a jewelry tray or a china box filled with potpourri.

"Pictures create lasting memories for attendants," she said. "Select a wedding photo of you with your attendants and place it in an elegant...picture frame."

Missing parents can throw wrench in big day

By UPI

Wedding day can be the happiest day in a bride's life, but it also can remind her of the saddest day, if there is no mother or father of the bride to fill the traditional parental roles.

Whether because of divorce or death, women are finding alternatives to tradition. Professional consultants and etiquette experts agree there are creative solutions to the sometimes sad dilemma.

Among the solutions: finding a surrogate father of the bride to "give her away" or tossing out the rules altogether by choosing to walk down the aisle alone.

Traditionally, the mother of the bride helps plan the wedding and reception and can be a pillar of strength for a nervous bride-to-be. The father of the bride escorts his daughter and officially hands her over to her groom.

Cabaret singer Shane Taylor has two fathers, a natural father and a step-father she hasn't spoken to in years. "In this case," says Taylor, "you say to yourself neither one of them really deserves to give me away." Taylor asked her brother to escort her at her Jan. 7 wedding in Atlanta.

"My brother has been with me my whole life," she explains. "He seemed like the likely one and I always knew it would be him."

"Basically I think being escorted down the aisle is a neat tradition. What it comes down to is someone keeping you calm, someone you love very much holding you up. I think it's neat that you can share those last moments before you get married."

Helen Marshall, assistant news editor at a Chicago radio station, also was escorted by her brother at her January 1982 wedding. But if she were to do it all over again, Marshall says she might choose to solo.

"I was an adult and didn't need to be given away in marriage from my father's or mother's household," says Marshall.

Even 20 years ago, people were not sticking to strict rules of etiquette.

Lorraine Vick, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was married in January 1967. She had a church wedding, but kept it small, inviting a handful of relatives and close friends.

"Nobody gave me away," she says. "Actually I didn't worry about it because it was a real small wedding."

"There's an etiquette you're supposed to follow but it's more important for people to follow their own ideas," she says. "Of course, people who attend the wedding will always say 'well, she shouldn't have done this or that.'"

Professional advisers agree there's more to consider than just etiquette. Bridal consultant Marlene Levin of Highland Park, Ill., says there are important emotional questions involved, such as the bride's feelings about her parents not being able to attend the wedding.

"The bride seeing herself in her bridal dress and not having her mother there wide-eyed and really happy, that's a really emotional moment. No matter how many stand-ins, nothing prepares you for the general lonely feeling," says Levin.

Etiquette maven Letitia Baldrige, who was White House social secretary for Jacqueline Kennedy, says it's not just the procession that changes if parents are deceased.

"You send out the invitations yourselves and you don't use titles," she says. "Just say Mary Jones Smith, and Gregory Anthony Lewis request the honor of your presence, et cetera."

Resorts offer packages for weddings, honeymoons

By UPI

ANALOMINK, Pa. — Gerry Kalinowski and David Smart wanted a small wedding, just themselves, a few family members, maybe a close friend or two, and they wanted it soon.

The first part of the equation posed no problem for the Naugatuck, Conn., couple. The second half, however, gave them fits.

"You have to wait so long everywhere," Kalinowski, 20, a graduate nurse, recalled in a telephone interview. "Everyone here was booked up for weddings for a year and a half."

About a month after the couple became engaged in July 1988, a frustrated Gerry was idly perusing a honeymoon brochure from the Pocono Mountains when something caught her eye.

There, in tiny print amid the photographs of tumbling waterfalls, shimmering lakes and young lovers embracing in cherry-red, heart-shaped tubs, she found her answer: "Now you can have your wedding in the Poconos."

On Oct. 2, 1988, Gerry and David exchanged vows in a simple but elegant outdoor ceremony, followed by a reception and then a week-long honeymoon—all part of a package put together by Penn Hills resort in Analomink.

"I thought it would be kind of romantic and different, plus they planned everything so it was less hassle for me," Gerry said. "It was kind of crazy, but everyone loved it."

Northeastern Pennsylvania's honeymoon mecca expects to see more couples like the Smarts in the future.

The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau is actively promoting the "Pocono Wedding" concept. Most resorts have fallen in line, offering wedding-honeymoon packages that can be tailored to an individual couple's tastes and budget.

Bridal shop trip was like going to dentist

By KARIN DAVIES
For UPI

BOSTON — I was the right size but the wrong age, the right person in the wrong place. And I was late.

I was standing before a mirror in Priscilla's bridal shop wearing a $1,500 wedding gown. The saleswoman ("consultant" was her terse word for her job) kept up a soothing patter: "You look gorgeous," she cooed. "It's the perfect gown for the most important day of your life."

The woman in the mirror was wearing a size 8 long-sleeved beaded gown with a flowing chiffon skirt and an expression of terror. Cold feet were wedged into spike heels that would surely make me taller than the groom in the black Reeboks he wanted to wear.

Quite a transformation from the woman who walked into the posh Newbury Street shop an hour ago, sporting a blue backpack and wrinkled white corduroys. A cover girl for Bride magazine I wasn't, and I had anticipated my appointment with the enthusiasm of a trip to the dentist.

Priscilla—The Brides Shop Inc., one of New England's best-known bridal shops, offers a grownup's version of the little girl's game of dress up. Appointments required, no men in the dressing rooms and no racks of dresses for customers to peruse.

The consultant decides which of the 350 gowns a would-be bride should try on, so mine led me into a fitting room and slowly circled around me, her support hose making a "swish-swish" sound. I figured she was trying to find my "good side."

First, the interview: height, weight, age, wedding date, budget, location, colors, etc. (I don't recall her asking about the fiancé. Perhaps if she had, we could have saved some trouble.)

Then a stern lecture: I arrived proud of myself for thinking about a gown four months before the wedding. My consultant sighed and said I was months late, that I must decide quickly if I wanted walk down the aisle in a fitted gown.

I suddenly saw myself tripping on a stapled-up hem with 257 safety pins popping open as I fell, female guests looking down on me, then at each other and nodding. "She waited until the last minute. Just as we expected."

Next, I stripped down to my underwear and listened to the consultant's appraisal: "My, you have a flat tummy. And even a waist—so many girls these days don't." I was relieved, one, that I wasn't pregnant, and, two, that I had done my sit-ups.

However, territories above or below the waist—flat chest and cellulite—got no comment. They weren't overlooked, they just weren't mentioned.

The recommendation: "I think you ought to try something elegant. Cute wouldn't be right."

Translation: "Look, you're pushing 30 real hard. Most of these dresses are designed for women who don't have to worry about gum disease and varicose veins."

The fitting room down the hall was a double of the one I was in—same chandelier, same statue made into a lamp, same wide mirrors. The difference was the girl in the next room was 10 years younger and burbling excitedly as she talked of how her gown looked.

"Gerald loves my shoulders. Mother. Can we have it off both shoulders? Please...?" her little-girl voice trailed off. I hated her. She had both youth and cleavage. I had crow's feet. She would probably blush at all the right times, too. I would probably laugh at all the wrong ones.

But my consultant did her best, selecting dresses suitable for "more mature brides."

Donning the gowns: It's easier to rope-scale New Hampshire's Mount Washington than to struggle into a 20-pound wedding gown. One disappears into a cloud of fluff and only emerges from ruffles and ribbons with assistance. And my consultant had it easy. Her co-worker in an adjacent room was trying to shoehorn a size 14 woman into a size 8 sample gown.

Each dress that my consultant swept into the room was more lavish than the last, and more expensive. As she created the illusion of a perfect event, money became less of a concern.

She hustled off to find the perfect satin-and-beaded slippers, ivory stockings, the veil that would add just the right touch. A garter perhaps? Why not, said I.

The ensemble complete, I teetered before the mirror and basked in rave reviews. I felt like a fairy princess for the first time since I was 4 and wobbled around the living room in clear plastic high heels.

My consultant was intent upon making the nervous bride-to-be feel beautiful, then making decisions for her.

It's a strategy that works well on a woman whose nerves have been frayed by problems of whether to serve smoked salmon or cajun chicken wings at the reception, if the Waterford crystal should be traded for a domed tent or whether high-top or low-cut.

But after a tedious day of looking at china patterns, stemware and Ralph Lauren towels, it was a pleasure to have someone intent on making me feel glamorous.

Perhaps, in the future, instead of going shopping when I am depressed I'll just try on wedding gowns.

However, despite Priscilla's best efforts, I couldn't decide, due more to my increasingly cold feet than in any flaw in the magic of a long-sleeved beaded gown.

So, the gown came off but the wedding didn't—but that's another story.

The eagle uses the same nest year after year, adding new material each year.
