TODAY'S HIGHLIGHTS

Even though spoken in high places, some intelligent people have accepted the philosophy of "Trust me, I'm not lying." - Jeremiah 7:4

Frank Costello has been indicted for contempt of the Senate. Nothing worse than that?

Work started this week on the Fish Memorial Hospital in DeLand. The Sun News of that city announces it is being constructed on the site of the former College Arms Hotel.

The mere fact that Governor Warren recently shared his peanuts with members of the press at a recent cabinet meeting is not to be taken as any indication that he is a peanut politician.

We see where the men out in California have at last gained equal rights with women. A new law has been signed permitting a husband to sue his wife for separate maintenance. Wonder if they can wear shorts on First Street in summer time too?

Indicative of government waste is the revelation by Forbes Magazine, that the Defense Department has just purchased 66,000,000 can openers for the army, that is, 66,000,000 can openers for 3,500,000 men. Evidently the politicians want to make sure the army can get them out, in case they get canned next year.

The Seminole Indians of Oklahoma are being paid $50,000,000 as payment for 35,000,000 acres of land in Florida alleged to have been stolen from them through "chicanery, trickery and bribery by the treaty of 1832, shortly before the Seminole Indian War. When you think of what that Florida land is worth today, the Seminoles must be amazed at their own moderation.

The nomination of Francis Whitehair as Undersecretary of the Navy and the virtual assurance of his confirmation by the Senate are a tribute to Florida as well as to our neighboring city of DeLand. With former Governor Milton Caldwell as administrator of Civilian Defense and Whitehair as Undersecretary of the Navy Florida political leaders are finally obtaining some recognition in the councils of the mighty. And it goes without saying that it will not hurt the Sanford Naval Air Station to have as good a friend as Whitehair as Undersecretary.

Everybody is coming to Florida next winter perhaps, but this summer for sure. "People from North, East and South, rich, poor and middle-class, poets and professors, lazy ones, go-getters, fishermen, sun-worshippers, surf-bathers, card-players, amusement park people and patrons, grandmothers and babies in arms, young lovers, old lovers, middle-aged lovers, athletes, cripples, and plain, run-of-mill Americans."

No Simple Answers

There is a human tendency to oversimplify problems and to search for a single answer to a question. But because living is such a complex thing one who accepts a doctrine on one level, frequently finds it necessary to reject it on another. An example of this is the way in which the conservative businessmen in Great Britain view with some alarm the proposed treaty with Japan because it would allow Japan free and unrestrained trade.

The Conservatives in Britain represent free enterprise as opposed to the Laborites who believe in government ownership. The guide for free enterprise was written in 1776 by Adam Smith in a lengthy but lucid book called "The Wealth of The Nations." Smith stated emphatically that government interference with industry or commerce, even to encourage it, would make industry and commerce take a channel in which it was not natural for them to flow. He believed that if something could be produced more cheaply in another part of the world it should be imported rather than produced at home and aided by subsidy or protected by tariff. Smith, called the "Father of Capitalism," was one of the first advocates of free trade.

Yet today many businessmen who fight against what they consider encroachment of government in areas where it doesn't belong, on the other hand stand for restrictions on trade with foreign countries. Their attitude may or may not be justified, but it does illustrate that while men may grasp at simple solutions there are really no simple permanent answers to basic questions.

Advocates of Communism call their doctrine a panacea. But because it is rigid and unyielding it must inevitably fail, for it cannot fit the ever-changing needs of those who subscribe to it. Perhaps this is why democracy is so practical as well as so desirable. There is in democracy a framework for meeting changing needs and we do not face the danger of being prosecuted as deviators if we change our attitudes when change seems warranted.

Catching Speeders

Complaints sometimes are heard against what are described as unfair and unethical police methods in the enforcement of speed limits. Some of this is occasioned by the operation of speed traps for the purpose of obtaining revenue for the local treasury and certain officials' pockets. The operation of these is kept as unobtrusive as possible and they usually prey on out-of-town drivers. Their aim is not to reduce speeding but to collect fines. This reprehensible operation is dwindling, thanks to exposures and opposition of conscientious citizens.

But there is also a certain opposition to police methods which are genuinely aimed at reducing speed. The use of a radar, remarkably effective in lowering the general speed on roads where it is used, is sometimes called "unsporting" because the speeding motorist is usually caught unawares. The older method in which the police car or motorcycle is parked unobtrusively, waiting for a speeder to pass, gets the same criticism. The speed-loving driver's idea of "fair play" is that the police should warn him that he is being checked, so that he can reduce his speed while the check is being made and then speed merrily away when he knows that the police are no longer looking.

This kind of drive-critic overlooks the point that speeding is, lawbreaking and dangerous to the safety of others. Our law contains many protections for the rights of the citizen, against improper police practices. But nowhere is it specified that the police must notify a suspected lawbreaker that they have their eye on him, so as to give him a sporting chance to escape detection and capture. Law enforcement is not a sport; it is a serious business of making the community safer for everyone. This point applies to speed limits, as well as to other laws.

The Letter Writer

Those of you gentle readers who are past masters of the art of writing sharp communications to the editor may be pleased to know that you excite the envy of no less an artist than P. G. Wodehouse. All his life, Mr. Wodehouse relates, he has yearned to pen a letter beginning: "To the editor: Sir." But once those fatal words appear upon his paper, the steam of inspiration dries up, the peerless wit falls, and no editor ever receives this particular stillborn comment.

In advising others how to overcome the difficulty which besets him, however, Mr. Wodehouse reveals himself to be a product of the British or bird-watching school of letters. Much of his advice therefore would be woefully inapplicable to Americans, most of whom aspire, judging by our limited experience, to the direct or dear-sir-you-are-a-scoundrel type of thing. Mr. Wodehouse, for instance, urges the neophyte to "begin with the cuckoo," excellent counsel to all British addressers of editors. But what would the average American editor—a man conditioned by fate to suspicion and doubt—make of a letter beginning: "Dear Sir: On March 17, at 6:05 A. M. I distinctly heard a cuckoo. . . . Some desperate editors might let this one by, but we rather doubt it."

On some other points Mr. Wodehouse is richly, beautifully right. He urges the hero of the following sample letter, for instance, to hesitate no longer but to notify at once the editor of his choice: "Dear Sir: I am the seventh son of a seventh son. I am 47 years old and have seven Siamese cats. . . . Most heartily do we second Mr. W. If these or similar felicities apply to you, dear reader, sit down at once and address The Point of View, its editor, harassed soul, will gladly record your distinction and bless you indeed for your gem—a letter for publication which is at once interesting, informative, non-libelous and amiable. . . . From Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal."

THE WORLD TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—General MacArthur apparently has changed his mind about just fading away, as he told Congress he would when he addressed it last April.

Wednesday night, in a talk to the Massachusetts legislature in Boston, he said: "I shall raise my voice as loud and as often as I believe it to be in the interest of the American people."

"I shall dedicate all of my energies to restoring to American life those inevitable principles and ideals which our forebears and mine handed down to us in sacred trust."

"He made a blazing attack on the Truman Administration which stripped him of his command in the Korean war. Although he told the legislators he was talking with 'neither partisan of illusion or political purpose,' his attack could hardly fail to please the Republicans."

"His criticism of the Truman Administration followed the line taken by many Republican critics, accusing it of taxing and spending too much and not having a foreign policy."

And in one place he employed almost the identical words used by Senator Taft of Ohio, most frequently mentioned as the Republican presidential candidate in 1952.

Since the cease-fire talks began in Korea, Taft has described the Korean war as "useless." Wednesday night the General spoke of the "uselessness" of the Korean war.

When he first returned here last spring and later in June, in five speeches in Texas, the General confined himself to condemning the Truman foreign policy and handling of the Korean fighting, using his own solution for the war, a solution with which the Joint Chiefs of Staff disagreed.

But in his sixth Texas speech on June 18 the General suddenly lifted his attack and condemned Administration's domestic policies, too, thus setting into motion a chain of events.

So his attack on the Trumanites Wednesday night across the board—on all fronts, foreign and domestic—was the second such criticism he had offered.

At one point in his speech he seemed to be suggesting—as he did before—that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were afraid to say what they really thought because of fear of reprisal from the White House.

It is difficult to nail down precisely what the General had in mind in many parts of his speech since in almost all of it he made charges "without naming names."

For example, he spoke of the "unholy forces working from within, which, already, have so drastically altered the character of our free institutions." Those "unholy forces," he said, have infiltrated into positions of public trust and responsibility into journalism, the press, the radio and the schools.

Midway in his speech he again defended his conduct as commander-in-chief of the United Nations armed forces and blistered the Truman reasons for firing him.

And he criticized the amount of aid this country is giving its allies abroad, but added: "We should do all in our power to alleviate the suffering and hardship of other peoples and to support their maximum effort to preserve their freedom from the assault of Communist imperialism."

Winants Find Queen's Garden Party Riot Of Colors And Personalities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles on England written by H. Hoba Dean, who with other American college students is working in a London boys' club this summer as a Winant Volunteer.

By H. HOBA DEAN

LONDON, July 20—(Special)—Yesterday afternoon I was hurrying down the Mall with five other Winants and our boss, Tubby Clayton Vicar of All Hallows Church and one of the royal chaplains, toward Buckingham Palace. Clutching in my hand was an engraved invitation to invite Mr. Simpson B. Dean to an Afternoon Party in the Garden of Buckingham Palace on Thursday 19th July (Weather, Permitted)."

With 6000 other lucky people I was going to be a "guest" of the King and Queen at a royal garden party, and the Mall, through which we were struggling, for all its customary stateliness, resembled on this afternoon nothing quite so much as a street in Miami leading to the Orange Bowl on the first day of the year.

Guided by the experienced Tubby, who abominates these affairs since he knows nearly everyone there but generally calls them by the wrong names, we scurried across the square past Queen Victoria and through the gates, flashing our cards at the "bobby" who was doing the real business of guarding the palace while the red-coated sentry beside him stared absent-mindedly into the distance and wiggled his nose to keep fly off.

On we went, through the gravel inner court of the drab light brown Greekish palace and finally up the steps into the reception hall, between the gigantic portraits of Victoria and Albert, and at last out on the terrace overlooking the gardens. Before us was the great, green pavilioned expanse of the palace lawn and the famous oak-shaded, duck-filled pools beyond.

Immediately Tubby herded us over to the empty sentry box at one corner of the palace, which, he told us, is always the best spot from which to watch their Majesties come out to tea. Yesterday we saw only the Queen, since the King was ill at Windsor Castle, but we did see the Princess Margaret Rose as well. Both the Queen and the Princess seemed very charming, the Queen a good deal more at ease, as might be expected, before the 6000 staring faces; than her daughter.

The sweetness of the Queen's face and manner is legendary, and it is by no means exaggerated. It is a rather difficult task, I imagine, to come out almost alone on a lawn before a great surging wave of humankind 6000 strong, and yet to preserve an attitude of kindness and warmth which will make all these people feel that they are really your guests. As nearly as such a super-human job can be, the Queen accomplished it. She moved quietly and with amazing grace across the lawn in her traditional white dress, carrying her famous white parasol. This last she opened and held over her head while the band played the national anthem. Then she moved with her party through the crowd to the pavilion where they and the more distinguished guests would take their tea.

Just a simple little Scottish girl," Tubby said. "And now she must bear all this alone."

The lines watching the royal party were breaking up, and I set out to wander through the crowd and gawk at the morning-coated English gentlemen, the Hindu beauties in veils of pink and blue, and the be-turbaned East-Asian potentates. I hung around behind a number of Russians chatting with blue-trimmed, hammer-and-sickle satellite generals to try to pick up a few state secrets, but they were all speaking Russian. As I was moving away, I collided with two rather ferocious looking Arab gentlemen in flowing robes who seemed as if they'd come right out of "Ben Hur."

A little shaken by this, I suddenly found myself in front of a Pakistani marshal with all sorts of elephant orders and Eastern stars hanging from his coat. I gaped at his medals but suddenly remembered it's not supposed to be polite to stare continuously at somebody. I glanced at the man's face to see if he was annoyed, and you can imagine my surprise and satisfaction to discover that he was grinning just as interestedly at my small blue and yellow breast pocket Winant badge. I moved off with my chin much higher and my step much surer.

Retaking myself to the long curving pavilion which served the tea and cakes to the ordinary folk of the place, I feasted awhile, and then returned to the sentry box to watch the royal party retire to the palace. This was quickly done, and using what experience I had got at football and baseball games, the Queen's face and manner is legendary, and it is by no means exaggerated. It is a rather difficult task, I imagine, to come out almost alone on a lawn before a great surging wave of humankind 6000 strong, and yet to preserve an attitude of kindness and warmth which will make

The U. N. wants to settle on the most defensible battle line possible. This is generally understood to be approximately along the present lines, where Allied troops hold positions on higher hills and peaks than those along the fortified 38th Parallel.

Communists made it clear from the start they want the line to be along the Parallel, dividing line between North and South Korea. Establishment of a three-mile naval neutral zone of the shores of Korea is believed tied to this

Mrs. Mamie Taylor Address Pilot Meet

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 27—(Special)—It is difficult for the rest of the world to understand that domestic struggles within the United States will not and cannot weaken this nation's determination to resist aggression and aid the freeworld to maintain its freedom, Mrs. Mamie Taylor of Atlanta, Ga., President of Pilot International, declared here last night in the keynote address opening the 30th annual convention of the classified civic and service organization for business and professional women.

Mrs. Taylor, who recently returned from a good will tour of Europe, spoke at the Jefferson Hotel before an audience composed of representatives of the organization from all parts of the United States, Canada and other countries. Pilot International (the name signifies "leader and guide") has a membership of approximately 8,000 women, all leaders in their business or professional fields, in England, France, Mexico, Hawaii, Japan, Bermuda, Canada and the United States.

Among the delegates present are Mrs. Verne C. Messinger, president of the Sanford Pilot Club, and Mrs. M. C. Stone who is also a member of that club.

Mrs. Taylor, one of the nation's most prominent women business and civic leaders, presided over the business sessions of the convention. The meeting will continue through a banquet on Saturday evening when Margaret Hickley, Public Affairs Editor of the Ladies Home Journal, will be guest speaker. The International President and other members of the board of directors have been in St. Louis since Saturday for sessions preliminary to the convention proper.

There is no authentic record of the origin of the office of Post-Laurate of England. It is assumed that Geoffrey Chaucer (1328-1400) was one of the first to bear the title.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Morrison left today for Atlanta where they will visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morrison and children, Jackie, Jr. and Cindy. They are expected to return to Sanford next Tuesday.

Peter Huker M.E. is spending a part of his ten day leave with his parents Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Huker on Cedar Avenue. Mr. Huker is now stationed at Newport, R. I. and will leave Saturday by automobile to take his sister, Mary Anne, to New York for a visit. He will also visit an uncle in Washington, D. C. before returning to duty.

Garden Gate

By NELL M. WILLIAMS

Florida's sandy soil plus humus manufactured in your own compost pile, seems to be the ideal medium for bulb plantings. Hybrid Amaryllis are the showiest and earliest bloomers. This is a fine time to start studying the seed and nursery catalogs to select your Amaryllis for fall planting. Soil made fertile with organic material and old, rotted manure is a fine planting medium. Remember to water them sparingly until roots start.

Ordinarily considered a pet subject, Amaryllis growing does not have to be confined to pots in Florida. Put them in the garden where they will get five hours or more of sun a day. They add greatly to the color and beauty of gardens.

Growing Amaryllis from seed is interesting also. Principal requirement is that the grower have the patience to wait three or four years for them to bloom. It is lot of fun to see your own pollination bring you an odd color, or an extra large bloom such as perhaps one bulb in three or four shades of red will produce a nine inch white bloom with rose markings.

Plant Amaryllis seed as soon as possible after sowing. They can be put into four inch flats, covered with about half an inch of fine soil. You care for them like any other seed until they get their start.

When the bulbs are about three quarters of an inch in diameter they are ready for planting into beds. It is not necessary to water them until they are some step pending the season scheduled later today.

Maybank said he left sure the conferees could complete the bill.

The tollback provision tentatively approved covering non-farm commodities will be put into effect by the end of the month.

These tollback provisions will be a compromise between Senate and House versions. The Senate tollback provision has been generally regarded as more restrictive. However, the compromise, while the House provision appeared to be less restrictive.

Senator Caperham (R. Ind.) said the compromise version is desirable to prevent "unintentional" price rises, while at the same time permitting increases to compensate for higher costs since the start of the Korean war.

He added, "This ought to be exactly what the American people want."

Price Rollbacks

The Board now has in effect covering the distribution of such household items as radios and television sets.

The Administration won at least one victory when the conferees agreed to permit tollback to levels which prevailed just before the Korean war, in newly designated critical defense areas.

In both the Senate and House tollback was a provision authorizing toll increases of up to 20 per cent above the June, 1947 levels in areas now controlled. Committee officials estimated that toll increases in most cases would amount to only five to seven per cent because tolls have been granted since 1947 for many dwellings.

The bill produced by the Senate-House conferees committee must go back to both chambers for final votes before going to Mr. Truman to be signed into law.

The conferees committee is working under the gut Controls regulation expires July 31 unless extended anew as is or unless the committee works together a bill which can get two House approval before midnight Tuesday.

The conferees recessed shortly after 4 A. M. EST today, and will reconvene tomorrow in a continuous session which started at 6:30 P. M. yesterday. Earlier yesterday the committee had met for about eight hours.

Maybank said at the outset of the all-night meeting that he was determined to complete work on the bill before a recess. How long he finally had to give up and let the weary lawmakers call some sleep pending the session scheduled later today.

Maybank said he left sure the conferees could complete the bill.

Construction of a new medical hospital was approved in the State.

Miss Whitaker, who declared that the food and accommodations at Girls' State were excellent, said she enjoyed serving on the city commission of "oklahoma", and also on a House committee to introduce a bill to abolish Florida's sales tax, and to tax incomes instead.

Miss Malloy told of seeing the mythical County of Shasta, as county supervisor of registration and also, as a member of the House of Representatives. The girls were enthusiastic about the voting machines and their visit to the Supreme Court and the Treasury Department.

Gifts of hand painted trays were presented to two recent brides of the Sanford Club, Mrs. R. T. Hammett and Mrs. Harvey Swanson. There were 20 members present from the West Park Club of which Mrs. Vivian Partidge is president. Mrs. A. F. Messenger, president of the local club, was unable to be present because of serving as a delegate to the Pilot International Convention in St. Louis. Mrs. Stone was accompanied by Mrs. M. C. Stone.

Neville Hurls 6 To 0 Shutout Over Gainesville G-Men

Lanky Pitcher Wins First Start Since June 16 As Giants Lose Second 4 To 2

Al Neville, pitching superbly in his first start since June 16, gave up but three hits in a brilliant 6 to 0 shutout of the Gainesville G-Men in the first game of a double-header last night. The Giants dropped the second game 4 to 2.

In trouble twice because of his teammates' errors, Neville bore down beautifully in the clutch striking out four G-Men and walking but one.

The Giants opened the scoring in the first inning when Therion and McBride singled and Joe Parise walked to load the bases. Therion was cut down at the plate on Dolan's slow roller to third but McBride crossed on a hard infield smash by Max Pfeiffer which forced Dolan at second.

Ex-Major Leagueer Myril Hoag, manager, pitcher and general utility man for the G-Men, righted down until the fourth frame when the Giants again found the range.

Hoag walked Dolan and Pfeiffer, both of whom came in on Manager Richie Klaus' single and Ed Jackson's long fly to left.

Again in the fifth the Giants took advantage of Hoag's wildness and uncertain fielding on the part of Gainesville to push across three more tallies.

Mickey McBride reached first on an error, Parise walked and Tim Dolan's single brought McBride home. A single by Klaus scored Dolan after an error on the Gainesville left fielder but Parise came in.

The Giants made everyone of their five hits count for runs in the first game leaving only six men stranded.

In the second hit veteran Red Roberts came in from left field to hunt a two-hitter for the G-Men mired only by Richie Klaus' fifth home run of the season which scored Joe Parise ahead of him.

Sanford's ace left hander Jerry Schultz started off with his accustomed steam last night but by the sixth frame the chunky youngster was obviously exhausted. Until that time he had given up only two hits and three walks but the roof caved in after he walked the first two men in the sixth.

Four straight singles sent him to the showers and lanky Ray Scheidt took over until the 9th when he was lifted for a pinch hitter. Bill Ward worked the final frame.

The Giants only scoring came in the 4th when Parise walked and Klaus slaked his fifth home run 400 feet over the left center field wall. The ball bounced off the club house roof clearing the fence by at least thirty feet.

Tim Dolan made a miraculous running catch of Red Roberts' blunder into left center in the first game. Gainesville's new shortstop, Bob Santner, came up with a one-hopping line drive by Schultz that almost tore his glove off. He looked as surprised as the crowd when he found that he had it. Schultz himself got in the way of a sizzling blast through the box by Hal Long which did take his glove off. Jerry chased it back of the mound and threw him out. Al Neville is the only giant pitcher with a better than .500 average having won 9 and lost 5.

Konno Defeats Marshall Easily In 1500 Meter Swimming Duel

By HARRY STAPLER
DETROIT, July 27.—(AP)—Boys' Ford Konnon of Hawaii, new national long distance swim champion, will try to feed Australia's John Marshall some more sour medicine tonight at the national AAU swimming and diving championships.

Konno easily whipped Marshall last night in their widely-heralded 1500-meter (metric mile) free style duel. But when they battled again tonight in the shorter 400-meter free style event, 18-year-old Konno is expected to have a tougher time beating Marshall.

Marshall was one of the six defending champions whose titles fell in the first big day of the meet. Only Paet McCormick, women's platform diving champion, held on to her crown.

Marshall, the 22-year-old from Yale University and Australia who licked Konno three times in last year's meet, started right with the little Hawaiian until their crowns approached the 500-meter mark.

Then Konno leaped away from his rival and appeared to be churning in for a world's record. However a pain in his side forced him to ease up, Konno said.

He finished in 18:43.3 minutes, a full lap ahead of Marshall. Konno missed the record by nearly a half minute.

Marshall said his legs felt rather "rubbery" after the race. "That's unusual for me," he said. "I don't know what was wrong."

Seven others besides Marshall will try to defend their crowns under the floodlights of Brennan Pool tonight. They are:

Men's—Allen Stack of New Haven, Conn., in 100-meter back stroke; Robert Strawser of Princeton in 200-meter breast stroke; the New Haven Swimming Club in 800-meter free style relay.

Women's—Maureen O'Brien of Chicago in 200-meter back stroke; Evelyn Kawamoto of Hawaii in 300-meter individual medley; Miss McCormick of Los Angeles, who cleared up all three diving titles last year, in one-meter springboard diving; the Hawaii swimming club in 800-meter free style relay.

Palatka Azaleas Batter Red Hots For Two Victories

PALATKA, July 27.—(AP)—The Palatka Azaleas copped both ends of a twin bill from the Deland Red Hots here last night, shing out a 1-0 shutout in the seven-inning first game behind the three-hit hurling of Ben Arroyo, and taking the nightcap, 8-4.

The single run in the first frame came when Smith singled and scored on Mike Kasanbian's triple.

His fourth inning, climaxed with a timely single by Pitcher Cecil Hutson, gave the locals four runs after eating one over in the second. Arroyo tried the iron-man of New York, Long Island University, but a barrage of his in the third drove him to the showers and Hutson finished for the win.

Senators 10-4 Packers 6-7
ORLANDO, July 27.—(AP)—The Leesburg Packers came back to win the second game of a double-header by a 7-4 score last night after Orlando had blanked them 10-0 in the opener.

Indians 12-1 Islanders 5
DAYTONA BEACH, July 27.—(AP)—Four Islander errors and 10 Indian hits gave Cocoa a 12 to 5 win over Daytona Beach here last night.

George Caves, who started and pitched five innings, was charged with the loss. He was relieved by Howie Simmons, who pitched one and one-third frames. Al Lange came into the game in the seventh and finished the struggle.

Harry Ballen took Islander hits rather well scattered. He pitched hitless ball until the fourth inning when Jim Westering cleaned a single to right field.

Police Hint Basketball Fix May Mushroom Into National Scandal

PEORIA, Ill., July 27.—(AP)—Basketball's tragic robe scandal, which already has given college sports its blackest hour, threatens to engulf even more U. S. schools and their heroes.

Police authorities hinted yesterday that other schools—six already are involved—may find their names in disgraving headlines before the investigation is ended.

Where the dismal story will break next is not known. The latest disclosure here led to a trusted sixth tainted named on Bradley University's present, David Hall Owen.

Fred Schlichtman, 21-year-old Centralia, Ill., junior student, told police last night that he had accepted $500 in payoff money after a fixed Bradley game with Oregon State last December. Ills was the sixth tainted named on Bradley's powerful cage roster of last season.

Schlichtman denied, however, that he had done anything to manipulate the score of the game. Five of his teammates—All America Gene Melchiorre, Aaron Preceer, Jim Kelly, Bob Grover and Bill Mann—already have confessed dealing with gamblers to "shave" points of games.

Michael A. Shore, Peoria county state's attorney, says Melchiorre, until this week an idol to Peoria fans, was the ringleader. Shore says squat "Squeaky" (Gene proposed selling his and his teammates' services to New York gamblers Nick (The Greek) and Tony Engolis, brothers, and the fugitive hoodlum Jack (Zip) West.

In addition, the state's attorney said, Melchiorre doublecrossed the other Bradley players by pocketing some of the bribe money given to him for relay to the others.

Schools headless Bradley whose players—more than 30 of them—have been involved so far are four New York schools, City College of New York, Long Island University, Manhattan College and New York University, and Toledo (Ohio) University.

The scandal originally broke in New York last spring and its growing impetus derived from the efforts of New York police.

President Owen, in whose campus home Schlichtman roomed, said at first he couldn't quite believe it. He made that statement Tuesday, the day of the break here when he was at Mackinac Island, Mich., vacationing. Sharing the vacation with him was Schlichtman.

Schlichtman himself told state's attorney's investigators that Melchiorre had mentioned to him in an off hand way the possibility of making money on games but that he thought "squeaky" was joking. He said Melchiorre handed him an envelope containing $500 after the Oregon State game here last December because "he said I didn't do anything wrong and the team won" by an agreed-upon margin.

Schlichtman, implicated in the mess by the statements of the five other Bradley players, declared he later told his parents about the deal and that they advised him to return the money. However, he
