

Over Sewer Service Competition

Casselberry Threatens To Sue County

By Sarah Fischer
Herald Staff Writer

Casselberry is disputing the county's right to provide sewer and water service to areas in southeast Seminole County the city says it is already servicing. The city feels the county is duplicating existing services and is prepared to go to court over the matter, Mayor Owen Sheppard said.

City and county commissioners are scheduled to discuss the issue at a joint meeting at 7 p.m. today at Casselberry City Hall, 95 Lake Triplett Dr.

Sheppard said the city views the county as "intruding" into unincorporated "pockets" which already receive water and sewer service from Casselberry.

He noted that areas along State Road 436 are being developed, including the 300,000-square-foot Lake Howell Square under construction.

The shopping center, located on a 35-acre site at Lake Howell Lane near Casselberry, is due for completion in late August.

Also at issue is the effort by the county and Casselberry to purchase Central V Utilities.

Both have indicated they will actively pursue ownership of the private utility company located in south Seminole County.

If Casselberry is successful in the purchase, the county has said it will no longer provide sewer service to Central V customers in the unincorporated areas.

The county has a wholesale agreement with Central V to provide sewage treatment at its Iron Bridge plant.

Soviets Mum On U.S. Test Ban Refusal

MOSCOW (UPI) — With the Soviet Union's unilateral ban on testing nuclear weapons set to expire with the first U.S. nuclear test after today, the Kremlin has not commented on the U.S. rejection of a new Soviet test ban proposal.

And the prospects for a superpower summit have become more complicated because of conflict between the two nations this weekend over a test ban and where to hold negotiations about nuclear testing.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who first proposed a ban on testing nuclear weapons last July, Saturday offered to meet President Reagan in Europe to discuss extending the ban. Gorbachev's unilateral test ban expires with the first U.S. nuclear test after March 31.

During their historic meeting in November, Gorbachev and Reagan agreed to hold their next summit in the United States.

"I am ready to meet President Reagan in the nearest future in London or Rome or in any other European capital that will agree to receive us, in order to reach agreement on this question," Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev's offer, made during a rare television appearance, drew a quick negative response from the Reagan administration, which apparently caught the Kremlin off guard.

Tass and other Soviet news agencies said simply "the U.S. administration took up an unconstructive stand towards Soviet initiatives again."

According to the administration's statement, issued Saturday in Santa Barbara, Calif., where Reagan is vacationing, "As far as a nuclear testing moratorium is concerned, the U.S. position has not changed."

"From the time that the Soviets announced their moratorium last year, we made clear why a moratorium is not in the security interests of the

Katya To Meet Mickey

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A tired Katya Lycheva, the Russian schoolgirl making a tour of five U.S. cities as a memorial to the little American girl who went to the Soviet Union on a mission of peace, arrived on the last leg of her trip and went straight to her hotel to rest before a visit to Disneyland.

Katya, 11, was exhausted from her travels and went directly to her hotel Sunday night to rest up for a two-day Southern California visit.

Katya, who attended an Easter brunch in Houston earlier Sunday, was to visit Disneyland for a scheduled introduction to Mickey Mouse, tour Universal Studios, and visit a local school and a Los Angeles City Council meeting Monday and Tuesday before flying to Mexico City. Her five-city U.S. tour began in Chicago March 21.

Traveling with Lycheva was Pat Montandon, head of the Children As Peacemakers foundation, which organized her visit as a memorial to Samantha Smith, the Maine youngster who visited Russia after writing to the Soviet leaders. She was killed in a plane crash last year.

Also with Lycheva was Star Rowe, a 10-year-old San Francisco girl who won a scholarship from the foundation and represented it on a tour to Eastern European countries in 1984. Rowe was on crutches with a twisted ankle when she got off the plane in Los Angeles, the result of a fall she took while in Houston.

Katya told reporters through her interpreter that she has heard that California is a beautiful place, especially Disneyland, and she is looking forward to having a good time.

On Saturday, Katya posed for pictures beside life-size models of a shuttle crew compartment and a lunar module at the space center.

She told reporters the space center was "impressive," and compared it to space exhibits she had visited in Moscow.

Longwood May Hire Full-Time Attorney

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

With legal costs soaring, the Longwood City Commission is considering hiring a full-time city attorney in the hopes of saving money. The matter will be on the agenda at the April 7 city commission meeting in city hall.

Gerald Korman, who has resigned as city attorney, has agreed to continue in the capacity until a replacement is hired. The commission decided Wednesday night to delay advertising for another part-time legal counselor until they can look into the feasibility of hiring one full-time.

Mayor Larry Goldberg said $30,000 was allocated in the 1985-86 city budget for legal expenses, but the city spent about $25,000 of this in the first five months of the fiscal year, which began Oct. 1.

Korman receives $60 an hour as city attorney. Contributing to the higher bills include a number of special meetings, review and updating of the city code, representing the city in the suit brought by Vitic Investments, meeting with the Charter Review Committee, reviewing contracts with the city's engineering consultant and the architect for the new police building and the sale of city property, researching the sign regulations and working with the labor attorney.

Goldberg said the city could hire someone for less money to work eight hours a day for the city.

City Commissioner June Lormann commented, "I don't know how it got out of hand, but we've had a lot of revisions of ordinances lately."

To comply with the city charter, candidates for the job of city attorney need to have at least five years law experience in Florida. The charter revision committee is in the process of updating the charter, but this will not be completed until September.

Mrs. Lormann said, "Everybody is so 'sue-happy' out there we need someone with experience."

It was estimated clerical support for a full-time city attorney would cost another $10,000 to $15,000.

In other business Wednesday night, Goldberg informed the commission, "FRC (Florida Residential Communities)— kiss 'em good-by. We got a little crazy with the $3 charge. (what Longwood voted to charge FRC for each customer's bill)" He said he had talked to a representative of FRC on the phone and beginning next month, FRC will no longer be paying the city to bill its 1,432 sewer customers on city water bills. "We lost $11,100 plus in revenue," he said.

Mrs. Lormann told Goldberg, "I don't like the way you're handling this. FRC should do us the courtesy of coming in and talking about the contract."

According to Goldberg, FRC was notified because it had not been notified of the meeting where the

DeBary Man Killed As Van Smacks Car

A DeBary man was killed in Sanford Saturday when his car ran a red light at French Ave. and First St. and collided with a van carry a quadriplegic passenger.

The passenger, due to his paralysis, could not tell if he was injured.

Killed immediately after his 1980 Ford Falcon collided with the 1974 Dodge van, was Kenneth Martindill, 43, 220 Columbia Road, DeBary, Sanford firemen said.

Roland J. Rogers, 31, passenger in the van which was outfitted to transport the handicapped, is unable to experience feeling below his neck, and was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital for a full series of x-rays. The driver of the van, Steven Anderson, 21, who was suffering minor head and jaw pain at the scene, was also taken to the Sanford hospital. Both men, from State College, Penn., were treated and released.

Martindill was reportedly heading north on French Avenue at 1:30 p.m. when he ran a red light and broadsided by the van which was headed east on 1st Street. Martindill, who was not wearing a seat belt, died at the scene of multiple injuries, a Sanford fireman said.

Rogers and his wheelchair were harnessed in the rear of the van and Anderson said he was wearing a seat belt.

The impact shattered the windows and windshield of the Falcon, which came to a stop in front of piping on the sidewalk of the northeast French Avenue corner. The van received $1,500 worth of front end damage and was stopped across

Actor James Cagney Dies In Sleep At Age 86

STANFORDVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — James Cagney, the actor who carved out a role as an American symbol with parts as different as the cocky criminal of "The Public Enemy" and the star-spangled hooper of "Yankee Doodle Dandy," has died at the age of 86.

Cagney died Easter Sun lay at his beloved farm in New York, a update from the city streets whose memories he used as the raw material for movie characters ranging from swaggering hoodlums and psychotic killers to crusty military commanders and the charming coxswain "Sam on the Fourth of July."

"We were getting him ready for breakfast and he just closed his eyes and went to sleep. It's Easter and it's a good time if he had to go. He's definitely going to go to heaven," said Marge Zimmermann, Cagney's manager-confidante.

With Cagney when he died were his wife of 64 years, Willy, and Zimmermann and her husband. He had returned home last week from New York City, where he was treated for heart trouble and diabetes at Lenox Hill Hospital.

President Reagan, who presented the Medal of Freedom to his friend and colleague in 1964, called Cagney "a classic American success story" who "was the best of whatever he did — a hero, a villain, a comic or a dancer."

"Nancy and I have lost a dear friend of many years today and America has lost one of her finest artists. Jimmy burst upon our movie screen with an energy and a talent we have never seen before and will never see again."

Cagney's show business career began in vaudeville in the 1920s and included more than six dozen movies. He retired in 1961, but returned to films as the police chief in 1961's "Ragtime." His last role was in the CBS television movie "Terrible Joe Moran," made in 1963 and shown in March 1964.

Cagney suffered a stroke in 1977 and was hospitalized twice in 1984 with heart and lung problems in Booth Bay Harbor, Maine, and then in New York.

Five Episodes Of Incompetence

The end product of defense spending is, or should be, the successful application of military force in support of this country's foreign policy. The test of preparedness is combat action. Anything else is mere parade-ground show.

Our military machine is like a new car rolling off the assembly line. The makers can sing its praises. It can look like a million. But the only way to test it is to drive it.

Five tests since the end of the Vietnam War have been disappointing. They are examined in a disturbing new book, "Military Incompetence: Why the American Military Doesn't Win," by Richard A. Gabriel, a former Army intelligence officer now a professor at St. Anselm College in Manchester, N.H.

Gabriel cites these actions:

—The raid on Sontay Prison. This 1970 action was a military success, except that it achieved no results, because the American prisoners of war had been moved from the prison in North Vietnam some time before the raid. Intelligence information indicating as much was disregarded by military commanders, because they did not want to call off an operation to which they were already committed. Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, decided to ignore the intelligence reports and proceed, despite a telephone call from the head of the Defense Intelligence Agency telling him the Sontay camp was empty.

—The Mayaguez. The 1975 dispatch of military forces to rescue the U.S. freighter Mayaguez and its American crew after they were seized by the Cambodians resulted in the loss of 18 men, needlessly. "The commanders risked the lives of 250 Marines in a pointless venture to rescue a crew that was already safe," Gabriel says. The Pentagon and the White House knew, or should have known, that the poorly planned landing on Koh Tang Island was unnecessary, but no commander would take responsibility for calling it off.

—The Iran rescue mission. This 1980 disaster was seen immediately for what it was — a catastrophic failure of competence. Every one of the four military services wanted a piece of the action. Responsibility and command were divided. The whole operation was wrapped so tightly in security that few of those involved looked at the entire picture. Those who did failed to see the obvious defects in the plan.

—The Beirut operation. Another obvious disaster resulted from the decision to send the Marines ashore in Lebanon in 1982 without a clear definition of their mission. They withdrew after 533 days without having accomplished anything and after losing 241 American lives. The failures up and down the chain of command were covered up and only the mildest kind of reprimand resulted. The use of military force in support of our diplomatic objectives was an utter failure, with much blame at the top for both military and civilian commanders.

—The Grenada invasion. Just after the Marine barracks was blown up at the Beirut airport, a military action in the Caribbean seemed at first, like the Mayaguez operation just after the fall of Saigon, to be a stunning success. On examination, the military side of the invasion of the island of Grenada turns out to have been marred by many military blunders. It was a military success only because of the weakness of the defending force. Again, as in the Iran rescue mission, all of the services wanted a part of the action and the failure of command coordination was deplorable.

Military incompetence cannot be corrected by pumping more money into the Pentagon. What is required is institutional reform. There must be a clear line of military command and responsibility, from the commander in chief to the lowest private. There must be more professionalism in the officer corps, which has become more skilled in the culture of bureaucracy than in the art of war. The military profession is unique and must be practiced on its own terms, not like a branch of business management or politics. The values that make for victory in battle must be learned and taught at all levels of the military establishment.

Such is the gist of Gabriel's conclusion. They agree with the findings of other knowledgeable observers who have looked at and written about the military since the end of the Vietnam War.

It is high time they were heeded in Congress, in the White House and in the Pentagon. Enacting the military reform proposals pending in the Senate Armed Services Committee would be a good way to start.

The Contra Issue Is Derailing Reagan

It boggles the mind to read President Reagan's recent words on the question of aid to the contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Mr. Reagan has now made this issue the central concern of his presidency. It will be recalled that following his landslide re-election in 1984, the president said that his three highest priorities for his second term would be aiding the contras, building the MX missile and moving ahead on the "Star Wars" missile defense system.

Having won victories on the two missile systems, Mr. Reagan has been going all out trying to pressure a reluctant Congress and a skeptical public into giving him another $100 million for the Nicaraguan rebels.

The first thing that is wrong with all of this is that Mr. Reagan has vastly overstated the significance the Nicaraguan issue has on American security.

The president paints a picture of this tiny poverty-ridden state sweeping across Central America, subverting large nations such as Brazil and Mexico, seizing the Panama Canal and then pushing into Texas and California. This is either sheer fantasy or sheer demagoguery. Few members of Congress believe Mr. Reagan's dire warnings about the consequences of continued Sandinista rule in Managua. Although the chief targets of Nicaragua, according to Mr. Reagan, are the other Latin American states, none of them seem to share the president's fears.

When Mr. Reagan told the nation on the eve of the House rejection of his aid request that the Nicaraguan government was trying to subvert Brazil by supporting Brazilian radicals, the Brazilian government flatly repudiated the Reagan contention.

When the president said that the Nicaraguan government was actively involved in pushing narcotics into the United States, the head of Reagan's own Drug Enforcement Administration announced that there is no evidence to support such a charge.

The second thing wrong with Mr. Reagan's grim picture of the supposedly massive danger posed by Nicaragua to the free world is that it makes his suggested response seem pathetically weak. If Nicaragua is really the gigantic threat to the security of the hemisphere that the president claims, why is he piddling away another $100 million on a seemingly demoralized little band of rebels? The kind of threat he described would seem to call for a major military campaign utilizing the armed forces of the United States and those of our allies in Latin America.

The third weakness in Mr. Reagan's approach is that by concentrating so much of his time, energy and prestige on this minor Nicaraguan sideshow, the president inevitably neglects the truly important issues of his presidency, such as the arms control negotiations with the Russians at Geneva, the critical Middle East conflicts and his massive internal debt and budget imbalance.

Former President Jimmy Carter made a costly error in permitting the Iranian hostage issue to be blown up into a major issue until it derailed his presidency. The little contra band could do the same thing to Mr. Reagan.

Duarte's Broken Promises

What a difference a year makes. At this point in 1985, Jose Napoleon Duarte was the king of the hill in El Salvador. Elected president 10 months earlier, he led his Christian Democratic Party to an upset victory in parliamentary elections, ousting a right-wing majority that had blocked implementation of his program of much-needed reforms.

Hailed as a genuine democrat and the best hope for finding a way out of the bloody impasse of El Salvador's civil war, he had the backing of the U.S. government and the grudging support of the Salvadoran military.

That was then. You don't hear so much about El Salvador these days. Barring an occasional headline incident, such as the murder of American servicemen on a downtown street or a pitched battle with rebel troops on the outskirts of the capital, its problems have been overshadowed by those of Nicaragua.

That may be just as well from the standpoint of a lot of the people trying to deal with them: including Duarte. The king's position is considerably less commanding these days.

Duarte's record during the past year is largely one of unfulfilled promise and promises.

He had pledged to curb abuses by military and police personnel believed primarily responsible for some 50,000 deaths and disappearances during six years of civil war. He said he would investigate political killings and bring known perpetrators to justice. He promised economic and social reforms, and to pursue a peaceful settlement rather than military victory.

He has not delivered. The guilty have not been brought to justice. Death squads are active again, with mutilated bodies turning up on the capital's streets. An Amnesty International report earlier this year charged that "government agents routinely torture prisoners in their custody, conduct 'disappearances' and commit political killings in attempts to eliminate opposition to the government."

The dialogue with the rebel leadership initiated in October 1984 has been allowed to die.

War, not broad reforms to address the longstanding causes of El Salvador's conflict, has become the first priority of Duarte's administration. War has, in fact, become the country's leading industry, as measured by U.S. aid.

Iran Is To Blame For Terrorism

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The menacing visage of the Ayatollah Khomeini is looming ever larger in the deliberations of experts trying to identify those responsible for the terrorist assaults on the Rome and Vienna airports that left six Americans dead last December.

At the time, President Reagan angrily blamed Libya's volatile Muammar Khadafy. But U.S. intelligence agencies have received information from usually reliable sources that Abu Nidal, the renegade Palestinian who heads the group that committed the attacks, used Iran as a planning and training center for the operation.

What makes this development so significant — and so alarming for the United States — is that Nidal's protector and supporter for years has been Iran's blood enemy, Iraq. At one time, Iraq was bankrolling

More On LaRouche

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the wake of the stunning primary victories in Illinois by two followers of ultra-rightist Lyndon LaRouche, Republican and Democratic officials are warning other state affiliates not to let it happen again.

In the Illinois Democratic primary, Mark Fairchild won the lieutenant governor's race and Janice Hart won the nomination for secretary of state — the first-ever victories for LaRouche candidates in a contested statewide primary.

LaRouche, 64, has been on the fringes of U.S. politics for years — first as an ultra-leftist, but, in recent years, as a far, far-rightist. He lives on a secluded million-dollar estate in the Virginia countryside, guarded by young men toting machine guns. Most experts view his organization as more of a cult than a political party, and his followers can be found manning tables at airports throughout the country.

According to LaRouche, the Holocaust is a myth, Walter Mondale is a Soviet agent and the queen of England is responsible for international drug trade. He advocates a very hard anti-Soviet line, supports nuclear power and a "Star Wars" laser-defense system and wants to establish "Nuremberg tribunals" to judge bankers, drug dealers and government officials involved in a host of alleged conspiracies. (Also to be tried are all "leftist journalists" — i.e., all those who've ever written or broadcast anti-LaRouche stories.) LaRouche also says that all Americans should be screened for AIDS, with AIDS carriers quarantined until a cure is found.

Members of LaRouche's organization — the National Democratic Policy Committee — have been running for political office for years. They usually try to run as Democrats, but often opt for uncontented races and register as Republicans or Independents.

Almost invariably, none publicize their affiliation with LaRouche.

Most observers say their Illinois victories were accidents arising from unusual circumstances. However, that's the heart of the LaRouche strategy: to gain entry into campaigns by winning uncontested nominations, and then hope for an accident.

In the Illinois primary, two other LaRouche followers — Dominick Jeffrey (13th district) and William J. Brenner (15th district) — won Democratic congressional nominations by running unopposed in heavily Republican districts where the regular Democratic Party couldn't find a candidate.

This is typical of LaRouche's strategy, as is the situation in California's 40th Congressional District. No regular Democrat wanted to face incumbent Republican Rep. Robert Badham in that "safe" GOP district — and Democrats were stunned when a LaRouche supporter, Art Hoffman, was the only candidate to file for the Democratic primary.

"He just got by us," said Bruce Sumner, the Orange County Democratic Party chairman. The Democrats are now considering a write-in campaign to try to deny Hoffman the nomination.

A National Democratic Policy Committee spokesman in Washington says that, this year, more than 1,000 LaRouche followers will run for everything from the U.S. Senate to school boards. "Our goal is to run for every office in sight," said the spokesman.

Risks In Older Women

By Larry Doyle

CHICAGO (UPI) — A urine test is being developed to determine which women will suffer from estrogen withdrawal during menopause and go on to develop osteoporosis, the disease that causes brittle bones and a weakened spine.

This knowledge will allow doctors to prescribe female hormones and calcium supplements prior to the onset of menopause with the aim of preventing or lessening the loss of bone material associated with osteoporosis, said Gary Hodgen, scientific director of pregnancy research with the Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk.

"Let's say we have a group of women in their early 40s and we'd like to know if an individual woman is likely to need estrogen replacement therapy," Hodgen said in a telephone interview. "This test should allow us to do that."

Such a test would be important, Hodgen said, because estrogen replacement therapy is not suitable for all women because of the costs and medical risks involved. But with women who need it, the therapy should begin before any damage has occurred, he said.

Osteoporosis, which affects an estimated 20 million Americans, weakens bones by depleting the calcium that makes them strong. The disease occurs mostly in older women and is responsible for millions of fractures every year, many of which never heal and often result in death.

Although no human test is yet available to predict which women will develop osteoporosis, Hodgen said recent successes in experiments with female monkeys will allow preliminary tests with humans this year.

"In fact, the model is so humanlike itself as to make the development of a test for humans not only possible but probable," Hodgen said.

Hodgen and Dr. Rafat Abbas, of Georgetown University Medical Center in Washington, reported on the monkey model in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The researchers found they could suppress the monkeys' ovulation cycles with high doses of gonadotropin-releasing hormone antagonist (GnRH). This hormone is necessary for ovulation in humans as well as animals.

Hodgen said testing will get underway later this year to see if women can be given high doses of GnRH without serious side effects.

Nidal (real name: Sabri Banna) and his group to the tune of $23 million or more a year.

But then, as part of the U.S. attempt to lure Iraq out of the Soviet orbit with arms supplies and other aid, the State Department prevailed on Iraq to drop its support of Nidal. The selling point was that forcing Nidal to move his headquarters from Iraq might remove Iraq from the list of terrorist nations ineligible for U.S. aid.

Unfortunately, the pressure seems to have worked — sending Abu Nidal into the arms of Khomeini.

Nidal was once part of the most militant wing of the Palestine Liberation Organization. He was associated with Black September, the terrorist group that committed, among other outrages, the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

At about that time, Nidal split with PLO chief Yasser Arafat, and in 1974 a PLO court tried him in absentia and sentenced him to death. Ever since, Arafat and Nidal have been trying to get each other assassinated.

Meanwhile, Nidal has carved a path of murder and mayhem across the Middle East and Europe. His usual assassination targets have been moderate Arabs, particularly PLO diplomats.

On June 3, 1982, Nidal actually ignited a war when his goons seriously wounded Shlomo Argov, the Israeli ambassador in London. The attempt was the immediate cause — some say the pretext — for Israel's ill-starred invasion of Lebanon three days later. After the twin airport attacks last Dec. 27, the Reagan administration blamed Libya as an accomplice. But the evidence points more to Iran and Syria. The two four-man teams of terrorists got crucial training and operational planning in the Bekka Valley of eastern Lebanon. The Bekka is controlled by the Syrians and patrolled by hundreds of Iranian revolutionary guards, who run the valley as if it were a suburb of Tehran.

Secret interrogation by Italian intelligence of the lone surviving terrorist in the Rome attack, Mohammad Sarham, confirmed that some of the teams' training took place in Isfahan, Iran, as well as the Bekka, and that the airport attackers entered Italy via Syria.

Our own sources inside Iran report that Nidal himself has spent extended periods of time since last September at the Iranian terrorist training camp in Magzariyeh Park, close to Khomeini's Tehran residence. One trusted CIA source said Nidal stayed as long as a week on at least half-a-dozen occasions between September and the Christmas-time airport attacks. His escort on these visits was Khomeini's son, Ahmad.

Combo Clicks, Seminoles Shatter Medley Record

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer

Coch Ken Brauman hasn't taken on the look of a mad scientist but he is constantly looking for the right formula to catapult his Seminole High Fighting Seminoles into prime form to go after a second straight Class 4A State Championship.

Saturday, in the Winter Park Relays at Lake Howell High, Brauman found the best combination yet in the mile medley relay and it ran a state-leading and school-record breaking time of 3:29.6. Brauman said that time may also be the fastest in the nation.

The Seminoles also went on to run their season's best in the mile relay but a false start in the 440 relay kept them from attaining their overall goal in the meet.

"We went to the meet with the idea of running three quality relays," Brauman said. "We did in the medley and the mile relay but the only disappointment was the false start in the 440.

"We're still looking for the right relay combination," Brauman added. "And we will continue looking for the next several weeks before we settle on how we want to run our people in the district."

In the team results Saturday, West Palm Beach Twin Lakes used its strength in the distance relays and the field events to take first place with 87 points followed by field-strong Orlando Evans at 63½ and Seminole at 56.

The mile medley relay time shattered the school record of 3:31.4 and also set a meet record. The medley foursome included Pat Davis and Louis Brown on the 220 legs, Eric Martin on the 440 and Billy Penick on the 880 anchor.

The mile relay team finished third with a time of 3:22.7 with Oak Ridge winning at 3:22.1

Running for the Tribe on that team were Andre Jackson, Penick, Martin and Brown.

In other relays, the 'Noles finished third in the two mile relay and sixth in the 880. The two mile team, which ran an 8:29.5, consisted of Maurice Roberts, Kelvin Abney, Rufaro Matipano and Alan Seward. The 880 team, which finished in 1:33.6, included Jerod Jones, Dwight Brinson, Joe Holden and Leonard Lucas.

The Seminoles took first places in two of the three open running events Saturday as Andre Jackson won the 120 high hurdles with a season's best 14.5 and Davis blazed to first in the 100 meters at 10.8.

In the field events, Alvin Jones continued to dominate in the triple jump as he took first and broke the meet record with a 47-11½. Roosevelt Buckner leaped to a personal best in the triple jump at 42-11½ which was good for fourth place.

In the long jump, Holden set a personal best and also tied for the Seminole County lead as he soared to 22-4¼ which took third place, less than three inches off the first place jump.

Also placing for the Tribe was Sonny Osborn who took fourth in the pole vault at 11-0.

Lake Howell scored 13 points in the meet with 10 of those coming in a first place effort in the two mile relay. The Hawks' team of Jeff Van Buakirk, Brent Springhart, John Davis and Anthony Howe combined for a time of 8:19.2 which was nearly six seconds better than the second place team.

RAMS RUN TOP MEDLEY

The only relay Lake Mary's Rams ran Saturday at the Florida Relays turned out to be a school-record breaker.

The mile medley relay team of Richard Burkett, Erwin Edwards, Jeff Pommier and Eric Petersen combined for a time of 3:39.8 which was good for fifth place in the meet held at the

Cards By 1, But Don't Bet On It

Who is going to win tonight's NCAA finale? Don't ask me. I picked North Carolina. If it's any consolation, the Tar Heels lost to Louisville, which plays Duke tonight for the title.

If one goes on Saturday's performances, Louisville had the better outing, spurting past Louisiana State in the second half while Duke had its hands full before disposing of Kansas.

Of course, Kansas was a better team than LSU, so the Blue Devils were expected to have more trouble. Anyway, for once it's nice to have a final with the two best teams instead of some Cinderella mashing up the ball.

Louisville's Milt Wagner and Jeff Hall will show Johnny Dawkins and Tommy Amaker who the better backcourt is tonight.

Louisville by 1, but don't bet on it...

The Seminole Athletic Conference baseball race heats up this week with SAC battles on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Oviedo, 3-0, takes on Lake Mary, 2-1, at Lake Mary Wednesday at 3:30. The Rams will go with 8-0 Mike Schmitt while Oviedo counters with 5-1 Craig Duncan.

Lake Howell, 3-1, hosts Lyman at 3:30 Tuesday. The Silver Hawks are hoping for a Lake Mary win to knock the Lions out of the top spot. Seminole, 1-2, and Lake Brantley, 0-4, meet Tuesday at Sanford at 3:30 p.m. Both need to win the rest to have any kind of chance.

Seminole, which plays at Trinity Prep today, will send Brian Sheffield at the Patriots. Sheffield hurled a no-hitter Friday against Lyman. Lake Brantley will pitch Zac Maddox, who returns after being sidelined by academic problems.

Seminole's long power alleys should be a good test for Mike Beams and Mike Davis. Both have eight homers to lead the county. Sheffield (5-4), who was throwing an unhittable curveball Friday, leads in innings (56) and strikeouts (80).

Another interesting matchup will be Thursday at Oviedo when the Lions tangle with Lake Howell. Oviedo coach Howard Mabie will probably go with Scott Bowers while Howell coach Birt Benjamin has his choice. The Hawks have six quality starters in Jim Red, Craig Wagner, Damon Mariette, Kevin Lienard, Greg Hill and David Martin.

In Friday's games, Seminole journeys to Lyman and Lake Mary treks to Lake Brantley...

Pitchers didn't do all the dominating in the Greater Greyhound Invitational at Lyman High last week. Brantley's Davis and Beams had good weeks, combining for five homers while Lake Highland's Rob Helmling smacked three.

Lake Highland and Brantley posted the best records as each was 3-2. Lake Howell and Seminole were 2-2 while Oviedo and Lyman were 2-3. Lake Highland should move up from its No. 9 ranking in the Florida Sports Writers Class 1A Prep Baseball Poll.

The Highlanders didn't have much trouble with the upper class competition...

Anthony Laasac, injured in an automobile accident March 14, is expected to be released from Longwood's South Seminole Community Hospital in a day or two.

Duke's Johnny Dawkins, left, battles Mississippi Valley State's George Ivory for a loose ball. Dawkins and the Blue Devils take on Louisville tonight for the NCAA Division I Championship. The game will be televised by Orlando's WCPX-6 at 9 p.m.

Duke, Louisville Crave Up-Tempo In Finale Tonight

DALLAS (UPI) — Who says the race is not to the swift?

"We like to play an up-tempo game and so does Louisville," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said Sunday.

Said Louisville coach Denny Crum: "We play best with a fast pace, and if that is not good enough against Duke because they are better, then it's not good enough."

College basketball concludes its season tonight beginning at 9:12 EST, at a speedway otherwise known as Reunion Arena. No. 1 Duke meets No. 7 Louisville for the NCAA title in a game between two teams that run strictly on high octane fuel.

The game will be televised beginning at 9 p.m. on Orlando's WCPX-6.

"We are not as good playing slowdown," Crum said. "It's not in our best interest to change now. I don't know if we have an advantage in quickness, but to win at this level, you have to do what you do best."

The Cardinals, 31-7, have won 30 of their last 31, including Saturday's 88-77 victory over Louisiana State in the semifinals.

Duke, 37-2 goes one step better with 21 straight triumphs. The Blue Devils' 71-67 decision over Kansas gave them more single-season victories than any other major college basketball team. They have not lost since Jan. 21 to Georgia Tech.

Duke has appeared in two previous title games, losing to UCLA in 1964 and to Kentucky in 1976. In fact, the Blue Devils have yet to win a national championship in any sport.

The Cardinals have all but filed for residency papers at the Final Four, with four appearances in the last seven years, including an NCAA crown in 1980.

"My main concern is our physical condition," Krzyzewski said. "Yesterday (Saturday) we played a very physical and tough game. I've heard some people say that game wasn't pretty. I didn't know basketball was supposed to be pretty. And beauty is in the eye of the beholder."

There is at least an aesthetic consensus on two players: Johnny Dawkins of Duke and Milt Wagner of Louisville. They can shoot and run and lead. They are two of the best in any backcourt.

"You have to pressure him, keep him outside," Dawkins said of Wagner. "And if he posts up, you have to get in front of him so that they try to throw over you."

Dawkins had 24 points Saturday, and has at least that many in all five tournament games, while sinking 62 percent of his shots. Against Wagner, he faces an opponent three inches taller.

Louisville reserve Robbie Valentine said his roommate, Wagner, is ready for Dawkins.

"It's just another game to him," Valentine said. "He played against Dell Curry (of Virginia Tech) and did a great job on him. We follow the philosophy that if you can't get the ball, you can't score."

The other matchups should go this way: Jeff Hall-Tommy Amaker at guard, Pervis Ellison-Jay Bilas at center, Billy Thompson-Mark Alarie, and Herbert Crook-David Henderson at forward.

"Duke is stronger inside, but we do have a slight height advantage with Ellison (a freshman), although not in game experience," Crum said. "As a duo, their guards are quicker, but we have a height advantage. We have ways of taking advantage of the size of our guards."

For all Duke's success, the Blue Devils are not regarded as a killer team. Their coach, in perhaps some psychological gamesmanship, leads the way.

"I understand that we're not a great team, not a super team," Krzyzewski said. "We don't have great athletes. We have good athletes who play as one."

Crum wants none of such talk: "Everybody says they're not that good. I don't buy that."

Against Kansas, Duke forced Danny Manning and Greg Drelling to foul out. However, Louisville, a deep squad with five starters averaging double figures, is not as vulnerable to such problems.

"We can't do that because of their balance," Krzyzewski said. "Kansas' battery might have been a little lower than Louisville's."

The running game for both teams is triggered by defense. Duke applies a pressure man-to-man; Louisville also goes man-to-man but switches to zone.

"They're ingrained in their system and so are we," Krzyzewski said. "If we're not alert, not fresh, their defense can overpower us."

NCAA THUMBAILS
United Press International

DUKE (37-2)
No. 4 — Tommy Amaker, guard, 6-6, 6.3 ppg. Excellent playmaker with 234 assists and 93 turnovers. Can get the ball to his teammates in the spots they need it. Has excellent quickness. Started three years alongside Dawkins, whose talents he knows best in use.

No. 24 — Johnny Dawkins, guard, 6-2, 30.1 ppg, 3.5 rpg. The dominant player in the East Region. Always involved in the game's turning point. Has tremendous leaping ability, a good outside shot and strong drive to basket. Plays with intelligence and intensity. An All-America with extraordinary endurance.

No. 12 — David Henderson, forward, 6-5, 14.3 ppg, 2.7 rpg. His best games are usually the biggest games, including 30 points against Kansas in Big Apple NIT final.

No. 21 — Jay Bilas, center, 6-8, 6.9 ppg, 4.9 rpg. An intelligent player. Bilas uses his 225 pounds and positioning to overcome a lack of height. Recovered from early-season knee injury. Shoots nearly 40 percent from the floor but only 59 percent from line.

No. 22 — Mark Alarie, forward, 6-8, 17.3 ppg, 6.3 rpg. A very mobile, disciplined player. Alarie uses good positioning to rebound. Has a soft touch which makes him a threat in the 15 to 17-foot range. The senior has started every game of his Duke career.

LOUISVILLE (31-7)
No. 43 — Pervis Ellison, center, 6-9, 30.0 ppg, 12.8 rpg, 6.1 rpg. One of the top freshmen in the country. The outstanding player in the Metro Conference Tournament after a 21-point, 13-rebound show against Memphis State. Has matured quickly and should be one of the country's most talked about players over the next few years.

No. 41 — Herbert Crook, forward, 6-7, 19.0 ppg, 2.9 rpg. An outside shooter who hits 53 percent from floor. Has the fifth best career free throw percentage in school history — 81.3. Averages just 1.3 turnovers a game.

No. 42 — Jeff Hall, guard, 6-4, 18.0 ppg, 10.4 ppg, 2.9 rpg. An outside shooter who hits 53 percent from floor. Has the fifth best career free throw percentage in school history — 81.3. Averages just 1.3 turnovers a game.

No. 25 — Billy Thompson, forward, 6-7, 19.5 ppg, 15.8 ppg, 7.9 rpg. A complete player who can hit the outside shot and crash the boards. From his forward position he is the second leading assist man in school history.

No. 29 — Milt Wagner, guard, 6-5, 18.5 ppg, 14.9 ppg, 4.3 rpg. The third leading scorer in school history who is capable of breaking zones with his outside shot or of penetrating these defenses to set up the big man.

Mahaffey's 71 Good Enough After Mize Collapse

PONTE VEDRA (UPI) — Four years ago, a jubilant Jerry Pate dove into the water off the 18th green after winning the Tournament Players Championship.

Who could blame Larry Mize for wanting to get sloshed Sunday night?

In one of the most glaring collapses in recent PGA history, Mize bogeyed three of the final four holes to blow a three-shot lead, and John Mahaffey posted a one-stroke victory in the TPC, worth $162,000. Mahaffey had his worst round of the tournament, a 71, for a 13-under-par 275, and Mize was on the brink of tears after shooting a 76 for a 276. Mize settled for $97,200 and Tim Simpson was third at 280, earning $61,200.

"I know exactly how Larry feels because I've been in his shoes," said Mahaffey, whose ninth career Tour victory catapulted him from 20th to No. 1 on the 1968 money list. "This is just a tremendous thrill for me. I don't know what else to say. I just told myself to hang in there and be patient toward the end because it was still close enough considering the holes we had left."

Mize, who had 18 birdies and just two bogeys after three rounds for a 16-under 200, began the day four shots ahead of Mahaffey. A birdie at No. 6 gave him a five-shot cushion. Mize bogeyed the next two holes, but birdied No. 9 and took a three-shot margin into the back nine when Mahaffey birdied the eighth hole.

After four straight pars, Mize still led by three strokes, and the leaders each suffered a bogey-5 at 14. And then the deluge.

"I just didn't play when I needed to, and it's very disappointing," said Mize, who bogeyed 15 to see his lead shrink to two shots. "Hats off to John; he hung tough and ended up beating me."

Mahaffey forged a tie at 16 when he birdied and Mize missed from 10 feet for his third straight bogey. Mahaffey made a routine par-3 at the island green at 17, but Mize's tee shot came within five feet. Another putt, another miss.

At the par-4 18th, historically the toughest hole since the TPC came to this course in 1962, Mize chipped to within three feet for par, but misfired again for his sixth bogey of the day. Mahaffey then rolled in a routine 2-footer for par, flipped his visor to the ground and raised both arms in triumph. He grabbed Mize's right hand in empathy, but the dazed runner-up was too limp to shake hands.

"I've had other putting rounds like this, but it just makes it more frustrating when it comes on the last day," Mize said. "I missed too many putts, and you can't do that in the final round of a tournament when you have a chance to win, or else you come up on the short end of the stick."

Jim Thorpe, Tom Kite and Brett Upper

finished six shots back at 281, and John Cook, Jay Haas and 1963 TPC champion, Hal Sutton at 282. With four days of glorious weather bringing a huge turnout to the Tournament Players Club, 59 golfers shot even-par 288 or better.

Mahaffey's biggest Tour triumph came in the 1978 PGA Championship, when he rallied from seven shots back. Sunday's victory was particularly well-timed for the 37-year-old Houston native.

"It seems my (10-year) Tour exemption for winning the PGA Championship is coming up soon and this sets me up until I'm 47," said Mahaffey. "Then I can sneak around for three years and get on the Seniors Tour. My putting has been erratic over the years, but today I was fortunate enough to make the 4-6 foot putts. Starting at the 15th, I pretty much hit shots where I was aiming them. All I can say is I'm glad that's over."

Larry Mize couldn't have said it better.

The Pioneers won 2nd place in the Herdman award, given for the best-kept steer area at the fair.

Alaska Has Nice Summers, Too

DEAR ABBY: I was astonished by your reply to "Annoyed Canadian." It is apparent that many people have misconceptions about Alaska. As congressman for all Alaska, I can assure you that we, too, have "beautiful summers, dress like most Americans (we are Americans), and live in houses just like you do." While some in the "bush" or outlying areas may use dog sleds for travel, most people in Alaska use cars, planes and boats as do those in the "lower 48."

I've enclosed a travel guide to give you a better idea of what our state is like. Better yet, do come to the Great Land and see for yourself. Best regards,
DON YOUNG, CONGRESSMAN FOR ALL ALASKA

DEAR REP. YOUNG: Thank you for your gracious letter. I don't know where my head was when I told a reader that he must have been thinking of Alaska when he mistakenly assumed that all Canadians lived in igloos, traveled by dog sled and dressed like lumberjacks. I know that you have beautiful warm summers, and I was also aware that your annual dog sled races had been recently canceled, due to "no snow."

Please forgive my colossal goof. I really knew better. However, my Alaskan gaffe brought me an unexpected bonus. Robert Atwood, editor and publisher of the Anchorage Times, invited me to Anchorage to see the truth firsthand.

I also received the following editorial from the Juneau Empire:

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a gentleman who was born and raised in Iran. I am an American-born woman. He speaks very little English, but there is a very strong physical attraction between us that I have never known before. He is decent, honest, hard-working and gentle.

When we are together he makes my heart sing as it has never sung before. His inability to converse socially in English is a little frustrating at times, but he certainly knows how to make a woman feel important and thoroughly loved. Should I marry him?

Community Colostomy Club May Help Adjust

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 52, recently had an operation for colon cancer and ended up with an ostomy bag for the rest of my life. I find the thing cumbersome and uncomfortable. I am an active farmer and rancher and would like to continue in that occupation. Do you have any information concerning diet, gas and bowel control, hygiene, etc.?

DEAR READER — Many communities have colostomy clubs to help people adjust to their ostomies. Check at your hospital or with your surgeon for a club or endostomal therapist in your area. Also, you may get more information from the United Ostomy Association, 2001 W. Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90057.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What can you tell me about acrocyanosis (vasospastic disease)?

DEAR READER — Acrocyanosis, also known as Raynaud's phenomenon, can affect the hands and the feet. It is characterized by recurring attacks of vascular spasm that cause fingers and toes to turn reddish blue, become cold and sweat excessively. Sometimes the affected tissue can feel numb or tingly. The spasm is usually brought on by mental stress, tobacco smoke or exposure to cold. The fingers may help, but patients almost always have to give up cigarettes and protect their hands and feet from cold.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband is a heavy drinker and smoker. Four years ago, he was diagnosed with leukoplakia around his larynx. Now another doctor says he sees no sign of it. Where did it go? He has a horrible cough, choking spells and tires easily, but because there is no leukoplakia and his chest X-ray is OK, he thinks he is fine. Please give me your opinion.

DEAR READER — Leukoplakia are whitish precancerous plaques that form on the lining of the mouth and upper respiratory tract. They are common in smokers. They may come and go, enlarge, change or disappear. Your husband must have an active fantasy life if he thinks he is "fine." The combination of heavy cough, easy fatigue and previous leukoplakia in a heavy smoker and drinker is enough to give most doctors the willies. Aside from the usual health problems associated with tobacco and alcohol, people who smoke and drink excessively have several times the normal rate of throat cancer. Even with a normal chest X-ray, your husband had better clean up his act before it's too late.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Miguel Reygadas is one of the most highly regarded players in Mexico. Watch how, as the West defender in today's deal, Miguel created an alternative in the play for the declarer, causing him to be set in a contract that would normally be made. The bidding requires some explanation. North-South were using a one no-trump response to a major-suit opening bid as forcing, a response used to describe a wide variety of hands. When South rebid two hearts, promising a six-card suit, North went right to game in hearts, figuring that there was no scientific way to precisely evaluate his minor suit values plus singleton spade. Reygadas led his singleton club. Declarer won the club queen in dummy and played a low diamond, won by West's ace. Now came a low spade to East's ace, and East returned a club. Miguel ruffed and played back a diamond. Declarer won in dummy and cashed another high diamond, throwing two spades from his hand, and then led dummy's 10 of hearts. When East played low, South put in the queen, and what card did Miguel Reygadas smoothly play on that heart queen? Of course — the jack! If you now place yourself in the position of hapless South, would you not assume that the heart king was still guarded in East's hand? That was declarer's view, and he promptly played a club to get back to dummy's ace so he could take another heart finesse. Just as promptly, Reygadas took the setting trick with the lowly four of hearts. Ole, Miguel!

What The Day Will Bring...
YOUR BIRTHDAY APRIL 1, 1986
Interests that are of great personal importance to you will be advanced in the year ahead in unusual manners. Sources you'd least expect will be the ones that will prove to be the most helpful.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be lucky today, provided you focus your attention on a practical objective. Don't let your eye drift from one target to another. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Success won't elude you today if you maintain a positive attitude. Don't let self-doubts sneak in and gain the upper hand.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) To make your presence felt today, you might be tempted to unwisely change something that friends have going in the proper direction.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) A partnership arrangement will fizzle today unless you and your associate are in complete accord. Discuss your differences before making a move.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're apt to be quite lucky today in your commercial affairs, but things might not be equally as rosy where your social interests are concerned.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Good judgment and common sense will tell you how to handle a delicate issue today. Don't ignore them and chart an unknown course.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things will work out as you hope if you proceed with your present line of action. Problems could develop if you begin making changes.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People who are performing work or service for you today must be handled tactfully. If you get too bossy, the quality of what they produce will fall.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial conditions may be a mixed bag for you today. You have the potential to add to your resources as well as to drain them.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions in general appear favorable for your today, provided you don't have to deal with an arrogant associate who always leaves trouble in his wake.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might get involved in something today that will be a bargain in one sense, yet could be costly in a way not immediately obvious.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're socializing with friends today, let go and enjoy yourself. But don't overindulge your wallet or tummy.
