Chemical experts visit Tehran

MANAMA, Bahrain — A U.S. team of chemical warfare experts arrived in Tehran today to investigate charges of Iraqi chemical weapons attacks on Iran while cease-fire talks on the Iran-Iraq war were being held in New York.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the team will investigate an Iranian complaint that Iraqi warplanes wounded more than 1,000 civilians when they dropped chemical bombs last week on a border town.

The team included Dr. Erik Bahlgren of Sweden, Col. Ulrich Imobersteg of Switzerland, Dr. Al Van Brist of the Netherlands and Geneva-based Vincente Berasategui.

Martinez signs death warrants

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez signed death warrants for three death row inmates Thursday, including one convicted of rape and murdering a 14-year-old woman.

Corrections officials scheduled the execution of Stephen Todd Booker and Leslie Lee Huff for 7 a.m. on Tuesday, September 20. Jason Thomas Deaton was scheduled for execution at 7 a.m. on Tuesday, October 11.

Booker was convicted of the November 1967 murder of Lorraine Demoss, Harman of Gainesville.

Huff was sentenced to die for the February 1978 murder of Carol Hurst near Leesburg. Hurst, 21, was seven months pregnant when she was killed.

Deaton was sentenced to death for the May 1984 murder of Sarah Campanella in Broward County.

Gilder scalds PGA course

EDMOND, Okla. — The wind, Dick Tice's major defense, was absent from the first round of the PGA Championship, allowing him to play the entire day without setting a record on the course.

Dick Tice was feared by the players as a sleeping monster which needed only a steady wind to awake. But the wind was calm Thursday and the players, dropping iron shots onto the soft greens right to the pin, responded with a PGA Championship record 14 scores under par. The top players were Ross and Phil.

Gilder led the 140-man field with a 68, 69, 67, 68, a total score of 272, one stroke under the course record.

UCF football practice starts

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida had its opening day of practice Thursday afternoon and had the biggest turnout of fans to date for a school history.

Kick-off for the 1988 season was held at McDowell Field, where all the school athletes came together and put together another fine season. UCF made its first trip to the NCAA Division II playoffs last season before being signed by the State when it moved to the Sun Belt Conference.

Last hours after receiving the heart and lung transplant, he kept him from leaving the hospital. Chuck Suggs, laughing with his mother, said he had a good day at the hospital. He said he was happy to see his mother and father.

His whole life, his mother, I. Brink said, "I was in the hospital on the streets."

It took 10 months since Edward Pat Suggs left for London with the hope of finding a donor for their 10-year-old son. His condition over the past few months had been reported worse than ever. The boy's heart and lungs were failing.

The mother, 42-year-old, said she was in the hospital when Chuck was born. She said she was in the hospital when Chuck was born. She said she was in the hospital when Chuck was born.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Direct talks with Iran may begin soon

WASHINGTON — Senior U.S. officials have sent several "feelers" to Iran about restoring diplomatic relations and are privately predicting direct talks will begin "over the next six months," administration sources say.

With Iran's acceptance of a cease-fire in its long war with Iraq, "suddenly everyone is thinking big," in the words of one administration official.

Interviewed recently on the condition of anonymity, the various sources said President Reagan is prepared to restore relations if the revolutionary regime of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini provides firm assurances for the security of a reopened U.S. embassy, agrees to help win freedom for American hostages in Lebanon and ceases support for terrorist groups around the world.

Administration officials acknowledged that some White House factions are pushing for a full resumption of relations before the November elections to boost Vice President George Bush's presidential hopes.

State Department specialists, however, called such a scenario "highly unlikely" and noted Iran's radical government simply may be unwilling to accept U.S. demands.

Monday, the United Nations announced a cease-fire effective Aug. 20 between Iran and Iraq, the first truce in their eight-year-old war. Even before the formal announcement, relations between the United States and Iran showed new signs of thawing, despite the public outcry from Tehran following the Navy's fatal downing of Iran Air Flight 655 over the Persian Gulf July 3.

New attorney general takes oath today

WASHINGTON — Richard Thornburgh, unanimously confirmed by the Senate to be the nation's 76th attorney general, today awaited merely his oath of office to replace Edwin Meese as head of the embattled Justice Department.

A White House ceremony was arranged for the event and Meese called a farewell news conference that he had postponed by 24 hours as the Senate voted 85-0 for Thornburgh Thursday. The timing allowed Meese, viewed as a political liability for Republicans, to depart before next week's GOP National Convention.

Thornburgh, 56, is a former Pennsylvania governor and leader of the Justice Department's criminal division who was tapped by President Reagan to replace his longtime friend and adviser plagued by legal and ethical questions.

Meese, 56, was the subject of an independent prosecutor's 14-month criminal investigation that produced no indictment but provoked repeated calls for his immediate resignation, calls he rejected with Reagan's unwavering support.

House condemns South Africa policies

WASHINGTON — The House dramatically condemned the "moral disgrace" of South Africa's racial policies with its vote for a virtual U.S. trade embargo against the white-ruled nation that supporters and critics alike compared to economic warfare.

The prohibitions on American business investment or trade with South Africa would exempt a vital area — the import of minerals considered strategic to the U.S. defense and airline industry.

But all Republican amendments to weaken or kill the bill were crushed as the measure was approved 244-132 Thursday and sent to the Senate, where it faces a strong challenge in the last weeks of Congress's election-year session.

President Reagan's veto of limited sanctions against South Africa in 1986 was overturned by Congress and enacted into law, he still contends more punishment would wreck any progressive U.S. influence on the government in Pretoria.

WORLD BRIEFS

Officials fear violence will escalate

BANGKOK, Thailand — Burmese anti-government protesters today reacted with anger and disappointment to a government statement that failed to deliver expected changes and troops prepared for an escalation in the violence that may have killed up to 1,000 people, Rangoon-based diplomats say.

At least 20 people were killed Thursday as troops battled more than 10,000 anti-government protesters who braved gunfire to trap security forces and torch government buildings in the fourth straight day of demonstrations to oust tough new President Sein Lwin.

"People think it's going to get even more violent now," said one diplomat contacted by telephone from Bangkok.

Gaza residents attack Israeli army patrol

JERUSALEM — Israeli soldiers shot and killed a Palestinian man today and wounded another when several residents of a Gaza refugee camp armed with axes and clubs attacked an Israeli army patrol, the army said.

Residents of the Dheishleh refugee camp outside Bethlehem clashed with soldiers early today and a curfew was imposed on the camp, 6 miles south of Jerusalem, state-run Israel Radio said.

In the Maghazi refugee camp in Gaza, several residents armed with axes, clubs and chains attacked an army patrol shortly after midnight, an army spokesman said.

The soldiers opened fire, killing Road Suleiman Mandil, 23, and wounding a second man, the spokesman said. Mandil had attacked soldiers in previous demonstrations, the spokesman said. A third man who allegedly participated in today's attack was arrested.

At least 232 Palestinians and three Israelis have been killed in the 8-month-old uprising against Israeli occupation.

Iran exploring Lebanon hostage situation

LONDON — The Iranian Embassy says Tehran is exploring ways to find foreign hostages kidnapped in Lebanon after talks between the archbishop of Canterbury and an Iranian official raising new hopes for the release of missing Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite.

Church and Foreign Office officials said Thursday that the Iranian official, Reza Said Mohamed, met with Archbishop Robert Runcie Wednesday afternoon shortly after arriving in London for a two-day visit.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Iranian envoy had not requested any meetings with government officials.

In a brief statement before leaving for a vacation in Philadelphia, Runcie said he felt it best not to give details about the meeting.

"I believe that everyone who is genuinely concerned about the improvement in Anglo-Iranian relations and about the British hostages in Lebanon will recognize that there are times when progress can only be made quietly," he said.

Iranian Charge d'Affaires Mohammed Basti expressed optimism about the fate of the captive foreigners.

Food supply abundant despite drought

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States will have plenty of food to feed its citizens and to sell to foreign customers even though the unrelenting drought is likely to chop grain production by nearly one-third, the government says.

In addition, the drought should add only one percentage point to the Consumer Price Index for food this year and only two points next year, according to the Agriculture Department. Each point costs a family of four an estimated $50.

The department, in its most accurate measurement yet of drought damage, said Thursday that grain production this year should total 197 million metric tons, 31 percent below last year. In July, a 21 percent drop was projected.

Large reductions are forecast in the size of America's top two cash crops, corn and soybeans. The nation produces 40 percent of the world's corn and the crop is estimated to sink 37 percent. Soybeans should be down 23 percent.

Only the winter wheat crop, which matured just as the drought intensified, remained untouched. The spring and durum wheat crops, grown in the hard-hit Northern Plains, were cut in half to 266 million bushels, according to the department's monthly crop report.

The report was issued just hours after President Reagan signed into law a $3.9 billion drought relief measure to give disaster payments to farmers who lose more than 35 percent of a crop.

Today's reports confirm that the drought has had a major impact on this year's crops," said Assistant Agriculture Secretary Ewen Wilson. "But because of large pre-season stocks, total supplies are enough in most cases to assure an adequate food supply at home, satisfy foreign customers and meet our food aid commitments."

Even with a small crop this year, the United States should have a three-month supply of corn when next year's harvest starts, Wilson explained. The crop is now forecast at 4.48 billion bushels.

"The impact would be catastrophic" however if the country sees a similar drought next year, Wilson said. Fortunately that prospect is unlikely.

According to the government, soybeans are expected to come in this year at 1.47 billion bushels, the smallest crop since 1976, the overall wheat crop should be 1.82 billion bushels, the smallest since 1978.

The barley crop is estimated at 287 million bushels; cotton is seen at 14.9 million bales; rice is forecast at 152.5 million hundredweight and oats are expected at 206 million bushels — the smallest crop in more than a century.

Corn, wheat and soybeans are the three major U.S. crops. Wheat, the chief food grain, is used in bread, pastries and bakery goods while durum wheat is used in pasta. Corn is used mainly in meat production, but also for food and by industry. Soybeans are fed to livestock as well as used in food products.

Wilson said the department is maintaining its estimate of a one-point change in the Consumer Price Index for food

Economists: Interest rates no reason to panic

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Americans have no reason to panic about the chances of another stock market crash even if financial markets reflect some gloom and anxiety about rising interest rates, economists say.

Though the Federal Reserve Board's discount rate hike Sept. 4 was blamed as a catalyst of the Oct. 19 stock plunge, the central bank's decision to push the discount benchmark up again this week does not forebode a repeat performance, according to several experts. "Financial markets around the world, particularly in the United States, are going to be nervous now," acknowledged Allen Sinai, chief economist of The Boston Co., a major American commercial banks raised their prime lending rate Thursday in response to the Fed action.

"These are bear markets — so investors should take appropriate action, which means to be defensive," Sinai continued. Nevertheless, he said, "I think the lesson from the crash remains that a decline in the stock market does not necessarily translate into a bad economy."

The economy shook off the ill effects of the stock market's "Black Monday" and not only avoided recession but is growing a robust 3.5 percent this year and moving toward full employment.

That growth and consumer demand has contributed to inflationary pressures, however, and the Fed's discount rate hike from 6 percent to 6.5 percent Tuesday was designed to cool things down. Rising wages and high prices for imports are helping drive up the cost of living, now running at about 4.5 percent, and the current drought is expected to boost food prices even more.

The discount hike thus was prudent monetary policy, several analysts agreed, yet financial markets still greeted it with an intense two-day selling spree that depressed stock prices by nearly 70 points.

The value of the dollar also was affected, moving up sharply on foreign currency exchanges

Computer addicts keep spending till they're spent

DEAR ABBY: We have a computer addict in our office. He's the office manager. He comes to work at 5 a.m. so he can "work" on his computer before anyone comes in to interrupt him. He's here on Saturday and Sunday, too! In the last three years, he has spent a fortune of the company's money on computers, printers, software, etc.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Before the rest of us have time to learn a program, it's been replaced with an "updated" version. We have an accounting package installed with all the extras, such as report generators, built-in spreadsheets, payroll modules, a network, etc., but nothing ever works right, which gives him a perfect opportunity to spend more time playing with the computer—trying to "fix" it. He never gets enough.
 Everyone in this office has a computer on his desk whether he needs it or not. I won't even tell you how much we spend every month on computer paper, ribbons and other supplies to keep all the hardware running. The owners of this company would be flabbergasted if they knew that their money is being spent on the manager's hobby.
 Well, Abby, I think you get the picture. I'm sure there are many other offices just like ours. Computers are marvelous machines, but for the most part, they are fascinating toys for people who need to play. Sign me...

CONTROL C.
 DEAR CONTROL C.: Computers have revolutionized the business world, but there are many who are intimidated by them. Read on for a teenager's evaluation.

DEAR ABBY: I'm only 13, but I think I have the right to write to you. I'm writing about the people who write to you saying they think computers are a big waste of time.

Well, here's my opinion: I think computers are fun, but really, people are becoming too dependent upon them. I think they should get off their butts and figure things out for themselves.

After all, that's why we go to school, isn't it? It's true what you said. Next year there will be more computer junk to suck more of your hard-earned money up! It stinks! So tell people to use their brains! That's what God gave us brains for, right? By the way, I love your column. Disgustingly yours, ANGELA ISAACSON OF WASH.

DEAR ABBY: People who criticize their fellow office workers for playing computer games and doing useless computer work on company time usually fall into one of the following categories:
 —People who hope to hang on until they retire so they won't have to learn how to operate "those things."
 —Administrators who command someone else to learn to use the new computer because they are too busy shuffling paper to learn anything new themselves.
 —Workers who are afraid that one of those instruments from outer space will take over their jobs.

Ninety percent of computer-literate managers would love to have the problem of telling their workers to stop playing computer games. When I go into the office, I see far more useless talking and eating than game-playing. More often than not, the new computer sits unused on a corner of a desk while the electric typewriters type like they did in the good old days—mainly because no training time is given, or people are too lazy to learn how to use something new.

Fall vegetables begin with summer garden

Planting time for a fall vegetable garden is only a few weeks away. Even though summer is still with us, now is a good time to begin to plan and prepare for a garden.

The first consideration in planning your garden is where the best location will be. A garden should be convenient to the house so it will be handy to work in. Also, it should be near a faucet so watering will not be a problem. But most important in choosing a location is providing good light, and the garden should be located where it can get a lot of sunlight all day long.

In most backyards, you probably will have to choose between morning and afternoon sun. Full sun, especially in Florida, is better in the morning for growing vegetables. If your area does not get full sun all day, plant crops such as tomatoes, corn, potatoes, cucumbers, melon and most root crops in the best area of sun you have. Leafy crops like lettuce can tolerate more shade.

Good soil is an important factor too, but most of us have to do the best we can with the soil we have. Getting the soil ready to plant likely will be the most physical part of your whole gardening project.

GARDENING

Don't compromise by cutting corners with this phase of garden preparation. If you are planning a large garden, you may want to rent a Rototiller, but most backyard gardens can be prepared with a spade and shovel. If your area is weedy or has a cover crop, you may have to wait a few weeks for the material to decompose once you turn it over. You also might remove a and start a compost pile.

To prepare the soil, dig down 6-8 inches and turn each shovelful completely over. After the soil is turned, break up all clods and level the area with a rake. The more you pulverize your soil, the easier it will be to plant and the greater will be your success in growing vegetables.

Veggie advice

1. Select a sunny location—one that receives at least 4-6 hours of sun.
2. Break up or remove large clumps of soil, grass, etc.
3. Fumigate the garden with Vapam for nematodes and soil borne diseases (needs 3 weeks before planting.)
4. Get a soil test done at the Agriculture Center if you haven't had one in the last few years.
5. Add fertilizer, lime or sulfur according to soil test recommendations.
6. Now go ahead and plant.

After your soil is prepared, it's a good idea to have your soil tested if it hasn't been done recently. A pH test, conducted at the Seminole County Agriculture Center for $1, will indicate if your soil is acid or alkaline—in other words, whether or not you need to add lime. To take a good soil sample, use a hand trowel to collect several 6- to 8-inch "cores" of soil in various locations in the garden. Mix these samples together in a bucket and remove one pint of soil and bring it to the Agriculture Center (located off U.S. Highway 17-92 and south of Sanford).

For an extra dollar, the center will conduct a soluble salt test to determine any need for fertilizer. But if your garden has been tested over the years with good results, or you have regularly fertilized it without problems, chances are you may skip this part of soil preparation. When you receive your results from this test, the center makes recommendations on adding lime or fertilizer so you can amend your soil. Now you are ready to plant!

For more information on preparing your vegetable garden and on other topics, the Cooperative Extension Service is offering a fall vegetable garden program at the Seminole County Agriculture Center Auditorium on Thursday, Sept. 1, from 7-8:30 p.m. The basics of vegetable gardening from preparing the garden to warding off insects and plant diseases will be covered.

Good Sam's crowns royal duo

The fifth annual crowning of Good Samaritan Home's King and Queen was held July 30 with the honored two being Charlie Craig and Beatrice Green.

This royal couple will reign for the 1988 King and Queen Year. Runner-ups were Ruth Carter and Fred Pittman.

The crowning was highlighted by entertainment from several groups. Mr. and Mrs. Lucious Brown sang two beautiful selections, and their 4-year-old daughter, Tonya, entertained with a solo. Renee Singleton and Alicia and Tinesha Wells performed a ballet routine, and Good Sam's own Lucy Francois sang in her native tongue, Haiti. The final selection, rendered by Victor Nathan and Larry Harrison, was a spiritual rap song that the young men composed themselves.

Citizens for a Better Sanford will hold a festive rally on Saturday, August 13, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the corner of West 13th Street and Lake Avenue.

The rally will include voter education, voter registration, and a chance to meet political candidates. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided throughout the day.

Musical entertainers and persons wishing to participate will contact Algerine Miller-Hamilton at 322-5857 after 5:30 p.m.

Citizens for a Better Sanford exists to make blacks aware of their political duties.

Crooms Academy Class Reunion for the years of 1927 to '47 will meet Sunday, Aug. 14, at Trinity United Methodist Church, Sanford Avenue and Sixth Street. All graduates and students who attended Crooms Academy during those years are invited to attend the planning session. J. G. Harold and K. J. Alexander are chairmen.

Trauma recurs at anniversary times

DEAR DR. GOTT: I developed schizophrenia in 1951. The two acute episodes occurred on anniversaries of particularly emotional events in my life. Could you please discuss the "anniversary reaction"?

balance had a bitter anniversary was put into a more healthy perspective.

To give you more general information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box

DEAR READER: Anniversaries are an important part of our culture and are influential in our personal lives. Most of us accept anniversaries with varying degrees of deference and enthusiasm. We tend to be happy on certain anniversaries, such as Christmas and other birthdays, and sad at other memorable times, such as the anniversary of the death of a loved one or a public figure.

Such anniversaries mean more — or less — to each of us, depending on the type of emotional investment we have in them.

Patients with emotional disorders sometimes are affected too greatly by anniversaries. A memorable event, far from becoming dim with time, may seem to take on a life of its own. It may become increasingly more important — even though it is merely a date on the calendar. To the extent that emotionally disturbed people focus on anniversaries to the detriment of their lives in general, treatment may be necessary. Obsessive behavior in any context is abnormal.

Anniversary reactions do occur. In my view, they must be treated as any other behavioral malfunction, depending on their seriousness. For example, I once knew a woman who became suicidal on the anniversary of her divorce, even though the event occurred several years previously. Every year, on a certain date, she became a threat to herself. With therapy and the judicious use of antidepressant drugs, she was finally able to overcome her intense feelings of rage, guilt and insecurity. She recovered once a

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Although much of bridge is played with hard numbers and percentages, some elements of poker crop up on occasion. Bluffing can occur in the bidding, and certainly deception can play a part in defense. At a regional tournament in Tulsa last June, Ed Zechum came up with a smooth deceptive defense that caused declarer to misplace the key cards.

Ed was West, on lead against three no-trump. Naturally he led a club. Declarer won in hand and played a second club to dummy's jack. Ed won the queen and casually switched to the queen of diamonds. What was South to presume about the location of the diamond ace? If West held ace of clubs, queen of spades and A-Q-J of diamonds, he might have led something over one spade. At any rate, declarer played low on the queen of diamonds. Declarer still assumed that the ace of diamonds was with East. If West had started with the Q-J of diamonds doubleton, it was still safe to let the diamond jack win the trick. And that's what South did. Imagine South's surprise and chagrin when West now cashed the diamond ace and club ace to set the contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books. (C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Save your Confederate money

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

"The South will rise again," has long been the post battle cry of diehard Rebels. And with national economic focus shifting below the Mason-Dixon line, those words have a ring of truth not anticipated in their origin in 1865.

And irony of ironies, the ultimate symbol of the Confederate States of America, the paper money printed by the national and state governments and Southern towns and never backed by silver or gold, is gaining recognition and monetary value as a collectible.

A numismatist, who asked to be identified only by the name West to protect himself from robbers, said he remembers when the only value assigned to Confederate cash was, "to paper your bathroom with it."

In recent years, that's changed he said, as collectors have begun to recognize the 'antiquity,' history, and subtle characteristics of Confederate money. A common Confederate bill, no matter what the denomination, today is valued at about $10, West said. But some rare issues command up to $25,000 as a collectible.

CBS gets ready for the Republicans

July was the month of the donkey, as the Democrats took over Atlanta for their national convention. Now it's the Republicans' turn. From Monday, August 15 through Thursday, August 18, the Republican National Convention takes place in New Orleans. All three networks will cover it in prime time.

One of the primary criticisms of the Republican Conventions has been that the Democrats are invariably more interesting, filling their time with squabbles and debates and putting on a better show. Lane Venardos, who is in charge of convention coverage for CBS, agrees.

"The Democrats tend to be more unsettled," he says. "That does make them more interesting. You're never sure what to expect. They also have to be more inventive. When you consider that one whole evening of the Republican Convention will be given over to a tribute to the president, you realize that the Republicans have to worry less about what to do with all that time."

But Venardos does have to worry about just that. "I have almost 10 hours of prime-time TV to fill," he explains. "Which of course is great, in a way. Few people get that chance in a lifetime. But I have to decide what on earth to put on there, what to cover."

Venardos describes his job as "having the right people in the right place at the right time. I have to decide which correspondents to use, how to deal with the space, which is usually inadequate. A lot of it is dictated by the themes the parties choose, so you know what to focus on and can create the materials in advance."

But basically, Venardos concedes, the conventions have become pretty dull. "Everyone has some brains, but they try not to use them," he says. "They might do something berserk, and people would think they were off the wall. Things are pretty routine. People try not to be spontaneous. But viewers will watch anyway, because there's an inherent interest in the political process."

Warren Mitofsky, the director of CBS's election unit, also concurs that the Republican proceedings will be pretty tame. "CBS is the only network that interviews every delegate and keeps track of them," he says. "We've been doing that since 1968, so that makes the conventions pretty interesting."

The Republican National Convention opens Monday in New Orleans. All three networks, CNN and C-SPAN will provide coverage through Thursday. The above photo is from the 1984 convention.

Confederacy

Confederate money was issued in various designs by individual Southern cities and states as well as the government itself. The more obscure the town, and thus the rarer the bills it produced, the greater the value of the old bills today, West said.

From 1861 through 1865, the years of the War Between the States, the Confederacy issued about one billion dollars in currency. This was in addition to a second billion dollars issued by cities, states, banks and railroads. The currency was good only in the South, and was not accepted by foreign nations supplying the South in the war years, West said.

"They used U.S. currency before the war," West said. "They issued this because they were broke. The Confederacy was always broke."

Authentic Confederate bills, which range in face values of $1 to $100, but which have absolutely no value other than as a collectible, all are signed by two persons. Depending on the notoriety of the signer, they may also be sought by autograph seekers, West said.

When some Confederate bills were cashed the signatures were cut off, thus leaving a legacy of such altered bills, West said, although many bills remain intact.

Each issuer of Confederate cash created an individual design for the bills which were all produced on the same type of very light, crisp paper. Richmond, Virginia was a big producer, thus today bills from Richmond don't have the rare status of those say from Milledgeville, Georgia, West said.

Incorporated into some designs were soldiers, Indian maidens, slaves in the fields, and even George Washington. Other bills feature tributes to railroads and steamships, or mythological figures.

Bills for fractional portions of a dollar were also issued, West said. "They weren't as common, but they were printed," he said, by the Confederacy, which did not mint any coins. Some Southern individuals, West said, did mint tokens, which were used as pennies in trade.

Although use of Confederate currency was limited to the South and its true value even in the war era was no more than the paper on which it was printed, West said, Southerners were "dead serious" about their cash. "They thought they were going to win the war," and would then have reserves to back the cash. "This is the kind of currency we would use today if they had won the war. There would be something to back it up. You've heard the saying 'Save your Confederate money. The South's going to rise again?' — That's not going to work."

But Confederate cash is no longer worthless. In the past couple of decades, West said, collectors have caught onto Confederate currency, just as they have caught onto anything with a bit of age and history behind it.

"Somebody will collect most anything," said West, a native of Alabama who said he has no real interest in Confederate bills, because they have no basic monetary value as do old U.S. bills.

"This is part of history. It's part of our history whether we like it or not. There was a Civil War," West said, and some collectors of Confederate cash are sentimental Southerners who won't let go of the hopes and dreams of the past.

Although Confederate money is common, West said, much of what is found is counterfeit, from the war era. "For every good Confederate bill you find, you probably find 10 reproductions. It's not illegal to reproduce it like it is U.S. money. Confederate money was devalued after the war and has no value as money."

Clues to the authenticity of Confederate bills, West said, lie with the signatures, which should have been made in brown ink, which in many cases seeped through the bill to mark it on back as well as on the front.

Caches of Confederate cash still turn up today, although West said, he believes most is now in circulation from dealer to collector, to dealer.

As the collection cycle continues and grows, West said, it's only logical to expect the value of these once worthless bills to grow.

UNIVERSAL CENTRE, 460 CASSADAGA RD., CASSADAGA, FL.

Are Bob and Frank really good pals?

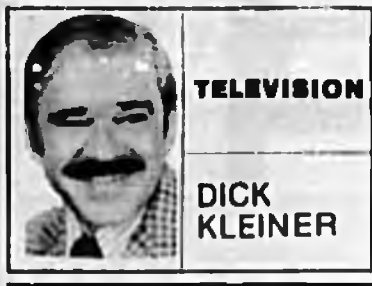

Q. I thought years ago that Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra were great friends. Am I wrong, or what happened to that relationship? — M.B., York, Pa.

A. Hope and Sinatra were never close friends. Their life styles were dissimilar. Their interests have varied. And their personalities are totally different. It was Bing Crosby who was Bob Hope's good friend, not Sinatra.

Q. When "Matlock" first came on the air, a lovely young girl played his daughter. Why did she leave the show? She was a living doll, so cute and dainty. Is she doing anything else now? — P. T., Corpus Christi, Texas.

A. Linda Purl is the living doll in question. She left because she felt the part was not as exciting and challenging as she would have liked. So she is doing other things. For example, she just finished shooting a TV movie for CBS, with Harry Anderson and Ed Begley Jr. The working title is "Spies, Lies and Naked Thighs." It will be shown next season.

TELEVISION

DICK KLEINER

A. Remind me to stay away from Morgantown when the moon is full. Anyhow, try a joke shop or a costume shop.

Q. A friend and I have had a disagreement over who played Buckwheat on "The Little Rascals." He bet me a Coke that it was Eddie Murphy. I said it couldn't be him, because those are very old. — L.H., Marshall, Ariz.

A. You are right about Eddie Murphy. He was born in 1961. The "Our Gang" comedies, which were released on TV as "Little Rascals," were made in the 1930s and '40s. Buckwheat was played by a little boy who used the name Buckwheat Thomas.

Q. The actor who played Gary Cooper's opponent in the famous street gun duel in "High Noon" was unnamed during the credits. He was my company companion during World War II, but I have forgotten his name. Can you help? — B.J.G., Bristol, Tenn.

A. Ian MacDonald was the actor who played Frank Miller in that memorable film.

Q. Can you tell me if the man who plays Paul Drake Jr. on "Perry Mason" is Della Street's son? What is his name? — Unsigned, Houston.

Q. We have a dinner at Tony's riding on this answer. Are Willie on "Family" and Paul Drake Jr. on the new "Perry Mason" shows one and the same? — SUE V., Spring, Texas.

A. William Katt plays Paul Drake Jr. on the "Perry Mason" dramas. He is the son of Barbara Hale, who played Della Street. He is not the same person as Gary Frank, the actor who played Willie on "Family."

Dear Dick: Was there ever a movie called "Blue Veil" with Jane Wyman and Charles Laughton? It was the first movie I ever saw, when I was in elementary school. But maybe I am wrong about the title. —

M.E.D., Montoursville, Pa.

Dear M.E.D.: No, you are right, although it did have a "The" in front of it. It was released in '51 and starred Miss Wyman, Laughton and Joan Blondell.

Dear Dick: Where have I seen Christine Lahti before, besides "Just Between Friends"? — M.H., Houston.

Dear M.H.: She practically stole "Swing Shift" from under Goldie Hawn's cute little nose, and she can now be seen in "Housekeeping."

Amateur jazzmen live out fantasies

United Press International

BROWNSVILLE, Va. — In real life, Ronald Helman is an attorney in Pennsylvania, but for one heady week each summer, he dusts off his baritone saxophone and abandons the bar for the bandstand.

Herschel Epstein owns two clothing businesses in Chicago, but manages every year to temporarily exchange his workaday world for the life of a jazzman.

For $850, Epstein, Helman and dozens of other professionals — doctors, dentists, salesmen, architects and insurance agents — spend a week playing in a big band also stocked with professional musicians.

Jazz Vermont, the brainchild of Portsmouth, N.H., attorney Byron Stegal, is now in its fourth year of bringing together big band bulls from across the country for five days of rehearsals, workshops, jam sessions, performances and conversation about the music they love.

Like the baseball camps that give paunchy businessmen a chance to play alongside the retired professionals they idolized in their youth, Jazz Vermont offers closet musicians the opportunity to realize their own private dreams.

For many of the partier-pants, Jazz Vermont has rekindled the desire to play instruments that may have lain unused in the attic during decades spent forging careers and building families.

"Jazz Vermont allows people to experience the joy, that's the only way of describing it, of playing in a big band," Stegal said.

GUIDING LIGHT
Nanni (Salsola) got nervous when Jack hired detective Edward Miller to look for Will. Nanni (Salsola) secretly phoned Will's mother, Mrs. Yastro, and told her that Will had disappeared and was presumed dead. Alan returned to Springfield with Neva. Blake got some good publicity for Spaulding Enterprises when Phillip arranged to send water to drought-stricken farmers via low-costed trucks. Later, when a Spaulding employee mistook a shipment of oil with a truck load of water, Neva turned when he overheard Phillip tell the press that Lewis Oil was responsible for the mix up. Phillip was stunned when he looked up during his press conference and spotted Alan. Alan Michael was furious when he learned that she can't teach her trust fund until he's 25. Jack admitted that he still has trouble accepting the fact that Marni isn't his child. Dinah told Neva that she loves Cameron.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS
Laurina breathed a sigh of relief after she was able to slip Jack a copy of "Ruthless" that didn't include the chapter about Victor and Ashley's romance. The Aldott family gave Jessica a warm welcome when John brought her to his home and announced that they're going to get married after all. John didn't tell his family that Jessica has AIDS. John confided to Jessica that he doesn't care if they can't make love because she has AIDS. Carol's rival, Samantha, fumed when Skip lavished attention on Carol when she rode a bicycle alongside Skip while he was jogging. George told Paul that he wants him to keep Cassander under surveillance until they find out the identity of the man that she has been seen with lately. Nina lied to Chase that Phillip is her brother. Lauren set out to win Paul back. Marc got angry when Jill refused to give him a case.

LOVING
Jan recuperated from the injuries he received from Ed. When Sharna rushed to see Jan, he became convinced that he ran with her back. Jack was stunned when Steve handed him their divorce papers. Ann let Jack use some of her trust fund money to pay off a large gambling debt. Alex (Lay) decided to let Egypt continue as the host of "Image" after she promised to keep mum about his real identity. Charles Hightman arrived in Corinth, but warned Guy to shut up or he'll be there.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE
Kevin and his friend Tyler had out in a cabin after Kevin thought that he had killed Jake. Later, Clint learned that Ann's wife wasn't the gun used to kill Jake. Gord checked just as the Justice of the Peace was about to marry Tina and the bride, Elizabeth played dumb when Cindy told her that Patrick (the fake) is on the loose. Garth loved Henry to sign a new will. Henry died of a heart attack when Garth mixed giving him his heart pills. Bob was arrested for Henry's death after Garth put Henry's pills in Bob's jacket pocket. Matt Lynn is thrilled to be working on "Fraternity Row," but Megan doesn't like having to compete with Matt Lynn for the spotlight. Catherine, who was never pregnant, had to Steve and Mia that she had a miscarriage. Steve remembered smiling Catherine's perfume during the time that someone (Katherine?) tried to smother him in his hospital bed.

RYAN'S HOPE
Ryan was surprised to see Joe Newark, who is in town on secret business. Sorey Mary had got real upset when she learned that George escaped from the police. Mary had snatched into Sator's hospital room, recognized him as Lorenzo and then rushed out of the room. Joe told Mary that he thinks Sator, who is in a secret hiding place, may be in danger. John was cleared of embezzlement charges after he gave the secret suitcase center the money that Nancy found in his office. Joe told Mary that Max (Balzarich) may be alive.

SANTA BARBARA
Sarah wasn't injured when Sister Agatha's gun accidentally fired. Later, Cruz and Michael rescued Sarah and Julia from Agatha, who admitted that she killed Mark to protect Sarah. Michael told a stunned Julia that Agatha said Mawn didn't die in the fire at the church. The body found in the rubble was that of the church janitor, Lester. Phillip heard an unusual woman, Jasmine, who looks like Susie. Phillip plans to drive Cain crazy with Jasmine, who will remind Cain that he was responsible for Susie's death. Eden was shocked to learn that C.C. has been gallivanting about town with Lydia, and the women's pages reported they were a close couple. Scott reacted with jealousy when he met Heather's former college chum and ex-lover, Zach Kelton. Scott fumed that Zach is crashing at Heather's apartment while he interviews for a hospital job. Arthur had severe chest pains.

ALL MY CHILDREN
Peter went crazy when Jackson admitted that Travis had staged his own kidnapping. Erin, whom Martin Travis bought for her father's kidnapping, insisted that her marriage to Travis in 1977. Nuts kissed Julie, who didn't think she heard correctly when he said that he loves her. Cindy fumed when Phoebe refused to let her get her hands on Cindy's inheritance money. Phoebe is convinced that Susan is after Cindy's money, not her love. Cliff advised Angie not to spend a bit of time with Henry. Steven warned Judith that no one will see Bianca alive again if Travis doesn't come up with the ransom money for the child. Jeremy is determined to find Silver's body so that he can prove his theory that Palmer killed Silver. Phoebe was miffed that Cindy paid attention to Phoebe's newspaper assistant, Jonathan. Jackson continued to Travis that he sold the painting from the store for big bucks.

ANOTHER WORLD
Mac went to look for Drew when he didn't show up for a Gary Publishing takeover meeting. Rachel later heard Mac, who passed out in Drew's suite. Lisa slapped Vicky when she taunted Lisa that Jamie is still in love with Vicky even though he's engaged to Lisa. Vicky was stunned when she realized that she may really be pregnant by Jake, instead of Jamie. Sharon was spying on Ann when she shared her first kiss with Matthew. Jane was restless due to the hospital's new hospice wing. Keanne agreed to make a music video with Jake after she was passed over for a job as head nurse. Amanda was shocked to receive a copy of the letter that Drew forged to make it look like she was working with him on the Gary takeover bid. Cass confronted Drew, who made snide remarks to Susie about her mother, Mary. After learning that Vicky was pregnant, Marley admitted that she can't have children.

AS THE WORLD TURNS
Tsuan's Chicago drug deal went bad when the two thugs he was dealing with threatened to kill him and Leni. During a fight, Tsuan threw one of the thugs, Farcrow, to the ground and the man was killed when he fell on his own knife. Tom panicked when the police phoned to tell him they think Leni was involved in the drug deal. Kirk fumed when the mysterious Lenore phoned him and he answered the phone. Craig missed telling Tom how to get in touch with Margo. Hal confessed to Henry that he slept with another woman, but he didn't tell her the woman was Meg. Henry was surprised when Seth told her that he's fallen in love with her. John subtly hinted to Tom that Margo is carrying Hal's baby. Holden promised Henry that he won't let Caleb come anywhere near Angel. Kirk thinks he has heard of Len's father, Jarral Carpenter.

MTV awards soon
HOLLYWOOD (UP) - Dick Clark will produce "The 1988 MTV Video Music Awards" scheduled for broadcast Sept. 7 from the Universal Amphitheatre.
Ballots for Phase I of the three-part voting process were sent to members of the video music community, including record company executives, record and video retailers, radio station program directors, audio and video producers and the press.
The results narrowed the 644 videos acquired and exhibited for the first time on MTV between May 2, 1987-April 1, 1988, to 10 semi-finalists in each of the 16 general and professional categories. A second vote reduced the number to five finalists in each category.

Thanks to you... it works... for ALL OF US

Talking with John Cleese

By Frank Sanello

Actor-writer-director John Cleese is one of England's funniest people. He earned a law degree in 1963 from Cambridge University. But that did nothing to prepare him for a zany career as a member of Monty Python's Flying Circus. The comedy troupe appeared first on British TV and then in a series of off-the-wall films, most notably a sacrilegious spoof of biblical movies called 'Monty Python's Life of Brian' (1979). Cleese also starred as the trascible hotel proprietor on the British sitcom 'Fawlty Towers,' which still airs in this country on public television. With various members of the Python troupe, he has acted in such films as 'Time Bandits' (1981), 'Yellowbeard' (1983) and, currently, 'A Fish Called Wanda,' which he also wrote. In 'Wanda,' Cleese plays an introverted barrister who finds love and liberation with an American jewel thief played by Jamie Lee Curtis. Fellow 'Python' Michael Palin is an incompetent crook with a paralyzing stutter, and Kevin Kline plays an American gangster with a truly bizarre fetish. Here, Cleese talks about the future of 'Monty Python' flicks, the differences in British and American humor, and the results of his psychotherapy. Q: There's a grim scene in 'Wanda' where Kevin Kline eats the entire contents of an aquarium. You wrote the script. Does that mean you don't like animals? A: Actually, I'm rather sympathy about pets. I had a cat for 15 years. It died of cancer of the jaw. I carried it out of the vet's in tears. I love all animals — except parrots. I had to take care of a girlfriend's for a week — and I hate them. Q: You get laughs out of Michael Palin's stutter, and your emasculating wife in the film is a feminist's nightmare. Are you prepared for another public denunciation a la 'Life of Brian'? A: We also kill several adorable Yorkshire terriers and an old woman. Animal lovers and stutterers will complain. I suspect no one will complain about the old woman being killed. Q: You wrote a blistering speech for Kevin Kline attacking stagnation in Britain and its inhabitants. Why do you still live there? A: There's a sense of being trapped in an emotional straitjacket in England. But I couldn't escape it by moving geographically. It would follow me wherever I went. I'm not Gauguin. Q: How did you come up with such an unusual title as 'A Fish Called Wanda'? A: I can't really recall. I wanted something that would amuse but slightly intrigue the audience without telling them a thing about the movie. For a while, I wanted to call it 'Vulture's Landing.' Now there's a great title. Q: Do you find writing easy or painful? A: It took me 2 1/2 years to come up with the story for 'Wanda.' I find it terribly difficult to find anything original. I get one good idea a month — if I'm lucky. Frank Sanello is the Hollywood columnist for the Newspaper Assn. (C)1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Nick tried to discourage Donna from her quest to learn the name of his love (Bill) Ridge asked Brooke to move in with him. Stephanie asked Bill to give Stephanie a job in another country after she admitted to Brooke that she arranged for Stephen's job. Theater arranged a romantic vacation despite the fact that Caroline didn't want to take time off from her work. Ridge said he'd help Brooke find out who publishes Temptation magazine. Clarke lied to Kristen that Steven thinks of her in a sexual way and not as a friend.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Patch and Kayla took Penny to the park where he thought he saw his mother, who really is in Salem. Patch caught a woman who pretended to be Penny's mother. The woman warned Patch of impending trouble and admitted that she had been hired by Penny's real mother. Live took an overdose of sleeping pills because she was dependent over her encounter with Harris and the fact that Shane and Kimberly are reuniting. After looking at the and Hope's postcard of an Oriental pagoda, Roman had those flashbacks to the time just before he became The Pawn.

Roman suspects that there's a connection between the fact that the Hope, Owen and Penny's mother have all mysteriously disappeared at the same time. Roman, who had another one of his spells, met with a Mr. Brown, who later turned up dead. Since Roman wasn't thinking clearly before the meeting, he wondered if he had killed Mr. Brown.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

In a scuffle with Colton and Felicia, Collette was wounded in the neck by a bullet fired by one of her own men. Colton tossed the bomb out of the diamond exhibit tent, but Colton, Greg, Christine, Cheryl and Collette were injured in the blast. Gregory denied Bobbie's accusation that he dated her to convince Bobbie to sell her brooch to him. Pamela passed the Aquarian diamond to a colonel, who later gave the diamond to Victor. Felicia, Sean and Robert learned that the microchip contained the names of terrorist leaders. Franco also used the microchip to send Felicia a message to warn her of impending danger. Colton, Tony and Felicia found Felicia's grave. Mystery man, Hilda, followed the trio to Felicia's grave. Lucy learned Scott employed many men her daytime center broke. Olivia arranged for Robert to learn that Adam loved the stolen diamond for Victor.
