Trying To Make His Father Stop Smoking

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 12-years-old and I am writing to you about my dad. A couple of weeks ago I found out my father smokes. The doctor told him to stop smoking. Otherwise, he's eventually going to die. Now my father is only 30 years old and I am frightened of what is going to happen to him. I've told him not to smoke, but he won't listen. What should I do?

DEAR READER—I wish there was a good answer to your question. People are responsible for their own health. Doctors can't make a smoker stop smoking cigarettes and, unfortunately, neither can the person's family.

The individual has to decide himself that he wants to stop smoking. You might be a very significant factor in helping your father to decide to do this. Why don't you just tell him that it's important to you that he live a long life, that you'd like for him to be around when you grow up and have children of your own. Tell him you don't want to grow up without a father. If he knows you love him and that it's important to you, it may be just the push he needs to help him kick the habit.

I am also sending you The Health Letter number 2-6, Tobacco, Cigarettes, Cigars and Pipes. It will give you some more information on what cigarettes do to people. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed, envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, PO Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Your father's health problem should be a good warning to you. Smoking parents are often the biggest reason children smoke. I'm sure your father wouldn't like for you to grow up and develop emphysema and other complications from cigarette smoking.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Is there

anything a woman can do to make her breasts larger? My husband and I went to three doctors and all they did was laugh and tell my husband that I was pretty and very healthy. Do the breast developers advertised really work? Are they safe to use?

DEAR READER—It's no laughing matter, but don't expect much help from those highly advertised products that you have seen. They don't actually increase the size of the breasts. Some of the exercises that go along with such plans develop and strengthen the muscles behind the breast, and it is the enlargement of those muscles, not the breast itself, that may improve a woman's appearance.

Good posture helps too. Keeping the shoulders back and the chest forward improves the bustline. Of course, if a woman gains weight, she may add a little fat tissue to the breast and this makes some changes too. Unfortunately, the addition of fat isn't limited to the breast and the net results may not be so pleasing.

It depends upon how severe the problem is. If a woman has a real problem, she may be helped with implants. They are about the only real thing that will actually enlarge a breast. Implants, of course, are done by plastic surgeons who do cosmetic surgery.

Meanwhile, do the kinds of exercises that strengthen the muscles between your shoulder blades, develop good posture and at least take some pleasure in being told you're pretty.

Teens Arrest Bakhtiar

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Iran's new government announced today that former Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar was arrested by air force cadets and teen-agers and taken to the headquarters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Muslim holy man who now leads Iran.

Two top military aides of Bakhtiar said he was arrested. Radio Iran said in a broadcast.

A flight instructor outside the office of Mehdi Bazargan, whom Khomeini chose to succeed Bakhtiar as premier after the 78-year-old ayatollah fulfilled his pledge to drive Bakhtiar from office and end 2,500 years of monarchy in Iran.

Some reports said armed men tried to storm Bazargan's office but were beaten back by militiamen.

A spokesman at the premier's office told UPI by telephone that it was "only a minor incident which has been solved," and denied there was a direct assault to get to seven, but it is just as well that he didn't."

Bazargan, however, called off a scheduled news conference after the incident.

In his first direct order to the military, Bazargan today ordered all Iranian troops who deserted their posts during three days of climactic fighting to report back to duty immediately.

He also called a top level meeting of all senior officers in the military in his first attempt to reorganize the country's 400,000 man armed services.

Radio Iran said several cadets and armed teen-age guerrillas discovered Bakhtiar and arrested him with his wife, minister, Gen. Jafar Shafiq.

They were taken to the office of Bazargan — a longtime friend whom political sources said had been protecting Bakhtiar — and later were handed over to supporters of Khomeini, who took them across town to the ayatollah's headquarters.

Computer Voting? Aye From County, Nay From Mrs. Bruce

By DONNA ESTES

Seminole County could convert to an ultra-modern computer punch card system of voting by the March 1980 presidential preferential primary, according to Jeff Etchberger, director of the county office of management, analysis and evaluation (OMAE).

However, the idea is meeting with opposition from the county supervisor of elections Camilla Bruce, who said she was not consulted about the new system.

The new method could cut the cost of voting machines by as much as 90 percent, said Etchberger, displaying a two-foot aluminum and molded plastic board on which voters could punch out their choices on computer cards with a metal stylus.

The OMAE director said the system is currently used in several Florida counties including Dade, Brevard and Polk.

"I'm not going the other way," Mrs. Bruce said. "They had better talk to me; they are tampering with my department." Mrs. Bruce is completing 28 years in her position.

The county's 178 current voting machines are in good working order and Mrs. Bruce said she doesn't see anything wrong with the current system.

The proposed attaché case-sized "votomatic" has no moving parts and would cost nothing for maintenance and present no storage problems, Etchberger said.

The piece of equipment on display in the county commission conference room is one of several types of equipment the commission has been looking at with a view toward conversion by early 1980, he said.

The votomatic would cost about $200 per unit, compared with about $3,000 per unit for a conventional voting machine.

According to law, the county would have to have 400 of the new units at a cost of slightly more than $100,000, he said. The results would be tallied by an in-house computer, which is already used to tally votes for county elections and is expected to arrive later this year.

Etchberger said the voting machines on hand could be sold or traded in.

In response to Mrs. Bruce's objections, Etchberger said

Rehab Plan Gets Nod

By MAX HERRLITZMAN
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission has given its unanimous approval to a proposal that would pump $4 million in federal revenue into downtown Sanford to stimulate the local economy and rehabilitate blighted areas.

The program relies totally on federal money and would require no local funding, according to Tom Wilson, Sanford Housing Authority director and officer of the plan.

Proposed officially at Monday night's session of the commission, the plan would provide money to upgrade blighted commercial property for sale to new business ventures. However, the original owner would have the right to re-purchase the property.

Wilson explained the program would be administered by the housing authority, but that the city commission had to approve the official application for federal funds.

Wilson conceded the condemnation provision may have to be deleted from the final proposal. However, he claimed that would not hinder the effort for final approval.

Once the condemnation gives its final approval, the plan would be submitted to the federal government.

Federal funding would come from two agencies, according to Wilson. Funding sought includes a $2.5 million U.S. Department of Commerce Economic Development Administration (EDA) grant and a $1.5 million Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) funded through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Originally, the program called for condemnation of property in blighted areas of downtown. However, Mayor Lee P. Moore questioned the housing authority's right to exercise the power of eminent domain under such a program.

"I don't think you can condemn property this way, because you have to show that something is of a public necessity to exercise eminent domain," said Moore.

Suspect Wanted In Slayings Victim's Widow Reports Fugitive Shot At Her

By DENNIS FEOOLA
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County man being sought in connection with a double-murder was apparently shot by the wife of one of the victims Monday afternoon.

The woman said the man tried to kill her by firing a shot at her from a car.

Two first-degree murder warrants have been issued for Gary Stephen Smith, 21, who was living in a rural home off Tuacawilla Road in unincorporated Seminole County at the time of the murders.

Robin Hoover, 23, of Orlando, told Seminole County Sheriff's deputies she spotted Smith driving a pickup truck on Tuacawilla Road at Dixie Road on Monday at 3:15 p.m.

The woman said Smith recognized her at that same time she recognized him and he pulled a pistol and fired a single shot at her car. The shot missed the car entirely, according to records.

Mrs. Hoover is the wife of Gordon Hoover, 26, whose body was discovered April 24, 1978, in a car off North Dean Road at Lake Phillips in Orange County.

Also found dead in the car was Kenneth Bloodworth, 26. Both men died from multiple gunshot wounds, according to Orange County Sheriff's Department Detective H.D. Martin.

Martin said it is believed the deaths were drug-related.

The bodies were discovered in Bloodworth's car. An Orange County sheriff's department helicopter spotted the car during routine patrol and a check of what authorities believed was an abandoned car revealed the bodies.

Martin said the men were killed less than six hours before they were found at the scene of their death.

Hoover was a carpet layer and Bloodworth and Smith were unemployed at the time of the killings. Bloodworth and Hoover shared an apartment at 1415 Clark St. in Orange County.

"We've been looking for Smith for several months now," Martin said. He said Mrs. Hoover's sighting was the first reported since the murder south of Winter Springs and warrants were issued.

The incident occurred near Tuscanville Middle School, available for comment.

Light Energy System Used By FP&L Here

By JAMES CARROLL BERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Southern Bell's Sanford Manager Tom Hunt today announced that the first lightwave communications system of its kind has been placed in service by the company in the metropolitan area of Florida Power & Light (FPL).

Using light energy as opposed to electricity, the telecommunications transmission system in which invisible, glass fibers are used instead of copper wires will carry data to the FPL's Sanford plant.

"This is a significant installation of lightwave circuits into a power station. Data will be carried via fiber optic instead of metallic circuits," Hunt explained.

"The advantage of this system is its immunity to electrical interference, as is found in the high voltage zone of a major power station."

Its use is most critical to FPL, according to Marty Lewis, manager of systems protection for the firm, as the data received enables FPL to control all substations in the north and north central portions of the state, control line flow and line loads particularly in emergency situations and provide the status of the mainline breakers.

The light fiber optic cable will carry the equivalent of 300-pair copper-cables and in the terms of voice communications.

Guardsmen Ask Sanford: Pay Us

By TOM GIORDANO
Herald Managing Editor

Two street department employees have officially asked for money they say the city of Sanford owes them for time spent over the past several years training with the Florida National Guard.

Just how much that amounts to could not be immediately determined, according to City Manager Warren E. Knowles.

And whether the city is obligated to pay the men for that purpose beyond one year ago will not be known until the city attorney researches the matter and advises the city.

The issue came to light in recent weeks when Seminole County officials said they would seek an amendment to a state law which requires municipal and county employees to pay their personal full salary for any time spent on military training with the Florida National Guard.

Seminole County, as well as the city of Sanford, have not been complying with that law. The county and Sanford have paid their national guard employees their salaries less what the guard paid them during their training periods, usually two weeks a year.

Knowles said when he read that the county was going to seek a change in that law, expressing a preference to continue the part-pay practice, he asked City Attorney C. Vernon Mize Jr. to look into the matter and advise the city.

Mize's advice was to have the city commission formally adopt a policy of paying full salaries to national guard personnel for that period spent training, regardless of how much the guard pays them.

Monday, city commissioners followed that policy and revised the part-pay practice for city employees attached to the national guard.

However, Knowles said, the two street

Third Generation Petty Makes Mark On Racing

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI)—Bill France Sr., founding father of NASCAR racing, thinks 18-year-old Kyle Petty some day will replace his famous dad, Richard, as No. 1 among all-time stock car winners.

France, a pioneer in the sport when cars raced along Daytona's beach, has watched three generations of Petties in competition, and feels the first of the Petties, Lee, winner of the inaugural Daytona 500 in 1959, drove as hard as the finish as during the race.

France says the youngster's victory will produce a new following in NASCAR racing. "This is the third generation of Petties in motor sports. We've had father-son teams before, but to my knowledge never a third generation. Kyle will draw fans to Daytona. The lad has certainly showed he is acquainted with the sport as anyone can winably be."

France said he used to drive and liked to win. He thinks Kyle feels the same way. Kyle Petty has stated he'll hold off running Grand National races (the major league of stock car competition) for a few years, but France believes the young driver has the ability to move up his timetable as a graduate to the big NASCAR events.

"I'd go over the country and compete in as many races as possible to sharpen my competitive abilities," says France. "Some day, he'll achieve the talents of his grandfather, father and other top drivers like Joe Westberry, Curtis Turner and Fireball Roberts."

Auerbach Defends Swap For Veteran McAdoo

Ballard Miss State Grid Pick

STARBUCKVILLE, Miss. (UPI)—Youthful-looking Emory Ballard, who marmaladed the wishbone attack while at Texas A&M, was named Mississippi State's new football coach Monday and said his goal was to make the Bulldogs competitive with any team in the nation.

Ballard, accepting the coaching reins at a news conference, said he was anxious to get on with the job of turning State into a national power and he felt he had a solid foundation at the school to build on.

Ballard said he would immediately fill his coaching staff. He announced that Mel Robertson, an assistant at Texas A&M last year, would be the defensive coordinator.

Mississippi State Athletic Director Carl Maddox, longtime Louisiana State University administrator, and second-year coach, said Ballard passed all the tests during a two-day visit to the campus last week.

Ballard said he would give a four-year, $40,000 contract with $10,000 bonus.

Second-Class Citizens?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Scouts are the second-class citizens of baseball.

They work hard for relatively low pay, spend most of their time on the road looking over players at every level and then return to some motel room to write out their reports.

Usually, when a trade like the one involving Rod Carew is made, it isn't the general manager, the club president or even the club owner who "makes" the trade, but rather the organization's scouts.

It is known Yankee owner George Steinbrenner ultimately killed the deal for Carew after President Al Rosen did all the negotiating with the Twins.

George was the one who made the deal. He has the final word on all the deals.

The Yankees are relying on another one of their scouts, Harry Craft, in the case of Mirabella, who was 9-6 with Tucson and 3-3 with Texas last season.

UCLA Returns To No. 1 Spot

NEW YORK (UPI)—UCLA, the one-time kingpin of college basketball, became the fourth team this season to take over the No. 1 spot in the weekly United Press International Board of Coaches ratings today by beating out Indiana State by a scant three points.

The Bruins, a 56-2 victor over previously top-ranked Notre Dame last Sunday, vaulted past the Sycamores into the No. 1 slot despite receiving 10 less first-place votes than unbeaten Indiana State.

UCLA, on the other hand, received 24 second-place mentions and only one vote as low as fourth place.

The Bruins, who have won five UPI national championships, ended Notre Dame's four-year reign in the No. 1 spot. Duke and Michigan State also were previously ranked No. 1 in a season, which has been one of the most well-balanced in recent years.

SENKARIK GLASS & PAINT CO. HAS FULL LINE OF QUALITY PRODUCTS

Tired Of Stripping? See Senkarik Glass & Paint Co.

Tired of stripping? If you have been discouraged in the past when refinishing old furniture because of the hard work, lack of know-how or proper aids, before you call Goodwill, check with Senkarik Glass & Paint Co. of Sanford. They have the hard to find products that will enable do-it-yourselfers to do a professional job on restoring old furniture, antiques and picture frames. Of all furniture, old and new 90 percent of all finishes are either lacquer, varnish or shellac. All of these can be removed with the Hope two-step method of instant refinishing.

Hope's Refinisher removes the old finish with no stripping, no paint brushes and no sandpaper. Follow this up with a finish coat of Hope's Tung Oil. This will enable you to refinish and use your piece of furniture, all in the same day. All you need in addition to the refinisher and tung oil, is a supply of steel wool, a wide mouth jar and a few small rags.

Hope's Refinisher removes the finish only, it is not a stripper. It does not destroy the patina, wood fillers or natural color of the wood. It melts down the old finish, returns it to a liquid state, which is picked up by the steel wool and squeezed out in the jar. For wood graining, antiquing and staining Senkarik carries Old Masters decorator stain, decorative base, glazes or satin polyurethane. With Old Masters Wood Graining and Stain you can match a metal door to the wood trim and moulding; refinish a metal file cabinet to the wood paneling; wood grain plastic furniture, mouldings or picture frames to match stained doors or trim.

Minwax, a name that has been synonymous with high quality for 70 years, is also available at Senkarik. The Minwax family of fine products assure the finest finish for woods, that brings out the true beauty. The wood finish penetrates, seals and protects producing a rich, scratch-resistant finish for unfinished furniture or an antique.

For any wood that must weather the outdoor elements there is McCloskey's Man O'War Ultra Spar Marine Varnish. "It is the finest marine varnish you can buy," said Jerry Senkarik, who operates the store together with his brother, Eddie. "We have been selling it for 30 years."

One of the most versatile glass and paint stores in central Florida, Senkarik's has been known for quality and service since 1945 when it was started by their father, John Senkarik in a small room shop.

It is now located at 210 Magnolia Ave. and carries a full line of nationally famous and Sanford - manufactured Pen Paints and Benjamin Moore Paints for interior and exterior paint jobs. In addition, they have a wide selection of wall papers.

The Senkariks are always glad to give painting advice and will even go out if you wish to personally discuss your painting problems and estimate the overall cost of materials to do the job.

"Call us up and we'll be glad to talk to you about your paint needs," added Jerry, "that's what we're here for."

Senkarik's does glass work of all types and makes and frames custom mirrors.

"I believe we have the largest selection of art supplies in the area," said Eddie Senkarik, for beginners as well as professionals. If they don't have what you want they will also carry a large variety of frames with several hundred different moldings in stock. —ADV

School Volunteer Week
Teacher-Mother Feels Strongly 'Art Is Absolutely Necessary'

By JOAN MADISON
Herald Correspondent

Governor Bob Graham has proclaimed the week of Feb. 12-16 as School Volunteer Week. Seminole County boasts of 1400 school volunteers in the Dividends School Volunteer Program.

In the 1977-78 school year, 49,018 hours were contributed by volunteers to the extension and enrichment of the education of Seminole County's children.

During School Volunteer Week, the Herald will feature volunteers from various aspects of the Dividends program.

Debbie Strausbaugh is a volunteer at Seminole County's newest school, Wekiva Elementary.

Kirsten, 9, a third grader at Wekiva, and Doug, 3 1/2, the volunteer, who holds a degree in art education from Kent State University, suggests that "we go through many days without really seeing what we are looking at."

Therefore, she strives to "art is absolutely necessary, especially to the pressures that are on children." Consequently, she spends two days a week teaching art at Wekiva Elementary.

In a large bright and sunny art room that has been donated by the school, Debbie conducts 17 classes for students from grades two through five. She sees the students every other week for 40 minutes.

A mother of two children, Kirsten, 9, a third grader at Wekiva, and Doug, 3 1/2, the volunteer, who holds a degree in art education from Kent State University, suggests that "we go through many days without really seeing what we are looking at."

Therefore, she strives to sharpen the students' perception; to heighten their awareness of the beauty around them; and to cultivate their ability to use imagery and to see visual order.

It's important for children to experience the different mediums, she feels, not so much to create magnificent masterpieces as "we are not all artists—but to enjoy working with them."

Mrs. Strausbaugh uses various mediums as she coordinates her art projects with the seasons, holidays and units of study. For example, clay was used to make a Thanksgiving village in November, and third graders are now working with paper-mache to make dinosaurs in conjunction with their study on prehistoric animals.

And no "store-bought" valentines for these students. They are creatively designing valentines on which they write their very own messages.

The art instructor also feels each child "should have a painting experience. I will give them only three colors - the primary colors - red, yellow and blue - and black and white and she finds it "rewarding to see them making colors."

When students can look at a picture—or any work of art—and know why they like or dislike it rather than just being able to say, "Gee, I like it" or "I don't like it," well, that's what makes an art teacher feel it's all worth it...and very happy indeed.

Retiree: He's Driving Me Crazy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband recently retired, and he is driving me crazy. Julius and I have been married for 44 years and we're both in good health. He was always so busy that in his business he had no time to develop any hobbies. He worked and I took care of the house. Now he's home and underfoot all day supervising the cleaning, laundry and cooking!

When the phone rings, Julius runs to answer it. If it's for me he has to know who it was and what was said. When my bridge club meets here he has no time to develop any hobbies. He worked and I took care of the house. Now he's home and underfoot all day supervising the cleaning, laundry and cooking!

I find myself looking for excuses to get out of the house alone. (Julius even goes with me when I go marketing!) I love him, but I hate to think of spending the rest of my life under these conditions. So what can I do about Julius?

FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your problem isn't Julius—it's your reluctance to level with him. Tell him what you really think. Gently, bravely, honestly and IMMEDIATELY! Then together investigate activities for retirees in your community. (Florida is loaded with them.) Search out other couples like yourself. Get involved in community service, politics and volunteerism. Enroll in adult education classes and discover the arts, music, painting or gardening. Get into nutrition, meditation, or travel! There's a whole new world out there just waiting to be discovered. And don't forget to thank God you still have your health and each other!

DEAR ABBY: I work in a very pleasant office, and enjoy my job. My boss is kind and friendly, but he's fat, incredibly dull, and old enough to be my father.

He often asks me to have lunch with him, but I usually refuse. I accepted a few times last year only because I didn't want to hurt his feelings. But I do not enjoy spending my lunch hours with a boring old man.

Another girl I work with is having the same problem with him. You could help both of us by answering this.

Are we obligated to go to lunch with him?

In Dealing With A Collapsed Lung

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: — One year ago I had a hole in my lung (pneumothorax). At the time, the surgeon put a hole through my side at the back of my chest to let out the air. Two days after being released from the hospital the hole popped again. This time I stayed in the hospital for five days of bed rest with no tube in my back. My problem is this, my back has been constantly aching around my shoulder blade and one doctor said it was just my nerves thinking it was lung trouble again. Another doctor says it will take a long time for my ribs to stop aching where the tube went through. My question is this, what are the chances of another hole popping again? Is it normal for my back to still ache? I am a 36-year-old woman and was told this problem usually happens in male teenagers. Is this right?

DEAR READER: — A pneumothorax, or collapsed lung, is not a serious problem, even though it can be disconcerting. Your lungs are great air sacs. The windpipe (trachea) goes down your throat and divides into half and continues into smaller and smaller passages until they end in tiny air sacs. On occasion, one or more of these little air sacs thin out like a blister on the surface of the lung. It can blow out. When that happens, the air whistles out of the lung through that hole into the space between the lungs and the rib cage. As the air fills this potential space, the lung collapses. This is why such a condition is sometimes called a collapsed lung. When the lung collapses spontaneously as in your case, it is sometimes necessary to slip a tube through the chest wall and into that space where the air is accumulating. This allows the lung to re-expand as the air in that space is pushed out through the tube. Other-

In Afghanistan U.S. Envoy Abducted, Murdered

By LENA KRANSORF Herald Staff Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan Adolph Dubs was kidnapped by Moslem extremists and shot to death in a gunbattle between police and the abductors, despite pleas to the pro-Soviet regime not to use force. Dubs, 46, a native of Chicago, was shot in the head in the hotel room where he had been taken after being seized by two Moslem terrorists as he drove to work. One terrorist also died in the police attack on the hotel in Kabul, the officials said. Officials in Washington said it was not known whether Dubs was killed by police bullets or by the terrorists, who demanded the release of three Afghanistans religious figures. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III said, "The American Embassy urged the Afghanistans government in the strongest terms to try to obtain the ambassador's release without force. "The government disregarded this request and the ambassador was killed in the attempt to seize the hotel room." The news reached the State Department officials as they were trying to establish contact with the U.S. Embassy in Tehran that had been seized by left-wing guerrillas. "It's been a bad night," said an official in the Iranian Section in an allusion to the capture of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in urban

In Iran Embassy Captured

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas captured the American Embassy today in a two-hour gunbattle with 19 U.S. Marines and held Ambassador William Sullivan, 70 Americans and 70 Iranian employes hostage until they were freed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Moslem marshall. "It's been an interesting Valentine's Day," Sullivan said after his release. "You win a few, you lose a few." Two Marines were slightly wounded in the battle and an Iranian employe of the embassy was killed. Two of the attackers were shot to death as they poured into the embassy grounds over the walls by the hundreds, tore down the U.S. flag and wrecked the embassy. The marshall, described by the Khomeini forces as "Communist," arrived with Molotov cocktails in what witnesses said was an effort to burn down the embassy in a move to "purge" Iran of all American influence. American officials said all of the attackers were captured or evicted by Khomeini forces and that the Americans were leaving the embassy for their homes. But as dusk fell hundreds of persons still were crouching on nearby rooftops and government marshall said they feared a nighttime attack on the embassy. "Who knows what's going to happen from here," political officer Miles Green, the first American released from the compound said. "They've wrecked everything." "An Iranian news writer was killed," Green said. He apparently was the only death on the American side. "We lost communication with Washington about 11 a.m.," Green said. "We've been linking with Washington since through the British." The pro-Khomeini forces immediately threw an armed cordon around the British embassy nearby to stop any repeat attack on that compound. Asked if the Americans had destroyed all sensitive documents before the guerrillas seized control, Green said, "We've been

Bus Stop Sign, Bus Stop Sign Where Are They? Riders Ask

SPEED LIMIT 35

By LEN KRANSORF Herald Staff Writer

If you are looking for a bus in Sanford but can't find a bus stop sign, try to "look like you are remotely interested in picking up a bus." That's the instruction given to bus drivers to cope with a situation in which city workers have removed about 50 bus stop signs from regulatory signs in the city because they were improperly placed by county workers, according to County Traffic Planner Laura Firtel. City workers gave the signs back to the county. Regulatory signs include yield, and stop signs, speed limit signs, etc. State and city officials all agree placing any other regulatory signs tends to distract a motorist and could be a traffic hazard. "It was an oversight and we are now in the process of correcting it," said Ms. Firtel. County personnel recently placed the signs around the Seminole-Osceola Transportation-Authority (OSOTA). However, city officials recently took down 52 of the signs because they were placed on regulatory signs. The county does not have any law dealing with the placement but does follow the guidelines of the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices, put out by the U.S. Department of Commerce according to Ms. Firtel. One section of the manual says no signs should be placed on regulatory signs, according to Ms. Firtel. The planner noted she is currently compiling the exact number of signs which will have to be relocated and said there are some already in proper locations. The planner noted she does not think the lack of signs has drastically cut down on the ridership on the bus lines. "I really think the effect on the number of passengers has been minimal," she noted. One reason for this is that the bus drivers have been told to stop "where there is anyone standing and they look like they are remotely interested in riding the bus," she said. The signs will also have to be taken off of any state signs, according to City Manager Warren Knowles. What should be done, according to Knowles, is the bus stop signs should be attached to their own break-away poles and installed at the stops. He explained break-away poles are of light materials and designed to cut down injury possibilities should a motorist drive his vehicle into the pole.

CETA Jobs Get Backing Of County

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

Sixty-three county employees, whose salaries and fringe benefits totaling $686,130 have been funded by federal money in the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program, will have the same fighting chance as other county employees of keeping their jobs after CETA funding expires for their positions on Sept. 30. County Commissioner, Tuesday, on recommendation of County Administrator Roger Neiswander agreed to retain the CETA employees whose jobs are considered critical and essential in the 1979-80 budget year beginning Oct. 1. If there is sufficient money in the budget — the same consideration used for all county employees. Commissioner Dick Williams at first balked at the proposal, hesitating to pledge in advance that the county would pick up the salaries. But, Neiswander insisted that County Asks More Fuel, Page 8A

Valentine

What's Valentine's Day without a hug and a visit from kin and neighbors? That's why pupils from Hopper Elementary took time to visit the Sanford Nursing and Convalescent Center this morning to entertain and, as Kathleen Dougherty (above) displays, share cards for the occasion. And about that hug: from Christy Harlow for her grandma, Dorothy Perkins.

Fire Ants Bugging Seminole Farm Calves, Machinery

By MAX ERKLETTIAN Herald Staff Writer

They are a source of irritation to many, a loss of revenue to cattle farmers and the cause of death for some. They are a tiny creature that ventured to America in imported plants in the 1940s called the fire ant. Seminole County farmers claim the fire ant has been responsible for the deaths of calves, according to Frank Jasa, Seminole County Extension Agent. "If a calf is born on or near one of the ant mounds, its chances of survival are pretty low, said Jasa. The ants attack the animal in large numbers, sting and eating its flesh. In addition to livestock, the fire ants threaten farm machinery, noted Jasa. He explained that machines have been broken trying to travel over the ant mounds that grow to a couple of feet in height. Presently, U. S. Department of Agriculture officials estimate fire ants infest more than 200 acres in nine states attacking more than cattle. They sting humans, too. The ants clasp onto its victim with its jaws for up to 30 seconds, according to Jasa, thrusting its stinger as many as 30 times. The result is the injection of a toxic venom similar to hemlock. In most cases, the victim suffers an itchy welt. However, the results can be more severe. Entomologists at the Department of Agriculture note fire ant stings have contributed to shock, gangrene and amputated limbs. Death can also result. Earlier this year a Holden Beach asthmatic was attacked by the ants and, in essence, suffocated to death. The fire ant began in Alabama about 35 years ago and has multiplied and begun moving into other states. Today there are few, if any, areas in Florida not affected by fire ants, according to Jasa. The ants have moved overground by hitching rides in farm products and construction materials, said Jasa. "In Florida a lot of the fire ant population follows road construction, because they travel in the truck beds," noted Jasa. The variety of fire ant in Florida is the red kind. The black fire ant seems based west. The black ants are now in Texas, but department of agriculture officials think they will find homes in the warm areas of the southwest. "Cold seems to be a barrier," said Jasa. "They are moving north too, but they apparently cannot live in some climates. How far north they can live no one knows." Fire ants travel at a rate of about 50 to 100 miles each decade, according to federal agricultural officials.
