Stabbing

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Seminole County sheriff's investigators are looking into a stabbing Monday morning on Lakeshore Drive in the Mobile Manor area near Altamonte Springs.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said the incident occurred at approximately 8:30 a.m. in front of a house at 169 Lakeshore Drive. Two men were in a fistfight, when the home's occupant, Allen Dutilly, 38, went outside to try to break it up.

McDonough said as Dutilly went outside, his girlfriend, Deborah Soller, 29, tried to stop him, and Dutilly became angry and allegedly started hitting her.

McDonough said in what may have been self defense, the woman grabbed a knife and stabbed Dutilly in the back, leg and arm. One of the men involved in the fight was also stabbed in the arm.

Dutilly was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center where his wounds were not said to be life-threatening. The other man, Keith Harris, 42, was treated at the scene.

Soller was found to have two outstanding misdemeanor warrants against her, one for battery, the other for failing to appear on a charge of theft. She was arrested and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

It was undetermined whether additional charges would be filed in connection with the case.

Stooges Lounge turned down for third time

By NICK PFENPAUF

SANFORD — Another request for waiver of the 2,000 foot distance requirement from a church submitted by Stooges Lounge, 2491 S. Park Avenue, has been denied.

As in the past, when the Sanford City Commission heard similar requests, the vote was again split, three to two.

The request was discussed during the commission workshop Monday afternoon, and Dave Ross brought up for formal consideration at the regular commission meeting Monday night.

Several commissioners voted concern over who was actually making the request. The agenda wording indicated, "Request from Larry Blair for waiver of 2,000 foot distance requirement between churches and vendors of beer, wine and liquor for consumption on premises."

Yet in a notice received by the city on Jan. 6, it

Search is on for a county manager

By RUSSELL WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The job will pay $95,000 annually and will once the official call goes out, several hundred candidates from throughout the United States are expected to apply for the Seminole County manager's position.

The Board of County Commissioners met at 9:30 this morning to listen to a presentation by Carol Ann Dove, Acting Human Resources Director and to select a game plan for finding a successor to Ron Rabun, who resigned his county manager's post on Nov. 1.

"Ideally, we would like to have a new manager on board by May - June 1st at the latest," Dove said.

Gary Kaiser, the County Public Safety director and the acting county manager since Rabun's departure, said he is not actively seeking the manager's position.

"I'm here as a drafter," Kaiser said Monday. "Here to help whatever way I can."

Kaiser said he expects the commissioners will seek help from a recruitment firm to begin the process, and perhaps name a select citizens committee to screen and eventually interview the leading candidates. The commissioners would consider the committee's recommendation to make the final choice.

The commissioners also might opt for the county to advertise on its own, seeking help from the Florida League of Cities, the Florida City and County Management Association and the International City Management Association. A group of retired city and county officials known as the Range Riders may be employed.

The county has made recent use of a Jobline over the Internet, and

Smoke scene

A 1,200-acre controlled burn on the north side of Lake Jessup between Sanford and Geneva produced plenty of smoke and a flurry of ashes Monday. State officials intentionally burned off cattails and other plants around the 10,000-acre lake to open it up for fish, wildlife and fishermen. No serious problems were reported because of the smoke and ash.

drop front, waistcoat, Irish tam with pin, leg hose with garters and ribbon-tied shoes," she said.

The event is open to the general public. For additional information, contact the Museum of Seminole County History at 321-2489 between noon and 5 p.m., or call Karen Jacobs at 385-3372.

Lawmaker to host town meeting for constituents

By VICKI DeGONNEN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

GENEVA — The State Legislature is almost ready to convene for the 1997 session and lawmakers are scrambling to make sure they are prepared to represent their constituents properly.

One of the hot topics for discussion at the upcoming session is education.

The state has continued to fund programs for the public school and has offered fewer and fewer dollars with which to fund the mandated and the as yet unfunded programs. Classrooms are overcrowded and teachers are underpaid, the educators say. Textbooks are woefully outmoded and often in short supply, they note also.

Parents, too, have complaints, but rarely have the opportunity to express their views in a forum where legislators are likely to hear their pleas.

Mistake brings suit

TALLAHASSEE — As the dispatcher fiddled, a Tallahassee family watched their home burn. Now they're suing.

When the December 1992 blaze was reported, the dispatcher was told there was a small fire under the kitchen stove burner. The address reported was 3437 Blue Jay Drive.

But the dispatcher told firefighters the fire was at Blue Jay Way. Jacqueline Perkins' four-bedroom home was engulfed in flames by the time firefighters reached it. The family escaped injury.

City officials apologized and admitted the mix-up. Insurance didn't cover the total amount of her loss, but Perkins rebuilt the home and believes the city is responsible for at least part of the destruction.

City attorney Jim English said while fire officials made a mistake, he doesn't think the law holds the city liable. He said the city has a duty to provide fire service to the public, but isn't liable to specific citizens.

Efforts to reach the plaintiff's attorney were unsuccessful Monday.

Since the fire, the city has updated its system so the address automatically appears on the dispatcher's computer screen when a 911 call is received.

Baby dies in freak accident

FORT LAUDERDALE — A young mother driving on a rural, winding road was distracted by her 5-month-old baby and flipped her car into a canal, killing the daughter.

Urula Billie, 18, told bystanders the baby was strapped into an infant seat beside her when she ran off the edge of the road in western Broward County on Monday, said Florida Highway Patrol Lt. Greg Edwards.

The Clewiston woman scrambled free and tried unsuccessfully to get the baby out of the submerged car, he said. Passerby stopped, helped spin the car on its roof, and the baby and seat popped out the open car door.

The child, Abrianna Condon, had been submerged about eight minutes and was dead.

Her mother "was hysterical when our people got there" and was sent to the hospital in shock, Edwards said.

Panhandle tourists return

FORT WALTON BEACH — Many northern visitors who stayed away from the Florida Panhandle last year after Hurricane Opal are returning to the area, tourism officials say.

Reports from tourism-related businesses in the Fort Walton Beach and Destin areas indicate they may be headed for a record winter, said Darrel Jones, executive director of the Okaloosa County Tourism Development Council. Winter is the off-season in the Panhandle.

"Things are busy, and we think that being a year away from the hurricane has made a big difference," said Malcolm Patterson, Jones' counterpart in Walton County. "Last year you were pretty brave if you came down that close to the hurricane."

Opal struck the Panhandle on Oct. 4, 1995, with a storm surge of up to 15 feet that destroyed or damaged thousands of homes and businesses from Pensacola Beach to St. George Island south of Tallahassee.

Although most hotels and other tourist-related businesses were back in operation soon afterward, many homes have yet to be rebuilt or repaired. A 7-mile section of beach in the Gulf Islands National Seashore was not reopened until late last year.

Child drowns in open septic tank

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Tall weeds surrounding an exposed septic tank may have blocked the view of a 4-year-old who tumbled in and drowned, state investigators said.

Loreal Ward and her grandparents were visiting the girl's uncle and aunt when the 3-foot-tall Dade City girl wandered away, said Sonya Dodds, spokeswoman for the Polk County Sheriff's Office.

The family called for help at 8:50 p.m. Sunday when they noticed the child was missing. Loreal's uncle, Daniel Bourque, said she had been gone only five minutes before he called for help.

The girl was found in the 6-foot-deep septic tank, 10 feet from the Bourques' mobile home, at 7:15 p.m.

Joe DiCesare, an environmental supervisor for the Florida Department of Health in Lakeland, said he found a newly placed sheet of metal over the septic tank when he went to the mobile home for an inspection Monday morning.

Daniel Bourque and his wife, Alice, will be cited for the open septic tank and fined if it is not repaired, he said.

Cathy Hall said every home in the neighborhood has a septic tank and she was concerned to hear of an open pit near her home.

"It just makes me wonder," Hall said. "It's sad, especially that the little girl drowned. But to drown that way is really sad."

Fla. gets $6.1 million bid for Island

By KATHERINE WUFF
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Want your own island in the Bahamas? Got $6.1 million in cash?

That's what Chicago entrepreneur John J. Melk and his wife, Janet, bid to buy a 363-acre private island being sold by the Florida Department of Insurance. The agency declared them the bid winners Monday.

The only remaining obstacle between them and Rudder Cut Cay's 2,400-foot airstrip, 15-acre sheltered harbor, and two miles of virgin beaches was the Bahamian government's blessing of the sale, which was expected.

Florida received the island as part of a settlement earlier this year with Mark Sanford for the 1991 failure of Sanford's Guarantee Security Life Insurance Co. of Jacksonville. It was the largest insurance company failure in state history.

The Melks' bid was well above the minimum asking price of $3.5 million cash for the island, which lies 90 miles south of Nassau in the Exuma chain.

"The department is ecstatic about this sale," said Mary Beth Perry, an attorney for the insurance department supervising the sale, who spoke by telephone from Nassau.

John Melk's Miami attorney, Ronald Fieldstone, said his client bought the island for personal use but didn't have specific plans for it. The Melks own another island nearby, also in the Exuma chain, Fieldstone said.

John Melk is one of an entrepreneurial group — that includes H. Wayne Huisenga — that has built and run some of the most successful companies of the last 25 years. They include WMX Technologies Inc., a trash-hauling firm; and Blockbuster Entertainment Inc., the video chain.

Melk is a former executive of Waste Management and a founder and former director of Blockbuster.

Ma. Perry said she sent bid document packets to 200 people who indicated interest, but received only three bids by Friday's deadline.

Ma. Perry opened the proposals in Nassau on Monday and said two met the bid requirements: an offer of at least $3.5 million cash, a 10 percent cash deposit and a financial institution guarantee that the bidder could afford the purchase.

Approval by the Bahamian government's Investment Board should come within two weeks, said Anthony Klonaris, a senior partner at Callenders & Co., a Nassau law firm handling the sale.

"The Bahamian government will seek background on the purchaser and the purchaser's interest in the island to ensure that the island is not used for illicit purposes," Klonaris said.

Ex-medical examiner wants the grand jury to hear him

By The Associated Press

PANAMA CITY — A grand jury is expected to review the mysterious death of a former medical examiner's wife, and his lawyer wants a chance to present the doctor's side of the case.

The panel is scheduled to hear testimony Wednesday through Friday in the May 30, 1991 death of Kay Sybers at the couple's Panama City Beach home.

Her husband, Dr. William Sybers, allowed her body to be embalmed before agreeing to permit an autopsy, which failed to identify a cause of death.

Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents contend the embalming may have erased evidence of a homicide. They suspect Sybers may have killed his wife with a lethal injection, but repeated investigations have failed to turn up sufficient evidence to support that theory.

Sybers' lawyer, Harry Harper, said his unusual request to appear before the grand jury would allow him to rebut the misleading slant he contends state investigators have put on the case.

State Attorney Harry Shorstein of Jacksonville, a special prosecutor appointed by Gov. Lawton Chiles to conduct another investigation, was out of his office and did not return a phone message Monday.

Sybers, now retired and living in Canada, was the medical examiner for a district that includes Panama City Beach. Two of Sybers' employees found his wife dead in her bed after he sent them to check on her.

The case has been suspicious in part because Mrs. Sybers had two needle marks on her arm.

Atlantis speeds toward Russian space station

By MICHELLE KOSMIN
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Space shuttle Atlantis zoomed toward the Russian space station Mir for tonight's docking and five days of joint operations.

Before the two spacecraft separate this weekend, shuttle astronaut Jerry Linenger will switch places with fellow American John Blaha, who has lived on the outpost since September.

Linenger and Blaha will work with five Atlantis astronauts and the two Russian cosmonauts aboard Mir to move nearly 3 tons of water, clothing, scientific specimens and other materials from one ship to the other.

Atlantis, which took off Sunday, was to dock with Mir at 10:53 p.m. EST. It would be the fifth time in 1 1/2 years that the shuttle has latched onto the space station.

Mission operations director Bob Castle said he knew of no technical changes from Atlantis' last trip to Mir in September, when NASA astronaut Shannon Lucid was picked up and Blaha was dropped off.

"It's pretty much the same over and over and over again," Castle said.

Lucid ended up spending a record six months on the station after her ride home was delayed seven weeks by mechanical and weather problems, but Blaha is set to return to Earth as scheduled.

A 54-year-old retired Air Force colonel and big football fan, Blaha will be home in time for the Super Bowl. If Atlantis lands on Jan. 23 as planned, he will have been in space for 126 days.

Linenger, who is to be retrieved in late May, could miss the birth of his second child if the shuttle doesn't fly on time. His wife, Kathryn, is due in late June. They have a year-old son.

"It's going to be uplifting, if I'm up here floating or I'm down on Earth with my wife," Linenger told The Associated Press.

Primera to add six-story structure

By BOB SPERAN
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission has approved a new six-story structure to be built on 40 acres at Primera, north of Currency Circle.

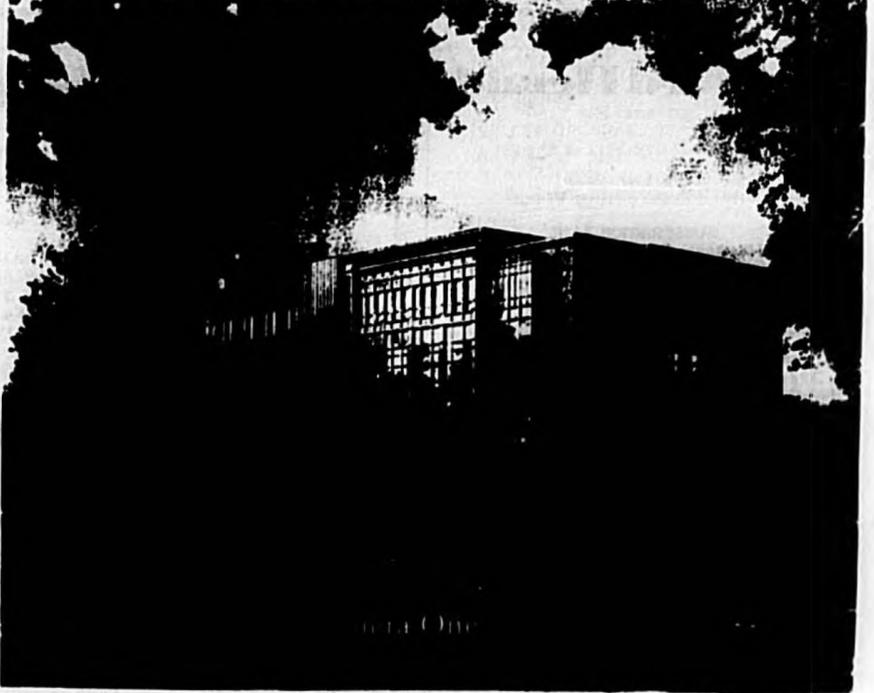

Crescent Resources, Inc., plans to build several high-tech, multi-story office buildings on the property, which will be leased to target businesses.

This past Thursday, the only request was for one six-story 150,000 square foot building. It will become the headquarters for G.E. Capital Services.

The specific conditional use request was for a 96-foot nine-inch tall building. City codes have a limit of 75 feet so the conditional use request was necessary.

Crescent says it must start work on the site by Feb. 1 of this year, and on the physical structure by the middle of March, in order to meet an October 1, 1997 deadline set by G.E. Capital Service.

The actual building will be only 79 feet in height. To the roof line, the height would become 84 feet, and with mechanical equipment and an equipment screen on the roof, the highest point would become 95 feet nine-inches.

Clinton budget to include Medicare savings

By MARTIN CRUTCHER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — In moves certain to trigger a hot political debate, President Clinton plans to propose retining in Medicare and Medicaid spending, two huge government health care programs that cater to the poor and elderly.

Administration officials say his new budget will propose reduced payments to health maintenance organizations, doctors and hospitals to save about $100 billion from the giant Medicare program over the next five years.

These officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the administration's aim was to trim payments to health care providers while avoiding cutbacks in services or higher insurance premiums on the 37 million older Americans covered by Medicare.

In a related move, officials said Clinton's budget will call for firm limits on the growth of Medicaid, the health insurance program for the poor. The plan, first disclosed by the New York Times, calls for per capita Medicaid spending to grow no faster than the nation's per capita economic output before adjusting for inflation.

Clinton made a similar proposal during the 1995 budget debate. Indeed, he had proposed reductions in both health care programs, but senior Democrats have expressed concern with the proposals.

On Medicare, sources told The Associated Press that about $20 billion of the $100 billion in savings would come from reducing payments to HMOs. The administration argues that the current fee schedule overcompensates HMOs when compared to doctors paid under Medicare's traditional fee-for-service structure.

The administration says the fee structure doesn't take into account the fact that HMOs treat a larger share of healthy senior citizens as compared to the regular Medicare program, which deals with a greater percentage of older, sicker Medicare recipients.

HMO officials, however, contend that this assertion is based on outdated studies. They argue that cuts in their payments would force them to curtail incentives such as free prescription drugs and dental services that they are using to lure Medicare patients into HMOs.

More than 4 million Medicare recipients are in HMOs at an annual cost of $24 billion. The total Medicare program cost the government $191 billion last year.

At a White House briefing Monday, presidential spokesman Mike McCurry refused to discuss details of the HMO reductions, but he called the increases in Medicare reimbursements to HMOs "excessive" and said, "There is a strong argument for reducing some of the payments that are made."

Administration sources said the president's budget would also include a controversial proposal to extend the life of the Medicare hospital trust fund, which is expected to go broke in 2001.

The administration will propose shifting payments for home health care services from the hospital trust fund to a separate Medicare account that is supported by general revenue.

Republicans have already denounced this idea, which Clinton originally put forward last year, as an "accounting gimmick" that does nothing to produce actual savings.

In 1995, the president vetoed a Republican measure that would have cut $270 billion in projected spending from Medicare over seven years, accusing the GOP of seeking excessive reductions to finance tax cuts for the wealthy. Clinton and other Democrats repeated that charge often in last year's election campaigns.

On another budget issue, the president is expected later this week to release the details of his aid package for the financially strapped District of Columbia.

Administration and congressional sources said the president has decided the federal government should fund the city's share of the Medicaid program, its prison system and the unfunded liabilities in its pension system.

In exchange for this increased federal support, the administration's budget would eliminate the annual $600 million federal payment to the "city," these sources said.

The president will unveil his new budget on Feb. 6, two days after he delivers his State of the Union address to Congress.

Clinton's 1998 budget, which covers the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1, will project a balance in 2002 while also fulfilling his campaign promises to provide a $600 per-child tax credit, tax breaks to cover college education expenses and the elimination of capital gains taxes on the sale of all but the most expensive homes.

Sam forced out

FOSTER, Ohio — Sam, the cigarette-smoking, beer-swilling chimp, has left his favorite watering hole.

A longtime resident of a concrete cage next to the Train Stop Inn, Sam was forced out because the town plans to use his former home as a site for public restrooms.

Kenny Harris, who owns Sam and the tavern, would not say where he sent the 4-foot, 140-pound chimp.

"He's in good hands," Harris said.

Sam, 25, spent his youth in a traveling side show. He eventually found a home with Harris outside the inn, where customers marveled at his ability to drink beer and smoke cigarettes.

Litty Cornett, a longtime neighbor, said she would miss Sam.

"Everybody loves Sam," she said, recalling his fondness for peanut butter sandwiches, apples and watermelon. "He ate everything."

Bet on it

BOSTON — The governors of Massachusetts and Wisconsin have made their Super Bowl bet.

Massachusetts Gov. William Weld put 31 Boston cream pies and 31 roast turkeys on his New England Patriots.

Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson is wagering 31 wheels of cheese and 31 pounds of bratwurst on his Green Bay Packers.

The friendly wager between the two governors is based on this being the 31st Super Bowl.

Weld joined with Thompson that the game between the Patriots, coached by Bill "The Tuna" Parcells, and Green Bay, cheered on by the loyal "cheeseheads," would be a "Tuna Melk, with the tuna on top."

Green Bay's victory over the Carolina Panthers in the NFC Championship netted Thompson T-bones from North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt and barbecue from South Carolina Gov. David Beasley.

Thompson said he was hoping Weld would put up some lobsters so he could put together a surf and turf platter.

Let's get those reforms passed

According to an Associated Press report from Tallahassee today, political candidates won't be able to turn over unused campaign war chests to their parties and will have a harder time lying about their opponents, if election reform proposals become law.

Local elections don't involve the amount of money contributed to or spent to campaign for office, but election reforms, especially in connection with lying about opponents would certainly do every one of us a world of good.

Both Gov. Lawton Chiles and Secretary of State Sandra Mortham outlined changes to Florida's election laws yesterday. Both called the existing system bad and getting worse with each election cycle.

"Many citizens feel that there is no point in voting," Mortham said Monday, adding that officials must restore public confidence soon, "or risk losing it forever."

Citing a blown-up attack ad mailed to Panhandle voters last October, in an attempt to defeat Democratic Rep. Durrell Peaden, Chiles said such advertisements have become an accepted part of political campaigns. "Too often now, it forces candidates to race to the bottom to get to the top," he said. "We sort of saw it hit a new low this time."

Naturally, no local political candidate would ever admit to telling falsehoods in a campaign. If push came to shove however, there were allegations, insinuations, and the telling of half-truths, which were intended to, and in some cases did, hurt their opponents.

Some of these accusations came from campaign supporters while others came from the candidates themselves.

"Some of Chiles' and Mortham's plans call for people making phone calls in support of a candidate to be required to identify themselves and their candidate immediately. Giving a false identity could lead to violation of the new rules, if enacted."

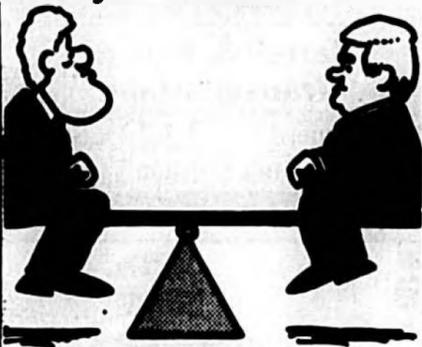

Addressing the state-wide changes, House Speaker Daniel Webster, R-Orlando, said reform attempts in recent years have failed because they were introduced far too late in the legislative session. "I'm committed to getting it out in the first week," he said.

Hopefully, these changes on the state level will also result in eventual changes in local election and campaigning laws. It would do our cities, county and state a world of good.

Many voters in the area have commented that they are sick and tired of finding themselves having to vote for the lesser of two (or more) evils on a ballot. They would like to vote for the best candidate in an election.

We fully agree. Let's get those election reforms in Tallahassee approved. Then let's start working on our own problems.

Dreaming of the Brooklyn Dodgers

I had the most agreeable dream the other evening.

It had been a busy day, and I had not had the time to read the pleasurable parts of the newspaper until just before I went to bed. The last image I saw before turning out the light was a story headlined, "O'MALLEY IS SELLING DODGERS."

It wasn't long before I was deep into Part One of my reverie. (You probably didn't know this, but writers tend to dream in chapters.) I was reading a headline that said, MYSTERY INVESTOR BUYS DODGERS. WILL MOVE TEAM BACK TO BROOKLYN.

My pulse quickened. I read on. This moneyed man, it turned out, had spent many glorious afternoons as a child at Ebbets Field. He had idolized people by the name of Campanella, Furillo and Robinson. Now he was buying the Dodgers and turning them over to a nonprofit corporation, shares of which would be offered to the public.

There were a few provisos. There would be no dividends, and profits would be plowed back into the team. Shares could not be sold except back to the corporation. The team would be run by an executive committee, which would hire an operations director, who would hire managers and negotiate with players.

Hmm, said I, this sounds similar to the manner in which the Green Bay Packers have been operating for 75 years. The Packers are a safe bet to stay in Green Bay forever, and they have the most loyal fans in America. Why hasn't some baseball brain or interested observer thought of public ownership before?

Well, some interested observers have. In July 1990, New York governor Mario Cuomo suggested that the state or the city of New York buy the Yankees. It would be a "great investment," he said. And a columnist by the name of Spear has been touting several public ownership ideas since September 1989.

Well anyway, back to Part One of my dream. The idea of bringing the Dodgers back to Brooklyn proved wildly popular, and the citizens lined up for many blocks to buy shares. Back in

Why hasn't some baseball brain or interested observer thought of public ownership before?

California, the Disney people stepped forward and urged for a new theme park not to fret. Disney would build a BallWorld, they said, with plastic grass and plastic bleacher seats with plastic splinters and out-of-work actors selling plastic hot dogs.

In Part Two of my dream, I saw a walled-off compound with a sign over the entrance that said "Owners' Purgatory." Inside were many men engaged in sweaty labor and sleeping on mats of artificial turf. Among them were Walter O'Malley, the man who took the Dodgers to Los Angeles in 1958 and eventually turned them over to his son, Peter; Calvin Griffith, who moved the Washington Senators to Minnesota in 1961; and Bob Short, who moved another Senators team to Texas in 1971.

In Part Three of my dream, I followed the shuffles of a hunchback who left the steamy owners' purgatory every day and climbed a few ladders to a level where the sun shone and flowers bloomed and a sign said "Abused Managers Department." There sat men by the name of Yogi and Billy and Bucky. The old man waited on them, bringing fruit and confections and occasionally getting down on his hands and knees to polish their shoes.

At one point, the geeser turned toward me and I saw it was George Michael Steinbrenner III, and I snuggled down and fell into as peaceful a slumber as I've had in many a night.

How polls have deceived America

What did the polls tell Americans about the likely outcome of last year's presidential election? The average person would say that they showed Bill Clinton as the overwhelming favorite, usually beating Bob Dole by nearly 20 percentage points.

And the average person would be right: That is exactly what they showed. Yet on Election Day Bill Clinton's margin over Bob Dole was just 8 percentage points (49 to 41).

With Ross Perot getting another 8, (Two percent of the voters voted for minor candidates.)

Did the polls' persistent and outrageous overestimate of Mr. Clinton's margin, month after month, make any difference? Of course it did. Many people are swayed to what they believe is the winning side, especially if they think that side is going to win overwhelmingly. And even the staunchest Dole supporters found it harder to generate enthusiasm (let alone cash) for their candidate because he was so widely believed to be doomed.

I had decided to let this manifest case of bias pass without comment, under the general heading of What Else is New, when my eye was caught last month by a New York Times article on the subject. Incredibly, it appears that the pollsters are actually taking bows for their performance.

"The polls did a pretty good job," said Andrew Kohut, director of the Pew Research Center for the People and the Press (and himself a veteran pollster). "I would give the polls a grade of B. Most were within the margin of sampling error."

How on earth does Mr. Kohut come up with such a conclusion? He achieves it by concentrating exclusively on the very last polls taken by the various polling organizations, on the weekend immediately preceding Election Day.

Even then, with the sole exception of the Reuters/Zogby poll (which was far ahead of the rest in predictive accuracy all year long), the pollsters credited Mr. Clinton with margins of 12 to 18 percent over Mr. Dole -- or, in other words, exaggerated the Clinton lead by anywhere from 50 to 125 percent! For this they get a B?

But of course their final predictions were, in any case, the least important of all. Who gives a hoot what the polls predict the day before Election Day? By then everybody has made up their minds, and in any case we'll know the actual result in 36 hours. It was what the polls predicted in the spring, summer and fall that really mattered.

And there the polls did devastating damage to Bob Dole's chances. On May 16, for example, a Wall Street Journal/NBC News poll reported that respondents favored Clinton over Dole by 54 to 37 percent -- a 17-point lead. A New York Times/CBS News poll conducted July 11-13 gave Mr. Clinton a lead of 22 points: 49 to 27, with 18 percent favoring Perot. A Washington Post/ABC News poll conducted Sept. 3-4 showed the president leading Mr. Dole 51 percent to 37 (i.e., by 14 points) with Mr. Perot taking 8.

A USA Today/CNN/Gallup poll conducted Sept. 13-15 was worse: The president's lead over Dole was 16 points (51 to 35), with Perot getting 7. Another poll conducted for the same group just six days later showed the president's margin over Dole widening -- it was now 17 points (53 to 36 percent), with just 5 going to Perot.

No wonder the polls prefer to dwell on their very last (and least important) samplings.

Kudos to Tiger Woods' parents

When I see Tiger Woods, I see the embodiment of the American dream. I see a 21-year-old lad of black and Asian extraction vaulting to the top of a professional sport at which exceedingly few minorities have excelled. And, no less impressive, I see a young gentleman who is a credit to his old-fashioned parents, Earl and Kultida Woods.

Anyone who follows sports, or reads Newsweek or People magazine, is probably well-acquainted with Tiger's resume. He is the first golfer in the history of the game to win three straight U.S. Amateur titles. After his most recent victory, this past August, he turned professional.

So promising is his golf career that Nike, the sports apparel maker, and Titleist, the golf equipment manufacturer, signed young Woods to endorsement contracts valued at $60 million over the next five years. Such sums are unheard of not only for a rookie golfer, but for virtually any kind of professional sports rookie.

Woods' staggering contracts put a lot of pressure on him to perform right out of the box (as does the pressure from fellow pro golfers who may have been just a little jealous of the new kid on the block). But Woods won three of his first nine tournaments as a professional, a record unmatched by any golfer in history.

Not by Arnold Palmer. Not by Jack Nicklaus. Not by Greg Norman.

So it is against this backdrop that I visited La Costa Country Club (just north of San Diego) last week for the Mercedes Championship, which officially opens the golf season. Most fascinating was the number of black professionals who were on hand to witness the proceedings. At the two dozen or so golf tournaments I have previously attended, I could count the number of black golf aficionados on one hand.

It seemed to me that many of the black patrons at La Costa viscerally felt they had finally found a sports hero with whom they could identify, a pro athlete whom they wouldn't mind their own upper-middle-class kids emulating.

Again, I think this is a tribute to Tiger's parents.

Earl Woods is a former Green Beret, who raised his son with equal measures of love and discipline. I confess that I got a little teary-eyed when I watched the two warmly embrace after each of young Tiger's U.S. Amateur championships. It's not often on television that you see that kind of relationship depicted between black fathers and sons.

Tiger's mom "Tida," of Thai heritage, was no less responsible for keeping the golf prodigy grounded. As a toddler, she recalled in the Newsweek cover story, Tiger would watch tennis bad boys John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors on TV throwing racquets on the courts. She admonished her precocious Tiger. "I don't want you to ruin my reputation as a parent. I will spank you in a minute if you act like that."

Isn't it a pity that many other black athletes didn't receive the same kind of parenting at home? That's why so many, it seems, get into so much trouble. And I, for one, can barely stand to watch most professional sports these days because I just can't separate the athletes' performance on the field, the diamond, the court from their personal conduct.

The most obvious example, of course, is football hall-of-famer O.J. Simpson, a wife beater if not a murderer. Perhaps he was the boyhood hero of two-time heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson, the convicted rapist.

Or how about Albert Belle, the Chicago White Sox slugger, who's had so many run-ins with fans and reporters that he's had to receive anger-control counseling? And then there's Dennis Rodman, of the Chicago Bulls, who not only is unsatisfied with the natural hair color God gave him, but also feels a need to degrade himself by traipsing around in a wedding dress.

These pros are disgraceful. And I hope no black youngster in America views them as role models. They have been blessed with extraordinary athletic prowess that has made each of them millionaires many times over, and they have done nothing but bring shame upon themselves and, by association, all black athletes.

If Tiger Woods ever roughs up some young woman, if he ever goes postal on his fans, if he ever puts on a dress of any kind, he will break my heart and many others as well. I view him as a black Luke Skywalker, the last best hope for a world-famous superstar athlete/role model. May the force be with him.

Woods' staggering contracts put a lot of pressure on him to perform right out of the box.

Many people are swayed to what they believe is the winning side.

Liquor

said. "Comes now George W. Currie to respectfully request from this governing body...reconsideration of its original application of Land Use...etc."

This Monday, Blair and Currie were represented by Dave Rose of Sanford, who identified himself as a friend of the two. "To clarify this," he said, "Mr. Currie owns the property, and Mr. Blair is the owner of the license. Stoooges is run under Blair's scrutiny and by his grace until the liquor license comes in. At this time Larry Blair will take sole possession."

Regarding the distance from Stoooges to churches, he commented, "The closest church is approximately 1,800 feet away. You would have to cross one street, cross two alleys and go half way down another block to get to the church. You can't even see the church from Stoooges."

Regarding visitors coming into the area via the Orlando-Sanford Airport, he observed, "People have no place to go. There is nothing to bring them into the city. That's why we need a waiver of this 2,000 foot distance. If not, it will bring a financial hardship on Larry Blair as well as the city of Sanford."

"Why did this place even open, knowing that there is a 2,000 foot distance requirement?" asked Mayor Larry Dale.

"We didn't believe there would be a problem getting the liquor license," Rose responded. "This issue has bothered me more during my two years on the commission than any other matter," said Commissioner Kerry Lyons. "You have come here three times and we've turned you down three times. Now you are back, and this information you have submitted is the biggest piece of garbage I've ever seen."

Rose responded, "You have been against this all along. You don't want a bar on any street in Sanford. But it's a lawful business. If you think we've been making threats, then I apologize, but I was aiming at the last commission." "Apparently you are under the impression that serving hard liquor is the only way to make a profit. Is that right?" asked Commissioner Brady Lessard. Rose responded "Yes."

Mary Hawver spoke up during the public hearing. "This is my neighborhood," she said. "We have enough alcohol now on this one corner to supply many people with beer. I would hate to see the city lower its standards. I see no benefit to this, only a lot of harm, especially with the children and the congestion already in our area."

Following additional discussion, Commissioner Lyons made the motion to deny the request. Commissioner Lessard seconded the motion.

Lessard then asked City Attorney Bill Colbert about the city's distance requirement, questioning if it would hold up if challenged.

Colbert said the question might be concerning churches, and what the definition of a permanent versus temporary church might be. "If it came to that," he said, "it would have to be up to a judge to decide. But I believe it's strong enough and I would defend it."

"In that case," Lessard answered, "I'll have to defend our ordinance as it now stands."

"It is germane that our city has codes and ordinances which are enforceable," said Mayor Dale. "If this is not the case, we need to investigate. But Mr. Blair and Mr. Currie should have known this 2,000 foot separation requirement was in existence from the very start. The only hardship I see, was done in choosing that particular site for Stoooges."

With that, Commissioners Lyons and Lessard, and Mayor Dale voted in favor of denying the request. Commissioner Whitey Eckstein, who had remained completely silent during the entire discussion, along with Commissioner Velma Williams, voted against the motion.

Evidence gathered at the flamingoes' normal nesting spot has pointed to a suspect, Hilliard said.

The selectmen were so distraught they unanimously passed a resolution last month naming the birds' summer home the Northfield Artificial Wildlife Preserve.

The resolution forbids anyone from trying to "capture" artificial wildlife within the preserve without a permit from the Society for the Preservation of Artificial Wildlife.

"There is some hope they might come back on their own," said Town Clerk Eliza Conde.

Volunteer of the Week

Dad, daughter share Indian lore

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY — Rick Figueroa has been involved with volunteer endeavors with the Indian Princess division of the YMCA for some five years now. His initial interest stemmed from a little push from his daughters but now that "Daddy's Little Girls" have grown up a little he still finds the activities to be "strengthening" in his relationship with them.

Rick Figueroa and daughter Ariel

"My wife gave me the literature from the program," he said. "The YMCA walked through my daughter's school at the beginning of the school year. They went from class to class answering questions and requested that the children take a pamphlet home. My daughter was interested so I went to a presentation and liked what I saw. It seemed interesting and different. The bonding aspect was a key to me."

He explained that within the Indian tribes there are father-daughter, mother-son, father-son and mother-daughter and they are beginning a family tribe. "They form a family nation," he said. "It has four tribes. A tribe means there are eight to 16 people."

Figueroa shared that he is active with the father-daughter part of the Indian Princesses. He added that the daughters are treated more than just "Daddy's little girls" but "more like little people."

Continuing he said "We do events together to strengthen relationships," he said. "It's an informal hierarchy with the girls. For example, when my oldest daughter comes to campouts she is really looked up to. They put on plays for us and sing songs they made up."

Explaining more about the tribes, Figueroa cited "A tribe is only as strong as the chief. The first year we didn't have a strong chief because I went to all the meetings and events. I was asked to become chief."

Within Figueroa's second year with Indian Princesses, he became a tribal chief overseeing some 16 people. Some of his duties include running the tribe, passing information to and from the federation of what events are coming up and what events to schedule as well as calling parents involved.

His third and fourth year with the tribes held even greater responsibility. Figueroa became a federation chief. He is now in charge of over 300 people, four campouts a year, setting up events, calls, giving speeches and many other activities.

Participants may earn patches or other paraphernalia. "Parade campout, federation or other" patches can be earned," he said. "Each tribe is different in what the patches are placed on. Some tribes wear vests and other wear a sort of pancho. Each tribe designs their own vests or panchos. Ribbons can also be earned when war games are completed. They are not violent, just fun games. They are activities like a shoe toss when the shoes are thrown in the air and you must go find your shoe. We do a tug-of-war. We have a bear hunt. The father dresses in a black suit and the child has a foam spear and tries to spear the father. We have water games too."

The girls also earn a plastic bear claw or plastic arrow head or a feather. According to Figueroa the colors are linked to athletic, spiritual or community service.

Each tribe also earns points. "We get points for meetings," said Figueroa. "There are points for community service, events attended, and other activities. Tribes can receive the honor title by points accumulated each year."

These activities are somewhat time consuming. Figueroa puts in from 10 to 20 hours per month. Between once a month two hour meetings, to tribal and federation events and phone calls to parents he stays busy when away from work.

The Figueroa family attends First Methodist Church of Orlando. He has also coached a softball team for several years and writes in his spare time.

Figueroa plans to seek political office soon with the City of Casselberry. "I'd like to improve my little corner of the universe," he added.

Figueroa and his wife, Andrea, have been married for 15 years. They have two daughters, Alexa and Ariel.

Spirit award targets proactive communities

DEAR ABBY: It's hard to believe we are nearing 10 years since the world held its breath as a small child was pulled to safety after 58 hours in an underground well. And after baby Jessica McClure was rescued, America joined Midland, Texas, in celebrating the rescuers and those who provided the equipment, the expertise and the countless hours of effort. We celebrated the selfless acts of an entire community that pulled together for one child.

The worldwide recognition our community received was extraordinary. At the time nothing existed to officially recognize communities for achievements such as these, so our community decided to create a platform to share the recognition we had received. We asked you to help us find deserving recipients for our Midland Community Spirit Award — and did you ever?

Hundreds of nominations poured in — 480 the last time you helped us. We continue to be amazed and invigorated by the incredible accomplishments of wonderful people and wonderful communities who achieve so much by working together.

To date, the Midland Community Spirit Award has honored the achievements of Sioux City, Iowa, for its compassionate community response in the wake of a tragic DC-10 crash, Yakima, Wash., for ridding neighborhoods of drugs, Bangor, Maine, for the volunteers who personally welcomed more than 63,000 Desert Storm veterans, Warren/Southern Wells School Community, Ind., who worked together over the Christmas holidays to convert a civic center into a school after their elementary school was destroyed by fire, and Petaluma, Calif., for the massive search efforts for Pollyanna, the 12-year-old who was kidnapped and murdered, and for ongoing efforts to establish a foundation in her memory to serve other young victims.

Abby, would you once again ask your readers to nominate deserving communities for the 1997 award? The winner will be announced at a community luncheon in early October 1997. Thank you for all of your help.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

BOBBY BURNS, MAYOR, MIDLAND, TEXAS

DEAR MAYOR BURNS: I'm pleased to help. Too often our attention is focused on negative issues, and the Midland Community Spirit Award illustrates beautifully what miracles can be accomplished when caring individuals work together. Communities whose citizens have risen to the occasion when tragedy struck are eligible to throw their hats in the ring. Interested communities may receive application materials in one of three ways:

Written requests can be mailed to: Midland Community Spirit Award, P.O. Box 1890, Midland, Texas 79701; e-mail requests to: spiritaward@mainlink.com; and on-line via the Midland Reporter-Telegram home page: <http://www.mrt.com>.

Norfolk Island pine and Monkey Puzzle tree originated in south

The Norfolk Island pine and the Monkey Puzzle tree are only two of a small group of pine trees whose origin is the southern hemisphere, where pines are rare. Some retail garden stores sometimes offer one of these pine trees in containers during the Christmas season. These pines belong to the genus Araucaria, a name derived from the word Arauca, which is a name given to a region in Chile, South America.

Other pines in this group are the Hoop pine and the Bunya Bunya tree are native to Australia. The Monkey Puzzle tree, native to Chile, is the hardest of all Araucarias. The Norfolk Island pine, native to that island in the south pacific ocean and Australia, is by the most popular of these trees in Florida. This tree is sometimes called the Star pine because of the regular star shapes formed by its horizontal layers or branchlets. The Norfolk Island pine is somewhat hardy but will freeze at about 24 degrees F.

AL FERRER

The fruits are oval cones are oval cones that look like a pineapple, green in color, about 6-12 inches in diameter, and can weight between 10 to 15 pounds. Fruits are not considered edible but Australian aborigines eat the scarlet seeds of the Bunya Bunya tree which they consider a great delicacy. Fruits are rarely found in cultivation.

Landscape uses: These trees can be used as a strong, single accent trees. They can be an attractive, novelty specimen for a large, open yard or commercial landscape. Small trees are admired as urn subjects for patios, terraces and Florida rooms. They can live for a long time as a house plant if not overwatered or overfertilized.

Culture: Trees grow well in full sun but also can grow indoors. Plants tolerate a wide range of soil types and pH with good drainage. An acid, fertile mixture should be used during transplanting. A mulch should be used to reduce water loss around the root area. Pruning is not required except to keep one central leader. Young plants should be watered well, especially during periods of drought. Because of their salt tolerance they are ideal for planting along beachfront properties. Trees are medium to fast growers and should be fertilized at least twice a year. Potted plants should be fertilized at normal strength once every two weeks. Potted plants may drop the lower foliage if overwatered or from excessive dry air caused by indoor central heating. Same symptoms may be present in outdoor-grown plants due to the same factors.

Repotting: Do not plant the trees too deeply, otherwise the plants will develop root or stem rot. Use a mixture of vermiculite potting soil to grow the plants. Repot every two or three years to prevent the plant from growing too rapidly.

Pests and diseases: Scale insects are considered to be the main pests of these trees. Leaf spots are mushroom rot are the main diseases of these trees, which usually do not have any pest or disease problem of major concern.

Propagation: Propagation is by seeds or cuttings of mature terminal shoot tips only. Soft wood cuttings can be propagated under mist in summer.

Boys nip Gateway on O.T.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Daryl Redding hit a jumper with two seconds left in overtime to give Arrow Force V a 50-48 Class 5A District 6 victory over Gateway Monday night at Hill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Redding's game-winning jumper allowed Seminole to avoid a comeback win by the Panthers, who rallied from a one-point fourth quarter deficit to force overtime.

"We didn't handle their 1-3-1 half-court trap as good as we should have," said Seminole head coach Bob Trama.

Arrow Force V improved to 8-11 with the win and finishes its district schedule at 3-3. Gateway is now 2-2 in the district with games left against Osceola and St. Cloud.

The varsity victory also capped a tripleheader sweep by Seminole as the freshmen won 68-52 and the junior varsity romped 78-38.

Redding led the way for Arrow Force V with 12 points, while Cornelius Blue added 10 points and Kenny Edwards nine.

Amund Shabazz had a game-high 17 for the Panthers, while Joel Colon chipped in with 12 points and Colon Dixon added 10 points.

Seminole will host Seminole Athletic Conference leading Oviedo on Wednesday with a tripleheader starting at 4:30 p.m.

Girls put hurt on Kowboys

From Staff Reports

KISSIMMEE — Ouch. The Seminole High School girls basketball team took a little frustration on the home-siding Osceola Kowboys Monday, hammering the Kissimmee squad 71-42 in a Class 5A District 6 contest.

The Fighting Seminoles (14-1), playing their first game since losing their first game of the season to Lake Mary last week, took a 17-3 lead after one quarter and cruised from there, never allowing the Kowboys to score more than four points in any one quarter.

The Tribe junior varsity also won. Five of the seven Seminole players that scored hit for double figures and easily poked up the slack for leading scorer Dana Merrick who is still out with an injury.

Doing the scoring for the Tribe were Sherrika Stokes and Tamara Gilbert (13 points each), Haneefah Miller and Amanda Cook (12 points each), Natasha Fisher (10 points), Jane Holbert (three points) and DeDe Hampton (two points).

Seminole hosts Oviedo in a Seminole Athletic Conference game tonight starting at 7:30 p.m.

Raider women humble visiting Valencia

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College women's basketball team turned an expected tough game into a rout as it bounced Mid-Florida Conference for Valencia Community College 56-41 at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center Saturday night.

The game was nowhere near as close as the final score would indicate as the Raiders held the Matadors without a field goal for the first 10:05 of the game and led 25-9 before settling for a 30-15 halftime advantage.

Only the play of Lake Howell graduate Christine James kept Valencia (13-7) in the game. The sophomore center was the lone Matador in double figures with a game-high 17 points and also helped the Matadors to a 41-33 rebounding advantage with a team-high 15 boards.

SCC's tough half-court press wreaked havoc on Valencia as the Raiders forced numerous turnovers held the Matadors to only 26.2 percent (17-65) shooting.

SCC, meanwhile, had one of its better shooting also had five steals. Other double figure scorers were Christy Bryant (22 points, three rebounds, three assists), Angela Meiser (11 points, five rebounds, five assists, three steals, one blocked shot).

Also contributing for the Raiders were Marja Kvitnen (eight points, four rebounds, two steals), Charlotte Griffin (seven points, two rebounds, two assists, six steals, one blocked shot) and Latoya Griffin (five points, five rebounds, three steals, one blocked shot).

SCC is now 16-5 overall and 2-0 in the conference. This Saturday night the Raiders will continue as six-game homestand with a non-conference contest against Savannah Tech starting at 6 p.m. at the air-conditioned SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

The team of coach Ken Patrick will return to Mid-Florida Conference action a week from Wednesday hosting Santa Fe Community College from Gainesville, then host the top-ranked team in the nation, Central Florida Community College from Ocala, on Saturday, January 25. Both games will start at 6 p.m., preceding the men's games, against the same teams, at 8 p.m.

Two straight for Magic on road

By TOM CANAVAN AP Sports Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Rony Seikaly scored 8 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter when Orlando wiped out a 10-point deficit to defeat the New Jersey Nets 114-111 on Monday night.

Dennis Scott matched his season-high with 27 points and Horace Grant added a season-high 26 as Orlando won for the third time in four games since the return of Penny Hardaway and Nick Anderson from injuries.

Kendall Gill had a career-high 41 points and Robert Pack a season-high 33 points and 18 assists for New Jersey, which has lost three straight and six of seven. Jayson Williams added 13 points and 19 rebounds.

A jumper by Gill gave the Nets a 93-83 lead with 9:39 to play, but the Magic responded with a 22-6 burst over the next seven minutes to take a 105-99 lead on Grant's jumper in the lane with 1:52 to go.

Seikaly scored seven straight points late in the run to put the Magic ahead for good, with the first two baskets being set up by Anderson assists.

The Nets got to within two points on a three-point play by Williams with 15.9 seconds to play, but Hardaway, who has only played in nine games this season because of knee surgery, made two free throws two seconds later to ice the game.

New Jersey, embarrassed by Toronto on Saturday when the Raptors scored a team-record 48 first-quarter points, jumped out to the lead by tying a team record with 43 points in the opening period.

Orlando, which has beaten the Nets in all three meetings, tied the game in the third quarter, but the Nets used an 11-1 spurt that featured four points apiece by Kerry Kittles and Williams to open an 86-79 lead after three.

The margin grew to 10 before the Magic rallied, hitting 11 of 19 from the field (58 percent) and 10 of 14

Ex-smoker is hooked on violence

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm just like the woman who wrote you complaining that, once her husband stopped smoking, he was impossible to live with, even though he used nicotine gum and patches. My husband behaves this way off cigarettes. He has an uncontrollable temper and has abused me, despite his nicotine patches. Would an anti-depressant help him?

DEAR READER: Most people can stop smoking cigarettes — albeit with some difficulty — using techniques such as nicotine gum or patches, in conjunction with a support group (Smoke Enders and others). No one ever claimed that giving up tobacco products is easy; even with help, it may be an unpleasant experience.

Nonetheless, the process is no excuse for abuse.

I'm sorry that your husband is having such a hard time dealing with his nicotine addiction. (Nicotine does have a calming effect on some people.) However, I suspect that there is more going on here than simple nicotine withdrawal. Does he, in a convoluted fashion, somehow "blame" you for "making" him stop?

Recovering addicts, regardless of substance, often place the responsibility for their discomfort on the very people who care most for them. This is not only unfair but it defeats the purpose of recovery.

I believe that you have to move beyond the cigarette issue. Your husband needs professional help, in my opinion. This help could be as straightforward as temporary counseling or your husband may require psychiatric intervention, with or without anti-depressant medication.

It seems to me that the most important consideration is your safety. I urge you to contact your local Women's Emergency Services organization or spousal-abuse network. Don't delay. You need both support and the guarantee that your health is not in danger while your husband works through his problem. Do not — repeat, do not — take responsibility for your husband's abuse, try to handle this alone or allow yourself to become a victim.

If the degree of violence escalates, don't hesitate to call 911, or other emergency telephone numbers.

To give you more information on his habit, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Help II: Mental Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2617, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10154. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During breast surgery for a lump, the doctor cut all the way under my arm. Was this necessary? I have friends with breast cancer who simply had their lumps removed.

DEAR READER: In the presence of a malignant breast lesion, it is vital to know whether the cancer has spread. Consequently, such women usually undergo chest X-rays, liver tests, bone scans — and a procedure called "axillary dissection." At the time the cancer is biopsied and removed, the prudent surgeon ordinarily takes out the lymph glands under the arm for analysis.

If the glands are free of cancer cells, the prognosis is more favorable than it would be if some of the glands were affected. Cancer cells in the lymph nodes, which act as filters in the body, indicate that the malignancy has spread beyond the breast itself, but not necessarily into bone or other organs. In this instance, aggressive therapy (with radiation and drugs) is mandatory.

Your surgeon followed a traditional practice that is appropriate. I do not understand why your friends' surgeons chose not to do the same.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders."

WIN AT BRIDGE

The polite way

By Phillip Alder

Occasionally a writer will call a bridge bid or play mysterious. That's a polite way of saying someone blundered. What "mysterious actions" were there in today's deal?

Against four spades, West led the heart two. East switching to the diamond queen after winning with the ace. Declarer won in hand with the ace, unblocked the club king, ruffed a heart in the dummy, and discarded a diamond on the club ace. He ruffed a diamond in hand, but West overrudded with the 10. And when East got in with the spade ace, another diamond promoted West's spade queen: one down.

First, the bidding. Aggressive tournament players will bid a pre-emptive three hearts with that West hand. It isn't clear that North should bid three clubs rather than raise spades. However, if the auction does continue, it is comforting to have shown your long suit. The real mystery, though, is East's bid of three hearts. Why not three diamonds? It was possible that East-West could either make game or have a good sacrifice over four spades. Always strain to show your second suit. Finally, South was ambitious in bidding four spades.

Now to the play. There was no hurry to take the discard on dummy's club ace. Better, after winning with the diamond ace, is to ruff a heart in the dummy, return to hand with a club and ruff the last heart. Then lead dummy's remaining trump. East wins with the ace and returns a diamond, but declarer wins in the dummy, discards his last diamond on the club ace, and loses just one more trump trick to West.

MOROSCOPE

Wednesday, Jan. 15, 1997

Generally, conditions will improve in the year ahead. However, it will be up to you to make the most of the opportunities that will be presented to you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It could prove to be an exercise in futility today if you try to influence associates with flattery or perks. Capricorn, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and BARE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Make sure to state your zodiac sign. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Try to evaluate each situation realistically today. Use logic instead of depending on wishful thinking and hunches. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) From time to time you tend to be too generous with people who do not deserve your attention. This might be the case today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will only hurt yourself if you are lethargic today. Do not let something beneficial slip past you just because you are not motivated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you behave like a know-it-all today, you won't score any points with your pals. It will be better to understate your views.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You should be extremely careful when handling other people's property today. For example, don't lend something to another person if it is not yours.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your judgment might be questionable today when evaluating an important development. Remain optimistic, but try to be realistic as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You should not attempt a difficult endeavor today if your co-workers are as inexperienced as you are. Wait for competent help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Manage your resources with prudence today. Do not dip into your cash reserves in order to gratify an extravagant whim. Leave your nest egg intact.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Neither you nor your mate should try to pressure the other to comply with your wishes today. You must strive for consensus.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might start slowly today and you will do more talking than producing. This could be compounded by lazy companions who might slow you down even more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to conserve your resources today. Your chart indicates that you might deplete your supply in each area.
