Is hypoglycemia linked to diabetes?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with hypoglycemia I am sending you a free copy of and have questions. Is this my Health Report life-threatening and how did I get it in the first place? DEARREADER: Hypoglycemia (low blood sugar), which causes faintness, weakness and hunger an hour or two after meals, is not life threatening. The condition is diagnosed by a blood test. To have hypoglycemia, your blood sugar has to be below 45 milligrams per deciliter (normal: 100) in conjunction with the symptoms I mentioned.

Although some patients with this affliction have pancreatic turnors or other glandular abnormalities (which can be diagnosed by special X-rays and blood tests), most people with hypoglycemia do not have a demonstrable cause. The basis for such cases is unknown and no one knows why they develop the disorder.

In a minority of instances, hypoglycemia may be a prelude to diabetes (too much blood sugar). Once present, the condi-tion does not disappear.

To treat hypoglycemia, most authorities recommend avoidance of sugar and alcohol, coupled with frequent small-portion meals high in protein and low in carbohydrates. Surgery may be necessary to re-move a pancreatic tumor. In many ways, this restricted diet resembles that prescribed for diabetics.

Your doctor should probably refer you to an endocrinologist. to make sure that you don't have a treatable cause for your hypoglycemia.

To give you more information. "Hypoglycemia." Other readers sure to mention the title.

SANFORD — Company B, 124th Infantry, Florida National Guard, Wednesday returned from hurricane cleanup duty to home base at the Sanford armory. They arrived in convoy fashion shortly before 6 p.m.

The men had been sent to the Florida Panhandle to assist in hurricane relief one week ago, after Hurricane Opal spewed its 125 mile per hour winds across a 120 mile stretch of Florida's coastal counties on October 4.

Approximately 100 guardemen were called to active duty by Governor Lawton Chiles.

Sgt. First Class Tom Davis said Navarre Beach, then moved to Destin. "These were coastal cities, " he said. "and while there was plenty of wind damage, most of the damage in our area was caused by the tidal surge."

SANFORD - The county election is more than a year away but candidates are already lining up to run. Seven candidates, including five incumbents, have opened campaign accounts, reports Supervisor of Elections Sandra Goard.

A former Longwood city commissioner and mayor has announced he will challenge the incumbent Seminole County Commissioner from district 5.

Paul Lovestrand announced Wednesday he will qualify as a Republican and run against GOP incumbent Daryl McLain in the primary.

"I'd like to bring financial responsibility to the county," he states, "and my platform will be based on my record of austerity vs. the liberal tax and spend record of the in-cumbent."

Lovestrand also anticipates that he will sign the 'Contract with the County.' He agrees with the conservative principles in the contract such as: term limitations; no new taxes without voter approval; no borrowing without voter approval: no automatic pay raises for county commissioners: less government regulations, an end to county occupational licenses and an end to corporate welfare programs paid for by small businesses and taxpayers.

Prison proposed at closing Navy Base

Nearby residents object

JACKSONVILLE - A redevelopment plan for Cecil Field Naval Air Station that includes land to build the state's largest prison has been presented to Mayor John Delaney over the objection of nearby residents.

The Cecil Field Redevelopment Commission cited the prison as an integral piece of the plan to recapture some 2,000 of the 5,900 jobs that will be lost when the sprawling Navy base closes in 1998.

Residents living near the base. however, are vehemently opposed to a prison. They are concerned about escapes, property values, sesthetics and the impact of a prison on attracting more desirable businesses.

Computer inside eye to restore sight

ORLANDO - Researchers have developed a featherweight computer chip designed to float on the thin, wet tissue of the retina, where it will send visual signals to the brain and - its creators hope - restore at least partial sight to the blind.

The computer, about the size of the date on a penny, will be powered by solar cells that will generate electricity when struck by an invisible laser beam coming from a pair of special eye-glasses in which the clear lenses have been replaced by two tiny TV cameras.

If that sounds like something possible only on "Star Trek." Dr. Joseph Risso, one of its developers, has a ready answer. He points to the success of the electronic cochlear implant, which is now enabling many formerly deaf people to hear.

"Nearly 10 percent of previously deaf patients who receive a cochlear implant can hold a conversation over a telephone," said Rizzo, a neurologist and ophthalmologist at Harvard Medical School.

The success of the electronic ear gives hope to Rizzo and his colleagues, who include John Wyatt of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The first eye-on-a-chip has just been completed at a cost of $500,000, Risso said. But mass production of the chips should be the chips sho $50.each. Rizzo.said.

It is still years away from human trials of the computer. first chip in a rabbit's eye sometime in the next year, Rizzo said. He described the work Wednesday at a seminar sponsored by Research to Prevent Blindness, a New York voluntary organization that supports eye research.

Dr. Jean Bennett of the Scheie Eye Institute at the University of Pennsylvania said she was impressed with Rizzo's work."It's fascinating," she said.

Bennett is also pursuing a forward-looking treatment for blindness. She is experimenting to perfect a form of gene therapy that may one day restore vision to people with a genetic abnormality that causes retinitis pigmentoes.

That condition affects 50,000 to 100,000 Americans, most of whom begin to lose their vision as adolescents and eventually go blind.

The computer chip is only a stop-gap measure until gene therapy can reverse the underlying genetic defects in some forms of biindness, Rizzo said.

Bennett said both approaches are important. "Some things will work for some situations, and others won't," she said. "So it's good to have a bag of tricks."

Rizzo's chip has two layers: a top layer of solar cells and a bottom layer of computer circuitry. Protruding from the two layers is a tiny strip carrying electrodes that send signals directly to the nerves in the retina. which transmit the signals through the optic nerve to the

The chip will probably produce only limited vision in a very narrow visual field, but that could be enough to dramatically improve the lives of patients who cannot see at all. Risso said.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC WORKSHOP NORTH 1-4 SMALL AREA STUDY

On October 25, 1995, Seminole County will host a public workshop on a proposed small area study known as the "North I-4 Small Area Study" (see map below).

The purpose of this study is to: (1) establish the basis for preparation of a master plan which will direct and encourage the location/expension of target business and industry within the study area; (2) ensure sufficient sites for development of future target business and industry; (3) ensure efficient use of the County's substantial investment in major public facilities, such as roadways and public water and sewer facilities; and (4) realize the economic goals of the Seminole County Comprehensive Plan. In general, Target Businesses and Industries include such uses as light manufacturing and distribution, financial services, office uses, high-tech uses, research and development, corporate headquarters, hospitals, hotels, etc.

Directions to Workshop:

To arrive at the AAA facility from I-4, go west on Lake Mary Boulevard (Exit 50) to International Parkway; turn right (north) on International Parkway one mile, and then left onto AAA Drive, and follow signs to the visitor and member parking area.

Please note that AAA is a non-emoking facility.

Properties which are designated Higher Intensity Planned Development (HIP) are currently being amended to HIP-Target Industry.

The open house and workshop will be held in the Conference Center Auditorium of the American Automobile Association (AAA) located at 1000 AAA Drive, Heathrow, Florida. The workshop will begin with an open house at 6:00 P.M. At 7:00 P.M. there will be a brief presentation of the study describing the purposes and objectives of the study, data collection, potential land use and transportation issues, general funding techniques, and community-wide aesthetics and marketing. County staff and consultant representatives will be present to receive public comment and answer questions regarding this small area study.

As the success of this small area study is dependent upon public input, your participation at this workshop is

Today is Columbus Day, the actual day rather than the date designated by the U.S. Government, which was Monday. While there is argument whether Columbus was the first European to arrive in North America, (most agree he wasn't), this day of discovery nevertheless should give us fodder for thought.

Some have quipped that Christopher Columbus wasn't much different than many people today. He was actually attempting to go around what many considered as a flat

While he traveled a great distance, he didn't really know where he was going, and didn't know where he was once he arrived. Furthermore, he did it all on money supplied by the government of that time. We hear similar accusations in this century about some of our people, don't we?

Columbus set sail on three ships, the Nins, Pinta, and Santa Maria, on August 4, 1492, with 88 men. On October 12, he and his men reportedly sighted land at what is the present-day Bahamas. He subsequently landed at San Salvador, Cuba, and Hispaniola. (Dominican Republic), but not on the mainland.

It wasn't until August 14, 1498, on his third voyage, that he actually touched his feet on continental soil, deciding that this must be the mainland. This time he had six ships and a much larger compliment of men.

Regardless of whether he was here first or not, he was a brave soul. After discovering the islands on his first trip, he made three more trips. This time, not to prove the earth was round, but to investigate new lands which had never before been known to the European

He didn't actually find North America. It was here all the time, and the Indian nations were already in possession of the land.

What he did discover, was how to get here, and where this new land was located. No doubt he brought about many map changes.

Perhaps worth consideration on this 503rd anniversary of his first trip, is a quote from Alexander Graham Bell. He said, "Great discoveries and improvements invariably involve the cooperation of many minds. I may be given credit for having blazed the trail, but when I look at the subsequent developments. I feel the credit is due to others rather than to myself."

A good observation.

We have many of what Bell called "discoveries and improvements" going on these days, right here in Seminole County, Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood, and our other areas. Those which have really succeeded have been the result of others who assisted, helped in the planning, assisted in the execution, gave their financial support, or aided in progress in one way or another.

The designation of Sanford as an official Main Street City was not the work of only one person. It required involvement by many people. Improvements to our lakefront, the building of Seminole Towne Center mail, special events held in and around the area such as the Lake Mary/Heathrow Arts Festival, may have been instigated by one or two individuals, but it took many to bring them to a successful existence.

On this Columbus Day, let's keep those supporters in mind. Let's pay tribute to the many who helped in the past, are helping now, and will help in the future.

Just like Columbus, no one can do it alone. He couldn't have sailed one ship clear across the Atlantic back in 1492. Thank goodness for the people who have the courage and fortitude to join in various efforts. We couldn't progress without them.

From Kissinger to Schwarzenegger

ASPEN, Colo. -- President Clinton is concerned about American isolationism. In his realm, that's appropriate. But in a more important arena global "soft power" - there has been a recent positive quantum jump in American internationalism. After talking here with entertainment entrepreneurs at an Aspen Institute conference, one can look beyond the mountains and see the possibility of one more American Century.

Such musings stem from the two new mega-mergers of corporate communications giants: Dieney with Capital Cities/ABC and Time Warner with Turner Broadcasting. What is in sight seems clear: There will be about half a dozen global communications gianta (including Viacom, which owns Paramount, and Newscorp.

All of them are American corporations. The products they purvey -- movies, television, music - are almost entirely American, as American as apple pie, crime in the streets and upward mobility. These products have no serious competitors; foreigners can make jet aircraft or television sets, but the only international competitor to an American movie is another American movie. The global reach of these media megaphones will grow rapidly due to technological, political and demographic change, and because these American companies which produce and peddle Americana are more likely than before to have the huge amounts of capital necessary to exploit such changes. All this may well constitute a major advance in American foreign policy. How no? America's foreign policy goal is to live in a world hospitable to American views and values. During the Cold War we needed "hard power," military muscleand geopolitical clout, to ensure that such hospitality would survive. After all, it was threatened by an evil empire. But without a serious hard-power adversary, the importance of hard power in diminished. Increas-

What is in sight

ingly, real power is soft power. (The phrase is Harvard professor Joseph Nye's, author of "Bound to Lead," and now assistant secretary of international security affairs at the Department of Defense.)

The range and penetration of American pop-culture's power and influence should not be underestimated. In late September, in Australia, Dublin, Germany, Holland and Sweden, all 10 of the top box office movies were American. In Brussels, Spain and Italy it was nine of 10. In Paris it was eight of 10, and in Japan, seven (courtesy Screen magazine). Some were good, like "Apollo 13," and some were terrible, like "Water world."

But good American entertainment and bad American entertainment have American-ness in common. The distinguished director Sydney Pollack ["Tootsie"] has said that most American movies have a common theme: "The hero shapes destiny," a notion that entrances global audiences. The views and values that geopolitical America is offering to the world today concern democracy, markets, individualiem, pluralism and merit - very much in sync with the idea of human beings as destinyshaping heroes. American foreign policy is moving from Kissinger to Schwarzenegger.

MORTON KONDRACKE

How to bridge the racial divide

The national agitation over the O.J. Simpson acquittal calls for leadership from Washington - both words and action - but as yet there's been practically none.

Top Republicans have ducked the issue almost entirely, and President Clinton has limited his comments to saying that under the American system the jury's verdict needs to be respected. It's probably better for politicians to say nothing than to say something inane or counter-productive, but pretty soon President Clinton and his would-be successors need to step forward and be judged on how well they can handle probably the most difficult single problem afflicting the American population: our racial division.

Beyond words, though, there is one action that the O.J. case cries out for: passage of a new crime bill that will enhance the professionalism of the nation's urban police departments.

At the moment, neither President Clinton's prized 1994 "community policing" bill nor the Republican replacement does anything to upgrade police performance.

And both the administration and Congress have given s. t shrift to possibly the best idea around for improving the quality and educa-tion of police -- the ROTC-style Police Corps.

which was left unfunded by the House and granted only $10 million by the Senate, enough to train about 500 voiunteers of the 20,000 once authorized by Congress.

Better and fairer policing obviously won't cure all the nation's racial woes, but it will help. The difference between the judgments of blacks and whites about O.J. Simpeon's guilt was based in large part on the differing experiences that blacks and whites have with the police. To most whites, the racist attitudes and claimed abuses of Los Angeles cop Mark Fuhrman seem a wild aberration from the norm of police conduct, and therefore appear not so serious as to cloud a jury's judgment about hard evidence pointing toward Simpson's guilt.

The most difficult single problem afflicting the American population: our racial division.

But to most blacks, police abuse -- including false arrest, beatings, and planted evidence -- is an all-too-common experience. The L.A. jury's experience apparently led it to discount virtually all police evidence, believing it was fabricated. Under those circumstances, the iurors' claims that they had genuine "reasonable doubt" seem entirely believable.

Black America has no interest in letting violent criminals go free. Blacks are vastly more often victimized by crime than are whites. The homicide rate for white males, for instance, is 9 per 100,000 persons. But for black females, it's 13.5, and for black males,

Even though "jury nullification" based on race - the refusal of black juries to convict black defendants -- is a rising phenomenon, it's still not common practice.

In Washington, where 95 percent of defendants and 70 percent of juries are black, only 28.7 percent of felony defendants were acquitted last year, according to The Wall Street Journal. In Detroit, 30 percent were acquitted, and in New York, 47 percent.

The latest report of the Sentencing Project. showing that nearly one-third of black males aged 20-29 are in prison or on probation or parole, may spur nullification, though presumably it wouldn't if juries felt that the police and the courts represented their interests.

While blacks represent 12 percent of the population, 55 percent of all the identified homicide perpetrators in the country are black and 50 pertent of all armed robbers are black. Drug offenders, representing the biggest increase in prison populations, are also heavily African-American.

What the data - and the spectacle in LA suggest is that the police departments and courts need to be improved to protect the entire population efficiently and fairly.

That calls for more cops to ease the crushing burdens of increasing crime rates and better training in community policing, especially in urban areas. The average police officer today has to handle 10 times the number of violent crimes a cop did in 1960.

President Clinton's 1994 crime bill called for putting 100,000 more cops on the nation's streets - a 20 percent increase - but the funding levels he asked for will actually pay for far fewer and they are spread out across the country in small towns and rural areas as well as in high-crime cities.

And the Clinton crime bill contains no funds for training in "community policing." Officials who helped write the bill say that the measure's greatest impact will be to allow police departments to hire younger officers who tend to be better-educated and less prejudiced than older ones. However, they are also liable to develop the attitudes of their elders unless intensively trained.

Clinton is ahead of Republicans on the issue, though. The House voted to cut funds for police hiring and crime prevention and com-bine such programs into a block grant while increasing funding for prisons.

Why Powell has said no to Perot

WASHINGTON - Ross Perot's paranoid pursuit of missing Americans from the Vietnam was sparked a smear campaign against a former Pentagon official who may be Colin Powell's best friend. That's why Powell and Perot have no rendezvous with destiny.

Perot has dropped hints that the retired Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has the right stuff to run at the head of a new third party. which Perot recently established.

Although Powell remains undecided about a White House run - either as a Republican or an Perot's platform that Powell can't stomPowell and ach. Rather, it's Perot's mindless vendetta against Richard Armitage, a former assistant sec-retary of defense who was in charge of POW-MIA affairs during the Reagan administration.

Perot have no rendezvous with destiny.

It left Armitage -- who Powell refers to in his memoir as his "friend of the heart" - feeling persecuted by a man whom he never set eyes upon nor spoke to before an impromptu meeting at the Pentagon in 1987. We first broke the story in 1992.

Perot's case against Armitage was dis-tinctive for its viciousness and for the fact that it was based on vapors. His obsession centered on Armitage's brief relationship with a Vietnamese woman. Out of whole cloth, Perot spun stories weaving together Iran-contra, gun-running, the CIA and living Americans in Vietnam.

"My own picture of what Perot has said is very scattered, but generally the word conspiracy is there," Armitage told us. "He has told reporters and others privately all kinds of things. The relationship with this woman is only one... he's all over the place."

Armitage shared the details of that chance meeting with Perot back in 1987: "We had - not a disagreeable conversation

-- I just said that I heard you have been saying some things. What's the problem?" Perot then raised the issue of a letter Armitage had written a few years earlier. Written on Defense Department stationery, it was to a tudge on behalf of a Vietnamese woman friend who had been arrested on gambling charges. "The general thrust was he said that (by) having written this letter for the Vietnamese woman I somehow compromised myself," Armitage recalled Perot charging.

"Is she a spy?" Armitage pressed. "What is your charge? What is the point?"

Perot suggested that Armitage had used bad judgment - a point with which Armitage agreed. In retrospect, Armitage believes the letter to the judge was "dumb." He told Perot that he went to the length of offering his resignation to then Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, but that Weinberger rejected it out of hand.

Armitage informed Perot that he hadn't seen or spoken to the woman "long before the Jack Anderson columns (revealing the letter in 1966) came out. Once I wrote the letter I learned from her attorney she had a serious criminal problem with gambling, and I just ceased all communication.... I was out of even a friendship relationship with her before any of this became public."

Perot, who is demurring from another presidential run because of the meanness of politics, has never had qualms about engaging in character assassination. He sat impassively as Armitage laid his cards on the

For Powell, the only currency that seems to count in life is friendship and loyalty. That makes Perot a bankrupt option for 1996.

County OKs system

BANFORD - An $800,000 voting system which county commissioners agreed to purchase Tuesday may let Sem-inole County voters know local election results before the prime time TV lineup gets into full Election Supervisor Sandra Goard recommended the Accu-Vote System by Global Elec-tions Systems be purchased. The commissioners waived the competitive bid process because Global is the single source of the equipment.

The system utilizes optical scan technology. Ballots will be counted as they are dropped into the ballot box. After the polls close, the precinct data will be transmitted to the main computer in Sanford over a telephone line hookup.

Polls close at 7 p.m. election night and with precinct results transmitted by telephone to the main computer, tabulation is expected to far out pace the current method.

Under the present system, the punch-card ballots are transported to the County Services Building in sealed ballot boxes then tabulated by machine.
Goard recommended the Accu-Votes Systems after reviewing the voting systems certified for use in Florida.

"I have personnally observed each system during actual elec-tions," Goard stated in a memo to commissioners, before choosing Accu-Vote. The system features an uninterruptable power supply allowing for continued counting of ballots in the even of a power surge or latture. The system also has software to generate ballots required for each precinct, memory cards, ballot proofs and files. It also generates and displays election night totals from precinct results transmitted via telephone lines to the host computer.

The system cost $605,000 to replace the 15 year old punchcard system.

in other business, the commissioners awarded $731,000 to AT&T for relocating two divisions in Seminole County under the Jobs Growth Incentive Economic Development agreement.
The commissioners committed the money in March, but it could not be paid until the new fiscal year budget began Oct. 1.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT (FONSI)

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly, the City of Sanford has decided not to prepare and Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190). The reasons for such decision not to prepare such Statement are as follows:

- Planned activities will not have a negative impact on existing neighborhoods; 1.
- Planned activities do not encroach on environmentally sensitive areas; 2. 3. There were no environmentally sensitive issues identified during the Environmen-
- tal Assessment process that concerned planned activities; and An environmental monitoring strategy has been developed for unspecified sites to
- assure rehabilitation projects are in compliance with environmental laws and au-

An Environmental Review Record respecting the proposed project has been made by the City of Sanford which documents the environmental review of the projects and more fully set forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying upon request between the hours of 8:30 and 4:30 p.m. except holidays.

No further environmental review of such projects is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

PUBLIC COMMENTS ON FONSI

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City of Sanford to the Community Development Office. P.O. Box 1788, Sanford, FL 32772-1788. Such written comments should be received at 300 North Park Avenue on or before October 27, 1995. All such comments so received will be considered and the City will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the proposed project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS (NOVRROF)

At least one day after the termination the public comment period for the FONSI, but not before comments on the FONSI have been considered and resolved, the City of Sanford will submit a Request for Release of Funds (RROF) and Certification to HUD.

By so doing the City will ask HUD to allow it to commit funds to this project, certifying the (1) it has performed the environmental review prescribed by HUD regulations (Environmental Review Procedures for Title I Community Development Block Grant Program - 23 CFR Part 58), and Mayor Bettye Smith, Certifying Officer, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review or resulting decision-making action. The legal effect of the certification is that by approving it, HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environment Act thus allowing the City of Sanford to commit CDBG funds to this project.

OBJECTION TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its approval of the release of funds and the certification only if it is one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer; or (b) that applicant's Environmental Review Record for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to the Regional Environmental Clearance Officer, Room 500, U.S. Department of HUD, 75 Spring Street S.W., Atlanta, Georgia 30303-3388.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objections received after November 14, 1995 will be considered by HUD.

evaluated alternatives to proposed community development and commercial revitalization activities for the following projects: Bentley Wilson Children's Park - corner of Orange Avenue and East 7th Street, sidewalk Installation, 13th Street Lighting and Commercial Facade Improvements - West 13th Street from Lake Avenue to Persimmon Avenue; and Street Paving and Drainage improvement, Construction of Community Centers and Facilities, Park and Recreation Improvements, Housing Rehabilitation Code Enforcement, Demolition and Reconstruction/Relocation activities, Site Acquisition for Community Development Related Activities, and Commercial Loans citywide. As a result, it has been determined that there is no practicable alternative but to implement the projects as previously described in a public notice. This notice is required since federal funds will be used to support the projects. Reasons for proceeding with the project are as follows:

- The proposed project improvements have been identified by the City of Sanford as necessary to prevent further deterioration and blight to the areas.
- These proposed neighborhood activities will improve the quality of life for area resi-
- The severity of possible flooding in the project areas should not be sever enough to
- cause loss of life or significant property damage. Many areas in the City of Sanford are located in the 100 year floodplain, requiring all project locations to be outside the floodplain would be difficult.
- Streets, utilities, and public facilities are presently in place and it is economically feasible to repair and upgrade them where needed. Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds form the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban development (HUD)
- will be used to fund these improvements. All activities in this project will be subject to the requirements of the City's floodplain Management Plan.

As a result of this evaluation, the City will require the following mitigative measures in carrying out activities: All activities in this project will be subject to the requirements of the City's Floodplain Management Plan.

Major Medicare overhaul ready for House vote

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - After safting through two committees with not a single dissenting Republican vote, the next stop for the GOP plan for major reconstructive surgery on Medicare is the House floor.

Despite often rancorous debate and scathing criticisms from Democrata, the blueprint for saving $270 billion from Medicare over seven years while allowing the elderly to switch to private health plans cleared both the Ways and Means and Commerce committees on straight party-line votes.

"We're witnessing history," Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, the Ways and Means chairman, proclaimed Wednesday following the 22-14 vote. "We have saved Medicare. We have preserved it for senior citizens and senior citizens.

Nine hours later, shortly after midnight, Commerce stamped its approval on a nearly identical bill by a 27-22 margin.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich is expected to bring the measure to a vote in the full House next Thursday. A similar bill is pending in the Senate.

President Clinton has threatened a veto. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala was addressing the House Democratic caucus today to step up the administration's attack on the GOP reductions in both Medicare and Medicaid.

Democrats have claimed some Republicans were getting cold feet about making the massive changes to Medicare, but there was no evidence of that in the House committees.

Rep. Bill Thomas, R-Calif., an architect of the overhaul, said, be a success on "We're opening the Medicare scale," he added.

program up to all of the exciting changes that are available to most Americans in the health care arena."

That includes much wider use of managed care in an attempt to hold medical inflation in check. Archer said the elderly can stick with the current "archaic" fee-for-service Medicare program if they wish.

Thomas predicted that many instead will opt for the new, private "Medicare Plus" plans, saving "tens of billions of dollars more" than the $35 billion the Congressional Budget Office has estimated.

But Rep. Jim McCrery, R-La., another author of the proposal, said, "Frankly, we're taking a rick with this plan. If the private sector doesn't respond as we think it will then this plan may not work."

But if it works as billed, "it will be a success on an even larger

Democrats insist the Republicans are going too far, squeezing Medicare's belt so tight that senior citizens will wind up with inferior care or be forced to pay more out of their own pockets. They claim the Republicans are cutting into Medicare three times deeper than necessary to help pay for their $245 billion tax cut.

'This bill is laden, larded, with paybacks to the insurance industry, heavy hitting lobbyists, but nothing for seniors," said Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif.

About one-fifth of the $270 billion would come from charging Medicare beneficiaries higher

The current $46.10 monthly premium would jump to 864 in January 1996 and to 667 by January 2002. Under current law, it would fall in 1996 under $44, then climb to $61 by 2002. The premiums would triple for wealthy retirees, who would lose taxpayer subsidies for the cover-

The Medicare savings would both help the GOP balance the budget by 2002 and delay the bankruptcy of Medicare's hospital fund from that year until about 2010, when baby boomers start retiring.

Commerce rejected an attempt by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., to double the bill's $250,000 limits on awards in medical malpractice lawsuits for pain and suffering and $250,000 for punitive damages.

maipractice lawsuits. That would have to be hashed out when the bills get to conference.

Commerce added several amendments authored by Rep. Greg Ganake, R-lowa, a surgeon, to curb potential abuses by HMOs, including a requirement that only a physician could deny coverage on grounds that a service wasn't medically neces-

Republicans sought to defuse the controversy over the American Medical Association's endorsement of the House bill Tuesday night after gaining a last-minute concession from Gingrich on how much fee hikes would be reduced.

Thomas called it a "rather minor adjustment" worth less than $400 million, and said the bill would still curtail physicians' fees by roughly $26 billion over seven years.

Gingrich bypassing power structures in pushing GOP agenda

By JULL LAWR Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - It was House Speaker Newt Gingrich's Medicare deal with doctors, consummated in his office, with no committees involved and no testimony, that sent Tom Daschle over the edge.

"Is this the way we're going to make all the deals in the future?" the Senate Democratic leader famed. "Are we going to see white smoke coming from the chimney of the speaker's fireplace?" Daschle's reference Wednesday to the Vatican method of announcing the secret selection of a pope reflected Democratic frustration with the loss of majority rule in Congress. But it also recognizes the power being amassed by Gingrich, R-Ga. It is up to Deschie, D-S.D., and fellow Senate Democrats - with enough strength in the Senate to conduct filibusters - to slow the GOP juggernaut.

The Medicare deal, which the American Medical Association said would restore $300 million in doctors' reimbursements next year alone, had immediate results: The AMA endorsed the GOP plan.

Another day, another triumph for the voice, face and power legislative machine.

Through a combination of structural changes, threats, cajolery, charm and diplomacy, Gingrich is emerging as one of the strongest House speakers this century.

A congressional scholar. Thomas Mann of the Brookings Institution, a Washington think tank, said Gingrich's strategy makes some sense. His activities. Mann said, are "not simply the whims of an autocratic speaker. He has built extraordinary support among Republican members."

The rules by which the House operates are changing in ways that almost always concentrate more power in Gingrich's office and disperse less through the rest of the institution. The most recent shock wave came when The New Yorker reported that Gingrich was contemplating getting rid of committees altogether.

"That's not going to happen." Gingrich spokesman Tony Blankley said Wednesday. "Newt has no plan or intention of discarding the committee system. The committees are going to continue as they have." But Gingrich unquestionably has diluted the influence of committees, which under Democrats had become flefdoms run who had been cemented in their chairmanships, some for de-

Blankley did acknowledge that under Gingrich's rule, "There's no doubt that the committee chairmen are not as inherently powerful now as they were

For starters, the Georgia Republican handpicked his committee chairs based on their allegiance to him and the party's agenda rather than on seniority. Then he pushed the House to limit chairmen's tenure to six

The speaker also has packed key committees with freshmen, most of them avid reformers whom he helped elect. He even installed freshmen as chairmen of three subcommittees.

Gingrich also has set up 20 task forces on subjects ranging from the environment to gunowner rights to nuclear-site chairmen don't cave. cleanup to the entertainment industry. They report directly to

Barry Jackson, executive director of the House Republican Conference, has described the task forces as competing centers that help diffuse committee clout. They are a way to get input from as many members as possible, he said. "It's fust arrogant to think any one committee has a monopoly on knowledge on how to address a problem,'

Jackson said. House GOP leaders in just the first nine and a half months have shown an unusual solidarity while consolidating their power. Lobbyists tell of leadership sides sitting in on their private meetings with GOP committee chairmen, of conservative committee members serving as watchdogs to make sure the Gingrich's style hasn't sat well with all, including Alaska's Don Young, the House Natural Resources Committee chairman, who had a run-in with him recently.

Other chairmen are swallowing hard.

Illinois Rep. Henry Hyde, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, reported a termlimits bill to the floor even though he vehemently opposes congressional term limits. And Louisiana Rep. Bob Livingston, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, tolerated dozena of ideological riders on his money bills after making clear he feared they would doom the legislation. Gingrich has more than once rejected work that didn't suit him. Virginia Rep. Thomas Bliley, chairman of the Commerce Committee, carefully developed a consensus telecommunications bill only to have the speaker dictate new terms.

Gingrich also rejected a bill. forged by New York Rep. James Walsh, chairman of the D.C. appropriations subcommittee, that tightened federal controls on the District of Columbia. He said the city didn't need two city councils and sent Walsh back to the drawing board.

Mann said Gingrich has created a more responsible, disciplined system.

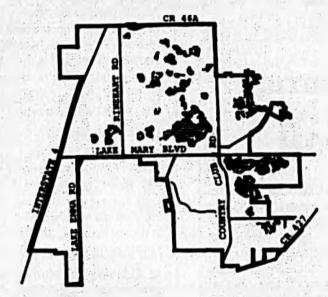

But Jim Thurber, a congressional expert at American University, said committees are the workshops of Congress and the basis for rational decision-

Simpson says he was wrong to get physical with Nicole

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Shunning a tough TV interview for one on his terms, O.J. Simpson told The New York Times that he was wrong to "get physical" with Nicole Brown Simpson and that he's willing to meet with battered women to talk about the relationship.

in a 45-minute discussion with the Times - his first extensive interview since his arrest last year - Simpson proclaimed his innocence but refused to discuss unanswered questions about the killings of Ms. Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Simpson pulled out of the live. no-holds-barred interview on "Dateline NBC" hours before it was to air Wednesday night. saying he didn't want the network to "retry me" and that the interview could have damaged his chances in wrongfuldeath lawsuits filed by the victims' families.

Simpson discussed with the newspaper a wide range of issues from his finances to girlfriend Paula Barbieri, and said he was "on the same page" with Ms. Simpson's family about current arrangements for custody of his two children by his ex-wife.

"We've agreed on professional

Jaguars injured

JACKSONVILLE Jacksonville will be without several players Sunday against the Chicago Bears when it tries to extend its winning streak to an expansion-record three games.

Receiver Deamond Howard, safety Darren Carrington and linebacker Reggie Clark were injured last weekend in a 20-16 upset of the Pittsburgh Steelers and guard Shawn Bouwens continues to recover from a knee injury

Clark, who tore a ligament in his left knee, will miss the rest of the season after being placed on injured reserve. Howard (sprained left ankle) and Carrington (groin pull) have been scratched from Sunday's game.

Panthers roar

MIAMI - Scott Mellanby scored two goals for the second straight game as the Florida Panthers beat Montreal 6-1 Wednesday night. continuing the early-season woes of Canadiens goalle Patrick Roy.

Gord Murphy and Stu Barnes each had a goal and an assist for the Panthers, who notched their second straight win under rookie coach Doug MacLean.

The Panthers set a franchise record against Roy, a three-time Vezina Trophy winner as best NHL goaltender, by acoring four goals in 3:13 against him in the second period.

Roy was trying to rebound after a terrible start in a 7-1 loss to Philadelphia on Saturday. Roy was pulled in the second period against the Flyers after giving up five goals on 15 shots.

The four goals in the second period was the fastest in Florida history, surpassing the mark of 8:46 against Tampa Bay on April 16 to a 4-1 win last season.

Sanders' pact approved

NEW YORK - The NFL approved Deion Sanders' contract with the Dallas Cowboys, but said the contract circumvents the salary cap and must be restructured.

The conditional approval will allow the star cornerback to play with the Cowboys as soon as he is healthy. Sanders is recovering from ankle surgery and is not expected to play until Oct. 29 in Atlanta at the earliest. In the meantime, his $35 million, seven-year deal will have to be redrawn to fit under the salary cap of $37.1 million per team. Starting defensive tackle Russell Maryland was a candidate to be released earlier because of his $1.9 million salary.

Balough holds off Cook's charge at New Smyrna

By PAUL MARSEQUIA Special to the Herald

SAMSULA - Gary Balough, the recently crowned Late Model Triple Crown Champion, held off a late race charge by Jack Cook to win the 25 lap late model feature event Saturday night at New Smyrna

This is just a good old car," said Balough, who drives the Pee Wee Griffin/XIR Camaro, "We had 52 wins with this car last year. Thanks to the crew, it keeps on running."

David Rogers, driving the TM Ranch Firebird, jumped to the early lead and pulled to a commanding advantage in front of the 22 car field. A caution on lap five, when Kevin Lawrence hit the outside wall, tightened the field for a new football player Phillip Eubanks.

Balough, who started the race from the sixth position and had worked his way to third place, lined up behind Rogers for the new green flag. At the drop of the green, Balough got to the inside of Rogers for the number one slot. While Balough and Rogers battled for the lead, Cook got by Jerry Gilliard and Guy Thomas for third place.

With two laps to the checkers, a blowb engine put the race under another yellow flag. For the second time, a caution flag cost Rogers a track positition. When the new green flag dropped, Cook got to the ☐ See Auto Racing, Page 2B

Auras are natural phenomena

DEAR MR. STEWART: I think I finally new an aura, but what does it mean when you see one? Is it something spiritual or something evil? Why do they show themselves in different colors? Why?

> LOUISE DELTONA

DEAR LOUISE: And why are the Yellow Pages yellow? Auras are naturally appearing phe-nomena which appear around all life and inaminate life forms. It is like an electrostatic electricity that is seen best in dimly lit areas. Kirlian photography has been used for years to photograph this phenomena. The process is used in hospitals and it's called thermography. It can pinpoint certain areas that might be interrupted by severe pain. Why, even the weatherman uses a form of this to predict and keep you informed of the weather. Long white gown has short history

DEAR ABBY: My co-workers and I have been reading your column for many years and sometimes discuss the letters over lunch. Today you printed a letter from "Bride-to-Be," who was planning her second wedding. She was worried because she wasn't a virgin and her flance wanted her to wear white.

Abby, do you know where the rule that only virgin brides can wear white originated? We all know that rule has been relaxed in recent years. THE LUNCH BUNCH

DEAR LUNCE BUNCE:

That's an interesting question. and one that has generated a fair amount of mail since I became Dear Abby.

A few years ago, I saked my friend the late Edith Head for Academy Award-winning costume designer) that question. She said that the literature brides is surprisingly scant there's actually no "rule" which states that only virgin brides may wear white. She then informed me that in ancient Rome. brides were wrapped from head to toe in orange-colored veils, and in medieval times brides wore red. The first white wedding gown was worn by Anne of Brittany when she married Louis XII in 1499.

According to Millie Martini Bratten, editor in chief of Bride's magazine: "Red was the favored color for brides during the Middle Ages, and red is still the preferred color for Hindu. Islamic and Chinese brides. The reason: Red is considered the 'color of celebration.'

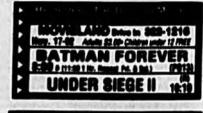

"The white wedding dress is a fairly recent tradition. Victorian brides from privileged backgrounds wore white to indicate they were rich enough to wear a dress for one day only - but still the majority at that time wore only their best finery."

In further researching the modern bridal dress code, my staff discovered that in 1922. Emily Post wrote: "Brides have been known to choose colors other than white. Silver is conventional and so is deep cream. But gold cloth is more suitable for a widow than a virgin maid."

Also, Amy Vanderbilt wrote in 1922: "The formal wedding gown in generally white or ivory. but delicate blue and pink are sometimes seen."

The Girl Scout calendar sale is important to Girl Scouts because it provides Girl Scout troops with the start-up money they need to carry out activities such as working on badges and providing community service projects. Girl Scout troops keep more than half of the sale price of the calendars, the rest of the money pays for the cost of the claendars and the cost of the sale. By purchasng a calendar, you are supporting Girl Scouts throughout your community. Chamber search ends Interim director to fill top position

By NICK PFEIFAUP Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The aclection has been made.

Wanda F. Kelly has moved from interim to official executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of

The Board of Directors ratifled the unanimous choice of the Executive Director Search Committee during a meeting Thursday. Kelley has served as interim director since July 31, following the resignation of Dave Farr. Farr had served in that position for nine years.

The Executive Director Search Committee was formed in July to find the best qualified candidate to help lead the Sanford Chamber in a new era of, cooperation and economic growth in north Seminole County.

"Over 90 people applied for the position and the search committee decided on five candidates to interview." explained chamber President Brent R. Adamson. "My hat is off to the 12 members of the search committee. They really did a bunch of work in making sure that we hired the best available person to head up the Sanford Chamber, to make sure our members receive the value and service they deserve from the chamber."

Adamson continued, "A lot of talk and rumor has been going on about the chamber since Dave (Farr) left. Has the chamber been in better financial shape than it is today? Yes. Has the chamber been in worse financial shape than it is today? Yes again. And it isn't just financially that a black eye has been talked about. Any chamber of commerce should be providing programs and benefits to its members."

"I'll be the first to admit that we have not been a good value as of late, but with Wanda Kelly's leadership and management capabilities, and with the directors and members help, this chamber is waking up and will again be the leading voice for business in north Seminole County," he added.

Kelly's credentials include taking the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce from 500 to over 1,000 members in a financially tumultous period in that See Chamber, Page 5A

SANFORD - The Historic Preservation Board discussed boxes yesterday afternoon; boxes for mail, and boxes for newspapers and magazines.

Both items pertain to what some consider problems in the historical district of the city. Mail boxes and newspaper receptacles were both listed on the meeting Regarding boxes for newspaper and magazine sales, Laura Howell, chairwoman of the Historic Preservation Board, had reportedly contacted City Planning Technician Andrew VanGaale regarding the receptacles. VanGaale serves as liaison between the city and the board.

According to VanGaale, Howell wanted to know if the city had any regulations which called for prior approval for the placement of newspaper and periodical receptacles.

Prior to yesterday's meeting however, VanGaale said he had contacted the city attorney regarding regulations, and by noon, had not heard any response. VanGaale said he originally had been informed that because of the Freedom of Speech Act, newspaper receptacles could not be regulated.

The discussion persisted however, and the city is now looking into the possibility of being able which are on city right-of-way property. If the board finds restrictions in this area are contained within the city codes, it could result in changes regarding where newspaper boxes can be located, including those on the sidewalk west of the Sanford post office and in other areas.

On the issue of mail boxes. there has been considerable conflict in the past months over a reported desire by the post office to have cluster boxes near the streets, which would include areas in the historic district. It was originally proposed that it would make door-to-door mail delivery faster and safer. Citizens in the historic district however, have objected, saying that cluster boxes were not in keeping with the historical nature of the residential areas. and urged that door-side boxes be allowed to continue. According to Sanford's Director of Planning and Development, the Historic Preservation Board plans to further investigate city codes on the subject, with the hope that residents will be able to retain their door-side/porch mail boxes.

Marder said Sanford's new postmaster had been invited to attend yesterday's meeting to discuss the malibox situation. but was unable to attend. "We hope he will be on hand for next month's meeting," Marder said.
