Cops crack down on area's illicit activities

By DAVID PRASIER Herald Staff Writer

The Special Investigation Unit of the Sanford Police Department arrested nearly a dosen individuals allegedly involved in drug related activities this past weekend. According to Ofc. Tom Skiba, the unit has a "good rate of success" of apprehending either drug dealers, buyers or possessors and prostitutes.

Complaints from citizens are the main source that leads to an SIU investigation. However, the unit also gathers information from street patrols as well. The unit relies on research and surveillance in planning an operation as well --s method that can take several days or weeks.

In the case of residence suspected tilicit activities. Skibs said that a warrant stust be attained. Times, dates and other pertinent information must be given to the judge who will then grant or veto the warrant.

This past weekend, several arrests were made in key areas of Sanford as part of an operation by the Special Investigations Unit targeting atreet level drug dealers:

Samuel Rushing, 22, of 4641 Richard St., Sanford, was charged with sale and deliverance of cocaine, possession of cocaine with intent to sell, possession of crack cocaine and possession with intent to distribute. Rushing was arrested in the 1300 block of County privatizes technology services

by RUSS WHITE Herald Staff Writer

The look of antiafaction on Cary Raiser's face could be attributed to item # L2 (a) on Wednesday's Board of Seminole County Commissioners Agenda.

By a 4-1 vote, the commissioners authorized a $1.5 million annual, five-year partnership with HTE, Inc., a top ranking software and solutions provider whose headquarters are in Lake Mary.
"Good? This is better than good," said Kaiser, the county manager who has insisted from the day he took office that the county desperately needed help in the telecommunications/technology field.

'It wasn't a case of there being little hope of catchting up - we had no hope," Kaiser said. "We were way beyond the curve. Our programmers, analysts and See County, Page 3A

Paulucci donates 100,000 meals

By MARIA OREM Herald Staff Writer

A local busineseman distributed 100,000 meals to Seminole County residents today in Sanford.

Jeno F. Paulucci, founder of Luigino's Inc., a company which produces frozen entrees under the brand name Michelina's, started the free food give-away five years ago as a philanthropic project, according to company spokesman Thomas J. Stevenson.

When the effort first began, fite-venson said there were about 10 receiving organisations. There are now about 50. People representing the various charities call throughout the year and are put on a list. As of Tuesday, he said, all the or-ganisations had called in and will be on hand when the food is dis-tributed. Of the participating groups about 75 percent are from Sanford.

They are all gratified to get this food," Stevenson said.

HOUSTON Thousands of lives are being lost every year. forciuse people are unaware of creadily available vaccine

It is the vaccine for pneumococca, pneumonia an illness that amountly claims thou sands of lives mostly adults older than 65 but also very young children and people with certain chronic illuesses foo few people even know about the vaccine said Di-Daniel M. Musher an infectious disease expert at Houston's Baylor College of Medicine and Veterans Affairs Medical Center

The sad lact is that many people whose lives could be saved by the pneumonia vacame do not get inoculated because they are unaware of itand they are not pressured by their physicians to take it."

Musher said Research has shown that people are more likely to get moculated against pneumontaif their doctors recommend it." he said, and, though the numbers of those getting the vactime are rising, there are still loo many people who need it by are unaware of It."

The vaccine is also important Musher said, for people with hing disease, heart discase and any kind of immunesystem disorder, including HIV infection

At one time it was widely believed that the beneficial effects of pneumonia vaccine persisted for a lifetime, but, Musher said, research at Houston's VAMC has shown that vaccination probably should be repeated at five-to 10-year in-

Disabled student services open doors at SCC

Like many public buildings. Seminole Community College has automatic door openers for people with disabilities, but SCC opens more than physical doors to its disabled students Through its disabled Student Services, SCC opens the door to opportunity and a college education to sludents who may have thought college was out of reach to them.

According to Coordinator of Disabled Student Services, Dottic Paishon, approximately 200 SCC students with a variety of physical and mental impairments receive academic support services each semester Services, which are tailored to the individuals specific needs. include interpreters, tutors, note takers, taped text, counseling, and support groups.

Lake Mary man jailed in illegal bingo parlor caper

From Staff Reports

Seminole County deputies arrested a Lake Mary man Monday for operating an illegal bingo parlor in Altamonte

Scott Bongirono, 36, Sun Oaks Court, was charged with one count each of conspiracy to commit racketeering and conspiracy to conduct an illegal gambling house, according to Ed McDonough, spokesman for the sheriff's office.

Racketeering is a first degree felony which carries a maximum penalty of 30 years in prison-

The charges stem from an investigation started in early 1996 by agents from the Seminole County City-County Investigative Bureau. The target of the probe was the Bingo Center Inc. at 745 Orienta Avenue

On April 20, seven other suspects were arrested and charged with racketeering in connection with the operation of the bingo parlor, which is now closed

Florida law requires that all profits from bingo games go directly to the non-profit organizations for which the games are being operated. The bingo parlor management can only charge a reasonable amount of rent for the use of the facility

According to CCHI investigators, the owners of the Hingo Center deposited 8716.984 in their bank accounts but paid out only 8118,049 cheating the charities out of 8598,935

Bongorino was released from the Seminole County fall after posting 850,000. Mi Donough said.

The hurricane vortex experiment was designed to look at how whirlpools and currents of wind cause a storm to move--or how the environment controls the motion and intensity of the storm. Though hurricane track forecasting has improved steadily over the years, the new dropwindsondes technology, coupled with the other land-, ship aircraft and satellite-based technology, will help the physics that determine hurricane intensity. The ultimate payoff will be more precise intensity forecasts that will help prevent over warning - and the adverse economic impact (as much as 8660,000 per mile) caused by unnecessary evacuations. The most de-structive hurricanes form by the processes of rapid deepening that may convert a 90 miles-per-hour burrienne into one with 150 miles-per-hour winds in less than a day. Understanding how hurricanes work will help forecasters anticipate audden changes in intensity and motion.

Updating school dress code makes sense

Seminole County School Board Chairman Sandy Robinson has enlisted members of the Public Schools Association of High School Student Councils to help with a project to which she is very committed. Robinson wants the student dress code overhauled to "bring a more professional look" into the schools.

We're pretty certain that many teens are moaning about this, preferring to exercise their personal freedom to dress as they want. But Robinson's idea is a good one. She has asked students for input to standardize the code. which is arbitrarily enforced depending on the views of each school principal.

One of the problems we hear business leaders voice is that students leaving high school are not prepared for the work world. They do not understand concepts of timeliness, team work, autonomous decision-making and longterm commitment.

Learning how to dress professionally is an important step toward successful interaction in the business world. Think about it. Would you trust a stockbroker who wears his baggy pants low on his hips so his underwear shows? Would you seek a doctor who wears diaphanous shirts with her bra straps slipping down her arms? Would you choose a banker who displays gang colors? Robinson is not proposing that all students show up wearing threepiece suits. Jeans and appropriate T-shirts are OK in Seminole County schools.

But Robinson realizes that youth is fleeting. The pierced body parts. extreme hairdos, and outlandish dress are symbols of that tumultuous time when we all search for our identities. And in that search, extremes are fine... outside of school. At school, students are in the business to learn, and to get ready for the business world. Robinson's little nudge toward students making that entrance appropriately dressed is to be commended.

'ill Dems back Clinton on 'fast-track'?

fight for fast-track trade authority, the outcome is less in doubt than the question of how much of his own party he can carry with him.

Having won passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement in 1993, the GATT agreement in 1996, and extension of mostfavored-nation trade status with China in 1997, Clinton ought to win the fast-track fight with the backing of Republicans.

What's in doubt, though, is whether 80 or more of the House's 207 Democrats will support Clinton, or 38.6 percent of the amendment.

Administration officials and its supporters assert that foreign countries won't negotiate with the United States if they know that Congress might rewrite their deal. So, they charge, a vote against fast-track is a vote against free trade -- branding the voter as protectionist."

In 1991, when President George Bush sought fast-track authority, he was supported by 91 of the 261 Democrats then in the House, or 34.9 percent. They included then-Majority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo.

In 1993, when NAFTA came up for a vote, 102 Democrate supported Clinton, or 39.5 percent of the 258 Democrats then in the House.

This year, as part of a broad-front attack on Clinton's centrist direction and a traditionalist challenge to Gore for the 2000 Democratic nomination. Gephardt once again is opposing fast-track.

Clephardt claims that he's not anti-free trade but that he merely wants to ensure trade agreements - and the fast-track bill itself -guarantee that the US will use trade sanctions to punish countries that fail to enforce their environmental and labor laws.

Pro-fast track spokesmen say that foreign nations consider such provisions as infringements on their sovereignty, although Gephardt is set to argue that leaders he met in Chile, Argentina, and Brazil last month have no serious phiestics to his recognite. no serious objection to his proposals.

Cephardt reported on his meetings in a memo to the White House that appears to have caused officials there to consider whether to tilt Clinton's forthcoming fast-track proposal in the Missouri Democrat's direction.

That's unlikely, though, because Republicans are adamant in saying they will oppose any fast-track bill that goes beyond sanctioning "trade-related" labor and environmental practices by other countries.

Re-entry resembles crash landing

BOSTON-My neighbor and I meet at the corner and exchange September greetings. She is dressed for this new year with a briefcase in one hand, a tugging schoolchild in the other.
"Well," she says ruefully, pulled already in two directions, "back to the real world."

We are home from vacation. The seaside house that she rents every year has been boarded up. It will linger in her mind over the long workaday winter as her sunlit Brigadoonthe place where it is always August and her wardrobe is always a T-shirt. We trade quick notes from the past weeks.

and then atlently I count the artifacts of this 'real world' to which we have returned: car keys, pantyhose, school bells, mascara, the computer over my shoulder, the deadline over her head. It is a world as man-made as an alarm clock.

This is the moment for reality-checks. Back to school, back to work, full speed ahead. The last vacationers even the president strange in to their respective offices. Over cardboard coffee cups and deaktop bagels and buiging e-mail files, we offer 3- and 5-minute reprises of the life we chose when we briefly vacated this one. A stay at the beach, a book in the hammock, a hike in the mountains, modest stretches of time that was simply "off."

Is this, then, the "unreal world"? A week or two in a place where the air is not conditioned. Mornings when we get out of bed only because we are awake. The background musak of scagulis. Days we call our own. Is this the modern idea of a fantasy?

As summer slams shut like a storm door, As summer slams shut like a storm door, I wonder: Have real life and its artificial counterlife been reversed? Has the most manufactured world now been defined as real, while nature--capecially human nature--has been relegated to wish lists?

Next to me in the supermarket line last night there was a woman with a basket full of Lean Culsine's and a copy of Martha Stewart's "Living." What is Martha's multimillion-dollar counterculture? A dream world visited by women for whom cooking is something to read women for whom cooking is something to read about.

In the bedroom suburbs that lie empty all day, commuters who work for international conglomerates decorate their homes in what is called American country decor. Stage sets for the life we aren't living.

And day by day, we are told, the "simplicity movement" picks up followers. Or are they voyeurs, romantics who log on to simplicity on the internet with the sid of a pentium chip? There was a time when the deepest American fantasy was to follow Horatio Alger, tyke to tycoon. There was a time when children in the country dreamed of the glittering, hustling, making-it city. But for many in the two-career, two-car, one-mortgage, eight-credit-card world, comething has changed. The fantasy figure now is as likely to be the stressed-out manager

A few years ago, the much-parodled Peterman catalog sold shirts with tales of foreign intrigue. Today every bottle of roadside jam, every bag of gourmet catnip, every bed-and-breakfast brochure seems to come packaged with a tale of the burnt-out or downsized couple who packed up their kide and went out on their own.

If the innkeeper works seven day weeks, if the jam maker goes without health insurance and the gourmet catnip bags are mass-produced, they do not say so. The story lines we buy are those that promise the taste of an entire lifestyle with a spoonful of strawberryrhubarti preserves.

I am not surprised that so many of us have created a shadow life, the life that we would live, if and when, if only and when only. But this shadow is not some glamorous image cast beside us, but one as unadorned as a country

"Back to the read world," says my neighbor as we leave behind goldfineh-and sunsetwatching, as we return to offices where the windows do not open and overdrive is the norm. In this strange new dictionary, where the real and the unreal have been transposed. it seems harder to live simply and easier to live

In September when re-entry resembles a crash landing, there is barely enough time to wonder about the reality we have created-a place where nature is a luxury and a sense of erse may be as fleeting as a late summer day.

How did this woman get such a strong hold on the public imagination? 🤊

Di was a model of feminine strength

When Prince Charles of Wales introduced young Diana Spencer to the world 16 years ago, who could have imagined the powerful force that this shy and awkward gel would become?

As we watched the flowers pile up in front of Kensington Palace and British consulates around the world, it is truly amazing to think that one person could inspire so much adoration in her lifetime and so much grief in her death.

Many people I know were taken aback by the outpouring of emotion Diana's death has caused. I had no idea the cult of Diana was so strong," said one friend. Another said he was surprised to realize that he too was touched by the princesa's untimely demise. I never really thought about her before, but when I heard the news I definitely felt a loss," he said.

How did this women get such a strong hold on the public imagination? By now many theories have been proffered -- it was her beauty, her grace, her common touch. Of course, all of these things were important elements in the creation of Saint Diana, but the main reason I think we feel such loss is that she held such a completely unique place in our culture. She was so much more than just a pretty woman who wore fashionable clothes and did good works. She was, I believe, a model of feminine strength. When the nervous kindergarten teacher married Prince Charles in 1981, she was the very essence of traditional femininity. Eyes lowered, she was quiet and obedient -- exactly the kind of woman we can presume the royal family wanted. But Diana soon realized that this role did not suit her, that she could not tolerate a life spent meekly obeying orders and silently enduring her husband's infidelities. So she did something that the House of Windsor was wholly unprepared for: She told the world the Diana has been called a hypocrite for using the preas as much as she criticized it. But the princesa's manipulation of the media was actually a healthy and realistic response to her circumstances. The relentless intrusion of cameras was an unflinching fact of her life. Therefore, she had a choice. She could allow this problem had a choice. She could allow this problem to make her angry and bitter, or she could turn it into an opportunity.

As Vanity Fair executive editor Elise O'Shaughnessy said recently, Diana successfully provided us with the next chapter to the fairy tale: "it's all very well, you go out and marry the prince, but what happens when the prince turns out to be a louse? (Diana's) is a very 20th century story of someone who took the reins and made a very difficult situation work for her in the

As Diana emerged from the wreckage of her marriage, we watched the shy girl metamorphose into a diva. Thus she became a model of a different -- and I think far superior -- breed of femininity. Again, it far superior -- breed of femininity. Again. It wasn't just the beauty and the charm -- though that was a big part of it. It was the intensity with which she threw berself into her good works. It was the way that she took such humble qualities as kindness and compassion and made them larger than life. When she cuddled a sick child or hugged an AIDS patient, we knew we were witnessing something much more than public relations. We knew that she missnit it, because we knew how much she needed it. Florida led the way with 2.9 million anglers 16 and older. followed closely by California with 2.7 million. Texas had 2.0 million, Michigan 1.8 million and New York 1.7 million.

The survey revealed that 5.7 million Californians 16 and older enjoyed observing, photographing, or feeding wildlife around their homes while 2.4 million took trips away from home to enjoy these activities. Texas, Pennsylvania, New York, and Illinois also were home to millions of adults who enjoy watching wildlife.

From a regional standpoint, 25 percent of the adults in the West North Central region fished. 14 percent hunted, and 37 percent | participated in Honey dishes: Comb and get 'em!

Democritus. Greek on two counts .. (1) he was born in the fifth century B.C., and (2) he died at the age of 109 .. is said to have pro-claimed that the secret to wellbeing was "applying honey in-side and oil outside." His words may constitute the first re-corded health-food claims.

In the 20th century, honey producers are fond of making great 'health' claims for honey: It's natural. It's fat free. It's easy to digest. It's got vitamins and minerals. Etc., etc., etc. Who cares? Honey tastes good. and as far as I'm concerned, that's the bottom line. I agree that it's "natural," but it's still a sugar, with 64 calories per tablespoon. Like all sweeteners . · indeed, like all good things ·· honey should be enjoyed in moderation. (And it should not be enjoyed at all by babies un-der I year of age, due to the possibility of infant botulism.)

But the great news is, you can use honey in lots of differ-ent ways. Sure, it's terrific in tea and on toast. And baked goods are wonderful with honey (some hints: start by aubstituting half the sugar in a recipe with honey: reduce oven temperature by 25 degrees to prevent overbrowning: for each cup of honey used, reduce liquld in the recipe by 1/4 cup. and add 1/2 teaspoon baking soda).

But honey has some other, unexpected uses: in soups and vegetables, appetizers and main dishes. In other words, honey is wonderful in savory dishes as well as sweet; it's certainly not just for breakfast anymore.

You can get a recipe booklet featuring honey by sending a check or money order for 82.95 (for postage and handling) to: National Honey Board, Department SYND, P.O. Box 125, Wisconsin Rapids, WI 54495. Or you can cook up THESE recipes from the board, and from Chef Michel LeBorgne of the New England Culinary Institute in Esset, Vt.

So move over, Democritus: it's time we all start applying some honey inside.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend of one year and I have been going through some turbulent times these last several weeks, and at one point we decided to part ways. I was shocked when he handed me a "bill" totaling $1,393.

I admit there were amounts on ADVICE there that I had told him I would cay back — but it only added up to half of his total. Amounts like $5, $10 and $20 that I thought he had given in unconditional good spirit were listed on there under months and exact dates throughout the entire year we had been dating. For example, he would say, "Here, Hon, put some gasoline in your tank." I have helped him out monetarily from time to time, but I never expected that he was keeping track of what he was giving me, much less that he'd ask for it back.

Now we're trying to mend our re-lationship, and I can't get that "bill" out of my mind. He said he wrote it up and gave it to me because he was mad. Now I have a hard time accepting anything from him. I even wonder if this relationship is worth mending. What is your advice?
CONFUSED IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR CONFUSED: Your boyfriend may have acted in a moment of anger, but he did not compile his detailed ledger on the spur of the moment. If you are looking for a generous man, keep looking. This one is not above using the purse strings to try to control you.

Memorials, choices are made

By Bill Welborn Special to the Herald

Someone dies. The family members gather and decisions have to be made. They want to honor their loved one in a way that will bring comfort to themselves and to their friends, and they want it to be in a way that will make a lasting tribute. How do they make those decisions?

For most families, the first step is to call in a professional funeral director who will describe the options available and the costs of each option so the family can make informed choices.

Many families will choose a traditional service. This will include a visitation which is usually held at the funeral home. The visitation is a time when friends come to offer sympathy and to reminisce about the deceased.

A ceremony will follow that is held at the funeral home or a church and continues at the cemetery. The ceremony is conducted by a minister or a facilitator. There is no set pat-facilitator. There is no set pattern for the program. Some families will want favorite songs played, stories told, or mementos displayed.

Families of veterans may want military honors. Some fraternal organizations have a simple ritual that may be performed. There have been services which include the release of balloons or birds.

The next choice for the fam-

The next choice for the family will involve the type of memorialization they wish. A traditional burial will include placement of the casket in a cemetery grave site with a headstone and a lettered

Some cemeteries have created special gardens where the cremated body can be placed. There are areas set aside for boulders inscribed with the name, birth and death dates. Another area could have special markers. inscribed, which have cylinders containing the cremated body inside the markers. And still another area could have the Book of Remembrance. This is a large granite sculpture in the shape of an open book. If a family makes this choice, the cremated body is buried and a bronze inscribed plaque is added to the plaques on the granite pages.
A family could decide to scatter the cremated body somewhere that is meaningful to them. For others seeking more permancy, they may opt to scatter some of the cremated body and put the rest in a permanent container at a cemetery. Or they could put the container in a special garden at their home. If they move from that home, the container could be moved with them.

There are as many ways to honor the passing of a loved one as there are people making the choices. A professional fu-neral director will provide in-formation and experience to the family having to make

Worthington was not at fault

SANFORD _ It is a rivalry that goes back longer than most Seminole County schools have been in existence.

That's probably why they haven't played each other for years.

The incident that happened at the Kick-off Classic on Aug. 29 proved that the rivalry hasn't died.

In a recent article that appeared in a Volusia County publication, Seminole head coach Jim Worthington was blamed for a fight that broke out at the pre-season game that was played in DeLand.

Bottom line...you cannot blame a coach for what kids do.

Bottom line...you cannot blame a coach for trying to win a game.

Bottom line...you cannot blame the Seminole High School coach for an incident that involved two schools, especially when one of those school's has a history of aggressive behavior.

I was at the game that evening and here's what happened.

Seminole was on the 20 yard line and a personal foul against DeLand brought them down inside the five.

Worthington sent in the play, Deon Howard took the ball into the end zone and a fight broke out.

Seminole and DeLand have a bitter rivalry that goes way back. DeLand has a reputation of violence. Worthington got blamed.

I have a problem with that.

My distinguished colleague cited that Seminole had been called for seven penalties totaling 105 yards and that DeLand drew only one flag for 15 yards until the final minute of the game.

What he failed sometime, however, is the fact that only one of Seminole's penalties was a personal foul which occurred early in the a personal foul which occurred early in the game, equaling Deland's single personal infraction. The rest of the penalties were calls of holding and such simple mistakes.

The article also stated that the author's biggest gripe is the fact that Worthington coached his team to a touchdown in the final minute of a game that they were winning.

With only a three point lead (17-14) and just under a minute on the clock. Worthington is supposed to instruct his quarterback to kneel down? Any coach in similar situation would have made the same call. At least, any coach that has gumption.

Especially considering the program that Worthington has taken over this year. Last year's Seminole team had an offense that puttered out in the second half of every game. Worthington had good reason to instruct his team to attempt a score.

"Given last year's offensive problems, I felt that it was very important that the players learned that they could score in the second half of the game," Worthington said. "My job is to coach my team and build their confidence. Not to worry about how DeLand will feel if we score a touchdown."

In addition, the article essentially said that it was a shame that three of DeLand's players will keep alive the reputation that their team has of being alightly aggressive due to the possibility of their suspension for the incident. He went on to say that the incident could even hinder three promising Too bad. If you play, you pay. Regardless of how the fight began, and no one except those kids on the field can really know for sure, if a punch was thrown and one was returned. two players are at fault. (One of Seminole's players was also in jeopardy.) If DeLand is trying to squash its reputation of being a bunch of builtes, it certainly wasn't evident in

Finally, the article personally attacked Worthington and accused him of lacking class and sportsmanship.

It is my opinion that anyone who could seriously think that a coach who is doing his job is doing something inappropriate actually had the shortage in the class department. Seminole's football program has made a complete turn around since Worthington took over. There is a new sense of pride among the players and a winning tradition has already begun through hard work, discipline and an increase in confidence.

Worthington came to Seminole with a sound reputation and has done nothing to jeopardize that while he has been there. Too bad DeLand cannot say the same.

Experience wins

Lake Mary survives Seminole's enthusiasm

LAKE MARY _ Experience va. immaturity.
Organization vs. near chaos.

Cool calculation vs. emotion. Lake Mary girls volleyball vs. Seminole.

Tuesday night at Lake Mary High School, experience, organization and cool calculation won out as the Rams defeated the Lady 'Noles. 9-15, 15-2, 15-7.

However, an emotional Seminole team almost pulled off their first win of the season by staying in the game and pulling together as a team even when they were down.

"We really need to come in more excited," said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "We are a very talented team, but we would be even more talented with a little more heart.

The teams we play come in here the game, and they're excited to play us. Seminol There's no pressure on them to remain undefeated like there is on us. We're still goofing a little and in the second game. Seminole's that's expected early in the season. But we really need to step up the emotional level."

Lake Mary started the evening with a quick 6-1 lead due to impressive serving by Stephanic Dale and Lindsay Manz.

A young, inexperienced Seminole team showed their potential by fighting back to an 8-8 tie before holding the Rams to only one more point. Amanda Cook and Lindsay Keeler took charge of their team and encouraged them to hang in Lake Mary head coach Cindy Henry makes a point to her Conference girls' volleyball victory over visiting Seminole team during the Rams' 9-15, 15-2, 15-7 Seminole Athletic Tuesday night. Lake Mary is now 8-0 on the season.

Seminole would take the first ame, 15.9 and that only increased their excitement.

speed to a 11-1 lead before the Noles knew what was happening. Although Seminole tried to stay in the game and refused to give up. Lake Mary overpowered their young opponent, winning 15-2.

The third game, however, was a completely different story.

A tie at 2.2 held deep into the game before Manz again served powerfully and broke the stand-still with a 5-2 lead for the Rama. Seminole took a little time but brought their aquad back into a 5-5

Courtney Newman stepped up to task and played at the height of her game in an effort to keep the 'Noles in the match.

"We had a bad second game due mostly to inexperience," said Seminole coach Beth Corso. said Courtney really stepped up and did a good job finishing her shots, though, throughout the entire match. She stayed in there and never gave up."

Unfortunately for the Lady Noies, before they scored again, Lake Mary was at match point thanks to Serah Smith. Smith points to bring her team within one point of the game.

Seminole refused to go down without a fight, and scored two more points before conceding to the Lady Rame, 15-7.

"We have one of the greatest of-fenses in the area and that is definitely our strength," Henry said. We have lots of guns but again, we need to come in a little more ex-

Victory next step in Patriots' plans

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS Last volleyball team knocked on the door

This year, they plan to kick it down.

The Patriots are coming off a loss late in last season's state playoffs and coach Stan Cutler is convinced that his new edition is ready to take the next step this season. They upped their record to 5-2 after a 15-9, 15-5 trouncing of visiting Lyman last night.

"These girls plan to go to states this year." Cutler said. "We were one game away last year and this year we plan to get it done."

A good start could lead to a Seminole Athletic Conference title, one the Patriots haven't claimed since 1992.

The Patriots finished fourth at the Lake Mary Invitational last weekend, suffering their only two losses of the season, but looked strong against the Greyhounds last night despite the absence of star-

Carrie Arago.

Arago suffered an ankle sprain in practice Monday and Cutier said she could play if necessary against Lyman, but she never took off her

Without his best player, Cutier needed someone to step up and he found them. Dana Gorman was dominating at the net and Rachel Sitkoff was another better

"We had to have someone step forward for us tonight," Cutler said. We knew our go-to girl waen't here but it was good to see everyone come through."

The Patriots got off to a sloppy start and allowed the Greyhounds to remain in the game before Gor-man got on a roll at the net. Lake Brantley jumped out to leads of 3-0 and 7-3, but the serving of Lyman's Brianne Hickey and Katie McE-nany brought the Oreyhounds back to challenge. Eventually, the Patriots outlasted

Lyman and pulled out the win in the first game. Game two was much easier. Leading just 8-5, Megan Helmers took over at serve and the Patriots ran off seven straight points to close out Lyman. Helmers had three straight aces to close out the match.

Next up for Lake Brantley is a trip to Seminole Thursday night to take on the defending Seminole Athletic Conference champions. The Greyhounds travel to Osceola LAKE MARY _ Cory Jackson scored on offense, on defense and on special teams as Lake Mary moved to 2-0 with a 30-6 thumping of Lake Brantley ina freshman football game at Don T. Reynolds Stadium Tuesday night.

Jackson opened the scoring with a two-yard run and later got the Rams a safety when he tackled the Patriots quarterback in the end zone and finished the night with a 50-yard punt return.

Dwayne Lowery and Chad LeGate added five-yard touchdown runs for Lake Mary, while Anthony Ballerino contributed a pair of twopoint conversion runs.

"Cory (Jackson) had a good night," said Lake Mary head caoch Kelly Wainscott. "We're atriving for excellence and we're working week to week to get there. We just have to keep working hard."

The Rame will take on Lake Howell next Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Richard Evans Field. LIONS ROAR

What are the principles of Ayurveda?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss

DEAR READER: This form of alternative medicine, which has existed in India for more than 5,000 years, is enjoying increasing popularity in the United States.

According to the theory of Ayurveda, mental stress is the basis of all disease, which results from an "imbalance of consciousness" that leads to harmful personal practices.

Physical illness is attributed to aberrations among three poorly-defined physiological elements (doshas), known as vata, pitta and kapha, which regulate all bodily func-

Ayurveds practitioners (for whom there are no standard qualifications) there are no standard qualifications) diagnose disease by focusing on the puises, eyes, lips, nalls and tongue.

Preventive and therapeutic techniques include individualized dietary, sleep and exercise patterns; body postures; breathing techniques; and medication. Special physical therapy (panchakarma) — such as oil massages, enemas and masal douches — may be applied to flush out "toxic subapplied to flush out "toxic sub-

Ayurvedic medicine emphasizes that each person's health integrally relates to the social complexion of community life and that negative issues such as a tainted water supply must be addressed.

Although certain tenets of the Ayurveda philosophy are compatible with modern scientific thought, the discipline as a whole suffers, in my opinion, from the fact that it hasn't changed aignificantly in centuries. Such consistency may be viewed as a atrength by some devotees, but to me, it appears to be a fatal weakness.

DEAR DR GOTT: I'm a 16-year-old football player. To increase my endurance, my coach recommended L-carnitine supplements. Should I use

DEAR READER: L-carnitine, a protein building block, is present in meats and dairy products and is formed in the human liver and kid-neys. It has been promoted as "ergogenic," meaning that it improves muscle functions and thereby reduces fatigue. To date, no scientific study has confirmed performance enhance-ment with this product. In fact, research has repeatedly demonstrated that L carnitine products are frequently contaminated by D-carnitine, a metabolically inactive form of the product that can cause significant muscle weakness. So I advise you not to use carnitine supplements.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Fads I: Vitamins & Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, selfaddressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Bez 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156, Be sure to mention

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it true that lac-tage deficiency is actually normal and that humans aren't meant by nature to eat dairy products after they've been weaned? What groups are most likely to have lactase deficiency? DEAR READER: I don't know whether humans "aren't meant" by nature to eat dairy products. Maybe we're not meant to eat oysters, snails or chocolate pudding, either. But we Actually, we seem to have a reliable ability to digest almost anything, iron and calcium included. Part of this ability is due to a remarkable process called enzyme induction.

In order to digest lactose — the sugar in milk — we need a chemical called lactase. Bables don't have it.

called lactase. Bables don't have it. They are really only equipped to digest mether's milk, not cow's milk. However, when infants are fed cow's milk, their intestines get the message after a while and begin producing the appropriate enzyme. In general, as long as humans continue to consume cow's milk, they continue to produce lectase for digestion. When they stop drinking cow's milk, they make far less of the enzyme. As people get older, their ability to make digesting chemicals declines as after.

digestive chemicals declines, so elder-by folks may develop an intolerance to milk products. This intolerance may become more pronounced if they avoid milk altogether.

Dictate the better play

By Phillip Alder

Dr. R. Downey, a former Archbishop of Liverpool, said, "If Stalin had learned to play cricket, the world might now be a better place to live in."
It would also have been true if he had learned to play bridge - except perhaps for any partner who made a mistake! How would one of the Russian dictator's partners have played in three no-trump here after West led the spade five and East put in the nine?

North's jump to three clubs doesn't show a 5-3-3-2 hand with 10 or 11 points. That hand should raise to three no-trump. Instead, it promises either a hand with at least small-slam interest or an unbalanced game-going hand with a singleton or void somewhere. Here, North's hand fits both bills! If South has, for example, three low spades, three no-trump will go down with five or six clubs makable. However, as South has only two unimpressive clubs, he beats a quick retreat to three no-trump. cent chance of avoiding the Siberian salt mines, South will take the club fi-nesse at trick two. Here that doesn't work well. East grabs the trick with his king and returns a spade, giving the defenders five tricks.

South does better to play a diamond to dummy and run the heart nine.

Let's suppose West wins with the jack and switches to a club. Declarer calls for dummy's ace, plays a heart to his ace, returns to dummy with a dia-mond, and takes a second heart fi-nesse. This line will generate at least three heart tricks (and nine in all) about 77 percent of the line. about 77 percent of the time.
