Touchon's owner Glenn McCall finishes mopping up and sweeping out water that rushed into the downtown Sanford drug store Tuesday when a downpour began just after 2 p.m. Flooding has been a frequent problem for businesses in the area. Sanford got .83 of an inch of rain Tuesday and the city fire department responded to eight storm-related calls between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m., most related to power line problems.

Launch Fees, Parking Limits Eyed For Marina

By Brian Sullivan
Herald Staff Writer
Boat launching fees and parking limitations are being considered by Sanford commissioners to help mitigate traffic problems on the city's marina island.
City Engineer Bill Simmons suggested a full-time city employee to supervise the island's parking and boat launching activities. Simmons said the cost of the employee could be covered by collecting boat launching fees.

City Commissioner John Mercer said that collecting such fees are common in many places in the state.
"It's an accepted practice," he told fellow commissioners at a Monday work session, adding that it was time Sanford got into the act.
Simmons agreed, saying that Sanford has one of the best launching facilities in this part of the St. Johns River, and would thus be justified in charging an appropriate fee for the use of the facility. No hard figures have yet been discussed for such a charge.

Simmons also suggested that the city forbid power loading of boats onto trailers.
"What happens is that people drive their boats up onto their trailers and then gun the engine to move them up the last couple of inches. This creates too much backwash which undermines the paved ramp," he said.
The city engineer also suggested a reorganizing of traffic circulation and additional signs to direct people — especially on crowded weekends — to the municipal parking lot between the post office and the county courthouse.

In a memo to the city manager Simmons suggested prohibiting boat trailer parking on the Isle, and instead require that all trailers be parked in the municipal parking lot.

Highway Homeless To Have 2 Choices

By Ted Carter
Herald Staff Writer
Indications are that homeowners uprooted to make way for an expressway through Seminole County are going to have two choices about compensation: either accept what the Seminole County Expressway is willing to pay or chance a circuit court jury decision on the amount.
Expressway Authority members have indicated little favor for the wide range of financial aid recommended in federal guidelines.
Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, an authority member, said she suspects relocation assistance would involve "too much money."
The federal displacement guidelines adhered to by the state Department of Transportation, but local governments and specially created local bodies like the Seminole County Expressway Authority need not follow them. They operate under eminent domain policies set by the state. Fair market value for the property of those displaced is the rule of thumb under Florida's eminent domain law, although additional considerations are often given businesses falling within the path of a local highway project.

In comparison, the federal guidelines adhered to by the DOT offer a wide range of subsidies to people displaced by state highway construction, including renters. Renters would come up empty in their forced moves due to the Seminole expressway, if today's indications are prove accurate.
Under condemnation law and the state's constitutional provision against taking property without due process, a local government's first step is to convince the circuit court a public purpose would be served by a project for which privately owned property must be taken. Once a favorable ruling is obtained, the project can commence regardless of a landowner's challenge to a compensation offer.
Until this year, a property owner could go to court to challenge the amount he is offered for his property and be assured the local government responsible for the See CHOICES, page 10A

Sanford Photog Sues Model Over Negative Remark

Gary Hart's Nemesis Accused Of Slander

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer
The Miami model whose association with presidential candidate Gary Hart proved to be the downfall of his campaign has been sued for defamation of character by a Sanford photographer for comments she made during a national broadcast with interviewer Barbara Walters.

Bill Bachmann filed the suit against Donna Rice asking for damages of $250,000. He states her comments made on nationwide television stating he did not have a model's release to use the photos constitute slander.

"I just want the truth to come out," Bachmann said today. Bachmann, who took the photos in Miami, moved to Sanford from there four years ago.

Hart dropped out of the presidential race in early May after the Miami Herald reported he and Rice spent the night in his Washington townhouse while Hart's wife was in Denver. The Herald broke the story after Hart challenged the media to follow him around if they had any questions about his campaign.

Filed in circuit court in Seminole County Tuesday, the suit claims Rice slandered Bachmann when she told Walters on the show "20/20" she did not sign a model's release for a picture being published of her and that the release of those photos without her approval was unethical.

Bachmann, who says he is a well-known, successful and reputable photographer, states in the suit that Rice signed a model's release giving him all rights to the photos he took around April 1, 1982. Those photos were published in People and Time magazines, the USA Today newspaper and other publications, the suit states. He says the photos clearly denoted that he was the photographer.

When Rice was asked about the photos during the interview, she said, according to the suit, "the photographs of (her) in various states of undress were 'rejected test shots, a model's nightmare.'"

The suit states that when Walters asked Rice who was responsible for the publication of the See MODEL, page 10A

'Tea Party' Protests Mark Services Tax

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Opponents of the consumer services tax that businesses must begin collecting today prepared to continue their battle with six "tea party" protests across the state.
The protests, organized by the American Advertising Federation and a group called "STOP" — Sales Taxes Oppressing People — will involve the dumping of instant tea, tea bags or bulk tea into bays near Miami, West Palm Beach, Port Canaveral, Jacksonville, Fort Myers and Pensacola.
Sponsors hope the dumping will evoke memories of the Boston Tea Party, in which American colonists protested unpopular taxes imposed on them by the British government.
Organizers said they have received permission from state environmental regulators for the dumping.

"This is the 200th year of the constitution, and once again, we face taxation without representation," said Randy Blake, vice president of the West Florida Advertising Council. "We're using instant tea so that we won't have any environmental problems and to symbolize the instant nature of the tax itself."
The protests will kick off a statewide petition drive aimed at getting the tax issue on the ballot as a referendum.
The tax law requires businesses to begin collecting the 5 percent sales tax on a wide array of services, starting today. Services to be taxed include accounting and tax-return preparation, advertising, credit card membership fees, real estate services, lawyers' fees, maid services and pet grooming.

The tax hike — considered the largest in Florida history — has won praise as a landmark effort to raise $750 million desperately needed for public services to accompany the state's phenomenal growth.
But it has also earned harsh criticism from officials in the affected industries who say the tax is unconstitutional and bad for business. The new tax has sparked an advertising and convention boycott of the state and gotten freshman Gov. Bob Martinez in trouble within his own Republican Party.
Legal challenges to the new tax are pending in court. Lawyers on both sides of the issue say they expect the Florida Supreme Court to issue a special advisory opinion on the constitutionality of the tax by July 20.

Some 40 businesses, trade groups and individuals have asked the high court to declare all or part of the tax illegal. They say it will improperly restrict First Amendment and free speech rights and access to state and federal courts.
A federal court challenge is also on hold, as two Tallahassee lawyers work on an appeal to go the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.
The two asked U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul in Tallahassee last week to prohibit state officials from enforcing the law, but Paul said See TAX, page 10A

Longwood Boy Killed

A Longwood boy was killed in Indiana Monday when the van he was riding in was hit by a milk tanker-truck.
Killed was Dylan Hawkins, 9, of 282 Short St. He died at the scene in Etna Green, Ind., northwest of Fort Wayne. The accident occurred around 12:42 p.m.
The boy was partially ejected from the van which was driven by Earl Johnson, 35, of the same address.
The accident occurred when the van crossed one lane of traffic, stopped on the median, then pulled into traffic, police say.
The tanker was carrying milk. No charges have been filed and none are expected, according to police.
Police believe the youngster and the driver of the van were heading back to Florida at the time of the accident.

Offices To Close Friday

All federal, state, county and city offices and the county libraries will be closed Friday because the Fourth of July falls on Saturday this year. Post offices will be open Friday but not Saturday. Saturday, mail in collection boxes will be picked up at the times shown for "Sunday/Holiday" and there will be no route deliveries.
Banks will be open Friday, but those normally open Saturday will be closed for the holiday.
There will be no garbage collection in Sanford for customers normally served on Friday. Contrary to previous notices, refuse will be collected Friday in Alamonte Springs. The city commission has restored full twice-a-week collection during holidays.

Sanford Sees Utility Offer As Bad Deal

By Brian Sullivan
Herald Staff Writer
Sanford city commissioners agree that a $1,250,000 option to purchase the Lake Monroe Utility company holds little interest for the city.
"Our position hasn't changed from a previously agreed upon purchase price for the company," said City Manager Frank Faison. "Meaningful negotiations won't take place at a price beyond that," he said.
The city and president of the utility, James L. Hickman, had negotiated a possible price in April and May that rounded out to $975,000. City Engineer Bill Simmons has said the new asking price is not a good deal for the city and that he has further problems with the wording of the contract.

"The contract is somewhat ambiguous about whether or not impact fees are being asked to be waived," Simmons said. "If that is the case then the cost to the city could well end up being three times as much."
The utility could possibly serve anticipated commercial growth in the vicinity of State Road 46 and Interstate 4.
In the interim between the city's two negotiation periods, Seminole County got into the picture by offering $1.2 million for the facility, contingent on Hickman obtaining the proper permits. County Administrator Ken Hooper said that if Hickman obtains new consumptive use permits the county may still have an interest.

"The consumptive use permit is required by the St. Johns Water Management district," Hooper said. "The permits apply to the aquifer and the amount of water that is allowed to be extracted from it. The management district may either cut back or grant consumption at the current level. If the permits are granted then we'll advertise for a public hearing on the purchase of the utility. But if the See UTILITY, page 10A

55-Page Report Shows Cause

Teen Girl Detained In Connection With Murder

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer
An additional 55-page report by sheriff's investigators provided a circuit judge with enough probable cause to order a 15-year-old girl detained in connection with the robbery and shooting death of a Longwood woman.
Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor ordered Suzanne M. Phillips, 1532 Frances Drive, southwest Seminole County, held for delinquency in connection with the June 23 death of Diane Lynn McGinnis, 39. Another juvenile detained and accused of delinquency in the same slaying is Edwin Paul Bateman, 18, of the same address. McGregor found probable cause of delinquency Monday to detain Bateman.

Tuesday McGregor authorized the transfer of Phillips from the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center to any adequate facility out of the county to keep her from being influenced by other juveniles and to protect her security. The girl's parents had no objection to the move nor did the girl's legal representative.
McGregor scotched such a move Monday for Bateman, saying he could not transfer him unless Bateman's life was threatened. Bateman's legal representative also objected to the transfer of Bateman out of the county because it would make him less available to his public defender.

It is not known when the case against the pair will be presented to a grand jury, although the state does intend to ask the jury to look at the incident.
If indicted by the grand jury the juveniles would be tried as adults. Bateman would presumably be charged with murder and robbery, Phillips as principal to murder and robbery.

The state is apparently having some problem determining when enough grand jurors can be called in to make a quorum because of vacations.
The juveniles were detained Saturday following an investigation into McGinnis' death.
She was apparently taken from a floral store on Hunt Club Boulevard to nearby woods and shot through the base of the skull. The amount of money taken was less than $100, according to investigators.
The McGinnis family is offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Diane McGinnis' killer or killers. Contributions to the reward fund may be made at First Federal of Seminole, Forest City.

To date, there are no suspects in the case except Bateman and Phillips.
McGinnis' husband, Donald, said the teen couple's arrest would not bring his wife back, but "I hope and pray justice will be done."
The McGinnises had celebrated their 22nd anniversary four days before the murder. Their two children are Donald Jr., 20, and Donna, 17.

IN BRIEF

Sources: Glass Will Be Released; Waite, Anderson Held in Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A source with links to Syrian forces expressed optimism that diplomatic efforts will win release of American hostage Charles Glass, but British television reported three other hostages — two of them Americans — have been moved to Iran.

"I strongly believe that these talks and diplomatic efforts will result in freeing Mr. Glass. I don't think force will be used. These (diplomatic) efforts will be enough," a source close to the Syrian forces in Lebanon told United Press International Tuesday.

In London, Independent Television News reported that Church of England envoy Terry Waite and two Americans kidnapped in Lebanon — Associated Press correspondent Terry Anderson, of Batavia, N.Y., and American University of Beirut official Thomas Sutherland — have been moved to Iran in recent weeks.

ITN, quoting Shiite Moslem sources, said Waite, 48, Anderson, 39, and Sutherland, 55, dean of the American University of Beirut's agriculture school, had been transferred to Iran in recent weeks.

North Testifies Privately Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lt. Col. Oliver North was called before congressional investigators today to tell for the first time what he knows of President Reagan's awareness of the scheme to divert money to Nicaraguan Contra rebels from secret U.S. arms sales to Iran.

The embattled Marine at the heart of the Iran-Contra scandal was summoned to testify in a long-awaited private session late in the afternoon before a select group of interrogators eager to ask him a limited number of questions under oath.

The meeting was scheduled to follow a court appearance by North before U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson, who has overseen the Marine officer's challenge of the law by which independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh was appointed for a criminal investigation of the case.

North appeared on Capitol Hill for 15 minutes Tuesday to receive officially a grant of limited immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony and to turn over his personal telephone logs, appointment calendars and notebooks subpoenaed by investigators.

U.S. May Sweep Kuwaiti Waters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States may send minesweeping helicopters to Kuwait now that at least 10 underwater explosives thought sown by Iran have been found near Kuwait's oil port in a potential spreading of the Iran-Iraq war, Pentagon officials say.

A dispatch of five MH-53 helicopters with 200 maintenance and other support personnel is one option being explored to make sure mines are not hit by 11 Kuwait oil tankers being placed under U.S. flag protection with Navy escorts, the officials said Tuesday.

That the mines were not free-floating but were found moored to the bottom of the 30-mile-wide channel in international waters leading to the port of Ahmadi indicated they were planted there deliberately and did not drift westward from waters off Iraq, said the officials who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Meese Ordered To Report Stock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese will have to itemize the holdings he placed in a blind trust with an ex-officer of the scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. in order to comply with federal ethics law, the government says.

The decision from the Office of Government Ethics was prompted by release of a letter Tuesday from its director, David Martin, who told the chairman of a House subcommittee that Meese had not complied with the law in setting up his "limited blind partnership" with W. Franklin Chinn, a former Wedtech director.

New Chief Takes Helm At Troubled DNR

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Incoming Department of Natural Resources chief Tom Gardner brings a squeaky clean image to the job, and a pledge to streamline bureaucracy in the scandal-plagued agency.

"I've been in government 17 years and I've never felt the need to supplement my salary," Gardner said Monday, meaning he would not accept a bribe.

"I'm very happy with my meager estate. State pay, and I hope my integrity, is enough to insulate me from any offers." Gardner takes over today, replacing Elton Gissendanner, who resigned last week after a federal grand jury indicted him on corruption charges. Prosecutors said Gissendanner took $80,000 to arrange lenient treatment for an accused drug smuggler captured by the Florida Marine Patrol, which is part of the DNR.

Gissendanner's predecessor, Harmon Shields, served a prison term for a federal corruption conviction involving the department's land purchasing program.

Gissendanner was criticized during his eight-year tenure at DNR for sloppy procedures, too much involvement in minor bureaucratic details and excessive interest in the political rather than environmental dimensions of policy matters.

The complaints forced his retirement weeks before the indictment was announced.

"The question's been raised, 'What do I do with the deadwood?'" the soft-spoken Gardner said in an interview. "I think in a lot of cases you've got people who want to do a good job but can't, or are frustrated or whatever. Those people, I hope, under my administration will come forth and blossom and do excellent work."

Unlike other new top state managers, Gardner has not sought pro forma resignation letters from his top assistants and division managers. Any firings will be handled on an individual basis, if that becomes necessary, he said.

Gardner started off the week getting ready for the transition, including a fence-mending session with Gov. Bob Martinez.

Gardner said he also wants to figure out how much state land the agency is supposed to manage — apparently, he said, no one knows for sure.

Car Firm Financier Arrested For Fraud

The financial backer of a now defunct car refurbishing business in Sanford has been arrested on fraud and grand theft charges.

Arrested was James Frank Serafine, 46, of Clarcona. He was named in a warrant issued earlier this month by the State Attorney's Office in Sanford. He was on bond from the Seminole County jail Friday.

Serafine was arrested in connection with the Sanford business Pony Cars and Parts Inc.

The company left town in August and reportedly moved its operation to Daytona Beach.

Customers, whose complaints add up to a $125,000 loss, maintain they ordered refurbished Mustangs which were never delivered. Serafine made a bid earlier this month to pay 50 cents on a dollar to those customers if they agreed to testify against other principals in the company and not him. That deal, which the State Attorney was not part of, apparently fell through and the next week Serafine's arrest was ordered.

No other arrests are expected in the case. —Deane Jordan

Congress' Great Tax Rip-Off

Congress may take away your tax cut before you have a chance to benefit from it.

Last year's Tax Reform Act was designed to reduce the tax burden on the poor and moderate income families. It would be taken away in one fell swoop if Congress is successful in increasing excise taxes to raise $18 billion for federal budget deficit reduction. Excise taxes are currently included in the prices of gasoline, beer, wine, distilled spirits and tobacco.

An independent study commissioned by the Coalition Against Regressive Taxation (CART) confirms how a proposed $18 billion increase in these taxes would affect each income class compared to the relief they are supposed to get from last year's Tax Reform Act.

While tax reform will cut income taxes by $400 million for families with less than $10,000 in income, an excise tax increase of the magnitude being suggested in Congress would raise their taxes by nearly $2 billion.

The difference, and it takes no great statistical analysis to see the obvious conclusion, is that those Americans with the least earning power, and the least paying power, are being asked to pay more — something like two billion dollars more. That is not what the leadership of this nation promised the American taxpayers when they passed the Tax Reform Act less than a year ago. We must not reverse the benefits of the Tax Reform Act through unfair excise taxes.

That excise tax increase would be a staggering 479 percent as great as the tax cut these families were promised under the new tax bill. That would be a cruel hoax against those Americans least able to pay.

The $18 billion dollar figure was chosen because that is the size of the revenue increases both houses of Congress have adopted for fiscal 1988 as part of their budget resolutions. In fact, it would take only 4 or 5 billion dollars of increases in these five excise taxes to wipe out the tax relief enacted for the under-$10,000 income group.

These Americans already spend 5 percent of their income on state and federal excise taxes, which is double what they pay into Social Security.

Sadly, what tax reform gave one year in a particularly astute revision of our nation's tax policies, it is threatening to take away in another year through discriminatory implementation of excise taxes. That is not right. That is not fair.

Subsidy Goal

The negative reaction in Europe and Japan to President Reagan's call for an end to agricultural subsidies by the year 2000 was fairly predictable. Subsidies have become a way of life in Japan and parts of Europe. Relatively few political leaders have had the courage to openly advocate a change.

But change is needed. The U.S. government paid more than $25 billion in subsidies last year. Japan's subsidies cost $60 billion. The Common Market paid its farmers $55 billion.

The payments constitute a drag on national treasuries, a disrupter of orderly trading patterns and, in some cases, an incentive for overproduction. When one nation uses subsidies to give itself a competitive edge, other countries are forced to match the subsidy or drop out of the race.

At the beginning of the seven-nation summit in Venice, Italy, Reagan made the sensible suggestion that the participants work toward the global elimination of farm subsidies.

Success won't be easy. Farmers constitute a powerful political force in Japan and parts of Europe. Self-sufficiency in food production is in some countries, a matter of national pride. Nonetheless, the issue belongs on the table, and Reagan was right to put it there.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Ivan Lendl, Citizenship And The Olympics

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It may well have been, as the claim goes, that it was just a routine call to the Connecticut office of Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., from a lawyer asking a special favor for a client.

Except that, in this case, the client was Ivan Lendl, the No. 1 ranked tennis player in the world, and the favor requested was a congressional exemption from the five-year waiting period for citizenship.

Lendl, a native of Czechoslovakia, wants to play for the United States in the Olympics next year. And he can't, unless he is a U.S. citizen.

To help out one of his constituents, Weicker introduced what is known as a private relief bill on behalf of Lendl that would stipulate that the tennis star had fulfilled the "periods of residence and physical presence" in the United States to qualify for citizenship.

It was an unlikely endeavor for Weicker, who is the best known for eloquent and tenacious fights on behalf of civil liberties and individual rights.

But then, Weicker is also an avid tennis fan, and a somewhat imposing player in his own right, and perhaps he felt the bill was the only salvation for American tennis.

With John McEnroe fading fast with nagging injuries and Jimmy Connors finally over the hill, the American contingent on the pro tennis tour poses no threat for a trophy in a major tournament, although Tim Mayotte flashes periodic signs of excellence.

In women's tennis, Martina Navratilova, a Czechoslovakian defector who has U.S. citizenship, ranks at the top of the world, but the only other American who poses a challenge is Chris Evert, and she may be close to finished.

That kind of a lineup poses serious concerns as the United States looks ahead to the 1988 Olympics (wherever they may be held) and tennis once again becomes a part of the quadrennial games.

But making Lendl an "instant citizen" fails to correct the failings of the U.S. tennis program, injects still one more dose of politics into the politics-tainted Olympics, and does a disservice to the many patiently waiting for coveted U.S. citizenship.

Such an overt effort to bypass the law in an effort to win an Olympic medal could also prove as embarrassing to the United States as did the granting of citizenship in 1984 by Great Britain to star long-distance runner Zola Budd whose homeland, South Africa, is banned from the games.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, which must process the Lendl bill, is not likely to grant the tennis superstar his exemption. The panel has written the U.S. Olympic Committee for a justification, but the inquiry so far has received no response.

A spokesman for the panel said the Judiciary Committee has a "strong history" of not waiving the required waiting period, saying "it's just inequitable to take them out of the queue. Why not a ballerina or a businessman?"

He said Congress has acquiesced only once in recent time — for a Russian pilot who defected — and then only at the urging of the president, the CIA and several other government departments and agencies.

JEFFREY HART

Logic Of Tennis Great

For the time being, please allow this columnist to set aside such subjects as the Persian Gulf, Gorbachev, Nicaragua and Gary Hart and turn to a truly serious subject. That is, tennis. Summer is at hand, more people are playing tennis than ever before, and they may enjoy and even benefit from a few thoughts on the subject.

The great theoretician of modern tennis was Jack Kramer. During the years following World War II he was the dominant player in the game, and a case can be made that he was the best tennis player who ever lived. Maybe Tilden. Maybe Budge. But certainly maybe Kramer.

On the pro tour, he slaughtered, successively, Bobby Riggs, Pancho Gonzales and Tony Trabert, all of them great players.

When Kramer was playing amateur tennis, so-called amateur tennis, things were much more relaxed than they are today. A player like Kramer would begin the season with the French championships in early June, play through Wimbledon and Forest Hills and maybe the Pacific Southwest tournament in early September, at most a dozen tournaments. Today the money is huge and the tournaments are year-round. If this is Wednesday, we must be in Tokyo.

Anyway, while he was playing the summer Eastern grass tournaments, Kramer and the other big players would work out at the West Side Tennis Club, practice with each other, and also with the teen-age tournament players.

Kramer was not only a superb player, but a profound thinker about the game. His doctrine was called "controlled power."

As I recall, he would show up at the club around lunch time, greet the younger players, ask two or three to have lunch. He would order, say, a roast beef sandwich and some iced tea, and talk about tennis. He might say let's hit some backhands, or how about a practice set.

In the course of an average point, Kramer probably did not hit his average shot as hard as some collegiate players do now. But you would not win the point because his domination of the equation was so complete.

All of us hackers should bear this teaching in mind. Tennis is not just hitting the ball. Every point has an inner logic.

Dark Horse Would Be Ideal As FBI Chief

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's search for a politically and professionally acceptable nominee for FBI director is proving to be as difficult and time-consuming as many of the bureau's celebrated manhunters. There are simply too few candidates possessing the necessary integrity and experience — and suitably Republican credentials.

President Reagan has had poor luck with his first three choices. Justice Department sources told our associate Michael Binstein, former Pennsylvania Gov. Richard Thornburgh turned down the job; Associate Attorney General Stephen Trotter would prefer a federal judgeship, and Lowell Jensen, a former Justice Department official, is a federal judge and "happy in San Francisco," the sources said.

There's another problem besides the reluctance of those on the high-profile GOP short list, and that's the rarity of potential candidates who have experience in

Happy Birthday, Pop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite all the bad things that have been said about it, July need not be a total loss this year. For one thing, on the 16th, we can join in celebrating Orville Redenbacher's 80th birthday.

I suspect, however, that an agent for the so-called "Prince of Pop" was engaging in a bit of hyperbole in describing a card that is only 7 feet high and 240 feet long as the "World's Largest Birthday Card."

When the agent says the dimensions of "this personalized card" cover "a total of 1,680 square feet," the math is impeccable. I believe, however, that the facts may have been misrepresented in a statement that "the largest card the Guinness Book of record has in its files measures 1,200 square feet."

My only copy of the record book admittedly is out of date. Before making claims of this nature, however, the agent should have checked with Spalding College at Louisville.

On the college's 60th anniversary in 1980, according to Guinness, a "birthday card" measuring more than 8,800 square feet was unveiled. Since 53 by 166 feet is considerably larger than the birthday tribute to Redenbacher, we may assume the Spalding card remains the world's largest.

There is no doubt, however, that the individual is older than the institution.

I also quarrel with the concept — nowhere expressed by the agent, I might add, but appearing in an otherwise reputable publication — that his birthday express will make a "whistle stop" tour.

Among the cities where stopovers are scheduled are Cincinnati, Cleveland, Boston, New York, Washington, Charlotte, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, Chicago, Minneapolis and Denver.

Some of those cities probably have stations large enough that trains would stop there to pick up passengers. I question whether they are whistle stops of the type where President Truman made speeches during the 1948 campaign.

My dictionary defines a whistle stop as "a small town along a railroad line" where trains only stop if flagged down or to permit a presidential candidate to speak.

I grew up in a town where the train station was scarcely larger than Spalding's greeting card. So I should know a whistle stop when I read about one. But Truman never gave 'em hell in my hometown to my knowledge.

Speaking of the age of presidents, back when HST was in the White House, I automatically assumed our chief executives were old enough to know what they were doing. Imagine my chagrin to learn from Ronald Reagan that age has nothing to do with making mistakes.

Richard Nixon, who resigned from the presidency in 1974 owing to the Watergate scandal, turned 74 last month, vowing to outlive many of his critics.

Anyway, I wish for Redenbacher a happy 80th. He is old enough to run for president himself.

Soviet Medicine Takes Off

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Soviet scientists plan to attach a giant laboratory module called Medilab to the Mir space station for ambitious medical experiments that could help pave the way for a long-duration flight to Mars.

"Medilab will make it possible to increase both the amount and complexity of biomedical investigations as well as to improve their quality due to participation of well-trained biologists and physicians," said Eugene Ilyin, professor of aerospace medicine and director of the Soviet biosatellite program.

At a NASA-sponsored life science symposium in Washington, Ilyin outlined the project in surprising detail, although he made no mention of when Medilab might be launched.

The Mir space station, currently manned by two cosmonauts, was launched Feb. 20, 1986, and it has docking ports for six large modules. The first, a 21-ton astrophysics module called Kvant, or Quantum, was successfully docked in April.

Ilyin said the cylindrical Medilab would be similar in design to Quantum, which is about 13 feet in diameter and some 19 feet long, including an equipment module.

The long-term effects of weightlessness on human physiology are not known, despite a record 237-day flight by Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Salyut space station.

But a flight to Mars, for example, would take at least a year and probably longer, and the research program planned for Medilab could provide crucial knowledge about how to keep cosmonauts healthy during such a lengthy mission.

"It's planned to have two scientists, a biologist and a physician, to perform biomedical investigations on Medilab," Ilyin said. "It's also planned to arrange biomedical investigations in a cycle pattern, each cycle three months in duration."

"After each cycle, the specialists will be changed. Besides, some biological objects and biosamples will be shipped to Earth for further analysis and new biological objects and scientific equipment will be carried to Medilab."

The Soviet Union is known to be considering a manned flight to Mars and while Ilyin did not mention such a mission, learning how to treat minor injuries in weightlessness could prove vital for such a trip when a crew would be millions of miles from the nearest hospital.

Private Prosecution Awaits Supreme Court Ruling

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Every one has the right to have a defense attorney — it's the American way. But what about having your own prosecutor, a hired accuser who will press criminal charges for you especially if you are miffed because the state won't prosecute the case?

"Not in Florida," said Norman Wolfinger, state attorney for the 18th Judicial District. He called the use of private prosecution a step backwards in law. Wolfinger said Florida law puts the discretion whether to prosecute or not strictly in the hands of his office and others like it in Florida — maybe.

Gary Printy, of the state's Attorney General's office, said he thinks that while private prosecutors are not banned specifically by law only the state attorney can file charges against some one.

"The state attorney is god-like in his role. You can have a murder with 100 witnesses but if the state attorney decides not to file charges you can't make him file charges.

In other states, — mostly southern — private prosecution is allowed.

The best-known private prosecution case is probably that of Joan Little who in 1975 was accused of stabbing a prison guard to death during what she said was a rape attempt. While North Carolina did not press criminal charges, the guard's family did and hired a private prosecutor to take the case to court. The private prosecutor lost.

Florida could change its position on private prosecutors pending on a case now before the U.S. Supreme Court. A decision in favor of private prosecution by the high court could give a boost to the practice.

The case involves criminal contempt involving imitation luggage.

In 1983, attorney's for a manufacturer in New York learned that a company was still copying its client's product even though the company was ordered by permanent injunction not to do so. Using detectives, who had worked on the well known Abscam caper which netted several politicians including Florida's Rep. Richard Kelly, they caught the company selling the imitation luggage.

The lawyers then asked to be appointed as prosecutors on the case and got criminal contempt charges pressed and prison terms for company officials. An appeal court upheld the convictions and the case was taken to the supreme court.

The defendants argument is based on conflict of interest, or lack of impartial judgment — the same argument Wolfinger sees as valid against private prosecution in Florida.

A prosecutor is the unbiased third person in cases, Wolfinger said. His office makes "professional decisions" based on the prosecutability of a given infraction. A private prosecutor, like a private defense attorney, may be inclined to represent his client's best interests to the detriment of the law.

Technically, a prosecutor represents the state. Opponents of private prosecutors say a hired prosecutor would serve two masters, his client and the state and might be willing to take more cases to court than the state.

That's what is being claimed in the luggage case. The defense is saying their client's right to due process was violated in that the private prosecutors used their positions as prosecutors to collect evidence which was then used against the defendants in related court action.

The justice department, filing a friend-of-the-court opinion, says it has no objection to private prosecutors but they should be disinterested parties to the case. To complicate the issue, a separate action before a federal district court produced a ruling that private prosecutors must work under the U.S. Attorney's office in that district.

Wolfinger said having private prosecutors may sound good initially, but would end up creating kangaroo courts and eliminating our system of justice.

Crowded dockets and poor law would be the result, he predicted. If everyone who was dissatisfied with a state attorney's decision not to file charges then decided to file their own.

Wolfinger said private prosecution could also complicate civil litigation with cross filing of criminal charges. He also said private prosecution would also entrench class conflicts — the rich would hire top attorney's, the poor perhaps none.

Wolfinger's objection to the notion is not shared by officials in other states. Private prosecution is allowed in some states, such as Arkansas, Kentucky and North Carolina. While Florida has no specific provisions against it, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan and other northern states do not allow it on the basis of it being unfair.

Mets Fold Cards

United Press International The New York Mets, grasping to stay in contention...

The Mets combined timely hitting, solid starting pitching and heady defense to defeat St. Louis 3-2...

Gooden allowed eight hits, struck out nine, walked two and held New York in the game until its hitting got untract.

"This is a better start than I could envision," Gooden said.

Gooden escaped what might have been a crushing seventh when third baseman Howard Johnson made an alert play.

With the Cardinals leading 2-0, losing pitcher Greg Mathews, 5-6, failed to bunt with runners on first and second.

"The double play was the whole thing," St. Louis second baseman Tom Herr said.

In the ninth, Gary Carter walked and Len Dykstra pinch ran. Kevin McReynolds sacrificed before Lee Mazzilli was intentionally walked.

"A lot of clubs this year don't respect me from the right side," the switch-hitting Johnson said.

Expos Cubs MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers thought starter Dennis Martinez had had enough...

Andres Galarraga cracked his major league-leading 26th double to cap a four-run third inning, helping Martinez remain undefeated and pacing the Expos to a 5-4 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Martinez, purchased from Triple-A Indianapolis June 8, pitched 8 1-3 innings to improve to 3-0.

"I wasn't struggling and I don't know why he (Rodgers) took me out," Martinez said.

Bob McClure yielded a two-run homer in the ninth to Rafael Palmeiro that drew Chicago to 5-4 before Tim Burke got one out and Jeff Parrett got the last out for his second save.

Andres Galarraga delivered his league-leading 26th double to cap a four-run rally Tuesday as the Expos whipped Chicago.

Martinez Goes Over .300

Caselberry's David Martinez, who was once mired with an .088 batting average, has come a long way, baby.

Martinez, who moved into the leadoff spot when Ryne Sandberg suffered a sprained ankle, has served that purpose well, too, compiling a .398 on-base percentage to rank 10th in the league while platooning with Bob Dernier.

Steve Trout, 4-3, to start the inning before Martinez was erased at third on Mitch Webster's fielder's choice.

Tim Raines singled to score Nichols and send Webster to third. Webster scored on Tim Wallach's groundout to give the Expos a 3-1 edge.

Boggs' Blistering June Builds Average To .391

United Press International Wade Boggs had a better month of June than some blushing brides.

Boggs went 49 for 101, a .485 average, to boost his season's average to .391. He hit safely in 25 of 28 games, had a slugging percentage of .762 and drew 21 walks.

The Boston third baseman went 3 for 3, including a homer, knocked in three runs and scored three runs Tuesday night to lead the Red Sox to a 13-9 triumph over the Orioles.

"Hitting is contagious," Boggs said. "You get up there and take your swings and the hits start falling in."

While Boggs was bustin' out in June, the Orioles were a complete bust.

Tuesday night's loss ended the worst month in Orioles history. They finished 5-23 for the month and the pitching staff, since May 29, has given up seven or more runs in 18 of 31 games.

Boston collected 17 hits Tuesday night to send the Orioles to their 26th loss in their last 31 games.

"Our pitching staff's in a 40-game rut," Orioles catcher Terry Kennedy said.

Abby Flabbergasted At Response From 'Cheating' Survey

Presidential candidates take note! The 90 million-plus readers of DEAR ABBY have responded with overwhelming enthusiasm to Abby's survey in which she has asked men and women to tell her how many have cheated on their mates.

"So many thousands of letters are pouring in daily, I gave up counting and we're weighing them," said Abby. "I have had to add three to my staff just to cope with all this mail. We're flabbergasted at the response."

She said that so far the women who say they've never cheated on their mates represent the largest number of respondents, followed closely by the men who say they have.

"I suspect I may discover that the younger they are, the less faithful they are," said Abby of her respondents of both sexes. "We'll know in about four weeks as computers and electronic tabulators are necessary for this job. I'm stunned by the sheer magnitude of this response — we've certainly hit a nerve in the country."

Cook Of The Week

Navy Wife Docks In Final Home Port Of Lake Mary

By Dorothy Greene
Herald Correspondent

Just ask Bettye Dedman what it was like growing up in Lake Mary and she'll tell you all about the lovely rural countryside which has long since disappeared. Our Cook of the Week is a well-traveled homemaker who enjoys entertaining in her beautiful home from casual to fancy, and always with a warm, gracious style. Living just down the street from the house her family lived in when she was born, Mrs. Dedman notes that her daughter and family are the fifth generation of her family to live in that house. "That, I think, is neat," she says.

Once upon a time, says Mrs. Dedman, Lake Mary "was rural. It was country. The only paved street was Country Club Road. Probably my biggest disappointment is that my granddaughter and grandson will not be able to grow up in Lake Mary like I did. It was absolutely marvelous. We could roam, we could wander, we could swim. There were not the fears then, and the problems with traffic, so that we could go over and swim in Lake Mary and then come over and swim in Crystal Lake." In keeping with her preference for a rural atmosphere, Mrs. Dedman is pleased that her home is situated on an unpaved road and doesn't mind if it stays that way.

Finally settled in her home permanently, after many years of travel as a Navy wife, our cook delights in arranging dinner parties for 10 to 12 guests and sometimes as many as 30 to 35. "What I think is very important," she says, "is your presentation and the garnishes. I like to do things very casually one time and the next time I like to pull out all the stops." Perhaps one of the most unique aspects of Mrs. Dedman's style of serving dinner is her "soup on foot" course. "It is the best way imaginable to stop the cocktail hour," she explains. "When I want to get my dinner on the table, I just pass the soup on a tray. Give everybody a cup of soup, and while they're doing that I can put my dinner on the table so that by the time they finish the soup, we're ready to eat. I've done that for a long time."

Mrs. Dedman is the daughter of the late Mr. Raymond Ball and the late Mrs. LuRene Ball, who will be remembered for her catering expertise at parties, weddings and other social functions in the Sanford-Lake Mary area.

"I love to cook, and I love to have dinner parties," Mrs. Dedman says, "but where my mother used to love to do all of the fancy decorated petits fours and dainty little things like that, I don't have the patience. But I love to try gourmet recipes. A gourmet recipe does not necessarily have to be difficult to prepare. Some of them can be real simple. I prefer dinner party cooking to tea party cooking."

When Mrs. Dedman met her husband, Tyler "Ty" Dedman, he was stationed at the Naval Air Station in Sanford. After a dedicated career, he is now a retired rear admiral who served his last two and one-half years as NATO Commander in Portugal. Recalling their courtship and subsequent marriage in 1953, Mrs. Dedman says, "Shortly after we were married he left on cruise and I followed the ship for a couple of months in Europe, just going from one port to the next trying to keep up with what was going on. Then they left to go through the Suez Canal to the western Pacific and I ran out of money, so I came home. Wives have always followed ships, explains Mrs. Dedman, but not as much in those days as now with the convenience of jet transportation. "I went by ship," she continues, "third class on an Italian liner which was very interesting. It took us 10 days from New York to Naples, Italy, and I thought ... will I ever see land again? As a matter of fact, I spent Thanksgiving on that Italian ship and we like to laugh and say we had turkey stuffed with spaghetti." Lots of antipasto and minestrone was served to Mrs. Dedman on that trip and she regards it as a memorable experience.

Sometimes she got to see her husband for just a few hours and sometimes longer. "We got to spend our first Christmas together in Cannes, France," she says, "right on the Riviera. Summertime is their big season and everything is so expensive, but in December of 1953 they ended up giving us a winter rate, a Navy rate and a weekly rate and it ended up that we stayed at one of the fantastic hotels right in Cannes, France on the Riviera, and that was probably one of the least expensive places we stayed at!"

During the dozen or more changes of residence the Dedmans were required to make throughout the United States and abroad, they managed to start a lovely family and are also proud grandparents. Debi LuRene, their oldest daughter, is married to Brian Lee and they live in Alexandria, Va. "Debi was born while we lived in Monterey, Calif.," says Mrs. Dedman. Their next daughter, Laurie, who was born in Trenton, N.J., and her husband, David Meador, are the Dedmans' down-the-block neighbors and are the parents of Stephanie Elise, 3 years old, and Michael Tyler, 14 months. A third daughter, Florida-born Carol Elise, is single and lives in

Accessory Pathways Cause Heart Problems

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our son, 30, takes medication for Wolf-Parkinson-White syndrome. Is it hereditary?

DEAR READER — The Wolf-Parkinson-White (pre-excitation) syndrome is a non-inherited abnormality of the heart's electrical system. Instead of the usual circuit of conduction, patients with WPW have an accessory pathway along which electrical impulses travel. This pathway is called the bundle of Kent, and it speeds electricity more quickly than normal. It is, if you will, a bypass circuit between the atria (low-pressure chambers) and the ventricles (high-pressure chambers). WPW is associated with attacks of palpitations and rapid heart rate. Most are innocuous, but one type of attack has potentially serious consequences: atrial fibrillation with rapid ventricular response. This simply means that in the presence of an increase in the heart's pacing, the impulses will more readily reach the ventricles and cause too rapid a pulse. Treatment is directed toward slowing the speed with which electrical impulses travel through the heart's conduction system. Digitalis and betablockers are commonly used for this purpose. Once the bundle of Kent can be inhibited, electricity will spread through the heart's nerves at a more normal velocity.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My grandson is recovering from Kawasaki disease. What is this disease?

DEAR READER — Kawasaki disease (mucocutaneous lymph node syndrome) is an infectious disease of children. It causes sudden illness with fever, inflamed membranes of the mouth ("strawberry tongue"), a diffuse rash (which later peels), joint pain, diarrhea, pneumonia and swollen lymph glands. Unfortunately, the heart and its blood vessels can become inflamed; more than 80 percent of children develop cardiac complications of Kawasaki disease, sometimes as long as several years after the acute illness. In 1986, experts studying the mucocutaneous lymph node syndrome were struck by a strange similarity: Under a microscope, the children's blood vessels showed the same type of inflammation seen in the arteries of adults with a disease called periarteritis nodosa. In this condition, the walls of blood vessels become acutely inflamed and weakened; blood clots (thromboses) may adhere to the irritated linings. Although the cause of Kawasaki disease is still unknown, evidence suggests that it could be a juvenile form of periarteritis. Perhaps the syndrome actually includes several types of similar diseases. At present the only treatment for Kawasaki disease is aspirin. Recently, specialists at Children's Hospital in Boston have recommended intravenous gamma globulin to prevent cardiac complications. Ordinarily, consequences of the inflammation are treated as they appear.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
The standard way to develop a trick with an honor combination is to lead up to it. If the defenders' cards are situated well for you, you will take the tricks you need. I like a deal in which you win by doing just the opposite — playing against the grain and hoping the bat doesn't break. South had a huge no-trump holding — 24 high-card points with two 10-spots. He showed that strength by opening two clubs (artificial) and rebidding two no-trump over North's negative diamond response. Three diamonds was a Jacoby transfer bid showing at least five hearts, and three no-trump by North simply denoted enough to play game. Declarer has many choices after the club lead. Because of the heart-suit blockage, there is no certain way to take nine tricks. So South took the bold approach. He banded down the queen of spades. West won the king and led a heart, knowing declarer had no more than two cards in that suit. South won the heart ace, cashed his top diamonds and played the 10 of spades. East won his jack and played another heart. Declarer won and played still another spade. On this card West let go a heart and East won his ace. East now returned a club and declarer ducked. That was the fourth trick for the defense as West now won the nine, but West had to give up, either leading into declarer's K-10 of clubs or playing the heart jack into the dummy's king.

Southwest Chef Celebrates July 4th

By John DeMers
UPI Food Editor

DALLAS (UPI) — This is the year to celebrate America's birthday with festive outdoor foods from one of the country's most dramatic cuisines — the spicy, smoky, bursting tastes and textures of the Southwest.

Few cooks in the country can serve as a better mentor in preparing this feast in a fiesta mode than Avner Samuel, a chef who parlayed his Israeli birth and classic French training into a pivotal role in launching this innovative new American cuisine.

First at the posh Mansion on Turtle Creek and now at the Pyramid Room of the Dallas Fairmont, Samuel has earned raves from visiting celebrities and locals alike.

"The more I began to know about Texas and its local ingredients, the more I started to say, 'Let's do for Texas what Wolfgang Puck did for California.'"

Nearly five years ago, Samuel began gathering like-minded chefs from the area around him. The group met regularly at his home, sharing ideas, phone numbers of produce people, frustrations with their employers. From these chefs, much of the momentum behind the current movement was born.

Samuel found himself in the spotlight at the 1984 inauguration of Ronald Reagan, invited to represent his region for the festivities. At that time, he introduced a larger world to his Chocolate Ancho Chile Ice Cream.

The ice cream was such a hit the White House requested an extra supply. And Frank Sinatra, who emceed the inaugural entertainment, later sent for six cases of the stuff.

"It doesn't upset me that Southwest cuisine is becoming something of a fashion," said Samuel, a kitchen veteran at age 31. "After all, we're all creative and innovative."

Born in Jerusalem, Samuel took his first steps toward a career in his family's kitchen, then pursued professional training in Israel, in London and eventually in Paris. He divided his time in France between the La Varenne cooking school and studies in advanced sugar cookery with the legendary Gaston Lenotre.

After an introductory U.S. stint in Boca Raton, Fla., Samuel took on the high-profile challenge of the Mansion on Turtle Creek.

He was invited to prepare the pastries (including the cake) for rock star Madonna's pizza and caviar wedding to Sean Penn and participated in a 10-day pizza festival spotlighting Wolfgang Puck in Toronto.

Here are two of "Chef Sam's" terrific July 4th recipes. Marinated Red Tuna With Ancho Butter and Cilantro and the much-praised Chocolate Ancho Chile Ice Cream. If you prepare both dishes, you can handle the ancho chiles together, processing six for both recipes.

CHOCOLATE ANCHO CHILE ICE CREAM

4 large ancho chiles
1 cup water
3 Tbsp sugar
½ pound sweet dark chocolate
½ quart heavy cream
½ pound sugar
12 egg yolks
1 quart milk

Seed the ancho chiles and place them in a small saucepan with the water and the 3 tablespoons sugar. Cook until the chiles are soft, then puree them in a blender. Chop the chocolate into small pieces and set aside.

Bring the heavy cream to a boil in a small pot and set aside. In another small pot, place the sugar and egg yolks. Mix well. Slowly whisk the cream into the egg mixture over low heat until the mixture thickens to coat the back of a spoon.

Remove from heat. Add the chocolate to the warm mixture and stir until the chocolate melts. Add the cold milk and the ancho chile puree. Freeze in an ice cream maker. Serves 10 to 12.

MARINATED RED TUNA WITH ANCHO BUTTER AND CILANTRO

2 large dried ancho chiles
½ cup water
4 6-ounce red tuna filets
2 Tbsp olive oil
1 cup heavy cream
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
4 Tbsp unsalted butter
2 Tbsp freshly chopped cilantro

Remove the seeds from the ancho chiles and cook in water until soft. Puree in a blender. Marinate the tuna in half of the ancho paste and the olive oil for 30 minutes.

In a saute pan, place the cream along with the remaining ancho paste. Season to taste with salt and black pepper. Reduce the mixture by half over medium heat. Add the butter and mix very well.

Sprinkle the chopped cilantro over the tuna and grill over hot coals until done, 4 minutes per side. Place the tuna in the center of a plate and pour ancho butter over it. Garnish with additional cilantro leaves. Makes 4 servings.

Grill A Meal With Appeal

Turn a backyard barbecue into an event without hours of preparation. Stuff Cornish hens with herbs and serve them with grilled vegetables.

There's an easy way to do the vegetables too. Use heavy-duty aluminum foil to wrap up mushrooms and zucchini or tomatoes and sliced onions. Coat the foil with cooking spray, so the vegetables won't stick to the foil while cooking on the grill.

Vegetables will take about 20 minutes and the cornish hens about 30 to 40 minutes to grill.

GRILLED CORNISH HENS WITH HERBS

4 Cornish hens (1½ lbs. each), thawed if frozen

1½ teaspoons chopped fresh rosemary

1½ teaspoons chopped fresh parsley

All-natural butter-flavor cooking spray

Juice of 2 lemons

Cut each bird lengthwise along one side of backbone. With sharp knife, cut along back bone; discard bone. Spread each bird open and lay them breast side up on a cutting board. Tuck tips of wings behind back. Press birds flat. With a small knife, make a slit in the skin between the thigh and breast; push the tip of the leg through the slit.

Slip your fingers under the skin at the neck and gently work down to loosen the skin over the breast and, if possible, each leg. With your hands, work equal amounts of chopped herbs down around the bird's thighs and breasts. Smooth surface skin with your hands. Spray prepared birds evenly with all natural butter flavor cooking spray.

Use cooking spray on grill. Place birds, skin side down 4 to 6 inches from coals. Brown for 4 to 5 minutes, turn and baste with lemon juice. Hens are done when meat juices run clear when thigh is pricked, about 30 minutes. Cut birds in half. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

ONION-STUFFED MUFFINS

4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided

1½ cups finely chopped onion

1½ cups buttermilk

1 egg
2½ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt

In a medium saucepan, melt 1 tablespoon butter. Add onions and cook 5 minutes, or until softened. Remove and reserve. Melt remaining 3 tablespoons butter. In a small bowl, stir together buttermilk, egg and melted butter. In a large bowl, stir together flour, baking soda and salt. Make a "well" in dry ingredients. Add buttermilk mixture and stir until just combined. Grease twelve 2½-inch muffin cups. Spoon about 1½ tablespoons of batter into each cup. Spread 1½ teaspoons of the cooked onions over batter and top with remaining batter. Sprinkle with remaining cooked onion. Bake in a 400-degree oven 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown. Cool on wire racks. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 12 muffins.

GINGER PINEAPPLE COOKIES

8 slices canned pineapple
2 cups matzoh meal
2 cups matzoh farfel
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, beaten
2/3 cup safflower oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 cup walnuts, chopped

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Chop pineapple. Place in a sieve and press out as much liquid as possible (about 1 cup); set pineapple aside.

In a medium bowl, combine matzoh meal and farfel, sugar, ginger and salt. In another medium bowl, mix eggs, safflower oil, lemon juice, and orange peel. Stir in dry ingredients, mixing until moistened. Stir in pineapple and walnuts.

Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls 1 inch apart on greased baking sheets. Bake until firm, about 12 minutes. Immediately remove to a wire rack to cool. Repeat with remaining dough. Store cookies in a tightly covered container. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 5 dozen cookies.

Refreshing Fruit Ices Help Beat Heat In Good Ole' Summertime

The height of summer is no time to be fiddling around with fussy desserts. Yet it is the time to fully enjoy fresh fruits at their flavorful peak. Cool, refreshing fruit ices, made easily at home, are a favorite form of feasting on these special seasonal treats.

Ices are a breeze to prepare with the help of a "secret ingredient," marshmallow creme, which streamlines preparation, balances the natural tartness of the fruit and provides palate-pleasing texture. Often pulled from the pantry for quick-to-fix fudge, marshmallow creme teams "tastefully" with the season's best fruit and just two other ingredients to make cooling ices easily. More convenient to use than a traditional cooked sugar syrup, it helps to keep the cook and kitchen cool.

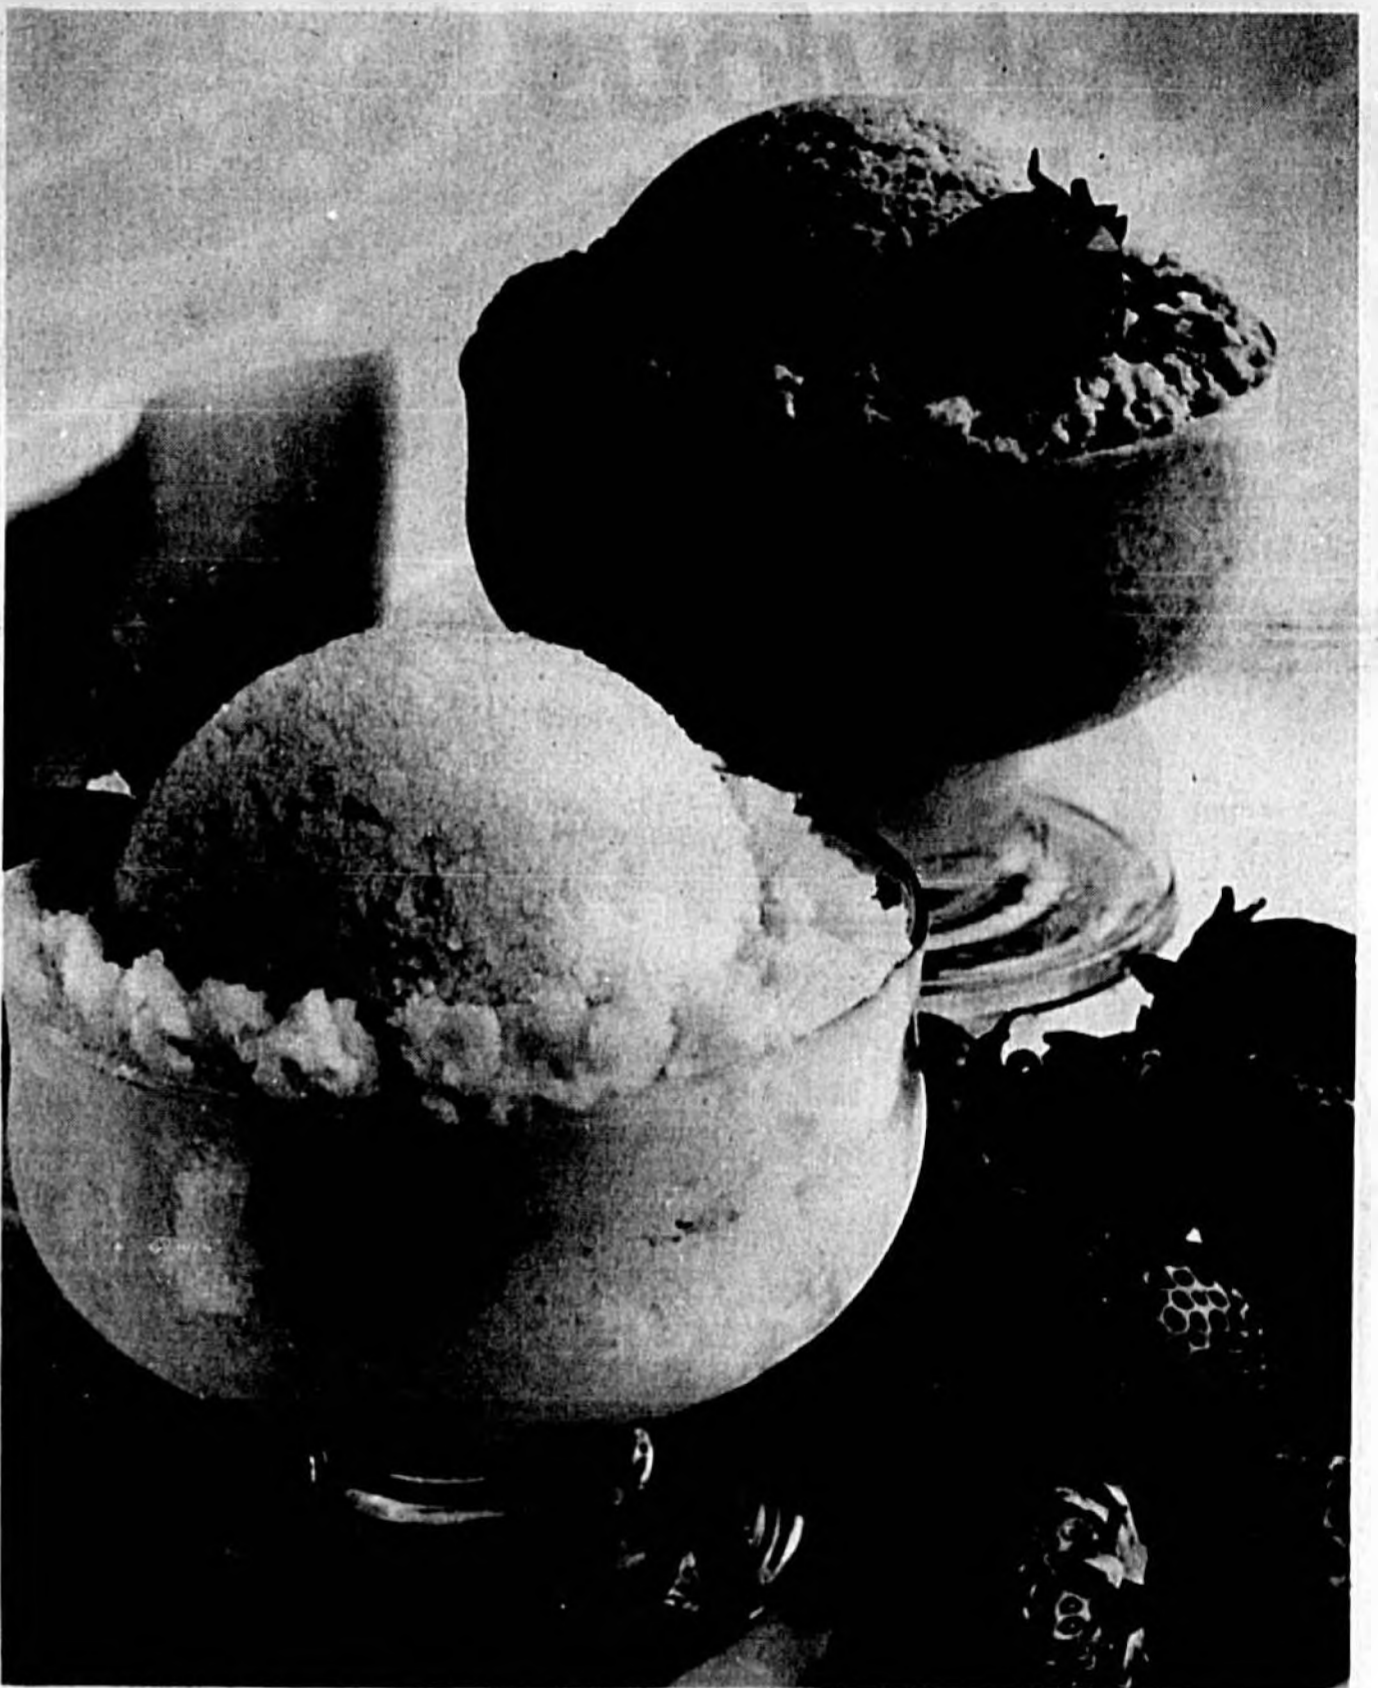

To make the most of the season's finest fruits, the Kraft Kitchens have created two frosty treats that team marshmallow creme and fresh fruit with just two additional ingredients. To prepare, simply puree the fruit and blend with marshmallow creme, citrus juice and a touch of grated peel. Freeze until almost firm, beat again then refreeze until it's time to serve.

Enjoy luscious Honeydew Ice, with its lively fresh lime accent, or delicately pink Strawberry Ice, a frosty summertime refresher made with flavorful, ripe strawberries and a touch of tangy lemon. Both are cool, creative ways to extend the short season for these flavored fruits.

If you have a favorite fruit dessert or other original sweet treat prepared with marshmallow creme, you could be a winner in the 1987 KRAFT Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" Recipe Contest. A little creativity could bring home a big cash prize.

To enter, submit your original recipe using at least one 7-ounce jar of Kraft Marshmallow creme in one of the three recipe contest categories: A) Frozen Desserts, B) Desserts: Baked or Refrigerated, or C) Sweet Etceteras, including beverages, candies, soups, sauces, snacks, etc. Recipe rules are not eligible. Entries must be postmarked by midnight Sept. 30. The rewards are a sweet incentive: A $5,000 Grand Prize, three $1,000 First Prizes, 11 $100 Second Prizes and 100 Runners-Up Prizes.

Complete contest rules follow. Be sure to follow them exactly to ensure that your entries qualify for consideration. Contest rules may also be obtained by sending name and address to: RULES.

Use Sweet Cheese For A Salad Original

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A special cheese treat in Norwegian homes is the sweet, golden brown Gjetost. It often is used to close a meal, cut in thin slices and eaten with crackers or toast. It also goes well in an American salad, which also features sweet potato cut in matchstick pieces, one of the many new restaurant innovations with a basic food. The combination of flavors with crisp, tart apples and chicken provides an interesting and filling salad.

GJETOST SALAD

1½ pounds sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into matchstick pieces

½ cup olive oil

2 tablespoons red wine vinegar

2 teaspoons honey

½ teaspoon ground ginger

Generous dash pepper
2 cups pineapple chunks

1 can (10 ounces) mandarin oranges, drained

1 large Granny Smith apple, cored and cut into thin slices

1 cup cubed Gjetost sweet cheese

1 cup diced cooked chicken

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Crisp greens

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender, about 5 minutes. Drain and cool.

In small bowl combine oil, vinegar, honey, ginger and pepper.

In large bowl, combine potatoes, fruit, cheese, chicken and parsley. Add dressing; toss to blend. Arrange greens on platter. Spoon salad onto greens. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.
