Police officer trial begins in federal court

Testimony began Tuesday in the trial of Sanford police officer Darlene Ladozky, who is accused of supplying drugs and inside information about investigations to a cocaine dealer.

Convicted cocaine dealer Antonio Donnell Holley, 26, described for a federal jury in vivid detail the sexual relationship he claims to have had with the 12-year police veteran.

Holley is the lead witness in the trial of Ladozky, 34, who is accused of giving him information about investigations during their alleged three-year relationship, then lying to federal agents about it.

Assistant US Attorney Matt Perry said he will present telephone logs, dispatch records and more than a dozen witnesses.

Meanwhile, defense attorney Charles Greene said Holley had lied to get out of jail. Ladozky admits to a relationship with Holley, but denies it was sexual. She is pleading innocent of the criminal charges.

Ladozky is charged with one count of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute and distribution of crack cocaine, two counts of lying to federal agents and carrying a firearm during a drug trafficking offense.

Erving family searches for son

Julius Erving speaks during a press conference Tuesday as his family — son Cheo, wife Turquoise, daughter Jazmin, and son Julius III — looks on. Erving's youngest son, Cory, has been missing since May 28.

NBA star asks for help from residents, media

SANFORD — Flanked by his wife and three children, a subdued Julius Erving made a plea Tuesday in locating his youngest, Cory, 19, who has been missing for more than two weeks.

"Our family has always communicated in some way every day, either by phone, fax, or sending up smoke signals," Erving said. "For Cory to be missing brings about real concern, anxiety, and a test of faith."

Erving's wife of 26 years, Turquoise, and their three children, Cheo, Jazmin, and Julius III, linked arms and wept as Erving described his family's turmoil.

Erving said he last spoke to his son over the telephone about 1:20 p.m. on May 28. Cory told his father he was picking up bread at Parera's for a barbecue to be held at the home of Orlando Magic player Corey Maggette.

"He sounded upbeat," Erving said of the last conversation with his missing son. "He said he'd be home in 20 minutes."

Erving, an NBA legend of the 1970s and '80s who is known worldwide as Dr. J, said he realizes his family is not alone in searching for a lost loved one.

"It's hard," Julius Erving said. "People across America are experiencing this situation."

Until it happens to you, though, you never know what it is going to be like." A recovering alcohol and drug

Hyacinth macaw exhibit opens at Central Florida Zoo

SANFORD — Birds of a feather are flocking at the Central Florida Zoological Park to see the new hyacinth macaw exhibit. The exhibit, sponsored by Inez and Bob Parsell of Sanford Ace Hardware, Inc., emphasizes behavioral enrichment and future reproduction for this pair of endangered birds.

Native to Brazil and Bolivia, hyacinth macaws are the largest of the parrot family. Their overall color is a deep blue with bright yellow skin around the eye and lower mandible. The male was hatched May 6, 1977 and the female was hatched 20 days later on May 26.

Throughout the exhibit, the birds have plenty of space to play, chew and exercise. For example, an oak limb balanced to act like a seesaw adds extra enjoyment as the birds walk from side to side. Six thousand pounds of boulders, stones and cement were used to create a flowing, rocky stream that ends in a pool designed for bathing and drinking. The sound of water flowing down this seven foot long water feature helps mask other sounds, making the birds more comfortable.

City seeks additional land for parking at Sanford Historic Memorial Stadium

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford is looking into expanded parking at Historic Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Mayor Larry Dale said the city is holding discussions with the Seminole County School Board regarding ways to expand parking at the stadium.

Renovation plans call for 1,472 seats, plus room along the foul lines for additional seating.

There is currently only room for 133 on-site parking spaces.

"I want to provide more parking," Dale said. "We're working diligently to try to get more parking."

Several residents during Monday's City Commission session said they are concerned about the possibility of overflow parking problems once the stadium is regularly used.

"Parking is really the issue we're concerned most about," said Dave Freeman, who resides on Mellonville Avenue.

Sandra Robinson, chairman of the Seminole County School Board, said she has had preliminary discussions with Dale regarding the possibility of the board selling the former School Board offices on Mellonville Avenue to the city. The buildings, located next to the stadium, are currently used for storage.

Schools

The earlier start of the school year.

Hagerty's calendar calls for students to have two days off, along with a teacher work day, for a total of five days off after the first quarter in 2001.

The board chose between the two calendar's during Tuesday's regular session. Both calendars call for 180 days of student attendance, but the school years start and end at different times, and the calendars include different vacations.

"I think what Paul (Hagerty) did was try to make everybody happy," said board member Larry Furlong, who opposed the break. "Conversely, everybody's a little unhappy. It does provide a break at the end of the quarter. I think this provides a good compromise."

Concerns addressed by board members regarding a fall break included the need to for parents to find arrangements for the care of children during the week. Board members also said they were concerned about inconsistency with other districts.

In addition, Hagerty said the proposed fall break would have occurred the week after student attendance counts are taken for state funding. A high number of absences the week before fall break could have resulted in lower funding for the school district.

Hagerty said Board Chairman Sandra Robinson provided the lone vote in opposition to eliminating the fall break. Many teachers say the long stretch between the start of the school year in August and the winter break in December is a source of fatigue.

Jeff Siskind, President of the Seminole Educators Association, which serves as the local teachers union, said the association favors a fall break.

Siskind was a member of the Calendar Committee. He could not say whether a fall break would again be recommended by the committee for future school years.

"It really is important to have that break," Siskind said. "The Calendar Committee has recommended a fall break for three consecutive years. The recommendation is based on what's in the best interest of students and teachers."

According to a board survey, 85 percent of the staff favors the fall break. However, another board survey of 6,000 parents indicates 54 percent oppose the break.

Board member Jeanne Morris said she favors having a fall break. Her original proposal to accept the calendar which includes the fall break failed. She said she voted in favor of the calendar developed by Hagerty because she wanted to get a calendar passed.

"I am concerned that teachers feel so strongly about it, and we just keep ignoring it," Morris said.

Parent Stewart Farb said he opposes a fall break because of inconsistency with other school districts, and difficulties in arranging for transportation to extracurricular activities held during the break. He also said he was concerned about the proposal to start school July 30.

"Every week we move up the start of the school year into the summer we make it that much more onerous," Farb said.

Meanwhile, parent Sharon Rousey said she favors a fall break.

"By the time children get to October, after starting the school year so early, they're drained," Rousey said. "Then if you wait until December, you just lose them."

Mass appeal for Catholic women to be priests

Many members of the Southern Baptist Convention are opposed to women becoming Baptist pastors.

The pope, of course, doesn't want Catholic women becoming priests — or for that matter, becoming Baptist pastors.

Today, we ponder which will come first.

- a) Baptist women pastors.
- b) Catholic women priests.
- c) Rik Smits NBA playoff MVP.

My answer is b) Catholic women

And, it's my final answer. Do you know that Catholic women no longer need to wear a hat or kerchief to Mass? I'm not sure if permission for this came from the Vatican or from Gloria Steinem, who isn't Catholic but is definitely and devoutly interested in setting other women free.

There are, of course, details that must be addressed. A number of women who want to be priests abhor the notion of being collared. A few have talked about wearing high heels at High Mass. You guessed it, high priests.

If Mother Teresa had been a priest, would she have been called Father Teresa, Bishop Teresa, Cardinal Teresa or Pope Teresa?

Russ White

Consider this: a Franciscan with painted toe nails. A Jesuit with a bee-hive do. A monk with pierced ears. A friar in pantyhose.

The biggest concern I have about women becoming Catholic priests or Baptist ministers is that Hillary Clinton may try her hand at one of the two. That's not right. First Ladies have no business in the pulpit — or the U.S. Senate.

Jewish congregations have been served by women rabbis for more than a decade. I met one 12 years ago. She was wearing a yellow polka-dot dress. She joked about people not knowing what to call her husband. "I told them to call him lucky."

We would assume that if the Southern Baptists allow women pastors, they will also allow those pastors to marry. The Catholics will need another millennium for that. The Baptists cling to the thought that sin began with a woman. The Catholics and Baptists cite Timothy in the New Testament for women not to teach or have authority over a man.

So I ask: Whom would you pick as an apostle, a lady or a Judas?

Russ White's column appears daily in the Seminole Herald.

Our View

Vote ...

People in District 3 need to show their support for Sanford

Tuesday, June 27, will be election day for District 3 in Sanford. It's a special election to fill a vacancy on the Sanford City Commission to replace A.A. "Mac" McClanahan, who died in April.

For this single election only registered voters in the district will be able to cast their ballots. There are 3,881 registered, and five candidates from which to choose.

Mayor Larry Dale predicted less than 10 percent of the people will even bother to go to the polls. He cited the fact that it's summertime and the last Tuesday before the Fourth of July. Ten percent would be approximately 388 votes. Equally divided, slightly over 77 votes per candidate.

If Dale's prediction comes true, it will mean less than 400 people will decide who will serve to represent them on the commission. And probably, a number of only 80 or 90 votes will decide the winner.

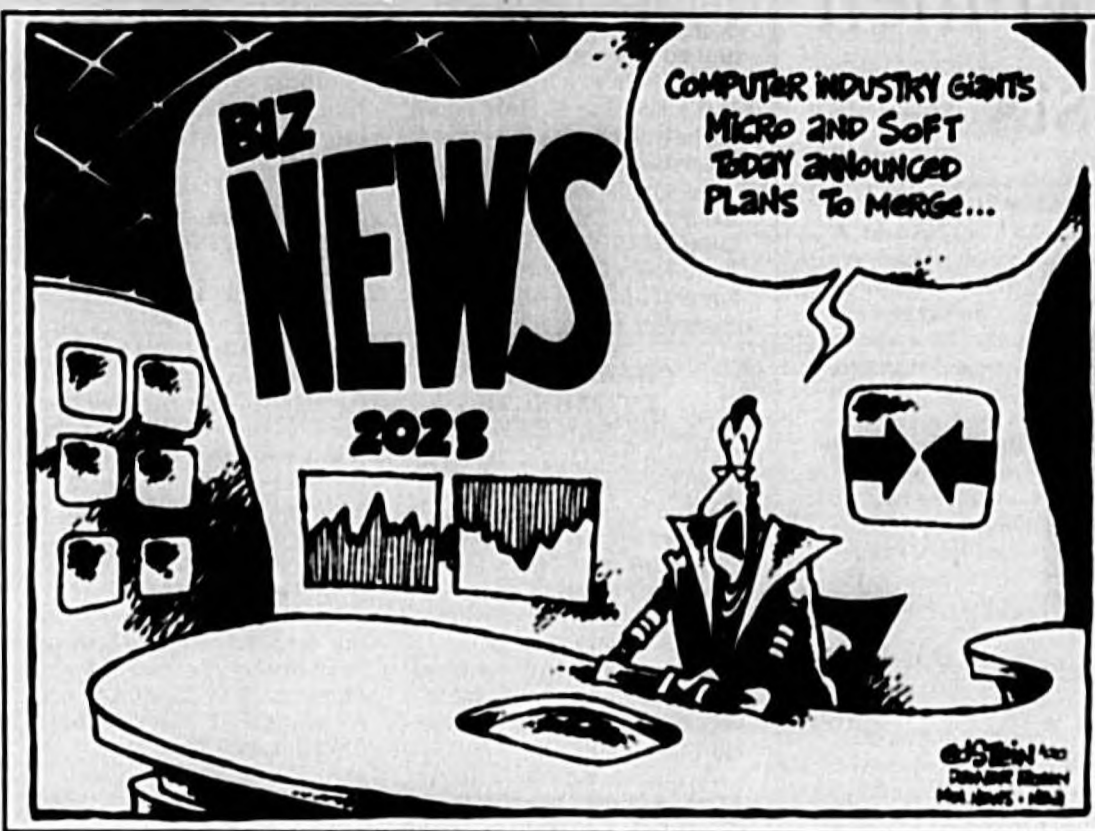

With so few people making this choice, it is probably one of the most important times for everyone in District 3 to get to the polls. The fewer people there are, the more one single vote might determine the outcome.

It's not impossible. Many political positions through the years, locally as well as statewide and nationally, have been decided by one single vote.

Making a decision in this election isn't as difficult as some people may believe. Simply pick a person who stands for the same beliefs you may hold. Who supports what you support, and who will not only serve your district, but serve the entire city to the best of his or her ability. Then, go to the polls and vote.

Forget about it however, or simply don't care, and what you are telling people is that it doesn't matter who is on the commission and what they do to you and for you isn't that important. Then, when they make a decision which is not to your liking, you have little credibility when you complain, protest or bad-mouth them.

Do your civic duty. Tuesday, June 27, let's see a large turnout from District 3 in Sanford — higher than the mayor has predicted — high enough to show that the people of Sanford really care about their future.

Corzine isn't wrong in trying to buy senate seat

Let's begin by admitting that there's something a little obscene about a man worth $400 million spending $35 million in a primary battle for a senatorial nomination — and squashing his less affluent opponent like a bug.

That's what John Corzine, the former co-chairman of Goldman Sachs, did to former Governor Jim Florio in last week's Democratic primary in New Jersey. Presumably he plans to spend an equal or larger amount defeating Robert Franks, the Republican nominee, in November.

Mark Hanna, the Republican boss of Ohio a century ago, once said, "Three things are important in politics. The first is money. I forget what the other two are."

No doubt about it, political candidacy is an expensive pastime — all the more so now that voters get practically all of their information about candidates from television. A candidate simply has no choice but to spend large sums on TV ads.

As a practical matter, therefore, the only candidates who are likely to win are either multimillionaires (we are not talking about people who only have a lousy million or two) or politicians who are willing and able to go out and raise equivalent amounts of money from friends and supporters.

The latter course inevitably raises the question of whether the candidate has been "bought" by the major donors to his campaign, and will repay them with favors if he is elected. That gives the multimillionaires the opportunity to brag (as Corzine did) that, because they're spending their own money, they are "beholden to nobody."

Under the circumstances, it's a wonder that anybody but multimillionaires gets elected to high office in this country. To be sure, Mr. Corzine is not alone; if elected, he will be welcomed to the Senate by Senator Jay Rockefeller (D-W.Va.).

But surprisingly often voters reject filthy rich candidates. In California in 1994, Republican Michael Huffington spent $28 million of his personal fortune trying to beat the incumbent Democratic senator, Dianne Feinstein. He failed. And in 1998, Al Checchi, an airline executive, plowed $38 million of his own money into the Democratic gubernatorial primary in the same state, only to be beaten by the relatively impoverished Gray

Davis, who went on to win in November.

To many people, the solution is obvious. Simply limit by law the amount that candidates can spend on their own campaigns. If it is hard to set a fair limit (since, after all, there will always be eager candidates unable to raise the permitted amount, however small), then let the government both set the limit and provide the money.

But there are serious and legitimate objections to such "reforms." In the first place, we Americans like to think that a person can spend his own money any way he chooses, on yachts or charitable contributions or chorus girls or new businesses or even running for Congress.

The Supreme Court has firmly rejected Congressional limitations on spending one's own money on a political candidacy as an unconstitutional limitation on freedom of speech. This has so frustrated campaign finance reformers that they have begun mulling about a constitutional amendment.

In the second place, having a lot of money is a big help if you are running for office, no doubt about it. But why should that particular advantage be limited, when all sorts of other advantages are allowed to have their full effect?

How can we compensate

Congressman Rick Lazio, the Republican candidate for New York's vacant Senate seat, for the unlucky fact that his opponent is a smart and beautiful woman who just happens to be the wife of the president of the United States?

Or, to go back to a 1958 race, how was state Senate Majority Leader Walter Mahoney going to compete effectively against Nelson Rockefeller for the Republican gubernatorial nomination (forget his wealth) when the Republican leader in almost every county in the state was either an official of, or the attorney for, the local affiliate of Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank?

In short, there is no such thing as two perfectly matched candidates. Nor should we try to compensate for some advantage that one has over the other. The voters are quite capable (as we have seen) of rejecting rich candidates they don't care for. And, in the case of the New Jersey race, there is reason to believe they voted for Corzine in large part because they hadn't forgiven Florio for breaking a promise not to raise taxes as governor. Time wounds all heels.

Hearst spirit still lives on at the 'Citizen Kane' newspaper

After my two-year stint in the Peace Corps, I flew home from Africa on a jumbo jet that was weirdly empty. I crossed the Atlantic that night in a cavernous world of vacant cabins, a few out-of-sight stewardesses and the movie playing on the big bulkhead screen:

"Citizen Kane." While it's always vain to claim personal premonitions, let this be mine. For the past 13 years I have worked for the San Francisco Examiner, the newspaper this great Orson Welles film made famous.

It was at the Examiner that young William Randolph Hearst began his swashbuckling, empire-building career in newspapers. It was in the wild San Francisco of 1887 that this man, still in his early 20s, burned forever into American myth what it means to publish a newspaper.

"My three ambitions, as you know," young "Will" Hearst wrote his dad from Harvard, "are law, politics and journalism and under favorable circumstances it might be possible to combine all three." While neither his stars nor his discipline gave him the right trajectory for the first two career targets, the name Hearst and the very notion of American newspapering quickly became and remain in this third century of his empire inseparable.

I write this column now because of a big, fast-paced new book by David Nasaw. What strikes me reading the early chapters of "The Chief: The Life of William Randolph Hearst" is how much zest and spirit the true story shares with the Orson Welles triumph, which was so obviously based on it.

What strikes me looking back on my years at the Examiner, where Hearst made his start an even 100 years before me, is how much real newspapering feels, smells and looks like the world that boy-genius Welles rendered in the movies.

"I don't get to bed until two o'clock and wake up at about seven in the morning and can't get to sleep again," Hearst wrote his mother "for I must see the paper and compare it with the Chronicle."

That crazed seduction of deadline and newsprint is still alive today in the Examiner newsroom. It's the professional lust pulling men and women toward the next story, to getting it first, to writing it better.

I write this at a poignant time: Hearst hopes to sell the evening Examiner and buy the morning Chronicle.

With luck and pluck, acquiring the Chronicle will do for the Examiner what the great William Randolph Hearst did: expand its distribution reach, grow its circulation, upgrade its operation — and enable it to brag about each new advance on its front page. It will have the ambition to build and the movie to make the reader part of the action.

"To North! To South!" the May 23, 1887, Examiner screamed as it expanded into the outer, younger counties of Northern California. "The bond is welded which knits together in unity and brotherhood the great metropolis of the West and the country around it."

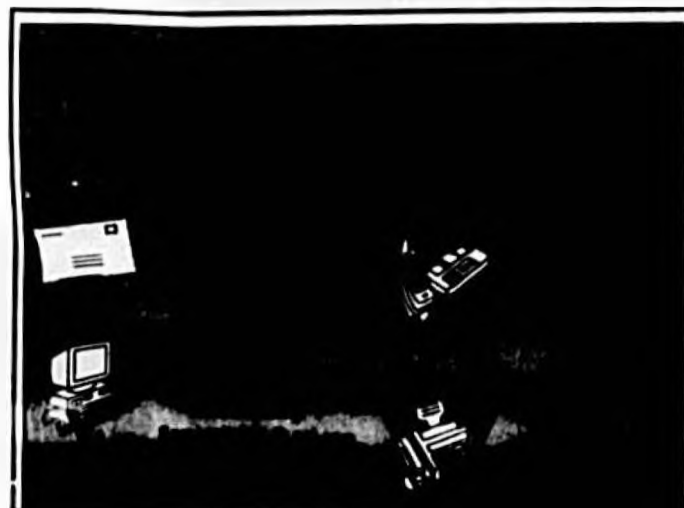

Now that's newspapering!

Guy plans to make dreams come true

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — The sky is the limit for Robert Guy.

At age 11, Robert is setting his sights on becoming a gospel singer and an actor. The hard work and dedication he will need to achieve this goal is already paying off.

Robert has made straight "A" report cards at Goldsboro Elementary School in Sanford three consecutive semesters as well as given performances at Disney World and Universal Studios.

He performs in the Tajiri School of Performing Arts, a school of performing arts and academics in Sanford. In addition, he was also active in the drama club at school and is learning to play the violin.

Robert has lived in Sanford for six years and may attend Millennium Middle School next year when he enters the sixth grade.

"When I first came to Florida I didn't know I could sing," Robert said. "Then, I started performing in plays at school, and people told me I'm good at it." If he doesn't pursue show business career, Robert sees himself becoming a teacher.

"I like working with kids," Robert said. "I enjoy tutoring and baby sitting. I just enjoy being with little kids. I always try to be a role model."

His favorite subjects in school are history and writing.

"I like to write stories and enjoy learning about things that happened in the past and how we can make things better today," Robert said.

He was also a member of Southeastern Consortium for Minorities in Engineering at Goldsboro this year. The organization is an inclusive organization which encourages pre-college students of any ethnicity to participate.

He credits the magnet programs and encouragement from teachers at Goldsboro for his success in school.

"When I wasn't doing my best the teachers encouraged me to keep doing better," Robert said. "I always knew I could be a good student."

In addition, this year Robert participated with other students in the Art Club in making a model of New York. He was also selected as Safety Patrol captain, and was a member of the school's News Crew.

During the opening of the Kids Space Center at Goldsboro, Robert was the flight director.

"It was fun," Robert said. "You get to see how it really works at Kennedy Space Center. You have to work together as a team."

Robert lives in Sanford with his father, Robert Guy Sr., and step-mother Geryalyn Guy. He also said he enjoys time with his grandmother Mary Guy, who lives in Sanford. He will spend this summer in Atlanta with his biological mother Lisa Wiggo, along with three sisters and two brothers.

He may attend school in Atlanta next year.

"I'm looking forward to going to Atlanta," Robert said. "But, there are a lot of people I'll miss."

Herald Teacher of the Week

Anna Vanlandingham is the Seminole Herald Teacher of the Week. She teaches economics at Lake Mary High School. A 19-year veteran teacher, this is her 13th year at Lake Mary High School.

She holds a bachelor's and master's degree in education with a specialty in social sciences from Delta State University in Mississippi. In addition, she is 30 hours into the doctoral program in education at the University of Central Florida.

"I always wanted to be a teacher," Vanlandingham said. "As a child I used to make my dolls sit up and do their math problems. I'd fuss at them when they wouldn't do them right."

Vanlandingham is married to Ron Gilmore, and they have one adopted dog named Shadow.

She credits the Center for Economic Education at UCF and the Junior Achievement Academy for her growth as a teacher.

Vanlandingham recently shared her views on various topics with Herald Staff Writer Bill Kerns.

Favorite part of teaching: "The students. I enjoy being around them and helping them."

Most memorable experience as a teacher: "When a former student, who later became a teacher, wrote an essay about how I influenced her life and sent it to me."

Biggest challenge for teachers: "Getting their attention. In a class like economics, it can be hard to get them interested."

Advice for parents: "Spend time with your children. Know what's going on in their lives."

Advice for students: "The only way to get anywhere in life is to work hard and get a good education."

Advice for new or prospective teachers: "Don't let the first year of teaching get you down. Keep at it."

Best advice you have ever received: "Remember that the students are the customers."

Person(s) who have inspired you: "Sarah Blackwell, a friend who taught with me when I first started teaching. She's now at the University of Mississippi. Then there is Don Smith (the principal of Lake Howell High School). He was an assistant principal at Lake Mary High School when I first made the move to Florida, and without him the move would not have been such a successful one."

Favorite book or inspirational message: "Regret is

the cancer of life."
Hobbies: "Running."

Erving

Community College for a high-school equivalency diploma, said his father. He was also bussing tables for Panera Bread, a Lake Mary bakery located about three miles from his family's million-dollar home in the gated Alaquia community.

"We thought he was on course," Erving said. "He's a fun kid. People very easily ingratiate themselves to Cory, that's just the kind of person he is. We miss him dearly."

However, Erving admitted his son has been in-and-out of treatment centers for alcohol and drug abuse.

According to police records, Cory Erving was arrested in July 1998 and charged with burglary to a motor vehicle and loitering and prowling. The charges were later dropped.

On April 9, he was charged with liquor possession by a person under age 21.

Cory Erving was also reported missing in January 1999.

He was born with mild forms of dyslexia and attention deficit disorder, and attended schools for children with learning disabilities until the eighth grade.

"Cory's a good person," said his brother, 26-year-old Julius Erving III. "He was a prankster. I'm just trying to keep my head up. I just want him here, that's all."

Cory Erving and his Volkswagen Passat have not been seen since May 28. Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger said the teen's life may be in danger.

Eslinger on Wednesday morning told NBC's Today Show that drug abuse may be involved in the disappearance. Cory Erving was a known crack-cocaine user, according to authorities.

"There are indications through the investigation he may have had a relapse," Eslinger said.

Eslinger said the teen was involved in some type of altercation with an individual in the east Altamonte Springs area just prior to May 28, but declined to give details on the altercation. It occurred in an area where numerous drug arrests have been made, authorities said.

"That concerns us," Eslinger said.

The search is focusing on the east Altamonte Springs area. The teen did not have access to credit cards, and Eslinger said Cory Erving has "limited financial means." Investigators have been interviewing all of Cory Erving's friends and associates.

"We haven't had any credible information from Cory's associates," Eslinger said. "We are going to be re-interviewing some associates. We have exhausted many leads. We are concerned about Cory."

Erving said he first searched for his son through "private contacts," then reported him as missing to the sheriff's office the following Friday. After more than two weeks of searching, the family made the decision on Monday to publicly ask for help in expanding the search.

Pat Williams, senior vice president for the Orlando Magic and RDV Sports, is serving as spokesman for the Erving family. He announced on Tuesday the family is offering a $25,000 reward for information relating to the whereabouts of Cory Erving.

Julius Erving, who was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1993 and is Erving is senior vice president for the Orlando Magic, is no stranger to the downside of celebrity.

Last summer, he acknowledged being the father of 18-year-old tennis star Alexandra Stevenson. He said he had the relationship with the mother, Samantha Stevenson, in 1980 while married to his wife Turquoise.

He said his family is clinging to their faith, and using every means at their disposal to find their son. A toll-free line for the public to call with tips has been established. The number is 1-888-609-2529. Authorities said numerous tips had been generated as of Wednesday morning.

that maybe we could give the city the property," Robinson said. "My thought was we might sell it. So, we weren't on real even ground there. We're willing to talk, and we want to be good neighbors."

Robinson said the board is looking into selling the property, and an appraisal is not yet complete.

Meanwhile, in order to increase the number of recreation programs available for youth in the city, Sanford has also held preliminary discussions with the School Board regarding purchase of the Velma Mitchell Annex, located adjacent to Red Barber Park.

However, before purchasing the complex city commissioners say they need to determine specific programs to be held in the building, and how much maintenance would cost.

"Significant repairs would be needed on the building," Robinson said. "The biggest thing is asbestos removal, and that can be expensive."

Built in 1951 to replace old Municipal Stadium once located nearby, renovations to Sanford Memorial Stadium will cost an estimated $1.8 million.

The New York Giants trained in Sanford from 1948 to 1951, then relocated spring facilities to Arizona when the franchise moved to San Francisco.

Seminole County has agreed to fund $400,000 over 10 years, and $50,000 in private funding has been donated. Sanford has allocated up to $500,000 for the project.

A four field youth sports complex is being constructed at Chase Park, adjacent to the stadium. The complex is expected to be ready for use this summer.

The four lighted fields at the complex will each have 200-foot fences. There will also be a service building with concessions, restrooms, and an area for administration and score keepers.

Retired baseball star Tim Lincecum, who has donated $50,000 toward renovating the stadium, says that he wants begin a youth baseball training program in Sanford, based at the stadium.

AAA standings still top-heavy

Cross Bones, I.S. win to remain within a game of the league lead

By Dean Smith
 SPORTS EDITOR

LAKE MARY - Big innings spelled the difference as the top of the standings in the City of Lake Mary Department of Parks & Recreation Spring AAA Co-Ed Slow Pitch Softball League got even closer last Wednesday night at the Lake Mary Sports Complex.

Cross Bones scored 17 runs over two innings and I.S. took the strength of a nine-run second inning to easily roll to victories and move to within a half-game of the league lead.

Cross Bones was up 2-0 Brian Verables tipped a two-run double and Jimmy Gonzalez drew a two-run walk to key an eight-run third inning.

Cross Bones then took advantage of bases-loaded three-base error on a grounder back to the mound off the bat of David Belle Doune to score nine runs in the fourth inning to push the lead to 19-2 and coasted into a tie for the league lead with a 20-3 triumph over Liberty Mutual I.

I.S. scored four runs in the bottom of the first inning before scoring the nine runs in the second inning as Vic Pasquet drove in two runs with a triple and a single and Rich Dimmick had a pair of run-scoring singles to take a 12-0 lead.

Liberty Mutual II tried to make a game of it, scoring seven runs in the top of the third inning on the strength of a three-run double by Jorge Martinez and a two-run single by Darin Campbell, but it was too little, too late as I.S. closed to within a half-game of the lead with a 16-0 victory.

The Bombers, who were idle this week, and Cross Bones lead the league with 6-3 records, with I.S. just behind at 6-4.

Liberty Mutual I has also clinched a spot in the playoffs with a 4-5 record, while Liberty Mutual II is 1-8.

The regular season is scheduled to end this evening at the Lake Mary Sports See AAA, Page 2B

Winner-take-all playoff slated tonight

By Dean Smith
 SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary put the pressure on Vivona's and the league leaders did not respond forcing a playoff tonight at Pinehurst Park for the championship of the City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Men's Spring Wednesday Night Slow Pitch Softball League.

In the opening game last Wednesday Beer :30 wrapped up third place, jumping out to a 16-0 lead and coasting to an 18-4 victory over Wells Contracting.

Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary found itself down 5-1 after four innings and the verge of handing the title to Vivona's, but came off the deck to score 17 runs over the final three innings to pull out an 18-7 triumph over Kenny's Klan.

That still gave Vivona's could win the championship by defeating All Natural Lawn in the final regularly scheduled game of the season.

But All Natural Lawn was primed to play spoiler and scored nine runs in the top of the first inning and never quit scoring, rolling to a 26-16 five-inning run rule upset.

With the final night's results, Vivona's and Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary both end the regular season with 8-2 records with Beer :30 (6-4), All Natural Lawn and Kenny's Klan (both 4-8) and Wells Contracting (0-10) completing the standings.

Tonight's winner-take-all Championship Playoff Game will be played at 7 p.m. at Pinehurst Park.

Vic DiBartolo had two-run singles in each of the first and second innings, while Jerry DiBartolo added a two-run triple in the first inning and winning pitcher Blake Murray had a two-run single in the second inning as Beer :30 scored six runs in each of the first two innings to jump-start the offense on the way to the rout over Wells Contracting.

Because of the results, a winner-take-all championship game will be contested tonight at Pinehurst Park at 7 p.m. between Vivona's and Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary.

Tony Smith led off the second game for Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary with a single and scored after scored on a single by Craig Jones.

But the team would not score again until the fifth inning as Kenny's Klan looked good in trying to secure a .500 season.

RBI singles by Frankie Phillips and J.R. Spivey and an error accounted for three first inning runs for Kenny's Klan and an RBI groundout by Phillips and an RBI single by Scott Carter plated two more runs in the third inning as the Kenny's Klan lead swelled to 5-1.

Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary started its comeback in the fifth inning as Myriel Reid doubled in one run and Dale Peters followed with a three-run home run to tie the game at 5-5.

Kenny's Klan reclaimed the lead in the bottom of the fifth inning scoring a run on a bases-loaded, two out single by Hank Toole.

But Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary now had the offense in gear and took the lead for good by scoring five runs in the top of the sixth inning with Smith's two-run triple being the big blow.

Kenny's Klan got a run back in the bottom of the sixth inning, but Vivona's answered with eight runs in the bottom of the first inning with eight different players driving in one run each.

All Natural Lawn came back to score nine more runs in the top of the second inning with Jason Flanigan driving in three runs with a two-run home run and a single and Jamie Pitzer singling in two runs.

Vivona's tried to stay in the game, scoring four runs in the bottom of the second inning to make the score 18-12, but the All Natural Lawn onslaught was just too much as it scored five more runs over the next two innings to stretch the lead to nine runs (23-14) and then put the game away by scoring three runs in the top of the fifth inning, while Vivona's could only answer with two runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings.
