Council Says Property Tax Legitimate

LAKE MARY COUNCILMEN PONDER POINT

Christmas Lights To Shine In City

Sanford City Commission Monday turned down a suggestion that Christmas lighting be eliminated because of the energy crisis. Commissioners voted to take numerous energy-saving measures, however, including blacking out city hall floodlights starting Jan. 1, after the holiday season when a nativity scene is traditionally displayed on the city hall lawn on North Park Avenue.

Immediate steps to be taken are readjustment of thermostats in city buildings to higher air conditioning and lower heat settings, lowering hot water heater settings, shutting off air conditioning and heating in city buildings an hour before closing time, all city vehicles to observe a 50 mile per hour speed limit except in emergency situations and parking all city vehicles not absolutely needed.

A close check will be kept on pool car use and sending vehicles to check calls and group work calls in sections of the city will be limited to one vehicle.

Commissioners John Morris and A. A. McClanahan suggested turning off "whiteaway" lighting along U.S. 17-92 from French Avenue to Interstate Four but commissioners Julian Stenstrom, Gordon Meyer and Mayor Lee Moore defeated the proposal. The commission rejected suggestions that night lighting at Memorial Park and city tennis courts and ball fields be shut off and night-time flood lights at the zoo be reduced.

Knowles pointed out that a street light uses only 175 watts of electricity and a hot water heater uses 3,000 watts in starting up. If residents would lower hot water heater thermostats more energy would be saved than by eliminating street lights, he said.

Commissioners indicated that more conservation measures may be necessary as the energy crisis worsens during the winter months.

LAKE MARY — City council Monday night weathered a storm of protest over a full year tax bill from many of almost 80 residents attending the regular meeting, saying the bill was legitimate.

Council also agreed to hire a police chief at $10,000 per year and advertise for bids on a car, setting in motion the wheels of its own police department, but stopped short of agreeing to hire a patrolman and a second car.

City resident Ed Zimmerman began the protest of the full tax claiming he was due a refund on the time before incorporation. The chief contention of the irate residents was the city could not charge for a full year since incorporation came Aug. 7.

Mayor Jackson replied the city was only doing what the county was, and city attorney Tom Freeman said it was, "The only way for ad valorem taxes."

"The taxes are for the 1973-74 fiscal year and are paid in the 1973 calendar year," Jackson said.

Another resident added he felt the three mill levy was misleading since it was actually seven and one-half as incorporation came after mid-year.

"I don't think it's collectable," said Harvey Pugh, who added he felt the tax would be a burden to low income families and the city's elderly.

Councilman John Norden said that was untrue.

"It's not the older people who can be hurt by the taxes, it's the people with a lot of valuable property," he said.

"We did not agree to be taxed until we have duly elected officials, and you're only acting. You're not duly elected," said Henry C. Mills, adding, "It looks like you're already elected."

The decision to hire a police chief came after Sheriff John Polk asked council to forego a contractual arrangement with his department.

"This city needs a police unit," stated Jackson several times.

Councilman DeLores Lash, who heads up both police and fire protection for the city, said she had plans to place the city's police office and radio equipment in the fire hall, which was agreed to by both volunteer fire department president Howard Lloyd and fire chief Lewis Schweickert.

"About $35,000 will be needed to set up the department, pay salaries, buy cars and equipment and uniforms," she said.

Council decided to hire the chief and advertise for bids on a car, but said it wanted to consider each additional item individually due to the budget restrictions.

Councilman John Norden was the only member voting not to hire the chief, saying, "We should leave things as they are. A new council will be elected in December and they can get into this."

Council also passed second readings of the Florida Power Corporation Franchise, the election ordinance and an expense ordinance authorizing $125 per month for the mayor and $50 a month for each councilman.

County Orders Probe Of Flood Storage Area

Sanford City commissioners today ordered an investigation into a proposed 18.7 acre office park in Longwood which may adversely affect the flood storage area of Island Lake.

Commission action came after Monday night's Longwood City Council meeting, where the Georgia St. Laurent development rezoning request was delayed one week in the face of opposition from 71 protesting citizens.

Tobin, County Commissioner John Kimbrough, who attended the Longwood meeting, noted City Engineer Bill Palm also serves as the projected development engineer, and ordered County Engineer Bill Bush to "study the situation."

Bush was directed to confer with area U.S. Geological Survey officials and write a letter to Longwood expressing commission reservations, if authorized and commissioners told the city staff to study a proposal by Commissioner John Morris that the city borrow $173,665 to finance the project, pledging future federal revenue-sharing funds.

"I fear this could have a detrimental effect," Kimbrough said, adding, "The board ought to register our reservations, if there are any, to filling flood prone areas."

The city has in hand $426,505 and anticipated revenue-sharing funds amount to $1,293,751. The remaining $532,144 needed for the $2,252,400 project will have to come from assessments on the 4.292 acres of property that front on the 23 miles of streets. Morris estimated that the assessments would be between $2 and $4 per front foot and be financed by the city starting in 1974 for property owners over a five or ten year period if capacity acceptable to the city and himself, but would release no details.

City Councilman B.L. Helms expressed concern over the USGS study, noting "basically the city does not know if this development will cause a problem."

Council also passed second readings of the Florida Power Corporation Franchise, the election ordinance and an expense ordinance authorizing $125 per month for the mayor and $50 a month for each councilman.

In that eventuality," Helms continued, "we (the city) will have to pay for it."

Questioned on the liability to the city should the development flood other properties, Acting City Atty. Bill Eaton replied, "I don't know."

Sanford Panel Agrees To Pave 23 Miles Of City Dirt Streets

By BOB LLOYD
 Herald Staff Writer

Sanford city commissioners Monday voted to proceed immediately with a citywide project to pave 23 miles of dirt streets.

Engineering for the project and supporting surveys were authorized and commissioners told the city staff to study a proposal by Commissioner John Morris that the city borrow $173,665 to finance the project, pledging future federal revenue-sharing funds.

"I fear this could have a detrimental effect," Kimbrough said, adding, "The board ought to register our reservations, if there are any, to filling flood prone areas."

The city has in hand $426,505 and anticipated revenue-sharing funds amount to $1,293,751. The remaining $532,144 needed for the $2,252,400 project will have to come from assessments on the 4.292 acres of property that front on the 23 miles of streets. Morris estimated that the assessments would be between $2 and $4 per front foot and be financed by the city starting in 1974 for property owners over a five or ten year period if desired by the property owner. Morris said he thinks his proposal is best for the city financially, will get the work done quicker and will generate approximately $400,000 that can be used later for drainage work or paving of the remaining five miles of dirt streets.

The city is able to borrow money locally at a lower interest rate than individual citizens and thus would make money on financing the paving assessments.

City Manager Warren Knowles and consulting engineers had recommended a "pay as you go" plan split into five sections with work starting successively for five years starting Oct. 1, 1974. This plan, however, would require a sixth and seventh year of federal revenue-sharing revenue.

The current federal program expires Oct. 20, 1977 and Knowles said, "I feel sure the federal government will extend revenue sharing or a similar plan. I don't think they'll find it possible to drop."

Morris said due to engineering time the paving project can't get underway for at least 18 months.

Under an agreement, yet to be approved by Federal District Court at Orlando, the city earmarked all but $250,000 of federal revenue sharing funds for the paving to end a lawsuit filed by a group of Georgetown residents to stop an assessment paving project in 1970 in that community.

The $250,000 is earmarked for fire protection facilities and equipment. One fire truck is already on order and plans are being prepared for bids on a fire station on U.S. 17-92 north of Lake Mary Boulevard on land donated by developer Dick Bond.

The agreement doesn't include five miles of dirt streets that engineers say can't be paved until major drainage structures are installed. Knowles said by 1979 the paving cost for the five miles of streets will be at least $672,115.

Casselberry Approves 3 Lambusta Concerts

By JEAN PATTESON
 Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY — After the performance by the country and western group Loggins and Messina, brought to Seminole Downs on Oct. 27, by Joseph Lambusta, owner of L&S Productions, council gave Lambusta the go ahead on three more country and western and soft rock performances in the city during November.

The Mahavishnu Orchestra is scheduled to perform at Seminole Downs on Nov. 23; Conway Twitty will perform on Nov. 29; and the Crosby Nash group on Nov. 30.

Lambusta told council scheduling the concerts so close together was an unusual situation that would not occur regularly. He assured council he would cooperate in every way with Police Chief George Karcher to ensure the concerts ran smoothly. No more concerts are scheduled until mid-January.

The concerts were approved on condition the volume was lowered at the Nov. 23 performance to a level acceptable to residents in the Seminole Downs area, and that the concert on Nov. 29 is over by 10:30 p.m.

Several complaints about the sound from the Loggins and Messina concert had been received by members of the council. Lambusta assured council the volume at the forthcoming concerts would be lowered.

Council Chairman John Leighty protested the close scheduling of the concerts.

County Bands Rated High

By ELDA NICHOLS
 Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — Seminole County high school bands ranked well in the District 5 Band Marching Contest held Saturday night at the Lyman High School Stadium.

Lyman and Lake Brantley bands received the highest rating and Oviedo and Seminole bands earned a "2", which is the next highest.

Nine area bands participated, with judging on playing, marching and general effects of each. These bands do not compete against each other, as many are in different classifications according to enrollment.

A band is allowed a minimum of five minutes to perform, with an eight minute maximum period of time to perform and then exit the field. Certain regulation maneuvers must be observed by all entries.

The bands also stood for inspection before performing and were judged on instruments, uniforms and personal appearance.

Other division ratings for the contest are as follows: Sea Breeze Jr. High, Daytona, 1; Campbell's Jr. High, Daytona, 3; Bunnell High School, Bunnell, 1; New Smyrna Beach High School, 1; and Mainland High School, Daytona, 1.

Senate To Probe Gurney?

MIAMI (AP) — The Senate Select Committee on Standards and Conduct has begun gathering newspaper accounts of charges that Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., sanctioned the collection of secret campaign contributions, the Miami Herald said.

In its Tuesday edition, the Herald said sources indicated that the compilation of material was a signal that the committee, formed in 1964 to investigate charges of misconduct on the part of U.S. Senators, would look into the allegations.

Point To Ponder

SCIENTISTS say most of the basic research for Nixon's Project Independence is done. The challenge will be finding solutions for environmental and economic problems.

Problems Of Impeaching The President

Watergate is developing such momentum that each day brings some new and startling development. Editorial comments are valid only for the newspaper edition in which they appear — if they hold up that long.

Even in a story that already has so many convolutions that historians will be years in unraveling it, is a stunning revelation that two of the most crucial Watergate tapes simply don't exist and never did.

One, a conversation between President Nixon and former attorney general John Mitchell three days after the capture of the Watergate burglars, was not taped, the White House says, because it was on a telephone extension not hooked up with the recorder in the Oval Office.

The other, which might have substantiated or repudiated ex-White House counsel John Dean's most damning allegation against the President, went unrecorded because of a malfunction in the machine.

Bizarre is the only word for all this. The nation went to the brink of presidential impeachment, and still hangs there, because of Mr. Nixon's refusal to release the tapes to Watergate Judge John J. Sirica. Then, under intense public and congressional pressure, he relented.

Now, we are told, two of the tapes that might have gone far toward establishing the President's innocence or complicity in the Watergate coverup just aren't available in this world.

It is useless to speculate on whether the White House is telling the truth. There are some who discounted the importance of the tapes from the beginning. There are other documents, they say — letters, notes of meetings, memoranda — in the possession of the executive branch that are far more crucial to the investigation.

It was his insistence on obtaining this material, so the rumors have it, that really led to the bouncing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. And it is this kind of "privileged" material, the President himself has said, which will not be made available to Cox' successor.

A Hard Scramble Bush Pleading For Party Funds

George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has sent out a most interesting letter appealing for funds for the Republican party.

Bush uses the backlash from the Watergate scandal as a basis for the money request. "Watergate has drastically cut our flow of funds during the last few weeks. The Republican National Committee has had to significantly reduce its personnel and the effectiveness of some of its programs. More will have to be reduced or eliminated unless additional funds are received," Bush says.

He doesn't mention, of course, that the Republican Party still has far more paid staff and is in a much better financial condition than the Democratic Party. Instead, he implies that Democrats are trying to destroy the two-party system. He says they "are trying to bury the entire Republican Party."

We see no evidence that the Democrats are trying to "bury the entire Republican Party" any more than they ever have, nor any more than the Republicans seek to bury the Democratic Party. The essence of the political party system is that each party tries to win as many offices as it can and thereby keep those offices away from the opposition.

However, it appears to us that the Democrats have not concentrated at all on trying to bury the Republican party with the Watergate avalanche. While the GOP obviously must bear some blame for Watergate, because it occurred in the administration of a Republican President and was carried out by Republicans, few Democrats would contend every GOP

On The Homefront What It Takes To Blow Her Cool

Keeping my cool is a talent I've never mastered. People who stride placidly through life, winning every catastrophe with equanimity, irritate my envy. Just thinking how calm and collected they can remain, with the world collapsing around them, makes me break out in hot flashes and undiagnosable rashes.

Lately, my children tend to be the calm type. When my daughter casually announced she thought she'd broken her arm and perhaps we'd better go have it X-rayed, I was a real pillar of strength, clutching her good arm to keep from fainting while moaning, "My poor baby."

My kids have given up expecting me to cope with the dead bird, the snake severed by the lawn mower, or the big bug on the bedroom ceiling. My husband, who wouldn't

IRS Favors Nixon Friends

WASHINGTON -- The White House not only stirred up tax trouble for President Nixon's declared "enemies" but also for the Internal Revenue Service, in effect, to go easy on such presidential favorites as the Rev. Billy Graham and actor John Wayne.

This is the import of the secret, sworn testimony of John Caulfield, a former aide who intervened for the White House on tax cases. He told the Senate Watergate investigators behind closed doors that the President's former counsel, John Dean, had asked him to arrange for the audit of some individuals and to give gentle treatment to others.

Footnote: On at least one occasion, the White House used the IRS to check on someone offering the President a gift. Dean asked Caulfield, according to the testimony, "to determine whether an individual on the West Coast who wanted to give a wine cellar to the Western White House had any tax problems."

A stern-faced agent named Richard Stokes moved in on a novelty shop in Louisville, Ky., and alarmed its workers by confiscating huge one-by-two-foot three-dollar bills carrying Nixon's picture.

Protecting the President: The Secret Service, in its zeal to protect President Nixon, has been seizing giant-sized three-dollar bills that poke a little gentle fun at him.

The agent's incredible justification, as attested by a copy of the receipt, was that they were counterfeit "foreign" currency.

The poster-sized Nixon bills, even in this day of the inflated dollar, have no resemblance to real cash. They are printed on one side only and signed by "Hava Flower, Treasurer of the Secretaries." Their maker, Gemini Rising, Inc., is clearly identified.

Yet the humorless Secret Service agents charged that the Louisville shop had violated federal laws carrying a $5,000 fine and five years in jail.

After we began investigating the seizures of the Nixon bills, the Louisville U.S. attorney's office and the Secret Service began pointing fingers at each other. Finally, the Secret Service in Washington admitted their case had no more value than the phony three-dollar bills.

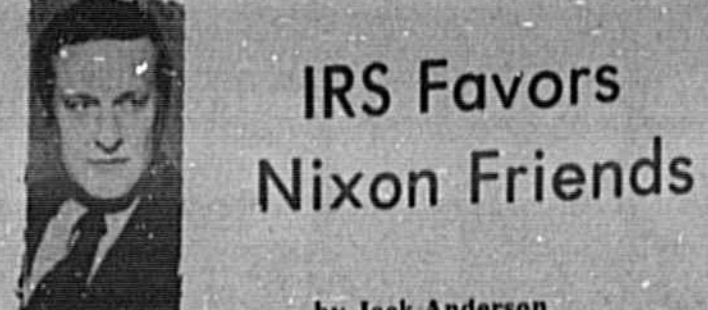

"We do not regard them as a violation," conceded a spokesman. He denied the confiscations were carried out to harass those who make fun of the President.

Men in the Kremlin will keep their agreements in the future. The objective is to exploit those areas which are of so much advantage to the Soviets (and to ourselves) that the Kremlin will have no incentive to default.

That is, if we are to live in a world of Soviet terror and Moscow-induced uncertainty, then we must learn this now and first hand. And we can only know this by negotiating with the Russians, learning how far they will move toward agreement and discovering how far they go in breaking their word.

Kissinger has been highly critical of John Foster Dulles' performance as Secretary of State — not because Dulles was suspicious of the men in the Kremlin, but because Dulles, having a correct interpretation of Communist methods and motives, let the Russians outmaneuver him.

By refusing to negotiate, Kissinger believes, Dulles allowed the Russians to make all the peace proposals, which we rejected. These rejections made many of the Russians wanted peace while we wanted only military containment.

Men in the Kremlin will keep their agreements in the future. The objective is to exploit those areas which are of so much advantage to the Soviets (and to ourselves) that the Kremlin will have no incentive to default.

That is, if we are to live in a world of Soviet terror and Moscow-induced uncertainty, then we must learn this now and first hand. And we can only know this by negotiating with the Russians, learning how far they will move toward agreement and discovering how far they go in breaking their word.

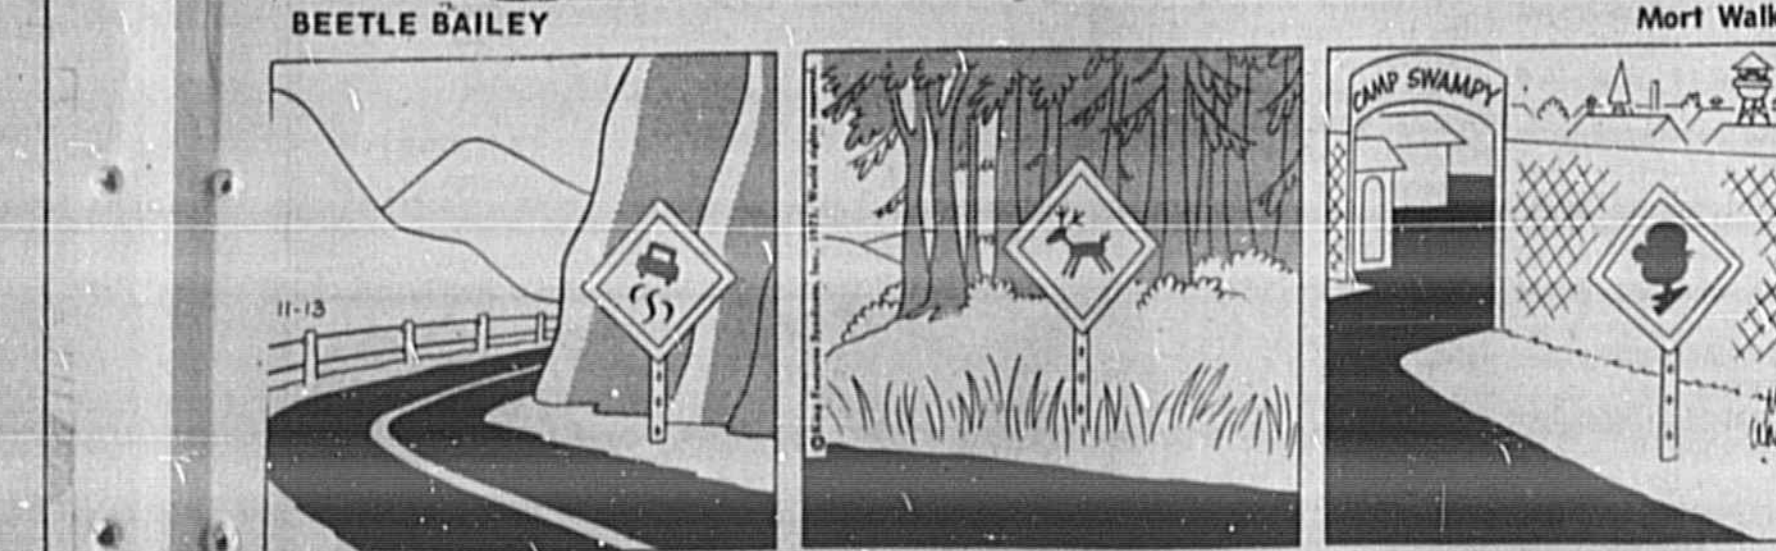

Kissinger has been highly critical of John Foster Dulles' performance as Secretary of State — not because Dulles was suspicious of the men in the Kremlin, but because Dulles, having a correct interpretation of Communist methods and motives, let the Russians outmaneuver him.

By refusing to negotiate, Kissinger believes, Dulles allowed the Russians to make all the peace proposals, which we rejected. These rejections made many of the Russians wanted peace while we wanted only military containment.

Hostess' invitation impossible to swallow

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have socialized with the same group of married couples for about 30 years. Recently one of the women called to invite my daughter, son in law, and me to a supper at her home. She made it a point NOT to mention my husband, so I mentioned him. She said, "Well, maybe Louis had better not come because a few of the women have told me that it spoils their appetites to watch him eat." (My husband has Parkinson's disease and he shakes a lot, but I always help him when he eats.)

I told this woman that since she is the hostess she can invite anyone she wants to her home, and then I asked her which women she had referred to.

Of course she wouldn't tell me, so I stayed home, and so did my daughter and son in law.

I have decided to wash my hands of that whole group. Do you think I am wrong? MRS. L. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: I'd have washed my hands of the hostess, but until I learned who (if any others) shared her views, I wouldn't have written off the entire group.

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law and I have never really gotten along. There have been bitter feelings between us for as long as I can remember. We are now at the point where we don't see each other at all. My husband goes along with this arrangement because he also has been hurt by her.

My problem—or our problem: How do I explain to my children that they never see their grandmother because three adults can't sit down and work out their problems, and no one wants to make the first move?

DEAR PARTLY: It would be far easier for YOU to make the first move than to try to explain it to your children. Your signature as well as your obvious desire to solve the problem shows you to be an intelligent and reasonable woman. Life is short. Make it sweet.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please print an open letter to some friends of ours? I'm sure it could apply to many of your readers:

DEAR BOB AND RUTH: [Not your real names.] I write this out of concern for your health and my own. You impressed us as being fun-loving, intelligent people who would not intentionally hurt anybody. But you were both apparently unaware that your smoke was extremely irritating to me. I am allergic to tobacco smoke. This morning I have a raw throat and irritated sinuses, which will take several days to clear up.

If you had asked politely, "Does anybody mind if we smoke?" I would have said, "Yes, I'm sorry, but I'm allergic to tobacco smoke."

But you gave me no such opportunity. So I had only three choices: To leave, to stay and suffer (which I did), or to make an issue of it by pointing out your thoughtlessness in the presence of others.

I did not want to embarrass you—or the Smiths, since it was their party, so I suffered silently and hoped you would eventually notice that I was trying desperately to wave away the smoke and escape its poisonous effects.

Perhaps the next time you are with non-smokers—whether they call attention to their discomfort or not—you will be more considerate.

Please believe me when I say that my husband and I found you a delightful couple with whom we would be happy to share a smokeless evening. K. J. G.

DEAR K. J. G.: If those are your real initials, you've sent up some effective smoke signals.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day not to allow yourself the luxury of feeling you have been imposed upon or that persons are taking advantage of your good nature, you aren't likely to be so fine for work requiring application to details.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be sure you don't add fuel to emotional fires apt to be burning at home today or the results could be regretted. Relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Much care in motion should be exercised today or there could be an accident. Don't argue with fellow workers. Use reasonable methods.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Use care or you could get into some financial mistake that could bring you much trouble in the near future. Cut down on expenses.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You are apt to be overly sensitive today and think others are against you. Give a helping hand to one who may be indispensed.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You are to win away from duties that are yours and thus could bring you much trouble later on. Avoid one who has a chip on his shoulder.

Sports Spotlight

By Dan Gilmarin
If you have been keeping up with college football lately you are certainly well aware that almost all the bowl games have been set.

Where Will It All End?
Right now our list is at 12 "major" bowl games—24 college teams. There are many minor or small college post season bowls to add to that.

Playoff For Number One
The NCAA has a marvelous basketball system—32 or so teams start out—and anyone can win. I know how good UCLA has been—best teams like Villanova, Florida State, Memphis State to mention a few have made it to the finals and had the crack at the best around.

Breaks Competing Hurt
The way the system works now all the bowls try and get the better teams to sign up for their game. The wish that your bowl committee will select the teams that finish the year the best—you can't tell when you pick them however, 'cause the season isn't over.

Today is November 13. We have known who was going to play who in the bowls for at least a week. The "Big Date" for announcing the matchups is supposedly November 17. My copy of the college football schedule has everyone through with the regular season at December 1. None of the bowls is scheduled for at least two weeks after that. Then why in the heck are they picked so early?

Oviedo Hosts Powerful Cudas In Season Ending Matchup

By LEE GEIGER Herald Correspondent
If the Oviedo schedule makers tried to save the best for last, they did a real fine job, for the top spot in offense, Merritt Island, who only gained 7 points in their defeat at the hands of Fort Pierce Central, held second place over 50 points behind the "point-a-minute" Cudas.

Chief's 'Old Men' Crunch Bears, 19-7

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The so-called "tired old men" of the Kansas City Chiefs aren't so tired and old after all. The Chiefs, with their entire offensive line intact for the first time this national football season, ground out 327 yards Monday night and their fired-up defense limited Chicago to 16 yards in a 19-7 victory over the Bears.

PINEBURST, N.C. (AP)—There is every indication that this may be the first and last World Open Golf Tournament. There are three principal reasons: The absence of some of the game's top gate attractions—Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller.

Ohio State Buckeyes Still Lead The Pack In AP College Grid Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LSU, which didn't play over the weekend, maintained seventh place with 572 points while UCLA, which beat Oregon 27-7, and Southern Cal, a 27-26 victory over Stanford, traded positions last week. Nebraska, a 31-7 victory over Iowa State, assumed 10th place after being 11th last week.
