Arrested Store Clerks Fight 'Undercover Kids' Charges

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood police said today that they plan to continue to use "undercover kids" to nab persons who sell alcoholic beverages to minors. But at least three of the four convenience-store clerks they arrested Friday said they have hired lawyers to fight the misdemeanor charge. And a lawyer for one called the police operation "ludicrous."

According to Longwood Police Detective C.H. Parr, four teen-age boys, two 16 years old and the others 14 and 17, were given marked money and sent into the convenience stores to attempt to buy beer. The boys reportedly had their parents' permission to participate in the operation.

Arrests were made, Parr said, when the boys were not asked to show identification to make a beer purchase.

Orlando lawyer Robert Buonauro, who represents one of the clerks, said he hasn't studied the incident thoroughly yet, but believes the police action was ridiculous.

"I'm not a resident of Longwood," he said, "but I would think the Longwood police have a lot more important things to do than bust convenience-store clerks who get paid the minimum wage.

"These people don't make a commission on sales, and I don't think any of them were intent on violating any laws," he added.

Buonauro represents 29-year-old Ilan Hayat, 800 Van Ness Circle, Longwood.

Hayat quit his job, Buonauro said, "because he doesn't want to be put in a position like that ever again."

Buonauro said the arrest shocked his client so much that it made him a "nervous wreck."

Born and raised in Israel, Hayat became an American citizen only two years ago, he said. "He was so shocked by the incident it made him sick," he added. "And he has never broken any laws in his life."

But last Friday Hayat found himself fingerprinted, photographed and charged by Longwood police, then fingerprinted and photographed again when booked into the Seminole County Jail along with the three other clerks. They were released the same night on $100 bond each.

Fifty-one-year-old Miriam A. Emory, 2681 W. Fifth St., Sanford, had never been in trouble with the law before either, she said. But she too was arrested Friday after selling beer to a minor and fingerprinted and photographed twice.

The clerks were also searched for weapons, Parr said.

"The police officer who arrested me said it was like arresting her own mother," Mrs. Emory said.

Arrested in addition to Hayat and Mrs. Emory were Marie White, 25, and Steven Benz, 26, both of Orlando.

The arrests were made at the Lil' Champ Food Store on County Road 427, Cumberland Farms on State Road 434, Little Dixie on County Road 427 and Handy Way on Orange Avenue.

Parr said the second-degree misdemeanor charge carries up to a $100 fine, 30 days in jail or both. He said the Police Department intends to continue such operations "as long as complaints continue."

The complaints have come from parents and other residents who object to the ease with which beer can be purchased by persons under 19, Parr said.

Part of the concern stems from statistics that show juveniles make up a large proportion of the city's drunk drivers, he added. Convenience stores were targeted, he said, because they seem to be the easiest places for the kids to buy beer.

Mrs. Emory said she wouldn't have sold the beer to the boys if they had looked under age. In fact, she said, she caught the youngest of the police "undercover agents" and refused to sell him beer.

But she was arrested when she failed to require identification from the older boys.

"It was an expensive mistake," she said. "But I'm not going to get caught again. From now on I'm asking identification if they've got gray hair, are bald or look 90 years old."

Buonauro said he is sure there was no criminal intent involved on the part of the clerks.

Mrs. Emory expressed the same view.

"I have four kids of my own," she said. "I certainly wouldn't have sold them beer if I thought they were under age."

Fire Chief Quits Post

In the wake of the resignation of three Casselberry firefighters to join other area fire agencies, Fire Chief Kenneth Gaines submitted his resignation to Mayor Owen Sheppard today.

Sheppard said Gaines handed in his resignation effective Oct. 16.

"He feels he can do better in Orange County," Sheppard said. "He gave me his resignation and he said his last day will be Oct. 16."

Last week three Casselberry firefighters announced their intentions to leave the department.

Firefighters Dave Hollenbach and Bill Adkins said they plan to join the Orange County Fire Department, pending notification of acceptance. Firefighter Carey Hobbs said earlier he is unsure whether he will accept a position with Orange County or the Orlando Aviation Authority at Orlando International Airport.

Although Gaines had said previously that he had no intention of going to Orange County, it was learned today, through the Orange County fire administrator's office, that he had applied to the department and passed the required physical-agility test for employment several days ago.

"I couldn't afford to spill the beans or count my chickens before they hatched—before I took the tests or was accepted by Orange County," Gaines said. He added that a premature announcement of his intentions could have jeopardized his position in Casselberry.

Sheppard said he will appoint, temporarily, someone from "within the ranks—a lieutenant" to take over until a new chief can be hired.

False Calls Won't Be Tolerated

Altamonte Warns On Fire Alarms

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

The grace period is up for Altamonte Springs businessmen and residents whose mechanical alarm systems continually send out false alarms to city police and fire departments.

In July, the City Commission passed an ordinance allowing police and fire personnel to issue a written warning to businesses and residents after a third false-alarm call is received and to fine the individuals $250 and $50 respectively for future false calls within a six-month period.

A trust fund sponsored by the Central Baptist Church Crisis Center has been set up in the name of two-year-old Crystal Michelle Burkes, a Sanford girl who suffers from acute leukemia.

As reported last week Crystal's

The ordinance further allows fire and police personnel to order the removal of an alarm if continuous false alarms are received from that business or residences according to City Manager Jeff Etchberger.

"We've given area residents and business people a chance to get their alarms in order before we begin enforcing the ordinance," Police Chief Barry Cook said. "We are expecting the necessary forms for written warnings and fines to be in soon and then, if necessary, we will begin enforcement.

We are trying, however, to make sure everyone is aware of the ordinance by sending out a letter addressing the issue."

"We've got to discourage these people from using alarms that are not fully maintained from crying wolf," Cook said. We want to re-establish the credibility of the alarm and also cut down the risk of someone getting hurt when we have to respond to a call that turns out to be false."

Cook said that if a person decides he can keep on paying the $250 fine for false alarms and refuses to maintain the alarm, he will order the alarm removed from the home or business.

"Every time we send a car to answer an alarm, we respond quickly," he said. "I don't want to risk the lives of my officers and the residents of the city on false alarms."

Fire Chief Thomas Siegfried said that while the fire code requires buildings to have alarm systems, his department still could enforce the ordinance to some degree by requiring the alarm hook-up to be removed from the central fire station and routed to another alarm agency.

Chemical Firm Hit By EPA Crackdown

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

City Chemicals Co. Inc. of Orlando, ordered by the Seminole-Brevard Circuit Court at Sanford to clean up and remove waste chemicals stored at a Sanford site, has been cited by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) with violating federal law in its operations.

Charles R. Jeter, EPA regional manager, has ordered the Orlando-based firm to:

— Stop accepting hazardous waste unless it first obtains chemical analyses of samples of the waste.

— Obtain "promptly" a detailed chemical and physical analysis of all hazardous waste stored at a two-acre site off Airport Boulevard and Jewett Lane. The sampling and analysis is to be performed by a third party, whose selection must be approved by the EPA and will be subject to EPA oversight to assure the quality of its work.

— Not move, treat or otherwise dispose of any hazardous waste until it has obtained an analysis of a representative sample of that waste.

— Transfer waste from deteriorated containers to ones in good condition.

— Clean up any pollution and soil contamination at and near the storage site.

— Submit to the EPA a plan for evaluating the nature and extent of any groundwater contamination that may have occurred due to City Chemicals' violation of federal law. The plan is to be based on recommendations from a qualified hydrogeologist.

Jeter, in the letter to City Chemicals, said the company may be charged civil penalties of $1,500 for violating federal law. In addition, a civil penalty of $25,000 per day for each day corrective action is not taken may also be levied, he said.

In the letter, Jeter also charged City Chemicals violated federal law by:

— Failing to obtain chemical analyses of hazardous waste before accepting it.

— Failing to have a waste analysis plan available for federal inspection.

— Failing to separate and protect ignitable and reactive wastes from sources of ignition and reaction.

— Failing to transfer hazardous waste from corroding, deteriorating and leaking drums to good ones.

Jeter said City Chemicals has the right to request a formal hearing to contest the appropriateness of the $1,500 fine.

Failure to deny any of the items in the complaint, he said, will "constitute an admission" of violation of federal law.

City officials early last November discovered the storage site after receiving telephone complaints from city residents.

Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler in September ordered the company to build a testing platform at the site to be used for transferring waste chemicals from deteriorated or corroded drums to others. Chemical analysis of each drum also was to be done, according to the court order. After the analysis, the drums were to be properly labeled to identify the contents of each drum.

The waste chemicals ultimately are to be removed from the site to a federal disposal facility. Costs are to be borne by the state's Hazardous Waste Management Trust Fund and to be reimbursed to the state by City Chemicals.

Superior Sanitation Denied Rate Increase

A $1 monthly rate increase for garbage and trash collection, requested by the Superior Sanitation Co., was denied unanimously by the Lake Mary City Council Thursday night. And Mayor Walter Sorenson advised city residents who have received quarterly bills from the firm, which include a hike in rates from $7 monthly to $8, to refuse payment of the increase.

The council a week ago demanded that a representative of the Longwood-based firm appear before it to explain why it had changed its rates to city customers when permission from the council had not been sought first.

Joseph Ardolina, president of the firm, said new owners, who recently purchased the company believed that since Superior is operating in Lake Mary under a non-exclusive franchise, prior permission on rates is not necessary.

Attempting to justify the increase, Ardolina said the proposed $1 monthly increase represented a 15 percent hike in rates, while the firm is paying 50 percent more to dump garbage and trash at the Seminole County sanitary landfill. The county, as of Oct. 1, raised its dumping $9.75 per ton.

Councilman Vic Olvera dismissed Ardolina's arguments, saying any businessman should check out legal requirements before purchasing a company. And he said he doubted the increase in dump fees really related to a 15 percent increase in rates.

Durrenberger Quits 2 Lake Mary Boards

The question of whether Bill Durrenberger should serve on Lake Mary's advisory Planning and Zoning Commission and the city's decision-making Board of Adjustment at the same time has been solved.

Durrenberger, a member of the Board of Adjustment for seven years and the Planning and Zoning commission for two years, resigned from both boards Thursday night.

But Councilman Ray Fox, who led the move to require Durrenberger to choose which board he wished to continue serving on, may have a new problem. Durrenberger besides announcing his resignations, also announced he is a candidate for the council post currently held by Fox in the Dec. 8 municipal election.

Durrenberger, in a letter Mayor Walter Sorenson, and the city council, said: "My successful election to the council post could require my having to confirm decisions or review actions which I have already reviewed and voted on. In fairness to applicants and citizens of Lake Mary alike, I feel I should remove myself from the boards to avoid this conflict."

Fox, during the two years he has served on the council, has complained several occasions that one man should not serve on both boards. He has asserted that a person serving on an advisory board and a decision-making board at the same time is forced to "serve two masters." In addition, in recent weeks Fox has complained that Durrenberger is "abrasive" and at times impolite to developers and others who must appear before the boards.

Durrenberger, however, has been supported by other members of both boards and been praised by them for the construction expertise he brings to both offices.

On each occasion that Fox complained about Durrenberger, Durrenberger has not been present at the meetings. When Durrenberger has appeared before the council on the issue, Fox has been absent, as he was Thursday night.

Fox could not be reached for comment today on Durrenberger's resignation or Durrenberger's candidacy.

The candidate qualification period for the Dec. 8 election opens Monday at City Hall.

Fox has not said publicly whether he will seek reelection. However, in conversations with city employees he has said he will not be running.

NATION IN BRIEF

Time Is Running Out On Saudi AWACS Deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has 29 days to convince a hostile Congress that his proposed Saudi arms deal is in the best interests of the United States and U.S. allies and is no threat to Israel. After Reagan formally sent the proposed $8.5 billion package to Capitol Hill Thursday, the president told a news conference he believes chances are "good" the deal will win congressional acceptance, Congress has until Oct. 31 to act on the proposed sale. Reagan says he will not permit Saudi Arabia to become "an Iran," and has advised Israel not to interfere with his proposed sale of sophisticated AWACS radar planes to the oil-rich kingdom.

Hoods Plotted Takeover

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — City officials say an army of criminals plotted to take over Indianapolis in a bloody siege that would have reportedly included massacring police during roll call and bombing the municipal government building. Marion County Prosecutor Steve Goldsmith, who confirmed he was marked for assassination by the group, said Thursday that officials first learned of the bizarre plot from information received after the murder last December of an Indianapolis police detective.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

ERA Supporters Mount Last-Gasp Lobbying Efforts

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A ninth-inning campaign has opened to put public pressure on Florida legislators who have refused for nearly a decade to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. The leaders say they hope voter pressure will also give Gov. Bob Graham the "courage" to take the stump for the amendment guaranteeing sexual equality. Graham said recently while he will continue to push the amendment, he thinks his chances are less even than last year when ERA forces decided not to even bring it up because the cause was hopeless.

Bank War Imminent?

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida bankers and powerful out-of-state bank holding companies may be about to battle it out in the Legislature again. U.S. District Judge William Stafford recently issued a temporary injunction keeping Comptroller Gerald Lewis from enforcing a state law prohibiting out-of-state corporations from chartering industrial savings banks in Florida.

Gunman Robs Shop & Go

An armed man escaped with an undetermined amount of cash in a paper bag Thursday after robbing the Shop & Go food store, 2631 Sanford Ave., Sanford, at approximately 10:30 p.m. Judy Shelton, the clerk on duty at the time, told police the man walked up to the counter and stated: "You want to give me all of your money."

He then pulled his shirt back exposing a gun which was tucked into his pants, she reported.

The money was placed in a paper bag and the robber fled on foot down Wylie Ave., toward the Seminole County Sheriff's Department in Building 310 at the Sanford Airport. Police said he was also carrying a gas can.

The man was described as about 5-foot, four-inches tall, and about 140 pounds. Witnesses said he was wearing blue jeans and a blue-gray flowered shirt.

TEENAGER FACES 4 YEARS

A 16-year-old Sanford youth could go to jail for up to six years for the July 20 theft of a bicycle.

Terrence K. Hill, 509 E. Fourth St., pleaded guilty in Circuit Court in Sanford Monday to a charge of grand theft and to consent to a charge of improper exhibition of a dangerous weapon.

Hill was accused of stealing a bike valued at $160 from Billy Drugy, 13, and then threatening Drugy's stepfather, Lewis Johnson, with a knife.

Senencing for Hill was deferred pending completion of an investigation into his background.

Lake Mary Approves Cardinal Oaks Phase 2

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Council has given its approval to site plans for the 112-acre, $9 million Cardinal Oaks Phase 2, to be built south of Main Road in the city.

Construction will begin on the development to contain 89 homes by Oct. 15, developer Larry Dale said.

Meanwhile, the council Thursday night, after hearing objections from adjacent property owners, turned down a request for a change in zoning on a 20-acre parcel north of Lake Bingham and across from Seminole Community College.

The change, requested by Hans Schweizer, was from agricultural and lakefront zoning to planned unit development. Tentative plans called for construction of 32 single-family homes at the site.

However, Charles Lytle, who owns nearby property, said the construction would adversely affect Lake Bingham because of storm water runoff and would create more traffic in the already clogged community college area. He also said pollutants from planned septic tanks could run off into the lake.

Schweizer said that under planned unit development zoning the council would have strict control of the development.

Councilman Richard Fess moved to approve the rezoning, but it died for lack of a second. Only three council members — Fess, Vic Olvera and Ken King — were present for the meeting.

In another zoning action, the council unanimously approved an ordinance rezoning the 43.9 acre Countryside II, adjacent to Country Club Road from agriculture to R-1AAA.

A restriction in the ordinance requires that homesites be at least one-half acre in size rather than the usual one-third acre permitted under the zoning classification.

Inmate Going On Payroll?

An inmate at the Seminole County Jail, who has been working for the city of Lake Mary on a court-approved work-release program, may become a permanent employee of the city. City Manager Phil Kulbes said he discussed with the prisoner, Vallie Brock, this week the possibility of the city's employing him as a mechanic on the city's heavy equipment and as a heavy-equipment operator.

Brock, scheduled to be released from jail in the next few weeks, said he needs to earn at least $5 per hour to support his family, Kulbes said.

The City Council on Thursday night told

Kulbes to check Brock's references and determine the cost of purchasing adequate tools for a mechanic.

A decision is to be made at the Oct. 15 council meeting on Kulbes' recommendation.

Sheriff John Polk's department began the work-release program last summer with the approval of the 18th Judicial Circuit Court in Sanford.

Lake Mary is one of several communities in the county that have been using the prisoner-trustees in the work-release program. — DONNA ESTES

Health Official Once Fired After Lunch With Black

By BARBARA FRYE
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — On August 22, 1956, Dr. Deborah Coggins had lunch in a backroom of a Madison, Fla., restaurant with a black midwife consultant for the State Board of Health.
 One month later, in separate actions by the Jefferson, Madison and Taylor County commissions, Dr. Coggins was fired from her $675 a month job as the first woman public health officer of the tri-county area.
 The Madison County Commission made its decision to fire her while seated in a car, parked near the Four Freedoms Monument, a memorial to the country's first hero of World War II, hometown boy Colin Kelly.
 The reason, in the words of then Jefferson County Commission Chairman Judge B. Shuman: "you took darkies in there and had lunch with them."
 "Health knows no color boundaries," replied Dr. Coggins, "in medical groups, this is not the shocking thing it would appear to you."
 Replied Shuman, "We work with them but we don't sit down and eat with them."
 Looking back on the events a quarter of a century later, Mrs. Coggins, 57, recalled her surprise at being asked to resign over the incident.
 "I was stunned that such a thing could happen in this country," she said. "I grew up in Tampa and I realized it was a little against social custom, but I felt a doctor had some professional immunity to carry on his work. I have committed no crime."

 "I thought I was being discreet, going in the back door and eating in a private back room," she added in a telephone interview from her home in Northport, Ala., a suburb of Tuscaloosa.
 She even got permission, she said, from three restaurant employees. Later she learned that a waitress reported the luncheon to a county commissioner.
 Dr. Coggins refused an invitation to resign quietly, making all three counties take official action to fire her. She called the county officials "cowards" and "fools".
 "I was mad because I thought my rights were being infringed on, my right of association," she said, explaining she arranged the lunch for a business conference which could not otherwise be fitted into their schedules.
 Although Shuman referred to "darkies," Dr. Coggins said her sole luncheon companion was midwife Ethel Kirkland, who was employed by the state rather than on a county level. Ms. Kirkland kept her job.
 Not even then Gov. LeRoy Collins could save Dr. Coggins' job though he called her dismissal "an evil act that cannot be squared with right and justice and conscience and I'm sick about it."
 At a southern Presbyterian men's convention several months later, Collins likened the incident to that of the hand-washing of Pontius Pilate. Reminding the 8,000 churchmen how Pilate faced up to the cry of the Judea mob for the crucifixion of Jesus by calling for a bowl of water and saying, "I wash my hands of the whole thing...See to it yourself."

 "Where in that situation (Coggins)," asked Collins, a leading Episcopal layman, "were our churchmen? They said, see to it yourself. And she was fired, to the everlasting shame of our state?"
 Dr. Coggins recalled where some Presbyterians were.
 "The Presbyterian church in Madison is where the petition to get me fired first was started," she said.
 Two people came to her defense.
 One, Flo Way of Monticello, was asked to resign her teaching job for speaking up for Dr. Coggins but she refused and nothing further was done.
 "The board asked me to keep quiet about being asked to resign and I told them, 'I don't blame you for wanting to keep it quiet.'"
 The other was tri-county health educator Robert H. Browning of Madison.
 "What Dr. Coggins did had no more to do with integration than drinking a cup of Russian tea has to do with spreading communism," he said. The county commissions demanded his dismissal. The Board of Health, under which he worked, compromised by transferring him 450 miles away to Palm Beach County.
 Dr. Coggins husband, Wilmer, also a physician and a native of Madison, defended his wife, saying her action "was a personal thing in her own free time."

 They stayed on in Madison for a while, practicing medicine privately.
 "Many of the people who had helped get me fired brought their children to me as patients," she recalled. "Our friends would say, 'we love Deborah, but she did a terrible thing.'"
 "I was uncomfortable," she said. "I didn't know how much support I had. I wasn't sure they (enemies) wouldn't burn a cross or harm our children. I would have become paranoid if I had stayed there."
 The Presbyterian minister's wife, her best friend, became psychiatrist and was hospitalized for six months. "She was a casualty more than me," Dr. Coggins said.
 In the end she decided the incident was good for her, professionally speaking.
 She moved to Gainesville, completed a residency in psychiatry and practiced there privately. Her husband joined the faculty of the University of Florida medical school.
 "It was a great growth experience for me, motivating me to get back to my original goals," she said.
 "My children," she said, "were better off growing up in Gainesville than Madison. The outlook is broader. They got a better education."

A Season Of Repentance

This year the Jewish holidays of Rosh Hashana (New Year) and Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) come at a time when Israel and the United States are closely examining their long, friendly relationship.

Israeli leaders and many prominent American Jews would like the Reagan administration to reconsider its plan to sell a group of Airborne Warning and Control System planes — known as AWACS — to Saudi Arabia.

This all seems appropriate according to the Jewish calendar, since Rosh Hashana (which this year began on the evening of Sept. 28) is the first of 10 days of penitence, the last of which is Yom Kippur (beginning Wednesday evening, Oct. 7).

According to "The Pictorial History of the Jewish People," this season "was designed to soften the erring heart of man with contrition for his misdeeds, thus leading him to wholehearted repentance by the time Yom Kippur arrives."

Realistically speaking, it is most unlikely that, in the eyes of Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other Israeli leaders, President Reagan will repent or pull back from his stated aim of selling AWACS to Saudi Arabia.

The administration appears to be committed to the sale. One reason, often ignored but not to be dismissed lightly, is that Saudi Arabia will pay about $1 billion for each of the five super-sophisticated surveillance aircraft. The income will help American industry as well as Reagan's financial recovery plan.

But the chief reason is the heat now on Washington to continue to display an evenhanded policy in the Middle East. Oil is an important factor and so is the stability of the region, as some Reagan advisers see it.

Apparently Reagan and his aides attempted to calm Begin's AWACS-phobia by noting that if the Saudis don't get their military equipment from the United States — which may be able to control its use to a certain degree — they may turn to other countries that won't much care how it is used.

This argument doesn't wash with the Israelis, who remember how many of their soldiers have been killed by American arms and artillery that were sold to various Arab nations and then used against Israel. In the 1967 Six Day War, Jordan's army was heavily supplied with American-made equipment.

Other U.S. politicians have taken a different approach. According to Begin, some "respected and important Americans" told him: "What are you worried about? You have a marvelous air force. If they (the AWACS) are stationed near the Israeli border instead of the eastern part of Saudi Arabia, you simply shoot them down."

But, Begin says that these same Americans "tell us that for many years to come there will be Americans and Saudis in those planes after the AWACS are sold to Saudi Arabia. What strange advice we get from Washington. We are supposed to shoot down the planes and kill not only the Saudis, who are our enemies, but also the Americans, who are our friends. Very strange advice indeed. We cannot accept it."

Israel is holding firm in its determination to prevent the sale of the AWACS. The Reagan administration is holding firm in its determination to make the sale.

At the same time there is new talk about American strategic ties with Israel.

One gets the feeling that both Reagan and Begin know exactly what they are doing, playing out a drama that will have a satisfactory conclusion for both Israel and the United States.

DON GRAFF Business Gets The Business

Remember participatory democracy? It was pretty big and promising to be bigger back there in the early '70s with the pressuring of both major parties to varying degrees to open up their proceedings in general and the presidential nominating process in particular. Some changes were made and have stuck, although a number could become unstuck again by the time the major parties complete their studies of the lessons from the 1980 campaign. But much of the steam has gone out of the drive for broader decision-making participation in politics.

It is if anything stronger than ever, however, in another arena. Corporate operations. Outside interest groups are intensifying efforts to establish a presence in the boardroom, the Conference Board has concluded from a worldwide survey.

The most active are labor unions, cited by 71 percent of the surveyed firms. Other activist groups included business and industry associations, political parties and religious groups demanding "in the name of the larger public good" a say in every major aspect of company operation with the greatest emphasis on hiring policy, plant location, financial and investment policies, expansion and reduction of operations, corporate pay and social welfare practices. None of management's traditional concerns, in short, are any longer regarded as "sacrosanct or proprietary."

The New York-based economic research organization contacted 400 firms for the survey and found that while some continue to react defensively to the offensive by outside interests, many are developing specific strategies for dealing with the situation. These range from arrangements for exchanging views to counter-offensives to win the outsiders' support for the company position.

American firms, the board found, tended to opt for the former approach. Europeans and Japanese, the more likely to make greater efforts to win support, were also more inclined to view conflicts not only in the light of company interests but from the perspectives of the outside groups.

Regular followers of this space already know that the federal government is changing the color in which its checks are printed. They're going to be partly in orange, to facilitate electronic processing.

Now comes word of another change to accommodate the changing times. The Bureau of the Mint wants to abandon printing of the backs of dollar bills from intaglio engraved plates in favor of the simpler and much cheaper offset process.

Intaglio makes counterfeiting much more difficult, but it has been decided that it's OK to make the change on the singles because they aren't worth the effort. Counterfeiters these days don't bother with anything under a twenty.

Inflation, of course.

Feds Should Seek Overcharges Return

WASHINGTON — As the president desperately tightens the federal budget to stem the swelling deficit, he is losing billions of dollars through false economy. The Energy Department's enforcement arm should be strengthened, not cut back, so it can recover the billions of dollars that the oil companies overcharged consumers during the price controls of the 1970s.

Two internal DOE memos reviewed by my associate Tony Capaccio suggest the magnitude of the ripoffs.

One of the memos, dated May 28, was prepared by L.K. Jones, the agency's top expert on the way middlemen manipulated oil prices to bilk the consumer. "Of all the segments of the industry, the crude oil reseller segment was probably the most corrupt," Jones wrote.

The situation "takes on the proportions of a national scandal," Jones told his managers. "If we do not prosecute violators, then the consumers have been ripped off to the tune of $4-18 billion."

Yet prosecution is being hampered by low morale in the enforcement section, caused by widespread fears that there will be serious "reductions in force" — that is, firings. And the DOE brass have done little to dispel these fears, according to investigators for the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

"We have a few good people who no doubt will work until Doomsday," Jones wrote, adding: "We have many, however, who feel they are not being supported at this critical stage of the program."

Commenting on a department work plan that set priorities on cases to be handled before Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year, Jones said the computer information on which the plan was based "significantly understates potential violations and tends to mislead." He estimated that the lowest priority cases "may have potential violations of almost $3 billion."

Substantial work in the area of middleman gouges would be left undone by Sept. 30, Jones warned — "anywhere from 85 to 118 cases." They are "some of the most significant and egregious cases we have uncovered ... (involving) firms that have been indicted, will be indicted or probably would be referred to the Department of Justice if we could complete the audits."

The oil industry's attorneys have also had their eyes on the calendar — and on the possibility of severe cutbacks in enforcement personnel. "Lawyers have told me that their strategy is to outlast us," Jones wrote. "They firmly believe if they can obstruct or thwart audits beyond September, no one will be left to do the audits. What's bad is that they probably right."

Acting DOE Special Counsel Avron Landesman confirmed Jones' gloomy prediction exactly one month later in another memo. "We have already lost about 25 percent of our field staff," he told his superiors. "In addition, we have already lost a good number of attorneys, including some who have worked for years on particular audits and enforcement cases."

One major impediment to completion of some cases, Landesman warned, is the uncertain status of the so-called "V factor" — a complex regulation that covers the calculation of costs that can be assigned to the various products refined from a barrel of crude oil.

As I reported earlier this year, the oil industry has been trying to have the V factor killed. The administration has been reviewing the rule and may well decide to abolish it. If that happens, many of DOE's overcharge cases would be undercut.

In a private letter to Energy Secretary James Edwards, Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., warned that continued stalling on the V factor review "raises serious questions concerning the administration's pledge to continue an effective enforcement action against major oil companies."

Footnote: If the overcharges are ever recovered, which is increasingly unlikely, some of the money probably would be refunded to consumers and some would wind up in the federal treasury.

Seminole County Commissioners are considering lengthening the amount of time a mobile home owner may place a mobile home on a piece of county property. The commissioners will meet soon with the county's board of adjustment to arrive at a mutual decision about mobile home placement.

"We're just trying to cut down the number of applications we receive for mobile home placement. We feel we might be too restrictive in asking mobile home owners to re-apply every two years for a permit to keep their home on a certain parcel," said commissioner Bud Feather.

As a side note, discussion about taxes the county receives from mobile home owners also came up during a recent work session.

County Administrator Roger Neiswender said many of the county's mobile home owners are not paying property taxes that provide for the county's tax base.

"Many mobile homes in the county are assessed at less than $25,000 which is the threshold for the Homestead Exemption. This means the county is receiving no ad valorem taxes from these mobile home owners," Neiswender said.

Mobile homeowners have two options for paying taxes to the county. One is the tag system whereby the owner buys a regular vehicle license tag from the state's Motor Vehicle Division and the other is to pay property taxes. Neiswender said most of the county's mobile home residents opt for the former arrangement.

Neiswender also said that the increasing number of mobile home owners could pose problems in the event an increased number of mobile homes should go up in areas for which the county has not planned services.

"As increasing mortgage rates tend to make it difficult to buy homes, the young couple is opting for a mobile home. To the extent that people go into this kind of housing, it could cause the cost of services to increase in an area that services may not have been planned for," Neiswender said.

According to Don Flippen, building official in 1980, 241 building permits were issued for mobile homes in the county as compared to the 165 permits granted between January and August 1981. Flippen projects that the current rate of application, 249 building permits for mobile homes will be issued by the end of 1981.

Building permits are issued to mobile home owners so the pre-fabricated home owner may attach the mobile home to the ground with tie downs and hook up a sewer system.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen said with the Homestead Exemption, the county tax burden has been transferred from residential to commercial, and she said the county needs more light industry to help take up the slack.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Presidential Persuasion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan says he will use his elevated position as a "bully pulpit" to rally Americans in the fight against crime and to his side on touchy social issues.

He told an international gathering of police chiefs in New Orleans, "We will use the 'bully pulpit' of the presidency to remind the public of the seriousness of this problem and the need to support your efforts to combat it."

Theodore Roosevelt described the presidency as a "bully pulpit" and the way to focus attention on issues of concern. Some presidents have used such a forum more effectively than others, but all have tried.

David Gergen, White House director of communications, also told reporters that Reagan plans "to speak out forcefully" on controversial issues — issues such as abortion and school prayer where the so-called "New Right" feels that he has abandoned them.

Although some of the issues "stir deep emotions and are divisive," Gergen said Reagan is not going to "step away" from them.

"I think he's going to march right down," he said, and added, "The president is going to express himself the way he has in the past."

He cited gun control as one of the emotional issues, and said that Reagan had reiterated his opposition as he had in the campaign.

Mostly, however, Reagan would like to use his "bully pulpit" to spread his ideology and philosophy of how a government should operate and the role of the individual in society — values and possibilities that typified early America.

He has been preaching to the public since he moved into the White House on the evils of big government, especially the federal government. His oft stated dream is to rid Washington of all the reins of control on services to the states.

He also hopes to promote his view that despite intellectual progress, "We must never forget, the jungle is always there waiting to take us over."

WILLIAM STEIF Check Social Security

Social Security's computers have $69 billion — yep, billion — worth of earnings records that can't be credited to anyone.

Some of those earnings might be yours, and that's why you should check periodically to see that your earnings are being posted correctly, says Social Security Commissioner Jack Svahn. He thinks a check once every three years will do it nicely.

But let's start at the beginning.

If you're one of the 115 million persons paying into Social Security through your job or self-employment, you have an individual earnings record at the Social Security Administration's Baltimore headquarters. Year after year, as long as you work, reports of your earnings are added to your record.

Your earnings are posted under your name and Social Security number, even if you change jobs or change your name. That's why it's vital to give the correct number. If you've lost your Social Security card, apply for a duplicate at one of the 1,400 Social Security offices scattered around the nation.

Your earnings record is all-important. When you or someone in your family applies for benefits, your record will be checked to see if you've worked long enough to qualify and to see how much your monthly benefit will be.

That brings us to the $69 billion, the amount of money that Svahn says can't be credited to anyone because:

— Some employers don't report Social Security taxes, though Svahn adds that "the vast majority are honest."

— Some earnings have been accumulated by illegal aliens, who used fake Social Security cards or non-existent numbers.

— Some earnings were accumulated by welfare recipients who didn't want welfare officials to know they were working. They used fake or non-existent numbers, too.

Svahn says there's one other category of uncredited earnings, "protest" items from the system's early days, when some businessmen fought the idea. They would report names and numbers that didn't match.

The problem started in 1937," he says, "and continues into 1981. Reporting is not done properly, or non-existent numbers are used or simple errors are made. It's still a significant problem."

Svahn says SSA "has started a fairly large effort to go through the ($69 billion worth of) items," to try to identify where they can be allocated so that people won't lose some benefits. At the same time, he acknowledges, "there is no point in carrying $2.37 for a non-existent person on our records."

Some errors are plain sloppiness. Some are the result of "intermittent workers" — for example, construction workers — failing to make sure their employers have reported their earnings, presumably because such workers don't think a few weeks of earnings are important to their records.

A woman who marries, changing her name, doesn't have to change her name on SSA's records but should notify the local SSA office of her married name so that it can be cross-referenced in the Baltimore computers.

WORLD IN BRIEF

PLO Says Israel Waging Secret War In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization charged Israeli agents exploded a massive car-bomb in Moslem West Beirut, killing 83 people and wounding 225 in the most devastating attack of a "secret war" inside Lebanon.

The Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners, a shadowy rightist organization behind seven other recent bombings, claimed responsibility for the Thursday explosion in a telephone call to state-run Lebanese Television.

The bomb tore through a narrow street crowded with shoppers and militiamen from nearby PLO offices and was followed within hours by a second killer explosion in the Palestinian stronghold of Nabatiyeh.

Iranians Go To Polls

United Press International

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ordered Iranians to vote today in a presidential election almost certain to install a close associate of the religious leader but opposition guerrillas vowed to disrupt the polling.

Prime Minister Reza Mahdavi Kani suddenly withdrew from the race Thursday, leaving Tehran's religious leader Hojatoleslam Sayed Ali Khamenei the clear favorite in an election where the clergy screened all candidates.

Walesa Threatens To Quit

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — Lech Walesa threatened to quit Solidarity to "write novels, sign autographs and make money" if the union congress did not elect him today over three radical reformers competing for his chairman's job.

The four candidates made their final pitch for support in this morning's voting in a Thursday night debate before nearly 900 delegates at the Polish union's convention.

Although Walesa's rivals were more radical, Moscow continued its attacks on the leadership of Solidarity Thursday with a charge it was blocking attempts to improve the chaotic economy.

Federal Budget Cuts

County Is Feeling The Pinch

By DARLENE JENNINGS
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County has lost nearly 100 employees since the Reagan administration began imposing cut backs on local programs, according to Roger Neiswender, county administrator.

Major cutbacks have occurred in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program, where a total of 87 employees in the Man Power have lost their jobs, 27 of which were administrative workers.

The county's loss of CETA employees has also had a "major impact" on such public projects as parks and grounds maintenance, and drainage projects, Neiswender said. "The CETA employees that worked in this area used to pick up the grounds and keep the ditches clean. And now we have also lost six employees at the Solid Waste Refuse Transfer Station," he said.

However, one of the biggest losses to the county, according to Neiswender, has been the termination of the county's three Support Services clerks.

The clerks were responsible for backing up the telephone operators at the county courthouse and for some mail delivery, and they used to fill in as phone operators at the public works department at Five Points for regular employees on break or sick leave.

The clerks positions are now being manned by secretaries from various county departments including the commissioners' office.

"We are doing the best we can with what we have," said Neiswender, "but we're not doing at the same high level of performance that we had before the cuts went into effect.

As the cutbacks occur at the local level, we will absorb — to the degree what we can — and after that, we have to reduce the county's lower priority services," Neiswender said.

"But first we have to identify which services the taxpayers are willing to pay for," he added.

But, what Neiswender really fears most is the 12 percent reduction in federal revenue sharing that the feds are now considering.

"If the 12 percent cut goes through, we're going to see reductions in public transit subsidy, health department programs, mental health grants, and community development grants," Neiswender predicted.

... Clerks Beware: 'Undercover Kids' On Prowl

She said the boys came in when the store was busy and mingled in with a long string of customers.

"When a clerk is busy he's not 100 percent cognizant of what's going on," Buonauro said. "They're trying to make change and keep people from having to wait. There's just no criminal intent there."

"I don't think the police went about it right," he added. "I don't want drunk kids on the road either, but there are ways of doing things."

"They should have issued a warning to the clerks that they weren't using enough discretion—as opposed to sending children in when the clerk is busy," he remarked.

Parr said it was done to make an example of those arrested.

"Burglary and drugs are my priorities," the detective said, "but when you've got so many parents and citizens calling in to complain about the free availability of beer to juveniles, you've got to do something."

Buonauro said that "something" could have been entrapment. "There's nothing illegal about using undercover kids," he said. "But there are a lot of technical defenses in a case like this."

Seminoles Run Circles Around Rams, 27-12

Lawrence Leads Tribe Explosion

By GEOFFREY GIORDANO
Herald Sports Writer

It was no contest Thursday night as Sanford's Fighting Seminoles ran circles around the Lake Mary Rams, 27-12, to give them their first win of the season.

It was a game for Seminole fans to behold, as their team methodically picked the Rams apart, allowing two touchdowns to be scored by them in the very late fourth period. The offense as well as defense made an excellent showing, and a certain high energy ran through the Tribe as they downed the Rams in spectacular fashion.

Seminole took over at the very beginning, and drove the ball 66 yards in 13 plays on their first drive to a touchdown, which was scored on an 11-yard pass from quarterback Mike Futrell to tight end Daryl Collins. Halfback Tim Lawrence added 14 yards to the drive, which consumed six minutes and 22 seconds. The PAT attempt by Steve Alexander failed after the Seminoles were assessed a five-yard illegal procedure penalty for the kick, putting Alexander a little out of range.

The Rams were to try their luck next, but the stingy defensive squad of Seminole gave up only four yards, and it was time to punt for Lake Mary.

Seminole took the ball right down the field again, this time with the help of the nimble-footed Lawrence, who dashed his way to a 45-yard TD with 2:34 left in the first quarter. This time, Alexander made the point, and the Tribe, in their best showing this year by far, led the floundering Rams 13-0.

When the second quarter began, the Tribe again had possession, and again threatened to score. They drove all the way to the Lake Mary 18 yard line but the Rams stiffened, and Seminole came away empty. But the Seminoles weren't about to be bested, and they held the Rams to another four downs, and forced them to punt from deep in their own territory.

JV Football

This left the field wide open for the Fighting Seminoles, and they took advantage of their opportunity. Fullback William Wynn, freshly moved to the position, aided the next Tribe drive with 12 yards. Lawrence, the usual big gainer, picked up only 11 on this drive, but one yard was good enough for the third Seminole touchdown of the game, with 2:41 left in the second period, after another time-consuming drive. Alexander's point made it a comfortable 20-0 at the half.

Just two weeks ago, however, the Seminoles had held a similar comfortable 15-0 lead over Daytona Beach Mainland, only to lose, 22-15. Would second-half history repeat itself?

Apparently not, as the Seminoles came out in the second half still doggedly pursuing every Lake Mary runner, receiver and quarterback. And their offense showed no sign of a let down this time, either. With 5:46 left in the third quarter, Collins scored again, on a 20-yard reverse play, which totally stunned the Rams, who were sinking fast. Alexander came through again, booting his fourth extra point through the uprights for a 27-0 score.

The Tribe defense was still on the "warpath", particularly lineman Tom Miller, who broke into the Ram backfield to nail quarterback Kyle Frakes for losses of 14, eight and six yards.

At this point in the game, it was only a matter of time. The Seminoles just weren't going to let this victory slip through their fingers. They kept moving the ball and eating up the clock. The Rams scored two touchdowns in under five minutes, however, both by halfback Greg Shatto. His first was a two-yard plunge into the end zone, the second was a 30-yard pass from Frakes on the very last play of the game. Neither conversions were made.

This win leaves Seminole with the hope of salvaging its last four games, with a current 1-2 standing, while the Rams are even at 2-2. The Tribe will travel to Lyman next Thursday to take on the Greyhounds, and try to add another win to their list. The Rams host Bishop Moore in the first game at Lake Mary's new field Thursday.

Lyman Looks For Encore Against DeLand Tonight

Tonight's Football Action
DeLand at Lyman 8 p.m.
Lake Brantley at Lake Howell 8 p.m.
Osceola at Oviedo 8 p.m.

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Writer

It's encore time for Bill Scott's Lyman Greyhounds.

With the dust still settling from last week's stunning 7-5 upset over previously second-ranked Winter Park, Scott and the Greyhounds are switching their collective attention from Wildcats to Bulldogs when Five Star Conference rival DeLand comes calling tonight at 8.

"Now I know how Florida State feels," mused Scott. "It sure will be good to be back home."

In chalking up its current 2-1 record (0-1 in conference play) Lyman opened the '81 campaign with three straight road games. Tonight's clash is the Greyhound's home opener.

One of football's most natural questions hangs over the Greyhounds for tonight's contest. Will there be an emotional letdown following such a big victory?

"That's something you see in sports all the time," agreed Scott of the question. "We've got a lot of young players and we've been stressing to them that they have to get a little better each week."

"Except for the Mainland game where we just didn't execute, I think we have gotten a little better. The Bulldogs are a typically tough DeLand team. Against Winter Park we proved we can play, but we have to be even better against DeLand."

Greyhounds

That typically tough DeLand squad Scott referred to comes equipped with a 6'3" 205 pound fullback — John Ramsey — a pretty hefty offensive line, good outside speed and a talented passing game.

"We don't have anybody close to 6'3", observed Scott about the match ups.

What the Greyhounds do have is defensive quickness, the biggest key in their win over Winter Park. Linebacker Lonzo Collier was the quickest, picking up 14 unassisted tackles, eight assists and three quarterback sacks. Collier's performance earned him the Burger King Defense Player of the Week award. "Size-wise, there was no way we could sit in the trenches and try to muscle Winter Park. We knew that going into the game. So, we have some pretty tough smaller players with good quickness. Most of the night we showed them an eight-man line and just shot the gaps."

The Greyhounds gap shooting resulted in 11 quarterback sacks, something Scott would like to see more of against DeLand tonight.

"They're real physical up front and have good outside speed, so we'll have to get the good, defensive effort again," notes the Greyhound skipper.

Offensively the Greyhounds were unable to mount much of an attack against Winter Park, an area where Scott hopes to see a lot of improvement against DeLand.

"You don't set up drives with the kind of field position we had against Winter Park," pointed out Scott.

In five of its eight offensive possessions of the night, Lyman took possession at its own one, four, five, eight and 11-yard lines in the Winter Park fracas.

"When you get backed up like that you're kind of limited as to what you can call. We used some roll out plays to try to throw outside and some wide running plays, but hey, Winter Park has a pretty good defense too," confirmed Scott.

"We started nine juniors on offense in that game. They're learning every week. We certainly hope to get the offense cranked up."

Besides the normal bumps and bruises, the Greyhounds may miss tackle Gene Allen and wide receiver Jeff Acker tonight due to injuries.

In addition, several team members have been battling a 48-hour flu bug that has hit the Lyman campus recently.

"We hope to be healed up by Friday night and ready to go," said Scott.

Both the Greyhounds and Bulldogs will be looking for their first conference victories in efforts to catch conference-leading Mainland at 3-0.

"DeLand should have beaten Mainland," Scott confirmed. "They had them 7-0 late in the ball game and got beat 8-7 on a blocked punt. They lost the game with something like 47 seconds in the game. It's hard to come back with just a couple of seconds left in the game."

How will the Greyhounds respond after a big upset win before their first home crowd tonight?

"We'll know tonight at eight o'clock," said Scott.

Prep's Vierlings Hope To Discontinue Home Decorating By Beating Heritage

When Joyce Vierling married her Trinity Prep football coach husband Ron, she hadn't planned on a career as an interior decorator.

Of course, when she married the articulate English teacher nine years ago, he wasn't coaching football, but was dabbling on other interests such as soccer and tennis.

Joyce is from Menlo Park, Cal. It's near San Francisco. She met her husband while they were both teaching at Menlo College. "Ron took me out for a burger the first time we went out," remembers Joyce.

It wasn't love at first sight, but love at second with the "big spender." "After we'd gone out twice," she recalls. "We decided to get married."

It wasn't until the Vierlings moved from Menlo Park to Winter Park, however, that she began her interior decorating career. In fact, it wasn't until the coming home of Coach Vierling after loss number one—53-0 to Frostproof.

"After Ron loses he likes to rearrange the furniture of the entire house," Joyce points out. She went on to say that the coach doesn't always move things with his hands, but sometimes uses his feet too. (What talent! That soccer does pay off doesn't it Ron?)

"I just stay out of the way," says Joyce, who doubles as the Trinity cheerleading coach. And in the morning, Joyce resumes her "second career" as a re-decorator.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Vierling, though, are looking for an abrupt end for these Friday and Saturday night moonlighting jobs. Heritage Prep is on the Saint horizon and the Vierlings are planning on a little rearranging of the Heritage football team.

"We're looking for some successes to come," says Joyce. "Ron and the boys have worked real hard this week."

Sam Cook
Sports Editor

And the first win—the Saints lost to Shorecrest last week—couldn't come at the expense of a better opponent. "I don't want to say I hate them," says Joyce very tongue-and-cheekily. "Let's just say I have a lot of animosity for them."

Orlando's Heritage is one of Trinity's biggest rivals, but I guess you've already figured that out. "We're going to cook this week," promises Coach Vierling. "We like to play them because we don't like them."

Don't mince any words, Ron. "They better find a place to hide come Saturday," continued Vierling. "We're going to cream them. All they're going to see is pulling guards and Randy Scott coming out of the backfield."

Vierling feels a couple changes to "speed up" the backfield and the addition of assistant coach Gary Crayton and Bruce Schwitzer will make a big difference in the Trinity attack.

Well, if it doesn't, at least both of you have a career to fall back on.

You can't keep a good man down. After the disastrous showing of some of our male panelists last week, I went out and recruited two women—one a rookie and another with a losing record—to help the male cause.

The aforementioned Joyce Vierling joins the panel this week along with Linda Beathard, wife of Lake Mary coach Roger. Linda had a 4-6 record three weeks ago, so she was a prime choice for renewal. She promises to do better this week, though.

As for County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, I don't know what I'll do. She was 2-1 last week for the best percentage of the year. She even moved ahead of me for total average.

Well, Sandy's a politician, so I'll let her take care of herself. Politicians usually do something to get themselves in trouble. Oh, by the way Commissioner Glenn, what was that brown envelope I saw you hand that Mafia-like figure?

DeLand (1-2) at Lyman (2-1) Beathard, Vierling, Glenn and Joe DeSantis are going to the dogs. Greyhounds that is. All are impressed with the victory over Winter Park and feel the 'Hounds are hot.

Sportswriter Billy Stripp feels Lyman will flounder. Greyhounds Coach Bill Scott told me after the upset of the Wildcats, "just keep picking us to lose." Okay, I will.

Lake Brantley (2-1) at Lake Howell (0-3)

Favoritism enters in here. Beathard taught at Lake Brantley two years, so she picks them. Glenn likes the Patriots ability to win close games. DeSantis likes the defense.

Their defense has been good, but who have they played? Stripp likes the attitude this week of the Silver Hawks and picks them. I'll take Lake Howell too.

Osceola (2-1 at Oviedo (0-3)

The Lions are looking for win number one. Stripp, Beathard, Vierling and DeSantis say they will get it. The politician goes the other way. I'm with you Sandra. I want some of that brown envelope.

Heritage (0-3) at Trinity Prep (0-3)

Five of the experts said with Joyce. The Italian member of this cast took six years to graduate from Heritage Prep. Is that why you're picking them, Joe? So much for higher education.

Miles College (0-3) at UCF (1-3)

This is what inspires prognosticators to greater heights. The whole staff picks the Knights. Miles Standish bites the dust. The one blemish on Miles' record is a tie with Lane College. Yeah, Lane College. It was named after Dick "Night Train" Lane.

Florida (2-3) at Louisiana State (0-3) The politician and I are again agreeing on something. It's not the Gators. The other four like Florida. Charlie Pell says, "You will see a different Florida football team this week." You can take that anyway you want.

Florida State (2-1) at Ohio State (2-0)

The beginning of the end for the Seminoles. Bobby Bowden already feels the heat. He benched Ron Hester because he made 18 tackles, but most were past the line of scrimmage against Nebraska. At least he was tackling somebody Bobby. Five of the panel goes with the Buckeyes. Stripp goes with FSU.

Vanderbilt (1-3) at Miami (1-1)

Former Lake Howell standout Chuck Scott plays on the specialty teams and is a backup wide receiver for Vanderbilt. Another Hawk, Bob Capobianco, plays on the junior varsity.

Capobianco will be safer than Scott when this one starts. The panel is unanimous for Miami. The Commodores would be better off singing.

Lions (2-3) at Bucs (2-3)

A battle for first place in the NFC's Midwest Division. Sandra Glenn's neighbor said he wouldn't let her in her driveway if she picked the Bucs.

I don't have a driveway, but I agree with Sandra. So does everyone else, but that high school kid. What are they teaching you in school these days Billy?

Jets (1-3) at Dolphins (0-4)

What can I say? DeSantis says Don Shula will outcoach Walt Michaels. I don't think he'll have to. Unanimous Dolphins.

Doug McBroom dodged a close shave Thursday afternoon...twice.

Lyman's super sophomore cross country runner easily outdistanced the three-mile field in 18:21 to win the second annual Freshman-Sophomore Invitational at Lyman High School.

As it turned out, McBroom had a special reason for running so well. Before the meet, McBroom bet teammate Brian Hunter he would win the race. In turn, Hunter told McBroom if he finished first, that he would finish third.

If either failed to follow through on his prediction, the loser would shave his legs. "Yeah, that's what we bet," laughed McBroom after the race. "But we called it off because this was Brian's first time out this year."

"Now I wish we wouldn't have since he finished seventh and I won. I would have liked to see him shave his legs."

Shave or not, McBroom and Hunter teamed with Carl Schmalmaack (fifth), Russ Emerson (ninth) and Marc Overbay (10th) to give the Greyhounds an easy 22-44 victory over defending champion Bishop Moore. Fifteen is a perfect score.

Trinity Prep (70), Lake Howell (75), Lake Mary (80), Oviedo (105) and Seminole (109) completed the field.

McBroom, who has placed well in varsity meets this year, set a new invitational record with his time for the three-mile course. The personable soph clipped five seconds off the time set by Bishop Moore's Pat Pasha last year of 18:26.

"I was kind of paranoid on that last lap," revealed McBroom. "I kept looking over my shoulder to see if anybody was coming."

McBroom seized the lead early in the race on the "fast" course which encircles the Lyman baseball field and cruised to a nine-second win over the Hornets' Dan Cashin.

Trinity Prep's talented freshman Tommy Matthews was third in 16:33. Oviedo's Marty Phillips was fourth (17:21), while Schmalmaack was fifth (17:45).

Seminole sophomore Steve Grey turned in his best time of the season and earned an eighth place finish. Grey, who plays a fine point guard during the winter months, ran 18:29.

"Steve ran a strong race Tuesday at DeLand," Tribe Coach Ted Tombras pointed out. "He cut his time from 18:53 to 18:29." Crooms freshman Bruce Long was the next Seminole—29th place—with a time of 21:16.

Lake Mary's Mark Blythe finished 14th in 18:57. "If he wouldn't have fallen down, that time would have been a lot better too," observed Rams' Coach Mike Gibson. "It might have made the difference of a couple places in the final standings for us."

Records, like-wise, were falling during the female side of the meet. Lake Brantley's Kathy Hayward also snipped five seconds from the existing record as she ran a 12:44 two mile.

Hayward, a sophomore like McBroom, is a top 10 finisher in most varsity meets that she enters. The Lady Patriot whipped Bishop Moore's Liz Lewis by 11 seconds.

Cross Country

eighth grader Adrienne Politowicz staged the most furious finish of the day for second place. Lewis nipped Politowicz by a step going into the chute. Both were clocked in 12:55.

Lake Mary's Kim Averill was next in 13:21. The cute freshman trimmed her time by 10 seconds which keeps her string of setting and resetting the Rams' record book intact.

Lake Brantley's Traci Rowland (fifth, 13:41), Dayna Miller (seventh, 13:50), Kim Lubenow (11th, 14:14) and Joanne Hayward (12th, 14:20) helped the Patriots to their title with 24 points.

Trinity Prep (60), Lake Howell (73),

Bishop Moore (80), Lyman (86), Lake Mary (89) and Colonial (93) completed the field for teams which had enough runners for a team score. The Seminole girls did not run.

The county teams will compete in Seabreeze's annual "Beach Run" Saturday at Daytona Beach.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Donnie Allison Hopes To Return This Month

HUEYTOWN, Ala. (UPI) — Stock car driver Donnie Allison, who hasn't raced since he was seriously injured in the Charlotte 600 in May, hopes to return to the racing circuit later this month.

"I've learned something from all this," Allison said in an interview published Thursday. "It's to not do something against my better judgment."

Allison, the younger brother of veteran driver Bobby Allison, has had plenty of time to think about the May crash. He was laid up with fractures of the shoulder, cheek, leg and ribs. He also suffered a concussion and a collapsed lung.

"I was four laps down after 150 miles of a 400-lap race," Allison said in an interview in the Birmingham News. "I don't remember anything about the race, but if I was that far down in that short time, I know I was on the track against my better judgment."

"I should have been in the garage talking about what to do to the car for next week," he added.

Allison, 42, said the previous time he got into a car "against my better judgment" was in Laurel, Miss., in 1966. That time, he also ended up with a collapsed lung.

"The throttle hung," he explained.

Allison, who makes up the famed "Alabama Gang" along with his brother and Neil Bonnett, said he may return to competition at a Grand American meet at Birmingham International Raceway Oct. 25.

St. Charles Tops All Souls

All Souls School of Sanford dropped a soccer match to Orlando's St. Charles, 5-0, Wednesday at St. Mary Magdalene's Field in Altamonte Springs.

All Souls will play at St. Mary Magdalene, Saturday at 10:15 a.m.

Boosters To Meet

The red carpet is out. Monday, Oct. 5, the Seminole High School Boosters Club will meet in the school's teachers' lounge (room 1306) at 7:30 p.m. for the first gathering of Tribe supporters.

"All parents of students of Seminoles are cordially invited to attend," Seminole Business Manager Gay Alling said Thursday morning. "We are looking forward to meeting our boosters and getting the club off on the right foot."

Owls Not Scared Of Penn State

By United Press International

After a pair of convincing victories and a steady climb toward the No. 1 spot, the Nittany Lions of Penn State look virtually unbeatable.

So why do the Temple Owls feel so confident about facing the second-ranked team in the nation Saturday?

The reason is Penn State quarterback Todd Blackledge, who remains the only question mark on an otherwise potent offense. Blackledge has completed a mere 32 percent of his passes this season and the Nittany Lions have relied almost exclusively on the running of Curt Warner.

Temple takes to the Beaver Stadium turf Saturday and the Owls may just stack up the line of scrimmage and dare Blackledge to crank it up. The quarterback was 4-for-13 against Nebraska.

The Lakeview romp was just one of five Junior Midget games. Four Mitey Mite, five Junior Pee Wee, Five Pee Wee and three Midget games also took place at the spacious Sylvan complex.

last week, although one of the completions was a perfectly thrown 33-yard touchdown pass to Kenny Jackson.

"Todd hit two or three right on the money when we needed them against Nebraska," said Penn State coach Joe Paterno. "Our passing game will come around. I'm happy with Todd."

The Nittany Lions are expected to come out and unleash Warner behind their massive offensive line led by the guard tandem of Sean Farrell and Mike Munchak. The speedy junior tailback is averaging eight yards per carry.

"They're not only really good, they're excellent in all departments," said Owls coach Wayne Hardin. "They played a nice football game at Nebraska. They're a fine team and they're class all the way."

White Paterno may appreciate the praise, he hopes it doesn't affect his players. Temple, 2-1, would appear to be a lock on a schedule loaded with nationally ranked teams.

The Owls have lost six games in a row to Penn State since the series was resumed in 1975 but three of those losses have been by a total of five points. The Lions have dominated the last two years by scores of 22-7 and 50-7.

Elsewhere, top-ranked Southern Cal, the only team this season to retain its No. 1 rating in successive weeks, opens Pac-10 play against Oregon State with an opportunity by Trojans tailback Marcus Allen to go into the NCAA record book if he surpasses 200 yards rushing for the fourth consecutive week.

Ryan Magic Makes Reds' Bats Disappear

By United Press International
The St. Louis Cardinals must live right. All they had to contend with Thursday night was a monsoon and the World Series champions, Cincinnati, on the other hand, had to face Nolan Ryan.

NL Baseball

though he didn't have no-hit stuff, he had enough to overpower the Reds.

Given a choice, which would you pick? "The first time up, we saw the ball, but the next two times, whoop," said the Reds' Johnny Bench, trying to explain the kind of stuff the Astros righthander had in pitching the Astros to an 8-1 victory and a 1 1/2 game lead in the West. "He did the job."

An old nemesis of Ryan's — the bases on balls — helped him this time, as Cincinnati pitchers served up 11 walks, three of them with the bases loaded.

Both teams have three games left, and any combination of Houston victories and Cincinnati losses totalling two will send the Astros to the miniplayoffs against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Houston manager Bill Virdon is resisting the temptation to celebrate.

With Houston leading 1-0, Cincinnati pitchers began scoring runs for the Astros in the seventh. Reliever Joe Price issued two bases-loaded walks for a 3-0 lead, and the Astros added five runs in the ninth.

"I don't figure Cincinnati will be beaten here (against Atlanta)," says Virdon. "So, I figure we've got to win two out of three from Los Angeles. Our work is cut out for us, because we've always had a tough time in L.A."

As for the Cardinals, they went 10 innings and endured nearly three hours of rain before nailing Philadelphia 3-2 to remain within a half-game of first-place Montreal in the East. Keith Hernandez doubled home Garry Templeton from first with two out in the 10th.

Cincinnati appeared to have the momentum entering the game, having beaten Houston the previous night. But when momentum meets Nolan Ryan's fastball, it's no contest. Ryan was coming off his fifth career no-hitter and,

In other games, Montreal rapped Pittsburgh 5-2. San Francisco handled Atlanta 6-2. San Diego topped Los Angeles 1-0, and New York tied Chicago 2-2 in a game called by rain after 8 1/2 innings.

In the American League, Baltimore beat Detroit 5-4 in 10 innings and a double-header between Cleveland and Kansas City was rained out.

At Pittsburgh, Larry Parrish smashed a bases-clearing triple in the first to keep Montreal ahead by a half-game. Ray Burris, 9-7, gave up two runs on 10 hits in 7 2/3 innings to pick up the victory.

At Atlanta, Larry Herndon drove in three runs and Doyle Alexander raised his record to 11-7. Greg Minton notched his 20th save. Phil Niekro, 7-7, took the loss despite getting help from Bob Horner's 13th homer.

At Los Angeles, Barry Evans scored an unearned run in the second inning and Fred Kubaalua and Eric Show combined on a five-hitter. It was the first major-league victory for Kubaalua and the loss went to Fernando Valenzuela, 13-7, who suffered his third straight defeat.

At New York, Rusty Staub accounted for both Mel runs in a game delayed by rain for 1 hour and 14 minutes and then called. Montreal's victory earlier in the night eliminated New York from the race and thus the game will not be replayed.

Tigers Need Two-Of-Three Against Brewers

Defeat Doesn't Dim Sparky

AL Baseball

For a guy who just dropped out of first place in the American League East, Detroit manager Sparky Anderson didn't seem so distressed.

But if Anderson is in Fenway Park on Monday afternoon, one day after the regular season ends, you can bet he'll look back on Thursday's loss with a great deal of distaste after all.

Baltimore's 5-4, 10-inning victory over Detroit really didn't change things as far as the Tigers and Brewers are concerned. Detroit, trailing Milwaukee by a half game, still must win two of three from the Brewers this weekend to finish in first. But they might have to share the top spot on the season's final day.

For the Orioles' victory means the Red Sox are still breathing.

Boston, 1 1/2 games back, can't win the division outright, but can tie for first in the second season only if they sweep three games from the Indians in Cleveland this weekend and the Tigers win two of three from Milwaukee. As a result of a coin flip, a one-game playoff would then be held in Boston's Fenway Park on Monday.

Still, Anderson wasn't worried by the loss.

"The only thing this game means is that we weren't able to eliminate Boston," Anderson said. "We still have to win two out of three in Milwaukee, the same as it was when we got up this morning."

Meanwhile, wily Oriole manager Earl Weaver, although eliminated from the race, is going after a different prey.

"We still have a shot at the best overall record in the AL East," Weaver said. "Unfortunately, the best overall record this season would get us nothing more than second-place money."

Baltimore can wind up with the best overall mark in the division if they sweep their final three games with New York and Detroit win two of its three.

The Birds scored the winning run Thursday night in the 10th when Eddie Murray singled off Kevin Saucier, 4-2, and later scored on Gary Roenicke's sacrifice fly.

Shortstop Lenn Sakata led the Orioles with a pair of home runs while reliever Tim Stoddard, 4-2, pitched the final 1-1/3 innings for the triumph.

Detroit had tied the game 4-4 in the ninth when Kirk Gibson cracked a titanic two-out, two-run homer off the right-center field roof. The blast just missed going out of Tiger Stadium.

And if you think the East is complicated, consider the potential mess in the West.

A scheduled double-header between Cleveland and Kansas City was not played Thursday, giving the Royals a total of three unplayed rainouts in the second season. Those games could wind up being the difference between Kansas City finishing first — thus getting two home playoff games — or finishing second — thus getting only one, since Oakland would then win both halves of the season.

If the Royals win two or more of their three games against Oakland this weekend, they win the AL West outright.

But if the Royals win just one game over the weekend, they lead the division by a half game. Then the Royals could keep their hold by winning at least two of the rained out games. They would tie the A's by going 1-2 in the washed-out contests, and Oakland wins the West if the Royals lose all three games.

If Oakland sweeps all three weekend games, the Royals would be 1 1/2 games back and could tie the A's by winning all three rain outs.

The rain dates, and perhaps a one-game playoff for the division should the teams tie after all this, could delay the start of the mini-playoffs, which are scheduled to begin in Kansas City on Tuesday, Oct. 6.

Oakland would be 10 1/2 games ahead of Kansas City if there was no split-season arrangement.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE 080L

For Saturday, October 3, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY (October 3, 1981)
In the year following your birthday many old problems will begin to dissolve and fresh, exciting occurrences will take their place. It isn't likely this period will be boring or uneventful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Your outlook is well directed today. You know when to be serious and when to let your sense of humor take charge. With this balance, life is good to you. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Material conditions are very beneficial today, but this may not be readily apparent because your gains might come from a least-expected source.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
New places and new faces appeal to you today, but your most comfortable dealings will still be with your old pals. Why not combine the two?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Competitive situations won't shake you up today. You feel secure in your abilities and you sense Lady Luck is up your sleeve as an ace.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
People who may have been tough to contact are easily accessible today. Get in touch with them. You'll find them friendly and accommodating.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
It'll seem like everybody wants to help you achieve your purposes today. Even when you don't need assistance, there will be someone there making your road easier.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
When making decisions today stand solidly for what is right, no matter how difficult you think the way will be. Luck will automatically hop aboard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
It's harvest time for the fruits of your labors. If you find the pickings exceptionally good it's because your hard work is being rewarded.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
A light and lively gathering, just for fun with old pals as well as new ones, will turn out super. It's just the end-of-the-week diversion you need.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
A family project that may have been a thorn in your side will finally complete itself today. With the end in sight, you won't even mind the work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Today is a good time to reciprocate for any social obligations. You'll be in an outgoing, fun mood. Everyone invited will enjoy himself or herself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Dame Fortune is smiling your way today. With her intervention and your ambition, you have an excellent chance to enhance your security.

West opens the queen of clubs and South has to struggle at the horrible spade slam. It trumps break 3-3 he can run 13 tricks. He can guard against a 4-2 break with the jack not dropping? He sure can. He plays ace and 10 of spades. West takes his jack and South takes the rest of the tricks.

No Sleeping Pills; Cut Down On Tea

DEAR DR. LAMB— I saw your column about sleeping pills. I have been having trouble sleeping and must have some help. I am 20 years old and have a very bad habit of drinking a lot of tea. I drink from three to five quarts of tea. I don't get to sleep until 2 or 3 a.m. I am a very nervous person. I jump when my husband touches me, and I get scared easily. I would like to see a psychiatrist for my nerves but we can't afford it.

DEAR READER— Judging from the rest of your letter you really have some emotional problems that need professional help. Why don't you look in the Yellow Pages of your phone book under "mental health" and see what services are available in your community. Call one or more and perhaps they can help you arrange to get some help despite your financial problems.

I'm sure you have read my comments on coffee from time to time. Tea has many of the same effects because it also contains caffeine and some other similar drugs as well. The amount you are drinking is like taking a large amount of nerve stimulants, just the opposite of what a nervous person needs. I would suggest you taper off by decreasing the concentration of the tea and substituting water for tea until you get off it. Regardless of the basis for your problems, the amount of tea you are drinking only makes matters worse.

DEAR DR. LAMB— My husband, a particularly healthy 27-year-old man, refuses to eat anything from either the fruit or vegetable group. Since we have young children this is very upsetting to me. He reads your column so please tell him the dangers of not eating anything from either of these groups.

DEAR READER— I gather he is a bread and meat man. He will be short on both vitamins and minerals if your description is correct. His diet is deficient in vitamin C. Perhaps you can talk him into drinking a glass of fruit juice for breakfast. While there is a lot of misinformation about vitamin C and the common cold or curing cancer, which you can ignore, it is still true that vitamin C in adequate amounts is essential to health. Without it he can develop scurvy which will cause major dental problems. Smokers need more vitamin C than nonsmokers because cigarette smoking destroys vitamin C.

Gardening

Color Fall-Winter Months With Flowers

By ROBERT J. BLACK
IFAS Extension Horticulturist
University of Florida

Many of the annual flowers which thrive in northern gardens can be successfully grown in Florida, however, the season at which they are grown is quite different.

Most annuals are classified into two groups — cool season annuals and warm season annuals. Florida's cool season is from October to April thus we grow many annuals during the winter which would normally be planted in the spring in northern states.

As long as the proper planting time is considered, home gardeners can produce many colorful annuals all winter.

Remember, however, the cool season annuals you plant in the fall must be able to endure frost if they are planted outdoors.

Annuals which can be planted in October include sweet alyssum, browallia, calendula, candytuft, gaillardia, gypsophila, nasturtium, pansy, petunia, phlox, sweet-pea, verbena and viola.

Annuals have numerous uses in the garden. They are probably best displayed in front of shrubbery borders. By choosing annuals of different heights, deep flower borders can be produced. Plant the taller species at the rear and progressively shorter varieties in front.

Use colors which blend well and avoid too many varieties having different colors. Beds should be large enough so that flowers can be cut and used to provide winter color.

Many low growing annuals make effective edgings for walks and drives and don't forget to use annuals for window boxes and porch gardening.

Annuals can be planted as seeds or obtained as bedding plants which can be transplanted into the garden. Bedding plants are usually available at reasonable prices and offer flowers quicker than growing your own plants from seed.

When buying seeds you get what you pay for. Seeds of named varieties of a specified color are more expensive than color mixtures. The latter should not be expected to produce flowers of as high quality as the more expensive seeds.

If possible, plant seeds after the rainy season or small seeds may be washed away. The other alternative is to start plants in flats so they can be moved to shelter during rain storms.

Some annuals such as nasturtium and sweet peas could be planted directly where they are to grow because they are difficult to transplant successfully.

Keep a careful watch on young annuals. Their roots are shallow so watering is necessary until they are well established. Pests must also be kept under control.

To produce compact, bushy plants, pinch off the top pair of leaves after seedlings have at least three pairs of leaves. This will produce lateral branches and better quality plants.

Most seed packages contain directions for planting and care of annuals but experience is the best teacher. The gardener who learns how to successfully grow annuals will produce magnificent color in his winter garden.

So color it with Florida flowers!

Principally designed for those seeking relevant humorous material to illustrate oral communications, the course will also include discussion on various categories of humor and the technique of successful joke telling. The class will meet from noon to 1:30 p.m. for four Tuesdays.

The instructor, Fred Ebel, is a writer of humorous articles who has received a number of awards in humorous speech contests conducted by Toastmaster clubs.

The $15 fee provides for the instructional cost of the course. Those interested can contact the Leisure Time Program at SCC. This class is self-supported by student fees at no expense to the taxpayer.

Museum Exhibit Needs Antique Sports Items

The General Henry S. Sanford Museum-Library is planning a special exhibit of antique sports equipment to coincide with the City of Sanford's Golden Age Games, according to Mildred M. Caskey, museum curator.

The week Wes Rinker of the Florida Baseball School, presented an old photograph of Zinn Beck to Buddy Lake, a former Sanford professional baseball player. The photo of Beck will be among the items included in the exhibit.

Beck played third base for the New York Yankees in 1914 and made Sanford his home for 35 years.

Miss Caskey is asking local sports buffs who may be harboring old sports equipment belonging to fathers or grandfathers to consider lending these items to the museum for the colorful exhibit.

The categories include all types of ball games, fishing, hunting, cycling, archery and any games or recreation equipment.

Exhibitors are asked to contact the museum within the next 10 days on Wednesday, Friday or Sunday, between 2-5 p.m., at 321-0710.

In addition to the standing exhibit of paintings, antique furnishings and art objects belonging to the family of Henry S. Sanford, the city's founder, rotating exhibits are featured at the museum throughout the season.

The museum stresses the preservation of objects significant in historical importance to the City of Sanford and the area.

The museum-library is open to the public at no charge.

Wheel Of Fortune Spins Out Of Woman's Control

DEAR ABBY: I bought my future father-in-law a season lottery ticket last Christmas, and when I gave it to him, I jokingly said that this would be the winning ticket and we would split the payoff when he won.

Well, imagine the shock when one month later he hit the $50,000 big one on that ticket! I was as thrilled as my future in-laws, were, but as time went by, I wasn't offered any part of the winnings. My future mother-in-law could see the hurt in me, so I finally told her I thought I should have shared in the winnings, and she said, "If I were a bookie, I would only get 4 percent." I don't have to tell you how that made me feel. Then I was given $1,000.

I have since married her son, but the hurt is still there as far as my feelings are concerned.

What are your thoughts about this, Abby? Do you think I was treated fairly? Or shouldn't I have received half?

FEELS GYPPEED

DEAR FEELS: You say you jokingly suggested to your then-future father-in-law that you'd split the winnings if he won, which does not constitute a commitment on his part, unless he agreed. Did he? If so, you were indeed gyped. If not, I think a $1,000 gift wasn't too shabby.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY? You recently published a letter from the "Tattooed Man," asking how to remove a tattoo. May I make a suggestion? If he doesn't want to have the tattoo surgically removed, he can buy some Lydia O'Leary Cover Mark at a drugstore or the cosmetic department of a department store. It's a flesh-colored cream that can be applied directly over the tattoo. It will not rub off or wash off. In fact, it stays on so well it requires another product to remove it. Being a tattooed lady myself, I know it works.

TATTOOED IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR TATTOOED: Thanks! For years I've recommended Lydia O'Leary's Cover Mark to "hide" birthmarks.

I am also informed that some dermatologists remove tattoos by laser — a new technique that leaves no scarring.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a relatively small office with four men and one other woman secretary. The problem is not the work — it's the odor! The other secretary drowns herself in some kind of foul-smelling perfume that makes me utterly nauseated. The fragrance does not mix with her chemistry, and she uses so much it's overpowering. The men here find it intolerable, too.

How does one tactfully break the news to her that her perfume is offensive?

With the exception of this one problem, I would feel great about my job. I really could use your advice on the subject since she's a nice person and I don't want to hurt her feelings.

GOTTA BREATHE IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR GOTTA: Believe it or not, some people "drown" themselves in perfume because their own sense of smell is deficient. Tell her privately, in a gentle, friendly way, that you are allergic to her perfume, and would she please try another brand and apply it sparingly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. IN NOE VALLEY, CALIF.: Face reality! Acceptance of what has happened is the first step in overcoming the consequences of any misfortune.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12000 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 2000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90230.

Schneider Joins March Of Dimes

John Schneider, television star and recording artist, has been named National Entertainment Chairman of the 1982 Campaign for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Charles L. Massey, president of the March of Dimes, in announcing the appointment, said Schneider will bring together a group of young, talented entertainment stars in 1982 to support the voluntary health agency's battle against birth defects.

Schneider rose to fame in the "Dukes of Hazzard" television series to become one of the most popular young entertainers in the country. He has starred in his own CBS-TV special "John Schneider Back Home" and become a popular concert star throughout the United States.

John Schneider began his volunteer work with the March of Dimes in late 1980 when he agreed to serve as Southern California Chairman of the March of Dimes WalkAmerica.

This year he will star in a March of Dimes film boosting WalkAmerica-1982 which will be shown around the United States to build interest in the agency's national superwalk.

Volunteering his time and talent, John has also appeared in more than 50 local TV spots for the March of Dimes and took a major role in the first national March of Dimes Telethon last February. He will host the Salt Lake City regional telethon early in 1982.

"We all have a stake in trying to do something positive about birth defects," Schneider said, "because birth defects are the number one child health problem today. I'm proud to have the opportunity to work with the March of Dimes because they are out there helping the young people of this country."

Superstar Schneider is the grandson of Mrs. Lillian Vickers and the nephew of Mrs. Laurine Messenger, both of Sanford.

She's 'Bullish' On Bulldogs

'Gentlest Of All:' Heartbreakers But Worth The Effort

By MERLA MANOR
Herald Feature Writer

There is only one breed of bulldog. You will know him by his great, heavily-wrinkled face, by the "old soul" weariness in his eyes, the massive shoulders and the surprisingly small rump.

Diane Albers, president of Florida Association of Kennel Clubs, vice-president of Central Florida Kennel Clubs, and chairman of the Seminole County Animal Control Board, breeds bulldogs, one of which is rated one of the top 10 in the country. His name is Champion Boomerang Show-Biz, but she calls him Re-run for short.

"I have a great amount of feeling about that dog," Albers said. "God made him, but I put together the right genes. I bred him, raised him, trained him and showed him.

"You have a lot of heartbreak breeding dogs, especially bulldogs. They have to be delivered by Caesarean section because their hindquarters are so small. Then the pups have to be separated from the mama because she is inclined to lie on them, believing she is protecting them. They have difficulty in breathing because of their pushed-in faces."

The story on bulldogs is that a monarch in ancient times once witnessed dogs fighting a bull in a pasture. It seemed like great fun, so he had dogs especially bred for the fray. The deep wrinkles were bred in to carry the bull's blood off the face. The great shoulders and narrow hindquarters were also deliberately designed for this particular sport. They are a man-made breed.

"When dog-fighting was outlawed in England," Albers said, "they bred out the fighting qualities of the bulldog and now they are the gentlest of all breeds. They can stand enormous amounts of pain and they tolerate any amount of teasing or rough play from children. If a child becomes too abusive, the dog simply walks away from it. Yet, they are good watchdogs for the house. If they sense fear in the owner, they will attack an intruder.

Albers said there are two kinds of breeders: the backyard variety "who are in it for the money; and ethical breeders, who work to improve the standards. The latter charge a large stud fee because they can breed out many genetic problems.

"Anyone who wishes to buy a bulldog should choose the puppy carefully to suit their needs and temperament," Albers said. "Personality is not bred in dogs. They come with as varied dispositions as people do. You can pretty well tell if a puppy is going to be aggressive or passive by the time he is five or six days old. However, I recommend coming back two weeks later and watching him again to get a better idea of what you want. Also observe the dam and the sire if possible.

"Remember, the dog is going to be a part of your household and you want him to fit in," she stressed.

Dog breeder Diane Albers poses with her son Brian and two and a half-year-old Champion Boomerang Show-Biz— Re-run" for short—(right) and puppy "Corley" who's 12 weeks old.

"I place pups at twelve weeks of age. They are immunized, wormed and housebroken. I give a bill of sale and the sire and dam's pedigree."

At first Albers only wanted pets, but in 1966 she went to her first dog show and joined a kennel club.

"Then I became involved in educating the public, especially children, in care of pets," she said. "If you have an animal, you take care of it. It is your responsibility. An animal is personal property. If it is a nuisance to people next door, then you have invaded their personal rights and privileges.

"Seminole County is the first county ever to have a County Animal Control Advisory Board," Albers said. "It is composed of a veterinarian, a representative of the humane society, one person from the sheriff's department, and five citizens at large with some knowledge of animals.

"The serious breeder has deep belief in God. He is very dedicated and puts a great deal of time and effort into his animal," she said. "People from all over the country call me about their problems with their dogs. I am very happy to help anyone I can. I will go to club meetings, and especially gatherings of young people, and help them as animal owners. Not everyone needs a purebred dog. And no one should have more dogs than he can give specific attention to. If we don't take full responsibility for our animals, the government could move in and do it for us. Let's keep the government out of it."

New Film Rating System Being Tested

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if there are plans for a new system for rating movies? ROY M., Albuquerque, N.M.

How did you hear about that in New Mexico? CARA — that's the Classification and Rating Administration of the Motion Picture Association — is testing a new system now in Kansas and western Missouri. It is really only different in that theaters distribute explanations to parents of why a certain rating was given to a certain picture. The ratings — G, PG, R and X — are the same, but if you call up a theater or go to the box office, they give you the reasons why a rating was given. They tell you if the film is rated "R," for example, because of "violence" or "sensuality" or "language" or whatever. It is experimental and CARA will later determine if it will be extended to the rest of the country.

DEAR DICK: My maiden name is Wunningham and I am very interested in a young actress, Marc Wunningham, whom I have seen in several films lately. Can you tell me anything about her? MRS. HAZEL FEARN, Cardston, Alberta.

Mary Megan Wunningham — Marc, she calls herself — is a 22-year-old, one of the finest young actresses around. She was born in Phoenix, Ariz., but grew up in Los Angeles. Her father is a football coach — Cal State Northridge and then San Diego State — and I think she is going to be a major star. She can act!

Ask Dick Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me the name of the parents of Ralph Malph on "Happy Days?" I've heard mention of the father's name, but never the mother's. A very expensive dinner rests on your answer. CATHY FLANNERY, Montoursville, Pa.

Bon appetit! Ralph Malph — Donnie Most was the actor who played the part, which, incidentally, is no longer on the show — was the son of Mickey and Minnie Malph. Naturally.

DEAR DICK: I saw a movie about a year ago, starring Alan Alda as a married man staying in a beautiful cottage and a married woman came and he wanted her to spend the night with him. As I recall, it was very funny. What was the woman's name and the name of the movie? JACKIE, Reese, Mich.

I think you must mean "Same Time Next Year." The woman was played by that sterling actress Ellen Burstyn.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who was the male lead in the British "B" film "Sinful Davey," made around 1978. I was wondering if it was a young John Hurt. DENNIS CONNOLLY, Lethbridge, Alberta, Can.

It was indeed. Hurt wasn't that young — 29 — when he made "Sinful Davey" in 1989, but, obviously, much younger than he is today.

DEAR DICK: I have a feeling that the little blonde girl on "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters" is in real life Barbara's own daughter. Right? LILLIAN ALLSHOUSE, Browns Mills, N.J.

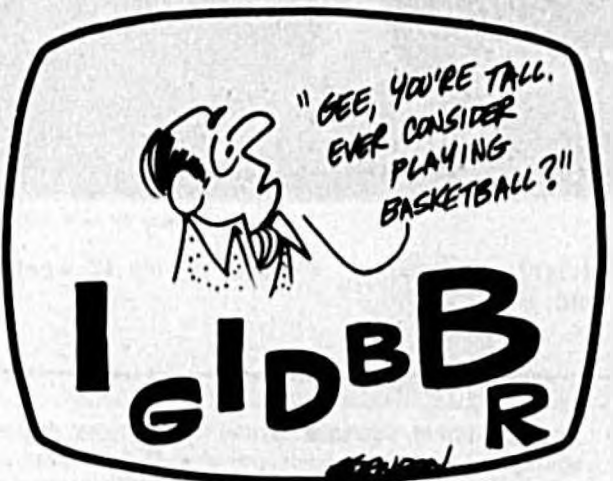

Wrong. So much for feminine intuition. The little blonde girl is named, professionally, Georgi Irene, and she is no relation to any of the Mandrells.

DEAR DICK: Please settle an argument between me and my father. He claims that TV causes harmful "alpha" waves in your brain pattern. He says they are best produced by sitcoms and game shows, which are my favorites. Is this an excuse to let him watch his shows, or is it true? JOHNNY PFISTER, Bloomington, Ind.

The real harm television does isn't in producing alpha waves, but in "hypnotizing" people so they watch for hours instead of doing something more productive. And, certainly, sitcoms and game shows produce no more waves than whatever it is your father wants to watch.

Tom Cottle Is Host Who Really Listens

It is easier to describe what "The Tom Cottle Show" is not than to capture what it is: It is not a talk show. There is no chatter, no easy quips, no show biz cleverness between psychologist-sociologist Cottle and his guests.

"I just want people quietly to come on and softly tell their stories," says the host of the half-hour weekly show on PBS.

Then again, it's not soap opera, either. The terminal cancer patient, the young homosexuals, the children of divorced parents, the widower, the amputee — these people are not theater characters, they are not telling sob stories. They are people, ordinary and not-ordinary, who face or have faced crises, who have come through with wisdom and insight, and who share that insight with Cottle because he is a man they trust.

Cottle asks the right questions and then he listens. In the process, we learn something about ourselves, too. "The Tom Cottle Show" is a listening show.

This Saturday at 4:30 p.m. Cottle talks to stepparents, two people who married partners with children.

The key to the intimate, open quality of the program is Cottle himself. He is a prolific author (nearly 500 articles and 25 books to date including, most recently, "Children's Secrets" and "Getting Married"); a lecturer (Harvard Medical School, among others); a television personality (contributor to ABC's "Good Morning America"); and a practicing clinician.

Most of all, he's interested in other people's stories.

Coming Up On Channel 24

Business Series, Movies

Former CBS News Commentator Eric Sevareid will host "Enterprise," a series of 13 half-hour documentaries on how American business works.

The series premieres at 9 p.m. Friday on Channel 24. Following "Enterprise" is Channel 24's newsfeature magazine production "Florida Focus," which moves to Fridays with new topics and a new host.

"Enterprise" will follow a real-life process within a company as it unfolds, showing how that company deals with a critical event from the perspective of those most intimately involved.

Among the stories are the launching of a new garment by the world's largest clothing manufacturer, the air fare price war between New York Air and the Eastern Airlines Shuttle, and a profile of Mississippi farmers who are switching from cotton crops to harvesting catfish.

Of "Enterprise," Sevareid said, "Television news has sometimes done well reporting on macro-economics and on government policies toward business. It has not done well reporting the story of business itself.

"The series will not be chamber of commerce boosterism, nor will it reflect the anti-establishment syndrome. It will be an effort to report how various industrial sectors actually work. The idea is to illuminate, not to advocate. Maybe the series will help to start something."

"Enterprise" is a WGBH-TV Boston production and was developed with Harvard Business School assistance.

Channel 24's "Florida Focus" will host Chris Morgan, formerly producer of Channel 24's in-concert talent showcase "Sunshine Music Hall" and the subtropical gardening series "Florida Home Grown" with Tom MacCubbin.

Morgan will appear on "Florida Focus" with Kathy Nash, host and producer of Channel 24's "Postscripts," the twice-weekday lifestyle interview program.

Ernest Hemingway's classic film "A Farewell to Arms" opens Channel 24's Saturday night movie lineup at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Continuing the innovative series of classic films is "The Kennel Murder Case" on Oct. 10, "Danger Lights" on Oct. 17, "Royal Wedding" on Oct. 24 and "Winterset" on Oct. 31.

Starring Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper, "A Farewell to Arms" is the WWI film about an American ambulance driver who falls in love with a nurse when he is wounded in Italy.

This Paramount movie won the Academy Award for best picture in 1933, and was directed by the noted Frank Borzage.

In "The Kennel Murder Case," William Powell stars as detective Philco Vance, proving that any one of seven sportsmen could be guilty of murder. The film is based on the S.S. Van Dine story of the same title, and was produced by Warner Brothers.

A love triangle set against a backdrop of old railyards is the theme of "Danger Lights," one of the first films to be made in "Naturalvision," which creates an illusion of depth and distance.

The 1930 movie is based on a story by James A. Creelman, Jr., and was directed by George B. Seitz.

"Royal Wedding" is the musical romance with Fred Astaire, Jane Powell and Peter Lawford. The story line centers on a pair of entertainers who perform for the wedding of England's Queen Elizabeth.

"Winterset" is based on the highly publicized Sacco and Vanzetti case. Burgess Meredith stars in this powerful drama about a son who seeks to clear the name of his father, a man who was executed for a crime he didn't commit.

The 1936 movie was adapted by Anthony Veiller from the RKO Radio play by Maxwell Anderson.

Among the titles Channel 24 will air over the next several months are "Algiers," "A Star is Born," "Our Town," "Gulliver's Travels," "Captain Kidd" and "Bird of Paradise."

Some of the feature films will air on Sunday afternoons later this fall and winter.

"Victory at Sea," which has been described as the most ambitious and successful venture in the history of television, will be presented at 9:30 p.m. weekly starting Saturday on Channel 24.

The film-and-music dramatic history of naval operations during World War II is the first television program to have run simultaneously in four countries — the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Cuba.

The series of 26 half-hour films won the coveted Peabody Award, Variety's Showmanagement Award and the Sylvania Grand Award. In addition, the series' principals were conferred the highest decoration the U.S. Navy can award a civilian.

Much of the film footage in "Victory at Sea" includes German and Japanese pieces captured during and after WWII, and seen in the series for the first time.

The attack on Pearl Harbor, for instance, is seen largely through the eyes of the Japanese. Submarine warfare in the Atlantic is seen partly from German U-boats.

The subject of the first "Victory at Sea" episode is the 1939 to 1941 Battle of the Atlantic. Following installments feature the attack on Pearl Harbor, anti-submarine warfare, the Battle of Midway, Gibraltar and Guadalcanal.

Henry Salomon is the originator, producer and principal writer of the series; Richard Rodgers composed the 13 hours of narrative symphonic music especially for the program.

More than 60 million feet of film from 10 governmental offices and 26 different agencies were edited for "Victory at Sea," perhaps the most comprehensive dramatization of the WWII operations on, over and under the oceans of the world.

These poems are by Seminole County students kindergarten through 12th grade. They resulted from the Florida Poetry In the Schools program taught by poet Bob Wishoff of Oviedo and Evelyln Mantz of DeLand. Pupils are provided with a general theme, but are not told what they should write.

THE RAIN

The rain is like marching men in a parade. The thunder sounds like a drum and the thunder beats it with a dum and a crack. It makes mushy mudpuddles in a dirt road. It flows through a gutter like a river through the woods.

THE NIGHT

When it is time to go to bed
I see figures that I dread
Like lions that seem to just sit and stare

And elephants waiting for me to go to sleep.
But when I see bears —
I just can't help it —
They just seem to sit.
Finally I can't stay and watch

And I just drop off into a peaceful sleep
Like a baby deer by its mother's side.
all of a sudden
I hear a ringing.
I think, "Oh, no!"
It must be the bear coming

And I jump under the like a wild stag after hearing a shot.

But then I realize
It's my alarm clock
Waking me

NOVA Looks At Fire

More people die in fires in the United States than in any other industrialized country. A person is 10 times more likely to suffer a fiery death in America than in Switzerland, according to this week's episode of "NOVA." The causes of these statistics are examined in "Why America Burns," on "NOVA," Sunday, on PBS. (Local times may vary; check listings.)

The questions that are raised in "Why America Burns," which airs during Fire Prevention Week, challenge the fire prevention establishment. The report also offers several strategies for improving fire safety.

"Why America Burns" investigates the reasons why modern high-rise buildings, such as the MGM Grand Hotel, become "towering infernos" despite all the precautions that have been taken.

"NOVA" looks at the Underwriters' Laboratories, which tests consumer goods to see if they are safe.

The show also examines fires caused by cigarettes — which take more than 2,000 lives each year.

One "NOVA" cameraman underwent intense heat to film the horrifying phenomena called "flashover," which kills thousands in house fires. Flashover occurs when the heat and intensity of a fire become so great that everything in the room is instantly ignited in an explosive burst of flames.

Flashover leaves few survivors. "Why America Burns" was written and produced by Brian Kaufman and filmed in Phoenix, Boston, Washington, D.C., New York, San Francisco, Sacramento, Chicago and Las Vegas. "NOVA" is produced for PBS by WGBH Boston.

Harrison Ford, who starred as adventurer Indiana Jones in this summer's hit movie "Raiders of the Lost Ark," now stars and narrates the television special "Great Movie Stunts: Raiders of the Lost Ark," a behind-the-scenes look at the film's stunts, to air Monday on CBS.

When Stunts Are Called For...

By Ruth Thompson
 "Did you do your own stunts or did you use a double?"

The question is inevitable when an actor on the television interview circuit talks about the dangerous scenes that spiced up his or her latest movie or television show.

It takes a brave Uesopian to state flat out that a double did it. Why? Does the audience expect that actors should be exposed to often-acrobatic dangers for which they have not trained? The American Heritage Dictionary defines a stunt as "a feat displaying unusual strength, skill or daring" and a stunt man as "one who substitutes for an actor in scenes requiring physical prowess or involving physical risk."

Physical risk. Often actors willing to do their own stunts are forbidden to by producers who know the budget could swell beyond any future profit margin if the star were seriously injured.

But often actors insist — like 49-year-old Alan Dobbie, Sgt. Cribb on the PBS "Mystery" series for two seasons. He said he especially loved the series because it gave him the chance to do his own stunt work: "Most producers don't see me as I see myself — the British Clint Eastwood."

Katharine Hepburn, too, has told interviewers that she insisted on doing her own stunts in movies.

The feat of Maud Adams in last year's CBS television movie "The Hostage Tower" is hard to beat. The Scandinavian beauty's role required her to climb around girders on the Eiffel Tower — the real Eiffel Tower, top tourist attraction of Paris, made all the more so the week she was dangling in mid-air. But as she has stated, her every move was choreographed by a professional stunt team whose members stationed themselves where they could form a rescue squad if needed.

Stockard Channing had it easier when she starred in "Silent Victory; The Kitty O'Neil Story" in the CBS 1979 television adventure docu-drama about a Hollywood stuntwoman. That's because the real Kitty O'Neil (who drove a rocket car at 600 mph) really did the stunts while Stockard did the close-ups.

There has been tragedy, too: the death of Eric Fleming. When the "Rawhide" television series (in which he and Clint Eastwood co-starred) ended in 1965, Fleming, like Eastwood, next sought a career in movies and was reportedly riding a fast horse into a river in South America when he fell off and drowned.

Cheech, Chong Plan No. 2

By CINDY ADAMS
NEW YORK — I know you're all waiting for this news: Cheech and Chong will do another flick in '82. The movie will be scripted by C & C and the latter C will direct... Harold Lipshitz, who began his career as a sax player, still tootles the thing on his off hours when he isn't playing at being Barney Miller or Hal Liden... Now into her 50s, Shirley Temple Black admits she isn't the little girl with blonde curls and a lisp — especially after the postman asked her, "Mrs. Black, does Shirley Temple really live here?" ... My postcard from Phyllis Diller says: "Dropped into Wash. D.C. for lunch with Bob Hope and Ken and Barbie dolls of the White House."

Peter O'Toole is almost never without the Star of David on his neck because it was given to him many Passovers ago by a close pal of his father's. He considers it his lucky piece... Glenda Jackson asked Fred Astaire to dance at a party and he said he didn't know borscht about ballroom dancing.

Michael Landon on sleep: "Nobody needs eight hours... I'm always up at 5 a.m." ...

Lou Ferrigno: "The... attention I get these days is tough to deal with like the endless kids, the pesty autographs, the women who want to grab me, but I still love it. I waited a long time for this and I want more" ...

Tony Danza: "Carrots must be good for your eyes because the truth is I can't ever recall seeing a rabbit with glasses." Alan King: "My dentist's gone too far. He told me my teeth were fine but my gums will have to come out" ... And from Steve Martin: "The best way to stop noise in a car is to let her drive."

Year Of Disabled

In recognition of the International Year of the Disabled, public television presents three special stories:

"Stepping Out" follows a theater group of mentally retarded adults as they prepare for their first public performance at the Sydney Opera House. The film shows the growth of confidence and ability in the performers and culminates with their triumphant performance. To air Wednesday over PBS.

"Board and Care" is a 1980 Academy Award-winning short story of young love between two teen-agers, both of whom are portrayed by young adults with Down's syndrome. The program will air Oct. 14.

"The Crisco Kid" is the story of 10-year-old Michael Ray Hammond, who was born with a rare and crippling skin disease. Air date is Oct. 22.
