

Tax Assessment

There's A Good Chance Your Property Value And Taxes Will Go Up

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

While you may be delirious over neighbors' good fortune in selling their homes for $5,000, $10,000, or even $15,000 more than they paid for them, watch out. A few good bucks could cost you a few bucks next year.

The city is a simple one. Single lot owners normally appraise to assessal property at 100 percent "fair market value."

"Fair market value" is determined by the state Department of Revenue as the comparable value of similar homes sold within the same area during the past year.

The bottom line is it is several of your neighbors go good prices for their homes — more than the value placed on those homes for property tax purposes last year — it's almost a sure bet that your tax assessment is going up.

And since property taxes are based on assessed values, it is more than likely your tax bills will be higher.

Sanford County Property Appraiser Bill Suber, office, sensitive to the requirements of the law on property appraisals, has already registered a number of property values within subdivisions where sales have been noted to bring assessments there into line with those, sale prices.

To conform with the state law, reappraisals are an on-going process.

Terry Goemmel, chief assistant county property appraiser, said this year's reappraisals have been spread out over the county but limited for the most part to reflect increased values only in those areas where appraisals show that previously appraised values were obviously out of line with current market value.

"We are always striving to be 100 percent of fair market value." Seminoole staff members are now assessing where values obviously have increased.

Since the reappraisal process for this year's taxes is continuing, Goemmel could not say at this point exactly where the subdivisions which have been or are being reappraised are located. However, a total countywide reappraisal of all properties has not been done this year.

Goemmel said the county office will send to the state Department of Revenue in July the assessed values of all properties in the county, about 200,000 of all the sales during the previous year.

Through a complex method of working with all the numbers provided, the state department will determine at what percentage of "fair market value" Suber's office is assessing property.

The percentage, according to the state Department of Revenue, had better be 90 percent or more or the tax roll will not receive state approval.

Suber's assessment roll received the blessing of the state department last year when it determined that the Seminoole County roll was at 93 percent of "fair market value."

The problem that Suber faces is that there is no way of working out for an absolute certainty the statistics at home before sending the assessment roll to the state. Goemmel said Goemmel noted the only way that the Seminoole office can have any assurance at all of the assessment roll passing the state requirements is to constantly look at sales and compare to assessments.

"We are always striving to be at 100 percent," said

Goemmel, Suber's chief assistant property appraiser.

"Since we have not done a complete reappraisal this year, we have at least tried to keep the assessments equalized. Hopefully, all properties will stay assessed at the same level," he said.

The level at which the state determines the county is assessing at full market value may be very important especially to the school system next year if any one of several education measures now being considered by the Legislature passes.

In most of those bills, the level of funding the county school systems receive from the state will be based on whether the county is assessing at a point determined to be at least 95 percent of fair market value.

Goemmel said as far as he knows every county in Florida is currently assessing at 90 percent or better of fair market value as determined by the state.

While the property assessment rolls will be worked on by Suber's office almost to the time they must be submitted to the state, some mistakes are available now. Goemmel said that it appears that the county in 1982 had about $200 million worth of new construction, which is slightly higher than the prior year.

He was quick to add, however, that the $200 million figure won't be the gross amount added to the tax rolls. "Depending on how much of the $200 million was for new homes, a $25,000 homestead exemption from property taxes will be available for each," he said.

Sanford Trash Future Unknown

By late next week, the city of Sanford will have to take the bull by the horns and figure out how to dispose of its 200 tons of garbage and trash generated by Sanford daily.

Since Sanford must have a disposal site by next Wednesday when the Lake Marle landfill is to be used for several years longer, the only alternative, at least on a temporary basis, is to use Seminole County landfills.

And it's likely the fees to be paid will mean 7,000 households in the city will be going up.

Called at by city staff members first involved a $97.75 per ton disposal fee charged by Seminole County to customers who use its Upala transfer station, compared to the $5.67 per ton Sanford normally pays for use of the privately-owned Lake Marle landfill in Orange City. The total of the fees to the county now is $101,400.

Compared with $38,190 to Lake Marle, a difference of $63,210. This cost would be spread among the city's 6,863 active customers.

Earliest estimates of the increase which Sanford customers could expect will be the use of the Upala transfer station were used was about 77 cents per month, or about above the current fee of $7.25 monthly per household.

The Upala transfer station is just a small building at the intersection of U.S. 1 on Country Club Road and State Road 408.

However, Ken Hooper, director of the county's Department of Environmental Resources, reiterated today that it is not possible for the city of Sanford to dump more than a portion of its refuse at the Upala transfer station daily.

"The Upala transfer station is not geared to handle the volume Sanford generates," Hooper said. "If they want to use the Upala station they will have to do so by long-term contract so that more equipment can be placed there and more trailers can be purchased to haul the refuse to Oceda." A long-term contract was defined by the county official as one which would be entered into for at least two weeks as three to five years.

Hooper said the Upala station can take no more than 25 to 30 tons per day over what it is doing now. He said the city is trying to come back to Seminole County or is making arrangements with Hooper's department that there is a possibility Sanford could use the Seminoles transfer station for a while. But it also is not geared for large volumes.

And the new equipment Hooper is talking about will take four to six months for delivery, one ordered.

In the meantime, he said Sanford will have to take the bulk of its garbage and trash to the old major landfill at the former Oceda Airfield in Oceda.

Sanford's city staff noted more than what is expected to be a major trip to the county, while the rest of the trip to the Orange City facility, a 24 round-trip to Oceda for use of the Oceda landfill is $2 low per ton at $7.75.

But it is expected that the costs of the trips by city vehicles to Oceda will be more than that, at least $2 savings.

The trips will mean additional costs for the time of the city employees driving that distance to Oceda and tear on the city's refuse vehicles and time that the vehicles are out of the city.

No estimate is yet available from the city on these additional costs. The use of the county facilities while temporarily beginning next week may become a permanent arrangement, Harold said, noting a decision on this won't be made until all alternatives are studied. When the studies are completed, a report will be given to the City Commission for a decision.

Among the alternatives available is furnishing the refuse collection service to private enterprise.

City Manager W. E. Knowles had for years advanced that government should create a construction loan to the public which they cannot obtain economically through private enterprise.

At least one city commissioner, Mayor Lee P. Moore, is not bashful about saying that he opposes the city "relieving itself of the responsibility of providing city refuse collection" to the people of Sanford.

Moore vigorously opposed some years ago a suggestion that the city also relieve itself of the responsibility of operating a city cemetery. His argument at the time was that the city would have to come to depend on the city for a cemetery and expect it.

"Every opportunity I've been offered to get out of the refuse itself of the responsibility of refuse collection," Moore said.

Moore said it is impossible now to determine what the cost increase for refuse service in Oceda would be. He said that some estimate has been made of exactly what the additional costs are and that the budget has not to be examined.

He said the city's refuse service budget is "not a priority fund" and must be self-sustaining.

Boom 172 New Home Permits In 4 Months Issued In Sanford

The need for new single-family homes has created a construction boom in the city of Sanford during the past four months of 1983. During the first four months of 1983, the city issued 172 building permits for single-family homes valued at $8.5 million. Construction on nearly half of the new homes, 83, was valued at $2.65 or less in April.

In fact more than twice as many homes were issued permits in April than during the first four months of the 1982 year, said Gary Wynn, city building official.

Wynn said the major developer in this single-family home construction was Residential Communities of America (RCA) in the Hidden Lake area, off Airport Boulevard. In addition, another development, Groveview Village of Lake Mary (Steward) has started building. Some 95 single family homes are planned and permits have been pulled for five. All sewer and water facilities have been laid and the streets paved in this development, Wynn said.

Another development of high priced homes, 12 in all, have begun in County Place, 139 Upala Road, at the corner of Upala and Lake Mary Boulevard, he said.

For the first four months of the calendar year, the city issued a total of 106 building permits valued at $8.23 million, compared to 840 for the same period of the 1982 year, valued at $10.7 million.

In addition to the 172 permits for single-family homes, permits have been issued for a $100,000 building of three or four family units, 32 accessory buildings, $25,920, 26 mobile homes, 43 housekeeping units, via $158,310, 13 commercial units, $386,700, and repairs and improvements to housekeeping units and commercial units with a total value of $14,000.

Revenues from building and other construction permits for the first four months of the year totals $35,254.51. —Donna Estes

By Michael Deha
Herald Staff Writer

Three pieces of 4,000-year-old Egyptian jewelry were stolen from a display case Wednesday afternoon at the General Sanford Museum, 590 First St. in Sanford.

The set of earrings, watch necklace and scarab ring have an estimated value of $15,000 and were taken from a display case at the museum between 4:45 and 4:45 p.m. Wednesday, according to Mildred "Honey" Sierke of the museum.

The items were on loan to the museum from A.B. "Tommy" Peterson of Sanford who is offering a reward for their safe return. Peterson said today no questions will be asked if the jewelry is returned.

"It must have been very quick," Mrs. Kaasky said. "There were five of us shuffling about inside the museum."

"First, Mrs. Peterson noticed her purse missing, then I noticed the watch on the display case looking at the watch face when I was standing there appearing at the back I saw the scarab were missing."

Mrs. Peterson's missing purse was also reported at Sanford police, who are investigating the theft.

Gunter Pushes Health Cost Control Proposal

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter wants the state to regulate hospital rates saying a plan to control health care costs is necessary to keep the state from being an elephant with a stilted leg.

The Senate health and rehabilitative services committee is holding a hearing on Gunter's proposal (SB 888) allowing the Florida Hospital Council to be authorized to set rates under certain circumstances.

Gunter called for state setting of hospital rates months ago, but he was largely ignored by legislators, who considered instead a cost containment plan being pushed by hospitals and doctors throughout the state.

The plan, allowing insurance companies to negotiate with hospitals and doctors and send their policyholders to those offering the best prices, was approved by the Senate commerce and IRS committee earlier this session and now is waiting consideration by the full Senate.

To Tax Or Not To Tax...

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Senate takes up a no-new-taxes budget today, with several senators planning a run at tax increases to provide more money for teacher pay.

Sens. Mary Grizzle, Pat Frank and Carole Mink want to repeal the sales tax exemption on new advertising and promotional materials like dry cleaning and haircuts to produce more revenue.

The House finance and tax committee on Tuesday approved a corporate profits tax increase and a new plan for the House leadership to improve the quality of the high schools.

ATLANTA (UPI) — A federal appeals court denied black high school students a stay of Florida's literacy test for graduation that will keep 1,800 seniors from graduating this year.

The 11th Circuit Court of Appeals, in a 2-1 decision, refused Wednesday to delay enforcement of the 1976 literacy testing law. The students, who claim the test discriminates against blacks, have an appeal of the law pending before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Education Commissioner Ralph Turfington said Tuesday the 1,800 students who failed the test in March will not be given diplomas in June. More than 1,000 of those students are black.

Overall, more than 98 percent of Florida's 85,000 seniors, and more than 92 percent of black seniors, passed the test and will graduate.

Those who failed the test will get certificates of attendance and can be retaken in July to upgrade their certificates to full diplomas. Turfington said several hundred students also failed to meet other graduation requirements.

Florida's literacy test for the 10 black students who challenged the test was encouraged by the dissenting opinion of appellate Judge Phyllis A. Kravitch. He said he felt the court ultimately would rule against the test.

"We are confident of our chances in the 11th Circuit," Hanson said. "We intend to stay where we have the most chance for success."

In the brief dissent, the judge said, "This case raises a close legal question, resolution of which requires a balancing of significant interests on both sides."

Because appellants will be irreparably harmed pending a resolution on the merits, I would grant the stay."

His fellow judges, James C. Hill and Albert J. Henderson, refused the stay in a one-sentence order without explanation.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge George Car of Tampa, Fla., also refused to halt use of the test. Car had upheld the test May 6 when he ruled that test material was taught in Florida classrooms and that "vestiges of racism" were not affecting test scores of black students.

Florida school officials have been attempting to use the test as a graduation requirement for high school seniors since 1976, but its implementation has been delayed by charges it is racially and culturally biased.

Turfington said he was not surprised at the court's refusal to delay the test. "The test is not designed to fail people. It is an effort to help students succeed and it's working," Turfington said. "Our intention has been to get students to pass. The test has been a great benefit to tens of thousands of students."

Suspected Diary Forger Lived Life In The Fast Lane

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — The suspected forger of Hitler diaries was a lavish spender who toured Stuttgart nightclubs dressed in an old Nazi SS elite troop uniform, Stern magazine said.

The man, whose report was published in the world's largest newspaper in the world, charged that Konrad Kujawski probably forged the diaries he sold to Stern.

It was Professor Alois Michel, a handwriting expert of the University of Mannheim, compared Kujawski's writing with the diaries and concluded there are indications Kujawski was the forger.

A Nazi dealer who is under investigative arrest on suspicion of fraud, Kujawski, 44, was described by the magazine as an alleged anti-Semite, liar, swindler and panderer who spent much of the fortune Stern claims it paid him to buy diaries.

He often spends $60,000 a night in bars, the magazine said. It said bar owners in his home town of Stuttgart estimated in the last two years he spent between $607,200 and $810,000 in his nightclubs.

Islands Being Unwrapped
MIAMI (UPI) — The artist Christo's pink island unwrapping is coming down, and by sunset Friday Biscayne Bay's colors will be back to their normal shades of blue and green.

The 47-year-old Bulgarian-born artist's "Surrendered Islands" project was completed May 6, and after more than a week in place, crews of about 75 people have begun cutting the durable pink plastic base and moving it ashore.

All 11 islands are expected to be dismantled by the weekend.

"They'll make a sweep right down Biscayne Bay," said Christo's dock worker Richard Bruce.

For the workers who had hauled high winds and local officials to install the $3.1 million plastic "flowers," it was a sad business.

"It's a shame," said Christi Whittman, who helps monitor the installation of the environmental art around 11 islands.

"There have been no problems whatsoever that we've been able to document," said Ed Swakow of the Dade County Environmental Resources Management team.

Libya Demands Lebanese Expulsion From League

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
Libya denounced the admission of Lebanon into the Arab League in retaliation for the League's support of the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Kuwaiti News Agency reported from Tripoli.

The United Nations Security Council, based in Geneva, said Libya sent a memorandum to Arab League headquarters in Tunis calling for sanctions against Lebanon until it agrees to expel Egyptian forces after its 1976 peace treaty with Israel.

As a show of opposition to Lebanon's signing of the U.S.-mediated accord, Libya earlier this week recalled its ambassador from Beirut. The Lebanese government retaliated by recalling its ambassador from Tripoli.

The agreement signed Tuesday ends a 55-year state of war between Israel and Lebanon, calls for the pullout of 30,000 Israeli troops and sets up a security zone near Lebanon's southern frontier with the Jewish state.

Israel will withdraw its troops only if 40,000 Syrian and 50,000 Palestine Liberation Organization forces also leave Syria and the PLO, however, have condemned the accord.

Model Should Nail Issue, Hands Down

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my fiancée's mother. She's an outstanding woman who has spent most of her married life as a professional hair model and must take good care of my hands and fingernails to keep work...

When I visit the ranch with my fiance, his mother ridicules me for presenting my "precious" hands. Recently when she and her daughter were camping, my fiance witnessed my help thinking a lot. Richard? I'm sure he meant well, but when I asked "Mother" for a pair of rubber gloves as a gift, she said, "If my cousin Jane had a daughter, I'd give her too much for you. Richard will surely starve, and his home will be a pigpen after you two are married."

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been divorced for two years now, but there's something I need to know. Does he have the right to tell the children he's not supporting them?

DEAR JUST ASKING: I want to be married to my best friend, but he would say about his future and the way "Well, Mother always say what on her mind."

DEAR HANDS DOWN: I'm in DENVER. DEAR HANDE: You can stop expecting Richard to take care of you. You can start telling your future mother-in-law what's on your mind. For openness: "Your judgments."

When I go shopping, I have to be very careful not to say anything that fits me too tight. I can't even wear a bathing suit or T-shirt without stuffing my left side to match my right side.

I can't take it any longer. I was thinking of plastic surgery, but I can't afford it and neither can my mother. Please help me, Abby. I am tired of crying so much over this. I hate my body and the older I get, the worse I feel about it. S. Sign one.

DEAR MIRRABLE: Please don't get up on the idea of plastic surgery. Perhaps you can find a profession designer who will help you come out in one way or another. This may sound silly to you, but I find there is a hospital supply store that sells prosthetics. From rubber "legs" used by paraplegics to insert into your legs. They look kind of like the real thing.

DEAR MIRRABLE: If you just put off writing more because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's new book, "The Art of Writing Letters." Send $2 and a long, stamped 37-cent stamp to Abby, c/o The Book Company, 10000 N. Central Expressway, P.O. Box 28023, Dallas, Texas 75228.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Similar Symptoms In Stress, Hypoglycemia

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently a woman wrote to me about hypoglycemia. She listed symptoms that were similar to mine but I was diagnosed as being under stress. I had been seeing a psychologist for some time and had not the slightest hope has been raised.

In addition to the symptoms I have had, I have had sensations of crawling or tingling about the neck and arms and legs. I weigh 150 pounds and am 5 feet 6 inches tall. I am not under any stress that I know of. I'm married with two sons, ages 7 and 1.

I've had a fasting blood test but not a test where you are given sugar during testing. Should I leave well enough, alone and accept the stress diagnosis? I'm not eating and have an appetite but it's not a healthy one.

DEAR READER — Mental stress or emotional stress causes the body to produce adrenaline. The body's reaction to adrenaline causes the nervous system, sweating, faintness, a fast heart and other symptoms we ascribe to anxiety.

When your blood glucose level falls it causes your body to produce adrenaline to increase adrenaline causes your liver to pour out glucose to more normal levels.

DEAR READER — You may have hypoglycemia as a result of the same symptoms of sweating, faintness, a fast heart and other symptoms we ascribe to anxiety.

DEAR READER — You may have hypoglycemia or not without the test. Besides if you don't, removing the test will improve your response to therapy. Everybody has stress in life. There are varying degrees of stress. Actually stress is important in your

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY MAY 20, 1983

Planning your moves in advance will be important for this coming year. A sound blueprint enhances possibilities for success, so don't run a hasty or impulsive plan.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)

When confronted by a difficult situation today, keep a still upper lip. Your composure may seem invidious, but those you deal with will never know.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Patience is essential today if you hope to benefit from a joint venture. Your counterpart has things under control, even though he operates more slowly.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

You are already aware of everything that you are in the presence of a wise person.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Success is within your grasp today if your objectives are in proportion to your abilities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

When dealing with others, make a point to see that all are treated fairly. If you follow this rule, you'll get your share and perhaps more.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

An arrangement with another should turn out to be rewarding for you today, even though you are likely to play a minor role.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20)

Friends will welcome your company today, but try to keep your visits brief, whether by personal appearances or through chats on the phone.

Aries (March 21-April 19)

If you feel the urge today to add some artistic touches to your surroundings, jump in with both feet.
