Census bureau to collect data

The U.S. Census Bureau will collect data on employment and unemployment from residents in the Orlando MSA during the week of April 16-22 according to James Holmes, director of the bureau's Atlanta office. The area consists of Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

A bureau spokesman said the survey will include approximately 70 households in Seminole County.

The local labor force data will contribute to the national employment and unemployment picture to be released May 5 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Holmes stressed that information supplied by individuals to the Census Bureau will be kept confidential, by law. Only statistical totals are published.

This month's survey will include questions on food expenditures, program participation, and food sufficiency. This supplement will measure the prevalence of food insecurity and hunger in the United States.

In addition to the employment/unemployment study, the Census Bureau also will be conducting other surveys approximately each month in this area for a variety of subjects, again expecting to approach possibly 70 Seminole County households during each survey.

Possibly as many as 100 booths will be on hand representing restaurants, businesses, artists and civic organizations from the greater Oviedo area.

"This is a great opportunity for us to showcase the services of our members and the progress of our growing community," said Chamber President Jim Fox. "Based on the response we've received so far, we're anticipating an excellent turnout of participants and guests."

A full lineup of live entertainment as well as games and activities for youngsters are also being planned.

Persons interested in participating in the "Taste of Oviedo" are asked to contact the chamber office at 365-6500.

SANFORD — Without a community-wide effort to help the poor, Mother Weaver says emphatically that they are being left behind. Blanche "Mother" Bell Weaver has spent a lifetime helping people. She runs Seminole County's only homeless shelter, is pastor of the Rescue Church of God, and has raised a number of abandoned children. She doesn't like what she

Wrecks knot interstate traffic for second day

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — One highway mishap on busy Interstate-4 Friday led to two others.

The accidents knotted travel on the busy highway through Seminole County for the second day in a row. On Thursday, an overturned tanker truck stopped traffic when a spill of hydrochloric acid caused traffic in both directions to be diverted off the interstate for several hours.

The first was a 12:25 p.m. just north of the Lake Mary-Boulevard interchange. In that case, a 1981 Kawasaki motorcycle was unable to stop when traffic in front of it was stopped. The motorcycle struck the back of a pickup truck.

Silas Pouch, 11, and his father Ronald Kittle, 38, of Orange City were thrown from the bike.

An approaching tractor trailer, driven by Linda Hajdo of Michigan was able to screech to a halt a few feet from the injured father and son.

According to Lake Mary Police, Kittle was treated at the scene for minor cuts and bruises, but his son was transported to Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Women.

A hospital spokesman said he remained in fair condition with head injuries on Saturday.

A short time later, there was a single-vehicle wreck, which occurred approximately 900 feet west (toward Orlando) from the SR-46 overpass at approximately 1:03 p.m.

According to Sanford police Commander Dennis Whitmire, the Sanford area wreck occurred as westbound traffic began to slow down because of the wreck at the Lake Mary exit.

"At this time, a 1984 Chevrolet Suburban, heading west, was reportedly forced off the road onto the shoulder, as another vehicle tried to interfere with the Suburban's lane of travel."

Whitmire said the vehicle veered off the roadway and overturned.

Five persons were in the vehicle, driven by Donna M. Overbaugh, 40, of Catskill, N.Y. Passengers included her husband Richard, 52, 14-year old Jonathan Dees, 7-year old Andrew Overbaugh, and 15-year old Jason Meanlous.

Whitmire indicated that Meanlous was reportedly the most seriously injured, and was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center.

Dees and the Overbaugh boys repeatedly received only minor injuries. Overbaugh was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital in

Live theater hits Sanford streets

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Live theater will virtually hit the streets of downtown Sanford Saturday, April 22 when the Ritz Community Theater presents a "Patio Dinner Theater" evening, in Rand Alley just east of Cafe Jakes.

Eight theatrical vignettes, produced by Deborah Mullins, overall chairman, will be performed. She will also appear in several of the productions.

Master of ceremonies will be Rob Labby, with Marty Connell and Kathy Laughlin as directors.

"This is only a taste of what we will be able to do when we get the old Ritz Theater restored and in full swing," said Mullins. Although she lives in Orlando, she said she loves the idea of reviving live theater in the downtown Sanford area.

Short scenes will include "Southern Exposures" with Sean Blair and Brian Shields; "The Gingerbread Lady" with Deborah Mullins and Jim Stolper; "Loose Ends" with Wendy Womble and Mike Conner; "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolfe" highlighted by Helen Schuh and Tom Ferguson; "Elephant Man" with Stolper and Patty Bender; "Father's Day" starring Punky Leonard and Marty Connell; "Night Mother" with Helen Schuh and Patty Bender; and "Born Yesterday" with Deborah Mullins and Marty Connell.

Several of the actors are familiar with work in Central Florida. Both Connell and Conner acted in "Passenger 57," filmed partially in Sanford. Connell was also in "Fortune Hunter" and

Egg-ceptional hunting at the zoo

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Darting from tree to tree in the sparkling late morning sun at the Central Florida Zoo on Saturday, they peeked under piles of leaves and in hollow spots in the trunks, occasionally stashing away an edible goodie and moving on.

Perhaps the animals, too, had a chance at the food.

But first it was the children who descended on the grounds at the zoo. In search of the elusive golden eggs, the children raced about searching through the eggs, most of which were hidden in plain view. Behind festive pink tape, strung between trees, their parents stood to cheer them on.

"This is so exciting," said Meryl Dean, whose daughter Kendall, 4, was taking part in her third egg hunt at the zoo. "This is the first time she's been able to go out on her own."

The Zoo's hunt, now in its 17th year, is divided into hunts for toddlers, 4 to 6 year olds and 7 to 10 year olds. Only in the first category can parents accompany their children on their quest.

"We've been coming here for eight years with the kids," said Davis Langdon. "This is one of those great family traditions that we all look forward to. The kids love it. My wife and I love it. We really enjoy the atmosphere and the fact that we can go to the zoo afterward."

Zeeana Lane, 9, was less impressed with the event. "It is so uncool," she said, rolling her eyes. "Mom said I had to come, but I think egg hunts are so completely for kids."

Lane's sister, Talla Stevens, 5, was more excited about the egg hunt.

"I want to find the prize egg and I want to get into the zoo and see the monkeys," she said.

Between hunts, representatives of AM 950 "Radio

Aaaaahs" a new radio station geared toward children, were on hand to distribute stickers, introduce themselves and cheer on the hunters.

Representatives of Saturn of Orlando were also on hand to fingerprint the children in a child safety kit where parents can fill in the youngsters' vital statistics and insert a photo.

"This is great," said Sharon Kincaid. "There is something for all of us and it's an atmosphere that really cares about kids."

Andrea Farmer, marketing specialist for the zoo, was "thrilled" with the crowds at this year's event. There were so many toddler participants, she said, that a second hunt had to be arranged for that age group.

"But the weather is perfect," she said. "I couldn't have asked for a better day for this."

Zoo volunteers hid more than 6,000 eggs for the event. Still youngsters had to be limited to five eggs apiece to be sure everyone had the opportunity to find at least one.

"My son found seven, so I made him put two back," said Dennis Lord. "I think there are kids out there who haven't found any. There are just so many kids out here. I think they'll need to get more eggs next year."

Mission

sees happening in the Sanford community.

"People should be concerned about the poor, and show more love and compassion," said Weaver in an interview Saturday morning. "The sense of community is really lacking. It's a shame to say it, but nobody seems concerned."

"No one wants to stay in a mission. Welfare checks go quickly to rent, electricity and eating. People won't give you a job without a permanent place to stay. Imagine if you were walking the streets, unable to find a job. You don't know what you would do unless it happens."

Mother Weaver would like people who aren't poor to come to the mission and see first-hand what goes on.

"Politicians and others should take a tour and see what's happening," said Weaver. "People who represent districts like this don't see the dope across the street and dilapidated houses. People in this shelter can't cross the street, because there's so much crime."

Rescue Outreach Mission and the church face each other across 13th street in the west Sanford community of Goldstone. The Mission is housing "more homeless this year than ever," said Weaver. The plight of the poor is certainly not isolated to Sanford.

The Mission receives people from all over central Florida. Weaver said 75 percent are from Seminole County, Orlando is sending people, and some even arrive from Lake County.

"It's terrible," said Weaver. "Men come in here with blisters on their feet from walking so far. One lady came in here with six children. A man came in with four children and no wife. There are people sleeping in the woods, and they have to come out when it's too cold. It's all races -- black, white and hispanic."

The purpose of the mission is to help people be "independent, not dependent," said Weaver. The Labor Pool comes to the mission every morning to take the men to work.

"It's worse right now for everyone -- men, women and children," said Weaver. "It's harder to keep up with the men. For young men, we stress going back to school the same way we do for women. There's often not much you can do to help the older men find work."

"Some women can find work, receive federal aid, and find places to live. The children have to go to school. If they don't go within 10 days after coming here, I'll call the school authorities."

The Mission holds literacy and drug programs every Tuesday and Thursday. Mother Weaver is also proud of her church's youth program. With many young people attending, it raises money for educational grants. The assistance is not limited to just church members.

Without money for even bus tickets, the Mission can't transport people to get medical help or seek employment. Its capacity to help people is stretched to the limit, as is Mother Weaver.

The 71-year old works long days even when she's sick, as she was Saturday. There is a serious need for volunteers and other help.

Mother Weaver lamented the lack of Easter activities at the Mission, saying "we can't send children to the parks or any other place. There's no money, and we need a van."

Mother Weaver hopes construction will begin on a new shelter for women and children in May. She says it will be designed for education, vocational training and counseling.

The way we were: 1950 junior high

Several of you seemed to like the articles I wrote using the 1944 Celery Fed, so for a few columns I'll be using information from two editions of the 1950 San-Ju-Hi News. This publication was produced by Sanford Junior High students; our sponsor was Mrs. Margaret Golt, eighth grade English teacher. Principal was Mr. R.E. True.

These were the only two editions we published that year and they were dated March 31 and June 6, 1950. Each copy was mimeographed, had 12 pages, and was surprisingly well written. Ellen Lyon was editor-in-chief.

I was a reporter and also chairman of the proofreaders. We proofreaders (or typists) let a lot of mistakes creep into the first edition, but did a much better job on the second.

Each section (class) had a reporter who gave news of its students' activities. I'll inform you of the more interesting items reported. Section I - 7th Grade - Outhouses' Go-Getters In March, this section was ahead in the stamp sale, according to Colleen Engbreton. They had a new pupil, Mary Frances Henderson, from Greensboro, N.C.

Larry Bates was chosen as best sport and James Nettles was the most valuable player in the Junior Baseball League. Others playing from this section were Grady Johnson and Bob Shoemaker.

Gossip - Cupid still reigned over Bob and Sonja. (I assume this was Bob Shoemaker with Sonja Monforton.) L.A. couldn't think of anything except Margaret Morrison, a ninth grader. (Clue us in on L.A., Margie!)

Section II - 7th Grade - Rumbley's Angels

Mrs. Belle Rumbley was a geography teacher, so reporter Barbara Hall informed us that geography notebooks had been handed in. For the unit on oil, someone had placed an item in his notebook about the horse oil derrick! Someone else had sent to Tallahassee for information on Florida's water supply and all she received was an invitation to visit Florida's capital.

The girls from this section were the seventh grade softball champions.

To entertain the May Day King and Queen, this class chose the skit "It'll Never Happen in Junior High." It was about a room full of bad students who finally got spanked.

Section III - 7th Grade - Mrs. Stine's Mumbling Bees

Joan Wilke reported that those from this section who were trying out for the spelling bee were Sally Coulter, Marvin McKinley, Donald Kelly, and Robert Gonzalez.

Section IV - 7th Grade - Miss Richter's Little Demons

The girls in this section were

GRACE M. STINE-CIPHER

swooning over two students, Bobby Henderson and Frank Simonelli, according to reporter Peggy Compton.

In June there were seven pupils in this section who hadn't missed a day of school.

Peggy Compton won the current science and aviation essay contest with her essay on the helicopter. Her prize was a plastic TWA model airplane.

Section I - 8th Grade - Golt's Gossipers

According to Jewel Cohen,

Easter Sunday

The First United Methodist Church Lenten banner was installed in the sanctuary this year to help the congregation remember Christ's last days on Earth, his death on Good Friday and culminating in his resurrection now celebrated as Easter Sunday, the highest Holy Day of the Christian faith. The banner was designed by Gary Shiplett and completed by the Altar Guild, with each of the eight squares colored by third, fourth and fifth graders. Florida No. 1 in boating deaths

As National Safe Boating Week approaches, the Florida Marine Patrol is trying to change Florida's hold on being the most dangerous state in the nation for getting on a boat.

Florida leads the nation in total boating accidents and those in which people have been drinking. It runs a close second for the number of boating deaths and accidents.

In 1993, the last year for which statistics have been compiled, 56 accidents were caused by drunk boaters in Florida, followed by 27 in California.

That year, Florida had 995 boating accidents and California followed with 717. In boating deaths that year, California led with 56 and Florida had 54. Two years ago, California had 87 boating deaths while Florida had 63.

The marine patrol says that 78 percent of the victims were thrown out of the boat and 79 percent of them weren't using life vests and other flotation devices.

The marine patrol says the state is reaping the bloody results of refusing to pass rigid safety laws, such as requiring most children to wear life preservers.

A salute for the Army

Good planning. Officials at the Salvation Army headquarters in Sanford have denied they are moving, and will continue to operate at the same facility.

The only change is a need to have an additional facility further south, to serve the needs of cities such as Altamonte Springs, Casselberry, Longwood, Winter Springs and Oviedo.

The Salvation Army districts are organized along county lines. Even people who may be Seminole County residents in such areas as Hacienda Village in Winter Springs, would be required to use Salvation Army facilities in Seminole County rather than those closer in the Orlando area.

As a result, there is expected to be an expansion of facilities. We see this as a sincere move aimed at being of more assistance to more people.

The Salvation Army offers many opportunities and much assistance for people in all walks of life. One of the problems is that a large portion of our population has no idea of this service.

To some, the Salvation Army is only visible at Christmas time when they are ringing bells next to the kettles, to help unfortunate people. To others, the Salvation Army is only a brass band often found at a street corner.

The movies and many television shows show Salvation Army bands. Generally they consist of a half dozen people who generally play slightly out of tune, but always in the most rundown sections of a city.

Some realize the Salvation Army is a religious organization, which is true.

It goes a great deal further however. It offers support for people in difficulties, acts as go-between in certain matters involving local citizens and overseas agencies, and help during major disasters and emergencies.

The Army provide activities for youngsters ranging from sports to homework assistance, and even to baby sitting when necessary.

We are pleased the local Salvation Army will continue to operate in Sanford. We also applaud the decision to have additional facilities in the county. By doing this, they will be better able to help everyone in every way. And after all, this is an Army which is dedicated in doing exactly that.

LETTER

Political boards

Re your April 11 story about A.A. 'Mac' McClanahan being appointed to the Planning and Zoning Commission: I have to ask the question of why is McClanahan being appointed to all these boards? We citizens thought we'd gotten rid of him in last year's election.

I have been approached by a number of citizens asking me if I knew what was going on. When Lon Howell nominated McClanahan to the city's Charter Advisory Committee just two weeks ago, I figured it was because old cronies stick together. Besides Lon Howell's commission seat will be taken care of in next year's election. But when Commissioner Eckstein nominated McClanahan for the Planning and Zoning board, you can bet that something's afoot. Now we see McClanahan slowly getting his sticky fingers back into the city pie. One would think that Commissioner Eckstein would realize that if the citizens really wanted this guy back in local politics that they would have re-elected him last year.

With so many citizens to choose from in filling these positions, you'd think they would do better than this. All that's happening is that they are putting the same parasites back into positions where they can still influence our local policies. It's a way where politicians the people do not want can slip right in through the back door.

The only thing that the citizens of Sanford can look forward to is that there will be a lot of new faces on the commission next year, not to mention a new mayor. That will effectively close McClanahan out, and like a weed deprived of any nourishment, he'll dry up and blow away.

Education: Gateway to opportunity

All American children are entitled to a public education. Education has always been considered the gateway to opportunity. This is abundantly clear as technological advances make it imperative that skills be acquired. If one is to be competitive in the world marketplace, in Seminole County one of the salient educational issues is school redistricting.

Members of the Seminole County school board approached redistricting by seeking broad-based community involvement in developing a redistricting plan. The school board appointed a task force comprised of stakeholder groups; parents, members of the business community and educators. The task force had its first meeting to unveil the five redistricting plans at Lyman High School. The plans have been designated as plan A, B, C, D and E. Two of the five plans were computer generated.

Public input throughout the district is being sought through a series of meetings. Two have already been held, April 3 at Lake Mary High School and April 6, at Seminole High School. The last meeting in this series is to be held April 18 at Oviedo High School.

The next step in the process is for the task force to compile the information generated at the public meeting and present it to the school board. Naturally, the school board members will make the final decision.

The school board is philosophically committed to insuring that redistricting will be done equitably. Schools are allocated funding based upon the number of students in attendance (FTE) Full Time Equivalent, unless there are special needs.

Parameters that the school board will be observing in considering redistricting are: the federal court order relative to the social composition of schools; seeing that school zones are as compact as possible and to minimize creating future problems.

Current enrollment for the high schools are: Lake Brantley 2720, Lake Howell 2494, Lake Mary 2581, Lyman 2363, Oviedo 2332 and Seminole 2071. The numbers of students enrolled at Seminole High School has been of concern to parents for sometime, given the fact that basic funding is allocated in consonance with the number of students. The Health Academy, Seminole's magnet school is projected for completion in the fall 1995. Five hundred additional students will be accommodated at that time. The rebuilding of Lake Howell will necessitate a downsizing and a decrease in the number of students.

The allocation of resources is also tied to individual school need. If one begins with the premise that education is the gateway to opportunity and the majority of students can learn, then it logically follows that the needs of students who are not learning must be addressed.

Innovative programs and flexible staffing patterns are employed to facilitate student learning. Currently, Midway Elementary School and Pinecrest Elementary School are being dramatically changed in an effort to increase student performance.

Community members interested in education should avail themselves of the opportunity to participate in the current redistricting effort. Remember the next meeting is at Oviedo High School, April 18. Additional information may be obtained by calling the school administrative office, 322-1252.

The world has changed a lot

I am a Republican and a conservative. Now many of my readers would take great umbrage with this statement, but still, that's how I view myself. The traditional definition of such a being would be a person who believes that:

- 1) Less government is good, and it should stay at home.
- 2) He* who pulls himself up by the bootstraps is the better for it.
- 2a) Correspondingly — no one deserves a free ride.
- 3) An eye for an eye with the right to bear arms.
- 4) Women should be on the bottom, and be grateful for what they get.

* — a conservative is always male, as the female should be home watching the youngins' ...

Okay, that's all well and good, insofar as it goes. Unfortunately, tenets such as those went out with the 1950s, and the world has changed a lot. I think it all came about with three very distinct factors with those being the cornerstones upon which our lives now revolve. The innovations in question are the advent of a means of transit faster than a horse, Rosie the Riveter, and the Boob Tube. Don't believe me? Well in the next few paragraphs, let me try and prove my point. The above three revolutionary progressions all represent major changes in the way the people in this world were able to interact and as each hitherto almost undreamed of step was made, the world was to never be the same again.

Before the first plane or car or bus or train was designed, a basic family unit was one which with minor exception was born, raised and died within perhaps 25 miles or so of an original spot. Oh sure, there were always the explorers and soldiers who might cross vast space to obtain that which they sought, but it wasn't until the means for mass transportation first came forth that the "common man" began to be on the move. It was at that point when the disintegration of the basic family structure really began. The great westward migration occurred from the days of Columbus, but when the trains came along, whoa. Then suddenly the movement of a family over hundreds or even thousands of miles could easily be accomplished in a mere few days or weeks. With modern interstate highway systems and planes surrounding us today, well ... what is the current length of a trip to L.A. these days anyway? Me, I've got a mother in Kentucky, a brother in Wyoming, a sister in New Mexico, and an untold number of other relatives spread amongst most of the remaining 50 odd states. I'd venture that my family is "disintegrated" somewhat.

Turning to Miss Rosie now. When the big one, old World War II came around, suddenly there was a real necessity to bringing the previously barefoot and pregnant out into the paid work force, to replace their more macho male superior beings who were then off saving democracy. Unfortunately for those protectors of the faith, when they came home, not everyone of those women wanted to give up the less restricting life of an employed person, and it didn't seem to matter to some of them whether they were with or without children at home. The point for many of these "feminists" was that they no longer had to "ask" for some of the things that made life more interesting, and they could even be contributors to the kind of life the future might bring. Putting the debate about welfare moms (or dads for that matter) aside for a moment, women could if they wished, virtually do and have it all, sans men if they wished. The result? Today there are very few family units (no matter how they are composed) that can have it all on one income. You came a long way baby ... and it's your own darned fault if you don't like it.

This leaves us with the invention of the television or perhaps more aptly, Mr. Marconi's radio. One hundred years ago, news was something which was fresh within a day's ride, state within perhaps two or three, and something which really didn't matter much if it happened halfway around the world. To be sure the events might have taken their toll eventually on the unconcerned receiver of that news not directly from within his own community, but still ... it just wasn't relevant.

Ever since we could obtain current events from a long ways off at virtually the same time it occurred, the world has been getting smaller, and the events much more germane. Today, a nerve gas bombing in Tokyo is as important to our quality of life as a major traffic alteration out upon the interstate. And the more news we get, the more we seem to devour. Heck, there's so much of it we dabble, everything but the stuff we wish to know about, being fully cognizant that tomorrow there will be plenty more to come.

Well, as this article started out, I declared myself a conservative and a Republican. So because of those three factors, and under current conditions, perhaps I should just stop worrying about my labels, and concentrate upon how life in the next 50 years is going to come out. Besides, I really don't want any of you nice readers (it's up to four confirmed!) to link me to ol' Newt up there in Washington. ... Could turn me liberal if you did, and none of us wants that.

Saudi reforms have yet to happen

WASHINGTON — For one brief, shining moment in November 1990, 47 middle-aged Saudi Arabian women did the unthinkable: They drove.

The women were emboldened by female American soldiers who were in the Saudi desert preparing for war against Iraq. The least they could do, these women thought, was empower themselves — get behind a steering wheel and conduct a drive-in.

This unthinkable occurrence happened despite Saudi rules that forbid women to drive. It's one of the most visible restrictions in a country of world-class wealth where women are still regarded as second-class citizens. The 47 women who dared to break the rules have long since been silenced.

Four years after the Gulf War, any hopes that Saudi Arabia would grant its citizens more freedom have gone unfulfilled. Despite secret assurances by top Saudi officials to American leaders (including then-President George Bush) that the country would begin reforms, Saudi Arabia today is every bit as restrictive today as it was before the war. Democracy is a dream that has receded into the past.

During consultations with Saudi officials prior to Operation Desert Storm, American officials politely suggested that post-war relations would be greatly helped if Saudi Arabia loosened up a bit — perhaps by holding votes or referendums on certain key issues. The suggestions were greeted by big smiles and nods of the head — which the Americans took as a sign of progress.

Instead, Saudi Arabia has regressed. The $60 billion tab for the Gulf War has been processed and paid. The government still answers only to King Fahd, and pays no heed at all to America. "If they're threatened again, they figured they can rent the American Army again," a discouraged American diplomat to the Middle East told our associate Dale Van Atta. "One Saudi official even said to me, rather brazenly: 'We don't have to be like you to buy you.'"

Some State Department officials act as apologists when the subject of human rights is broached. They say that it's smart of Saudi Arabia to show religious conservatism because it helps keep fanatics from gaining ground as they have in Iran and Algeria.

In Saudi Arabia today, there is no such thing as freedom of the press or freedom of assembly — in fact, there's not even freedom of religion for Islamic preachers. Anyone who even hints of complaining about the royal government may find themselves out of the pulpit and silenced.

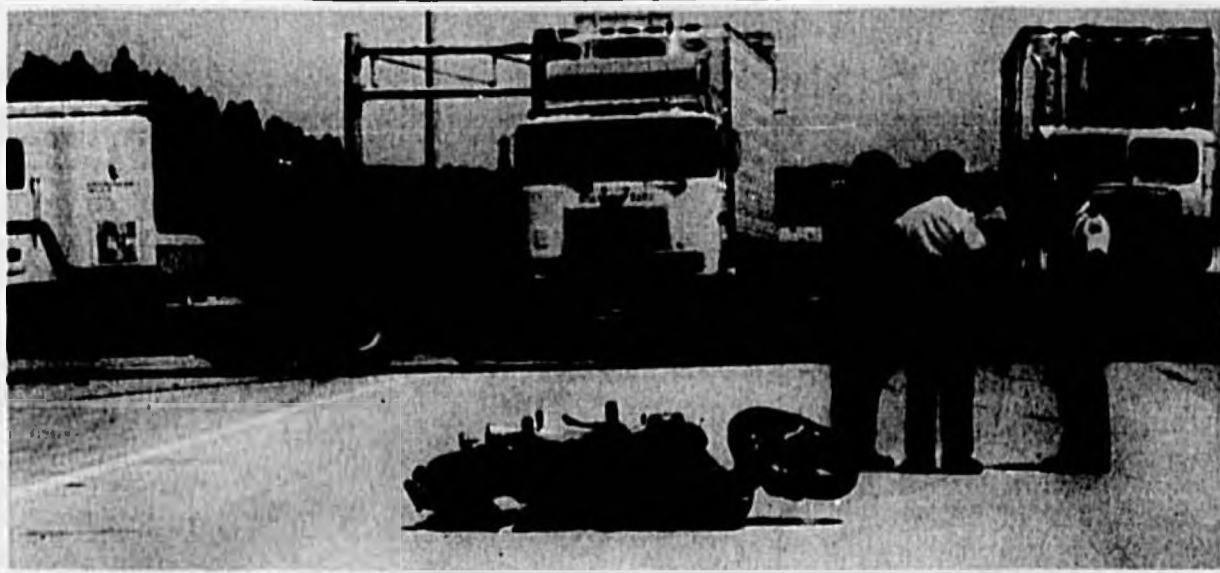

While knowledgeable Saudi Arabia watchers say the country has been this way for decades, what really portends a break with the past is the taste of freedom provided by the presence of American troops. Despite official warnings, Islamic clerics and their parishioners found American soldiers generally well-behaved, sober and respectful of local customs. The outright ban on liquor — and extensive briefings on cultural differences — went a long way on this score.

While expectations were high in the countryside that Saudi Arabia would liberalize after Desert Storm, the royal government had other ideas. The government claims that as the keepers of the holy mosques in Mecca and Medina, Saudis have an obligation to be more conservative than other Muslims. Our own sources believe it has more to do with using religion to suppress dissent against a corrupt royal family.

Punishments for law-breaking remain severe.

For one brief, shining moment in November 1990, 47 middle-aged Saudi Arabian women did the unthinkable: They drove.

Sanford for treatment. Neither of the adults sustained serious injuries. "We aren't able to identify the vehicle which forced the Overbaugh's vehicle off the interstate," Whitmire said. "The driver didn't stop, and by the time we arrived, he was probably long gone from the area."

No charges are expected to be filed at the present time. Finally, at about 2:30 p.m., a third crash sent a pick up truck crashing into the median after a woman taking to her passenger smashed into it.

The pick up truck flipped over. Neither occupant was seriously injured, according to the Lake Mary police department.

(SHIP) program funds. An additional $200,000 is budgeted for rehabilitation coupled with homeownership assistance to be used for the purchase of existing units.

The AHAP plan is due to the state by May 2. In March, the county commissioners meeting with Community Development Office staff said assistance be provided exclusively to very low and low income households (no moderate income households) in this second, three-year SHIP program plan. In addition, the commissioners said the SHIP Program funds be used to provide the required match for annual HOME Program funds provided through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In December, the county commission determined that there are three major ways that it can help its residents with their housing affordability problems:

Homeownership: Programs that, through either down payment assistance or developer's incentives, reduce the cost of homeownership for the home buyer. These programs focus on young, working, low and upper range very low income households that can make a mortgage payment but lack the necessary down payment and available cash to buy a house.

Existing households: Rehabilitation programs help to keep older, less expensive housing in standard condition. Rehabilitation programs typically provide assistance to older very low income home owners who need help in maintaining their homes and in reducing the cost of their housing maintenance. Emergency repair programs assist in making a dilapidated unit livable until it can either be rehabilitated or replaced, for example, reconstructed.

Low Income Rentals: Assistance is offered necessary to reduce rents to 30 percent of income for households who cannot yet (or may never) qualify for homeownership, yet need affordable rental housing.

Some good eggs

The Pre-Kindergarten students at Page Private School had their traditional Easter Egg Hunt this past week. While all the plastic eggs contained tasty treats, some very special golden eggs held special treasures. Vincent Howard, 4; Michael Mahoney, 3; Katelynne Veaudry, 3, and Vinnie Squillante, 5, were the big winners in the hunt. The school's older students had an egg hunt of their own later in the day.

Perinatal care available at home

Many new mothers today are finding themselves and their newborns being sent home from the hospital or birthing center within 24 hours after delivery. The Visiting Nurse Association is developing a perinatal care program for new mothers at home. The VNA Maternal-Newborn program offers the new mother pre-natal consult with the same nurse who will then visit her at home within 48-72 hours after delivery. During this visit, the nurse can teach newborn care, breast feeding techniques, and post-partum instructions in an environment where the mother is more relaxed, rested, and able to concentrate on learning with ample opportunity for questions. At this time, the nurse also assesses both mother and newborn, identifying any signs of complications before they become serious.

For more information about VNA Maternal-Newborn services for you, a friend or family member, contact the Visiting Nurse Association at 1-800-458-9420.

CFRH offers new classes

By Vicki DeSommer
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Central Florida Regional Hospital offers a variety of classes to help the community on the road to better health.

Two new courses will begin on Thursday, April 20.

The first, "Diabetes: Take Control," a diabetes education course will last six weeks. It will meet every Thursday from 3 to 4 p.m. in the hospital's classroom.

"Our program educates diabetics and their families about the disease," said Carol Proenza, R.D. "Also, the contact with other diabetics lets the person know that they're not the only one with the disease. So, in addition to the information that we provide, they also receive helpful hints in managing their disease from each other."

In addition, the Baby Place at CFRH is offering a nine-week pre-natal class beginning at 7 p.m. on April 20. The classes will be held in the hospital's classroom.

The series will begin with two early pregnancy classes focusing on the first five months of pregnancy, followed by a class for pregnant teenagers, a class on breastfeeding and three labor and delivery classes.

Advance registration is required for the classes. For more information, call the hospital at 321-4500.

Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week

Central Floridians have been 'very generous' with the gift of life

By Vicki DeSommer
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Most people don't want to think about their own mortality...never mind what might happen to their body beyond that.

But the lives of many others could be saved by those who take the time and the action to make arrangements ahead of time.

This is National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week and the representatives at TransLife, the largest organ and tissue bank in the state, hope that residents of Seminole County and the rest of central Florida will take the necessary steps to become organ and tissue donors.

According to Kathy Driscoll of TransLife, the Central Florida area had the highest organ donor rate in the country during 1994.

"We're very pleased with the generosity of central Floridians," Driscoll said. "But we hope we can get more people to understand the gift they can offer through organ donation."

During this awareness week, TransLife will be conducting an informational campaign at local hospitals. They will also make donor cards available at the Altamonte Mall on April 29.

Donor cards are always available at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford and at other area hospitals. Cards can also be sent through the mail by calling TransLife at 897-5580.

Driscoll said a recent national survey indicated that Americans are "vastly in favor" of the concept of organ and tissue donation. Still, less than half of those who indicated support for the concept had taken the necessary steps to ensure that their organs could be harvested in the event of their death.

"People need to make a decision about becoming an organ donor and they need to talk about it with their families and loved ones," Driscoll said.

It is important, she noted, to let your survivors know of your intentions to donate your organs or tissues. If they don't know or understand your wishes, grieving family and loved ones may make a decision to not donate your organs.

Driscoll said people who don't discuss their desire to donate their organs with their survivors often leave them with a difficult decision to make at a difficult time.

Often, a member of the clergy is called upon to help make that decision.

Driscoll said TransLife has contacted many members of the clergy to offer their assistance in offering advice to grieving families.

"A lot of the time the clergy doesn't even know that their religions not only allow organ donation, they encourage it," Driscoll explained.

She said all of the "mainstream" religions strongly endorse the concept of organ and tissue donation. They see it as a way to continue to do good and to help others, she explained.

During National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week,

Locals talk about organ donations

By Vicki DeSommer
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Marc Stevens has thought about giving his organs to others after he dies, he said, but he hasn't done anything about it.

"It's one of those things that you think about when you hear about someone's life being saved with a donated heart or whatever, but you never think about it any other time," Stevens said.

Stevens admitted, however, that even if he had the choice he probably wouldn't sign a donor card right now.

"It's kind of like signing a death certificate," he said.

Lauren Clark said she has signed a card and has all the pertinent information on her driver license.

"It's like my ultimate thank you note to God for my life," she said. "I want to give something that will help someone live life more fully."

Clark noted that she won't need her "physical body" after her death so she has no problem offering her organs and tissues to others.

Sharon King said she is afraid to sign a donor card.

"What if I'm dying, but I could be saved and someone who could afford to buy someone off made sure I died so they could have the organs they wanted?" she asked. "I'm not giving them permission to do that."

Bill Gray said he disagrees with King's position.

"It seems paranoid to me," he said. "I think donating organs is a perfectly fine idea."

He has not, however, signed a donor card

Driscoll said, local donor families (those who have given the organs and/or tissues of a loved one) are taking part in a number of activities both locally and in Washington, D.C.

Most are visiting area hospitals and informational encouraging others to help others in the same way they were able to. They want to see to it that people have the same opportunity to help they were afforded through organ donation.

"Central Floridians have been very generous and we hope that through this week of awareness, they will take this opportunity to make the decision and talk about it with their loved ones," Driscoll said.

A most special greeting for the season

By Renee Keith

With an abundance of heartfelt compassion and a true desire to help people, Dottie Gleck, simply put, "loves to celebrate life."

As a patient care technician for Central Florida Artificial Kidney Center, Gleck sees daily the long-term suffering her patients must endure. So, to brighten their otherwise dark days she dresses herself up on costumes that match the theme of the current holiday.

Drawing from her own recent health problems, (Gleck is currently in remission from Hodgkins Disease) she knows all too well the rigors one must go through when their getting weekly treatments. With that very thought in mind, Gleck decided, health permitting, that when she was able to return to work, she would make holidays very special for her patients. And there is no disputing how greatly her efforts are appreciated.

According to Diana Brink, a kidney dialysis patient at the center, "She (Gleck) is so very special. We patients know that she is very busy but she still takes extra steps to try to make our pain-filled lives more bearable."

Gleck is the mother of four grown children, her son, Leo, is 20 years old, her daughter, Angie, is 19 years old, and her twin sons, Isaiah and Jeremiah, are 17 years old. Gleck is also an accomplished writer. She has written a book detailing her childhood years and also writes poetry most recently an Easter poem called "Heaven's Door."

Gleck has learned just how important even the littlest things in life can be. Her motto in life is "I want to make a positive impression on everyone I meet." Her poem is offered in the spirit of Easter.

HEAVEN'S DOOR

When I was just a little girl
Of three (or maybe four)
I played inside a meadow that
Was known as "Heaven's Door."

Each season brought to anyone Who played within that place
A different kind of feeling.
All was good, in any case.

Summer brought the sunshine
and
The brook was full of life.
We splashed and swam the whole day thru
Content, feeling no strife.

Fall brought brilliant colors
and
A breeze that stirred the brush.
We'd pile leaves and run thru them
It gave us such a rush.

Winter was a wonderland
With mounds of snow and ice.
We rode our sleighs and snow discs.
It was cold, yet oh so nice.

Then something happened.
Just like that
The meadow did transform
Winter became history.
Spring came in like a storm.

The trees began to fill with leaves
The grass turned soft and green.
The brook began to move again.
New life was clearly seen.

The scent of honeysuckle filled
The air and I could see
A butterfly, grasshoppers
and
A little bumble bee.

Baby rabbits, little squirrels,
Chirps inside each nest
Opened a new world for me.
I knew this was God's best.

He died, then rose on Easter,
oh
So very long ago,
Not just to tell a story, but
So all the world would know.

It's all so very simple, yes,
The choice is ours to make
The benefits are "ours" to reap —
It's not for "heaven's" sake.

Spring brings baskets, colored eggs,
Jelly beans galore,
Chocolate bunnies, malt balls,
too,
But there is so much more!

There's butterflies and baby birds,
There's bumble bees and squirrels,
There's little boys in tidy suits
And ruffled little girls.

There's rose buds and yes,
baby's breath
There's giggles from each child,
There's cockle shells and
hummingbirds,
And flowers that grow wild.

All these wonders represent
What life is all about.
Take the time, enjoy them
all,
You'll benefit, no doubt.

Love life to its fullest now
Cause this much you can bet,
With every morning's sunrise, there's
A time THAT sun will set.

So, reach within yourself and give What's there, then give some more,
Someday you'll have a meadow, too,
One you'll call "Heaven's Door."

This section presented a talent scout program on March 8 in the auditorium. Class members selected talented students from the other sections to entertain the school.

Those chosen to participate were Roberta Bowen, Rodman Brumley, Jeanne Lane Miller, Johnny Carter, Claudette Watts, Billy Park, Joni Saunders, and a sextette composed of Mona Jobe, Johnny Mae Fortson, Janie Bennett, Helen Alexander, Juanelle Starnes, and Delores Claburn.

The winner, selected by applause, was violinist Billy Park. His prize was 50 pennies, while his talent scout, Eugene Estridge, received 25 pennies.

Section II - 8th Grade - Hamill's Hotshots

Patty Walker reported that this section had two flower boxes and several potted plants which were taken care of by Nancy Rountree and Grace Marie Stinecpher. (My friends who know that I have a brown thumb will laugh at this. But "watering the plants" was a good excuse to get out of phys ed at least once a week!)

A play, "Say it With Flowers," was produced in chapel by this class. And everyone was proud that Paulette Cason from this section had been elected as May Queen.

Section III - 8th Grade - Burnsey's Brainless Brats

Milner Osborne reported that Vernon Brown was back in school after a bout with a leg infection. Also Mrs. Fleming, music teacher, was welcomed back after a long illness.

Section III's Jimmy Butler was the marble champ of the school, but he later lost to David Galloway from Sanford Grammar School.

Section IV - 8th Grade - Hammond's Humbergs

This group gave a one act play on March 1 entitled "Not so Simple as it Seems," according to reporter Sandra Dunn. Those who took part were Ronnie Anderson, Peggy Wright, Martha Owen, Stanley Katz, Polly Graham, Sandra Dunn, Jimmy Whalley, Lawrence Parker, Louise Benton, Rosemary Garner, Robert Borsdorf, and Lewis Daniels. Gibson Bates and Stanley Katz were welcomed back after long illnesses; Stanley had had the measles.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Gators blank Vandy

GAINESVILLE — Darren McClellan pitched a four-hit shutout and Florida scored all of its runs in the fourth inning en route to a 3-0 victory over Vanderbilt in a Southeastern Conference game Friday night.

Florida (24-14 overall, 5-5 SEC) broke open the close game in the fourth inning.

Chuck Hazard, who went 4-for-4 in Florida's victory Wednesday against Stetson, stroked a bases-loaded single off the left-field wall for one run and Chris Kokinda followed with a two-run single to make it 3-0.

The Commodores (16-17, 2-8) threatened only once in the game, as Josh Paul doubled off the left-field wall to lead off the seventh inning. McClellan worked through the jam, though, by striking out the side to end the inning.

McClellan (9-3) capped his career-high tying, 12-strikeout performance by fanning the side again in the ninth inning.

FSU outscored Miami

MIAMI — Doug Mientkiewicz tripled to drive in the winning run in the top of the 14th inning as Florida State went on to defeat Miami 9-6 at Mark Light Stadium Friday night.

Both teams are ranked in the Top Ten nationally and are bitter rivals.

Mientkiewicz sliced one that got by center fielder Ryan Grimmet with no outs to score pitcher Chuck Howell from first base.

The Seminoles scored two more runs off losing pitcher Dorian Gonzalez (1-1) in the 14th.

Phil Olson pitched a scoreless 14th for his sixth save of the year for the Seminoles.

Mientkiewicz was 3-for-7 with four RBIs on the game. The junior also drove in the tying runs with a two-run single in the ninth off closer Jay Teasler to bring FSU back from a 6-3 deficit.

Maddux gets chicken pox

NEW YORK — Greg Maddux, coming off a record third straight Cy Young Award, was diagnosed with chicken pox and is expected to miss his opening-day assignment for the Atlanta Braves against San Francisco April 26.

Tommy Greene, whom the Philadelphia Phillies wanted to be their No. 2 starter, reinjured his shoulder and will miss at least the first week of the season.

Attendance was up slightly in exhibition games. Crews made up of former major and minor league umpires, along with college and high school amateurs, are filling in for the locked-out big league umpes.

In player moves, the Red Sox agreed with free agent pitcher, Derek Lilliquist and claimed outfielder Troy O Leary on waivers from Milwaukee. The Brewers traded pitcher Scott Taylor to Texas for outfielder David Hulac.

Mr. Smith comes out

NORFOLK, Va. — College player of the year Joe Smith decided to take the big money instead of returning to Maryland.

The All-America center announced at a news conference that he plans to make himself eligible for the 1995 NBA draft.

The 6-foot-10 sophomore averaged 20.8 points, 10.4 rebounds and 2.9 blocks while helping Maryland to a 26-8 record. He was AP Player of the Year and Naismith College Basketball Player of the Year.

Grantham resigns

NEW YORK — Charles Grantham resigned as executive director of the NBA Players Association. He announced jointly with the union, citing irreconcilable differences over internal matters.

He was replaced, immediately by general counsel Simon Gourdine. Grantham held the position since Sept. 19, 1988.

Courier to face Agassi

TOKYO — After new world No. 1 Andre Agassi looked solid Saturday in reaching the Japan Open final, he said a back strain will force him out of a tournament next week.

But Jim Courier, his opponent Sunday in this $1.3 million tournament, doesn't expect to gain any points from Agassi's back problems.

"For Andre to be in the final of this tournament indicates to me that his back is really not too bad," Courier said.

Agassi reached the final with a 7-5, 6-2 victory over third-seeded Wayne Ferreira of South Africa, the world's 10th-ranked player.

Courier, who has slipped to 15th from his No. 1 ranking in late 1993, overcame fellow American Michael Chang 6-4, 7-5. He said it felt good "getting over the hump beating a top player in a big match."

Evans kicks past McManus for 3,200-meter win

By TONY BOSSNER
 Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Showing the speed and heart of a thoroughbred, Lyman junior Rob Evans ran down Lecanto's Sean McManus in the last 200 meters of the final lap to win the 3,200-meter run at Friday night's Lyman Invitational.

Evans, the Class 6A state cross country champion, trailed McManus, the Class 4A state cross country champ, by approximately 20 meters heading into the last of eight laps. With 200 meters to go, Evans still trailed by nearly 15 meters.

But he caught McManus on the final turn and passed him heading down the homestretch, finishing in 9 minutes, 35.9 seconds. McManus came in at 9:38.1.

The victory was Evans' second of the night.

earning him the boys' High Points Performer trophy with a total of 20 points. Earlier, he won the 1,600-meter run in 4:21.3.

Earning the High Points Performer award for the girls was Tara Bach of Pearl River, N.Y., who compiled 22½ points by winning both the triple jump (35 feet, 5¼ inches) and high jump (5-0), finishing seventh in the 300-meter low hurdles, and running a leg of Pearl River's seventh-place 4 x 400-meter relay.

According to Evans, he's been looking forward to a head-to-head competition with McManus.

"At the state cross country meet, his winning time was about four seconds faster than mine," said Evans of McManus. "I was thinking about that every step of the last two laps. But I was running on my home track in front of our fans. I wanted to win this race."

"Sean and I are really good friends, but this is just the second time we've run against each other. The only other time was in a cross country meet last season, where he finished third and I was ninth. I wanted to prove to myself that I could beat him."

His last-lap kick generated the excitement usually reserved for the 100-meter dash or 4 x 100-meter relay, bringing the fans — largely athletes from other teams — to their feet.

"I didn't want to start my kick too soon," said Evans. "Early in the race, I was battling a cramp I picked up in the 1,600. Once I got over that, I was fine."

Evans' winning dash in the 3,200 was a replay of the finish in the girls' 3,200, where Bishop Moore's Christy Miller and Kim Megdania of Pearl River (NY) ran step-for-step for 7¼ laps. Coming out of the final turn, Miller turned on the jets and ORLANDO — University of Central Florida baseball coach Jay Bergman has worked as hard as any individual in any profession to get to where he is today. . . riding a national-best 25-game win streak (through Friday) that saw him collect his 700th career victory.

A graduate of Winter Park High School and Rollins College, Bergman took the head coaching job at Leesburg High School before going to Appalachian State (N.C.) to get his Master's Degree.

Bergman then took on the unenviable task of starting a program from scratch at Seminole Junior College (now Seminole Community College) in 1988. He also served as an assistant basketball coach and worked summers at the local Goodyear store.

"I feel like I've paid my dues more than most," said Bergman prior to a doubleheader with Sanford on Saturday. "When we started at Seminole, we didn't have any place to practice, let alone play games. We practiced behind Sanford Memorial Stadium (Zinn Beck) □ See Bergman, Page 23

Pirates make rout of shootout

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Friday night's showdown between the last two undefeated teams in the Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League at Sanford Memorial Stadium ended in a rout, the Moose Lodge Pirates blasting the Rotary Club Royals 16-1 in a game stopped in the bottom of the fourth inning by the 15-run mercy rule.

Both teams, which were scheduled to play Saturday, will return to action Wednesday night, when the Pirates (5-0) face the Oviedo Marlins at Zinn Beck Field while the Royals (4-1) take on the Oviedo Cubs in the stadium.

The Royals struck first Friday as Randy Casey singled, stole second, and scored on Chad Sheffield's single. But that was it as Pirate pitchers Tug Daniels (three innings pitched) and Antonio White (one inning) retired the last 10 Royal hitters.

Leading the Pirate attack were White (triple, two singles, two runs, two RBI); Dante Hayes (double, two runs, two RBI); Jason Graham (double, run); and Daniels and Carl Arnold (each with a single, run, and an RBI).

Also chipping in were Donald White (two runs, two RBI); Willie Robinson (three runs); Justin Erickson (two runs); T.J. Thompson (run, RBI); and Alex Scott (run).

COCOA BEACH — Representatives from the Sanford Optimist Club swept the top spots at the Optimist International Regional Junior Golf Tournament played last Sunday, April 9, at the Cocoa Beach Country Club.

The tournament is for boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 17.

Jason Harger, a student at Lake Mary High School, won the boys' title by shooting a 72, then beating Brent Naylor (who represented the Cocoa Beach Optimist Club) in a sudden-death playoff.

Robin Rhein, who attends Lyman High School, carded a 76 to win the girls' crown.

Bunched behind Harger and Naylor were five boys tied for third at 73. Sanford Optimist Club representative Alan King (also Lyman High School) won the playoff for third place.

Seminole High School students Matt Kuchar and Tory Carl also shot 73's but lost out in the third-place playoff to King.

With their top-three finishes, Harger, Rhein, and King earn entry into the Optimist North Florida District tournament, which will be played in Ocala on May 20. The winner there advances to the Optimist International Tournament, scheduled for July 16-21 at Miami's Doral Country Club.

Also representing the Sanford Optimist Club at the regional tournament were Jeffrey Carr (75), Jim Bishop (76), Jim Yonish (76), Brian Carver (77), Tony Slodkoff (80), and Scott Sturgill (83).

Rhein was the sole female representative for the Sanford Optimist Club.

Ernie and Maudie Butler served as the golf co-chairmen for the Sanford Optimist Club, assembling the Sanford team and assisting at the regional tournament.

Young hunters must take class

If you want to hunt in Florida and you were born on or after June 1, 1975, you must first pass a hunter education course offered free by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC).

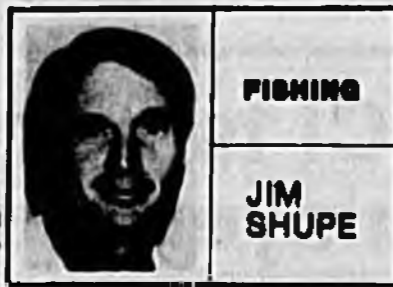

The basic course is designed for anyone interested in wildlife conservation, hunting and the outdoors, and is part of the commission's overall conservation education effort.

The 16-hour course provides classroom instruction, as well as an examination and the actual firing of a firearm. Classroom activities cover firearms laws, Florida's wildlife code, safe gun handling, hunter ethics, wildlife identification, game management and other topics.

More than 2,000 volunteers have been certified as hunter safety educators by the commission. They willingly give their time and talents to teach the course to those who want to hunt in the state.

This donated time, and funding assistance provided through the Pittman-Robertson Act, enable the commission to offer the course for free.

The Pittman-Robertson Act

FISHING
JIM SHUPE

Imposes a federal excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition. It is collected by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and distributed back to the states for hunting-related programs.

Several hunter education courses are being organized throughout GFC's Central Region right now. For more information on where and when courses are being held, or to register for one, please contact the Central Region Office at (904) 732-1225.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Hunter safety is very critical; statistics from shooting accidents reveal that most incidents occur within 50 yards by hunters shooting into brush, and not aiming at a specific target.

FISHING FORECAST

Freshwater action will soon peak with the approach of summer. Bass action is still good in the river where dropping water levels continue to force out ditch minnows and grass shrimps into the main channel, where bass and other gamefish await for an easy meal.

Sebastian Inlet continues to be hot for snook, and anglers are catching good numbers in the 8 to 15-pound range. Flounder, redfish, jack crevalle, and bluefish also are hitting.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral has little to report in the way of offshore action due to high seas. Dolphin are thick offshore when anglers can get out, and king mackerel are on Pelican Flats and S-A reefs.

Inside the Port sheepshead and flounder are biting. Redfish and trout are rated as good on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Sheepshead are still the big news at Ponce Inlet. The tip of the north jetty is the hot spot. Small bluefish, jack crevalle, redfish, and drum are also biting. Live or dead shrimp is the top bait. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

On the women's side, Penny Smith was tops with a 626 series and Wendy Gorman had the highest game with a 246. Both were rolled in the McGuire's Canva League on April 6.

Field) and played games at Five Points (Seminole PONY Baseball).

"For two years, we rented Conrad Park in DeLand for our games. I can remember loading all of the equipment into a car and taking it to DeLand. We had to do a lot of traveling in those days."

Bergman left SJC in 1973 — after compiling a 180-78 record and six straight state tournament appearances — to take the assistant's position at the University of Florida. Three years later, he became the head coach.

In his six years, the Gators were 216-116, including a 122-53 record in his final three seasons.

From there, it was back home to Orlando and the head job at UCF in 1983. He immediately turned a struggling program (19 wins in 1982) into a 28-game winner in 1983. Since moving to Division I in 1984, the Golden Knights have compiled a 455-253-1 record. Through Friday, UCF was 36-8.

Bergman has never had a losing record at UCF. And most years, his teams have several key contributors from Seminole County.

"We've always had a lot of local kids," said Bergman, who has seven Seminole residents on this year's squad. "I wish we could keep the best local kids home each year. We've lost a couple of good ones, but we're working hard to get the best."

"We tell players that this is a good place to play Division I baseball and have their parents see them play. We also have an academic program that is second to none."

This year's Seminole contingent includes Lake Howell graduates Brian Scutero and Brian Gomez; Owyedo alumni Todd Tozzo and Todd Bellhorn; Lake Brantley products Seth Wiepking and James Clark; and Winter Springs' Craig Cozart.

This past week, which saw Bergman get his 700th major college coaching victory, UCF was ranked 13th in the nation by Baseball America and 14th by Collegiate Baseball.

With all of these lofty achievements, Bergman continues to look ahead at trying to secure UCF's position among the nation's top baseball schools.

"I think the only thing holding us back (from becoming a big time Division I power) is a stadium," said Bergman. "We just can't bring in the top prospects all the time. We take good players and work hard to teach them the game and make them better players."

"But that's part of the enjoyment of coaching, seeing kids improve and move on from here."

LifeCo seeks to emerge from its bankruptcy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO — An Orlando-based insurance company under investigation by state and federal regulators plans to submit a reorganization proposal to emerge from Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

LifeCo Investment Group Inc. has been negotiating for that purpose with the Delaware Insurance Department.

LifeCo and its subsidiary, National Heritage Life Insurance Co., are based in Orlando but incorporated in Delaware. They have 30,000 policyholders, 2,500 of whom live in Florida.

Trevor Deaves, LifeCo's president, said the company would reorganize by transferring most of its assets to a trust controlled by creditors. The Delaware Insurance Department most likely would control the trust, Deaves said, because it operates National Heritage, LifeCo's biggest creditor.

"Even if other creditors oppose the plan, it will still go through," Deaves said Monday. "Delaware has the voice because it controls the biggest creditor, National Heritage."

LifeCo sought bankruptcy-court protection last June after state regulators said more than $15 million was missing from National Heritage.

The companies are under investigation by the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the insurance departments of Delaware, Florida and Texas.

Phone prices to go down

AT&T has announced it is lowering Florida in-state local toll prices an average of five percent, beginning April 18. The Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) has approved the promotional prices, which will be effective until Oct. 15.

AT&T Assistant Vice President of Government Affairs, Jack Spooner, hailed the decision as a "victory for consumers."

"At last, Florida consumers can experience more benefits from competition in the local-toll market," Spooner said. "AT&T customers who are enrolled in AT&T True Savings and use AT&T for their local-toll and other long distance calls will be able to save money by using AT&T instead of their local telephone company."

Spooner said the new prices, coupled with the True Savings Program, is expected to give customers a price-competitive alternative to local phone companies such as United, GTE, or Southern Bell's current or proposed prices for local toll calls.

As an example of the price savings, Spooner listed samples for 10 minute calls, weekdays, and Sundays from 5 p.m. until 11 p.m. From Sanford to Melbourne, the current 10-minute call would be $1.68. With the new prices effective April 18, the charge would be $1.63. With the new prices plus the True Savings 25 percent discount, the cost would be $1.24.

ICI is next major player in the area

By NICK PFEPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

Intervest Construction, Inc. (ICI) has already made a name for itself in the construction industry in Volusia and Orange Counties. The next move is to Seminole County.

ICI has reported over a half billion dollars in sales since its founding in 1980. The latest move of the company was announced recently by Mori Hossaini, president of the Daytona Beach based development and construction company. He reported that the next big residential development will be in the Sanford area.

The exact location however, has not yet been determined. The arrival of ICI in Seminole County will make a total of six Central Florida counties and 22 residential communities being developed by this privately held company.

Based on the success of the company over the past 15 years, Hossaini said that if projections are met for the immediate future, the company may go public in 1997.

Those projections include expanding the company's Jacksonville, Melbourne and Orlando divisions, building a total of 400 homes this year, and showing 1995 sales of $50 million, a 25 percent increase over last year.

ICI's move into Seminole County will come on the heels of its debut in DeBary Golf and Country Club, in which ICI recently began construction of a model home.

In the Orlando area, the company has a 1,000 acre Live Oak Estates development presently going into its third phase of construction.

The company focuses on upscale community development and single family custom and semi-custom homes ranging in price from the $90s to over $500,000.

"We see our market scope as ranging from Jacksonville to Orlando," Hossaini said. "We have grown slowly and patiently for the past 15 years, building our reputation with each community."

Mortgage interest rates keep falling

Mortgage interest rates in the Orlando MSA (Metropolitan Statistical Area) continued to decline in March. With the rate at 8.64 percent, the Greater Orlando Association of Realtors (GOAR) monthly Housing Trends Report says it's the second consecutive month that rates have decreased.

The median price in the MSA also decreased from $88,018 in February to $85,454 in March.

Sales of homes continued at a moderate rate with 956 single-family existing homes sold in March.

Nonetheless, sales continued to lag six percent behind last year's record pace. First-quarter figures show 2,268 single-family existing homes were sold through March, compared with 2,414 in the same period of last year.

According to Jerry Guinn, President of the GOAR, "The first quarter figures are very positive for the area housing industry. Interest rates are coming down, sales are steady, and listings continue to increase."

The Association's First Time Homebuyer's Affordability Index for the first quarter of 1995 shows that a family with a median income of $28,155 had 10.4 percent more income than necessary to qualify for an 80 percent loan to buy a $86,961 median-priced home. The index is significantly lower from the first three months of 1994 when homebuyers earned 23 percent more income than necessary to qualify for a home.

SANFORD

DORIS DIETRICH

The printed invitation was simple. It read, "Come Join Us," and listed the date, time, place and hostesses: Kay Bartholomew, Jean Bryant and Connie Williams. But what was the occasion?

Before the day, Sunday, April 9, a hostess revealed that there was no special reason. It was just time for a party. Yes, longtime Sanford friends needed to get together to party.

But that's not what Scott Bartholomew announced when he let the cat out of the bag from the stage when he presented cakes honoring his mother's birthday and the other hostesses. It seemed the hostesses were actually throwing a big birthday bash.

As the story unraveled, Kay celebrated her birthday in March with a trip back to her roots in Texas with her daughter and granddaughters, Sandy Ross and two children while Jean and Connie finalized the party plans.

The big event was held at the Sanford Woman's Club when over 100 guests called during the appointed hours, 4 to 7 p.m. Sanford society of another era was reflected at the charming gathering. The clubhouses was decorated in pink, aqua and white accents. Flowers were arranged in silver goblets while a grapevine tied with iridescent ribbons added unlimited interest. Beautifully appointed tables were piled high with a variety of party food and drink for the guests to enjoy as they mingled and saw people they had not seen in years.

Upon entering the auditorium, one was almost blinded by the buttercup yellow jacket worn by Frank Mebane Jr. Frank, manager of the former fashionable Mayfair Hotel, was having his final Sanford fling for awhile before returning to North Carolina where he manages a resort hotel.

Arriving early were Adm. Richard Fowler and his wife, Jean, Dorothy Morrison and Dr. Karen Copp. Seen chatting at another table were Rose and Clyde Long and Judy and John Wimbish. Among the other guests were Graham and Hazel Hardy, formerly of Australia and more recently West Virginia. The Rev. Hardy is a former Interim pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford.

Also attending were former Sanford banker Howard McNulty and his wife, Sylvia, who now make their home in Orlando.

Jean Bryant said, "We had a good time and we wanted to get people together."

Arriving for the party was Jean's sister, Ann Brand of Ogden, Utah. Jean's daughter-in-law, Judy Bryant, assisted

19 troops compete in Girl Scouts Stardust Olympics

The shotput was all wet and the triathlon was a little backwards. It was the second annual Stardust Olympics held Saturday, April 8 in Lake Mary. Stardust is the Service Unit name for the Girl Scout troops in and around Lake Mary.

Opening ceremonies included a display of the new Stardust Service Unit flag. The flag was designed by Jessica Swearingen and Stephanie Rowell of Troop 148 and made by Rollie Nelson, leader of Cadette Troop 441.

There were nine events in all. The race, the basketball toss, the sponge throw, the shotput (using water balloons), the discus (frisbee) throw, the relay race, the three-legged race, the tug of war and the triathlon.

The Stardust Olympics triathlon was a little from other triathlons. For the Stardust one, the girl ran backwards 10 yards, kicked a soccer ball round flags, and then crabwalked 10 yards.

In all, 19 Lake Mary troops participated in the event. Participants ranged in age from 6 to 13. The events were geared a little differently by age level. For instance, the Brownie race was only 15 yards long, but the Juniors and Cadettes ran 30.

Last year, due to the cost of the T-shirts, the medals and the ribbons, there was a per event entry fee. This year, there was a greater participation in all events by the girls, because, thanks to the sponsors, Stardust was able to keep the cost down. This year's sponsors were Acom, Longwood Lincoln Mercury, McDonald's of Lake Mary and Sanford, Photo Chemical Supply Inc., Otter's Riverside Restaurant, the city of Lake Mary and West Volusia Plumbing.

Parent participation was up this year also. All the judges were parent volunteers, a roll that last year was filled by the leaders and co-leaders.

LAKE MARY

As much as they enjoyed participating in their own events, the girls enjoyed watching the two leader events. There was the Leader three-legged race (it's harder than it looks) and the Leader tug of War. This year the Brownie Leaders won. Of course, the Junior Leaders said that the Brownie Leaders were younger and possibly had a ringer in the bunch.

Planning has already begun on next year's Stardust Olympic Games. Stardust's current goal is to persuade Citrus Council to make this a council-wide event (there are about 57 service units in the council). The timing would be perfect since 1996 is an Olympic year.

Artisans, crafters needed for festival

Olde Lake Mary Days is still taking applications for artisans and crafters for the event to be held Saturday, May 13. A publication that the festival advertised with is erroneously telling would-be participants that the deadline for getting their applications in was past.

The steering committee did discuss and reject the idea of a deadline. Applications will con-

Nikki Breitfeller set her sights on modeling at summer camp two years ago.

'Nikki' launches modeling career; Springs concert set

Eleven-year-old Nicole Breitfeller decided she wanted to become a model after discussing it with a summer camp counselor two years ago. Nicole enrolled in John Casablanca's 10-week modeling course where she learned to walk for runway shots, pose, and speak in commercials while being videotaped and critiqued.

Says Nicole, "I learn fast and I'm not shy." The most amazing observation about Nicole is not that she is cute as a button at 4'4" tall and full of energy, and it is not that she is pretty and photogenic with those beautiful blue eyes, but that she is totally comfortable and relaxed with herself.

Eliza Pringle poses with a camel while touring ancient Egypt

The Nile River beckons many travelers — even Eliza Pringle, Gladys and Emory Green from the Sanford area along with 25 other sightseers from different places across the United States. The 15-day tour included a 14-hour non-stop flight from New York's JFK Airport to Cairo, Egypt.

Their escorts and guides were well versed on the history and sights. They arrived very excited, went through customs and were well received by their hosts. The group then transferred to Mena House Hotel.

They could see the outline of the Great Pyramid from their room window. They visited the Pyramids, the Sphinx, Papyrus Institute and bazaars. There were so many places to visit in Cairo and so much to see it would take more than a few days to cover its many delightful historical adventures.

They boarded Le Meridien Champollion for a five-day cruise up the Nile River. The port cities included Abidos, Dendera, Luxor, Esna, Edfu, Aswan plus a few villages far removed from city life. Sailing was a breathtaking delight. The sunrise and sunset on the Nile was a sight to behold.

Dining on board the ship was eventful. The group visited the galley, the pilot's room, the captain's quarters, engine rooms, storage, etc. The captain's gala was very entertaining and interesting. The vendors on board and at the seaport cities were all festive.

When they departed from the ship to fly back to Cairo they experienced a new encounter. Air Force II was preparing to depart. They saw Vice President Gore board the plane and the group had to wait on board until he departed. They were so proud to be standing by for such a fantastic sight — what a grand moment to be a proud American.

They arrived in Cairo to make plans to visit Alexandria, a Mediterranean seaport city of over three million people. Exotic sounds and sights filled the air. Traffic was awesome but they didn't see any accidents. Dining on the Mediterranean Sea was peaceful and calm. The International Pharmaceutical Convention members were as excited over the view as well.

The history of Ancient Egypt is well defined and unique. The adventure of looking at its sights and museums seem so inter-related to its beauty and spiritual wonders. The churches, mosques and synagogues all possess priceless art. Seeing the vast desert, camels, donkeys, caves, tombs had great merit. Having viewed much of Egypt from the upper and lower Nile — Alexandria, Giza, Memphis, Esna, Edfu, Aswan, Philae and all the other places in between, they bade Egypt goodbye with an 11-hour non-stop Air Egypt Flight 985 to JFK, New York City, arriving on March 24, 1:30 p.m.

Fashions benefit cancer research

Springtime is fashion time and that's the way it was on Wednesday, April 5 when the Sanford-Lake Mary Branch of the American Cancer Society staged a reception, luncheon and fashion show at Alaqua Country Club.

Reservations for the breezy spring fling were sold out long before the deadline. Due to limited space, the overflow of reservations could not be accommodated. But there's always next year.

Patrons and supporters dressed in spring finery began arriving early for the high-fashion gathering.

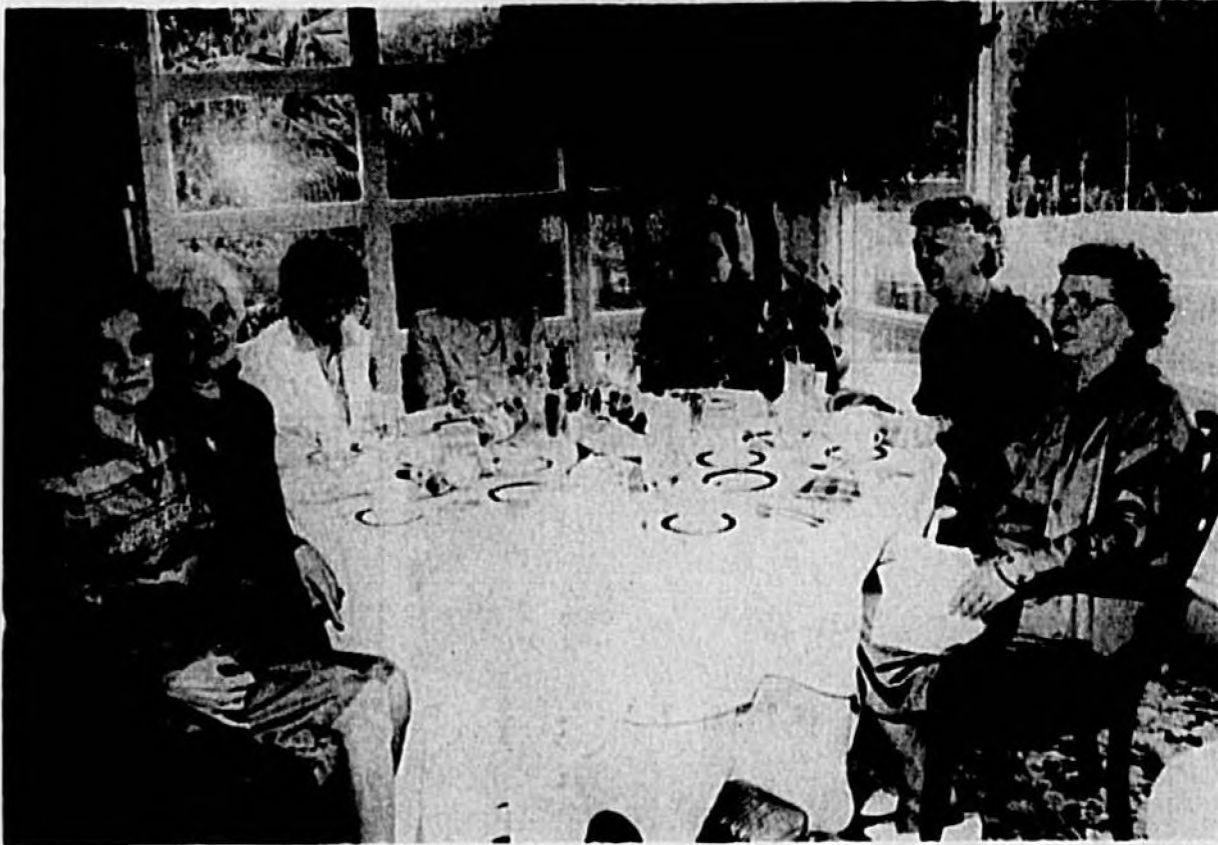

A highlight of the third annual event was Judy Wimblish receiving a plaque of appreciation from the board for chairing the fund-raiser for the third year.

Judy said, "The ladies enjoyed visiting and the pretty fashions. It was wonderful. Lots of real pretty spring fashions...beautiful spring colors." The fashions were from Jacobson's.

Several door prizes were awarded including merchandise from Jacobson's, mammograms from Central Florida Regional Hospital and the lovely head table centerpiece donated by Sanford Flower Shop.

The committee included, along with Judy, Allison Aten, Doris Brumley, Abbie Crasnow, Bettye Dedman, Beth Edwards, Kathy Krasnoff, Joyce Malone, Shirley McCaskill, Edith McNeill, Lynda Moncrief, Mildred Nicholas, Amelia Royster, Flo Scheibenberger and Martha Yancey.

Patrons marvel at Ballet Guild

Ballet Guild's 27th annual spring performance was the talk of the town last Sunday afternoon following the matinee showing of "Hallelujah...Catch the Spirit." Patrons marveled and "oohed" and "aahed" at the dazzling performance of the talented dancers.

Dotting parents and grandparents were proud as punch as they awaited and then applauded their little darlings' dazzling debut.

A group of young guest dancers stole the show with their charming interpretation of "Children of the World."

The story was built around Rabbi Noah Zark (Foreman Heard), Father Neil N. Mass (Mark Taricano), and the Rev. Billy Will Casthenet), Tim Winkle being cast together in a rowboat, "Holy Rower," after a shipwreck. David Scott played the role of The Man. Toward the end the three men of the cloth saw the light after an amazing spiritual story unfolded on the stage.

The Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole dancers were joined by several guest artists for a series of marvelous dances with the rousing finale from "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Supplementing the dancers was the Seminole High School Gospel Choir under the direction of Bob Maguire. The melodious voices resounded with such exhilaration force throughout the auditorium that a standing ovation was in order.

Before the show started, several supporters milled around in the lobby of Lake Mary High School auditorium clutching onto lovely spring bouquets to reward the stars of their choice. Wynelle Lanier was among the grandmothers bearing beautiful pink posies for her granddaughter.

Former Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore and his wife, Camille, had comfortable seats in the balcony to get a bird's eye view of their granddaughter in action.

The Rev. Bruce Scott, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford, and his wife, Jane, said they thought they were in New York. Broadway never had it so good!

Dr. Karen Copp, Cultural Arts Coordinator for Seminole Community College, marvelled at how the artistic directors, Miriam Doktor and Valerie Weld, continue to maintain their annual performance with such variety and professionalism.

Before the performance, Valerie Weld awarded the Silver Slipper Award to Heather Bell for acquiring the most sponsors. Annually, the newly auditioned company dancers are required to obtain 20 sponsors at $10 each. Choreographing the colorful show with Doktor and Weld were Shell Wilbur, associate director, and Jaime Roque. The story was written by Doktor, Weld, Elsa Caskey, Foreman Heard and Bob Meyers Jr.

Ruth turns 97

Ruth Hamilton, that vivacious nonagenarian, celebrated her 97th birthday April 12. Ruth was honored at several events including a dinner party hosted by several employees of the Sanford Kmart. Ruth began shopping at the store several years ago and several employees fell in love with her.

They took her to dinner at Angelina's and presented her with a camera, several rolls of film and typing paper so she could take more pictures and continue writing her prolific works. There was also a big, beautiful birthday cake made by one of the Kmart employees.

Barbara Tindall said, "When she reaches 100, we are really going to have a big party."

When husband, friends speak Russian, it's Greek to wife

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Yuri," came here from Russia six years ago. We have been married for five years. Yuri speaks excellent English. He has mentioned several times that it would be a good idea for me to learn Russian, but with two small children under 4, learning Russian has not been a high priority for me.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The problem is that Yuri has many Russian friends, mostly professional people who speak English very well. But when they come to visit, they speak in Russian, and I am left out.

Last Sunday, "Natasha" came over. I served cookies and coffee and tried to be a good hostess. She directed all her conversation to Yuri. When I asked her about her children and her job, she gave me brief answers in English, then turned to Yuri and continued speaking to him in Russian.

I realize she's Yuri's friend. I'm not jealous of her, nor do I suspect they are having an affair. I just think it's very rude of her to ignore me when she's here.

Abby, it's not only Natasha. It has gotten to the point that when his Russian friends come over, I go to our bedroom and watch TV by myself. It's the same when we go to Natasha's house — or Sergei's or Ilona's. Their husbands and wives all speak Russian, and I'm left to play with the children. When I tell Yuri how I feel, he says it is much easier for them to express themselves in Russian than in English. I have decided to learn more Russian, but what do I do in the meantime? Should I insist they speak in English so I can understand them — or what?

FED UP IN CANADA
DEAR FED UP: Ask Yuri to compromise: suggest that he ask his friends to speak English part of the time they spend with you, while you learn their language.

A crash course in Russian would be a good beginning in overcoming the language barrier. Also, ask Yuri to teach you a few phrases every day. You'll be amazed at how quickly you can join in their conversations.

Susan Rabner is surrounded by some of her labors of love.

100 000 PH 118 by Susan Wenner

Hobby: She uses her artistic talents in business, pleasure

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although all of Susan Rabner's work is on a volunteer basis, she has found a way to mix business with pleasure. She has been fortunate enough to be able to use her creative and artistic talents toward her work at First United Methodist Church in Sanford.

An superintendent of the Sunday school program, working with the children's choir and her almost full-time duties in the church office and her former responsibilities as director with the JAM (Jesus and Me) program, Rabner has incorporated her graphics and crafts into all she does. She did the newsletter for JAM and supported it with a monthly theme.

Rabner is presently trying to build the children's choir through work on Bible memory verses. Libby and Dan Sellers (church minister of music) teach the 30 children involved in the program. Rabner assists by "trying to build the program through positive reinforcement, so they see choir as more than praise singing."

She displayed the envelopes sent from the church office with elaborate ink drawn beautifully in the return address area. Much of the inserts for the bulleting/also been designed by Rabner. Many bulletin boards and art in the sanctuary were also the brainchild and carefully crafted with Rabner's loving hands.

Not only has Rabner mixed business with pleasure but she was able to design much of her wedding two-and-a-half years ago with her talents of flower arranging, cross stitch, embossing and sewing. She and her husband, Richard, met through being pen pals. He was stationed in Saudi Arabia as a part of Operation Desert Shield. Now Rabner married into an instant family with two stepsons, Richard and Andrew. "I did my own wedding invitations," she said. "I made name plates for each guest out of cross stitch on perforated paper. They were able to take them home after the wedding.

I did flower arrangements and a ribbon garter belt. For my husband I made a small pillow from sewing it and cross stitch."

Some of her numerous hobbies and crafts began as a preschooler. "My grandmother taught me to knit," she said. "When I was in preschool I used to make clothes for my dolls." She explained that a fisherman sweater or knit was traditional in Irish households. "If a sailor was washed ashore the stitch was done in such a way that people could identify the clan he was from because of the tables. It became a form of identification through their knitting."

While still in high school Rabner learned macramé. Over the years she has made a variety of plant hangers, wall decorations, kitchen items to hold wooden spoons and rolling pins and purses.

To add to her list of creations Rabner has made "ions of stuff" with her crochet. "I've worked on sweaters, little knick-knacks, stuffed animals and lots of afghans. I generally use yarns. I don't do dollies but I do want to learn. "She shared how she taught herself to crochet left-handed even though she is right-handed so she could in turn teach a friend.

Her cross stitch endeavors began soon after a car accident she was in that left her disabled. "Cross stitch was one of the things I could do because I was in so much pain," she said.

Flower arranging topped the list of her craft projects. "I make a lot of wreaths," she said. "Since Susan means lily of the valley I used a lot of lily of the valley flowers in my wedding. Lily of the valley flowers also mean return to happiness so I thought it would be nice. May is actually the month for lily of the valley." She said that sometimes she used dried flowers for wreaths but most of the time she worked with silk flowers. "It depends on where it is placed," she said. "Sometimes dried flowers may blow away if placed in a windy spot."

The mix of all the things she enjoys Rabner agreed keeps her happy and busy.

Niki Brieffler was selected as the "Spokesperson of 1995" for her age group for the Altamonte Mall modeling and ambassador competition held early this year. At this competition, Nicole said that she knew that she had it when the judge looked at the monitor that was videotaping her and said, "oh yeah!" As a spokesperson and model, Nicole will be involved in commercials for the "Back to School" Days for the Altamonte Mall.

At the present time, Nicole is a sixth grader at Greenwood Lakes Middle School. She enjoys band and plays the clarinet under the direction of Mr. James. She is also a member of the stunt team at her school under the direction of Mr. Francis. The stunt team consists of about 35 members who enjoy perfecting their tumbling and gymnastic skills, culminating in a production of a show at the end of the school term; multiple dives, inverted dives and the danger runs are Nicole's favorite stunts.

In the future, Niki is interested in pursuing a doctorate in veterinary medicine, or becoming a marine biologist or an attorney and she laughs as she relates her plan to marry Johnathan Taylor Thomas, "the love of my life."

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY April 16, 1995

Your characteristics of hard work and fair play will help you achieve your goals in the year ahead. Stick to your virtues and you'll get past obstacles that hinder others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though the results you hope to attain today might be difficult to achieve, don't try to make yourself feel better by blaming others for your problems. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Bite your tongue if you have to put up with a difficult individual today. The eventual cooperation you'll receive will outweigh the current discomfort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For most people, this is a day of rest. If you're inclined to work, do so without expecting or demanding those around you to pitch in and help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful not to involve a frugal friend in a costly activity he/she cannot afford today. Make sure that you don't get caught up in anything you can't afford either.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Regardless of how insignificant something appears to you, don't discuss infractions that happen in the confines of your home with outsiders.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends will lose patience with you today if you refuse to discuss something that's bothering you. They can't help correct the unknown.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not use funds earmarked for a serious expenditure on something frivolous today. You may not be able to afford what you need later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something nasty someone might say about you today could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Just to prove him/her wrong, you'll do something very impressive.

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY April 17, 1995

For an individual who typically prefers to go it alone, you may find the coming year unusual in that you will probably form several partnerships. They each should work out rather well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others might become bored with the long-winded comments of a friend today, but you won't. Something this person might say will inspire you with new hope and enthusiasm.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to devote your energy and efforts to a promising joint endeavor today. This project could spin off more than one good thing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your desire to get along with others could be quite strong today and this could impel you to look for their qualities rather than their frailties.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Some people who lived centuries ago saw things more clearly than we do today. Perhaps this was because they had less stress, less going on in their lives. I expect you will agree with this statement of St. Francis of Assisi: "Where there is charity and wisdom, there is neither fear nor ignorance. Where there is patience and humility, there is neither anger nor vexation. Where there is poverty and joy, there is neither greed nor avarice. Where there is peace and meditation, there is neither anxiety nor doubt." After today's deal, South was definitely a poorer and wiser man, but he wasn't joyful. With such a good six-card suit, South was right to upgrade his hand and treat it like a balanced 18-19 points. Seeing overtricks in his future, South tried the spade finesse at trick one. However, East was enjoying one of his more lucid moments. After winning with the spade king, he switched to the heart 10. West won with the heart queen, cashed the heart ace and played a third round to South's king. With a slight gnawing feeling in his stomach, South played a diamond to dummy's king and ran the club 10. But West produced the king and a fourth heart: one down. If South had only won the first trick with dummy's spade ace and immediately taken the club finesse, he couldn't have gone down. Even after the finesse lost, South would have had eight tricks on top, one spade, two diamonds and five clubs. And he couldn't be stopped from establishing another spade trick for his contract.
