POLICE

IN BRIEF

Two men arrested after scuffle in parking lot of Sanford bar

SANFORD — Two men accused of attacking a man in the parking lot of a Sanford bar remain jailed in lieu of $8,000 bond each.

David Thomas Givens, 35, of Orlando, and Thomas Francis Adkins, 32, of 108 Tangerine Drive, Sanford, face charges of aggravated battery and armed robbery. They were arrested by Sanford police at 1:52 a.m. today after officers pursued their motorcycles from the Barn, on U.S. Highway 17-92, south to Lake Mary Boulevard.

The victim, Scott L. Scopas, of 2000 Lake Mary Boulevard, Sanford, reportedly identified them as the pair who attacked him when he got out of his car at the Barn at about 1:30 a.m.

Scopas said he was jumped from behind, kicked and punched. One suspect allegedly held a knife to his throat and the other held one to his stomach. He said they threatened to kill him in an apparent dispute over money he owes.

The suspects allegedly took Scopas' wallet, knife and a $200 gold medallion when they fled. The items were recovered when they were captured, police said.

Police report three automobiles stolen

SANFORD — Three automobiles were stolen over the weekend and all were taken from outside the owners' residences, according to police reports.

Saturday, Charles Wooten, 546 Valencia St., reported the theft of his 1978 Audi from his yard. The vehicle was valued at $2,400.

Also Saturday, Martin Kroushour, 1812 Landings Drive, reported the theft of his 1980 Chevrolet, valued at $500, and $250 in cash which was in the automobile. The vehicle was taken by two known suspects from in front of the victim's residence.

Sunday, Jimmy James Johnson, 712 Pine Ave., reported the theft of his 1980 Toyota, value $2,000, from his residence.

In other police action: Mary Richards reported the theft of her wallet, containing $300 in cash, from Billy Boy's Restaurant, 401 E. First St., Saturday afternoon.

A burglary was reported to police Sunday at 404 W. 19th St.

in which a stereo, camera and cassette tapes, total value $725, were taken from a 1986 Suzuki.

Scott Scopas, 27, 2000 Lake Mary Blvd., was assaulted and robbed in the parking lot of The Barn nightclub, 1220 S. French Ave., early Monday morning, according to the police report.

Scopas was beaten by two men and robbed at knife point of property valued at $200, before both suspects fled on motorcycles.

Both suspects were later apprehended, one in Sanford and one in Lake Mary after being pursued by police. The property was recovered.

Thomas Francis and David Thomas were identified by Scopas and charged with aggravated battery and armed robbery and taken to Seminole County jail.

Tools valued at $200 were stolen between May 29 and June 1 from the house of Maxine Hamlin, 103 Champion Ave., Altamonte Springs. The loss was reported to sheriff's deputies Sunday.

Violence reported as workers go on strike

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of blacks defying emergency rules refused to work today amid scattered reports of violence during a three-day national protest against a crackdown on anti-apartheid organizations and a new labor bill.

The violence reportedly included a grenade attack on a bus in the black homeland of KwaZulu and scattered shootings and the stoning of buses in Cape Town. Arsonists burned down a railway station in Durban, officials and residents said, and police firing at a mob reportedly wounded a youth in a black township near Cape Town.

Police denied a report by KwaZulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi, who opposed the work stoppage, that four people had been killed in the grenade attack. The state-owned South African Broadcasting Corp. said in a later report that police confirmed there were five injuries.

Explosions also occurred in the Johannesburg area overnight. One blast damaged a railway line in the sprawling black township of Soweto, where buses and taxis stopped running, leaving many businesses with a sharply reduced workforce.

Victoria police reported an explosion in a railway coach at a Pretoria station Sunday night damaged a number of cars and station lights.

The strike came in response to a church-blessed call by South Africa's two largest union federations — claiming to represent nearly 1 million black workers — for three days of protest against the white minority government.

It followed the government's Feb. 24 clampdown on 17 opposition groups, including the United Democratic Front, and imposition of tough restrictions on the activities of the Congress of South African Trade Unions, Cosatu, the largest trade federation.

Minister of Manpower Pietie du Plessis warned in a speech today to a parliamentary committee considering the draft Labor Relations Amendment bill in Cape Town that any strike stemming from the protest would be illegal and warned of dismissals.

Initial reports indicated the work stoppage was widespread.

Chamber of Mines spokesman Peter Bunkell said gold mining operations, the backbone of South Africa's economy with a workforce of 550,000, were virtually unaffected but coal mining operations had been disrupted. "Some of them quite drastically."

The National Association of Automobile Manufacturers said the nation's seven major auto assembly plants had been shut down to avert production disruptions and would remain closed at least until Wednesday, affecting as many as 25,000 production workers.

Pick 'N Pay Retailers, one of the nation's largest grocery chains, reported an absentee rate of between 65 percent and 70 percent among its black work force of 13,541. One market in Durban was stung by a walkout of 99 percent of the work force, a spokesman said.

In the adjoining black townships of Guguletu and Nyanga in Cape Town, the second largest black community there, residents reported youths firing shots and stoning buses to prevent workers from leaving to work in the city.

Residents in Nyanga said one youth was shot and wounded by police firing on the mob.

High Plains blaze under high temps

By United Press International

A day of record-shattering heat in the northern high Plains was followed by overnight temperatures in Montana in the 80s, which is about the same as normal daytime highs for this time of year, the National Weather Service said.

Weather across the rest of the nation was closer to average, with temperatures in the 60s and 70s in most places and down to the 40s and 50s over northern New England and the Pacific Northwest.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. today ranged from 37 degrees at Sexton Summit, Ore., to 85 degrees at Billings, Mont.

Sunday afternoon's temperatures reached as high as 109 degrees at Glendive, Mont. The lows in the 60s in Montana are about the same as the average high temperatures for this time of year, the weather service said.

A total of fifteen cities in the north-central United States reported new record highs Sunday. The high of 94 degrees at International Falls, Minn., broke the previous record of 87 degrees set in 1976. The high of 108 degrees at Glasgow, Mont., was a record for the entire month of June.

Thunderstorms that produced severe weather in Florida, Maine and Colorado Sunday afternoon weakened during the evening.

Showers and thunderstorms continued mainly over central Florida and along the central Gulf Coast early today. Showers and a few thunderstorms extended from western Kansas to central New Mexico.

In Colorado Sunday, a tornado ripped through a campground north of Denver, destroying a camper and pulling barbecue grills out of their concrete pads, authorities said. The twister was one of several tornadoes and funnel clouds reported by the National Weather Service in the 50-mile stretch along Interstate 25 between Denver and Fort Collins.

A thunderstorm in western Adams County, Colo., produced high winds that demolished a trailer home, destroyed a granary and damaged a barn and homes.

Strong northwest winds accompanied cloudy skies and scattered showers in the Northwest. Winds gusted to 54 mph at Agawam, Mass., early this morning.

Strong and gusty winds also continued in the West. In Utah, winds gusted to 59 mph at Millard Sunday afternoon.

On the local front, Sanford and Seminole County residents were treated to a sky full of fireworks on Sunday night as a thunderstorm system rolled through the area.

The slow-moving, isolated storms were accompanied by gusting winds and hail in various locations.

Seminole County escaped the brunt of hail and high winds although south Orlando and portions of Orange County weren't as lucky.

As a high pressure system to the north forces various wind shifts to the south, the area will experience partly cloudy skies for much of the next two days with a 50 percent chance of scattered showers on Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Local Report

The high temperature in Sanford Sunday was 87 degrees and the overnight low was 72 as reported by the University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center, Celery Avenue. Recorded rainfall totalled 0.47 inch.

Board's dreams can be a reality

Sanford is on the threshold of a rebirth of initiative. For too long people have been accustomed to looking to the government to look after them: to care for their needs; to provide even the luxuries of community life. Amid a clamor for improved quality of life, the trend has been to make the demands on local governments for such provision, and always with the admonition not to increase taxes.

Now, like a breath of fresh air, Sanford's Scenic Improvement Board is advancing a program which deserves not only applause but individual commitments to participate.

The SIB is composed of eleven dedicated volunteers whose function is to make Sanford a more beautiful city. One of the needs of the community is a park that will add to the beauty of the city, and also serve as a playground for children and an area of relaxation for all. However, the group realized early on that such a recommendation, though well received, would face delays in implementation by the city based on fiscal restraints. Members of the SIB had a better idea: Do it yourself.

Convinced that the people of Sanford were as dedicated as their neighbors in Winter Park, the board studied the park plan of their Orange County neighbors. There the people developed their park in four days by using the best workers available — their own citizens. It was a community effort not unlike the old-fashioned barn raisings of the 19th century but this time all became neighbors. A few hundred on the first day grew to more than two thousand on the fourth and their park became a reality.

The Scenic Improvement Board selected a block on Park Avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets and has retained a playground equipment designer as a consultant. The recommendations were presented to the City Commission, which approved the plans and authorized proceeding provided there was no cost to the city.

The cost provision was unnecessary for already the SIB plan was receiving enthusiastic response. To date, more than $10,000 has been donated by area civic and service organizations. A trust account has been established and a goal of $43,000 has been set. The funds will cover the costs of equipment and maintenance. Labor will be donated by the best laborers in the city — its citizens. The board estimates that the project will take four or five days, depending on the numbers who volunteer.

We are proud of the visionaries on the SIB, under the leadership of their chairman Martha Yancey, who serve Sanford so faithfully. We are proud of commissioners who have the faith in their boards to grant them the freedom to pursue their dreams. We are proud of civic and service organizations which support such worthwhile community endeavors. All will be mutually proud of their neighbors in Sanford who labor together to make this dream a reality; who collectively transform the words of a program into the reality of Park-On-Park.

Has ADA missed the coming new wave?

By Arnold Sawilek
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans for Democratic Action, which might be called the keeper of the New Deal flame, is getting ready to celebrate "the resurgence of liberalism" at its 40th annual national convention this weekend.

In 1948, ADA was at the cutting edge of American political liberalism. With founders like Eleanor Roosevelt, Hubert Humphrey, John Kenneth Galbraith and Walter Reuther, it offered the best that the non-Marxist Left had to offer to as the country emerged from World War II to an uncertain period of rebuilding and realignment.

Even though the United States was swinging toward conservatism when ADA was founded — the Republicans had taken control of Congress in 1946 and getting ready to take over the White House for an eight-year occupancy in 1952 — the organization saw many of its goals achieved in its first 20 years.

It never had one of its own elected president, but much of the post-war civil rights and social welfare agenda it supported became law under leaders ADA did not sponsor, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

Then liberalism began the decline ADA now is celebrating the end of. From ADA's point of view, the last two decades have been a rear guard action against a rising tide of political reaction that crested in the 1980 election of Ronald Reagan.

Since 1980, many observers have seen the ebb of conservatism in such developments as the recapture of the Senate by the Democrats, the U.S.-Soviet agreement on short- and mid-range nuclear missiles and the movement through Congress of catastrophic health civil rights and a few other morsels of moderately liberal social legislation.

The polls that show Democrat Michael Dukakis running ahead of Republican George Bush also contribute to ADA's feeling that its day is coming again.

But if the new day of liberalism dawns, will its sun shine on ADA?

There is some reason to believe that the aging inheritors of the liberalism that seemed so advanced from the 1930s through the 1960s may be upstaged by a new generation of political progressives who grew up during the bleak years of the 1970s and 1980s.

Jesse Jackson, for example. Many of his domestic proposals mesh with ADA policy, but his positions on the Middle East and other foreign policy issues almost surely would make him persona non grata with the group. Yet Jackson may be the highest visibility liberal on the American scene today and he may occupy that position for some time to come.

Another who probably wouldn't fit the ADA mold is homeless advocate Mitch Snyder. While ADA probably might favor a few federally financed and operated programs to help the homeless, the prickly Snyder would ask for the money but insist the government keep hands off the program. ADA also might not be comfortable with Snyder's media-grabbing rants and confrontation tactics.

A life enhancing event

It is a privilege to be alive when someone publishes a wonderful book. When "The Great Gatsby" came out in 1925 many readers no doubt felt that an extra dose of oxygen had been pumped into their existence. Something entirely new and unexpected had happened. Scott Fitzgerald, the guy from Princeton, had shaped a kind of literary miracle.

The good news today is that Richard Wilbur's "New and Collected Poems" is a literary event of that magnitude. It brings together his entire body of poetry reaching back to 1947, and as soon as you touch it you know that it is major.

"In April, thirteen centuries..." That is the way Wilbur begins a poem about the English church historian Bede, in which he means to establish communion with Bede across the centuries. But what sheer breathtaking writing. "In April, thirteen centuries ago, Bede cast his casked shadow on the ground of Jarrow..."

Or, "Shall I love God for causing me to be?" The sheer verbal skill provides constant excitement. "For Alexander there was no Far East; / Because he thought the Asian continent / Ended with India."

Mr. Wilbur is learned and he wears his learning lightly, but it certainly makes itself felt. He translates poems from several languages and, apart from this book of poems, his translations of Moliere's plays are exquisite. In reading through his poems, moreover, you feel that you are listening to a thoroughly decent human being. Thus in a slight but also wonderful poem celebrating the 1971 marriage of his son, he alludes to the story in St. John about the water into wine at the wedding in Cana. "Now if your love will lend an ear to mine, / I toast you both, good son and dear new daughter, / May you not lack for water, / And may that water smack of Cana's wine." Let's hope the marriage worked out that way but the poem itself is elegant and supremely civilizational.

This volume of poetry is so important that it invites comparison with the very highest things, that is to say, for example, Yeats, Keats, Shakespeare.

Mr. Wilbur writes about the great human themes, love, death, war, the seasons, and dresses so with a skill — a technical accomplishment — not surpassed by any poet in this century.

Diplomatic immunity extends to civil cases

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — When Ahmad Rehayem filed a workmen's compensation claim against his boss last year, he wandered into the black hole of diplomatic immunity.

The Lebanese immigrant, who has permanent residency in the United States, lives in Alexandria, Va. After he fell down the stairs at his employer's home in Washington, D.C., last year, he did what any other U.S. resident would do if injured on the job — he filed a claim to be compensated for medical bills and lost wages.

But Rehayem's boss, who works for the Lebanese Embassy in Washington, ran for the shelter of diplomatic immunity, and Rehayem is still waiting for his money.

Diplomats in the United States are protected from legal prosecution for a number of offenses, ranging from minor to violent. For serious offenses, a diplomat is sent home, unless the country waives immunity and allows the diplomat to stand trial in the United States.

Diplomatic immunity also pro-

Keep parks popular

Given the unlikely choice between preserving our national parks or our democratic principles, I'd side with democracy any day. But a growing number of park supporters disagree. They're determined to shield the Park Service from the slings and arrows of political fortune.

Consider a plan released not long ago by the National Parks and Conservation Association. The nine-volume "blueprint" for the U.S. park system deals with everything from staffing to visitor facilities, but at least one recommendation should gall anyone partial to democratic process.

The blueprint suggests removing the Park Service from the Interior Department, setting it up as an independent agency. Its director would serve a fixed period straddling presidential terms, subject to removal only for malfeasance or other gross offense.

Call it the Federal Reserve model. In one stroke, the plan would strip a new president — and, by implication, voters — of long-standing authority.

Suppose a presidential candidate campaigned on stepping up park acquisitions, or for that matter, slowing them down? What if he hoped to limit the influx of park visitors and close on-site lodging — or throw open the gates to yet more tourists? Either way, it wouldn't matter. The new president would be saddled with his predecessor's appointment for up to several years — even if the director actively opposed the chief executive's ideas.

Rep. Bruce F. Vento, D-Minn., has already crafted legislation that includes the worst features of this proposal. While Vento's bill doesn't officially separate the Park Service from Interior, it insulates the service from White House oversight. It also establishes a five-year term for the parks director, who'd be confirmed by Congress.

Vento insists recent history justifies his plan. He blames "political appointees" in Interior for failing to advocate effectively for natural resources. A Senate ally, Democrat Bill Bradley of New Jersey, complains that "too often, field recommendations have been reversed by higher department officials."

What these men mean, nothing more or less, is that they disagree with a particular administration's policies. Bradley, for example, laments the failure to acquire more park land during the 1980s. Vento cites attempts to "privatize" some public lands. While the two insist they only want to leave policy to "professionals," they're really saying they want it controlled by civil servants who, at least at this point in history, are more likely to share their views.

No doubt that's why so many environmentalists like Vento's proposal. They've never quite recovered from the shock of 1981, when just-elected President Reagan appointed outright enemies of theirs to head Interior and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Environmentalists apparently figure that if they can't always control electoral results, perhaps they can blunt their effect.

What do you suppose will be the next god? A fixed term for the director of the Environmental Protection Agency?

If national parks are going to hell because of underfunding and neglect — a dubious thesis, by the way — let's elect a president and members of Congress who will turn things around. But leave the president's authority over the federal bureaucracy intact. Americans vote for a chief executive to reside in the White House — not a figurehead.

Patients' decline slowed

By Rebecca Kolberg
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new treatment using amino acids shows promise of slowing the progressive decline of people stricken by Lou Gehrig's disease, researchers say.

Currently, there is no treatment that can stop the disease. It is usually fatal within two years or so. This is the first encouraging sign we have that maybe there is a treatment that can slow it down and prolong life," said Dr. Andreas Platakis, a neurology professor at Mount Sinai Medical School who headed the study.

About 17,000 to 20,000 people in the United States currently suffer from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, commonly known as ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease, after the famed New York Yankees' first baseman who died of the degenerative nerve and muscle disorder.

ALS involves the gradual deterioration of the motor neurons that control voluntary muscles. Symptoms may include muscle weakness and wasting, clumsiness, twitches or spasms, slurred speech and swallowing difficulties.

In a year-long study of 22 ALS patients, the 11 who received a formula of amino acids displayed "significant benefits in spinal strength and continued ability to walk while those in the placebo group showed a linear decline in such skills."

They (patients receiving amino acids) did better than those who did not. At this point, it does appear to improve the quality of life for these patients," said Platakis, whose findings were published recently in the British medical journal, the Lancet.

Platakis emphasized the amino acid powder, which contained L-leucine, L-isoleucine and L-valine and taken orally four times a day, does not improve symptoms, but only appears to retard progression of the disease.

The stabilization in patients receiving amino acids "is consistent with the hypothesis that increased concentrations of these amino acids in plasma will activate and thus modify glutamate metabolism, which is abnormal in ALS," researchers said.

The cause of ALS is unknown, but previous studies have shown amino acid metabolism may play a key role in mediating degeneration of the nervous system.

dodge Rehayem's workmen's compensation claim.

Lebanese Ambassador Abdallah Bouhabib told us that El Solh is being serving in a diplomatic function for a few years. But he admitted that he failed to clear her latest post through the State Department until after Rehayem filed his claim.

Rehayem's stubborn refusal to back down has resulted in retaliation from the Lebanese embassy. Bassam Namani, consul at the embassy, ordered Rehayem to turn in his passport last October because of a problem with his records. Now Rehayem can't travel outside the United States.

Embassy officials told us they can revoke passports when an immigrant is causing trouble or damaging the country's reputation. "He was issuing threats," Namani said. "We had to make a very firm decision and make him understand we are not going to relieve immunity and be dragged into the courts."

Ambassador Bouhabib is more blunt: "If he's going to give me trouble, I'm going to give him trouble."

The U.S. State Department wants to settle the case, and Bouhabib says he promised the State Department that the Lebanese Embassy would pay for Rehayem's medical costs, up to $5,000. But Rehayem wants $65,000 for lost earnings, attorney's fees and past and future medical bills. He shattered his elbow in the fall down El Solh's stairs. El Solh was in Paris at the time of the accident. Rehayem was working as her driver and caretaker.

El Solh is the daughter of Riad El Solh, a former Lebanese leader who was assassinated in 1951. Bouhabib described him as a man with the same historical significance in his country as George Washington has in the United States. Bouhabib acted as spokesman for Abu El Solh, but refused to let her speak to us. He said she has a home in New York and also spends time in Paris. "You have the type of diplomats that aren't 100 percent office diplomats," he said to describe her work. "They report to the president and are advisers. They have contacts with high-level people. This is the kind of diplomat she is."

Saturday state lottery drawings produce three new millionaires

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Numbers pulled in Saturday night's Lotto drawing produced at least three new millionaires and a record number of winners in all categories, Florida Lottery Secretary Teberrac Paul said Sunday.

"We won't know the exact amount until Monday afternoon, but it looks like three Florida Lotto players will be millionaires," she said. "Our estimated grand prize jackpot is split three ways this week."

Heavy sales Saturday raised the jackpot from $2 million to about $3 million. Lottery players bought $8.1 million worth of tickets during the week, Paul said.

"This kind of enthusiasm is what allows us to break national lottery sales records and make contributions to enhance public education," she said. "Just last Wednesday we transferred $750 million to education."

Child killed by alligator

ENGLEWOOD (UPI) — A 10½-foot bull alligator dragged a 4-year-old girl into a suburban manmade pond, killed her and refused to give up the child's body until it was shot by wildlife officers.

Officials said the animal may have lost its fear of man because people in the affluent housing development often fed it. The animal — the largest of the alligators that populate the lake — had been living there for at least two years.

Erin Glover, 4, the eyed blond nicknamed "Gizmo," was following her Labrador pup Shirley along the bank of Hidden Lake when the alligator surfaced about 6:30 p.m. EDT Saturday. Her brother Justin, 9, and friend Jason Kershamick, 9, were with her.

Kershamick said they were following the dog because they thought it had to go to the bathroom.

Then the alligator came up and took two bites out of Erin's stomach. She screamed. That's all she could do, he said. "Blood was pouring down her stomach. It looked like a slow motion cartoon."

Coast Guard contains oil spill

FERNANDINA BEACH (UPI) — Coast Guard crews contained a 10,000-gallon diesel oil spill Sunday and attempted to refloat a barge that broke free and ran aground when a dredging boat sank in the St. Mary's Channel.

Crews surrounded the spill with bright orange booms to keep the fuel from reaching environmentally sensitive areas nearby, such as the state park on Amelia Island.

"The impact has been minimal. Nothing has reached the beach," said Coast Guard Cmdr. Henry Robins in Jacksonville. "We have placed several booms on several of the creeks in the area. As yet, there has been no oil pocketing around them."

Jury begins deliberations in cigarette suit

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — The tobacco industry's winning streak in cigarette liability trials is on the line as a jury prepares for deliberations in a suit filed by the widower of a lung cancer victim.

After listening to testimony and reviewing hundreds of exhibits in a four-month U.S. District Court trial, the jury is expected to begin deliberations Tuesday on whether three cigarette companies are liable for Rose Cipollone's 1984 death.

The lawyer for plaintiff Antonio Cipollone, Mark Z. Edell, was to deliver his closing statement today after asking for a postponement Friday, saying he had been unable to complete his preparations.

Edell, saying Friday that he would go to jail rather than deliver his summation as scheduled, said his work on the closing statement had been bogged down by the complexity of the medical evidence in the case.

The medical is very complexed in the case, judge, very complicated," Edell said, according to the transcript of a closed-door hearing in which he requested the postponement. "It is like a pack of wolves that is smelling blood and I can see the eyes glaring down at me."

Edell must rebut the argument of the corporate defendants that Rose Cipollone died of a form of cancer that has not been associated with smoking.

He must also counter the companies' challenge of what has become the accepted wisdom of the medical establishment: that nicotine is an addictive drug and cigarettes a proven carcinogen.

The cigarette makers, as part of their complex defense, have tried to persuade the jury that their critics are grossly overstating the case against smoking.

"Tobacco is a great whipping boy. Donaldahn (a lawyer for Liggett Group Inc.) said Friday, the day after the close of defense summations.

The tobacco industry has never lost a smoker death case, beating off about 300 suits since the early 1950s largely because of its argument that smokers have free will and are responsible for their own decisions to kick the habit or keep on puffing.

"This case is especially strong for that defense," Philip Morris Inc. lawyer Peter Breakley said, describing Rose Cipollone, of Little Ferry, N.J., as a well-read woman who pored over media coverage of the smoking controversy but kept on smoking for 40 years.

"You don't have some poorly educated individual who was poorly informed," Breakley said.

But the Cipollone trial has been closely watched because of the internal company and industry documents presented by Edell in an effort to prove that cigarette companies conspired to subvert that free will in their customers.

The memos and letters purport to show that the companies dismissed what they called "the smoking and health controversy" as merely a public relations problem.

Cipollone's lawyers argue that the papers also show the industry engaged in a conspiracy to mislead smokers over the dangers of the habit by suppressing their own scientific research, disputing independent research, failing to disclose what they knew and attempting to maintain an image of smoking as a pleasurable, social thing to do.

But Liggett, the manufacturers of Rose Cipollone's Chesterfields and L&M filters, Philip Morris, which sells the Parliament and Virginia Slims brands, and Lorillard Inc., producers of Trues, continue to argue that smokers make a free choice.

They also argue that the industry's persistent claim that smoking has not been definitively proven to cause cancer is an exercise of corporate free speech and nothing sinister or conspiratorial.

International judges rule in Waldheim's favor

VIENNA (UPI) — An international panel of judges appearing on a cable television show to weigh evidence against Austrian President Kurt Waldheim unanimously decided it was unlikely he committed Nazi war crimes.

The four-hour "commission of inquiry" was broadcast Sunday in the United States and Britain and featured five international judges who considered witnesses' testimony before deciding in Waldheim's favor.

Waldheim, who has been accused of participating in Nazi atrocities while serving in the German Army during World War II, could only be guilty of them if he were proved by evidence to have knowingly helped by some active involvement those who in fact committed them, the judges said.

A person actively involved would include one who had a duty and a power to prevent a crime, but who failed to intervene," wrote Rt. Hon. Sir Frederick Lawton, former judge of the Court of Appeal in Britain.

"A person does not commit a war crime merely because he knows others have committed such crimes nor because he worked with or alongside those who committed them."

Lapses and aberrations of memory such as Dr. Waldheim seems to have had about his service in Greece and the Balkans are not in themselves evidence of guilt," Lawton wrote.

There was no immediate reaction from Waldheim, who was on a state visit to Saudi Arabia and was due to return to Austria today. The United States has declared him a persona non grata as a private citizen because of controversy about his war record.

The $2.75 million Anglo-American production was shown in Britain and on the Home Box Office cable system in the United States Sunday.

Austrian television broadcast the judges' decision, but most of Waldheim's countrymen were asleep. Those who stayed up for the 12:45 a.m. announcement generally dismissed the event as irrelevant, as Waldheim did.

Ralph Scheide, a personal adviser to Waldheim and co-author of a book Waldheim's staff published in his defense last year, said the broadcast would be carefully studied to see if it could be used to defend the Austrian leader.

Producer Jack Saltman denied the program amounted to trial by television but conceded at an April news conference that Waldheim was not invited to appear. The former U.N. secretary-general has strongly denied the charges against him.

When Waldheim heard of the TV project he said, "Only the Austrian people have a right to judge me."

The charges are that Waldheim was an accomplice in wartime Nazi atrocities while he served as a German army officer in the Balkans. Waldheim denied he knew about and assisted in the deportation to gas chambers of Jews in the northern Greek city of Salonika and the execution by Nazi troops toward the end of the war of thousands of Italian prisoners on the Greek island of Cephalonia.

The panel considered witnesses' testimony and thousands of pages of material, HBO said.

Acting as special consultant to the program was Telford Taylor, U.S. chief prosecutor in the postwar Nuremberg war trials that sentenced Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and other Nazi leaders to death for war crimes.

An NCNB Loan Officer Is Master Of One.

LOANS

Any bank can give you a loan. But can they give you sound loan advice? NCNB National Bank can.

Unlike some banks, we train our loan officers for weeks. Not days. And out of all the tough classes and late-night homework, they learn to do just one job, and do it well.

They also learn how to give you something money can't often buy: Sound, sensible advice.

For example, your NCNB loan officer will tell you how our pre-approved loan can save you money on major purchases.

And how you may be able to borrow money, and still deduct the interest on your tax return.

Also, which payment schedule is smart, and which one is smarter.

Yet, there's something training can't help any one master. And that's how to be easy to talk to.

We figure that's a natural ability. And one we always look for in a loan officer.

You're invited to look for it, too, at any NCNB office. Just call 1-800-FOR-NCNB, for the name of the loan officer who is nearest you. Or, better still, stop by and visit us at any NCNB National Bank office.

Jesse Jackson relative charged as accessory in witness slaying

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — Noah Robinson, the half-brother of presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, faces charges of being an accessory to the stabbing of a key witness in the 1986 slaying of a former employee, authorities said.

Robinson, 45, was arraigned Sunday on accessory, obstruction of justice, intimidation of a witness and conspiracy charges stemming from the December 1987 stabbing of Janice Denise Rosemond in her Greenville apartment.

The Greenville native whose father, Noah Robinson Sr., is Jackson's father, was charged with being an accessory before and after the fact of a felony, according to warrants.

Jurors to hear bus crash case

CARROLLTON, Ky. (UPI) — Prosecutors still "have a lot of ground to cover" in the case against a man charged with killing 27 people by hitting their church bus while driving drunk, a spokesman said before today's initial grand jury hearing.

Authorities were to present an overview of the death-penalty case against Larry W. Mahoney at today's grand jury hearing, but further investigation is needed before prosecutors present evidence and call witnesses, said Philip Miller, spokesman for state Attorney General Fred Cowan.

"The investigators still have a lot of ground to cover, a lot of bases to touch, and it will be necessary to go back to the grand jury at a later date," Miller said.

Rail car explosions in Moscow kill 68, leave hundreds injured

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials have formed a high-level commission to investigate the explosion of three rail cars packed with 120 tons of explosives that blew up near a train station, killing at least 68 people and injuring hundreds.

The official Tass news agency said Sunday that some of the 230 people hospitalized after the blast in Arzamas, 250 miles east of Moscow, were in critical condition and the death toll could rise beyond 68.

More bodies taken from mine

BORKEN, West Germany (UPI) — Search teams early today found the bodies of two more coal miners killed in last week's massive explosion in Borken, bringing to 47 the death toll in West Germany's worst mine disaster in 26 years.

Mine officials announced the discovery of the two bodies at 4 a.m. and said rescue workers were continuing the search for four men who were still missing. Authorities said they held out little hope the four would be found alive.

Six miners were found alive Saturday in what authorities called a miraculous rescue. On Sunday the bodies of eight miners were found.

Fifty-seven miners were trapped 285 feet underground at Borken, 65 miles northeast of Frankfurt, after an explosion last Wednesday.

China cracking down on panda exchanges

BEIJING (UPI) — China, stung by mounting international criticism, has announced tighter regulations on loans of its giant pandas to foreign zoos and revealed plans to increase artificial breeding of the endangered animals.

The move, announced Sunday by the official Xinhua news agency, follows U.S. criticism against China for loaning the animals to foreign zoos in exchange for hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Fewer than 1,000 pandas survive in the wild, scattered in 12 mountainous reserves in China's rugged Sichuan, Gansu and Shaanxi provinces.

The need for much-needed foreign reserves has been cited for China's panda lending policy. Last year, China loaned two pandas to the Bronx Zoo in New York for $800,000 and another pair to the Netherlands for $600,000.

Also in the United States, the World Wildlife Fund has complained that a rush by U.S. zoos to borrow pandas from China to generate more visitors is endangering the animals' survival. A suit was filed last month to stop the federal government from showing two breeding-age pandas at Ohio's Toledo Zoo.

Candidates begin tour through Golden State

United Press International
The three major presidential candidates wind up their campaigns in the final primary state of the 1988 season, California, where political professionals say the ultimate battle for the White House will be won this year.

Tuesday's primaries in California, New Jersey, New Mexico and Montana will conclude the lengthy primary schedule, and victories in those states could also give Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis the big prize — the Democratic presidential nomination.

Dukakis, the Democratic front-runner, flew to California Sunday night and scheduled a full day visiting a high school in Woodland Hills and attending rallies in San Diego and San Jose.

Jesse Jackson, Dukakis's opponent, and Republican Vice President George Bush, the prospective Republican nominee, also were in California today. Jackson planned to visit an AIDS hospice in San Francisco and to appear on a live television program in Los Angeles.

Bush was to tour a drug abuse treatment center in Ontario and later appear at a fund-raiser in that city.

Sunday, Bush distanced himself from the Reagan administration's policy on offshore oil drilling saying a proposed lease of prime drilling sites off the coast of northern California should be deferred.

"Before going forward with new lease sales, we must be assured that the national treasure of the California coastline will not be harmed," Bush said.

At stake Tuesday for Democrats are 466 delegates to the party's national convention next month in Atlanta; California makes up the bulk of that number, with 314 delegates to be selected.

The latest United Press International delegate count shows Dukakis with 1,773 delegate votes, just 308 shy of the 2,081 needed for nomination. Jackson lags behind Dukakis with 935 delegates, but in recent campaign speeches the civil rights leader claimed that his demonstrated ability to draw in the vote for the party has merited him consideration as Dukakis's running mate.

Pollsters and politicians looked ahead Sunday to the general election and predicted the candidate who carries California, the nation's most populous state, will win the presidency.

California has not gone Democratic in a presidential election since 1964, but an ABC News-Washington Post poll taken in the past week found Dukakis has established a solid lead in the Golden State.

The poll, with a margin of error of 6 percent, showed Dukakis leading Bush 53 percent to 40 percent in California, the home state of President Reagan.

On ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," Democratic pollster Peter Hart said the ABC-Post poll and other surveys show Americans "have ambivalent feelings" about Bush.

Californians in particular, Hart said, are mirroring the national mood about Dukakis, who "suggests stability, reassurance. Voters are looking for that." George Bush has sort of invisibly gotten lost.

Also appearing on the program was Republican pollster Richard Wirthlin, who said Dukakis has "had probably his best 30 days that he's going to have from now until the election."

"But I think for most Americans, especially the swing voters here in California, the presidential campaign is yet to begin," Wirthlin said. "Those big leads that Dukakis is registering, I think, are written in the sand at the edge of the seashore."

California Gov. George Deukmejian, who heads Bush's campaign in the state, said on the ABC program the liberal label can easily be applied to Dukakis once he completes his race with Jackson.

"When the issues get joined in this general election when people begin to realize that Michael Dukakis, who I personally like very much, but his programs and his policies are such that he's a Walter Mondale when it comes to taxes, he's a Tip O'Neill when it comes to spending, he's a Teddy Kennedy when it comes to the issue of crime, and he's a George McGovern when it comes to defense issues," Deukmejian said.

As the primary season ends, speculation centers on the No. 2 spot on the national tickets. Deukmejian, often mentioned as a good choice for Bush, cagily dodged the matter by looking to the stars.

Hillsborough takes Junior College title

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — John Farrell launched a two-run home run Saturday night, giving Hillsborough Community College of Tampa an 11-4 win over three-time defending champion San Jacinto, Texas, at the Junior College World Series.

San Jacinto, going for a record-tying fourth straight title, committed four errors and went through seven pitchers in the loss, which ended their season at 63-9. Hillsborough, which entered the tournament with a 40-22 record, the worst of the eight-team field, wrapped up the season at 45-23.

The Hawks dominated the game, leading 3-1 after five, then scoring two runs in each of the final four innings. Randy Sudders had the game-winning RBI, a sixth-inning single off San Jacinto reliever Scott McCarty that scored Russell Romano, who had knocked in Derrick Pedro with a triple.

Matt Sines, 4-1, went the distance for the Hawks, giving up two earned runs, striking out nine and walking one. Starter Don Elliott, 10-2, took the loss.

Elliott rules Budweiser 500

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Bill Elliott, in full command much of the way, Sunday won the Budweiser 500 NASCAR race at Dover Downs International Speedway.

He battled from the 17th starting position on the one-mile, high-banked oval to the front of the pack by the 48th lap. He had an average lap speed of 118.726 mph and won $53,000.

Elliott, 32, of Dakinville, Ga., won this event in 1985. It was his 26th career victory and second this year on the Winston Cup circuit after the Valleydale 500 in Bristol, Tenn., April 10.

CFA strongly urges freshman eligibility

DALLAS (UPI) — The College Football Association, in hopes of heading off attempts to make freshman ineligible for football, Sunday strongly endorsed freshman eligibility in college sports.

In concluding their annual convention, CFA members also recommended NCAA adoption of additional recruiting and evaluation days for high school players and agreed to work with the NFL concerning pro scouting.

Freshman eligibility will be one of the major topics this month at an NCAA Forum in Orlando, Fla. Legislation proposing a ban on freshman playing football may come before next January's NCAA convention.

The CFA says it favors freshman eligibility because without it the size of football teams would be greatly reduced.

Barkley looks to get lucky vs. Hearns

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Thomas Hearns and Iran Barkley are the same size, nearly the same age and both list their occupation as boxer.

But their careers bear little similarity. Hearns has been a million-dollar player for seven years and his fights usually headline major boxing shows.

Entering his challenge for Hearns' World Boxing Council middleweight title tonight, Barkley is a club fighter looking to get lucky.

Hearns has victories over champions Roberto Duran, Wilfred Benitez and Pippino Cuevas. Barkley's biggest victory was against Michael Olajide. Hearns' losses were against Ray Leonard and Marvin Hagler. Barkley lost to guys named Osley Silas and Ed Hall.

But tonight Barkley expects to eclipse Hearns, and end the four-time champion's career, when they top a pay TV world title triple-header at the Las Vegas Hilton.

In the other bouts, Virgil Hill defends his

BOXING

World Boxing Association light heavyweight championship against Ramzi Hassan, and Roger Mayweather puts his WBC super lightweight crown at stake against Harold Brazier.

All three bouts are scheduled for 12 rounds.

"There's no way I'm blowing this shot, no way," Barkley said. "I worked hard, waited a long time. I'm not going to blow this for myself."

"Don't look for me to roll over for this guy."

Barkley, a 7-2 underdog, used to have Hearns' picture hanging on his bedroom wall in his home in the Bronx. He also had pictures of Leonard and Hagler up and hoped he would fight one of the three one day.

But his first title shot came against Sumbu Kalambay last October and Barkley lost a 15-round decision for the vacant International Boxing Federation championship. Six days later, Hearns stopped Juan Roldan in four rounds to win the vacant WBC title and become the first man to hold world championships in four weight classes.

Hearns thinks a fifth title could be in his future. He is considering meeting Hill at 168 pounds in a new super middleweight division.

First, he wants to unify the middleweight title. Of course, he would jump at the chance to fight Leonard or Hagler again if only they would agree.

In any case, Hearns has big plans and they don't include Barkley.

"I'm going into the ring to get the job done and get it done quick," he said. "I'd like to get it done quick because I have other things to do."

Hearns previously held championships in the welterweight, junior middleweight and light heavyweight classes.

Morley shines for Lady Gators

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Editor

GAINESVILLE — Seminole County graduate athletes are making headlines all over the nation in 1988. One of the brightest of the former Seminole County stars has been golfer Cheryl Morley, an Oviedo High graduate.

The University of Florida junior had a sensational year which included a top 10 finish at the NCAA Championships and first place in the Southeastern Conference Championships. She will enter her senior year as a legitimate contender for the national individual title.

In the NCAA Championships held at Las Cruces, N.M., Morley and teammate Karen Davies finished tied for ninth place with a four-day total of 293. They were both named All-America First Team for the third time in their careers.

The Lady Gators finished fourth among 17 teams, but made a tremendous comeback after a first day disaster. Florida was 13th at 308 after one day and may have had a shot at the title had it not been for that.

"I'm really proud of this team — coming from 13th to fourth place is quite an accomplishment," Florida coach Mimi Ryan said. "I just wish we had the first day over again."

Morley shot a 77 on the first day of competition, came back with a 75 and then really got her game in gear as she fired a 70 on day three and a 71 for the final round. It was her highest ever finish at the NAAs.

Probably the highlight of the season for Morley came on May 5-8 at the SEC Championships at Gulf Breeze. Morley started with a round of 75 and was well back in the pack after one day. The rest of the tournament, however, belonged to Morley.

After the 75, she came back with consecutive rounds of 68 and no one else could come close. Morley finished with a five-under par total of 211 which gave her medalist honors and also tied the SEC record set by former Lady Gator Lynn Connelly in 1981.

It was Morley's second tournament title of the season. Previously, she had won the Dick McGuire Invitational in Albuquerque, N.M. with a total of 218 which beat teammate Davies by five strokes. Morley took a first-round lead that left the other competitors in the dust as she shot a tourney-low 69. She followed it up with rounds of 76 and 73. Florida won the team title by two strokes over Tulsa, the team that went on to win the national title.

Other highlights for Morley included a second place in the Lady Gator Invitational, a second at the Pat Bradley Invitational at Key Biscayne; a tie for second at the State Collegiate in Miami; a tie for second in the LSU-Fairwood Invitational at Baton Rouge; a fourth at the Roadrunner/Diet Coke Invitational at Las Cruces, N.M.; a tie for fifth at the Earl Stewart/SMU Roundup at

Gillies has fine season for Winthrop

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Editor

Sandy Gillies spent the early part of her college career making the full transition from slow to fast pitch softball. After fine-tuning her all-around game, Gillies stepped into the leadership role for the Lady Eagles of Winthrop College this past season.

Gillies, a Lake Howell High graduate, is the starting shortstop for Winthrop and had a superb year in the field while also leading the starters in hitting and she was named to the All-Big South Conference team.

Winthrop, which was in a rebuilding year in 1988, finished with a record of 24-25 but the Lady Eagles played one of the toughest schedules around. Proof of that was their 7-1 record in winning the Big South Conference.

Gillies provided a great deal of leadership for Winthrop this past season, much the way she did in her latter years at Lake Howell. Offensively, she posted a .330 average with 47 hits in 142 at bats while being used as a switch hitter for the first time in her career.

She scored 34 runs and drove in 13 with three doubles, two triples and one home run. She led the team in both hits and runs. Gillies also led the team in stolen bases with 11 in 12 attempts, had 12 walks and only five strikeouts.

Next season, Gillies will be joined by another Seminole County prospect at Winthrop, as Lake Brantley High outfielder Heather Meyer has signed to play with the Lady Eagles.

Wilander claims French Open title

FRENCH OPEN

PARIS (UPI) — Mats Wilander still hesitates to say it, but his 7-5, 6-2, 6-1 victory over Henri Leconte in the final of the French Open makes it hard to deny: he is just about the best all-around tennis player in the world.

Though Ivan Lendl holds the official No. 1 spot, Wilander admitted his victory on the clay courts of Roland Garros stadium, in the wake of his triumph at the hard-court Australian Open, have convinced him he is getting there. He also won the Australian title in 1983 and 1984, when it was played on grass.

"I feel like I'm really close to Lendl," he said. "I've never been this close before, and I can feel it."

"To me it's always been more important to win big tournaments. Over the years it's been harder to concentrate on the ranking because you have to play really well in a lot of tournaments and that's not my style," he said.

Wilander demolished Leconte Sunday in one hour and 52 minutes. Leconte, who was bidding to become only the second French chman since 1946 to win the title, was left standing flat-footed after the first set as Wilander caught him at the net with sharp passing shots and lobs. He was particularly deadly with a backhand cross-court shot that repeatedly flew past Leconte.

The 23-year-old Swede, who was the youngest-ever French Open titlist in 1982 and won the championship again in 1985, also served superbly, missing just one first serve in 73.

Even so, he said he felt his semifinal match against American Andre Agassi was better.

"Today everything was so natural, but I definitely think I played better Friday. I think Friday was my toughest match of the tournament," he said.

Leconte said he knew he was playing badly.

"I was trying to take some risks, but he was playing long and he made me make mistakes. He made me play badly," said the Frenchman, who had never before made it to the final of a Grand Slam.

"For the moment, he's the best player on different surfaces. He won Australia, Key Biscayne," Leconte said.

"Maybe Wimbledon will be different, we will have to see."

Wimbledon and the U.S. Open are the only Grand Slams Wilander has yet to win.

The straight sets men's final echoed Saturday's women's final, when world No. 1 Steffi Graf blasted past 17-year-old Soviet Natalia Zvereva 6-0, 6-0.

It was the first such result in a women's Grand Slam final since 1911, when Dorothea Lambert Chambers beat Dora Boothby at Wimbledon.

Graf, whose first Grand Slam title was the French a year ago, needed just 32 minutes to defeat Zvereva, the 13th seed who ousted second seed Martina Navratilova on her path to the final.

UCLA men, LSU women win NCAAs

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Seven meet or college records were broken and another was tied during the NCAA Track and Field Championships in one of the nation's citadels of track.

"There is an electricity in the air here and the people of Oregon really support track and field well," said Arizona State's Lynda Tolbert, who upset Gail Devers of UCLA in the women's 100-meter hurdles.

UCLA easily won the men's title and Louisiana State edged UCLA for the women's championship in the meet that ended Saturday.

Sylvia Mosqueda of Cal State-Los Angeles set a meet and college record of 32 minutes, 28.57 seconds in the women's 10,000 meters. Villanova's Vicky Huber won the 3,000 in 8:47.35, a college record.

Lorenzo West of Mississippi State set a college record of 19.87 seconds in the men's 200. And the UCLA 4 x 400-meter men's relay team of Steve Lewis, Kevin Young, Danny Everett and Henry Thomas won in 2:59.51, the first time a college team broke 3 minutes.

Illinois State's Thomas Smith won the high jump with a meet-record leap of 7-foot-7 1/4. Tolbert's 12.82 time in the 100 hurdles was a meet record and local favorite Annette Hand of Oregon posted a meet record of 15:38.47 in the women's 5,000.

"The crowd was great and I kept saying to myself, 'Annette, you can't let them down.'" Hand said.

Joe DeLoach of Houston tied a meet record in winning the men's 100 meters in 10.03.

The highlight was the UCLA men's 4 x 400 team, which bettered the previous college mark of 3:00.55 set by UCLA in the NCAA meet last year.

"Our first goal was to win the race," Thomas said. "We wanted to concentrate on that first, then the under 3 minutes would come."

UCLA defended its NCAA team title by scoring 82 points. Texas finished second with 41.

"It's a combination of talent and the genius of (sprint coach) John Smith," UCLA men's coach Bob Larsen said. "John has the uncanny ability to make them peak at the right time."

LSU defended its women's crown with 61 points. Second-place UCLA had 58.

Sheila Hudson of California, the U.S. record holder in the triple jump, registered a 45-8, the longest by an American woman under any conditions. Because of the wind her jump cannot be classified a record.

Devers won the gold in the 100 meters, ran a leg on the Bruins' winning 4 x 400-meter relay team, finished second in the long jump and was part of the second-place 400 relay team.

Her stumble in the 100-meter hurdles cost UCLA the team title. Devers, who shares the American women's record of 12.61 seconds in the event with Jackie Joyner-Kersey, clipped the next-to-last hurdle, allowing Arizona State's Linda Tolbert to win. Devers finished third.

Instead of earning 10 points for a victory, Devers received 6, a 4-point difference that gave LSU the title.

Giant killers: Shockers upset Arizona State

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Mark Standiford, one of the smallest players on the Wichita State baseball team, was a big force in helping the Shockers continue their giant-killer role.

The 5-foot-7, 165-pound Standiford drove in three runs to pace Wichita State to a 7-4 victory against top-seeded Arizona State Sunday in the second round of the College World Series.

The loss drops Arizona State, 57-12, into an elimination game against Florida Tuesday at 5:10 p.m. EDT. Florida eliminated California 6-5 in Sunday's first game.

Wichita State, 56-14-1, will play Wednesday at 8:10 p.m. EDT against the winner of the Florida-Arizona State game. A victory would put Wichita State into Saturday's championship game.

Standiford, a senior second baseman, put the Shockers ahead to stay with a two-run homer in the third, his 27th home run of the season. Wichita State pushed three runs across the plate in that inning to take a 5-3 lead.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Standiford, who finished 3-for-5, also had an RBI single in the first for the Shockers, who pounded 11 hits.

"He's been the most consistent player we've ever had," Wichita State Coach Gene Stephenson said about Standiford. "He's proven that time and time again. He does more with his abilities than any other player we've ever had at Wichita State."

Stephenson added, "Don't sell these guys (Wichita State) short. I may downplay them a lot, but they've got a lot of heart and they know how to win."

Like the people who witness his home runs, Standiford doesn't really know where his power comes from. "I'm pretty quick with my hands, that may be where it comes from," he said. "It just happens. I guess."

Arizona State took a 3-1 lead in its half of the first with the help of three hits and three Shocker errors. The only RBI of the inning was a sacrifice fly by Martin Peralta. But Standiford said the Shockers didn't panic and that he thought back to how Wichita State sidelined then No. 1-ranked Oklahoma State in the NCAA Midwest Regional last week.

"I think everyone came out a little tight in the first inning," Standiford said. "But we played down in Stillwater (Okla., home of Oklahoma State) and we were playing No. 1 down there when we won, so that was a big confidence booster right there."

Winning pitcher Greg Brummett, 10-4, allowed just three hits after the first inning in going the distance. The junior right-hander had eight strikeouts, walked three and surrendered one earned run.

Arizona State Coach Jim Brock said Brummett was the difference in the game.

"He deserves a great deal of credit for his ability, but that is overshadowed greatly by the fact that you saw as gutsy a performance in a giant ballgame as you'll ever see," Brock said.

Brock was particularly impressed with Brummett's pitching in the eighth. A single by the Sun Devils' Steve Willis and a walk to Peralta put runners at first and second with one out. Brummett, however, got Spehr to pop out to shortstop and struck out Ricky Candelari to squelch the threat.

The Shockers nicked Arizona State starter Linty Ingram for five hits and five runs in the two-plus innings he worked. Ingram, the Pacific 10 Southern Division Player of the Year, faced three batters in the third and gave up Standiford's home run.

The right-handed Ingram, 17-5, also gave up four walks. Sunday's crowd of 16,499 broke the College World Series attendance record of 16,060 set Saturday.

Fresno State and Miami open Monday's play with a losers' bracket elimination game at 5:10 p.m. Stanford and Cal State-Fullerton follow with their second round game at 8:10 p.m.

Gooden leads Mets over Cubs

United Press International Dwight Gooden showed Chicago his bat can be just as deadly as his arm.

Gooden held the Cubs hitless for seven innings and slammed his first home run of the season Sunday to lead the New York Mets to an 11-3 drubbing of the Cubs.

New York was ahead 7-0 in the seventh when Gooden smacked the second homer of his five-year career, a two-run shot over the left-field wall.

However, Damon Berryhill led off the eighth with Chicago's first hit, ending any hopes for the first no-hitter in Mets' history.

"When I got to the mound in the eighth inning I was still thinking about the home run," Gooden said. "I had a rare feeling and was a little nervous. I think I lost a little bit. I didn't want to lose the no-hitter with a hanging curve so I threw a fastball."

Gooden, 9-1, wound up allowing five hits in pitching his sixth complete game of the season.

"When he went out and hit the home run in the seventh, he probably lost some concentration," Berryhill said. "Before that he was trying to get us out with curveballs. Then he challenged me with a fastball."

Berryhill's single began a two-run inning for Chicago. The Cubs added one more in the ninth on Berryhill's sacrifice fly.

"This was a big tease," Gooden said. "It could have been the most unbelievable day of my life. It turned into a mediocre day but I'll take the win."

Elsewhere, Philadelphia downed St. Louis 6-3; Montreal edged Pittsburgh 3-2; Atlanta defeated San Diego 3-1; San Francisco whipped Houston 9-3

Salazar spoils Indians' week

AMERICAN LEAGUE

United Press International With ace Greg Swindell on the mound and a pair of solo home runs in the first inning, the Cleveland Indians appeared ready to win a series from the Tigers in Detroit for the first time in 12 years.

Luis Salazar would not hear of it.

Salazar, a Padres castoff after suffering through a knee injury for the past two seasons, collected four hits to raise his batting average to .346, and his two-run double capped a four-run second inning against Swindell that powered the Tigers to a 6-2 victory.

Cleveland has lost 26 consecutive series in Tigers Stadium dating to May 1976. The Tigers are 61-19 against the Indians in that time. Sunday's victory pulled Detroit within one game of Cleveland, second in the American League East.

"You knew it was going to come sooner or later," said Swindell, who fell to 10-2 with his first loss since May 1. "This was my worst game yet, but I've got to get ready because I'm facing the same club Friday night."

Salazar proved to Tigers scouts during winter ball in his native Venezuela that his knee was sound and Detroit signed him as a free agent. Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson has made ample use of the retread.

"He can play so many positions. He's so valuable," said Anderson, who has used Salazar at all four infield positions and left field.

"I was very happy. My wife and kids got a chance to see me," said Salazar of the game that was televised to Venezuela. "They asked me for two hits. I needed two, the other two were a gift."

Jeff Robinson survived solo home runs in the first inning by Willie Upshaw and Brook Jacoby to pitch a five-hitter for his fifth straight victory. Robinson, 6-2, walked one, struck out 10 and retired the final 11 batters.

Swindell allowed more hits in the first two innings — nine — than he had in any previous game this season. He surrendered 17 over eight innings.

Elsewhere in the AL, Toronto crushed Boston 12-4, New York trounced Baltimore 9-2, Minnesota nipped Oakland 4-3, Chicago topped Texas 5-4, Kansas City defeated Seattle 7-3, and California beat Milwaukee 6-5 in 11 innings.

In the National League, it was Philadelphia 6, St. Louis 3, New York 11, Chicago 3, Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 2, Los Angeles 5, Cincinnati 4, San Francisco 9, Houston 3, and Atlanta 3, San Diego 1.

Blue Jays 12, Red Sox 4
At Boston, Lloyd Moseby belted a two-run homer and drove in three runs and Rance Mulliniks and Kelly Gruber each had three hits and two RBI, powering Toronto to a four-game sweep and its sixth straight victory. Duane Ward, 2-0, pitched two innings for the victory. Mike Smithson, 1-2, took the loss.

Yankees 9, Orioles 2
At Baltimore, Rickey Henderson scored twice and singled in two runs to highlight a nine-run first inning that powered New York. Richard Dotson, 6-1, earned his 100th career victory with a six-hitter striking out four and walking four. Starter and loser Jay Tibbs, 2-3, did not retire a batter.

Twins 4, Athletics 3
At Minneapolis, Steve Lombardozzi belted a two-run homer and Kent Hrbek added three hits to help Minnesota halt Oakland's three-game winning streak. Keith Atherton, 4-1, scattered two hits over three innings and Jeff Reardon went 1 1-3 innings to notch his 14th save. Oakland starter Bob Welch fell to 8-3.

White Sox 5, Rangers 4
At Chicago, Ivan Calderon stroked a pair of run-scoring singles and Jerry Reuss scattered four hits to pace the White Sox. Reuss improved to 4-2 and Bobby Thigpen worked 1 2-3 innings for his ninth save. Chicago scored three runs in the first inning off starter Paul Kligus, 6-4.

Royals 7, Mariners 3
At Kansas City, Mo., George Brett broke out of an 0 for 10 slump with two home runs, leading the Royals to a four-game sweep. Harold Reynolds broke a Seattle record with his eighth consecutive hit and went 3 for 3. Mark Gubicza improved to 7-5 while Edwin Nunez, 1-3, lasted 3 2-3 innings.

Angels 6, Brewers 5
At Milwaukee, Johnny Ray squeezed home Darrell Miller in the 11th inning, snapping the Angels' six-game losing streak. Miller reached base on a two-base throwing error by reliever Chuck Crim, 0-3, and took third on Dick Schofield's sacrifice. DeWayne Bruce, 2-3, earned the victory.

'Discernible' unheard of in college ball

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Not all of these fine young college men know the meaning of the word "discernible." Not on the pitching mound, anyway.

Visitors to the College World Series notice it right away. Pitchers escape prosecution for moves that would earn them a balk in the majors. They don't come to that "discernible" stop. And it's all legal, too.

Stanford Coach Mark Marquess says the "change of direction" — formerly allowed but now considered a balk in the big leagues, is OK here. If anything, he adds, the rules are too loose.

Arizona State Coach Jim Brock goes even further.

"In college baseball," Brock says, "the right-handed pitcher gets away with murder."

Brock adds he can speak only for what happens in his part of the country, but says the rules have grown so loose, and the base-stealers have moved so far ahead of the pitchers, he's taught his staff a balk move.

Joe Buckley, a California left-hander, agrees righties get away with a lot. He says sometimes he does, too.

"I was balked three or four times," he said. "It's a balk move but it depends on the umpire."

That's baseball for you. Someone is always looking for an edge. Brock certainly was when he opened this tournament with a ruse over his starting pitcher. When asked at a news conference who would open, he hedged and said, "We'll dance with who brings us."

What he never mentioned was at least two people had brought him. Linty Ingram was the ace right-hander who won 17 games. But Rusty Kilgo was the lefty who won two big games in relief in the regionals. Without ever committing himself, Brock left the impression Ingram would pitch. And that's how California prepared. Then came Kilgo, who won his first start in more than a year.

"The problem is, you assume sometimes," said Marquess, who will serve as the U.S. Olympic coach in Seoul.

Lakers battle Pistons

Friendships end when NBA finals begin

NBA FINALS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — How good a friend is Magic Johnson? Well, he did go out of his way to send buddy Mark Aguirre of the Dallas Mavericks on vacation.

Now the Los Angeles Laker guard is preparing to present Detroit's Isiah Thomas, another pal, with a similar gesture of goodwill when the 42nd NBA championship series begins Tuesday night at the Forum.

"When he comes in here I'll have to put him on his butt," Johnson said after the Lakers advanced to their seventh title series in nine years with a 117-102 victory over Dallas in Game 7 of the Western Conference final. "I'm going for the world championship and so is he. We can speak and have fun the day it's over."

For Johnson, a native of Lansing, Mich., friendship obviously has its limits, and they are measured on hardwood 94 feet by 50 feet.

Here's further proof: he actually snapped at Aguirre as both lined up for a free throw in Game 7. However, the players embraced after the buzzer.

"How do I feel?" Aguirre was asked after the Mavericks' longest season ended. "Instead of playing, I have to watch my two best friends play for the championship."

Thomas, who averaged nearly 24 points and 10 assists as the Pistons downed Boston in six games in the East final, said he was not rooting for either

Aguirre or Johnson to join him in the finals.

"But deep down, if you're going to win the championship, the two teams you want to beat are the Celtics and the Lakers," he said.

Led by Johnson, who collected 24 points, 11 assists and 9 rebounds Saturday, the Lakers will be gunning for the fifth title this decade. That would make them the first team since the 1989 Celtics to repeat as league champions.

Many thought the Lakers would attempt to duplicate that feat against Boston, but the Pistons eliminated Los Angeles' perennial adversaries Friday night.

"The Celtics couldn't make it," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said.

Hatafsky wins Kemper

POTOMAC, Md. (UPI) — Morris Hatafsky won his first tournament in five years by downing defending champion Tom Kite in the second playoff hole in the $400,000 Kemper Open.

The 13-year PGA Tour veteran, however, did not sound much like the winner despite netting the largest payday of his career.

"I've been saying all week that I wanted to enjoy my golf. But I didn't enjoy this at all," said Hatafsky, who led by two strokes heading into Sunday's final round but blew a fat final round lead by bogeying three of the final four holes of regulation.

"My stomach started in and my nerves were shaking."

Battling a swirling wind at the Tournament Players Club at Avenel, Hatafsky said he needed a "miracle" to get past Kite, who he led by six strokes six holes into Sunday's round.

It came in the form of a sensational wedge shot from behind the spectator gallery that rolled just four feet to the pin on the second playoff hole when Hatafsky appeared headed for a certain bogey.

"I got over the putt and I hit it," said Hatafsky of the winning shot. "It was a strange feeling I went blank and then looked up and watched it roll the last three inches."

Hatafsky dropped his putter, leaped in the air and hugged his caddy, former major league baseball shortstop Tim Folt, after the winning shot.

Hatafsky, who had missed the cut in his last three tournaments, led the field by as many as four strokes in the final round before collapsing on the back second place finish.

The first prize check raised Hatafsky's career earnings to $956,394 and his season earnings to $176,448 — setting a personal best for single year prize money.

The Kemper Open title represents quite a turnaround for Hatafsky, who was plagued by poor performances all year and had finished no better than 30th. He was 118th on this year's money list with $32,447 entering the tournament.

Bob Gilder and PGA Tour rookie Jim Hallet were tied for fifth at 7-under 277, with Larry Mize, Calvin Peete, Dick Mast and John Mahaffey one stroke back.

DAVIES TRIUMPHS
TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Until two weeks ago, Laura Davies planned to return home to West Byfleet, England, and play a couple of European tournaments.

She changed her mind and entered the $275,000 Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, winning it Sunday after finally overtaking Nancy Lopez on the back nine of the last round.

Davies shot a 3-under-par 69 and scored a 72-hole total of 277 for a $41,250 first prize.

Lopez fired a final round 1-over-par-73 for 280 for the four days. Lopez won $25,437.

Davies chased Lopez by one stroke for three days before catching up on the 11th hole of the Glengarry Country Club. The stout Briton whose long drives and powerful layway shots commanded the attention of 51,000 people at the tournament said she decided to enter the event last month.

Hatafsky, who had missed the cut in his last three tournaments, led the field by as many as four strokes in the final round before collapsing on the back second place finish.

The first prize check raised Hatafsky's career earnings to $956,394 and his season earnings to $176,448 — setting a personal best for single year prize money.

The Kemper Open title represents quite a turnaround for Hatafsky, who was plagued by poor performances all year and had finished no better than 30th.

He was 118th on this year's money list with $32,447 entering the tournament.

Bob Gilder and PGA Tour rookie Jim Hallet were tied for fifth at 7-under 277, with Larry Mize, Calvin Peete, Dick Mast and John Mahaffey one stroke back.

Davies chased Lopez by one stroke for three days before catching up on the 11th hole of the Glengarry Country Club.

The stout Briton whose long drives and powerful layway shots commanded the attention of 51,000 people at the tournament said she decided to enter the event last month.

Philadelphia (UPI) — Tom Kite led the field by a stroke on Sunday in the final round of the $400,000 Kemper Open at the Tournament Players Club at Avenel.

Lewis sprints to 10.13

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The trackside clock Sunday at the Pepsi Invitational read 9.92, which would have been an American record in the 100 meters for Carl Lewis.

When the official time came in, however, it was 10.13, a real letdown for the 7,520 fans at UCLA's Drake Stadium.

For Lewis, however, the time was secondary to the form he showed in bolting past Brian Cooper in his third race of the year.

"I was determined to run a smooth race, this being my second 'pure' race of the season," said Lewis, who equaled Calvin Smith's American record of 9.93 last year in the same race Ben Johnson clocked his world record 9.83.

Cooper, a former star at McNeese State in Louisiana who won the American indoor title at 60 meters this year, was first out of the blocks and held a sizeable lead before Lewis chased him down at about 40 meters.

Lewis, an exceptional closer, maintained his lead and held off Cooper by about a stride.

returning to the United States for the Olympic Trials in Indianapolis, which begin July 15.

His European trip will take him to Lausanne, Switzerland for a long jump on June 24, Paris June 27 for 100 meters and Berlin June 29 for another 100 meters.

Lewis has committed to long jumping and running the 100 meters at the Trials, but will not race in the 200 unless officials alter the scheduling at the Olympics. Lewis says the long jump and the 200 are slated to begin too close to one another.

In other Pepsi events, Olympic gold medalist Roger Kingdom overtook two-time World champion Greg Foster midway through the 110-meter hurdles and won in 13.30.

Foster, the former UCLA star who finished second to Kingdom at the '84 Olympics, clocked a 13.39 and suffered his first career defeat at Drake Stadium.

Willie Banks won the triple jump with a leap of 55 feet, 3 1/2 inches; Roddie Haley timed 44.76 in the men's 400 meters; and Mike Tully cleared 19 feet, 1-3/4 inches in the pole vault.

40,000 show to watch oldtimers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Age was showing on many of the former major-leaguers, but both fans and participants enjoyed the Equitable Old-Timers game held before the Milwaukee Brewers faced the California Angels.

A team of Old-Timers from the Brewers — who weren't that old — faced the Equitable All-Stars, a squad of crowd favorites spanning four decades of baseball's past.

More than 43,000 turned out Saturday night to see former Milwaukee Braves like Hank Aaron, Warren Spahn, Eddie Mathews and Joe Torre.

Prices mixed, trading active

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose nearly 115 points last week, was off 0.53 to 2070.77 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 401-317 among the 1,137 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,960,000 shares.

The market staged an impressive advance last week, enabling the Dow to score a record weekly point gain and prompting some analysts to pronounce a break in the recent downward momentum.

For the week, the index jumped 114.86 points, including Tuesday's surprising jump of 75 points and Wednesday's gain of nearly 33 points.

The Dow's advance during the four-day week broke the previous weekly record of 108.26 points, set during the week ended Dec. 18.

Investors, previously sidelined by fears of higher inflation and interest rates, re-entered the market amid hopes the worst was behind them.

Dollar drifts slightly lower in light trading

By United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly lower in light trading today on most major foreign currency markets. Gold was mixed.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar weakened slightly against the Japanese yen, closing at 126.07 yen, off 0.04 from 126.11 yen on Friday.

Dealers said the market was bullish for the dollar as the possibility of inflation in the United States decreased.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.7165 West German marks, down from 1.7253 on Friday.

In Zurich, the dollar began the day at 1.431 Swiss francs, down from 1.4365.

In Paris, the dollar opened at 5.8105 French francs, down from 5.833, and started in Amsterdam at 1.9298 Dutch guilders, down from 1.936.

In Brussels, the dollar started the week at 36.10 Belgian francs, down from 36.23, and was 1.277.50 lire in Milan, down from 1.283.20.

U.S. to pay depositors $1 billion

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States will pay more than $1 billion in insurance to depositors of one or more savings institutions that will be closed down soon in the largest liquidation ever, The New York Times reported today.

M. Danny Wall, the chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, confirmed the liquidations Sunday but refused to identify the savings and loan institutions involved. He said details of the liquidation would be announced today in Washington.

Savings industry officials said they expected the liquidations to be in California. The Times said. Neither bank board officials nor Wall would comment on a report Sunday by The Orange County (Calif.) Register, that federal regulators would be "quickly arranging a cure" for two seriously troubled local savings institutions — the American Diversified Savings Bank and the North American Savings and Loan, both in Costa Mesa, Calif.

The Federal Home Loan Bank

board oversees 3,200 savings institutions. Last month the General Accounting Office, the investigating arm of Congress, estimated that more than 500 were insolvent and more than 200 "hopelessly insolvent." The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, which provides insurance for depositors in savings institutions, does not have sufficient funds to cover deposits in all those institutions.

Many of the troubled institutions are in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, whose economies have been battered by the collapse of oil prices. Last year Congress authorized the board to raise up to $10.8 billion by selling bonds over the next three years to assist insolvent savings and loan institutions.

The institutions to be liquidated are part of the agency's management assignment program, under which the government transfers control of troubled savings and loan institutions to healthier institutions, a bank board official said Sunday.

Li. Marty Latrusecchio said, "he's shy," so Murdock is seldom seen.

Some hospitals issue teddy bears to post-surgery heart patients to hold to their chests instead of traditional pillows to aid in the healing of their wounds, according to The Wall Street Journal. The bears not only perform the function of a pillow, but also pack an emotional punch which aids in comforting patients no matter what their age or background.

The idea for Boo Boo Bears began with Rural Metro in Las Cruces, N.M. Company manager Mill Lee knew a highway patrolman who carried a stuffed owl to help reassure children injured in traffic accidents.

"We're always looking for better ways to communicate with youngsters and bears are something they can relate to," Mill said.

Rural/Metro's Central Florida Manager Clint Vardeman agreed the bears would help calm pediatric patients so he ordered Boo Boo Bears to duty here.

Even at accidents scenes where a child restrained in a car seat or harness is unharmed, but a parent is injured, "hand the child a Boo Boo and an immediate comforting factor takes place," he said.

Door prizes included anything from a case of soda pop to a new car, the latter compliments of Bob Dancer Dodge, Chrysler, Plymouth, Volkswagen Inc.

Throughout the year parents videotaped sport, band and club activities and the films were shown in a special viewing room, but by far the most popular was the tape of that morning's graduation ceremony. There was always a crowd huddled about the screen, pizzas in hand, laughing and shouting as they pointed out their friends.

In another room, thick with the aroma of hot buttered popcorn, a casino was in full swing. Students used the play money they won in an auction held later in the evening.

At midnight they boarded the rivership Romance for a three-

Balloon breaks altitude record

LAREDO, Texas (UPI) — British balloonist Per Lindstrand, taking advantage of perfect weather conditions, today soared to an unofficial altitude of 58,700 feet to set a world record for hot air balloons.

Lindstrand took off in his 12-story-tall balloon at 5:42 a.m. on a flight that took him more than 11.1 miles high. A spokesman for Operation Stratquest said the balloon passed the existing record altitude of 55,134 feet at 7:02 a.m. and continued up to 58,700. Lindstrand has been hoping to top 60,000 feet.

The craft then started its descent, taking far longer for the flight than the predicted 2 1/2 hours. As 9 a.m. approached, the balloon was moving toward a landing within 25 miles of Alice, Texas, about 20 miles down wind from the launch site.

A project spokeswoman said the altitude is unofficial until instruments aboard the craft can be checked.

The flight had been postponed almost daily for more than a week because of high winds but today before takeoff Peter

Mason, the project coordinator, said, "It is very calm. It is a perfect day. Perfect."

Soon after takeoff, Lindstrand dropped two of his six empty fuel tanks, allowing them to flutter to the ground under a parachute, as he did with the rest of the fuel tanks as they were consumed. Due to a small amount of instability at lift-off, Lindstrand allowed two 100-pound sandbags to remain attached to his enclosed gondola, but once aloft he climbed out and slit the bags with a knife, allowing the sand to spill out.

The launch site was 27 miles north of Laredo on the flat, wide-open, semi-arid South Texas plains. As it inflated before dawn, the giant silver balloon dominated the countryside and then turned spectacular as the sun rose and sunlight reflected off the metallic-colored balloon.

"It is probably going to be visible all the way up," Mason said. "It's a silver dot in the sky. At 35,000 feet we started to see his vapor trail. That's also about when he had to pressurize his cabin."

scene, returning home. They told their parents what happened and the parents called police.

Desantis, driving a brown Toyota Corolla, was seen driving about a quarter mile from the scene and was arrested.

Desantis told police he was a mason from Deatur, Ga., but listed no local occupation.

Longwood considers requests

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Two conditional use requests for projects that have been opposed in the past are among the eight issues scheduled for public hearings when the City Commission meets Monday at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

They are a request by Barbara Ann Smith to locate a private school at 1242 S. County Road 427 in Wildmere Plaza and one by Leroy Strickland owner of Regency Mazda and James Zirkel of HDS Consultants, Inc. to operate a car sales and service business on Highway 17-92 at Orange Ave.

It will be a continuation of the hearing on the school request, which was tabled on May 16 after concerns were raised over possible traffic, safety and septic tank problems and the fact that the school would be three doors down from a restaurant where beer and wine are sold.

City Planner Chris Nagle is recommending approval of the request and is also recommending approval of the request by Regency Mazda subject to compliance with staff and Land Planning Agency comments. The city commission approved a Comprehensive Plan amendment and rezoning to C-3, General Commercial. Much of the early objections by the public to the car dealership were eliminated by a voluntary declaration of land use conditions which the owner placed on the property to take care of impact concerns.

Also scheduled for public hearings are the Comprehensive Landscaping Ordinance, an ordinance amending and revising the budget for the 1987-88 fiscal year, an ordinance extending the hours in city parks to 9 p.m., an ordinance ratifying and confirming compensation for members of the city commission, and an ordinance exempting the police chief from the Police Bill of Rights appeal process to comply with the state regulations.

Up for first reading will be ordinances regulating political signs, amending acceptance of payment for parking violations and receipts, and requiring the city attorney to prepare city-related documents effecting real property.

In other business, the commission will:

- Hear a request for the transfer of a conditional use permit and site plan granted Florida Central Commerce Park Wastewater Treatment Facility from Commerce Utilities, Inc. to Southern State Utilities, Inc.
- Vote on approval of a joint cities and county road impact fee interlocal agreement.
- Vote on a contract with Kane and Associates for auditing services for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1988.

Consider a proposal from I&F Financial to have consultant Jeff Eichberger assist the city administrator in preparation of the 1988-89 budget for a fee of $4,000.

...Marina

on weekends and holidays or pay a $100 annual fee. City residents will not be charged and the fees will only be enforced on weekends and holidays.

Also, the parking of vehicles and trailers will be regulated in regard to the number of available spaces with the overflow to be directed to the Municipal Parking lot across the street.

The ordinance calls for the hiring of two personnel to work on weekends and holidays at the marina, one to collect fees and the other to enforce parking restrictions.

The city commission had previously discussed the elimination of power loading of boats at the marina due to the damage to boat ramps. While not part of the marina ordinance, power loading will not be permitted at the boat ramps.

According to the city commission at its last meeting, signs will be posted to notify boaters that power loading will be prohibited.

Power loading is the use of engine power to propel a boat on a trailer instead of using the traditional hook-and-crank method.

Other items to be discussed by the city commission at the workshop:

- A draft review for the Westside Improvement Neighborhoods Strategy (WINS). Local banker financing, budget items and tax increment district legislation regarding the WINS project will also be discussed.
- A discussion of the DER regulations and state mandate that will require the city to remove or replace the city's fuel storage tanks at a cost of $180,000.

city wastewater spray irrigation field.

Prison authorities contacted the Industrial Development Commission of Mid-Florida, Inc. about two months ago seeking a possible Central Florida prison location. Other undisclosed sites are also being researched. Prison officials met with city and business officials about a month ago and discussed the Sanford site.

About 25 city, county and business representatives toured the two North Florida federal prisons last Thursday. All the group members were favorably impressed with the operations and personnel at the prisons, but have mixed views on whether a similar facility should be located in Seminole County.

Voorhees said he and other committee members are fearful that water and sewer lines from Sanford to the proposed prison would extend development closer to their community, which is about four to five miles from the site. Development is now limited southeast of Sanford, in part because of the lack of the water and sewer lines.

City sewer and water lines currently extend about one mile outside the city limits along SR 40.

DEAR ABBY

New mother gets no card, nurtures anger

DEAR ABBY: I have a 10-month-old baby. She is our first child and this was my first Mother's Day. My husband didn't give me anything—not even a card for my daughter to give to me. I was very hurt. I didn't say anything to him about my feelings, but he knew I was hurt.

A friend of mine at work who has a 2-year-old says her husband has never remembered her for Mother's Day either. His excuse was "You're not my mother."

I finally told my husband (I didn't nag or yell that I was hurt because he forgot me on Mother's Day. He didn't even say he was sorry.

I suppose the hurt will go away in time, but I wish I knew why he didn't even wish me a happy Mother's Day.

FORGOTTEN ON MOTHER'S DAY

DEAR FORGOTTEN: Some men are not sentimental—and you married one of them. Instead of hurting in silence, tell your husband that special occasions are important to you, and it would make you ever so happy if he sent you a card. And just to make sure he doesn't forget—remind him.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the person who had been approached by a total stranger who told her to smile caused me to recall that the same thing happened to me.

Just two weeks after I buried "Jimmy," my 18-year-old son who had been killed in an automobile accident, I went grocery shopping. When I saw all the favorite foods I used to buy for Jimmy, I had to fight back the tears.

As I was putting my groceries

Abigail Van Buren

in the car, I congratulated myself on how well I had handled all those painful memories, when a woman I had never seen before came up to me and said cheerfully, "Smile, my dear, nothing can be that bad!"

I managed to get my groceries into my car, got inside and just sat there and cried. Sign me.

GRIEVING MOM

DEAR MOM: My condolences on the loss of your beloved son. Your poignant letter serves to remind us that because we never know what battles others may be fighting, we should never make personal comments to strangers.

DEAR ABBY: A girlfriend friend who had been a bridesmaid at my wedding asked me to be her bridesmaid, and I accepted gladly. She asked me in April 1987—the wedding was to take place on Nov. 7, 1987.

I found out that I was pregnant in May, and was due in January 1988. I mated a couple of pre-wedding gifts to her—a blue garter and a silver cake knife—thinking all was well.

I was later asked not to be in the wedding because I would be seven months pregnant! Abby, I gained only 18 pounds, and at 5 foot 7, 134 pounds didn't look so big.

My real friends thought it was a tacky, tasteless thing for her to do. What do you think, Abby?

UNASKED IN HOUSTON

DEAR UNASKED: Regardless of how "big" you would be, it was small of the bride to disinvite you to be in the wedding party. Shame on her.

DEAR ABBY: Throughout the year we get postcards from relatives and friends who are vacationing abroad, then at Christmastime, dissertations arrive about the exotic places they have visited, with such grand accommodations as castles in Ireland, villas in Italy, posadas in Portugal, condos in Barbados, summer cottages in Canada and suites aboard the QE2. But when it comes to the USA, they wouldn't know a motel if they ran into one.

We would like to hear how your readers who live in the Sunbelt, in the mountains, by the seashore and in the desert respond to letters for worse yet, telephone calls from these moochers who want to come for a visit to "see" them—and always "in season."

Please print this before the summer season starts so those of us who live near summer resorts will get a break.

ON THE BEACHSHORE

DEAR ON: It's in print. But don't expect this to protect you from moochers. That's a do-it-yourself project.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Appalled in Colorado" that I'm just as surprised as he was that the high school principal flew the high school flag at half mast.

Normally on dry land, flags are flown at "half-staff" because most masts are on ships.

More heart surgery may be required

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother had a quadruple bypass. Four months after the operation, she had a heart attack and it was discovered that two of the bypasses were completely blocked, and the third was partially blocked. The surgeon is urging another operation, but my mother is reluctant. What should she do?

DEAR READER: One of the major complications of coronary-artery bypass grafting is that the grafted blood vessels themselves may become blocked. This is the reason that patients must take special care postoperatively: Stop smoking, lose weight, reduce dietary fats, exercise regularly and take the necessary medicine.

Even with the best of care, reocclusion can result. Second — or sometimes third — operations may be necessary. However, repeat surgery is always technically more difficult and carries greater risk. Therefore, most doctors recommend medical management, using reoperation as a last resort.

From the information you supply, I cannot determine whether your mother is a candidate for another operation or whether it has unacceptable risks. I think that she needs a second opinion from a cardiologist, a non-surgical specialist in heart disease. Your mother should almost certainly undergo further testing to assess the state of her heart circulation and function. With up-to-date information about your mother's condition, the doctor will be able to advise her about what action to take.

Additionally, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart," which has advice that might help your mother.

DEAR DR. GOTT: We need to get our carpet cleaned but have heard this might be hazardous to our baby, who is at the crawling stage. What can you tell me about this?

DEAR READER: Scientists in Denver, Col., reported an outbreak of Kawasaki syndrome among children who were exposed to freshly shampooed carpets. Kawasaki syndrome is a childhood disease marked by fever, swelling, a skin rash that peels, conjunctivitis and inflammation of arterial walls, sometimes causing blood clots and heart attacks. The cause of the illness has not been identified. However, in view of the rug-shampoo connection — presumably due to an inhaled chemical toxin or infectious agent — many experts are recommending that youngsters be kept away from newly cleaned carpets for a minimum of 24 hours.

By James Jacoby

Careful Charlie was the unlucky declarer in today's deal, and the result puzzled him. "I played low from dummy on the spade lead and ruffed East's jack," he explained. "It's bad technique to play the top hearts right away with my hand since the play can collapse if hearts split 4-1. Even with a normal split, you do not want to give the defense an opportunity to draw your third trump before forcing you again in spades, since that may prevent you from enjoying the full benefit of your side-suit, in this case diamonds. So I postponed drawing trumps, instead leading the club queen."

Charlie's caution did him no good. East won the club king, played back his singleton diamond and got a diamond ruff.

Then a club was ruffed by West, and another diamond ruffed by East. The defensive crossruff continued, with West making his heart queen and East ruffing still another diamond with the heart 10. That was seven tricks to the defense, down four. Listen now to Charlie's lament.

"The sad thing here is that I would have made the hand if West had attacked with his singleton club. Suspecting that the club was a singleton, I would have risen with the club ace. I would have had to rely on the hearts splitting, so I would have played A-K before forcing out the diamond ace and the club king. But I would have been a step ahead of the defense. Isn't it remarkable how an opening lead can make a four-trick difference?"

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Oool

YOUR BIRTHDAY
JUNE 7, 1988

Big things could happen in the year ahead. The harder you work at your chosen project or enterprise, the luckier you'll be. Try to utilize this beneficial association to your maximum advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Outstanding achievements are possible today, but there is still a possibility you might do things in a manner that does not serve your best interests. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep your attention focused on ambitious interests today, not you on negative thoughts. Lady Luck will help fill in the gaps if you're enthusiastic and optimistic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Temporarily disassociate yourself today from people whose ambitious objectives are not in harmony with yours. In order to succeed, you need total commitment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You should be able to handle large issues in stride today. However, petty disruptions could have you scurrying for the aspirin bottle, especially if co-workers are involved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Situations you handle yourself today should work out to your satisfaction. However, matters you assign to others could end up creating more work for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others will find you a marvelous person to be around today as long as everything is going your way. However, when you encounter opposition in any form, you could overreact.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to find it easier to please outsiders today than your own family, no matter how hard you try. Strive to appease them anyway.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you apply yourself you should be able to expand small advantages into something more worthwhile. Although you'll be aware of this, you might not do so.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be very selective regarding your associations today. Try to steer clear of people you suspect might want to use you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When contemplating making any expensive purchases for your home let durability and quality take precedence over price or fads.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be rather lucky in material ways, but this good influence might not spill over in your social relationships when dealing with negative types.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Events could take an interesting turn today, because a person you're expecting something from may be expecting that same thing from you. Both could be disappointed.

Shultz expected to raise hostage issue with Syrians

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz arrived in Syria today to push his Middle East peace plan, indicating that the topic of the nine American hostages in Lebanon would also be raised during his talks with President Hafez Assad.

Speculation has mounted in recent weeks that some Western hostages might be rescued by Syrian troops who moved into the southern suburbs of Beirut recently to stop fighting between rival Shiite militias.

The hostages are believed held in southern Beirut by the pro-Iranian Hezbollah militia.

Shultz, who was welcomed at Damascus airport by Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa, was expected to have three hours of talks with Assad.

The secretary of state will fly back to Egypt later, for a sightseeing visit to the ancient monuments at the city of Luxor, about 400 miles south of Cairo.

Shultz indicated Sunday that the hostage issue would be raised in his talks with Assad, but offered no further comment. Assad has been the least receptive of any Arab leader to Shultz's Middle East peace plan to settle the Palestinian issue.

The Syrian leader wants an international peace conference that could dictate a middle East peace, while Shultz is proposing a symbolic conference that would lead to direct Arab-Israeli talks.

On Sunday, Shultz failed to persuade the Israeli government to accede to a Jordanian condition for advancing a U.S. peace plan.

Shultz lost a bid to persuade Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to negotiate the exchange of land for peace with the Palestinians, a requirement of Jordan's King Hussein to enter into peace talks under the U.S. plan.

After 8 1/2 hours of talks with Israeli leaders in Jerusalem, a weary-looking Shultz told a news conference at Tel Aviv's Ben Gurion Airport before leaving Israel for Cairo. "As far as any major shift in anybody's position, I can't report that. I emphasized the need of King Hussein's side to feel there is something to negotiate about."

But Shultz said the Reagan administration will continue to press for Arab-Israeli peace talks in the rest of its term, although the secretary of state expressed frustration that the U.S. peace plan has not generated any support since it was introduced in February and referred to leaving the situation in the best possible shape for his successor.

"The president has made it clear to me that we are engaged, and we're going to stay engaged and do everything we can for the balance of this administration to accomplish as much as we can and to leave for our successors as constructive and as positive a situation as we can possible manage," he said.

Shultz arrived earlier Sunday in Tel Aviv from Cairo, Egypt, on the 21st anniversary of the Six Day War in which Israel captured the West Bank from Jordan and the Gaza Strip from Egypt, and bluntly told Israel its continued occupation of the territories seized in the war "and the frustration of Palestinian rights is a dead-end street."

It was one of the toughest public comments he has directed toward Israel since last February, when Shultz began pushing for an international conference leading to direct Arab-Israeli talks.

He also said the Palestinian belief that "violence can end Israeli occupation is an illusion" as well as that only negotiation and compromise can bring a lasting peace.

His arrival on his fourth Middle East peace mission since February also coincided with the final day of a three-day general strike by Palestinians to protest his visit.

In what appeared to be an Israeli snub, Shultz's plane was denied the traditional courtesy of an escort over Israeli territory by two Israeli F-16s that has always been afforded in the past.

Shamir's policy adviser, Yossi Ben-Aharon, immediately rejected Shultz's statement on the continued occupation.

"We may have to live with the status quo in the absence of our readiness to negotiate with us," Ben-Aharon said in a statement. "So we have to be ready to live with the worst option which is continuing the status quo."

Shamir opposes the Shultz peace plan, refusing to talk about trading "land for peace" with the 1.5 million Palestinians who live in the territories.

Hostages may be held in old school

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Muslim militia official confirmed a British newspaper report that foreign hostages in Lebanon are being held in a former school that is now the main barracks of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah group in Beirut's war-torn southern suburbs.

The West Beirut militia official, who requested anonymity, said Sunday the building in the city's Star district is used as a prison.

"Yes, Hezbollah holds foreigners and Lebanese prisoners in the Star area at this building, which used to be a school run by nuns," the official said. "They hold people at this building which they turned into a fortified barracks."

The official said Hezbollah holds captives at the barracks because "they consider it militarily safer."

In London, the Mail on Sunday newspaper described the barracks as a "hostage hotel."

The Mail on Sunday report quoted members of a Shiite Muslim militia, the pro-Syrian Amal, as saying the 16 foreigners still in captivity, including nine Americans, were transferred to the barracks-prison during recent fighting between rival militias for control of the southern suburbs.

The London newspaper published a photograph of the so-called hostage hotel, which it described as a "grim, gray building in Beirut's southern suburbs" that has been "partitioned into tiny cells" to house the captives.

The report was the first to say all the foreign captives were being held in the same place.

The Mail quoted Amal officers as telling the newspaper, "We know they are there and that they are alive. But any attempt to take them by force will only result in bloodshed."

"The only hope for the hostages is successful negotiation at a political level. Then Syria can go in and bring them to safety," the newspaper quoted the Amal as saying.

The newspaper said the Amal "gathered details through their infiltration of the Hezbollah ranks and by intense debriefing of their own men newly released from the prison."

The hostages "are guarded night and day by only the highest ranking Hezbollah officers, personally supervised by Ayatollah Khomeini's Iranian Revolutionary Guards," the Mail said. It said an Iranian flag flies over the barracks-prison.

When the factional fighting between Amal and Hezbollah gunmen reached an alarming level in the suburbs last month, the newspaper said, two Iranian diplomatic cars with blackened windows took blindfolded men into the barracks.

The Hezbollah, or Party of God, control most of the southern suburbs.
