Minimum wage hike proposed

WASHINGTON — The administration proposed that the federal minimum wage — $3.35 an hour — be raised to $4.25 during the next three years but only if accompanied by a lower "training wage" for new employees.

The lower subminimum wage is a controversial idea that has been blocked by Congress for years.

Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole told the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources Friday the administration considers the "skills gap" to be the most serious problem and wants to resolve "this perennial debate" about the minimum wage and move on to "the pressing challenge of improving skills."

Woman jailed by mistake

BRUNSWICK, Ga. — A black woman mistaken for a white drug suspect with a similar name was arrested and booked into a jail 250 miles from home before police realized their error.

Glynn County officials had asked the Cobb County Sheriff's Department to serve an arrest warrant on a Kathy Hays on drug charges, police said Friday.

Cobb County officials instead arrested Kathy Denise Hayes, 26, and she was picked up in Cobb by Glynn County authorities, driven to Brunswick — about 250 miles away — and booked into the Glynn County Jail.

Rushdie fears support waning

LONDON — Iran Saturday welcomed British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's statement that Salman Rushdie's "The Satanic Verses" was offensive to Muslims, but rejected British arguments that the work could not be banned because of the right to free speech.

State-run Tehran Radio said Thatcher's comments, made Friday in her Finchley, north London constituency, were "a small step" in the right direction, but fell far short of what was still required.

Festival under way

Local park showground for artists this weekend

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — Artists from across the United States set up camp in Fort Mellon Park yesterday as the annual St. Johns River Festival got under way.

More than 150 artists were exhibiting works ranging from oil paintings to handmade bamboo flutes. Food and music also were available for spectators strolling through the exhibits on the waterfront at Lake Monroe.

The festival, sponsored by the Sanford-Seminole Art Association and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, will continue from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

Dave Farr, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce executive director, said he expects up to 25,000 people to visit the festival each day. The event, which required more than 5,000 manhours of preparation since last year's festival, could bring up to $500,000 into the local economy, he said.

"We're real pleased. We've got a great turnout and a good buying crowd," Farr said yesterday.

The $500 Best of Show award went to Jim Koevenig of Oviedo for a watercolor print.

Karen Kopp and Bob McGee of the Seminole Community College fine arts department and New Smyrna artist Marilynne Roland served as judges.

Chamber secretary Virginia Longwell, who organized the festival, said she was pleased with the turnout. "The family affair part of the festival really makes you feel good about it," she said. "It's a family-oriented event."

Spectators seemed pleased. Marie Farmer of Holly Hill, for example, said she was impressed by the variety of art forms on display. "It's spread out well and offers a good representation," she said.

SANFORD — Neptune appeared at the Lake Monroe waterfront yesterday.

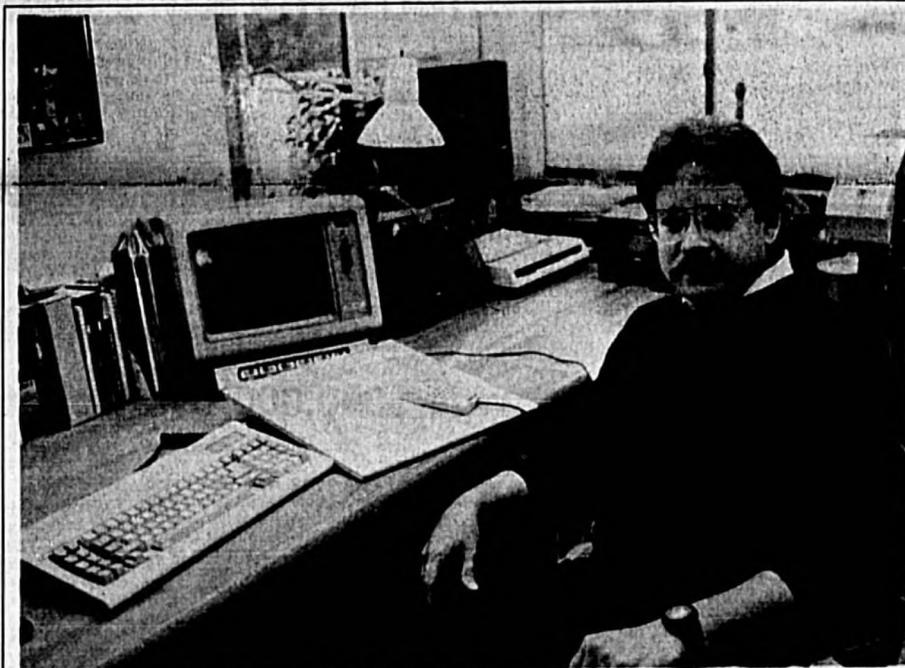

There between shuffleboard and tennis courts, the sea god rose from about 10 cubic yards of sand in Fort Mellon Park.

And he came to life at the touch of Marc Altamar's hands.

Altamar, of Daytona Beach, spent about six days building the sculpture.

Commissioner intent on progress

LONGWOOD — City Commissioner Gene Farach wants progress and is prepared to do his part to move the city into a new age.

Farach, a structural engineer who runs his own engineering and general contracting business from his Longwood home, is so intent on these goals that he volunteered his professional expertise to help with some future city projects.

One of them is the design concept of Candyland Park on Grant Street in the Skylark subdivision.

Another is the proposed expansion of the fire department on West Warren Avenue and Milwee Street. Farach says he plans to do these projects with the aid of the latest technology in computers.

Shuttle launch set for Saturday

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA engineers worked over the weekend to ready the shuttle Discovery for blastoff Saturday of the year's first shuttle flight, a mission delayed more than two weeks by a variety of technical problems.

After wrapping up a formal flight readiness review Friday, Rear Adm. Richard Truly, associate administrator of spaceflight, announced the official launch date. "As it now stands, our launch teams are not working any significant issues (that) are expected to impact a launch next week."

If all goes well, the carefully scripted countdown will begin at 12:01 a.m. EST Wednesday, leading to a liftoff at 8:10 a.m. Saturday. The "launch window" that day extends to 10:40 a.m.

Discovery's five-man crew — commander Michael Coats, 43, co-pilot John Blaha, 46, James Baglan, 37, Robert Springer, 46 and James Buchli, 43 — plans to fly to the Kennedy Space Center Wednesday for final launch preparations.

The goal of the five-day flight, the third since the 1986 Challenger disaster, is the launch of a $100 million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite that will help NASA improve communications between shuttle crews, other satellites and mission control.

Discovery originally was scheduled to blast off Feb. 23, but launch was delayed more than two weeks when NASA managers ordered engineers to replace the shuttle's three high-pressure liquid oxygen turbopumps because of cracks found in a pump used by the shuttle Atlantis in December.

The pump replacement work delayed Discovery's launch to no earlier than March 9 and the launch team lost another two days this week when engineers discovered a crushed valve component on main engine No. 1 that interrupted critical tests.

The valve apparently was damaged during the pump replacement procedure, but NASA would not have been able to launch Discovery before March 11 in any case because of an already-scheduled military rocket launch.

Rodent problem gnawing at local police officers

By SUSAN LODEN

SANFORD — "You dirty rat." When Seminole County sheriff's deputies say that, they mean it.

The sheriff's offices are infested with large mice, which have gnawed report files and, in one case, bit a dispatcher on the foot.

Sticky-surfaced traps have been set for the rodents, and one investigator said he was questioning a suspect while a large rat flipped and flopped trying to break free of the sticky trap that had caught it.

The suspect didn't ask about the fate of the rodent, investigator Daren Tjomstol said. "He was just asking for his lawyer," Tjomstol said.

Report on Navy training deaths due

PENSACOLA — Rep. Toby Roth, R-Wis., says he will release a final federal report this week on an investigation into deaths in Navy training including that of a Wisconsin man who died last March in Florida.

Navy Airman Lee Mirecki of Appleton, Wis., died during a class at the Pensacola Naval Reserve Swimmer School. The General Accounting Office has been probing his death and that of other Navy personnel in training mishaps.

Roth said he will release the final report in a news conference in his office next Tuesday.

"The GAO has investigated how the Navy's failures in training contributed to fatal accidents, lapses in Navy investigative procedures and the failure of the Navy command to respond to safety problems," he said.

In a preliminary report, the GAO said the Navy at first misinformed federal officials and Mirecki's family about details in his death. He died of a panic-induced heart attack during a swimming class.

Several Navy personnel have been disciplined in Mirecki's death and training procedures at the Florida school where he died have been changed.

Suspected child molester captured

TAMPA — A Florida fugitive who became the first suspected child molester on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List has been captured at a campground in Montana, the FBI announced Saturday.

Roger Lee Jones, 43, was arrested Friday at a trailer in a KOA campground in Butte and charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, FBI Agent Larry Curtin said.

The flight charges were filed by the FBI on March 26, 1987, at the request of the Sarasota County Sheriff's Department. Jones fled after he was charged in Sarasota County in the fall of 1986 with seven counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child under 18.

The charges involved several different children, investigators said. Jones was added to the 10 Most Wanted list in May, the first suspected child molester on the list, Curtin said.

Jones used the alias Mike Andrews in Butte, where he was arrested on burglary charges filed in Great Falls. He was known in Great Falls as Donald Hamilton.

Once in custody, he admitted his true identity, which FBI agents in Great Falls verified by a fingerprint comparison.

Judge dismisses case against reporter

TALLAHASSEE — A judge has dismissed charges against a newspaper reporter arrested last summer for taking three pieces of paper given to her by an inmate out of the Leon County Jail.

Circuit Judge Kevin Davey ruled Friday the state contraband law under which Tallahassee Democrat reporter Karen Olson was charged was unconstitutional.

The law prohibits giving or taking written communication from inmates, but Davey said it could conceivably be applied against defense lawyers.

Assistant State Attorney Ray Markey said an appeal might be filed in the Florida Supreme Court, so the law can be rewritten if necessary during the legislative session beginning April 4.

"I don't think it's over yet," said Sheriff Eddie Boone.

Woman charged in newborn's death

TAMPA — A 19-year-old woman has been charged with first-degree murder in the death of her newborn daughter whose body was found in a plastic bag beside a trash bin outside a convenience store.

The body of the infant was found late Thursday following a frantic day-long search of south Tampa after Teresa Yeoman went to Tampa General Hospital complaining of cramps and hemorrhaging and doctors determined she had just given birth.

The woman denied having been pregnant and refused to tell authorities what she had done with the baby.

Thursday evening, a volunteer searcher found the body of the infant inside the plastic bag.

Teacher charged with child abuse

PENSACOLA — An elementary school teacher charged with child abuse after authorities allegedly found his home inundated with garbage, cockroaches and animal feces is free on bond, authorities said Friday.

James Curtis Nims Jr., 41, a physical education teacher at Warrington Elementary School, was arrested Thursday and released the same day after posting $5,000 bond.

Authorities claim Nims' ex-wife, Mary Hartley, went to his home looking for her 11-year-old son. The couple has joint custody, but the boy had been with his father since October.

Strike cripples Eastern Airlines

United Press International

MIAMI — Eastern Airlines' 8,500 ground workers struck the carrier in a contract dispute Saturday and pilots refused to cross the picket lines, virtually shutting down the financially troubled airline and stranding angry passengers.

An Eastern spokesman said the airline expected to field only 50 flights by the end of the day. The nation's seventh-largest carrier, Eastern normally flies about 1,000 flights a day with about 100,000 passengers.

Chaos reigned at Miami International Airport, where flight cancellations and delays caused long lines of frustrated passengers.

The most commonly asked question, said Eastern employee Sheila Michaels, is "Is my flight going? Is my flight leaving on time? And the answer is usually, 'No.'"

Eastern had said Friday it would still try to fly 260 to 300 flights if a strike occurred.

Robin Matell, an Eastern vice president, said that was based on indications that about 800 pilots would cross picket lines.

'We are being hurt by the shortage of pilots'

-Robin Matell, Eastern vice president and 200 other management pilots would fill in.

"We are being hurt by the shortage of pilots," Matell said.

When the mechanics and ground service workers walked out at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, the Air Line Pilots Association, which represents Eastern's 3,600 pilots, urged members to honor the picket lines.

Wally Haber, general chairman of the International Association of Machinists District 100 in Miami, said fewer than 10 pilots had crossed the picket lines, and no machinists had.

"We are overwhelmed. The pilots are really standing up like trade unionists," Haber said.

"They have obviously underestimated the solidarity of the pilots," said J.B. Stokes, spokesman for Eastern's ALPA local in Miami.

Eastern spokesman Matell, however, speculated pilots had jammed the phone lines Saturday morning, preventing other pilots from calling in to work. He said the company was encouraged by an upswing in pilot calls late in the day.

In Atlanta, Eastern's largest hub, only two flights had taken off by midday and only one had landed. In Chicago, about 40 striking mechanics picketed at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Matell said Eastern had no plans to resume negotiations with the IAM.

Haber, however, said the machinists were ready to return to the bargaining table "any time, any place."

Federal mediators held bargaining sessions with negotiators from Eastern and the IAM up until the midnight deadline Friday, but the two sides failed to reach agreement in their 17-month contract dispute.

Eastern softened its demands Thursday for wage and work rule concessions by the IAM's 8,500 workers. The company had sought $150 million in concessions, but the new proposal sought only $125 million.

Money to treat sex offenders cut

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez has proposed eliminating two programs designed to rehabilitate sex offenders because he believes the costs outweigh the benefits.

The Florida Times-Union reported Saturday that the proposed state budget Martinez submitted to the Legislature last month does not contain money to run the $3.2 million programs at North Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center in Gainesville and South Florida State Hospital in Hollywood.

Martinez is trying to force down the costs of state government to prevent a tax increase this year.

"Not everybody that gets served by the program completes the program," said Paul Belcher, chief analyst in the governor's budget office.

Mental health professionals were dismayed by the proposal to gut the programs, which have been emulated by other states. The programs include months of intensive therapy for convicted sex offenders serving prison sentences who admit guilt and want treatment.

Less extensive counseling would be available in prison if the programs are killed.

"I think it's terrible, really," said Doug Starr, executive director of Mental Health Services of North Central Florida in Gainesville. "I think it's an excellent program. ... You're not going to put these people in prison forever."

The programs have space for 147 sex offenders, but only 30 completed the programs in the 1987-88 fiscal year, according to the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

However, the number of graduates has climbed in recent years from about 20 per year. Thirteen percent of those treated were re-arrested last year, according to Belcher, but HRS says no inmates who completed the programs in the past four years were sent back to prison for sex crimes last year.

"We see our mission as protecting future victims," said Ted Shaw, who runs the Gainesville program.

Guy Revell, chairman of the Florida Parole Commission, said the programs offer some hope for a class of offenders which generally has a high recidivism rate.

"They are likely to re-offend unless there's some kind of skillful intervention," Revell said.

"If a sex offender's going to live in my neighborhood, I'd sure like him to graduate from one of those programs," he added. "You can't put a price tag on that."

Adulterated cola kills woman

United Press International

WINTER HAVEN — A woman hospitalized since drinking poison from a tampered Coca-Cola bottle in October has died, authorities reported Saturday.

A nursing supervisor at Winter Haven Hospital said Peggy Carr 41, of Alturas, died at 6:51 p.m. Friday.

Carr's son, Travis, who also drank the poisoned cola, remained in the hospital in stable condition Saturday. A third victim, Carr's stepson, Duane Dubberly, was released from the hospital Dec. 2.

Carr, her son and Dubberly were hospitalized in late October after complaining of numbness in their extremities and becoming ill. Doctors recognized their symptoms as being consistent with heavy metal poisoning and ordered additional tests, which revealed the presence of thallium, a highly toxic metal once used as part of a compound in rat poison.

In early December, state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services investigators traced the thallium to four opened glass bottles of Coca-Cola Classic.

The Polk Sheriff's Office sent the opened bottles, a broken bottle and three unopened bottles, all from the same eight-pack, to the FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C. The FBI determined that the unopened bottles contained thallium and that their crimped metal bottle caps had been removed and replaced.

Polk County sheriff's spokeswoman Lynne Breidenbach said her office has no new leads in the poisoning case, which is being investigated as a criminal matter.

Woman wins $600,000 over toilet paper

United Press International

MIAMI — A jury has awarded $600,000 to a woman who said she was blinded when a flying roll of toilet paper hit her in the head in a supermarket.

A Dade County Circuit Court jury awarded the money Friday to Peggy Fields.

Fields was shopping for soda water at a Pantry Pride store in Surfside Jan. 7, 1987, when a roll of toilet paper sailed 60 feet through the air and hit her behind the left ear.

"It was like a football," she said. "It almost knocked me out."

Fields never saw who threw the roll of Scott toilet paper, but she blamed Pantry Pride's stock boys. Testimony indicated stock boys were working in the aisle, but a police investigation failed to determine who threw the toilet paper.

Fields began having trouble with her right eye, and a week after the incident, a doctor diagnosed a retinal tear in the eye.

Fields is now legally blind, with 20/500 vision in her right eye and 20/300 in her left. She uses binoculars to cross the street and has been told nothing can be done to restore her vision.

Fields sued the store's owner, Sun Supermarkets Inc. Her lawyer, Tim Martin, asked the jury in Judge Joseph Gersten's court to award $2 million.

"What's the vision worth?" Martin asked the jurors.

Keys oil spill threatening live coral reef

UPI report

ISLAMADORA — An oil spill several miles long has been spotted in the Florida Keys, threatening mangroves, marine life and the nation's only shallow-water live coral reef.

There were reports of tar balls the size of grapefruit floating in the water of the John Pennekamp Coral Reef State Park in the upper keys. Dead birds also were seen washing ashore at the adjacent Key Largo Marine Sanctuary.

"We don't know too much about it just yet, but we've gotten reports that we've got crude oil and tar balls from the size of baseballs to the size of grapefruit," said park spokeswoman Maddy Hoover.

Tar balls were sighted near Molasses Reef, where four acres of priceless reef was destroyed by a freighter in August 1984. Coast Guard Marine safety officers estimated the size of the spill was 2 to 3 miles long and half a mile wide.

Reserve cop wins acquittal of teen rape

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A reserve Oviedo police officer has been acquitted by a Seminole Circuit Court jury of kidnapping and raping a 17-year-old girl in Sanford last August.

Robert Young 35, was charged with four counts of sexual battery and one count of kidnapping.

Young, who told the jury he normally works a 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift at an Apopka produce company, said he left work about midnight on the night of Aug. 19 because he wasn't feeling well.

Taking the stand in his own defense last week, he said he bought a pint of gin on the way home, then met friends in Sanford and spent most of the rest of the night driving around.

He said he met the girl, who he said "looked about 20 years old" on 13th Street and she asked him for a ride, which he gave her. He saw the girl later, and when he stopped at the corner of 13th Street and Pomegranate Avenue, she jumped into his car, he testified.

Young told the jury he offered her money for sex and started driving toward the lake front as she removed her shoes and pants. He said when he stopped at the stop sign at the intersection of Mangoustine Avenue and Seminole Boulevard, next to Central Florida Regional Hospital, the girl grabbed his arm and demanded that he pay her, although he said she had not performed any sexual act. He said he pushed the girl and she got out of the car and ran toward the hospital.

He said he drove to the front entrance of the hospital and when he saw a security guard, he drove off. Young said the girl got out of the car about 5 a.m.

Study ordered about classes all year long

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board has ordered a study intended to inform parents of what year-round school would involve and to find out how they feel such a program would affect their children and their family life.

"Much of the information is conflicting," said Chairman Ann Neiswender. "There haven't been any scientific studies done on the subject."

She said because of that, the board agreed on Friday that a survey would help inform parents and board members and serve as a basis for further discussion.

"One thing the Board can agree on" said Neiswender, "is that we do not want the public to believe it is that this can solve all of our problems of growth."

A work session last month was devoted to receiving information from both Marion County, which has what some consider a successful program, and Orange County, which has been studying the effect of year-round schooling for over a year.

Special Olympics

The spring Special Olympics were held Saturday at Lake Mary High School's stadium. Miguel Gonzales, top, was a participant in the softball throw. Shadi Masri, bottom, was the winner of the 1 mile run with a time of 8 minutes and 5 seconds.

Festival

Nancy Crawford of the Junior Women's Club of Sanford said the group's concession stand was faring well yesterday. "The crowd's good," she said. The club was working with Junlorettes, a service club for girls ages 14 to 18.

Artists were happy with the organization of the festival, but some seemed disappointed in the turnout.

William Easterday, a Winter Springs stained glass artist, said, "We did better last year when it rained both days...It's been kind of sparse today."

"It's been slow," Smyrna, Tenn. artist Lee Gasser said. Gasser was showing hand-painted saw blades, pitchers and other work.

Lee Brock of St. Augustine said the show was well-organized and promoted, but not as well-attended. Brock was showing a variety of flutes he makes by hand from Florida bamboo.

Brock played for children who purchased his instruments and adults who browsed in vague interest. After playing a few bars on an Oriental flute, he said, "They call this the meditation flute. I call it the After-I-95-Rush-Hour flute."

The General Sanford Museum and Library will be open during the show hours. More than 200 people visited the museum in about three hours yesterday, curator Alicia Clarke said. "I'm hoping they will just come back.

A lot of people who came in today had never been in here before," she said.

At the center of exhibits was a sand sculpture by Daytona Beach artist Marc Altamar. He prepared a representation of Neptune swimming with dolphins.

hours sculpting a five-foot representation of Neptune at the annual St. Johns River Festival yesterday. His work was at the center of more than 150 arts and crafts exhibits in the park.

"I worked with stone up until I was 15 when I first saw the beach," Altamar said. "To me, that was the challenge — to make sand stand up and to bring it to life."

Classical, biblical and patriotic themes are Altamar's preference, he said. "I usually go with anything I can find that people can identify with."

Last fall he received national attention when he created a life-size sand replica of the space shuttle on Daytona Beach. He has sculpted representations of the Last Supper and scenes from the Sistine Chapel. And last month he created a giant power tool for a convention in Pittsburgh.

In 1979 Altamar settled in Daytona Beach after traveling "to nearly every beach in the country I could get to," he said. He still travels across the country creating sand sculptures for conventions, festivals and major hotels like the Marriott World Center in Orlando and the Fontainebleau in Miami.

"When I'm on the beach, I have access to all the sand in the world," Altamar said. But when he's working for a hotel or a convention, he said he is limited to about eight to ten yards of sand.

Altamar said the sand keeps its shape with water and diluted hair spray. Sculptures disintegrate over a three-day period, he said.

While other artists were packing up their wares last night, Altamar was placing the finishing touches on his work. As he painted waves around dolphins and sea turtles, a child asked him what would happen to the sculpture.

"It's like a rose; you pick it and it's real pretty, then it falls apart," he explained. "It's like all things on this earth: Nothing lasts forever..."

"I've been a struggling artist all my life. It's either feast or famine," he said. "What I do isn't something you can keep and sell. It's something to entertain people with."

Altamar began sculpting with snow as a child in Pennsylvania. "I used to build nativity scenes out of snow in our front yard...One year I was able to do an Easter scene...I had to use a charcoal grill to keep my hands warm."

Altamar and his wife Suzanne sculpt sand castings in their Daytona Beach home.

Four die in apartment fire

United Press International

BOSTON — A fire ripped through an apartment house Saturday, killing four people and forcing a woman to jump to safety from the third floor, authorities said.

The early morning fire broke out in the wood-frame building in the city's Dorchester section, killing a 31-year-old man, a 56-year-old woman and her two children, aged 8 and 11.

The victims, all of whom apparently died of smoke inhalation, were found on the second floor, where the mother lived with the two children, Deputy Fire Chief Paul Callaghan said.

The 31-year-old man, who was physically handicapped, apparently collapsed on the second floor after trying to escape from his apartment on the third floor.

Callaghan said.

"The smoke is probably what killed them on the second floor," he said of the four victims, who were all pronounced dead on arrival at three separate hospitals.

A woman who jumped from the third floor was hospitalized with four broken ribs and a broken ankle.

One other adult and three other small children, all of whom lived on the first floor, escaped without injury, Callaghan said. The three surviving children were believed to be wards of the state living under the care of the woman, he said.

The fire apparently started in the basement and quickly spread to the first floor, where it was contained by firefighters before spreading to the upper floors, Callaghan said.

Trains collide in London

United Press International

LONDON — Two passenger trains collided in south London Saturday, killing several people and injuring at least 50, the British Broadcasting Corporation said.

The Mayday Hospital at Throton Heath and the London Ambulance Service said there were more than 50 casualties in all, including deaths, the BBC said.

The trains crashed near Purley station on London's southern outskirts.

p.m. Horsham-to-Victoria train and the 12:17 p.m. Victoria-to-Littlehampton collided and four carriages were on their sides.

A passenger said the Littlehampton train slammed into the back of the Horsham train.

Thirty-five people were killed in a similar accident Dec. 12, 1988, when a passenger train slammed into the rear of another train stopped near Britain's busiest rail intersection and an engine hauling empty coaches, then plowed into the wreckage.

British Rail assumed responsibility for the tragedy, saying a faulty wire caused a signal to malfunction.

British Rail said the 12:50

"As a commissioner, I took the initiative to do this because I am an engineer and I have the ability to provide those services to the city. I would like the rest of the professional community in Longwood to come forward and perhaps get themselves enthused enough that they can also participate in the business at city hall," Farach says.

His upstairs office is filled with books, drawing boards and the tools of an engineer's trade. A computer rests on top of his desk along with various reference books which line one wall.

Farach uses AutoCAD, a computer-aided design system, to edit different drawings which he has programmed into the computer. He types a few things on the keyboard and an outline of Candyland Park appears on the screen. The outline is a duplication of the concept plan drawing of the park, Farach explains. A red outline marks off the site of a proposed baseball field.

"The whole point of doing it in the computer, is that you have a bunch of layers," Farach says.

A layer represents a specific item such as a baseball field. Each layer is a different color. The computer has the capability to move a baseball field or a tree anywhere on the drawing. It can regenerate and recompute a drawing. Other "layers" include trees, water, logo for his company, easement and property lines. This way, different layers can be called up on the computer and the project begins to take shape.

Farach also has programmed into the computer the existing facility at the fire department. The building is 4,575 square feet and a 2,100 square-foot addition to the north side of the structure is planned to accommodate the new aerial fire truck that is expected to be delivered to the city by June, according to Fire Chief Charles Chapman. The new $350,000 truck has a much longer wheel base to accommodate a ladder portion and does not fit into the existing facility.

"In addition to that, we are also going to provide them (firefighters) with new bathroom facilities," Farach says. Right now, one restroom facility accommodates a fire crew made up of both men and women.

Farach says the fire department has provided him with a layout concept of what it wants.

"Basically, I will do all of the design and working drawings," Farach says.

The drawings eventually will be distributed to general contractors for bids in the building project, Farach says.

Farach's plan is endorsed by both Chapman and City Planner Chris Nagle.

"It's the state-of-the-art. That's my understanding the direction of drafting has taken. It will certainly give us the ability to determine all the possibilities," Chapman says.

The fire station additions are just the first step to future improvements at the facility. Capital improvement plans for the next budget year include substantial additions and renovations to expand the living and office areas at the fire station, according to Chapman.

"We're calling that Phase II, if the funds are available," he says.

The fire department is made up of seven shift employees who are there around the clock and four administrative personnel during the day.

Chapman says he expects construction on the fire department to be finished in 60 days.

Nagle says that with Farach's system, drawings can be done more quickly. He embraces the innovative idea for the city.

"Sure, why not? It's just another way of displaying and using information. I'm not going to stand in his (Farach's) way," he says.

Nagle says that although the proposals can be drawn faster, they are not necessarily more accurate than hand-drawn ones.

He says the advantage to Farach's system is that the information that goes into the computer can be manipulated and changed until a satisfactory finished product is created.

"You can do the same thing by hand, except it takes longer. It's a lot easier to change. If you draw it by hand, you have to redraw it (the revision)," Nagle says.

Until now, all drawings were done by hand. In the case of Candyland Park, the original park proposals were done by an outside firm.

Improvements to Candyland Park have been discussed by the city for about a year-and-a-half according to Parks and Recreation Director Bill Goebel.

"The city has put the money into the budget for site preparation including leveling of the ground, which bids are out for," Goebel says.

Upgrading of the park will convert it into a more intensive recreational facility. The park will be expanded to include a playground, little league field, recreation building, two softball fields, community center, athletic courts, racquetball and volleyball courts and a multi-purpose athletic field for soccer, football and kite flying. The ideas are based on a preliminary concept depending on how much money is available.

The finished park will be about 20 acres with 17 acres along Grant Street and about three acres on another tract across from the larger parcel. Goebel says the three-acre tract will remain in its natural state to be used as a nature park which includes a passive picnic area.

The city has applied for a grant from the state Department of Natural Resources in the amount of $120,000 to be matched by local funds of $100,000 for the improvements, according to officials.

Farach says a survey is pending to determine the city property line along Grant Street because of a conflict between two surveys.

the House delegation, by his own Senate loss, and the loss of two seats in Congress and two on the traditionally Democratic state Cabinet to Republicans.

"I think there is a great danger we're getting demoralized for the wrong reasons," MacKay said.

"The problems are that the national Democratic Party no longer expresses mainstream American values," he said.

"I think there has unfortunately become an impression that Democrats are tax and spenders. They (Republicans) say that about us because people resonate to it. There is an element of truth to it."

But he added: "I'm not ashamed of what the Democratic Party has stood for. I believe what we need is a debate, and I want to be part of that debate."

State Democratic Chairman Charlie Whitehead said the party must get used to the idea that Florida is no longer a Democratic preserve.

"We have to realize we are now a two-party state," Whitehead said. "That's where we are, and that's what we're doing."

Part of the effort might involve elections reform. There is bipartisan support for changing the primary structure and possibly eliminating the party runoff, a vestige of the days when Democratic primaries settled elections.

Other Democrats, U.S. Rep. Bill Nelson of Melbourne and state Sen. George Stuart, D-Orlando, are attempting to line up support for the governor's race early enough to discourage potential Democratic challengers.

The politics of race pose one potential mine field for the Democrats. The GOP has for the past 30 years eroded the Democratic white southern base by subtle appeals to racial anxiety, according to independent political observers.

"Some of it's not so subtle," said MacKay. "We have lost strength in the South because we've taken the right position (on civil rights)."

More than one southern Democratic leader expressed dismay when the Ron Brown, a former aide to Jesse Jackson and an ally of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was selected chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"I don't really know what they mean by mainstream American values. I'd like to know where that puts black Democratic voters," said Sen. Carrie Meek, D-Miami, whose district includes the predominantly poor black neighborhood of Overtown.

Whitehead feels the party can still appeal to the broad mass of voters who earn between $10,000 and $50,000 a year. He says they have to be persuaded the Republicans really don't represent their best interests. MacKay believes ideas still mean something to voters.

He said Gov. Bob Martinez has to "start trying to solve the problems of Florida and get out from behind the rhetoric, or he's going to be vulnerable."

"He gets a short-term advantage from some of the things he's doing. But the truth of the matter is we are running into a logjam."

Deputies say they can hear rats gnawing and rustling around in the walls of the old office building, located in the Sanford Airport complex on 28th Street.

The building was constructed as barracks for a U.S. Navy base in the late 1950s or early '60s. It has been home to the sheriff's department since 1979.

Sheriff John Polk said his forces have outgrown the antiquated 40,000 square-foot building, which was not designed to serve as office space.

Polk said the county has a contract to have the mice exterminated and this isn't the first time they've surfaced in the building. Rats, Polk said, used to eat marijuana stored as evidence in the building. The marijuana has been rehoused in metal lockers. The rats that were eating the marijuana would, Polk said, "run at you, not away from you. I think it made them aggressive."

The building is leased from the airport authority for $53,000 a year.

Polk hopes to have a new sheriff's office built at the Five Points county government complex by 1992. He is proposing a one-year, one-cent local sales tax which, if the voters approve, will pay for a new sheriff's office, more jail space and some extras for area cities.

Sheriff's investigators said the first rat was sighted in January when investigator Scott Fyfe opened a drawer in a file cabinet and saw a mouse lounging on top of his files.

A second mouse appeared behind the desk of investigator Eric Bryant. Deputies were quick to dispatch that one, too, by wielding a stapler. When Bryant found the dead mouse the following morning he photographed it as evidence and discovered the mouse had eaten some of his real evidence. The mouse had gnawed a corner off a couple of his evidence files.

McFarlane: 'I tried to serve my country'

WASHINGTON — Robert McFarlane, given two years probation and fined $20,000 for his role as national security adviser in the Iran-Contra affair, said he has regrets but he was only trying to serve his country.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson also Friday ordered the former aide to President Ronald Reagan to perform 200 hours of unspecified community service, details of which the judge said he would recommend later.

Just before sentencing, a somber-faced McFarlane told the judge that he regretted his actions, but was only trying to do his duty.

"Clearly, this episode in our history has resulted in enormous turmoil in our country's processes," McFarlane told the judge. "To the extent that I contributed to that, I regret it. I tried to serve my country."

McFarlane, 51, could have received up to four years in prison and fined $400,000.

Grounded 800-foot oil tanker freed

HONOLULU — An 800-foot tanker that ran aground on a coral reef off the southwest coast of Oahu, spilling 117,000 gallons of oil along 2 miles of isolated shoreline, was freed Friday night, authorities said.

As salvage crews were trying to shift some of the cargo oil from the stern to the bow, the vessel suddenly floated free — "just like that" — at 9 p.m. (2 a.m. EST Saturday), a Coast Guard spokesman said.

There was some initial flooding, but otherwise the ship seemed all right, the spokesman said. The Navy ship Safeguard was to tow the tanker 5 miles to deeper water and wait for first light to assess the damage.

Coast Guard officials said earlier they hoped to tow the vessel to harbor, block off the entrance in case of further leakage, and finish offloading the cargo of oil.

The tanker drifted onto a coral reef about 1,000 yards southwest of Barbers Point lighthouse Thursday, and the oil leak was discovered shortly after tug boats moved in to free it. The famous beaches of Waikiki are 15 miles east of Barbers Point on the south shore of the island.

There were no reported injuries to the 24 crewmen aboard the tanker.

Vatican orders nuns out of monastery

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. — An order from the Vatican that four of five dissident Carmelite nuns must leave their New Jersey monastery has not brought peace to the cloister, the convent's prioress said.

On Friday a letter from the Vatican Congregation for Religious and Secular Institutes, a Roman Catholic judicial body, was slipped under the door of the infirmary at the Monastery of the Most Blessed Virgin Mary of Mount Carmel, where the five cloistered, or discolored, nuns locked themselves in on Oct. 4.

Mother Theresa Hewitt, whose 18-month reign as prioress of the monastery ignited the protest, called the ruling "the right answer," but said she was not surprised that the rebellious nuns were refusing to end their holdout.

Dole: Give Tower a chance for rebuttal

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Republican leader Robert Dole said he may ask the Senate to let Defense Secretary-designate John Tower come to the chamber to rebut an FBI report on his habits "charge by charge, rumor by rumor."

Dole, chaffing Friday at restrictions barring senators from making specific references to incidents, names, dates, places, allegations and rebuttals in the huge report, said Tower "is entitled to due process. How do we achieve it with all the limitations" on referring to the report.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said he would "consider any request" by Dole and acknowledged that he also was "profoundly troubled" by the inability to use the FBI report.

But Mitchell, a former federal judge, said it should be understood that the FBI report can only be released by President Bush under an agreement between the White House and the Senate Armed Services Committee.

During Friday's debate, angry Republicans pleaded with Democrats to consider facts, not "fiction, rumor and innuendo" about Tower that threaten to bury his nomination.

"What are we doing to this man?" asked Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

"What we've done to John Tower no man should endure," Lott said of the charges of heavy drinking, womanizing and conflict of interest that have made Tower's unquestioned expertise in defense matters only a peripheral issue in the debate over whether he should have the job.

"Never in my life have I seen John Tower inebriated. I've never seen him when he wasn't in control of his faculties. I've never seen him be less than an absolute Southern gentleman to women," said Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

The White House continued its search for the five Democrats it needs to team up with the 45 GOP members of the Senate, but had yet to turn up a single defector.

A United Press International survey showed 11 members undecided or keeping mum on their decision, and two Democrats — Dennis DeConcini of Arizona and Barbara Mikulski of Maryland — shifted from leaning against to flat opposition.

Dole's surprise suggestion, for which he said there was no known precedent, came after he obtained a series of parliamentary opinions that made it clear the report's specific contents were off limits for floor debate.

There are, he said, "other ways to get at the truth, maybe in a closed session."

"My request would be that John Tower be allowed to come to this chamber, stand in this well and answer his critics face to face, charge by charge, rumor by rumor and fact by fact, and state his case to those senators who are truly undecided on both sides of the aisle, and maybe some who've made up their mind. ... Some made-up minds might change either way," Dole said.

Agents take illegal aliens into custody

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Immigration agents arrested 40 more illegal aliens at International Airport as desperate smugglers braved the weeklong sweeps in hopes of relieving human backups at local "drop houses," authorities said.

The roundup was the fifth this week, bringing the nationwide arrest total to 246.

The 40 people detained between 8 p.m. Thursday and 2:30 a.m. Friday at International Airport were from Mexico, Guatemala, Ecuador, Honduras and El Salvador, INS District Director Ernest Gustafson said.

Agents made the arrests as the illegal aliens, including seven children, prepared to board flights for New York, Chicago and Houston, he said.

"This is a hideous operation," he said of the smuggling.

"The reason they're still showing up at the airport even though there's been all the publicity is because these smugglers have drop houses here in Los Angeles and the humans are backing up at these locations," Gustafson said.

U.S. and Japan will join forces to build planes

United Press International

NEW YORK — The White House next week will notify Congress that it is going ahead with a $1.2 billion venture to make advanced F-16 fighters with Japan, but will recommend that transfer of U.S. aircraft technology to Japan be limited, the New York Times reported Saturday.

The technology transfer restrictions will be outlined in refinements of the aircraft coproduction agreement the two governments reached last year, senior administration officials told the newspaper.

The goal is to prevent the so-called FSX — Fighter Support Experimental — project from becoming a stepping stone toward Japan's publicly stated goal of competing in the civilian aircraft industry by the year 2000, the officials said.

"We're going to scrub the agreement so that it will not provide any competitive advantages for Japan," a senior administration official involved in the review process told the Times. "We want to reassure people that the crown jewels are not going."

The unprecedented proposal to include Japanese firms in the production of an advanced version of the F-16 fighter jet has sparked controversy within the Bush administration and in Congress, where 21 senators have voiced opposition to the plan, calling it a technological giveaway.

The lawmakers' reservations prompted the national security council last month to order an interagency review. Congress could overturn the $1.2 billion venture by passing resolutions of disapproval within 30 days.

The workings of the proposed restrictions were not disclosed.

Religious leader wants hostages released

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The spiritual leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah renewed his call for the release of Western hostages and said innocent people should not be pawns of "political complications."
Ayatollah Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, in a sermon, condemned hostage-taking Friday and said the practice was self-defeating.
"We call for the settlement of this humanitarian problem which has become a political issue because it is inadmissible to go on holding people forever for political complications," Fadlallah told worshippers gathered at the Belr Al Abed mosque in Beirut's sprawling southern suburbs.
"We reject the principle of hostage-taking as long as those who have been abducted have not committed any crime or treachery."

Four Japanese businessmen indicted

TOKYO — Prosecutors indicted four businessmen Saturday accused of bribery in connection with an insider stock market scandal that threatens to topple the government of Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita.
The Tokyo District Public Prosecutors Office also began investigating politicians' aides and relatives in the stock-for-favors scandal, according to news reports.
The prosecutors had previously focused their investigations on businessmen and bureaucrats, even though 26 politicians or their aides are linked to the scandal.
Speculation is growing that the scandal may force Takeshita out of office before his two-year term expires in November.

Rushdie fears British support waning

Iran says Thatcher's remarks 'small step in right direction'

United Press International

LONDON — Iran Saturday welcomed British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's statement that Salman Rushdie's "The Satanic Verses" was offensive to Muslims, but rejected British arguments that the work could not be banned because of the right to free speech.
State-run Tehran Radio said Thatcher's comments, made Friday in her Finchley, north London constituency, were "a small step" in the right direction, but fell far short of what was still required.

It said Britain was claiming the principle of free speech when it supported the circulation of Rushdie's book, but Thatcher before had done "everything in her power to ban a book she disliked," Peter Wright's "Spycatcher," a book on British intelligence.

On Friday, Rushdie expressed fear that British support for him and "The Satanic Verses" was waning, and Muslims in several countries staged protests against the novel, leaving one person dead and dozens injured.

The Indian-born British writer made his feelings known in a telephone call from somewhere in hiding to an aide to Paddy Ashdown, a member of Parliament and leader of the third largest political party, the Social and Liberal Democrats, following conciliatory remarks by Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe.

"We understand Rushdie expressed concern about Howe's remarks," said a spokeswoman for Ashdown, Harriet Smith.

The comment by Rushdie, who disappeared from public after Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini sentenced him to death Feb. 14, came a day after Howe acknowledged that "The Satanic Verses" was offensive to Muslims.

The Foreign Office denied the statement suggested a weakening in Howe's position and said the government continues to support Rushdie's right to free expression.

Howe's statement, however, was seen as an attempt to defuse a diplomatic crisis with Iran as it came two days after Tehran gave London seven days to denounce Rushdie and his novel or face a break in diplomatic relations. Iranian President Ali Khamenei, dismissing Howe's statement, said Britain will be forced to apologize for its stand and warned the death threat could be extended to anyone writing a book or making a film insulting Islam.

Apparently unconvinced by Khamenei, the Flag of Freedom, an anti-Khomeini group based in Dallas said Saturday it had cut into Tehran's radio broadcasts to air excerpts of "The Satanic Verses."

Iranian exiles with contacts in Tehran confirmed the report from the opposition, saying Tehran Radio programs were interrupted for between 30 minutes and 40 minutes late Friday.

Thatcher Friday joined Howe in saying she, too, understood why the novel was offensive to Muslims, but said the Islamic faith is "strong enough" to withstand the controversial book.

"I think that these great religions are strong enough and deep enough to withstand these kind of events," Thatcher said. "They will endure long after the names of people who have criticized them are forgotten."

As London and Tehran headed for a break in relations, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, in Calcutta, India, urged Western and Islamic nations to resolve the crisis.

Police opened fire Friday in the fifth day of a general strike in northern India by Muslims demanding a worldwide ban on Rushdie's book, killing one and wounding two others. The book has been banned in India and in more than 20 other nations with Muslim populations.

Elsewhere in India Friday, police banned marches in Bombay, where Rushdie was born and raised a Muslim, to prevent a repeat of violence that followed Muslim prayers a week ago.

Violent protests were also staged in Britain, Turkey, the Netherlands and Bangladesh by devout Muslims offended by the novel's parody of the life of Mohammed, the founder of Islam. Dozens of injuries were reported.

In his prayer sermon in Tehran, Khamenei attacked Britain, France and West Germany for condemning Khomeini's call for the execution of Rushdie and his publishers and indicated he was prepared to forsake relations with the West over the issue.

Israel asks U.S. to reconsider talks with PLO

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Israeli officials hoped Washington would begin a re-evaluation of its dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization Saturday, following a series of attempted raids on Israel by radical Palestinian guerrillas.

In Washington Friday, a State Department spokesman said the attempted infiltration raises "concern" about the PLO's pledge to restrain terrorism. He said the United States will meet again with PLO representatives to raise the issue but did not announce any date.

Washington ended a 13-year-old freeze on talks with the PLO in December when PLO leader Yasser Arafat recognized Israel's right to exist and renounced terrorism.

Attempted raids against Israeli troops and civilians, however, continued. PLO officials regarded the incursions as military in nature and justifiable under U.N. definitions of legitimate resistance against occupation.

Arafat remained defiant Friday, telling a news conference in the United Arab Emirates Friday that he could not ask the Palestinian guerrillas to stop attacking unless Israel agreed to stop its "daily aggressive activities against our people."

"Am I required to ask them to stop defending their children and women in the (refugee) camps?" In Lebanon, Arafat said at a news conference. "A cease-fire should not only be from one side."

Israeli troops killed four guerrillas Thursday nearly 5 miles north of the Israeli border in southern Lebanon. The Israeli army said the guerrillas belonging to a radical PLO faction, Nayef Hawatmeh's Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, or DFLP, carried documents indicating they intended to attack a civilian target and take Israeli hostages.

The infiltration attempt, the fourth by a PLO faction opposed to Arafat's declaration of moderation, came two days after an Israeli air raid in southern Lebanon killed two people and wounded 33 others, including 23 children.

Israel, which refuses to negotiate with the PLO, asked the United States to reconsider its dialogue and hoped Saturday for a positive signal from Washington.

"We regard recent attempts to penetrate into the north of Israel as very serious events and believe that this infiltration attempt and four previous ones ... require consideration of the United States approach to the PLO," Foreign Ministry spokesman Alon Liel said Friday.

The ministry's deputy director-general, Eitan Bensusan, called the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv to convey the Israeli message, he said.

"Despite Arafat's public commitments in December, the PLO is not refraining its groups from using terrorism," Liel said. "Moreover, some of the member factions clearly stated their intention to continue doing so in the future."

Three groups — the DFLP, George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, and the Palestine Liberation Front — mounted the four attacks.

Bruin unbeaten streak at seven

BOSTON — Cam Neely snapped a 4-4 tie in the third period with his 31st goal of the season and linemate Randy Burridge added a hat trick Saturday, leading the Boston Bruins to a 6-4 victory over the Vancouver Canucks.

Boston is undefeated in seven games, going 6-0-1 over that span. The Bruins are 12-0-1 at home against Vancouver since a loss on Dec. 13, 1980. Overall, Boston holds a 52-12-10 advantage over Vancouver, including 32-2-3 record at home.

Vancouver, which got two goals from Rich Sutter, lost for just the third time in 11 games. Neely scored his decisive goal at 12:41 from the left circle, taking a pass from defenseman Glen Wesley. Ray Bourque's 13th goal, a 35-foot slapshot, completed the scoring with 1:40 to play.

Schools may recoup losses

TALLAHASSEE — A state senator said Saturday he will file legislation to allow universities hit with NCAA sanctions to sue the guilty parties, possibly including students, to recover damages.

"Those people who are tempted to cheat in order to help their favorite universities' athletic program will have to stop and think twice before violating an NCAA rule if this bill becomes law," said Sen. Vince Bruner, D-Fort Walton Beach.

Bruner said the prospect of repaying colleges for fines and lost bowl or television revenue "would get anyone's attention." "After all, such revenues could amount to millions and those alumni who take the risk of being caught are depending upon an 18-year-old to remain silent about their illegal activities," Bruner said.

HORSE RACING

Mercedes won wins Fla. Derby

TALLAHASSEE — Mercedes won a 15-1 shot despite a stellar race record, raced easily under Earle Pires Saturday to a five-length, near wire-to-wire victory in Gulfstream Park's $500,000 Florida Derby, the first major test for Kentucky Derby candidates.

Trainer Arnold Fink, however, said immediately after the race that he would not take the colt to the May 6 Run for the Roses. "He won't run in the Kentucky Derby," Fink said. "Not everyone wants to win the Derby. I want to see this horse around next year."

Dixieland Brass, winner of four straight races, was eased with an apparent problem in his left foreleg at the five-eighths pole and was walked off the track, moving unsteadily, at the head of the stretch.

Western Playboy, a 30-1 shot, rallied from the middle of the pack to finish second, a neck ahead of Big Stanley.

BASEBALL

Trammell is highest-paid Tiger

LAKELAND — Detroit Tigers shortstop Alan Trammell has agreed to a $6.5 million, 3-year contract extension that will run through 1992, the Tigers announced Saturday.

Vice President and General Manager Bill Lajoie acknowledged that the contract was the richest ever tendered in Tiger history. Trammell earned $1.2 million in 1988.

"This is an exceptional contract," Lajoie said, "but we feel Alan is an exceptional player and the same kind of person. We feel he symbolizes the Tigers."

Trammell, who turned 31 on Feb. 21, was Detroit's No. 2 selection in the June 1978 free agent draft.

"This is a real thrill for me," said Trammell. "I still remember signing my first pro contract but this is something special."

Seminole loses in double OT

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

LAKELAND — Necole Tunall and St. Pete Lakewood shot down Seminole High School's dream for a state title as the Lady Spartans took a hard fought, 78-75, double-overtime victory in the class 3A finals before an announced crowd of 984 at the Lakeland Civic Center.

The Lady Seminoles finished their spectacular season with a 28-4 mark. Lakewood finished with a 30-1 record.

Tunall finished the night with a game-high 44 points, eight rebounds and six assists. Tunall had 36 points in regulation and more than carried her team throughout the game as Lakewood did not place another player in double figures.

"She's tough and we expected her to be tough," Seminole coach John McNamara said of Tunall. "We have equally impressive players in our area, though, and we've played against most of the better teams and better girls in our area."

The two teams battled neck and neck in the opening period with the Lady Tribe taking a slim 13-12 advantage off a pair of free throws by Kosela Kennon with 15 seconds left in the frame.

Seminole continued to play well and built a 19-14 edge, its biggest lead of the game, with 5:23 to play after Kennon came up with a steal and a layup. Tunall then hit back-to-back jumpers in the paint to cut the lead to one before the Lady Spartans began to take control.

Lakewood went on a 12-point run with Tonya Williams starting things off with a layup off a nice feed from Tunall. Tunall then hit a pair of free throws followed by a power move before Nikki Mitchell converted on a pair of free throws. Tunall closed the streak with a pair of crowd-pleasing layups that gave the Lady Spartans a 34-23 lead with 30 seconds left in the half.

Seminole came up with a late field goal and cut the lead to 34-25 at the intermission.

The Lady Tribe then battled back in the third quarter with Reddicks hitting three straight field goals to open the second half. Seminole put together an eight-point run late in the frame with Reddicks hitting a layup, Hillsman hitting a jumper from the rim, Reddicks scoring again inside before Kennon capped it off with a layup that gave Seminole a 48-46 lead. Lakewood hit a bucket at the buzzer and the teams were tied heading into the fourth quarter.

After trading buckets the entire quarter the teams began to slow up a little and work the ball for a good shot. Seminole took a 62-60 lead off a Liz Long jumper with Mitchell tying the score with 59 seconds to play with a pair of free throws.

Again the teams played conservatively in the first overtime with Aretha Riggins opening the scoring when she hit one of two free throws. Tunall then connected on a free throw and a field goal to give Lakewood a 65-63 lead. Long then sank a pair of free throws to even the score with Hillsman coming up with a steal and a brilliant play on the other end of the floor as she connected on an off balance layup to give Seminole a two point lead. Lisa Rowe then hit a layup with 25 seconds remaining to even the score and send the game into the second overtime.

The Lady Spartans opened the second and deciding overtime period with back to back layups from Williams and Tunall to jump out to a quick four point advantage.

Riggins then hit a single free throw to cut the lead to three but Lakewood came up with a field goal by Claudia Spedel to take a 73-68 lead with 2:07 to play. Hillsman then connected on a free throw before Tunall converted three of four from the stripe to up the lead to 76-69. Reddicks cut the lead to six with a free throw before Hillsman came up with a steal and a layup. Mitchell then hit a layup for Lakewood before Cindy Lyon drilled a long range three point field goal to trim

But her effort and that of her teammates fell just three points short of their ultimate goal, a state championship.

Knights second in Merrill Lynch

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — For the third straight year, the University of Central Florida finished as the runner-up in the Merrill Lynch Classic. On Saturday night, the Knights dropped a 99-92 decision to Mount St. Mary's of Maryland to finish the year 7-20.

The two teams traded the lead in the first half, the Knight's largest lead being three points and the Mountaineers of Mount St. Mary's going up by as many as nine (42-33) with 3:39 remaining in the first half.

Scott Murphy and John Miller (a team-high 24 points) hit some three-point field goals for the Mountaineers as they broke a 29-29 tie with a 13-4 run over a span of 2:06 late in the first half.

The Knights didn't fold, cutting the lead to four on several occasions, but Mount St. Mary's, behind tournament MVP Mike Tate, kept the Knights down and held on to improve their record to 12-15.

Against UCF, Tate scored 23 points (including 10-for-10 from the free throw line), a team-high nine rebounds and a game-high eight assists.

The Knights stayed in the game behind the play of Ben Morton (a game-high 28 points and 15 rebounds), Pat Crocklin (21 points, seven rebounds) and Ken Leeks (19 points, 13 rebounds).

"We didn't play as well as we could have, but if we had made our free throws, we could have won the game," said UCF coach Phil Carter.

UCF was a miserable 24-for-40 (60 percent) while the Mountaineers were 31-40 (77.7 percent).

In Saturday's preliminary, Nicholls State of Louisiana defeated Warner Southern 71-56. Nicholls State jumped out to a 21-0 lead, then were outscored 56-50 by

For the third year in a row, the University of Central Florida finished second in the Merrill Lynch Tournament. Freshman Ken Leeks (No. 44) scored 19 points Saturday night as the Knights lost to Mount St. Mary's in the finals.

Rollins ripped by No. 8 Tampa

By JIM RICKENBACKER
 Herald correspondent

TAMPA — Rollins College's Cinderella story turned to a pumpkin long before midnight Friday in the Sunshine State Conference tournament.

Two second-half droughts, coupled with poor free throw shooting, insured the Tars of a 79-66 loss to eighth-ranked The University of Tampa and a first-round exit at the Bob Martinez Sports Center.

Ironically, it was the free throw line that helped spell setback for Rollins (14-14) and sent the Spartans (23-5) to Saturday's championship game against No. 9-ranked Florida Southern.

Florida Southern (23-5), behind the sizzling shooting of Michael Dean and All-American Kris Kearney, toppled the Florida Institute of Technology 73-71 in Friday's first semifinal.

The Tars, who entered Friday's nightcap as the NCAA Division II leader in free throw shooting (79.3 percent), finished 12-of-21 against Tampa — misleading percentage-wise since many misses came on the front end of one-and-one opportunities.

In comparison, the Spartans connected on 30-of-36 from the line.

Still, it was those two scoring droughts that did the most damage to the Tars' upset hopes.

Cameron Forbes' three-point play took Rollins from a 29-20 halftime deficit to 39-35 with 13:12 left in the game. The Spartans answered with a 7-0 run over the next two minutes, climaxed by Bryan Williams' three-pointer that left the Tars trailing 46-35.

Back came Rollins behind six points from Forbes. Scott Martin's five points and Sam Arterburn's 12-foot

Reed throws five-inning perfect; Birle's shutout doesn't come easy

From staff reports

Senior Dalton Reed was perfection personified on Friday as he pitched the No. 8-ranked Lake Brantley Patriot baseball team to a 10-0 win over the DeLand Bulldogs in Seminole Athletic Conference play.

As his teammates scored six runs in the fourth inning and single runs in the first, second, third and fifth, Reed faced the minimum 15 batters and retired 15. Not only did he strike out five, but he was 1-for-2 at the plate with a double and an RBI.

"He was just throwing the ball all around plate," said Lake Brantley coach Mike Smith. "He had them off balance. Everything was hit to the right side."

Reed, who pitched on the junior varsity squad last year before being promoted to the varsity and pitching in relief, ran his 1989 record to 2-0 in only his second varsity start (he has pitched once in relief this year).

Lake Brantley's attack was highlighted by a pair of triples. Chris Knutson ripped a three-bagger in the second to score Jason Varitek, then Jimmy Morris had a two-run triple in the Patriots' big fourth inning.

The win improves the Patriots' record to 5-4 overall, 2-0 in the SAC. DeLand falls to 0-3 and 0-2.

DeLand returns to action on Monday when it hosts

Lake Mary 7, Oviedo 0

OVIEDO — It wasn't the prettiest of shutouts, but the Lake Mary Rams will take it.

Alex Birle threw a two-hit shutout on Friday night to lead Lake Mary to a 7-0 win over the Oviedo Lions in a Seminole Athletic Conference game. But it was anything but a cakewalk for Birle as he walked six and struck out just four.

But after he was helped out of a big jam in the second inning with a double play, Birle managed to stay out of trouble the rest of the way.

Offensively, the Rams used a five-run fourth inning and single runs in the first and fifth to ruin Oviedo's first game under its new lights. The Lions were to christen the lights on Wednesday, but their game with St. Cloud was rained out.

Arnon Iatarola, Lake Mary's centerfielder and lead-off hitter, was 3-for-4 against Oviedo with an RBI, two runs scored and two stolen bases. Other hitting stars for the Rams were Shane Stufflet (3-for-4, two RBI) and Todd Christensen (2-for-4 with two RBI and a triple).

The win improves Lake Mary's record to 4-3 and 1-0 in SAC play. Oviedo is now 2-5 and 0-2.

There wasn't much the Seminole High School baseball team could expect take its lumps and go home.

Playing at Sanford Stadium on Friday night, the Fighting Seminoles were massacred 13-0 by the Lyman Greyhounds in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Leading the assault for Lyman were first baseman Kenny Jackson (two home runs, five RBI) and pitcher James Lucas (six strike outs, no walks and just three hits).

"We ran into a buzzsaw named Kenny Jackson," Seminole coach Mike Powers was able to say with a smile afterwards. "Jackson and (Chris) Radcliff (Lyman's centerfielder and lead-off hitter) are the two best hitters I've seen and I've seen quite a few this season."

Actually, Jackson owes some of his success to Seminole pitcher James Joyce (who he chased with a three-run shot in the second inning) and John Wilkes (who he tattooed with a two-run blast in the fifth). Because both had control problems, combining for 10 walks, Jackson could afford to be choosy.

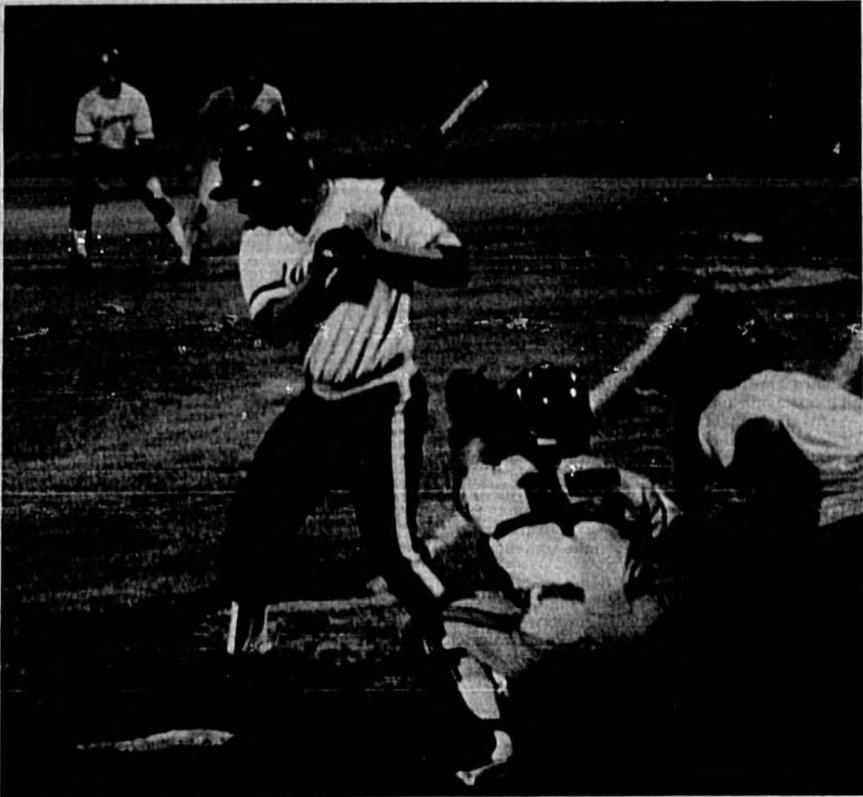

It paid off. "They were just fastballs," said Jackson when asked what kind of pitches he had hit for the homers. "They were getting behind in the count. And when the pitcher gets behind in the count, you have to think fastball."

"The first one was on a 2-0 pitch. I guess he (Joyce) didn't want to go 3-0. And the second was a 3-1 pitch, so he (Wilkes) had to throw a strike."

Throwing strikes wasn't a problem for Lucas, who transferred to Lyman from Seminole after his family moved. He retired the first 10 batters he faced and only pitched to 18, just three over the minimum for five innings.

Seminole didn't get a hit until the fourth inning (with the score already 11-0), when Bubba Corsi reached on an infield single. In the fifth inning, Mike Senechek managed an infield single and Mike Taylor singled to left.

"We wish we had Jimbo Lucas back," said Powers. "He's as nice a kid as you'd want to meet and he's an excellent high school pitcher."

While Joyce, the Seminole starting pitcher, may not have Lucas' polished abilities, he has thrown well for the Tribe so far this season. Powers is hoping Friday was an aberration and thinks he knows what caused it.

"Joyce usually has a strong game," said Powers. "He had been pitching a little bit at the beginning of the season and then he had a long layoff. He got so rested, he was a little strong tonight. Now I see that he has to pitch every other day or so to keep his rhythm."

It was quickly apparent that Joyce didn't have his rhythm on Friday. He walked two of the first four hitters Lyman sent to the plate (another reached on an error by shortstop Anthony Roberts), then was touched for a three-run triple by Jeff Jackson.

Lady Raiders swept by SPJC

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

The Lady Raiders softball team of Seminole Community College dropped both ends of a double header, 6-5 in eighth innings and 6-2, to St. Petersburg Junior College in their first home action of the season Friday afternoon at Raider field.

The losses dropped the Lady Raiders, under head coach Illeana Gallagher and assistant Jim Robinson, to 10-5 on the season. The Lady Raiders played in a tournament at Cocoa sponsored by Brevard Community College over the weekend.

"I think the girls were flat because we had not played or practiced since Monday," said Coach Gallagher. "The rain really hurt us."

In the first game, the Lady Raiders got off to a good start by scoring three runs in the top of the first inning on three singles, a ground out and a sacrifice fly.

Seminole scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the second on a single by Sue Migliori, a ground out by Kim Fralix, a run-scoring triple by Sandy Rodriguez and a single by Becky Arrowood.

But St. Pete scored single runs in the third and fourth to go ahead 5-2. A single and a pair of doubles scored the run in the third and three singles accounted for the run in the fourth.

Seminole came back to tie the game in the bottom of the sixth when Julie Clark led off with a single. She was forced at second by Tracy Smith, but Kim King then launched the first home run ever hit over the fence by a woman at SCC.

A single by Theresa Lisk, a fly out, and a single by Fralix scored the tying run.

But St. Pete scored the winning run in the eighth on a pair of errors and a single.

"I knew we weren't ready to play softball today," said Robinson. "We had a bad pre-game warmup and it was rather obvious the girls' minds were elsewhere. This was probably a good thing to happen to us because I think the girls were getting a little bit of a big head. We have a good team but we still have to play to win."

In the second game, it was all St. Petersburg as they scored three in the first, one in the second, and two in the sixth, picking up 17 hits along the way.

Strawberry returns, says he's leaving

United Press International

Darryl Strawberry is back with the New York Mets — but apparently not for long.

Strawberry returned to training camp at Port St. Lucie, Fla., Saturday and said he will not longer ask the Mets to renegotiate his contract. Instead, the right fielder indicated he will leave the team when his two-year pact expires.

Strawberry walked out Thursday after taking a swing at first baseman Keith Hernandez. Earlier, talks between his agent, Eric Goldschmidt, and the club had been terminated.

When Strawberry reported in mid-February, he gave the Mets a March 1 deadline to renegotiate and extend his contract, which goes through 1991.

The club refused to renegotiate his salary — $1.4 million this season and $1.8 million next year — so Strawberry left.

"My agent will tell the club that I want no more contract talks," said Strawberry, who was fined $750 for missing Friday's workout. "No more hassles. It's over. I am not going to cause any more problems."

"I want to play my two more years, and they'll be dynamite years, and then I'll leave. But there won't be any more contract discussions. If the Mets bring up the contract, we won't talk. We won't listen."

Since signing a 4-year contract in 1985, Strawberry has been surpassed in salary by teammates Dwight Gooden, Kevin McReynolds, Hernandez, Ron Darling and Gary Carter.

Elsewhere: — Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell agreed to a $6.5 million, 3-year contract extension that will run through 1992. The pact is the richest in Tiger history.

"This is a real thrill for me," said Trammell. "I still remember signing my first pro contract but this is something special."

"It's not just because of the money involved. It's because I can remain a Tiger. I've played my whole career here in Detroit and I'd like to finish it here."

— At Winter Haven, Fla., Jim Rice, attempting to rebound from a sub-par 1988 season, belted a three-run homer in a five-run third inning off Frank Tanana to lift the Boston Red Sox to a 5-2 victory over Detroit.

— At St. Petersburg, Fla., Felix Fermin hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates capitalized on a pair of St. Louis misplays for a 2-1 triumph over the Cardinals.

— At Plant City, Fla., Bill Buckner reached Kent Tekulve for a two-run homer in a four-run eighth inning to lift the Kansas City Royals to a 10-8 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Tekulve, a 42-year-old reliever trying to earn a spot with the Reds, surrendered four runs on five hits.

— At Tempe, Ariz., Steve Balboni belted a grand slam to key a nine-run fourth inning and send the Seattle Mariners to a 13-2 rout of the Milwaukee Brewers. Mario Diaz, playing shortstop in place of holdout Rey Quinones, capped the fourth with a bases-loaded triple.

— At Clearwater, Fla., Rob Ducey had four singles and Jesse Barfield contributed three to fuel a 16-hit attack that lifted the Toronto Blue Jays to a 9-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

— At Mesa, Ariz., Mark Grace smashed a two-run homer in the third inning to help the Cubs to a 5-4 victory over the Oakland Athletics. Chicago amassed 14 hits, including eight off loser Storm Davis.

Tooke leads Pirates past Giants

From staff reports

Eddie Tooke hit a two-run double to key a six-run rally that gave the Tooke Trucking Pirates an 11-10 come-from-behind victory over the Vertical Blind Giants in the Bronco Division of the Seminole Pony Baseball organization on Feb. 27.

Relief pitcher Tony Morgan, who had a double and two runs scored offensively, allowed one run in two innings to earn the victory. Dusty Curry hit a single, two doubles and scored two runs for the Giants.

In other Bronco action this week, the Central Florida Royals beat the Dan's Restaurant Astros 8-4, the Casseberry Reds ripped the Seminole Office Products Yankees 9-1 and the Motel Manufacturing Mets whipped the Terra Tek Blue Jays 14-4.

Mike Johnson was the star of the Royals' win over the Astros on Feb. 27, hitting a home run, double and a single to drive in four runs. Mike DeVoss was 4-for-4 with two doubles, two singles, three runs scored and four RBI. For the Astros, Tom Joy has two singles and two RBI while Matt Thompson had a single, double and an RBI. Jason Dickey pitched five innings in relief to earn the win while Matt Thompson took the loss for the Astros.

With seven players in their lineup contributing at least one hit, the Reds romped on the Yankees on Feb. 28. Clay Greene and Andrew McClung each had two hits while Mike Castro (three runs scored and an RBI), Brian Lowe (one run scored), Jon Malozzi (a run scored), Chris Anderson (an RBI) and E.J. Reddouty (a run scored) each had one hit. Travis Freeman hit a double and Robert Gaffert singled for the Yankees. McClung out-pitched Scott O'Brien for the win.

Exploiting for five runs in the first inning and adding three more in the second, third and fifth innings, the Mets jumped all over the Blue Jays. For the Mets, James Pitzer had a double, two singles and three RBIs. Cornell Daniels had three singles and two RBI. Jeff Chumat had a pair of doubles and RBI and Steven Schick had two singles and an RBI. Todd Hudson had two singles and two RBI for the Blue Jays. Bryan Dwyer was the winning pitcher while Nick Kinn took the loss. Ricky Meeks made a nice catch of a pop fly on his knees.

Pintos

The Advanced Brake Angels got four hits each from Wendell Mains, Richard Rodriguez and Michael Bologna to edge the Athletics 26-20 on Feb. 28. Mains had three doubles and a triple while Rodriguez and Bologna each had two doubles and two singles. Jeremy Myers had a single, two doubles and a triple for the Athletics, who also got good defense and pitching from Anthony Ballerino.

Mustangs

A six-run fourth inning was the difference for the Seminole Honda Pirates on March 2 as they beat The Radio Shop Phillies 13-11. Jimmy Rabun was the winning pitcher over Michael Meadows while Stephen Luger came on and picked up the save in relief. The game's offensive stars for the Pirates were Matthew Candier (single, double, run scored), Luger (three hits, three runs), Brad Klinger (a hit and a run), P.J. Ramsey (a hit and a run), Chris Herring (a double and a run), Joey Dumart (a hit and a run) and Jason Santoro (a double). The Phillies were led by Jeff Petco (a single and two runs scored) and Meadows (a double and a run).

Winning pitcher Brian Miller hit two singles, a double, drove in four runs and picked off a runner trying to steal second in the Sunbank Mustang Twins' 12-1 whipping of the Royals on Feb. 28. Also for the Twins, Dustin Owen has three singles and three RBI. David Ouellette had two singles and an RBI and Jeremy Parker had a single and an RBI. Mike Evans, the losing pitcher, scored the Royals' only run with an infield home run.

Cris Cowling and Kenny Richardson each ran a runner down for the Superior Trim and Door Astros in their 13-2 win over the Police Athletics Brewers on Feb. 27. Brian Stensrud picked up the win over Ryan Mau. The Astro offense was highlighted by Chad Freeman (two singles), Ryan Johnson (a single), Mike Kendig (a single), Stensrud (two singles) and Andy Hall (a single).

Chris Louwma hit a home run on Feb. 27 to power the Marina Isle Fish Camp Sanford Braves past the Arby's Red Sox 6-2. Jason Graham was the winning pitcher as Ned Raines IV turned a double play and Jeremiah Mitchell sparked on defense.

Ponies

Jay Black's two-run double was the key to the HD Realty Pirates' 8-5 decision over the Dauke Copier Dodgers on Feb. 28 as Matt Freeman out-pitched Matt Diemer for the win. Others who contributed to the Pirate win were David Eckstein (two singles, two runs scored), Brian Milner (two singles, three RBI and

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you by Ken Rummel
Incredibly, there was once a high school basketball game that was BOTH the highest-scoring game — AND the lowest-scoring game in its state's history... Boone County High in Kentucky beat Newport High 117-111 in 1984 to set the record for the highest-scoring game in Kentucky high school history. But, it was later discovered that a Boone player was ineligible. Boone had to forfeit the game, and that changed the official score to 1-0, equalling the lowest-scoring game in state high school history!

Here's an interesting fact... While athletes in most sports seem to be bigger and bigger, every one of the top 5 money-winners on the PGA golf tour last year is less than 6-foot tall... No. 1 Curtis Strange is 5-11... No. 2 Chip Beck is 5-10... No. 3 Joey Sindelar is 5-10... No. 4 Ken Green is 5-10... And No. 5 Tom Kite is 5-8.

How good a pitcher was Orel Hersheiser of the Los Angeles Dodgers at the end of the 1988 baseball season? Amazingly, of the last 102 innings that Hersheiser pitched, 97 were scoreless!

Sanford rec hoop team advances to state tourney

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

Teams representing the Sanford and Orlando Recreation Departments' Intermediate Boys' Basketball Leagues advanced to the Florida Youth Basketball Inc. state championships by finishing first and second in the District 4 Tournament played at Lakeview Middle School Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The league is made up of boys' ages 14 and 15 and is governed by high school rules.

Sanford defeated the Altamonte Springs Patriots Thursday night 54-52 as Anthony Duvall scored a pair of layups in the final minute of play to break a 50-50 tie.

Demetrius Lomax led the way for Sanford with 11 points and Jeff Ingram and Ricky Anderson added 10 points each. Altamonte was led by Roy Miller with a game-high 21, Cornelius Cotton with 13, and Kevin Gainer with 12.

In Friday night's winners' bracket finals, Orlando won the championship and the first spot in the state tournament with a 90-73 victory over Sanford.

Orlando, coached by ex-Seminole Community College player Arthur Jackson, took an early lead and held off a determined comeback attempt by Sanford. Orlando was led by the duo of Thaddeus Rideau (48 points) and Sheddric Thomas (25). Sanford placed four players in double figures — Duvall (25), Clarence Ferrell (16), Ingram (14) and Lewis (10).

Sanford earned the right to be the second representative with a 75-59 victory over Altamonte on Saturday.

The Patriots made a run at Sanford, cutting a 15-point deficit to four in the fourth quarter but Sanford had too much for Altamonte at the end. Sanford again placed four men in double figures — Duvall (18), Ferrell and Phillip King (14 each), and Ingram (11). Altamonte placed three in double figures — Miller (20), Cotton (13) and Tony Smith (11).

Next Friday at 7:30 p.m., Sanford will open play in the state tournament (which is a double-elimination affair that will run through next Saturday) when they take on host Ft. Lauderdale.

Seminoles

the lead to 78-75 with two seconds to play. "We just had a lousy second quarter," McNamara said. "Then the girls worked hard to get back in the game. I'm very proud of them, they all played well and none of them should blame themselves for this loss. If anyone should take the blame it's the coach, not them."

Seminole advanced to the finals with an impressive 60-55 victory over Belle Glades-Glades Central. The Lady Seminoles placed four players in double figures and came from behind to take the victory.

Seminole again got off to a good start with Reddicks on the inside and Hillsman on the outside to lead the way to a 12-8 lead after one quarter.

Belle Glades, though, behind Margaret Farley, who finished with a game-high 30 points, got running in the second period and built a five point lead, 26-21, with 2:13 to play off a Farley layup. Seminole managed to cut the lead to 30-29 at the intermission as Chineta Gilchrist came up with 10 first half points.

Long then took over the Seminole offense in the third period hitting three consecutive jumpers and help her team gain a 41-40 lead after three periods.

Reddicks then hit two inside shots around a Farley free throw to up the lead to 45-41. Tamara Brown then hit two power moves to even the score with 4:37 remaining before Seminole took charge and sank its free throws in the final portion of the game.

The Lady Tribe capped off a spectacular season in brilliant fashion as they played their hearts out in both games. It was Seminole's first time at the state tournament in basketball and McNamara is anticipating a return.

"I just feel sorry for our seniors because their career's are over," McNamara said. "But we have some great players coming back and we're expecting good things next year."

Warner Southern over the final 32:14.

In their opener on Friday, the Knights scored at will over a much smaller Warner Southern College Royal squad, opening leads of as many as 29 points in the first half. Everyone on the UCF squad played at least 14 minutes as they took out some of their frustrations of a tough season.

The Knights shot an unheard of 17-for-22 from the floor in the first half (77.3 percent) and ended up shooting 66 percent for the game, a season best.

UCF was paced by Andre Green and Ben Morton with 14 points each. Green was 7-of-7 from the floor and grabbed a team high seven rebounds. He also picked up four blocked shots.

In the opening game of the tournament, Mount St. Mary's never trailed after the 15:55 mark of the first half and jumped out to a lead of as many as 18 points. But they nearly gave the game back to Nicholls State in the last four minutes of the contest, holding on for an 85-82 victory.

Senior forward Mike Tate paced St. Mary's with 28 points.

DISTINCTIONS

Senior named merit finalist

SANFORD — Mitchell Albert, son of Wayne and Tracy Albert of Sanford, has been named a 1989 National Merit Finalist by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Of more than one million students participating in the 34th annual program, approximately 13,500 finalists were named, placing them in competition for some 6,000 merit scholarships.

Mitch, a senior at Lake Mary High School, also recently won the school's P.R.I.D.E. award in mathematics, was selected as an Outstanding High School Student of America, and was chosen to appear in the 1988-89 edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

He plans to attend the University of Florida in Gainesville in the fall of 1989.

Dancer abroad may extend tour

SANFORD — Janet Sawczuk, 21, of Sanford feels a bit overwhelmed by the gargantuan size of Tokyo, but is enjoying her newly-begun two-month dancing contract there, according to former dancing instructor Valerie Weld.

The daughter of George and Sally Sawczuk, Janet has only been away from home one other time, when she spent four weeks in Boston for the Boston Ballet Summer Dance Program.

Janet Sawczuk

Janet flew to Japan Feb. 23 to dance in a troupe at the Orange Blossom festival for two months, with a possibility of extending the stay. After its opening in Japan, the show will continue with a stay in Las Vegas and a tour at Frank Sinatra's resort in South Africa.

Her Japanese is limited to three words, and she planning to study two Japanese language books she took with her. However, she will be performing in a tourist attraction where people know English.

The production lasts an hour and is headed by a Japanese singer who sings top 40 songs in Japanese while the dancers dance. The program includes a Michael Jackson medley and "La Bamba."

In 1985, she won a national first place in Showstoppers Talent Competition. She began dancing at the School of Dance Arts in Sanford at age 4.

Local businesses and merchants have donated more than 20 door prizes to be given away at the event. The grand prize—a cruise for two to Nassau—is being sponsored by C&M Travel. Ace Hardware, Gary Bennett Construction, Just A Trim, and the Lake Mary and Sanford branches of NCNB.

Door prize donations are $1, and admission is $5. Tickets may be purchased at Just A Trim, the American Cancer Society or the door.

His mind's eye isn't blind

"Chick" Crampton uses a radial arm saw to make a gate for his home.

OVIEDO — Charles "Chick" Crampton greeted his visitor with a hearty handshake. One of several dogs, a half-wolf mongrel named "Wolby," licked his hand as he stood by the animal pen and called to his pet goose. He pointed out the rabbit that had given birth a few hours previously.

Then, white cane in hand, he picked his way between the towering pines to the house he designed and built.

Crampton is blind. But he is not helpless.

He has an disorder called retinitis pigmentosa, a hereditary disease, although he knows of no one else in his family who was thus afflicted. The disorder was present even during his young years, but not officially diagnosed until he was nearly 30.

"I just thought I was not very good at sports," he commented. "My old man just called me dumb. When I caddied for him, I could never spot the ball."

He said that as a youngster, he had spots "missing" from his vision. He had trouble, for example, following the path of a ball in flight. Being unaware that such a problem indicated trouble, he ignored the telltale signs.

At 17, he entered Staunton Military Academy, in Staunton, Va. At the prestigious school he earned a fine education and was prepared for military service. He enrolled in Virginia Military Academy and, because of his prior experience at Staunton, he was entered into officer training.

Model tastes the world, moves close to parents

By DORIS DIETRICH
Herald correspondent

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — World Class model Teresa Briggs of Altamonte Springs has several reasons for recently relocating to Central Florida from the glitz and dazzle of New York. Two reasons are her parents, Robert H. and Mari Briggs, who have made their home in Sanford for about 10 years and to whom Teresa wishes to be closer.

And, according to the accomplished model, "This (Central Florida) is where everything is happening now. Everything is suddenly looking like Hollywood around here."

Teresa said she loves being on the ground floor where the movie industry is expanding but most of all, she loves her work with Barbizon School of Modeling, Altamonte Springs.

Teresa's parents were married in Japan while her father was stationed there with the U.S. Army in the 1950s. They later moved to the states and Teresa got a taste of high-fashion modeling when she was 14 while the family was living in Virginia. She was discovered by Barbizon in Washington, D.C., and later was affiliated with Wilhelmina and the Elite Agency of New York.

You have probably seen Teresa's glamour shots in such leading magazines as Brides, Cosmopolitan, Mademoiselle and Glamour. Remember the eye-catching ad with the pretty girl sipping Coca-Cola atop Mt. McKinley? That pose was a Teresa Briggs classic and one of her favorite shots.

"That was my most exciting job," she said in explaining the gorgeous view surrounded by nothing but miles of sky. She added, "It was like being in heaven."

Teresa is filled with exciting career experiences. She recalls the time she was all dressed up in native jungle attire to model exotic perfumes. The final prop for the setting was a large boa constrictor. She said the snake

Trainers of handicapped have more than job

Bill Poe feels that he owes more than paychecks to Sissy Thomas, Tracy Bahnt and Andy Nichols III.

Poe is their boss as executive director of the Seminole Work Opportunities Program, but the four are more like a team of comrades with a common mission than co-workers.

Someone may say they're getting paid to do their job. Not so—they do a whole lot more than they get paid for, Poe said.

Sissy Thomas of Longwood has been Poe's administrative assistant for eight years, and Tracy Bahnt of Sanford has been staff psychologist for eight years. Andy Nichols of Lake Monroe has been woodshop supervisor for three years.

You just don't find people who stay with an organization like this for that long, Poe said.

SWOP, based at 1422 S. U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford, is a sheltered workshop providing work and training for 94 mentally physically handicapped individuals. The clients have mental handicaps, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, autism.

When the average job's IQ is 100, SWOP clients have 60 or lower. Some with an IQ lower than 10 are wheelchair bound, and need help of their own lives.

"I realize that I'm a boss working with them," Nichols said of the clients he supervises. "But their staff has been so helpful in their relationship, a boss and a worker and a friend of some of them, to get them to make these things."

Many of Thomas' opportunities are puzzle pieces in which she uses working with a boss to build new intelligences out of the clients' own day in the past. "I think it's a great model," she said.

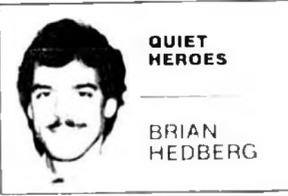

When Poe says "I'm a boss," he thought of the clients who have 100 IQs. "I'm a boss," he said, "but I'm not a boss."

The clients are not just working, they are learning. "I'm a boss," he said, "but I'm not a boss."

program clients, and attended a 1 1/2-year state-level certification class.

Now she is virtually my right hand," Poe said.

As staff psychologist, Bahnt serves in another demanding role at SWOP.

"We make the joke, 'Tracy, how does it feel to have 94 children?' 'She's Mom to them,'" Poe said. "Who do you turn to when you have a problem? They turn to Tracy."

Bahnt focused on a normal psychology during her schooling at the University of Central Florida.

"I never thought that this would be the field for me, that I would be working with the retarded people," she said.

One day she met the handicapped workers who would be mentored. "The more they see me, the more they see me as a person with appropriate skills and logical abilities."

Bahnt gets a personal reward each time she helps the clients who work with their families, activities, and the community. "I'm a boss," she said, "but I'm not a boss."

His secret urges may destroy family

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. I have a loving, wonderful wife and a small child. Life is treating me well on the outside, but on the inside a storm is raging. I was both physically and sexually abused as a child. Self-loathing, thoughts of running away and even suicide have pervaded my mind since I was a teen. I thought that I had resolved my problems through my strong faith, but recently, to my despair and shame, sexual urges toward my own daughter have brought the self-loathing back.

I telephoned a counselor and explained my predicament without disclosing my identity. I confessed that while giving my daughter a bath, I had become physically aroused, but, of course, I did not act on my feelings. This counselor told me that if I identified myself, he would then be put in a position to have to call the welfare department and have my daughter removed from our home!

I am horrified! Thus far, nobody in the family has been harmed. The child had no idea that I was aroused, but removing her from the family while I am attempting to resolve this problem would only throw the family into turmoil. Our family life would be ruined and the child would be the victim.

Please help me, Abby. Where can I go to work on this problem without ripping my family apart? I want healing, but I cannot chance this being brought out into the open.

CURSED

DEAR CURSED: I don't know what kind of "counselor" you consulted anonymously on the telephone, but I urge you to see a psychiatrist at once. You have been grossly misinformed. A therapist is not required to report on the "urges" or feelings of his/her patients, and please do not believe that your child will be removed from your home if you reveal thoughts that crossed your mind but were not acted upon.

You are a courageous and good person for having written to me in search of a solution to this problem. Now, please, see a psychiatrist. If you don't know one, your family physician can make some recommendations. Do this today, my friend, and write again to let me know how you are. I care.

SISTERS learn cash management

Sanford's Interested Sisters to Encourage Rejuvenation (SISTER) hopefully got their finances in order at the February meeting when Mara Levitt, associate vice president of Prudential-Back Securities, spoke to them on "Financial Planning for Women."

The speaker, introduced by program chairman Ann Brisson, instructed the women on how to take charge of their own finances. She stressed the importance of investments, goals, strategies, retirement funds and budgeting today for tomorrow.

President Pat Foster presided over the business meeting. Among the items discussed was the recruiting of new members. Membership in the organization is now open to interested women. For information call Martha Yancey, membership chairman, 323-0794; Barbara Moore, 321-0964; or any SISTER member.

The next meeting will be held March 22, at noon, at Western Sizzlin' Steak House. At that time, election of officers for the 1989-90 season will be held.

A boutique to beautify

During the past two years, Ixora Garden Club has donated $6,200 to civic beautification as a result of its various endeavors. The club has helped beautify the attractive Park on Park and the colorful entrance to the Sanford Marina, among other projects.

And now the club is at it again—working hard for another beautification project. On Friday, March 10, the club will sponsor the Spring Boutique and Luncheon, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Sanford Civic Center with luncheon served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The boutique will feature hand-crafted items, a country kitchen, unique gifts, herb gardens, hanging flower baskets, spring annuals and Easter plants.

The luncheon menu includes: ham and cheese on a freshly baked croissant, fruit on a skewer, a blond brownie and beverage.

Luncheon reservations, at $5 each, are due by tomorrow, Monday, by telephoning Darla at 322-1881; Martha at 322-8686; Linda at 322-5535; or Judy at 322-9591. Or mail checks payable to Ixora Garden Club of Sanford to: Joyce Malone, 603 S. Myrtle Ave., Sanford, FL 32771. Takeout service is available by prepayment only.

Costa Rica by train

Phil and Bunnie Logan spent a delightful five days in Costa Rica with seven Florida couples on tour sponsored by the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs. Among the tourists were: Jimmie Smith, president of the FFWC, and her husband, Eugene, from Melbourne.

Bunnie said the trip was delightful and that they were impressed with the country. They rode a jungle train across country and observed the poorer areas along with lush vegetation.

"It was not the depressing sight seen in some countries," she said. "Even the poor homes looked relatively neat and happy. There was none of this grinding poverty."

The entourage attended a cocktail party hosted by the wrapped itself around her and began squeezing, leading to her extreme discomfort. The boa was nervous, she said, but not nearly as nervous as she.

You also have seen her strutting her stuff in Ralph Lauren designer creations and Wrangler jeans. She will next be seen on the cover of "Barbizon Talks" and in the Coca-Cola Calendar.

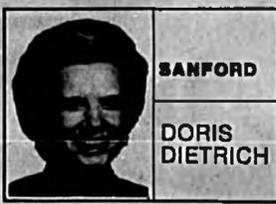

After Teresa graduated from high school in Virginia, she returned to her homeland to work. There she modeled for Hitachi, Panasonic and Nikon and was voted "New Face of the Year" in Japanese modeling circles. She also modeled for Shiseido of Japan, the world's largest cosmetic company in sales, followed by America's Avon.

Following her exciting life in Japan, where she also made two movies, Teresa went on to Paris and then back to New York. Now, she's back with Barbizon where she is teaching, modeling part time and lecturing at high school. With her ability to spot talent and modeling potential, Teresa is helping Barbizon with a new agency.

She said she has always been interested in the stage and, for a while, she worked as executive secretary for the building director at Kennedy Center. Her ultimate goal is acting, which she hopes some day to break into. "I've done everything with modeling," she said. She loves lavish fashion show productions

Lunch 'just because'

Last week, a group of women who call themselves the Friendship Club met at the Holiday Inn, Sanford Marina, for one of those "just because" luncheons.

Gathering together were: Chairman Dorothy McReynolds, Eloise Cleveland, Liz Helfrich, Jeri Kirk, Nellie Coleman, Martha Yancey and Gladys Wray. Guests attending were Gladys' daughter, Jean Wright, from New York state, who winters here with her husband, Robert. Nellie Coleman's guests were Clayda Jones of Sanford, and Nell Atkinson of Greenville, S.C.

Nell and her husband, Charles, now a stockbroker, frequently visit the Sanford area. He was stationed at Sanford Naval Air Station and upon his retirement as a commander, he opened up the Food Mart grocery store at 25th Street and Park Avenue.

While visiting in Sanford, the Atkinsons divided their time as guests of Boyd and Nellie Coleman and Ashby and Clayda Jones.

Woman's Club election

Woman's Club of Sanford Inc. held election of officers for the 1989-90 season at the March and going on location to such faraway places as India.

For the past 10 years since her parents have been living in Sanford, Teresa has visited here at least every two months.

"We are a very close family," she said, in speaking of her older sister, Mary Ann of Altamonte Springs, and younger brother, Robert A. of Sanford.

During this time, she has noticed "a drastic change in the community. This is the place to be for any young man or woman to get ahead in movies and acting," she said.

Teresa is an exotic beauty who was born to model. She stands 5 feet, 8 inches tall and weighs 128 pounds.

"Most agencies won't look at you unless you're 5'8," she said.

During her spare time, Teresa enjoys aerobics, swimming and fishing with her father. In developing her artistic aptitudes, which she inherited from her mother, she studied art at Northern Virginia Community College and enjoys painting "like my mom."

In summing it all up, Teresa is pleased with who she is, where she has been, and where she's going.

"I love what I'm doing," she said.

Exchange students took in culture with education

Learning English and having a ball seem to go hand in hand for 20 Japanese students who stayed with several families in the Longwood/Lake Mary area. Not only did the students spend three hours a day in the classroom learning English, but they spent many more hours practicing what they've learned trying to communicate with their host families.

Bowling was one of many fun activities the Japanese exchange students enjoyed during their three-week home-stay. Many of them had bowled in Japan, but they especially liked bowling without a huge crowd watching and waiting to bowl next.

Minoru Terada, who stayed with John and Judy VanVuren in Longwood, bowled the highest score of 171. Terada said he bowls about once every month in Japan.

Yoshiaki Fukaya, the second highest scorer with a score of 131, said, "Bowling in Japan is more expensive, about $4 a game." Fukaya stayed with Rich and Meridya Kanaga and their son, Ryan, in Altamonte Springs.

Other group activities included: Epcot, Kennedy Space Center, Leu Gardens, St. Augustine, ice skating, and lots of shopping. Families had the weekends with their student to do as they pleased.

Herb and Patricia Hinely of Longwood took their student, Mihoko Yoshihara, and her friends, Haruko Nakano, canoeing on the Wekiva river one Saturday. Three of the Hinelys' four children—Matthew, Mark and Laura—canoeed also. Yoshihara and Nakano attempted their newly-learned skill for canoeing on the way back up the river.

"We will really miss Mihoko," Patricia commented, "especially Laura. She thinks Mihoko is her special playmate." Laura, age 4, said she liked Mihoko because she played with her.

Matthew Hinley, age 10, learned several Japanese words from Yoshihara. Matthew now knows domo arigato (thank you), do itashimashie (you're welcome), and ohio (good morning). He also learned that Japanese students go to school six days each week.

Mark Hinely, age 8, did a report on Japan. Yoshihara and Nakano went to his second grade class at Park Maitland on Friday to talk about Japan after Mark's oral report.

Terry and Carol Peterson of Lake Mary enjoyed hosting their second Japanese exchange student, Miki Okada. "Miki has been a good student. We did this once before, and our children love it," commented Carol.

The Peterson's children, Jessie and John have learned a lot from Okada. Jessie learned to do origami (paper folding).

Many students thought Longwood and Lake Mary are very beautiful and green. Tadao Tagawa, who also stayed with the VanVurens, commented on the traffic in Longwood.

"My host mother is a crazy driver," said Tagawa. "She gets very angry in traffic." He also commented on the big roads and big cars compared with Japan.

"I think Longwood is very beautiful and green, but I think Chika Iwase slaps hands in delight after picking up a spare.

It is also inconvenient. I can't walk downtown," said Nakano, who stayed with the David Hair family in Longwood. Nakano lives in Tokyo, where cars are not necessary. She can walk or ride a train wherever she needs to go.

"This was a great group of students," said Jan Evans, the program director of INTRAX (International Training and Exchange). Evans has been program director for the past two years.

Another group of Japanese students will be coming in August for another three-week home-stay. If interested in hosting a student, contact Jan Evans at 332-7672.

Best talks about self

James Best

Feb. 23 at 10 a.m. at the CIA building in Lake Mary. Ethel Carlson, the president, gave a patriotic welcome to members and their guests.

A short business meeting welcomed the following guests: Robin Siegel, Margaret Donahue, Sharon Wright, Mary Styles, and Carol Peres.

Arnell Connell, the hostess of the meeting, introduced guest speaker James Best of the James Best Theatre and Acting School in Longwood. In the introduction, Connell credited Best with 35 years of acting, 83 feature films, and over 600 television performances. Best is best known for his role as Roscoe P. Coltrane in "Dukes of Hazzard."

Best first came to Florida from Hollywood, Calif., for a film in which he was acting. "I realized Florida was God's country," confessed Best. "It was a little bit of heaven."

He and his wife, Dorothy, are building their dreamhouse in Seminole Woods on a lake where Best can fish.

The James Best Theatre is located on S.R. 434 in Longwood. The theatre seats 150 people. "All my life I wanted a little theatre to give to the community," said Best.

Getting children involved in theater is one of Best's goals. In Central Florida, more than 80 percent of the children haven't seen live theatre, he said. He plans to change that. He wants to start a program with the mentally and physically handicapped children or the "special children" as Best refers to them, where they can shoot their own movie.

Best's philosophy is, "With the proper training anyone can do whatever one wants."

"I'm not a good speaker. Thank goodness I can act," Best revealed towards the end of his speech.

Best was just a "punk kid" when he first met Jimmy Stewart. Stewart liked Best and would request him to be in his films. Best did five movies with Stewart, and can still do impressions of Stewart.

Best would call Stewart's first assistant, impersonate Mr. Stewart, say he didn't feel well, and ask if they could cancel the filming that day. Soon Stewart caught on to Best and asked him not to do that anymore.

After his talk, Best allowed some time for questions from the ladies. Ethel Carlson asked, "How do you manage to memorize?" Best explained that he relied on a tape recorder.

Fielding questions about Hollywood East, Best said, "There is no doubt that Central Florida will soon be the Hollywood East. There will be millions of dollars coming in. Let's hope we can control it and not let it control us."

Carol Peres, a guest of Susan Davis, said she was going to sign up for the James Best acting classes, after hearing his talk.

"I liked his down-home attitude. He seemed very sincere," commented Mary Styles.

Although she's married and has a child, she is involved in Special Olympics practice and games on the weekends, including transporting participants to and from the activities.

"If you count up the volunteer hours on Saturdays and Sundays...I wouldn't come close to a guess," Poe said of Ballint.

In 1987, she escorted a client to Canada for a week for a Special Olympics competition.

Nichols, as a vivacious, gregarious, take-charge character, is a "born supervisor," Poe said.

Nichols supervises about 10 clients with the help of two other SWOP staff members. In the east Sanford woodshop, clients daily use instruments of potential injury—radial arm saw, table saw, staple guns and nail guns.

The woodshop turns out everything from construction stakes and wallhanging curios to 400-pound shopping crates. The products make both clients and SWOP staff members swell with pride.

"You try to get him out of that woodshop," Poe said of Nichols. "Go out there and fire him. He'll be back tomorrow; that's how he feels about it."

Nichols shoots straight with his workers, using what may be termed tough love. If he calls break and they're not back working on their own in 15 minutes, they get a scolding. He'll tell them they'd be out on their ears in the real world of employment if they didn't get back to work on their own.

That's a far cry from how the clients usually are treated. Often, society lets them off the hook of responsibility because of their mental/physical deficiencies. Nichols' method of no-nonsense supervision has earned him strong respect from the clients, who would leap at the opportunity to work more than the maximum 25 hours per week.

He makes sure to meet the parents of new clients who come into the woodshop.

"I always make sure I meet the parents or you can't get an idea of what it's like at home," Nichols said.

Because SWOP trains its clients to become well-rounded, functioning members of society, Nichols delves into the home lives of his workers. He'll ask them, "What are you going to do this weekend? Are you going to help your mother? Are you going to help your father? Or are you going to sit on the couch and veggie?"

Andy Nichols (right) supervises as John Tate operates a miter saw.

The accountability works because the clients begin straightening up their personal lives. Parents will come to Nichols mouth-gaped, asking what he did to get their children to be so helpful.

"That's what they're supposed to do," he answers. "There are no free lunches in this life."

"We have to have a lot of patience to work here," Thomas said. "You get so tired to saying the same things every day, but that's how they learn—by rote memory."

"None of us are paid what we're worth. We all know that. We could all go out into the private sector and make more money. But we wouldn't have as much fun."

Nichols makes no bones about his job satisfaction. "I came here to fill in for 2 weeks. I've been here for 3 years. I love it or I wouldn't come every day. This is the only job I've never gotten tired of."

Between 10-15 clients have left to go on to competitive employment. Three clients currently are working at a Red Lobster restaurant.

About 30 Seminole County residents on waiting list for SWOP. The private, non-profit program started eight years ago with a 500-square-foot building, is now housed in a 13,000-square-foot facility, and is attempting to build 20,000 square foot. The growth, Poe said, has much to do with the dedication of his employees.

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 5, 1989

Playing a subordinate role is not likely to appeal to you in the year ahead. You'll be ready to take on more responsibility, but you'll also want the rewards and benefits that come with it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to involve yourself in activities today that you feel can improve your mind or stimulate the flow of fresh ideas. This won't be a waste of time, because you'll find a way to utilize what you learn.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Boldness on your behalf may be required in a joint venture arrangement today. Your courage will inspire your counterpart to be a bit more daring as well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) People with whom you'll have dealings today will respect your judgment. They'll know if you prescribe a course of action, it will be predicated upon logical evaluations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Responsibilities aren't apt to be taken lightly by you today. You'll do what you agree to do, but you will also expect just compensation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Associates might be surprised by your ability to get along with so-called difficult types today. People who they find abrasive will be responsive to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Matters that affect family members could be your main concern today. Follow your constructive inclinations that urge you to be more solicitous of their needs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Companions aren't likely to have a problem knowing where you stand on a critical issue today. Even though you'll be tactful, none are apt to misinterpret your position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If your attention isn't focused on financial areas today, it should be. You could be luckier than usual in money matters, so go where the action is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others may not be as fired up about something you want to promote today as you will be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Meaningful objectives can be achieved today, provided you do not let them overlap. Begin with your most important goals and try to work down the line.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Supposedly confidential information might be passed on to you today. However, before you attempt to utilize it, check its validity, because some of its merits may be exaggerated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are presently helping a friend sort out a problem, it's best to keep what you're doing between you and the party involved. Inviting others into the picture could muddy the waters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you'll be both a good starter and finisher, so what you begin, you're apt to complete. However, this might not be true of associates to whom you delegate assignments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Companionship will be important to you today, but don't put socializing above your responsibilities and duties. Keep pace with your work as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A pleasant surprise could be in the offing for you today where your financial interests are concerned. However, it's not likely to come through in situations where you take gambles or foolish risks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In most types of competitive situations, you should fare quite well today, but you must be wary of a particular mismatch where you might seriously underestimate your opposition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your financial prospects look rather promising today, so try to focus your efforts in areas that have profitable potential. Use your ingenuity to fatten your bank account.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

If you've been following these deals all week, you may be wondering by now why bridge books bother to teach beginners how to take finesse. The key, of course, is that making the contract is always crucial, and if the best way to do that is by refusing to finesse, for whatever reason, then that is the right play. So, now that you have been regaled with that bit of bridge logic, cover up the East and West hands and decide how you might go about playing four spades after the lead of the queen of clubs.

Obviously you could try either the diamond finesse or the heart finesse. If you wanted to give yourself the best chance for overtricks, you would undoubtedly go to dummy with the spade ace and lead the queen of hearts. If that finesse worked, you would still be in dummy and could then try the diamond finesse. So on a good day you would make 11 tricks. However, on a not so good day, West would win the king of hearts. You would then not be able to get back to dummy, and down you would go. I think you see the best play. Take no finesces. Win the ace of clubs and lead a low heart to the QJ in dummy.

Should West win the king, cash your ace of hearts before playing the spade king and a spade to dummy's ace. You can now cash the good heart in dummy for a safe 10 tricks, barring a really bizarre heart distribution that would enable either defender to ruff the third round of hearts.

Education

IN BRIEF

Idyllwild continues Cultural Arts Week

SANFORD — On Monday, Idyllwild Elementary School continues its ten day celebration of the arts beginning with a visit from the Orlando Opera Company. The company will present a workshop that will cover everything from costumes to a performance from the opera Don Giovanni.

On Tuesday, March 7, the students will have symposia on beginning drama and pottery. Some of Wednesday's discussions will be led by Jan Jennings, harpist and Debbie Clifton, flautist. That day will also include demonstrations in dough art, basket weaving and cartooning. The Puppet Lady will entertain the classes on Thursday, March 9. Finally, on Friday, March 10 will be the presentation of a surprise demonstration by 30 Idyllwild students during the grand opening of the school cafeteria.

Vocational students honored

On Thursday, March 2, the Seminole Vocational Association recognized six students county-wide for their Student of the Month program. These students were honored for their achievements in vocational/technical education: Neena Witt, Lake Mary High School; Lee Llamazales, Milwee Middle School; Mike Duane, Milwee Middle School; Alane Madsen, Ovico High School; Karen Kirchgassner, Crooms School of Choice and Elnora Holt, Seminole Community College.

Lyman student wins honors

LONGWOOD — Lyman High School senior Jim Bandy was the recipient of three awards at the annual Youth in Government Conference recently in Tallahassee. He won second runner-up for best bill in senate, best statesman in senate and was elected National Affairs in Maryland this summer.

Hamilton Holt offers scholarships

WINTER PARK — Rollins College evening studies division, the Hamilton Holt School, has more than $50,000 available for full- and part-time scholarships for the 1989-90 academic year. The school offers degrees in economics, anthropology/sociology, humanities, English, public affairs, organizational behavior, psychology, organizational communication, environmental studies and international studies. The deadline for application is April 1. For more information, call 646-2232.

C of C names Student of the Month

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley High School junior Kenny Keene was named as the first recipient of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Student of the Month. Students chosen for the award are those who "have done something to make a difference in the lives of everyone at the school," not necessarily the honors students or the star athletes. Keene was nominated by his teachers because he is always the first to volunteer for a community or work project and for his level-headed action in extinguishing a fire in one of the school's restrooms. Keene, a shop and construction student, plans to go into military service upon graduation and then work in law enforcement or forestry. Accompanying the Chamber's honor was a $100 cash award and a commemorative plaque.

Sabal Point announces honor roll

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The following students were named to the honor roll at Sabal Point Elementary School. Helping the schools help themselves

FACTS was designed to promote area schools, raise awareness of projects

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

Realtor Bob Moore and some of his business associates saw a need in the county for a group that could promote the school district and help the schools and the public feel better about one another.

Across the state, programs with similar objectives had been popping up in communities of all sizes. Moore felt that Seminole County, with its rapid growth and burgeoning economy, needed to consolidate efforts to promote the schools of the whole county.

"I felt that some areas of the county were being slighted while others were getting so much more publicity, funding et cetera," said Moore.

As president of the Quantum Group, a realty company, Moore had seen many of his colleagues guilty of similar injustices in their promotion of one area over another. He wanted it to stop and consequently formed a group of builders and developers called Project Awareness.

"We collaborated to get the word out about our schools," he explained. "We wanted to make sure that all the schools got a fair shake. We tried to balance development across the county," he said.

About a year ago, it came to Moore's attention that a foundation with the same goals was in place, but dormant, as part of the school board. The mechanics for the group Moore envisioned had been established as a clearing house for donations to the school board. It therefore took very little money to get the organization up and working.

With the board's blessings, he decided to merge his group with that one and to recruit other members of the business community to join in the fight. Soon the school board took the foundation out from under its auspices and they appointed a board of directors.

Thus was the birth of FACTS (Foundation for the Advancement of our Community Through Schools).

Over the next nine months, they formulated their strategies by visiting every school in Seminole County and assessing their needs and their complaints.

FACTS goals are to encourage and increase business and civic involvement in the school system, to recognize achievement by students and teachers, to provide motivational programs through innovative programs, to assist in recruitment of the highest quality teachers, and to raise the level of communication between the schools and the community.

"We think we're doing a good job," said Moore. "We've recently initiated our mini-grant program."

The mini-grant is a grant of up to $500 to a teacher or administrator who has a special educational project, perhaps a science program, that cannot be funded by the school board for one reason or another. "As we get more money in the coffers," Moore promised, "we will do bigger things."

Moore said that fund raising efforts have been going well. The community has been responding well. He says he is encouraged at their willingness to help whenever possible.

"Builders and developers have given thousands of dollars, but there are individuals who have made five and ten dollar donations. Those are just as important to our efforts," Moore said.

Moore said that one of the secrets of the success of the FACTS program is the involvement of the parents.

"The parents in this community care about the schools," Moore, the father of two, said. "We have assistance with our work on all levels and that spells success for us."

FACTS's long range goals include the establishment of a trust fund that will finance scholarships for needy and academically successful students. Their immediate goals are to reshape the preconceived notions that the community has about certain county schools.

"We want to get the word out that no one school is better than the others," he said. "We want to make all the schools great."

Kean repeats call for international education

United Press International

WASHINGTON — New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean says he and his fellow state leaders share a special responsibility to "light a fire under America" against global illiteracy.

Speaking at the National Governor's Association winter meeting Sunday, Kean said the United States must awaken its citizens to the need to learn about foreign nations and peoples.

"We governors need to use our bully pulpits to spread the word on the importance of international education," he said. "Part of our jobs will be to light a fire under America."

"There have already been several prophets warning about our global illiteracy," he said. "But America continues to sleep through the sermon, and we risk being left out in the cold."

An NGA task force headed by Kean, a Republican, released a report Saturday on international education that said America no longer can afford to be ignorant of events and people beyond its shores.

The report called for more foreign language classes, as early as the first grade, and making international education a key part of basic schooling.

"In all, our recommendations — from retraining teachers to joining schools and businesses for the benefit of both — are basic, realistic and practical," Kean said. "They deal more with follow-through than philosophy."

Kean said it is "deplorable" that studies have found half of all Americans cannot name a country in South America and that "one out of four Dallas high school seniors can't name the country south of our border."

Leonardo da Vinci debunks Parkinson's disease theory

United Press International

BOSTON — Leonardo da Vinci apparently described Parkinson's disease in his writings, debunking the theory that brain disease was caused by pollution created by the Industrial Revolution, researchers said Wednesday.

"This is the best (evidence) that establishes the situation quite firmly," said Dr. Donald Calne, a neurologist at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, British Columbia.

"In my view this does establish beyond doubt that Parkinson's disease existed in the 15th Century," Calne said in a telephone interview.

About 1 million Americans suffer from Parkinson's disease, which causes a progressive, devastating loss of muscle control characterized by distinctive tremors and other body movements.

Dr. James Parkinson, a British surgeon, named the disease and described it for the first time in 1817. Since that is when the Industrial Revolution was occurring in England, researchers suspected the disease may not have existed before then.

Dr. Abraham Lieberman, chairman of the medical advisory board for the American Parkinson's Disease Association, said Calne is a highly respected researcher.

Boyer almost ready to travel to the Orient

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Kathy Boyer has a lot of things going for her.

She's Seminole High School's Homecoming Queen, president of the senior class, a member of the National Honor Society and Mu Alpha Theta (a mathematics honors club), co-captain of the Seminoles' cheerleading squad, a member of Destiny (a select singing group), a member of the Key club, an active participant in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and in the school's thespian group. She's been honored with the school's citizenship award four consecutive years as well as the principal's Leadership Award.

On top of all that she's found time for a job as a hostess at Bob Ruby's Great Steaks in Altamonte Springs.

You'd think there'd be nothing left to do. Boyer, a voracious achiever, has found something. This summer, as the sole Seminole County representative, she will join 30 of the best young people Florida has to offer as a part of the People to People High School Ambassador Program which will tour the Orient for a month this summer.

The People to People program was founded in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He believed that private citizens could reach out to the people of other nations and, through friendship, make a significant contribution to world peace.

"I'm looking forward to this," Boyer said, who is planning a career in international public relations or broadcasting. "I've always said that if it were possible, I'd like to meet everyone in the world. This is a good way to meet more people."

Boyer jokes a lot, but she takes the responsibility of representing America through the People to People program very seriously.

"People around the world see Americans as money hungry and lazy. We have to show them that stereotype is not right," she said.

Boyer's trip to Taiwan, Japan,

China and Hong Kong will be expensive. She earned the right to represent this country based on her activities, grades and personality. She has to earn the money to finance the trip through donations.

With the help of the Chamber of Commerce, Boyer has raised $500, but she needs an additional $4000 by June. She is confident that the people of Seminole County will support her efforts.

In the meantime, she is studying, with the help of the People to People program, the history, culture, economy and geography of the places she will visit so she will be better able to understand the people she meets.

"Not only that," she added. "But we are studying America too: History, current events, government. We have to be prepared to answer any question they have about our country."

While abroad, Boyer will live in the home of a native family. She will share their meals, their leisure activities, their work, their worship and their schooling. The American ambassadors stay in separate homes so they are forced to interact with their hosts and not hide behind one another.

In addition to her native tongue, Boyer speaks Spanish but admitted that will do her no good in the Orient. But, she said, most young people around the world speak English.

"Communicating with some of the older people who don't speak English is going to be a challenge," she said.

The daughter of a minister (her father is the pastor of Grace United Methodist Church in Lake Mary), she is a Christian with strong faith. Boyer said that this trip could be an opportunity to spread her religious values to people in other lands. Though the program is not a missionary visit, she said her actions will be a fine example.

Before she leaves, she said she must choose the college she will attend in the fall.

"I have it narrowed down to the University of Florida and UCF," she said. "I have to decide soon, because I have to apply for financial aid." The youngest of four children (she has three brothers), Boyer said her mother, an assistant principal at Goldsboro Elementary School, has told her that financial aid is a must with four kids in college.

Boyer said that the only drawback she's been able to find is the fact that she's only allowed to bring one suitcase.

"People who know me and know how I like to shop say that's going to be impossible," she said.

VIEWPOINT

If you love someone, you should tell them

From my vantage point on the wooden porch of the old country house where I was spending Sunday afternoon with a friend, it was difficult to identify the two figures who were slowly making their way up the steep dirt road.

It wasn't unusual for visitors to park their cars at the bottom of the hill and walk the several hundred yards to the top because what we called a road was really little more than a widened footpath. On the right was a barren hillside bordered by a four-foot-deep ditch that ran the length of the road. On the left was nothing. A straight drop of some 60 to 75 feet was the fate awaiting any unsuspecting driver whose wheels were suddenly turned that way by the violent rendezvous with a half-hidden hole or large rock.

KLONIE JORDAN

The road had claimed more than one victim and those who knew the territory were well aware that the best way to traverse it was on foot.

As the two individuals grew closer, I could plainly make out the freckled face of my older sister and the boyish gait of one of my nephews. You didn't have to see his face to recognize him. He was at the age where his walk was all the identity he needed. It was a half-bird, half man type of gallop, not at all unlike the stance taken by gunfighters in the old west when they met for a showdown in the middle of the street.

It was pretty obvious they were looking for me, although at the time I couldn't imagine why.

I spent almost every Sunday afternoon at my friend's house, hunting squirrels or playing basketball and getting into the kind of trouble that often comes the way of two teenage boys with too much free time.

The house was located about as far back in the woods as you'd want to be and there was always something to do for recreation. You didn't have to worry a whole lot about disturbing the neighbors by making too much noise because the nearest house was well out of earshot. It was, or at least it seemed to me, a young boy's paradise. One of our favorite pastimes was fishing on top of the mountain in some of the large water holes fed by natural springs. We would catch fish and 'stock' them in those ponds.

"You need to come home," my sister said in a solemn tone that I had never heard her use before.

I started to ask why and thought better of it. Instead swallowing hard in an effort to dislodge a sudden lump in my throat, I knew something terrible had happened.

We walked back down the hill and got into my sister's old '66 Buick. She had just learned to drive and had saved enough to buy the car. It was nothing of which to be especially proud, but it meant a lot to her. You know how it feels to have bought something entirely on your own. She had started at her first job just a few months earlier and the car was her first major purchase. It wasn't much, but it was hers. I suppose that was all that mattered.

When we arrived home, the driveway was full of cars and there were a number of vehicles parked in the grass, a clear violation of one of mom's strictest rules. Dad was standing just outside the front door, staring somewhat aimlessly at the ground.

As I approached him, my legs suddenly were like rubber and I could feel my heart pounding in my throat.

"Dad, what's wrong? What's going on?" I asked, my voice suddenly becoming squeaky and broken.

He slowly raised his face and the tears on his chin and cheeks only punctuated my fears.

"Son," he said, "You've just lost your best friend."

He didn't have to tell me who he was talking about. I knew who he meant, having just moments earlier detected the eerie absence of my mother. He hugged me and we just stood there and cried together for the next several minutes.

It's very difficult to describe what I felt at the exact moment. It was perhaps the most painful news I've ever had to bear. The one thing that kept running through my mind was the scene from that morning when mom and I had been out in the yard playing with one of my pet rabbits. She never looked more alive to me than on that very morning. I had, and thankfully so, told her that morning that I loved her. Dad was right, she was my best friend.

She had suffered a heart attack that day at her sister's house. She had told my father she felt dizzy before collapsing in his arms. An ambulance was summoned but arrived too late.

It is hard to explain to a teenage boy that his mother is never coming home again. It is, perhaps, even more difficult for that boy to accept the explanation. I finally did, but it wasn't until several weeks later.

It was on Easter Sunday when I learned that my mother had died and I always spend a lot of time thinking about her at this time of year.

I learned something very important that day.

If you love someone, tell them. If you care about someone, whether a family member or friend, tell them.

I tell my father that now every time I see him or talk to him on the phone, I'm not ashamed to say those words. There were times earlier in my life when I wished I had said it more often.

Discovery poised, ready

Next week's shuttle launch the first of seven on NASA's 1989 schedule

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Discovery, carrying a five-man crew, four deliberately injured rats, 32 chicken eggs and a $100 million communications satellite, is finally ready for a delayed blastoff next week on the year's first shuttle voyage.

Says crewman Robert Springer: "We've got kind of a bread-and-butter mission."

Engineers at the Kennedy Space Center say the orbiter should be ready for liftoff on the 28th shuttle mission, the first of seven planned for 1989, no earlier than March 11, more than two weeks behind schedule because of work to replace three suspect engine turbopumps.

The goal of the flight, Discovery's eighth and the third since the 1986 Challenger disaster, is the launch of a Tracking and Data Relay Satellite — TDRS — identical to one launched Sept. 28 during the first post-Challenger mission.

At the controls on Discovery's flight deck will be commander

Michael Coats, 43, who served as co-pilot aboard Discovery for its maiden flight in 1984, and John Blaha, 46, a shuttle rookie who will serve as Coats' second in command.

Seated behind them will be James Buchli, 43, veteran of two previous shuttle missions, with rookie Springer, 46, seated to his right. Seated alone below on the shuttle's lower deck will be physician-astronaut James Baglan, 37, also a space rookie.

If all goes well, Discovery will glide to a dawn landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., after a five-day, one-hour and seven-minute mission. At $375 million, the 28th shuttle flight will have cost $51,603 a minute.

With two successful post-Challenger flights behind them, Discovery's crew is eager to get off the ground.

"It's a relief now to be flying again and showing that we really are a spacefaring nation and that we have the capability to operate in space safely on a regular basis," Coats says. See Shuttle, Page 6D

SHUTTLE SCHEDULES

Here is a list of the seven shuttle flights currently planned for 1989.

MARCH 11 (tentative): Discovery blasts off, carrying another Tracking and Data Relay Satellite and a variety of experiments. The mission is scheduled to last five days, one hour and seven minutes.

APRIL 28: Atlantis returns to action to ferry the $530 million Magellan Venus radar mapper into orbit. The Magellan probe, which will be fired to Venus by a solid-fuel booster, will map the cloudy planet's surface with an imaging radar system. NASA must launch Magellan before May 28 or the mission will face a two-year delay because of the positions of Earth and Venus.

JULY 1: The original shuttle, Columbia, takes off on a secret military mission. This flight is in danger of significant delay because of the time needed to complete post-Challenger modifications.

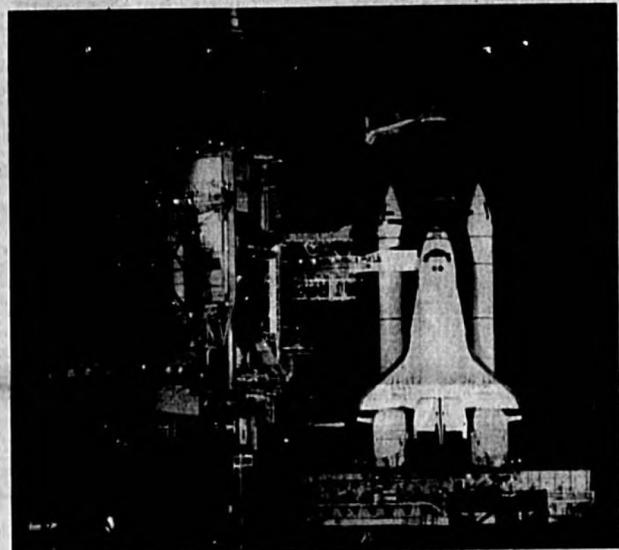

AUGUST 10: Discovery blasts off on another classified Pentagon mission.

OCTOBER 12: Atlantis, carrying the $1.4 billion Galileo Jupiter probe, blasts off on the seventh post-Challenger flight. Galileo, which will not reach Jupiter until 1995, will drop a probe into the giant planet's atmosphere and spend at least 20 months in orbit gathering priceless data.

NOVEMBER 13: Columbia is launched on its second post-Challenger flight to carry a military communications satellite into orbit, and to retrieve a science satellite deployed during a 1984 shuttle flight.

DECEMBER 11: Discovery closes out the year by carrying the $1.4 billion Hubble Space Telescope into orbit. The telescope is expected to revolutionize optical astronomy.

Environmental instability blamed for weird weather the world over

United Press International

NAIROBI, Kenya — No one is worrying about a predicted global warming trend these days in Alaska, where an unprecedented high pressure zone in January sent temperatures plummeting so low they could not be recorded on thermometers.

But try telling that to ski resort operators in the Swiss Alps, who have had to shut down operations in the face of one of the warmest, driest winters on record including a 68-day period without rain or snow — the longest dry spell in 125 years of record keeping.

Winter likewise is little more than a memory in Scandinavia and Japan, both of which experienced the mildest January since they began keeping track of temperatures in the 1800s.

tures soared far above normal in January accompanied by drought conditions reminiscent of last year's dust bowl in America's Midwest, while in tropical Maracaibo, Venezuela, temperatures dove from a normally steamy 104 to a cool 50 — the lowest in a decade.

And up and down the coast of East Africa, rain has been falling steadily through what is supposed to be the dry season, producing bumper crops in countries where a few years ago thousands of people died from starvation.

"The weather this year is extremely unusual, in ways that grip the imagination," said Peter Usher of the United Nations Environment Program. "It is almost a case of rather than look for someplace where the weather is unusual you look for someplace where it is normal."

Usher, the chief meteorologist at UNEP's world headquarters in Nairobi, is no alarmist. Cautious and conscientious, he is quick to point out that people have short memories when it comes to the weather, and everyone thinks he knows more than the weatherman.

Yet, he conceded in a recent interview. "The weather conditions this year may be unique. I cannot recall a year in which more countries have experienced unusual weather at the same time and have recorded new absolutes (all-time highs and lows)."

□ The drought of 1988 in America's grain belt;

□ Major Caribbean storms last fall of unprecedented ferocity.

To those peculiarities, a check of United Press International bureaus around the world added:

□ The Alaska cold snap that sent barometric pressure so high and temperatures so low that See Weather, Page 6D

Do deficits matter?

In the federal budget debate in the days ahead, you are going to hear a lot of hot-blooded rhetoric about the debt. That's ironic, because there is now surprising agreement among economists from left to right that deficits of the size the United States is now running are irrelevant to economic performance, at least in and of themselves. What matters a lot more is the actual level of government spending, regardless of whether it is financed by taxation or by borrowing.

This is a sharp departure from the economic theories of both the Keynesian liberals, who believe deficits "stimulate" economic growth, and traditional fiscal conservatives, who worry that deficits "crowd out" private-sector investment and savings.

What has given rise to these departures has been actual experience. Both here and abroad deficits have shown no consistent economic effects from one country to another, or from one time period to another.

For example, Japan during the 1974-1982 heyday of its most rapid growth, ran budget deficits that were consistently higher than our own. Japan more than doubled its national debt as a share of this gross national product. At the same time, however, it ran trade surpluses, had low interest rates and very high savings rates.

The dilemma is well summed up by a fascinating headline in the London Financial Times. "Big Public Sector Surplus May Discourage Savings." The Financial Times has been one of the most consistent doomsday warners on the U.S. deficit. It has long argued that the U.S. deficit was killing the American savings rate and sucking in world capital in its place, making Americans dangerously reliant on foreign moneylenders.

But, over the past four years, while the British budget has moved from deficit to surplus — England currently is running a $20 billion surplus, the equivalent of a U.S. surplus of $160 billion — the British savings rate has steadily plunged to one of its lowest rates in history. Now the authoritative paper is worried that the budget surplus is killing British savings. At the same time, the British balance of trade has shifted from surplus to deficit.

In other words, the "twin deficits" and "savings gap" don't accord very well with international experience. That also is the conclusion of an article in the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis Review by economists Alex Chrystal and Daniel Thornton. They conclude that both the Keynesians and the traditionalists are wrong: "In general, empirical evidence on the effects of deficit spending is sparse, and for the most part ambiguous. Most persuasive is the growing macroeconomic evidence ... that deficit spending has no long-run effect."

The economists found that deficits didn't help stabilize the economy, as the Keynesians once contended, or affect capital formation, savings and interest rates.

The main point, however, is that it's the level of spending we should chiefly be worried about, not a deficit that is equal to just three percent of the gross national product.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Being sensible about insensitivity

Martin Scorsese must be profoundly grateful that his recent film version of "The Last Temptation of Christ" blasphemed only Jesus and not the Prophet Mohammed. The Christian principle of turning the other cheek guaranteed that neither John Paul II nor Jerry Falwell would put out a contract on him. Instead, as he undoubtedly calculated, the picture merely stirred up enough anger among the faithful to hype the box-office proceeds a bit.

It would be interesting to know whether it was Scorsese's successful example that inspired Salman Rushdie to spice his latest novel, "The Satanic Verses," with a thoroughly offensive caricature of the Prophet Mohammed and to depict a dozen prostitutes as Mohammed's wives. Rushdie, an Indian-born citizen of Britain who was raised as a Moslem, must have known how thoroughly his book would outrage devout members of that faith. But he apparently thought this would merely help to publicize and sell it. It certainly never occurred to him that the Ayatollah Khomeini would respond by ordering a hit on him.

So now Rushdie is in hiding "somewhere in Britain," under the protection of Her Majesty's police (who, by the way, were also kicked around in his book), and may have to stay that way for the rest of his life. No doubt the current uproar will die down sooner or later, but Rushdie can never be sure that some Moslem fanatic isn't biding his time, waiting for a propitious moment to strike. The novel is reportedly doing well in the bookstores, but Rushdie's heirs seem likelier than he does to enjoy the royalties.

It took most Western intellectuals a week or more to decide, not only that they were on Rushdie's side in this flap (that was easy), but that a proper devotion to the principles of free speech required them to say so, loud and clear. It would be nice, though probably wrong, to think that the delay was occasioned by the fact that they had to abandon, at least temporarily, another great liberal shibboleth they have been using lately to smite the unworthy: The principle that we ought to be extremely "sensitive" toward the feelings of others — or at least others in certain specially protected categories.

It was just a year or so ago that Jimmy the Greek was summarily fired by CBS for expounding the theory that black basketball players are taller and huskier than most whites because pre-Civil War slave owners bred their ancestors for size. True, Jesse Jackson didn't call for Jimmy's assassination for making that assertion, but the man's abrupt sacking by CBS struck many people as a wildly excessive punishment for an offense that was hardly in Rushdie's (or Scorsese's) league.

Don't devout Moslems, and even devout Christians, have feelings too, to which we should all be "sensitive"? Are their most sacred beliefs fair game for any cheap opportunist who thinks he has found a way to make a buck by ridiculing them? And if our answer to that question is a painful and costly "Yes," hadn't we better quit crucifying, for their "insensitivity," people who tread on some toe that happens to enjoy our personal protection?

Tower is being victimized

WASHINGTON — Sen. Tim Wirth (D-Colo.) voted against John Tower in the Armed Services Committee because, although there is no "smoking gun," the ground is covered with "empty cartridges." And Wirth worries that rumors (cartridges?) of Tower's "womanizing" set an "example" that might cause women in the military to be "discriminated against."

Wirth will not talk about specifics because that would be "unfair." We know everyone is trying to be fair.

Regarding the allegations, Sen. Jeff Bingaman (D-N.M.) stresses quantity over quality. He voted against Tower because the "allegations" (cartridges?) come "from a great many unconnected sources."

Sen. Alan Dixon (D-Ill.), another quantity man, is impressed that "the firestorm of allegations" has not stopped. Many allegations are, he says, merely "rumors and innuendo," but (read this carefully) "other allegations offer cause for considerable alarm." Does Dixon think they are true? All he says is: "There may not be a smoking gun, but there is an abundance of smoke." Smoking cartridges, perhaps?

Sen. John Glenn (D-Ohio) says the "effectiveness" of an officeholder depends on "perceptions" and in Tower's case, "They may not be fair — I agree with that — may not be fact. But the perceptions are there." Thus a confirmation process that began purporting to pursue the truth ends by declaring the truth irrelevant.

However, Sen. John Breaux (D-La.) explains that we are witnessing senatorial idealism: "We ought to be looking for the very best we can find in the nation. The President has the right to go out and find that person, but the Senate has an obligation to determine whether in fact this is the best we can find out there in the whole country." So the Senate's ("we") preferences are at least of equal weight with those of the man who wins the presidential election.

Adding them up, the reasons for rejecting Tower include: Alleged drunkenness that no senator serving with Tower claims to have ever seen, but which most Democrats now say they believe on the basis of reports (cartridges?) gathered by the FBI; undefined and undocumented "womanizing"; the "appearance" of "conflicts of interest" (more about which in a moment); and the Senate's thirst for "the best."

A rule: In Washington, when four reasons are given for doing something, the real reason is none of the four.

Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) was most worried about Tower's use of alcohol. Then Tower pledged not to touch it. Then Nunn changed his emphasis. Nunn was clear about only what he was not saying. "I'm not saying," he said, that Tower as a private consultant improperly gave information to defense contractors. But "it's the appearance that is so bad."

Now, is it really asking too much to ask Nunn, who has rendered an emphatic judgement on Tower, to be completely clear about his slumping disclaimers ("I'm not saying...") while destroying a man's reputation, career and life with studied ambiguities.

Does Nunn think Tower today has an alcohol problem? Has Nunn decided that Tower behaved unethically as a consultant? If Nunn cannot decide, he should defer to the presidential decision on Tower.

"I'm in a hopeless situation," Nunn says, because he cannot reveal his reasons for trashing Tower. FBI reports are confidential. They also are often confusing, contradictory and inconclusive. Because the White House has characterized the reports differently than Nunn has, Nunn has threatened to re-open the hearings and subpoena people for testimony under oath. That, he says, would be "unfortunate."

Oh? For whom? Not Tower, who can hardly be more injured. It might be unfortunate for the patrons of The Monocle Restaurant because all the employees would be testifying. (One claims to have seen Tower drunk; a dozen say they never did.) And it would be interesting to hear from the man who says he saw Tower drunk in Washington on dates when Tower was in Pakistan, Texas and Seattle.

If it is fair to judge Tower for "appearances," it is as fair to note that Nunn "appears" to be taking this personally. As Nunn likes to say, "I'm not saying that he is. But there is a 'perception' that this is simply a power struggle. The perception may be unfair, but we know how seriously Nunn and his allies take perceptions."

Some Democrats are behaving the way some Republicans did between 1949 and 1952, when they had been too long without the sobering responsibility of executive power.

We know everyone is trying to be fair.

Lobbyists start to jockey for position

WASHINGTON — Special interest groups are swarming around the Capitol like bargain hunters at a grand opening sale. The possibilities of a new season of Congress tantalize.

The interest groups are shopping for influence, and this year they can pick from 11,000 lobbyists to guide them down the unfamiliar aisles of Congress.

Washington lobbyists — they prefer to call themselves consultants — compete fiercely to be hired by the new crop of special interest groups each year. In exchange for cash, they promise to deliver their client's pitch over lunch, over cocktails, over dinner and in the cloakrooms of Congress.

Our associate Jim Lynch examined the early lobbyist filings for 1989 piling up in a Senate document room. Of the new assignments, the most unusual task may fall to T.H. Hancock and Associates.

That firm will receive about $122,000 this year from the "ambassador at large" for the "union of Burma." All Hancock has to do is encourage Congress to oust the government of Burma. Here is the firm's mission as described in the lobbyist filings: "To obtain financial support for the government of the union of Burma, to force the peaceful resignation of the existing military regime and relinquishment of all government power to an interim government until free elections can be held." No problem. Congress is looking for some new freedom fighters to support — preferably a group that can win this time.

In a more conventional lobbying vein, a rash of savings and loan institutions hired Washington consultants to make sure that when tossed out to that drowning industry, they will be tossed in the right direction.

The plastics industry is also in a panic after seeing proposed recycling legislation. A branch of the plastics trade association calling itself The Council for Solid Waste Solutions — a name that reeks of false promise — is paying a Washington consulting firm $20,000 a month to convince Congress that mandating recycling is premature.

The most ambitious new lobbying investment this year has been made by the Embassy of Turkey, which is paying $400,000 to a firm called International Advisors. The international advice Turkey wants is how to make the most of its relations with the United States.

Other foreign governments, including Iceland, Canada, Colombia and Costa Rica, are also dropping big dollars for lobbying services this year.

The oddball influence buyers this year include the Helicopters Association International, the Beer Drinkers Association and Citizens for a Drug Free America. They have all hired lobbyists in the past two months. The Florida Lime and Avocado Administration hired a Washington firm for up to $250 an hour to support a bill that would affect the lime market.

Of the early filings, no Washington firm came out with more contracts than Patton, Boggs and Blow, which charges up to $400 an hour for its services. Its new clients include Avon Products, a Colombian public relations firm, the Embassy of Iceland and a Costa Rican manufacturer.

Why is Patton, Boggs and Blow so popular? Influence. Its enormous staff could almost start a city. The personnel roster includes a former U.S. senator from Maine, a former governor from Maryland, a former U.S. Treasury tax consultant, a former chief counsel for the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, a former Michigan congressman, a former federal transportation official and a former assistant U.S. attorney.

In exchange for cash, they promise to deliver.

Sports fan dissatisfied

You guys blew it. How could you possibly give headlines to the Oviedo baseball team finishing third in the Edgewater Invitational, and completely ignore the fact that Seminole High took second place in that same tournament?

No mention was given that Seminole had defeated Edgewater that same morning 8-7 in 12 innings from the continuation of the suspended game they had played earlier in the week.

If I'm not mistaken, the paper says "Sanford Herald."

You guys seem to bust your tails to cover all the soccer that you can find and I realize your staff can not be everywhere, but baseball is a big deal in the county and in Central Florida as a whole. You give adequate coverage to football, fairly good coverage to basketball, so lets get with it on baseball. Last year's coverage was great. All the teams in the county got a fair shake and at least every so often the stats were posted in the paper to let everyone know how the kids were doing against one another in the various departments of batting average, RBI's, W-L, ERA etc. We as baseball fans want to see this, please don't forget this.

I realize your new to covering sports in Seminole County, but I think you'll find your readers will really appreciate the coverage you give the local baseball teams...

Lets keep our paper local. Its all we've got left. Our county is our pride and we're proud of our kids. Lets write more about them instead of giving a full page to how Mrs. Smith can prepare cabbage in 77 different ways.

The Orlando area is making a mistake of monumental proportions with the proposed Central Connector toll road.

At an estimated, or "guesstimated," cost of more than $42 million per mile, the road doesn't make good economic sense, nor does it represent sound transportation planning. The Central Connector project passes the "duck test" with flying colors: If it looks like a boondoggle, and walks like a boondoggle, and quacks like a boondoggle, it's pretty safe to assume it is a boondoggle. The entire project is a gold-plated boondoggle, the likes of which Orlando and Orange County have never seen before.

The road is aligned parallel to the CSX railroad tracks. An it is along this rail corridor that, instead of superhighway toll road, a conventional commuter train service should be developed, linking downtown Orlando to the airport along the CSX right-of-way and along the OUC rail right-of-way skirting the south edge of the airport.

In the early 1980s, the city of San Diego completed a conventional commuter rail system at a cost of only $7 million per mile, which represents a fraction of the cost of new divided highway. Also, South Florida's new Tri-Rail commuter system recently came on line, connecting West Palm Beach and Miami International Airport, at a cost of $4 million per mile. Clearly new highway construction cannot compete in terms of cost effectiveness with mass transit.

Before plunging ahead with the Central Connector road, we first should have an independent transportation study to evaluate the merits of a mass transit system in the corridor where the Central Connector is proposed. If it's determined that mass transit makes more sense along this route, then large sums of public money could be saved rather than squandered on a highway with very limited access.

A conventional commuter rail system along that corridor easily could be expanded in the future south to Kissimmee, southwest to the Florida Center and Disney World area, as well as being extended north along the CSX right-of-way to Winter Park, Maitland, Altamonte, Longwood, Lake Mary, Sanford and possibly as far north as DeLand.

There are other options to expanding such a commuter rail system in the area that should be examined, such as along the utility line easement that parallels Kirkman Road, about 1/4 mile east of the road.

It is irresponsible, boneheaded transportation planning to rush forward with such mega-road projects without carefully studying alternatives. It could be a big ticket "mega mistake" that Orlando and Orange County can ill afford.

Controls on guns attacked

Most people can not stomach bombastic bureaucrats who are uninformed, who openly choose to be, and wear their contempt for those who are informed like a crown. Such are those of the Cleveland City Council who without advance notice or public discussion voted to "outlaw the sale and possession of all semiautomatic (assault weapons).

In their arrogance they think drug suppliers who are already subject to 20 years The ordinance defines an assault weapon as "any firearm that uses .22-caliber rimfire ammunition with a detachable magazine with a capacity of 30 or fewer bullets." Quoted (U.P.I.).

The first thing that strikes me is the misused term "assault weapon," because as such it must have full auto capability; making it a compromise between short range sub machine gun and the main battle rifle.

Now this is not just a case of semantics; no, this is just another attempt to implement a ideology; you can own a gun only if you need it and we, the government, will decide...

Can you hear how stupid it sounds when someone says: "Assault weapons are the weapons of choice for drug traffickers and are used in drug-related crimes?"

The "Tommy Gun was the weapon of choice for the 1920s mob. Machine gun laws didn't stop them either. G-men went after the mob not the gun and used the law like it meant something. Now the cop is sued for stopping too many cars hauling drugs north...

The liberals see the guns as the problem. How can that be? In New York and many other cities only police, licensed guards, sporting club members and a few others are even allowed to own guns, let alone carry them.

Gun owners see the red tape and the lack of "swift and sure punishment" for all laws as the problem.

The outrage people have is always directed at all gun owners and if the gun they choose has a catchy name i.e. Mac-10, Uzi, AK-47, a small handgun (Saturday night special) all the better for the media sensationalism.

Our grandfathers had access to semiautomatic guns and they didn't run drugs. Our fathers had access to semiautomatic guns and they didn't shoot kids.

The outrage should be directed at a system where our youth learn that right is what you can get away with and something is only wrong when you get caught and if you were insane at the time then its not your fault either.

We warn them drugs will be all around them and they must say "No" because drugs kill. They're told they can choose their life style, AIDS will kill you, and how to use a condom. But it appears firearms education is left to the "find out the hard way method."

Are our hands tied? Our laws so gray that we now blame inanimate objects for our own sloppy society? In the dark ages they use to dress animals in clothes and put them on trial if they broke the law. Guns are not drugs. They do not take over your brain. They just sit there like a knife, baseball bat or car.

According to the (U.S.) House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, drug traffickers bring in $140 billion a year. You would still have to believe in the tooth fairy, and be incredibly naive, to think for a minute that outlawing semiautomatic guns would remove one gun from anyone in the drug trade from getting one.

Can anyone honestly believe they'll shed big crocodile tears at a new gun law? Instead, if you listen carefully you can hear them laughing. I hope you are listening.

Take time to help a child learn

Education is the key to the fountain of knowledge. When youngsters possess a thirst for knowledge, "soif de savor," that translates into an enthusiasm about learning. Learning is the pathway to improving the quality of life. The quality of life is not defined solely in terms of material possessions. It is the ability to commune deeply with one's environment and experience life as a part of the cosmic whole.

What equipment must youngsters bring to the fountain of knowledge to drink fully? There are three salient prescriptions: a positive self concept, a rich experiential background, and a disciplined self. Youngsters interact with their surroundings from the moment of their entrance into this world. They are dynamically becoming the type of individuals they are going to be.

A positive self-concept evolves through the process of interacting with significant others in one's life. Parents, siblings, grandparents and other caretakers are the primary molders of the self-concept. The home environment affirms a child's personhood and meets his needs for love, nurturance, acceptance and in building a positive self-concept. A positive self concept allows individuals freedom to explore the world around them with confidence.

Time is the greatest cost in providing children with rich experiential backgrounds. Communicating with youngsters from infancy is critical. Talking, singing, playing games, and reading to children fosters their communication skills. There are multiple ways in which your daily activities may become positive learning experiences, because everything is new and can be interesting to children. A child's innate curiosity must be encouraged and directed when he begins to verbalize; listening to him and patiently answering his questions is very important. Childhood is that magical time, filled with all kinds of possibilities. Learning can become part of that magic, with proper encouragement.

Schedules are important building blocks in becoming disciplined people. The scripture tells us there is a time for everything and this should be imparted to children. There is a time for meals, a time for playing, a time for reading. Schedules help youngsters to feel secure because they expect certain things to happen with some degree of regularity. Schedules that permit youngsters unlimited access to viewing television are prerequisites for future problems. Television viewing must be closely monitored relative to program content and time spent. Rules and regulations should be well thought out. They should be clearly understood along with the consequences. Consistency and fairness should be observed, when youngsters are disciplined for breaking rules.

Caretakers (parents and others) are very, very important people in a child's life. Youngsters learn to experience the world through you. You are the center of their universe, the example with whom they will identify and emulate. Consequently, if you value learning, it is likely that your children will also value learning.

Civilized world must castigate Khomeini

By JOSEPH SPEAR

Why does the civilized world abide the aberrations of a lunatic like the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini?

The Iranian holy man's latest atrocity — the death decree against British author Salman Rushdie for allegedly blaspheming the Islamic religion — is an intolerable affront to anyone who believes in the fundamental right to speak and write freely.

Khomeini and his legions have an inalienable right to worship as they please. But to call for the murder of the citizen of another country because he had the temerity to take issue with the tenets of that religion, particularly in a work of fiction? To offer several million dollars, as some of Khomeini's philanthropic followers have done, to anyone who would assassinate the author? To seek similar retributions against the publishers of Rushdie's novel, "The Satanic Verses"?

To most of us, these are obnoxious notions. But not, apparently, to many world leaders, caught up as they are in matters of state. After some delay, Britain did order Iran's sole diplomat out of the country and instruct its representatives in Tehran to return home. And the 12 members of the European Community recalled its heads of mission.

But the Japanese, with eyes greedily fixed on the estimated $190 billion in reconstruction contracts Iran will be signing to repair its war-torn economy, declined comment except for an unnamed official's remark that the Rushdie death threat was "not something to be praised." The Soviets characteristically sought to exploit Khomeini's latest rift with the West by sending Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze by Tehran to meet with the ayatollah.

In the United States, bookstore chains took "The Satanic Verses" off their shelves. Mainstream Christian groups chose not to oppose the Islamic leaders who are calling for a man to be murdered. President George Bush, sounding as if he were criticizing a litterbug, pronounced the death threat "deeply offensive against the norm of civilized behavior."

Where is Ronald Reagan when we need him?

It is a mystery to me why Khomeini is accorded even minimal respect by legitimate leaders. Why don't the free nations of the world deliver him a blunt message: Harm one hair on Rushdie's head — a solitary strand — and you, holy man, will meet your Allah a bit sooner than you anticipated.

Judge Khomeini's state of mind for yourself:

● Since June 1981, according to estimates published by the Iranian resistance group known as the People's Mojahedin, the Khomeini regime has put to death some 90,000 Iranians who don't subscribe to its views. Another 140,000 have been incarcerated.

● Thousands of adolescent Iranian boys died in the recent war with Iraq when Khomeini asked them to clear mine fields by running across them. The children were promised they would be martyred and go directly to heaven.

● Iranian women who dare appear in public unveiled or who otherwise defy Khomeini's standards of modesty are routinely jailed, flogged, raped and tortured by prison guards.

As long as the Ayatollah Khomeini sits in power, his regime should be ostracized by the rest of the world. No diplomatic contacts. Expel him from international forums. Feed the Iranian people and support resistance groups. But sell nothing to Khomeini and buy nothing from him. Let him rot on Earth before roasting in the particularly hot corner of hell that is surely reserved in his name.

Taking pledge doesn't work for alcoholics

By LEON DANIEL

WASHINGTON — Harold Hughes, who defeated his alcoholism long before serving in the Senate with defense secretary-designate John Tower, scoffs at the little Texan's public pledge of teetotalism.

"We all took the pledge," Hughes snorted in a telephone interview Tuesday.

But the former hard-drinking truck driver from Ida Grove, Iowa, acknowledged he does not know if Tower is an alcoholic.

When under pressure, Hughes said, alcoholics often promise not to drink.

He explained that Tower is under extreme pressure in the fight for the job he covets.

"I once promised a judge I'd never drink again," Hughes said, adding that he failed miserably to keep that promise.

If Tower is an alcoholic, Hughes said, he wouldn't be able to keep his promise not to drink if he is confirmed in the Pentagon's top job.

Promises not to drink just don't work for alcoholics, said Hughes, who now works in the field of alcoholism treatment, which often does.

Democrat Hughes, a liberal, offered some predictable advice to Republican Tower, a conservative.

Even if he is not an alcoholic, Hughes said, Tower should withdraw his nomination if President Bush doesn't.

The former combat infantryman during World War II who served three terms as Iowa's governor was not impressed with Tower's denial that he is an alcoholic.

"Denial is a basic part of the disease of alcoholism," said Hughes, 67, who said he has not had a drink in 35 years.

He agreed that if his former Senate colleague is an alcoholic, Tower could be the last to know.

Hughes said the letter from Tower's physician that the embattled former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee read on national television Sunday doesn't prove he isn't an alcoholic.

"My liver is pretty good too," Hughes said.

Hughes said physicians have very little training in alcoholism.

"Ninety percent of them can't even diagnose it," he said.

Hughes said the way for Tower to prove he doesn't have a drinking problem is to "submit to appropriate screening" by experts in the field of alcoholism.

In any case, Tower's teetotalism pledge appears to be a ploy that is failing to switch votes in the Senate which must confirm him.

His GOP backers concede new concern about Tower's financial ties to the defense industry. He was paid $750,000 as a consultant to military contractors after leaving the Senate.

Bush returned from his Asia trip promising he hasn't "wavered one iota" in support of his nominee despite increasing concerns about the rudderless Pentagon.

At least one major charge against Tower — womanizing — appears to have lost some of its steam since he made it clear Sunday on national television that he would resist firmly taking the pledge against the company of women.

Ku Klux Klan preys on middle-class fears

You might call this a fair-to-partly-cloudy time to be a Republican.

A surprisingly vibrant and un-wimpy George Bush is taking confident rein of the country; on the other hand, they're still stuck with Dan Quayle, who's giving every indication of living up to his full promise.

The country's excitement over Jack Kemp at Housing and Urban Development is becoming mired in John Tower's muck, and Oliver North threatens to make muck of the Grand Old Reagan Regime.

And then there's David Duke, now a Republican state representative from Louisiana, recently elected to fill a vacancy. He's a new convert to the GOP; he tried to run for president as a Democrat in '88, but the Dems barred him from their headquarters.

In the '70s, Duke appeared on talk shows, wearing his white Ku Klux Klan robes. More recently, he has been seen spouting his post-KKK brand of white supremacy. He is a former KKK shining light who left the Klan in a dispute. Prominent Republicans are aghast, staying up nights thinking of ways to excommunicate him and unseat him. I hope while they're doing that, they'll take a moment to take stock of the people who elected him.

The folks in Metairie, the all-white suburb of New Orleans who elected Duke to represent them, are just the tip of an iceberg gaining power among professionals of both parties. And it's a segment given a mantle of respectability over the last few years by a clever brain-trust of white supremacists. In the minds of some, they've been able to turn racism into a Madison Avenue campaign of "just us folks protectin' what's ours."

It's an argument awesome in its power to attract bewildered whites who can't understand why their status and earning power are lower than their parents', when they believe that they have worked just as hard. Casting about for something outside themselves to blame, something more understandable than a complex world economy, they are easy prey for anyone preaching the need for "white civil rights," keeping what whites have safe from "others."

This whitewash of overt racism was inevitable; while violence was effective for a while, public opinion eventually forced stronger law enforcement of cross-burners and lynch mobs. Groups like the KKK didn't change tactics by choice, but by necessity.

Enter the Honorable David Duke, former KKK imperial wizard, ex-Nazi-uniform-wearer from Louisiana State University. Back when Duke joined the Klan, in high school, torching and lynching were still the rage. Today, when those activities are more likely to land you in the slammer even in the South, Duke "regrets" his KKK years — not because burning crosses in the yards of black families was wrong, or because he's recanted his anti-Semitic views, but because "people might think I'm racially or religiously intolerant."

There are more Metairies out there, and it's something both parties should be thinking and talking about. The violent right-wing supremacist groups of the '70s and '80s attracted some of the disenfranchised blue-collar and beaten farmers, but their extremism got them into much trouble. The FBI cleared out some of their compounds, and forced others to keep a lower profile.

White supremacists are discovering that the revolution isn't going to start in a forest in Arkansas or Idaho. The power rests with the respectable middle and upper-middle classes, and it's harder to sell them violence and murder. They do buy a lot of "poor me," however, and a lot of them are ripe for a scapegoat.

Insurance costs top list of concerns for business

TALLAHASSEE — Insurance costs were the top concerns mentioned in a recent survey asking Florida entrepreneurs to identify the most serious problems affecting their businesses. The survey showed that the cost of liability insurance was the most pressing concern of small business executives, followed by worker's compensation insurance costs, according to the state chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business. Despite insurance and civil justice reforms passed by the Legislature two years ago, nearly two of every five (38 percent) respondents cited liability insurance costs as one of their two most serious problems, the chapter reported. Nearly as many (36 percent) reported serious problems with the worker's compensation system. The cost of employee health insurance, cited by more than a quarter (28 percent) of the small-business owners, ranked third in the survey. "Small businesses are now facing an insurance crisis on three fronts," Bill Herrle, director of NFIB/Florida, said in a press release. The survey, conducted in January among NFIB/Florida's more than 17,000 members, asked the small-business owners to identify from a list of a dozen possible problem areas, the two issues most seriously affecting them.

Stream of visitors to Florida nears 40 million a year

TALLAHASSEE — Florida is expected to receive an estimated 38.7 million visitors in 1989 and almost 41.2 million visitors in 1990, according to a forecast of the state's tourism industry prepared by the Florida Department of Commerce. The 1989 visitor forecast indicates a 6.2 percent increase over the estimated visitor total of 36.5 million last year. The 1990 forecast would represent a 6.4 percent increase over the 1989 total. "For years, members of Florida's tourism industry have requested that the Commerce Department go beyond reporting monthly visitor statistics, and start forecasting future statistics, to help them prepare marketing strategies," Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley, Secretary of Commerce, said in a press release. Brantley said the 1989 forecast calls for strong growth during the first six months of the year, due in part to the planned opening of the new Disney/MGM Studio tour and accompanying advertising.

IN BRIEF

Dial-a-nutritionist program Thursday

SANFORD — A "Dial-A-Nutritionist" program will be in operation to answer dietary questions from callers between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday. The public may call in questions by dialing 322-2724, extensions 335, 336 or 338 during those hours.

The program is sponsored by the Seminole County Public Health unit of the state department of Health and Rehabilitative Services in recognition of Nutrition and Living Well in Florida month.

Gov. Bob Martinez proclaimed March to be Living Well in Florida Month to encourage Floridians to focus on a healthier lifestyle.

The Living Well commemoration is sponsored by the Governor's County on Physical Fitness and Sports and the Florida Department of Citrus, and is in cooperation with the Department of Education's Nutrition Education and Training Program, the Florida Association of Health Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, and the Florida Therapeutic Interest Section.

Wellness Day at Florida Hospital

ORLANDO — Florida Hospital will sponsor its first "Wellness Day" from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday under the escalator at Florida Hospital Orlando.

Wellness Day will be held the first Monday of each month and will offer a variety of health screening services.

This month, free blood pressure checks and computerized health screenings will be offered. Cholesterol screenings will also be available for $5, with test results ready in about 10 minutes.

Seminar for children with aging parents

ORLANDO — "As Parents Grow Older," a six-week seminar on how to deal with problems that occur with aging parents, will begin Wednesday at the University Behavioral Center in the Central Florida Research Center adjacent to the University of Central Florida campus.

The program will be presented between 7 and 9 p.m. on five consecutive Wednesdays.

Lori Pape, a gerontological nurse consultant for the University Behavioral Center and an adjunct professor at Florida Southern College in Orlando and Valencia Community College, is facilitator for the seminar.

Enrollment is limited. Registration is $25. For more information, or to register, interested people should call Patty Millison at 281-7000.

Free medical lectures begin in Deltona

DELTONA — Dr. Lawrence Vallario, a cardiologist, and Mari Feick, a registered dietitian, will be the speakers at the first of a series of free medical lectures to be presented twice a month, beginning Wednesday, at the Deltona Community Center.

Many members of the Deltona medical community have volunteered their services to provide the lectures, which will be given between 7 and 8 p.m. in the Sun Room of the community center, located at 980 Lakeshore Drive.

Dr. Vallario will speak on heart disease, and Ms. Feick will talk about diet and health at the first session.

The next session is scheduled for March 29.

Outpatient surgery costs vary

The median charge for outpatient surgery only increased 2 percent in Central Florida, compared to a 14 percent statewide, according to the Florida Health Care Cost Containment Board (HCCB). The Central Florida District includes Seminole, Orange, Brevard and Osceola counties.

The report comparing 1988 costs for outpatient surgeries with 1988 costs, is the second of a two-part survey asking representative hospitals and ambulatory surgical center to give their typical charge for performing specific outpatient procedures. These charges do not include the physician's fee for performing the surgery.

The Health Care Cost Containment Board is charged with regulating hospital charge increases and with collecting data on hospitals and nursing home finances and patient data. The board is also responsible for promoting a more competitive health care market through publishing and distributing information on health care charges.

Of the 11 procedures listed in the report, removal of knee cartilage increased the most statewide since 1987, a 30.9 percent increase, from an average of $1,145 to $1,499. The charges for that surgery in this area ranged from $2,555 at AMI Medical Center in Orange County to $950 at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

The only charge for an outpatient procedure to drop in the statewide averages was that for a facelift, which dropped from $1,011 to $977, the report said. Hospitals in this area either don't perform that surgery on an outpatient basis, or perform too few to be reported.

Other common outpatient procedures and their increases over the last year were:

- Cataract removal with general anesthesia, up 23.6 percent; cataract removal with local anesthesia, up 22.1 percent; removal of bunion, up 17.2 percent; surgical breast biopsy, up 15 percent; knee arthroscopy, up 14.4 percent; removal of skin lesion, up 13.8 percent; inguinal hernia, up 7.9 percent; diagnostic D & C, up 6.3 percent.

"Most outpatient surgery is elective surgery; therefore patients have time to investigate the quality and costs of services provided by various facilities," said Helen Q. Ingram, chairman of the HCCB.

She said the brochure on costs compiled for each of 11 districts in the state is designed to help consumers compare charges for typical outpatient surgical procedures.

The brochure is distributed through local health councils and district offices of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, consumer service offices of the Florida Department of Insurance, business health coalitions and physicians.

Americans are weight-conscious

When it comes to weight, it appears that overweight American adults are responding to what they see. A recent national survey conducted by SAMI/Burke Research for Weight Watchers shows that 40 percent of participants considered themselves overweight, and most are doing something about it.

"What is surprising is that the figure represents a drop of almost six points from a study released in 1985 by the National Center for Health Statistics," says Nema Frye, registered dietitian for Weight Watchers and one of the principal architects of the company's "New 1989 Quick Success Program."

The survey also indicated that most people are pretty good judges of their weight. "We discovered that three out of four people who felt they were overweight, were in fact overweight," Frye said. Also, she noted that 87 percent came to that opinion by looking in the mirror.

"What we are trying to conclude from the results is whether or not we are seeing the beginning of a long-term trend," said Frye. "It definitely appears that the 'eat healthy' message is getting across. I think the fact that fast-food restaurant sales have leveled off helps confirm it. Also, 54 percent of the respondents indicated they were eating at fast-food restaurants less often than five years ago."

Frye pointed out that more than 75 million people are still overweight. She noted that two-thirds of overweight people have tried to lose weight in the past 12 months and that the vast majority (79 percent) of them are still at it. The average weight loss desired was 29.4 pounds.

On the plus side, the survey shows that people are responding to the wealth of information that has come out concerning nutrition and nutrition as it applies to weight loss. "Nine out of 10 people consider themselves very or somewhat knowledgeable about nutrition," Frye noted. "People indicated they are eating more fish, fruit and vegetables and consuming less sweets, butter, eggs, sugar and red meat than five years ago."

Frye said that Weight Watchers' New 1989 Quick Success Program "is the fastest, most nutritionally sound in the company's 25-year history. It reflects the latest scientific research in the area of weight loss and nutrition."

Regarding exercise, the survey revealed that while more dieters are aware that exercise does help weight loss, they are not necessarily exercising more. "What the survey shows is that the higher the dieter's weight, the less he or she exercises," says Dr. William McArdle.

Condition yourself to do 100 pushups

If you are like most Americans, you do not have the strength to do even one pushup. How would you like to train yourself to do 100 pushups — without stopping?

The secret is to pace yourself. If you try to get to 100 before your body is ready for that much work, you could injure yourself. Then you will be unable to do any pushups at all.

As with any endurance athletic activity, you should follow two maxims of training: stress and recovery, and interval sets.

Stress and recovery: All proper athletic training is done by putting in a hard workout and then allowing yourself enough time to recover before you stress it that hard again. Training for most sports is done by choosing workouts that are hard enough to require 48 hours of recovery time to let the muscles recuperate. On one day, you do a hard workout. On the next day, you do an easy workout or take the day off.

Interval sets: If you want to be able to do 100 pushups, it makes no sense to try doing as many pushups as you can before you collapse in pain and exhaustion. You can accomplish far more by using intervals, that is, do a few pushups, rest, and then do a few more. You might do your training in interval sets of three to 10 pushups. Begin with just a few pushups in each set and work up to more as you become stronger.

Here's a more detailed schedule that uses both training maxims:

Day 1: Do a set of three pushups, rest a minute, then do repeat sets of three pushups until your arms begin to feel sore.

Day 2: Rest.

Day 3: Do interval sets of 10 pushups until you feel sore.

On the following days: Repeat the sequence, adding more pushups until you reach your goal of 100.

Child diabetes therapy promising

United Press International

TAMPA — High doses of insulin appear to at least temporarily prevent the destruction of cells in the pancreas that causes the most common form of diabetes among children, researchers report.

The researchers at the University of South Florida Health Sciences Center in Tampa gave 12 children who had just been diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes four times the usual dose of the hormone insulin for two weeks.

Compared to 14 children with Type 1 diabetes who received normal amounts of insulin, those who received the intensive insulin appeared to have been spared the destruction of cells in the pancreas that produce insulin.

At least 500,000 children in the United States have Type 1 or insulin-dependent diabetes. The condition is caused by the lack of production of insulin by the pancreas. Insulin controls blood sugar levels.

Researchers believe the pancreas fails to produce insulin in patients with Type 1 diabetes because the insulin-producing cells in the pancreas — called beta cells — are destroyed by the immune system.

The destruction may occur because the form of insulin these children produce is slightly abnormal, causing the immune system to believe it is a foreign substance and destroy the cells that produce it.

Dr. Sharish Shah and his colleagues decided to give patients high doses of normal insulin as soon as it was learned they had the disease in the hopes of making the abnormal immune response subside.

Shuttle

said in an interview. "We're anxious to prove that."

"It's been frustrating to leave the arena of space to the Russians for the past three years. We've got a lot of catching up to do. We've got a lot of ambitious plans and we believe the space program is critical to the country."

Launch had been scheduled for Feb. 23, but NASA managers delayed the flight in order to replace all three of the ship's high-pressure liquid oxygen turbopumps after a tiny crack was found in a pump used by one of the shuttle Atlantis's three main engines in December.

Atlantis was never in any danger, but managers were concerned because a major crack could cause a catastrophic engine explosion. While Discovery's pumps had no known problems, they were built the same way as the one aboard Atlantis that suffered a cracked bearing assembly.

NASA was unable to rule out the possibility that similar "stress corrosion" could occur in Discovery's pumps and taking no chances, managers ordered all three replaced with pumps built using a technique that precludes the development of such cracks. The work was completed last week.

Once in orbit, the first priority for Discovery's crew will be the launch of the 4,637-pound TDRS satellite, built by TRW Inc. of Redondo Beach, Calif., and identical to one destroyed in the Challenger disaster.

Mounted atop an "inertial upper stage" — IUS — booster built by Boeing Aerospace Co. of Seattle, the TDRS spacecraft will be deployed from Discovery's 60-foot payload bay six hours and 13 minutes after blastoff — around 2:18 p.m. EST.

"The challenge really is the first six and a half hours," Coats said. "Doing the things we have to do in that first six hours is a rush. If we can get through that without falling behind the timeline and get the satellite deployed safely, then we'll feel like we're over the hump."

The deployment will be filmed by Blaha using a wide-format IMAX camera, flown aboard two previous shuttle missions to take footage that later was used for two movies about spaceflight that are shown on giant, seven-story screens.

The camera will be used during Discovery's flight for a motion picture titled "The Fragile Earth."

"I don't think it will solve anything or dramatically change any directions," Blaha said. "But I think seeing a movie like that will give people a better perception, a better understanding of what we're doing to our planet, I think it'll help."

One hour after TDRS is gently pushed from its cradle in Discovery's payload bay, the first stage of the $45 million solid-fuel IUS booster will fire to begin the satellite's trip to a circular orbit 22,300 miles above the equator.

At such altitudes, a spacecraft's orbital velocity is synchronized with the rotation of the Earth and it thus appears to hang stationary in the sky, an ideal condition for communications satellites because it eliminates the need for complex — and costly — ground antennas capable of tracking moving objects.

Once on station, the TDRS satellite's two 16-foot antennas will open like umbrellas and a pair of rectangular solar panels will unfold, giving the spacecraft dimensions of 57.2 feet by 42.6 feet.

The satellite ultimately will replace an aging TDRS already in orbit, working in concert with a TDRS launched from the shuttle Discovery Sept. 29. With two such fully operational satellites in space, shuttle crews will be able to stay in radio contact with mission control over 85 percent of each orbit.

For the remainder of Discovery's mission, the astronauts will conduct a wide variety of engineering studies and experiments, including two dreamed up by high school students.

One, designed by Andrew Frasciolo of Binghamton, N.Y., now a medical student at Brown University, will use four white rats to study how bone healing is affected by weightlessness.

About four days before blastoff, a dental drill will be used to burr tiny holes through the non-weight-bearing fibula bone in one of each rat's hind legs. The surgery will be conducted under anesthesia but the rats will be killed after their return to Earth so the bones can be studied.

Bone healing begins in earnest about four to five days after an injury and by drilling the holes well before blastoff, Frasciolo should be able to gather valuable data about the processes governing bone growth in weightlessness, data that could one day help scientists learn how to treat injuries that otherwise could disrupt a long-duration spaceflight.

A second student experiment, sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken, involves 32 fertilized chicken eggs that will be carried into space to find out how the absence of gravity might affect developing chicken embryos. An earlier version of the experiment was destroyed in the Challenger disaster.

"We can grow a better crystal in space, so is Earth the best place to have children?" said John Vellinga, a Purdue University mechanical engineering student who proposed the experiment while in high school.

"Can we even have children up in space? We can look at the development of the embryo of the chicken egg. Certainly it's not going to answer these questions, but it can give us some valuable data as to whether this is an area that we really need to look at and examine for future space colonics."

The experiment called for 16 of the eggs to be fertilized nine days before launch, the remainder seven days later. Upon return from space, half of each group will be opened for examination to determine how zero gravity affected the embryo development. The remaining 16 eggs will be allowed to hatch.

Other experiments aboard Discovery include a long "heat pipe" in the payload bay to test a potential space station radiator design, an experiment to study plant growth in weightlessness and a protein crystal growth study aimed at helping researchers determine the precise structure of various proteins.

Such ultra-pure crystals, difficult or impossible to obtain under the influence of Earth's gravity, can help scientists determine the precise structure of critical proteins, data that can be used to create new drugs.

"Of all the ones that I'm aware of we've ever done on the shuttle, that is the one that has the most potential immediate gain to society," Baglan said.

But the primary goal of the flight is the launch of the new TDRS satellite, the largest — 4,637 pounds — and most powerful civilian relay station ever built.

Two TDRS satellites are in orbit but one, launched from Challenger in 1983 and stationed over the equator off the coast of Brazil, has a history of problems. NASA wants to replace it with the relay station tucked in Discovery's payload bay.

The idea is simple: with two fully operational TDRS satellites in orbit 22,300 miles above the equator on opposite sides of North America, ground controllers can stay in contact with shuttle crews over 85 percent of each orbit.

Put another way, future shuttle flights, starting with the crew of Discovery, will be out of direct radio contact with the ground for less than 10 minutes per orbit. And that will allow NASA to shut down costly ground stations scattered around the world.

The promise of a fully operational two-satellite TDRS system was shown during the shuttle Atlantis's classified military mission in December when the TDRS launched by Discovery in September was used for the first time.

That satellite, which was stationed above the equator at 150 degrees west longitude for the Atlantis flight, has since been maneuvered to its permanent orbital outpost above the Pacific Ocean at 171 degrees west longitude.

The newest TDRS will be maneuvered to 41 degrees west longitude and the aging spacecraft currently parked at that location off the east coast of Brazil will be maneuvered to a point over western South America to serve as a spare.

The two operational satellites are positioned as far apart from each other as possible while still remaining visible to a single ground station at White Sands, N.M.

Even so, a slight gap in coverage exists over the Indian Ocean, amounting to about 15 percent of a shuttle orbit, and it is when a shuttle flies through this "zone of exclusion" that its crew will be out of contact with the ground.

The TDRS satellites are crucial not only for the shuttle program, but also to relay data and commands back and forth from ground stations and other satellites. For example, the $1.4 billion Hubble Space Telescope, scheduled for launch in December, will require two fully operational TDRS satellites to function properly.

Book sheds light on Browning

Elizabeth Barrett Browning
By Margaret Forster
(Doubleday, 400 pp., $19.95)

Margaret Forster's new book about Elizabeth Barrett Browning sheds light on a part of the poet's life often neglected by biographers, her childhood.

Based largely on letters from the writer's early years, Forster's study details Elizabeth's education in Greek literature and classical philosophy. Born March 6, 1806, Browning became a published poet at age 13.

An introverted woman who thrived on criticism of her work, the frail Elizabeth left home only to meet admired poets and critics. She preferred the company of her father and 11 younger siblings, and letter-writing was her primary mode of communication with the outside world.

One of the earliest literary feminists, marriage seemed unimportant to her until she met Robert Browning at the age of 40.

Their forbidden love — Elizabeth's widowed father had no desire to see his children married — produced her best-loved work: The sequence of 44 love poems known as "Sonnets from the Portuguese."

The couple's elopement to Italy in 1846 began a new phase in Elizabeth's writing in which she tackled more mature political themes. Yet her feminist epic, "Aurora Leigh," was the only poem destined to become a best-seller during her lifetime.

Weather

neither could be reliably recorded:

□ An extremely wet summer in Japan followed by the warmest winter in 110 years of record-keeping, with similarly mild weather in Korea;

□ Unusual dampness, cloud and rain in South Africa, where warm dry weather is normal for this time of year;

□ Drought and unusually high temperatures in Argentina, Uruguay and southern Brazil, with drought conditions also in Chile;

□ An unusually cold winter in Venezuela, both in coastal Maracaibo and in the highlands at Caracas, with temperatures dropping more than 27 degrees below normal;

□ An unseasonably warm Southern Hemisphere summer in Peru along with the heaviest rainfall in five years causing flooding and crop loss.

Does all this herald the arrival of the long-predicted "greenhouse effect," a global warming trend caused by industrial pollution that trap the sun's energy in the atmosphere?

Usher said some scientists are convinced it is, among them such climatologists as James Hansen of NASA, who testified to that effect before Congress last year.

Others point instead to "El Nino" and its counterpart "La Nina," warm and cold bodies of water that settle in the Pacific Ocean off Peru and upset circulation patterns in the atmosphere, creating havoc with the weather as far away as Africa.

Most of the effects are within the normal range of probability, Usher said, "but we cannot ascribe all that is happening with any certainty to any one cause. It may be a mixture of causes, including some we don't even know anything about."

Greenhouse or not, however, the world is in for more weird weather.

"The climate will change in the near future, even if it has not changed now," Usher said. "This year's anomalies, even if not the result, are an example of what will happen when the climate changes, and will occur year after year."

"The precursor of the greenhouse effect is increased volatility in the weather," he said. "There will be many variations that are both warmer and colder than average."

Usher noted man has already increased Earth's carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases by 50 percent since the beginning of the industrial age and will increase them by that much again in the next 40 years.

"We have already committed ourselves to climate change even if we changed the way we behave today," he said. "Our only choice is to limit the extent to which the climate will eventually change."

Despite his concerns, Usher said he and other climatologists are trying to resist the "disaster movie syndrome."

"People like to be frightened (and) to some extent we are pandering to them by giving them disaster scenarios," he said.

"We have a problem, but we have an opportunity to solve that problem if we don't panic. ... The end of the world is not nigh — We have abused the environment, but we have the means to repair it."

Rocket to fly into space from jet wing

UPI report

FAIRFAX, Va. — An aging B-52 bomber is on the verge of revolutionizing the satellite delivery business with a high-tech rocket launched from its wing and named for the flying horse Pegasus of Greek mythology.

Built by Orbital Sciences Corp. of Fairfax, Va., and Hercules Aerospace Co. of Wilmington, Del., Pegasus is scheduled to blaze across the sky on its high-stakes maiden voyage off the California coast this summer.

If it proves successful, the cost of launching payloads of 600 pounds into a "useful" Earth orbit will be $6 million, about half the price and twice the capacity of the ground-based Scout rocket, said David Rossi, director of business development for OSI.

"We've dropped the minimum amount you would have to spend to get into orbit," Rossi said in a recent interview at the company's corporate headquarters outside the nation's capital.

The three-stage, solid-fuel Pegasus, which cost $40 million to develop, will eliminate the need for traditional ground-fired boosters and costly launch pads, while delivering payloads into polar or equatorial orbits.

The sleek black rocket, which will be strapped beneath the B-52's right wing, resembles a giant torpedo with a broad delta wing and tall fins. It measures 49 feet in length, with a diameter of 50 inches and a wingspan of 22 feet.

The rocket's wing and fins, constructed of lightweight graphite composite, are being made by Burt Rutan, creator of the Voyager aircraft.
