Three teens held for arraignment

SANFORD — Three teens, including a 14-year-old Sanford boy, are being held at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center in connection with the Tuesday night murder of Wayne Sanzo, the national president of the Warlock's Motorcycle Club.
Yesterday, the three, including two 15-year-old Altamonte Springs girls, were ordered by Judge Leonard Wood to be held in custody until their arraignment on Sept. 19.

Florida unemployment soars

TALLAHASSEE — Unemployment in Florida swelled to 8.1 percent — its highest level in more than eight years — as another 24,000 people joined the state's jobless ranks in August.

The nation's unemployment rate remained at 6.8 percent in August as new hiring failed to post a large enough gain to make a marked improvement in the labor market, the government reported today.

In nearly all sectors the state's unemployment, the numbers took another gloomy turn. The only exceptions were in local government and health care fields, said Department of Labor spokeswoman Rebecca Rust.

Florida's rate trailed only Massachusetts (9.2 percent) and Michigan (9.1 percent) among the nation's most populous 11 states. North Carolina reported a 6.9 percent unemployment last month, the best figure among the largest states.

Power lines to be put out of sight as Lake Mary OKs $5 million bond issue

LAKE MARY — Although some residents voiced opposition last night to the cost of burying power lines along Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary City Commissioners voted to float a $5 million bond to finance the undergrounding and other city projects.

A portion of the revenue bond will be financed by a stormwater utility tax allowing for paving and drainage in portions of the city that currently flood during heavy rainstorms. If the commission had chosen not to adopt the stormwater tax, the bond would have been authorized at $3 million.

The tax will cost Lake Mary residents about $3 per month. Paving of streets will occur only if a majority of residents in the area request paving and agree to incur part of the cost.

The handful of residents who spoke were in favor of the bond, paving and drainage and earmarking funds for city parks and a sports complex. Most, including Susan Schweickert, opposed the $1.3 million cost of burying power lines along Lake Mary Boulevard.

"There's life off Lake Mary Boulevard. We need the bond, including paving and drainage. My kids walk along muddy streets when it rains and along streets so thick with dust when it's dry. Nobody will fight you about the stormwater tax. It wouldn't do any good anyway," she said.

Commercial assessments even

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — Property assessments on older residences in Seminole County may have doubled in many instances, but commercial property within the county was valued the same or less than last year, Laurie Graham, supervisor of the commercial department in the Seminole County Property Appraiser's office said.

"Almost all residents went up. There is still a demand for residences. People will still acquire the home they want," she explained. "But because of the sluggish economy, there is a glut of office space. Commercial appraisals drop when income potential is lowered." Graham said the recent dramatic rise in assessed residential property value followed Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber's three year study to bring appraisals in line with real market value. Commercial property is appraised using an income approach, which is the potential income a property can generate determined by a market study of rents, vacancies and expenses.

"Demand for businesses is not there because of the economy. We've found residential property, especially in the historic district in Sanford, was selling for three or four times more than what it was on the tax rolls for," Graham said. "But a business now is risky. We consider the economy, supply and demand for tenants and for office space when we conduct our appraisals."

Sanford City Commissioner Lon Howell, who joined Suber in a people's forum last week and whose district was one of the hardest hit by reassessment, said he was angry Suber's office uses the income approach for businesses but does not consider the sluggish economy when assessing home values that will raise some residents' taxes over 500 percent. He cited about 35 commercial properties he had studied in the downtown area, most valued the same as last year, with some dropping in value.

Grand jury to hear tax objections

Associated Press

ORLANDO — A state lawmaker is taking his objections to the present system of property appraisals before grand juries in two counties.

State Rep. Bob Starks, R-Maitland, is getting a chance to present his case to panels meeting in the next few weeks in Orange and Seminole counties, where some property owners have seen their taxes increase two or three times from last year.

Starks is also the sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment that would limit hikes in property evaluations to a maximum of 3 percent a year.

But the state Revenue Department has turned down his request to review appraisal methods in the two Central Florida counties.

State Revenue Director Tom Herndon wrote Stark, saying his office won't do a special audit because it already approved preliminary 1991 tax rolls for both counties and will review final tax rolls in November.

But he said he would hold a hearing in the Orlando area soon to hear property owners' concerns.

"I am very concerned about the inequities that may exist in the tax rolls of the state," wrote Herndon, whose office oversees county appraisers.

The constitutional proposal was praised by Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber during a County chamber honors a Lake Mary business

'Up and Comer' shows progress

By J. MARK BARFIELD

LAKE MARY — A local business was honored today at the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Industry awards banquet.

Del Air Heating and Air Conditioning and Refrigeration, located at 109 Commerce St., was issued the "Up and Comer" award for the business that has shown the most progress.

The heating and air conditioning company has grown from "me, my wife Diane and two or three other guys" in 1983 to a $14.5 million a year business with 124 employees, said owner Bob Dello Russo, 41. Begun in Longwood, the company moved to their present Lake Mary headquarters in 1988. Dello Russo said,

"We try to maintain the best service you can get." Dello Russo said of the company's success. "We go out of our way to make sure the customer is taken care of."

Dello Russo said he is active with the American Cancer Society, sponsoring an annual golf tournament at Sweetwater Country Club that raises $50,000 a year for the organization. He is also active in Longwood Rotary and is a Paul Harris Fellow. He is also an active sponsor of programs at Lake Mary Y.M.C.A.

The chamber's "Industry of the Year" was awarded to Florida Hospital. The "Industry to Watch" was awarded to Goodings Supermarkets. The "Support to Industry" award was issued to United Parcel Service.

The awards were presented at the chamber's annual Industry Awards luncheon at the Altamonte Springs Hilton.

Ruth Smith, the chamber's vice president of Economic Development, said the awards are presented according to growth and community involvement. The Industry of the Year winner will be nominated in

Claudette approaches hurricane strength

MIAMI — Tropical Storm Claudette, with top winds of 70 mph, was still growing deep in the Atlantic Ocean and was expected to reach hurricane strength later today, the National Hurricane Center said.

"It's still a tropical storm, but it looks like it'll be upgraded sometime today to a hurricane — though it hasn't yet," Gary Schneider, a forecaster at the center in suburban Coral Gables said early this morning.

A tropical storm becomes a hurricane once its top sustained winds reach 74 miles per hour.

But Schneider said there would be no threat to land for several days if the storm held its current course and forward speed.

"No not right now, nor for a while. It's moving quite slowly," he said. "Certainly it'll be dangerous to any boaters in the area."

At 6 a.m. EDT, the storm's center was located near 26.0 north latitude and 58.5 west longitude, or about 575 miles southeast of Bermuda. It was heading west at about 8 mph.

Forecasters said the system was expected to continue on that course at that forward speed for the next 24 hours.

Arguments heard in retirement alimony

TALLAHASSEE — Ex-spouses paying alimony could be turned into indentured servants if the state Supreme Court refuses to consider retirement a good enough reason to lower payments, one attorney argued.

But another lawyer argued that ex-spouses receiving payments — many of them traditional wives — could be turned into an underclass if the alimony they depended on could be changed just because their former spouse wanted to retire.

The case stemmed from a request sought three years ago by Maurice Pimm, a longtime Tampa resident who now lives in Birmingham, Ala.

The Pimms had been married for 29 years when they split up in 1975. They had three children and a four-bedroom house. He was a partner in a civil engineering and land surveying business. She was a traditional housewife.

Pimm had an $845 monthly alimony payment at the time he requested a modification because of his desire to retire; his Social Security check was going to be $822.

Court overturns 2 death sentences

TALLAHASSEE — Execution is too harsh a punishment for a Brevard County man who shot his 19-year-old daughter as she slept in order to spite his estranged wife, the state Supreme Court said.

A death sentence is "disproportionate to other sentences imposed where the murders resulted from domestic dispute," the court said in an unsigned 6-0 ruling that vacated the original sentence and ordered a life prison term.

In other death cases Thursday, Florida's high court overturned a second sentence and upheld a third.

Evans charged in prostitute's death

FORT LAUDERDALE — A convicted rapist from Texas who says he killed more than 70 people has had trouble proving some of his claims, but Florida police say they're sure he murdered a prostitute here in 1985.

Donald Leroy Evans was charged Thursday with first-degree murder in the death of Ira Jean Smith, 38. Her body, wrapped in a blanket, was found in a motel closet, said Fort Lauderdale police spokesman Ott Cefkin.

"He knew things about the crime scene that only the killer would know," Cefkin said. "We're satisfied that ... he was there and he did kill her."

Detective Richard Hoffman said an arrest warrant issued Thursday was based on physical evidence and information Evans gave investigators in Gulfport, Miss., where he is being held.

Until the Florida warrant, Evans had only been charged in Mississippi with the murder of a homeless girl. He led authorities on a fruitless search last week for the bodies of three women he claimed he killed in Arizona in 1985.

Tax shortfall estimated at $21 million

TALLAHASSEE — The latest tax collection projections for the first two months of Florida's fiscal year indicate a shortfall of $82 million in the $29 billion state budget.

The primary weakness in August was an $11 million drop in the sales tax and a reduction in the corporate profits tax, said Ed Montanaro, the Legislature's chief economist. The documentary stamp tax on real estate transactions was a smaller problem.

"It doesn't look good right now," Gov. Lawton Chiles said Thursday. "It looks like the numbers are definitely down."

All together, tax collections in August were off $21 million from forecasts, Montanaro said. That projection comes after a $61 million shortfall for July for the fiscal 1991-92 budget, which took effect July 1.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Water District spending audited

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Private airplanes, cars, lobbyists and public relations are among the millions of dollars in expenditures planned next year by Florida's water management districts, a new audit shows.

"What we're trying to do is point out some areas that may need to be looked at," said Kelly Sisario, Inspector General of the Department of Environmental Regulation. "We felt we were being very fair. It wasn't bashing-time on the districts."

The DER audit released Wednesday focused on district expenditures that have been criticized by state lawmakers and a 1990 grand jury in Putnam County.

Sen. Larry Plummer, D-South Miami, was highly critical of the South Florida Water Management District's plans to spend $1.02 million next year on its helicopters and airplane, which are used by governing board members.

"It's more proof that they are accountable to no one," said Plummer, vice chairman of the Senate Natural Resources Committee.

Officials with the five water districts said they need planes and vehicles to cover their regions, which can include as many as 16 counties. They said the $6.4 million the districts spend on public relations and environmental education also is necessary to encourage conservation and inform the public about water restrictions.

"Overall, I'm pleased with the audit. I think it's good DER is doing this," said Allen F. Milledge, chairman of the South Florida district.

Last spring, state lawmakers passed a law requiring DER to review the water districts' proposed $460 million budgets for the upcoming year in order to make those agencies more accountable.

Other findings of the DER audit:

•The Northwest Florida Water Management District has not purchased any land since 1985 under the state's Save Our Rivers program, even though it has $21 million in state money available to buy environmentally sensitive areas.

•The South Florida water district plans to spend $100,000 for private lobbyists and the St. Johns River water district plans to spend $45,000. The other three districts say they will use their own personnel.

•The Southwest Florida water district budgeted more than $14 million for grants and cooperative spending agreements. Most of the money is set for waste-water reuse projects, retrofitting programs and other conservation and water-resource projects.

Sisario said one of the surprising findings was that all but one of the districts lease cars for their top executives or pay them a monthly car allowance of as much as $500.

"It's just not something that happens in the state," she said. "We get paid 20 cents a mile and you drive your own car home. That's even for the department secretaries."

Peter Hubbell, executive director of the Southwest Florida Water Management District, said the cars used by top officials factored in as part of their salary. The Southwest district leases Ford Crown Victoria sedans for seven executives.

Attire makes how much difference?

GAINESVILLE — Clothes may make the man, but a woman's attire neither enhances nor detracts from her credibility, a University of Florida study shows.

Erika Engstrom, a UF communications researcher, still recommends conservative clothing for work, despite the findings of her study for her doctoral dissertation released Thursday.

"We found that when men were dressed in suits, people regarded them lower in character than when they were dressed in jeans," Ms. Engstrom said.

Her study found that older people seemed to distrust men dressed in suits because they associate conservative attire with politics and bureaucracy, while men dressed in jeans received higher audience ratings for honesty, trustworthiness and character.

Prior to her study, Ms. Engstrom predicted that female credibility ratings would be lower when dressed casually — for example, in slacks and a knit top — rather than conservatively in a dark suit.

But she found women were rated equally regardless of how they dressed.

AIDS patient plans an address to congress

Associated Press

FORT PIERCE — Kimberly Bergalis, who only weeks ago was too weak to mumble sounds or sit up, now plans to travel to Washington to speak to Congress in favor of an AIDS-prevention bill that carries her name.

"She feels she owes it to the public," her father, George Bergalis, said Thursday. "Kim doesn't want to let them down."

Bergalis, 23, is one of five patients infected with the AIDS virus by David Acer, a Stuart dentist who died of AIDS-related cancer last September.

The five, whose virus is a genetic match for that carried by Acer, are the only known cases in the nation of a health-care provider transmitting the disease to patients.

Bergalis wants to speak Thursday before a congressional hearing considering the Kimberly Bergalis Patient and Health Providers' Protection Act. Under the bill, doctors and patients involved in invasive procedures would have to be tested for HIV, the virus that carries AIDS.

It also would require that states inform patients of the identity of infected health providers.

Bergalis, who remains weak and whose speech is slurred, will take the train Wednesday with her mother, while her father and two sisters fly to Washington. They might use a wheelchair to bring her into the hearing room.

"If necessary, I'll carry her," George Bergalis said. "Nobody in their wildest dreams would have thought she could do this."

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta concluded from pioneering tests that there was a 99.4 percent probability that Bergalis and four fellow patients were infected by Acer.

Medical researchers blame Acer's sloppy equipment sterilization practices for the transmission of the disease.

Bergalis, a University of Florida graduate, was diagnosed with AIDS in 1989, two years after Acer extracted her molars. Her attorney has described her as near death.

POLICE BRIEFS

Teen presses rape accusation

A 15-year-old Geneva girl reported to Seminole County deputies Wednesday she was sexually assaulted in June by an 18-year-old neighbor.

The girl told deputies she reported the incident to the school resource officer assigned to Jackson Heights Middle School, but nothing ever came of the report. She reported her assailant continued to harass her throughout the summer.

The girl said she was walking home along the abandoned railroad bed near her home on June 8 when the man grabbed her and kissed her breasts, reports state. When she tried to pull away, the man pulled down her shorts and fondled her, she told deputies. The girl said the man later telephoned her and told her if she told anyone, the assault would continue.

No arrests have been made.

Three jailed in cocaine sting

Three Sanford men were arrested Wednesday night by Sanford Special Investigations Unit agents in a sting into street-level cocaine sales.

Michael Lewis Jones, 25, 62 Seminole Gardens, was charged with possession and sale of cocaine after an agent reported he bought cocaine from Jones for $20 on West 13th Street near Mangoustine Avenue.

Michael A. Burke, 21, 24 William Clark Court, and Willie Lewis Williams, 32, 70 Castle Brewer Court, were also arrested on West 13th St. An agent reported he purchased cocaine from Williams. The agent reported he saw Williams obtain the drug from Burke. Williams and Burke were charged with possession and sale of cocaine. Burke was also charged with resisting arrest after agents reported he tried to flee.

Lewd behavior charged

A Lake Mary man and two Orlando men were charged with offering to commit lewd acts with undercover City County Investigative Bureau agents at the Interstate 4 rest stops near Longwood Wednesday.

Woodrow Lamar Meridith, 27, was charged with offering to perform a lewd act and with possession of marijuana. Daniel John Kelly, 28, and Nicholas James Lahrts, 38, both of Orlando, were also charged with offering to perform lewd acts with agents.

Inmate charged with attack on guard

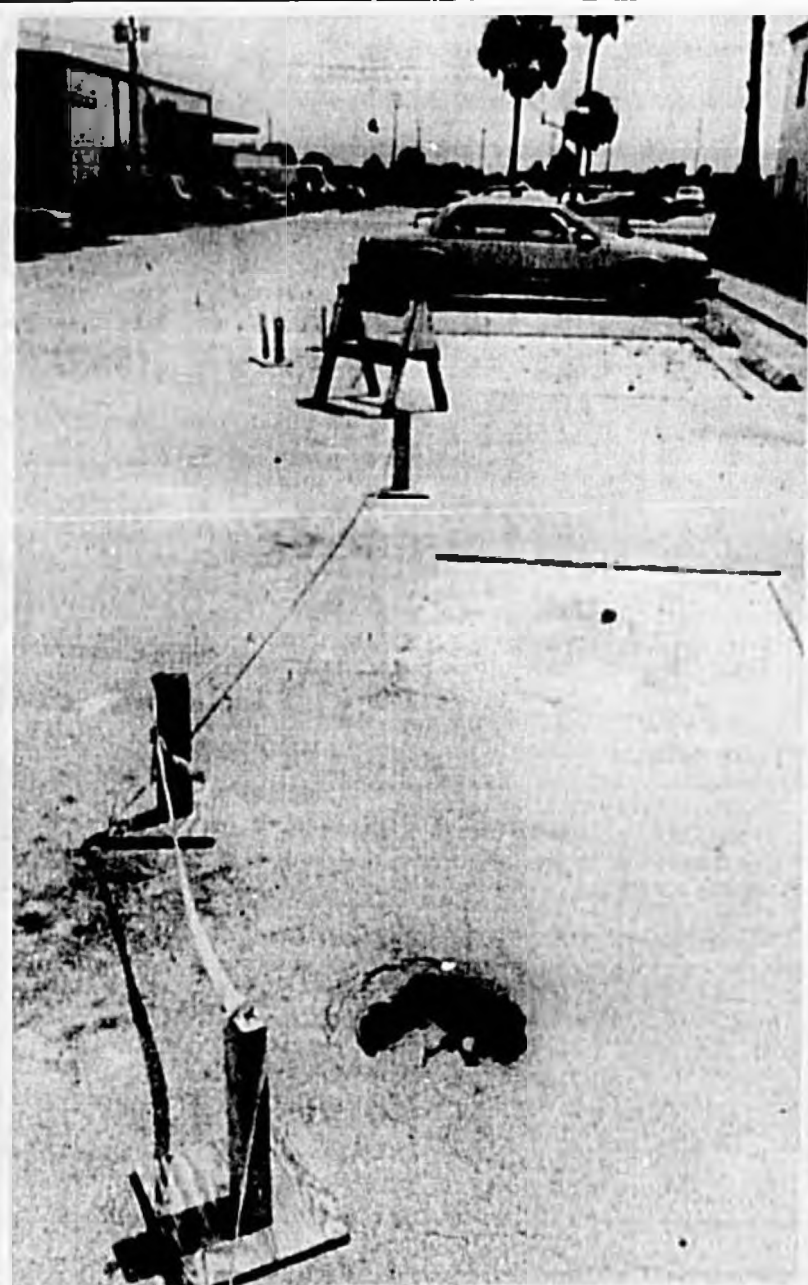

An inmate at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility was charged with battery on a correctional officer Wednesday.

Officer Charles Henderson told deputies he ordered Rodney Wayne Burnett, 26, 1240 Mullet Lake Park Road, Geneva, to put on his shirt while he was in the visiting room. Henderson reported Burnett refused and hit him in the face when he was removed.

Burglary charged

Jerome Johnson, 40, 87 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, was charged with a June burglary Wednesday.

According to the arrest affidavit, Johnson broke into 2006 W. Second St. on June 8 and took $300 worth of pipes. He was charged with burglary and petit theft.

County's land blueprint for future Monday focus

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County will adopt their comprehensive development blueprint for the future Monday night.

For the most part, the plan resembles the plan sent to state planners for review earlier this year with some significant changes to housing densities in the rural areas of the county and for not offering adequate protection to natural lands. The state must "certify" the plan to be acceptable within 60 days. If the county doesn't gain state approval, revenues may be withheld or fines can be imposed.

area, which is opposed by Geneva residents. One home per five acres will be allowed in the greater Geneva area.

In response to the state's criticism of natural lands protection, the county will increase its wetlands regulation from a minimum of five-acre areas to half-acre wetlands. Also, the county will also be less likely to automatically allow destruction of 10 percent of the wetlands on a development site if they are considered to be significant in some way.

The county now routinely allows developers to destroy 10 percent of all wetlands in their projects.

The public hearing is scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday in the commission chambers of the Seminole County Services Building on East First Street.

Plan reviewers with the Florida Department of Community Affairs chastised the county for allowing too much development in the rural eastern portion of the county. The county has allowed an average of one home per acre for several years. DCA reviewers suggested no more than one home for every 10 acres in many rural areas and even one home for each 20 acres in some timberland sections.

The county plan includes calls for one-home per 10 acres throughout much of south-eastern section of the county and the Black Hammock area. Although the plan does allow for four homes per acre densities in the central Geneva and Chuluota

Police seek son in Puerto Rican leader's death

KISSIMMEE — Investigators are seeking the son of a prominent member of Orlando's Puerto Rican community for questioning in the father's death.

Miguel Lopez Jr. was being sought Thursday in the Louisville, Ky., area, police officials there said.

The charred body of Miguel A. Lopez, 49, a tax accountant and past president of the Puerto Rican Chamber of Commerce in Orlando, was found beneath a secluded railroad trestle in Osceola County last week.

The Osceola sheriff's office disclosed the identification of the body Wednesday after keeping it secret while gathering evidence. They refused to reveal any details about the slaying or their investigation.

Goldsboro on track as year-round school

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — If Bob O'Dell gets some help, year-round education could be a reality for all Seminole County elementary and middle school students by the 1994-95 school year.

Even if he does not, Goldsboro Elementary School will be one of the schools which will go year-round in the 1992-93 academic year.

O'Dell, who is the coordinator of the district's modified school calendar (year-round education) program, is presently serving as the acting director of curriculum and instructional services.

O'Dell has asked the board, which said it is in a hurry to get the year-round education program on line, to approve the hiring of a resource teacher to handle the day-to-day operations of the elementary level operations.

"My figures show that would cost the district about $30,000 with salary and benefits," O'Dell said, noting that the savings created by not having to build a new school to ease overcrowding could be "in the millions."

Using school facilities year-round increases the capacity of a school by about 20 to 25 percent, according to O'Dell. Putting four or five schools on the year-round system would make the construction of a new school unnecessary.

With assistance, O'Dell reports that he could have seven, rather than three schools on-line this summer.

One of the goals set before O'Dell by the school board is to have a system of "cluster schools" in place on the year-round program by the 1993-94 school year.

Elementary schools and the middle schools into which they flow would become year-round facilities at the same time.

People's purge

After 73 years of iron rule, the Communist Party of the Soviet Union lost its moral and political authority almost overnight. The gathering gusts of democracy that repulsed the coup by communist hard-liners now threaten to sweep the party from positions of power throughout Soviet society.

The stunning extent to which power abruptly shifted to the people was illustrated by Mikhail Gorbachev's humbling appearance recently before the democratically elected parliament of the Russian Federation. More than anything else, the visit by the general secretary of the Communist Party was intended to pay necessary homage to the ascendant forces of democratic rule allied under Boris Yeltsin, the elected leader of the Russian republic.

Gorbachev's appearance alongside Yeltsin marked the start of a sweeping purge of the Communist Party from key institutions.

In response to Yeltsin's demands, the party was banned from the KGB, the army and the national police. In addition, Yeltsin issued an executive decree suspending the activities of the Communist Party of the Russian republic as thousands of protesters blockaded the party's headquarters in Moscow. Gorbachev warned against a destructive witch hunt, but evidence that party leaders supported the failed coup could lead to the arrests of scores of once-privileged communist officials.

The anti-communist fervor unleashed by the takeover attempt erupted in the streets when thousands gathered to topple the towering statue of Felix Dzerzhinsky from its pedestal in front of KGB headquarters. Dzerzhinsky founded the dreaded secret police in the early days of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. During the intervening years, the KGB ruthlessly enforced the party's will over the people.

The democratic revolution gathered momentum amid tumultuous developments and this week the central government was virtually dissolved by Gorbachev and Yeltsin. What at first was an impromptu power-sharing arrangement between the Kremlin leader and the president of Russia has been forged into a broader transfer of power from the center to the republics, while still maintaining the union.

Where is SDI when we need it?

The breakup of the Soviet Union into a series of separate sovereign republics presents the Pentagon with one obvious problem: What is happening, and what may happen, to the Soviet Union's 30,000 nuclear-tipped ballistic missiles?

According to reports, about 25,000 of them are physically within the territory of the huge Russian Republic headed by Boris Yeltsin. Another 3,000 are in the Ukraine, some 1,500 are based in Kazakhstan, and the balance are scattered among Byelorussia, the Baltic states and elsewhere. Many of them are in underground silos, aimed with computer precision at targets in the West (and no doubt also the Far East).

As far as is known, the Soviet system for controlling these weapons is similar to our own: authority to fire one requires the approval of a series of officials, going up through the chain of command to the defense minister and finally the president of the Soviet Union. Gorbachev, like Bush, is accompanied everywhere by a briefcase containing certain computer codes that he must activate to transmit the order to fire a missile. (It was this briefcase that was taken from him during the coup, and returned afterward.)

American officials, including President Bush and NSC Director Scowcroft, have been at great pains to assure the American people that at no time, either during the three-day coup or otherwise, have American surveillance satellites or our other intelligence facilities detected the slightest indication that the Soviet missile force was being readied for action of any sort.

So there are no rational grounds for the hysteria that any mention of nuclear missiles automatically triggers in some of our more loosely wrapped citizens. At the same time, 30,000 is an awful lot of missiles, and recent events have forcibly reminded us just how fast a nation's political leadership (and therefore the Briefcase) can change hands.

Similar thoughts seem to have occurred to those currently in control in Russia and the other republics involved. President Yeltsin has suggested that Russia would be willing to accept any missiles currently located elsewhere, and some of the other leaders (e.g. Mr. Kravchuk of the Ukraine) have already indicated that that would be fine with them.

But while that might to some degree localize the problem, it would hardly eliminate it. Nor does it suggest what the United States ought to be doing about the 15 to 20 other nations, including some very ugly customers in the Third World, that are expected to have the ability to construct nuclear weapons by the end of the century.

Here is where a system of space-based satellites, of the relatively inexpensive Brilliant Pebbles design, would be of incalculable value. Circling the earth, on the alert for the launching of any missile anywhere and capable of destroying it long before it can reach its target, such weapons are ideally suited to the kind of world in which we seem doomed to live for the foreseeable future.

But, as you might expect, Congress has stubbornly whittled away at every administration request for money to finance an effective SDI system. For several years, the cuts have been excused on the ground that the Soviet Union, under Gorbachev, was plainly becoming less of a threat every day.

There are no rational grounds for the hysteria.

Don't forget Amerigo Vespucci

WASHINGTON — Christopher Columbus, wherever he is, must wonder if it was all worth it. As the hemisphere gets ready to commemorate the quincentenary of his first voyage to this part of the planet, in 1492, latter-day critics are accusing the Genoan sailor of having set in motion the liquidation of the aboriginals and the more or less permanent ruination of the neighborhood.

And yet he's gotten off rather easy in the matter of New World grumping. Compared to one of his countrymen and fellow travelers, anyway, fussy historians and commentators have been far more ready to condemn Amerigo Vespucci, a gentleman who gave not only his time and energy to the Americas, but his name as well.

Don't be surprised if you only vaguely recall Mr. Vespucci. The schoolbooks have likewise forgotten him, in general. He was the Italian merchant-explorer who followed Columbus here, searching for a trade route to Asia. His reworked name was casually attached to the place when new maps of the Earth were constructed.

Ralph Waldo Emerson was one of many who have thought the attachment was incomprehensibly wrong. The 19th-century essayist called Vespucci a mere "pickle dealer," a lying and dishonest one at that. Emerson wrote that it was an odd shame that half of the globe, "broad America," was baptized with "the name of a thief."

Historians before and since have agreed. As have many editorialists, encyclopedists and even Vespucci biographers. The weight of censure has been so heavy that the Italian has been largely relegated to the historic ash heap, and until recently there has not even been a statue of the man in the United States.

The censure began, as it happened, in the wake of the Columbus journeys. The admiral found the West Indies, but he failed to chart a new route to the Orient. And so, Vespucci hoped to finish the job. Like Columbus, he sailed first on behalf of Spain (and later Portugal); also like Columbus, he reportedly made four trips.

Vespucci claimed he went much farther than his countryman, however. He said he bumped into the coast of South America in 1497, a year before Columbus, and eventually sailed hundreds of leagues along the shore. He was to record his observations in letters to patrons and friends.

As it turned out, Vespucci did not find a route to Asia. He discovered something more profound instead: Columbus had not reached India, as he had reckoned. Vespucci realized that South America was too far south to be Oriental, thus it was a continent by itself, and — after Europe, Africa and Asia — a "fourth part of the world."

The judgment was greeted in Europe with as much or more fascination than the Columbus claims. And it particularly impressed a geographer named Martin Waldseemüller. He thereafter drew a new map of the world, naming the land mass Ameriga (changing Amerigo's name to a feminine ending).

Then the post-Columbian criticism started. The admiral had just died, mostly without lasting honors, and people began to wonder if he had been cheated by a less notable if more clever colleague. Even Waldseemüller had second thoughts, albeit too late.

The critics said Vespucci lied about being first to South America, boasted excessively about the lengths of the other voyages, and, in fact, recorded geographic information that could have been taken from the Columbus logs.

The conclusion, in other words, was that Vespucci was at best a minor figure in the annals of the New World. And the perpetuation of his name is an accidental irony. American children may be taught today that the determined C. Columbus was a thoroughly mixed blessing, but they may not be told about Vespucci at all.

That bothers some in this hemisphere. And a retired California radiologist is among them. Dr. Putnam Kennedy says he found out a few years ago that there wasn't so much as a statue erected to Vespucci.

Kennedy and the Kiwanis raised $31,000 to commission three bronze busts of Vespucci. One of the statues was placed in the library at Glendale Community College, near Los Angeles; one was given to the Colombian Academy of History in Bogota, Colombia; and the third is now in a park in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. And that's it.

He shouldn't just be known as the guy who infringed on Columbus.

Don't mess with Dingell's friends

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., routinely bullies bureaucrats and House colleagues, but this summer he's got a U.S. senator in his cross-hairs.

His target is Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., who had the temerity to advocate legislation stomping on Big John's sacred cow: the auto industry. Bryan's bill would require Detroit to build cars that get better gas mileage.

Dingell went nuclear in this bitter tit-for-tat with a direct hit on Nevada. He is pushing legislation that will strip Nevada of having any voice in whether Yucca Mountain will serve as the nation's nuclear junkyard.

Congressional sources told our associate Jim Lynch that the bill is serving, in part, as a retaliatory strike, a way of serving notice that Dingell, a House superpower, will not tolerate missiles lobbed in the direction of Detroit.

Under Dingell's direction, his powerful Energy and Commerce staff drafted the Yucca Mountain legislation, then slipped it over to a subcommittee chaired by his friend and fellow auto-industry advocate, Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind. The Yucca legislation will get tacked on to a House energy bill.

Nevada's congressional delegation is still reeling from the attack, alleging that it's punitive and vindictive. Nevada legislators find it even more odious than a measure proposed earlier by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La. The Dingell-backed bill takes the tough talk one step further by insisting that Nevada also not be allowed to block the creation of a temporary nuclear dump site while scientists study the suitability of a permanent site.

The Yucca Mountain controversy has created major fallout in Nevada. The 1987 legislation that narrowed the disposal site prospects to Yucca Mountain alone is infamous in Nevada as the "Screw Nevada" bill. Bryan won election to the Senate on the coattails of this combustible political issue, after his predecessor's ineffectiveness in blocking the bill became a campaign cornerstone.

Nevada has balked at signing the permits the government needs to conduct the multibillion dollar tests that will determine whether the site can safely store radioactive waste for 10,000 years. The House bill states as fact that Nevada has delayed the testing process by more than three years. That contention is disputed by a recent General Accounting Office report that places most of the blame on Department of Energy ineptitude. DOE has little to show for the $500 million already spent on research in Nevada.

The combatants, Bryan and Dingell, held a summit earlier this year to discuss the offending Corporate Average Fuel Economy legislation. Bryan doesn't want Las Vegas turned into another Los Angeles. He has made global warming and reducing reliance on foreign oil imports a top priority.

Bryan has been careful not to overreach with Dingell. He understands Dingell can block any bill that angers the automakers, and has assailed the industry while conspicuously avoiding Dingell.

Despite efforts not to personalize the battle, Dingell is treating the matter like an attack on his sovereignty, specifically ordering his staff to write tough Yucca Mountain legislation that amounts to a hit on his miamannered colleague.

Dingell recently told the nuclear trade press that the siting of a "high-level repository for nuclear waste ... has greatly elevated in importance from my viewpoint in light of the great interest shown by the junior senator from Nevada in increasing CAPE standards."

The bill takes the tough talk one step further.

Amendment agreement at hand

By LACY BOWEN
Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary City Attorney Ned Julian last night said the city is nearing agreement through counsel with a group of citizens who have requested an amendment to the city's charter.

The amendment, which states the city cannot go into debt without the approval of the voters, was not deemed a problem, Julian said, but the language was a problem.

"The concern the commission has had is with the language of the the charter amendment. It creates problems for the commission. It's a bad piece of law," Julian said.

A group of citizens concerned with city spending drafted the amendment, which stipulates the city may not enter into any long term debt relationship without referendum approval. It does allow for short term loans to the city providing the loans are paid back within the budget year.

Citizens have retained attorney Steve Hornifer to iron out the language of the amendment with Julian.

"I've spoken to defendants' counsel and he seems agreeable. I haven't received a formal reply, but if they approve this (the changes) they'll have a law that's clean, clean, clean, not vague or ambiguous," Julian said.

Commissioner Paul Tremel said the proposed language changes were clearer to him.

"I hope we can all step back and look at this. I certainly will agree to this language. I hope the proponents of the amendment see it was ambiguous," he said.

Bill Greene, a Lake Mary citizen who assisted in composing the original amendment, said he was unsure why commissioners had a problem with wording because the amendment was patterned after another city's.

"We sat down and copied Longwood's word for word," he said.

Resident Earl Fox said he hoped the city and residents could iron out their differences without the great expense of going to court.

"Let's get the lawyers out of it. I'd rather we fight it on our own turf. I want you people to get together and solve it," he said.

Julian said if the citizens, through counsel did not accept the amended wording, a court battle would follow.

"We would engage in a lawsuit," Julian said.

Amendment proponent Sheila Sawyer said involved citizens have not spoken to their attorney yet because he is on vacation.

Susan Schweickert addresses the Lake Mary City Commission, expressing her approval of the proposed revenue bond and stressing the city's need for paving and drainage. City Finance Director Robert Lockridge listens.

Commissioner David Meador had proposed removing the cost of undergrounding power cables and allotting the money to the completion of both phases of the proposed sports complex.

"We're not locked into undergrounding. It's not a good economic decision. Better a short engagement than a long unhappy marriage," Meador said.

Commissioner George Duryea agreed with Meador, except he felt the bond should be dropped to $3, guaranteeing the completion of the first phase of the sports complex. Phase I of the complex will cost the city $650,000. The completed complex will cost $2.5 million.

"I personally think undergrounding is like having a boat. You're throwing money into the ground instead of into the water," Duryea said.

Tempera flared briefly when resident Sheila Sawyer pleaded with commissioners to think about committing the city to paying for undergrounding. Sawyer said she feared increased millage rates, after a county employee allegedly told her they would rise to seven mills, and escalating property assessments would drain taxpayers over something they did not really want.

"How will burying power lines benefit the citizens? They want to see something for their tax dollars, like drainage problems solved and city parks. But I know this will be a flat out S-2. It always has been," Sawyer said, referring to Commissioners Tom Mahoney, Paul Tremel and Mayor Randy Morris' support of the bond and undergrounding. "You wouldn't put burying of power lines on the ballot because you know the citizens don't want it. It would fail," she said.

Tremel challenged Sawyer to reveal the county source who suggested millage rate in Lake Mary would escalate to seven mills in the future.

"I wasn't aware the county set our millage rate," Tremel said. Lake Mary currently charges 3.8991 mills.

"Some unnamed source said seven mills. That's insane," Morris said.

Commissioners voted to approve the $5 million bond, including the undergrounding and $2.3 million for paving and drainage. The vote was 3-2: Morris, Mahoney and Tremel in favor and Duryea and Meador opposed.

millage rate. It's the same this year as last. Taxes would also remain the same if assessment did. If your assessment doubled your taxes will skyrocket," Howell said.

Kelley had said if the county never again raised taxes, it wouldn't stop homeowners' tax rates from climbing if their property is appraised at a higher value.

Howell has accused Suber of job negligence, not keeping pace with assessments as values escalated over the years. He property values across Florida are too low and inconsistent.

Suber told the Wednesday night crowd in Winter Springs that property owners need to take their fight to local governments and other agencies that hold the power to tax.

"The property appraiser... has nothing to do with taxes," Suber said, adding that he increased assessments this year after the 1989 study found many property values were too low. "We're doing what we're supposed to be doing for an equitable tax roll," he said.

Lake Mary sets 1992 mill rate

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary City Commissioners last night approved millage rate for fiscal year 1992. The rate remains the same as last year, 3.8991 and is used to calculate ad valorem taxes when applied to property.

The 3.8991 mills are coupled with property assessment to figure taxes paid to the city. If a resident's property assessment is identical to last year's, city taxes will not rise.

State law requires that assessments reflect what a home would sell for on the open market.

Mayor Randy Morris said Lake Mary currently maintains the second lowest millage rate in Seminole County. Only Winter Springs is lower. "We're proud of that with the explosive growth we've been experiencing. We'll lay over $1 million in sewer lines next year, but we're keeping taxes low," Morris said.

"Isn't it funny that the appraisal on the Paulucci Building (201 First St. West) dropped almost $100,000 over last year while the (Suber) doubled appraisals for little old ladies on fixed incomes?" Howell asked.

The property, which contains rented office space, dropped from $335,580 to $276,370 according to Graham.

Graham said by the income approach, the property is fairly valued.

"They have had economic problems. They lost tenants," she said.

Howell, laughing, said he, too, has had economic problems.

"In this recession, I lost a job last year and I don't make as much money as I did last year. Will he lower my assessment because of it?"

Sanford resident Vallie Cox said she was dismayed over commercial versus residential appraisals.

"At the citizens' meeting, Mr. Suber said taxes on businesses are the same as last year because business is slow and it didn't warrant him raising the taxes. If he's going to be heartless to the homeowners, why not be heartless to the businesses," she said.

Suber has contended all along that he does not levy taxes nor does he raise them. His job is to assess property at fair market value. He has said governing bodies such as Mr. Howell and the commission on which he sits are responsible for raising taxes. Graham also suggested taxpayers closely watch elected officials who control tax revenue.

"It is my suggestion that you question how and why they are spending your money. I would vote them out of office if I didn't like the answers I got from elected officials," Graham said.

But Howell said the City of Sanford has been fiscally responsible in holding the line on taxes. He said millage rates this year is identical to last year.

"That means if your property, commercial or residential, is appraised at $100,000 with a millage rate of 6.83 you pay the city $680. The same as last year. But if your appraisal has doubled, and the millage is the same, which it is, your taxes skyrocket. I still say Mr. Suber's office is sticking it to the residents."

Graham said Suber's appraisers are only doing their job. "Nobody said it would be easy, but it's fair," she said.

Gorbachev victorious, after leaders twist arms

By ALAN COOPERMAN
AP News Analysis

MOSCOW — Mikhail Gorbachev twisted arms and curtailed debate to make the Soviet Union's huge, boisterous and unwieldy parliament give up its authority and transfer power to the republics on Thursday.

Gorbachev's ends may have justified his means. He and the 10 republic leaders who were his behind-the-scenes muscle were trying to prevent civil war and economic catastrophe by turning the country into a loose confederation before it breaks apart entirely.

Gorbachev appeared resurgent. He will remain president, will head the State Council and will name the chairman of an Inter-Republic Economic Council that will coordinate the switch to a free market.

But Gorbachev's choice of parliamentary tactics, and his reliance on the republic leaders to corral support, revealed the extent to which power had already shifted out of the Kremlin — even before his plan was brought to the Congress.

The experience of the four-day Congress of People's Deputies didn't bode well for the country's fragile democracy.

"I will not yield the microphone to anyone from the floor!" Gorbachev barked as lawmakers clamored for more discussion.

"You've had three or four days to discuss it... Either make a decision or not. That's all!" he commanded.

Hard-liners attacked Gorbachev for railroading his proposals through the 2,224-member Congress. But their words sounded hypocritical after political compatriots spilled blood in the coup that briefly unseated the president two weeks ago.

But even some reformist lawmakers were appalled. One of them, Sergei Byeloserdtsev, called Gorbachev a "dictator."

The Congress started out Monday with a proposal by Kazakhstan's articulate and respected president, Nursultan Nazarbayev, on behalf of Gorbachev and 10 republics.

Their idea was to set up an interim system of government — headed by a State Council composed of the president and republic leaders — during the transition to a "free commonwealth" of truly sovereign republics.

When they ran into opposition, their first response was to compromise.

Some Russian lawmakers and representatives of minority groups in the 20 so-called "autonomous" republics objected to details of Gorbachev's proposal, although they supported his general aims.

The Russians pointed out that six conservative Muslim republics — Kirgizia, Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Tadzhikistan and Azerbaijan — would have a majority in Gorbachev's proposed unicameral legislature, which was to consist of 20 delegates from each of the 10 participating republics.

Gorbachev and his allies quickly revised the plan to restore at least the name of the bicameral Supreme Soviet legislature.

New Kremlin grants Baltics independence

By BRIAN FRIEDMAN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — The Kremlin's new leadership today granted independence to Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, ending more than 50 years of Soviet rule. Dozens of nations had already recognized the Baltic states, spurred on their bold course of freedom by last month's failed coup.

The day-old State Council, the executive body composed of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, Russian President Boris Yeltsin and leaders of the other Soviet republics, recognized the Baltics at its first meeting.

A day earlier, the Congress of People's Deputies approved the council's formation as part of a sweeping restructuring of the Soviet government during the nation's post-coup transition to a loose confederation of sovereign states.

Earlier today, Gorbachev and Yeltsin declared in a joint television appearance that more than 70 years of Communist rule was a failure.

"This experiment which was conducted on our soil was a tragedy for our people and it was too bad that it happened on our territory," Yeltsin said.

The re-emergence of the three Baltic nations from under Kremlin rule capped a 1½-year campaign by independence activists that was marked by bloodshed, mass demonstrations and defiance of Soviet economic sanctions.

"Today is a very important day to the new status of our state," said Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis.

"The fact that this decision has been made is a very joyful and positive act in all aspects not only to Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, but also to the Soviet Union itself and the whole world," Landsbergis told reporters in Lithuania's capital, Vilnius.

The three Baltic states, which have 8 million people along the Baltic Sea north of Poland, were forcibly annexed by the Kremlin in 1939-40 under a secret pact signed by the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany.

The Baltic leaders took advantage of the power vacuum created by the failed hard-line coup of Aug. 18-21 to step up demands for international recognition of their independence drive.

IN BRIEF

SOFTBALL

SSC sign-ups this weekend

FIVE POINTS — The Seminole Softball Club will be registering players this Saturday and Sunday for its two fall girls softball leagues.

One league will be a competitive league for high school students while the other will be an instructional league for girls between the ages of 6 and 14.

Both leagues will run for 10 weeks starting on Saturday, Sept. 14.

Registration for the competitive league, which will consist largely of high school teams, costs $40 per player, which includes team jersey, socks and insurance. To be eligible to play, you cannot turn 19 before Sept. 1.

The registration fee for the instructional league is $30 per player, which covers a team T-shirt and insurance. The league will include four divisions: Sparrows (for ages 6, 7 and 8), Starlings (8, 9 and 10), Hawks (11-12) and Eagles (13-14).

Registration will be available from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday and between 1 and 4 p.m. on Sunday at the Seminole Softball Club complex on State Road 419.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

San Jose St. worries Spurrier

GAINESVILLE — Steve Spurrier doesn't sound like a coach whose team is ranked in the Top 10 and is a heavy favorite this weekend.

He says No. 6 Florida will have to play better than most people expect to beat San Jose State.

"They are really an outstanding team. I'm sincere when I say that," Spurrier said, looking ahead to Saturday's 4 p.m. EDT game against the defending Big West Conference champions.

"I'm firmly convinced that they believe they've got an excellent chance to beat us," he added. "So we've got to get ready like we do for every game and get ready to play a good one."

San Jose State was 9-2-1 a year ago in coach Terry Shea's first season. The Spartans are accustomed to playing Top 25-caliber teams on the road and tied eventual Fiesta Bowl champion Louisville and lost to Rose Bowl champion Washington by three points and California by one in 1990.

Shea lost 26 seniors from last year's squad that beat Central Michigan in the California Raisin Bowl, but 23 upperclassmen return to form a solid nucleus for this season.

"I know they lost a lot of players, but their coach is not out there bellyaching that he doesn't have players," Spurrier said. "I heard him say that they're a Top 20 team and they can play with anybody in the country."

Seminoles wary of Tulane

TALLAHASSEE — Top-ranked Florida State doesn't have many breathers on its schedule this season, but Saturday night the Seminoles may get their first one.

Tulane — one of just two teams on the Florida State schedule with a losing record last season — managed only 144 yards and seven first downs a week ago when they dropped their opener 22-3 to Mississippi.

Florida State, on the other hand, has had nine days to prepare for Tulane after rolling up 543 yards and 28 first downs during a 44-28 win over Brigham Young in the Pigskin Classic, Aug. 29.

And the oddsmakers have Florida State a six-touchdown favorite — a line that makes Bowden and his veteran players uncomfortable.

"We can't afford to not be ready for everybody on our schedule," said senior fullback Edgar Bennett.

While Bowden is warning his team against being overconfident, Tulane's coaching staff is trying to persuade its players that this game is the opportunity of a lifetime.

FOOTBALL

Miami appeals to Harris

GREEN BAY, Wis. — The agent for Green Bay Packers' holdout linebacker Tim Harris says his client would like to play in Miami, but a Dolphins' official says a trade is unlikely.

Agent Ulce Payne says Harris would even lower his contract demands if the Packers promised to trade him to the Dolphins.

Reports say Harris has been offered to two teams for a first-round pick. Miami would be a logical choice since the Dolphins need defensive help and just acquired a first-round draft choice from Phoenix for wide receiver Randall Hill.

But Tom Heckert, director of college scouting for the Dolphins, said a trade for Harris doesn't appear likely.

"We're looking for a defensive player, there's no doubt about that," Heckert told the Milwaukee Journal. "We have looked at Tim Harris. The feeling I have right now is it's not going to happen."

Summertime Jamboree set

Lake Mary to host unofficial start of cross country season

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Summertime Cross Country Jamboree will be run tomorrow at Lake Mary High School.

The event is the unofficial start of the 1991 high school cross country season and will be the last chance for high school runners to get in a tune-up race before the regular season starts next week.

Teams are invited to attend but they must enter as club team and not under their high school team names.

Last year 278 runners showed up for the meet, including 234 high school competitors. Because of the large number the boys and girls events were broken into two groups, one for runners 13-15 years of age and the other for runners 16-18.

The overall winner of last year's 19-and-Over race was Dale Leach who edged out a pack of runners that included Eric Peterson, Wayne Drake, Chris Condon and Danny Sage.

The women's winner was Sylvia Valdez over Jessica Toth.

The girls team winners were the Beef People easily over the Miami Police, Tampa Running, the Road Runners and the Mud Runners. The boys winners were the Road Runners with a commanding edge over the Beef People, Smars, Kows and TrailBlazers.

Individually, Christina Olson of Lake Mary edged Michelle Colznt of Rockledge in the girls 13-15; David McGreal of Rockledge finished ahead of Akin Ross of Rockledge and Hunter Kemper of Lake Brantley in the boys 13-15; Christie Masson of North Miami Beach bested Amy Gnette of Lake Brantley and Mickey Palumbo of Lake Howell in the girls 16-18 and John Smith of Rockledge beat Matt Hausman of Cocoa Beach and D.J. Lewis of Lake Mary in the boys 16-18.

This year competition will be offered in seven different age classes — from 8-and-Under, to 50-and-Over — as well as girls' and boys' club team races for athletes between the ages of 13 and 18.

Four races will be run, starting with a one-mile event for 12-and-Under boys and girls at 8 a.m. At 8:30 a.m. the girls' 13-to-18 club teams will run a two-mile race. That will be followed by the boys' 13-to-18 club teams at 9 a.m. Finally, men and women over 19 will compete in a three-mile race scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m.

The awards ceremony will follow at 10 a.m. In the 12-and-Under and 19-and-Over events, the top male and female in each age group will be awarded a medal with the top five in each age group receiving a ribbon.

In the club team races, a championship and runner-up team trophy will be awarded in both the girls' and boys' divisions. The top 15 individuals in each race will receive medals with 16th through 50th getting ribbons.

Registration will begin at 7 a.m. and the fee to enter will be $5.

For more information, call Mike Gibson at 333-2370.

Pigskin preview tonight

From Staff Reports

CASSELBERRY — Seminole County high school football fans will get their first look at the 1991 editions of their local teams tonight as all six teams will be in action in two separate jamborees.

It should be an interesting evening as most schools have to replace key offensive players from last year.

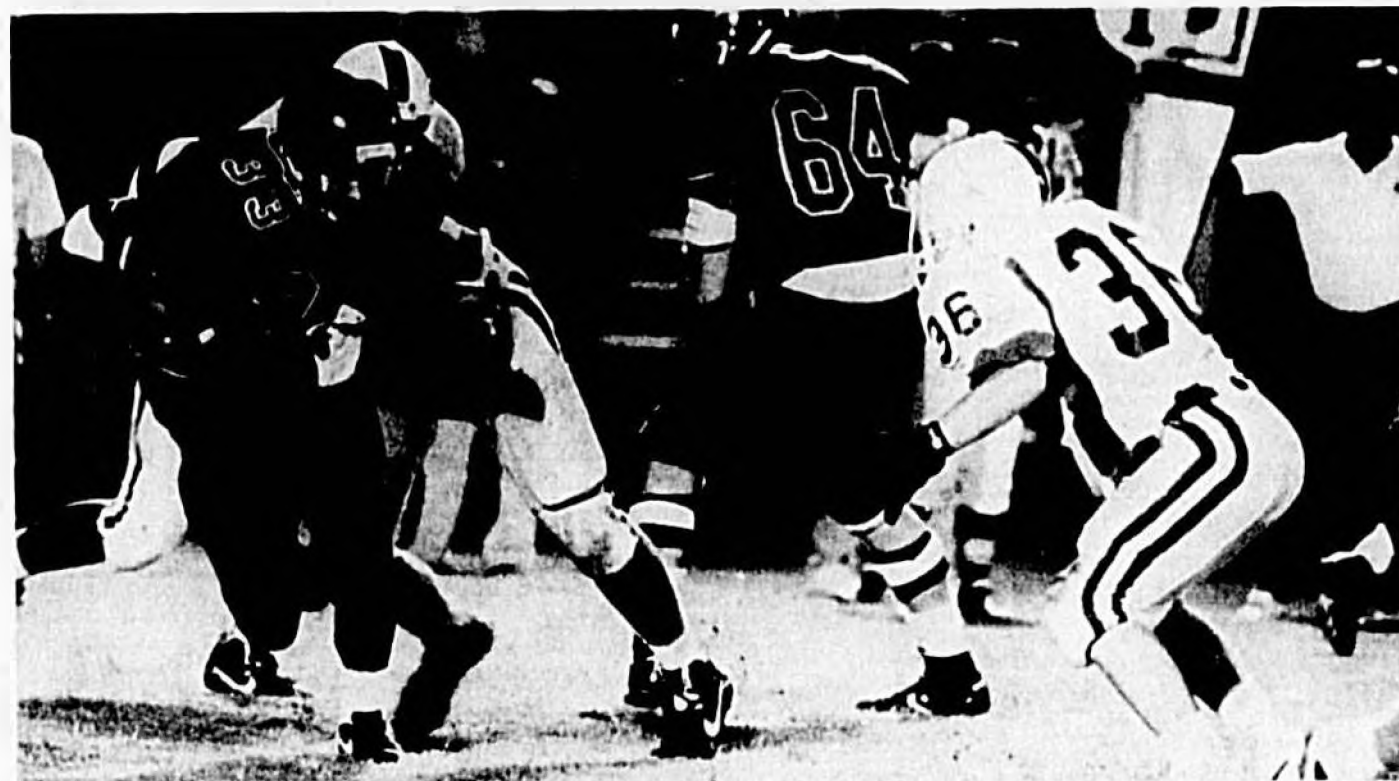

Seminole, Oviedo and Lyman will travel to Silver Spurs Arena for the Kissimmee-Gateway Jamboree and Lake Brantley, Lake Mary and DeLand will join Lake Howell at Richard E. Evans Stadium for the Seminole County Jamboree.

Seminole will play the first of three halves against St. Cloud starting at 6:30 p.m. Oviedo and Lyman will face off in the second half and host Gateway will conclude the night's action against Bishop Moore.

"We just want to take a look at some people, especially on offense," said Seminole coach Emory Blake, who must replace eight offensive starters from last year's district champions. "We're pretty comfortable with our defense."

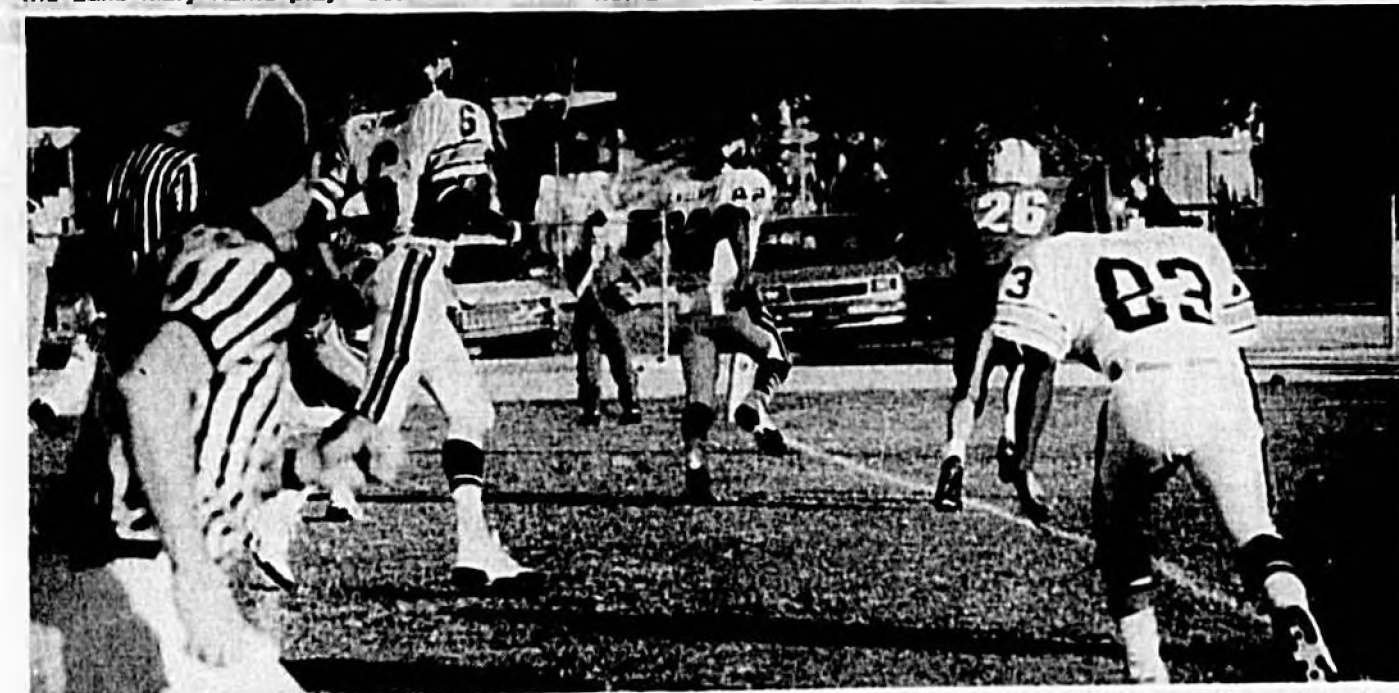

At Lake Howell, Lake Brantley will take on DeLand at 7:30 p.m. in the first half and Lake Mary will take on the host Silver Hawks in the second half.

All six county schools will open the regular season next Friday. Lyman will be at Seminole, Lake Mary will entertain Jacksonville Ed White, Oviedo goes to DeLand, Lake Howell plays at Winter Park and Lake Brantley is at University.

All six local schools will play in preseason football jamborees tonight. Anush Collins (No. 33, above) and the Lake Mary Rams play host Lake Howell after Lake Brantley opens with DeLand. At Kissimmee's Silver Star Arena, Tyrone Williams (No. 82, below) leads Seminole against St. Cloud before Oviedo tackles Lyman.

Courier-Connors to meet in U.S. Open's Super Saturday

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Five down. Two to go. Jimmy Connors' remarkable run through the U.S. Open continues, unexpected, unabated and unbelievable.

The speed bump on Thursday night was Paul Haarhuis, who was overmatched against Connors and a howling National Tennis Center crowd of 20,000 fans that is going along on this joyous journey.

Connors won 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 6-2, moving into the semifinals at 39, the second oldest man to make it to that level in the Open era.

He is playing dramatic, dominating tennis, seizing opportunities, taking no prisoners.

Against Haarhuis, he used four dramatic lobs in a break point that kept him from falling two sets behind. The crowd erupted and Connors waved his racket at them, looking like Zubin Mehta conducting the New York Philharmonic. From then on, the match was his.

Haarhuis said the fans didn't disturb him. "I handled the crowd," he said. "I couldn't handle Jimmy Connors."

Neither has anybody else. There is a Connors karma operating at the National Tennis Center. Even Jimbo is feeling it.

"In the third set," he said, "I started seeing everything. The ball looked like a basketball. That was as well as I've ever seen it."

At 39, when others are being fit for bifocals, Connors' eyesight is getting sharper.

Haarhuis, who won the first four games losing just three points, went south after that.

"In the fourth set, there was an unbelievable lull in his face, his stride, his game," Connors said. "I thought it was time to jump on him, take advantage and get out of here."

Case closed.

This Open saga began in a most unlikely way, with Connors down two sets and a service break in the third of his first match against Patrick McEnroe. He rallied to win the match in five sets.

"I can't imagine what my brother is thinking right now," John McEnroe said. "He unleashed a monster."

Connors appreciates the fairy tale he is weaving. "To come in here and play like this against the best players in the world, there's no way to describe it," he said. "Is this for real? I don't know. I can't describe this to you. It'll take six months before I can tell you what happened here."

"And it's not over yet. That's the best thing. The only way it will be over is if somebody steps up and beats me and he'll have to play damn good tennis to do that."

The last part was just in case French Open champ Jim Courier was listening. Courier, the tournament's fourth seed, meets Connors in Saturday's semifinal after eliminating defending U.S. Open champ Pete Sampras 6-2, 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (7-5).

Courier, who was born in Sanford and now lives in Dade City, knows he will have to deal with a hostile crowd well as a fired-up Connors.

"Obviously, they aren't going to like me too much," he said. "That's life. I have felt that in Mexico in the Davis Cup. I have played in Italy against Italians and in Puerto Rico, which can be fairly fierce. I'll be prepared for it."

Courier, who used his 100 mph serve to eliminate Sampras 6-2, 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (7-5) said that he, too, is a big Connors fan.

"I follow Connors a lot," he said. "I like him a lot. I have tons of respect for the guy. How can you not? I tried to pattern myself after him and his competitiveness."

Courier, the French Open champion, wore down his old pal with 14 aces. Sampras and Courier grew up playing junior tennis together and until last year played as a doubles team.

In the other semifinal, No. 2 Stefan Edberg goes against No. 5 Ivan Lendl, who finished his rain-suspended match against third-seeded Michael Stich, completing a 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-1 victory.

In today's women's semis, No. 2 Monica Seles faced No. 7 Jennifer Capriati and top-seeded Steffi Graf went against four-time champion Martina Navratilova, who was seeded No. 6.

Courier dethroned his old pal with a booming serve that froze the 20-year-old ex-Open champ.

"He was wearing me down from the backcourt," Sampras said. "He has a big serve and he backs it up with a big forehand. He wasn't making many errors from the backcourt. He was hitting the ball deep and heavy. I felt like I was on my back foot and he was on his front foot."

There was a sense of relief in the loss for Sampras, who was the youngest player ever to win the Open when he captured the crown at age 19 last year.

"Now, I am not the reigning Open champion," he said. "The bag of bricks just came off the shoulders. That is the way I kind of feel. Maybe I can go back to my normal lifestyle."

Sampras felt the Open crown made him a target. "Players have geared up more to play me than before I won the Open," he said. "Now, I am considered a good win and guys have nothing to lose out there when they play me."

Stich, who came in as the game's hottest new star after winning at Wimbledon, had Lendl cornered in their rain-delayed match, leading 2-1 in sets and 3-0 in a fourth set tiebreaker, four points away from victory. But he let his man off the hook, inexplicably losing six straight points. After Lendl escaped with the tiebreaker, he blew Stich away in the fifth.

"It shouldn't happen," Stich said, reflecting on the lost opportunity. "It was just stupid playing. I gave it to him on the plate and he took it."

By the fifth set, Stich was done, missing two break points that might have turned things around. "I lost it totally," he said. "I just couldn't make it. I just choked."

Women take charge of money

SANFORD — The woman was distraught. Her husband had died. He had handled the couple's finances during the course of their marriage. She didn't even know how to write a check or where to look for insurance papers.

Sue Albee, Director of Better Living for Seniors of Seminole County became concerned about the large number of mid-life and older women who were overwhelmed by the maze of financial problems that need attention after widowhood or divorce. Calls to the Seminole County Senior Helpline emphasized the great need for education and understanding of financial matters, not only for retired women, but also for women in mid life who should be preparing for retirement now. Too many older women try to live on just Social Security, which often does not provide even basic subsistence support.

Working with Seminole Community College and AARP Women's Initiative she has helped develop the Women's Financial Information Program, a series of lectures and workshops that will help women take charge of their own finances. Beginning September 17, 1991 at 5:30 p.m., the series will be held on eight consecutive Tuesday evenings in Room B 116, Building B., Seminole Community College. The series will cover Record Keeping and Goal Setting, Designing a Cash Flow System, Women and Insurance, Social Security and Pension Benefits, Preparing for Widowhood or Divorce, Marriage or Remarriage, Women and Investments, Legal Matters — Hiring the Professionals. The program will not include marketing or sale of products or services. Seating is limited, register now. No registrations will be accepted at the door.

Registration fee for the eight sessions is $21. Make check payable to: Better Living for Seniors, Inc. Send to: Seminole County Better Living for Seniors, Inc., 636 Florida Center Parkway, Longwood, FL 32750.

Sue Albee encourages women learn to handle money.

Single mom fears having unwanted child

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a 7-month-old daughter, and another child is due in December. My husband and I were married last January and now we are being divorced. I'll be 21 in October, and I am terrified of being a single mother with two children, not to mention the fact that my husband has paid only $50 in child support. Clothes, food and diapers cost a lot of money.

Abby, this second child was a complete shock, and I'm not sure I really want it. I have no feelings for it. Am I making sense? I feel as though my world has no meaning except for my family, the child I have and myself. I don't know what to do.

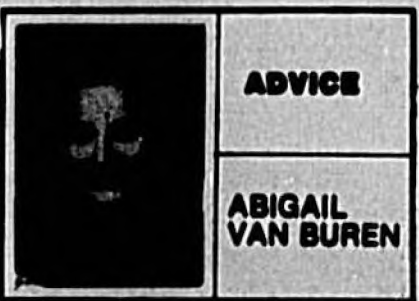

I have dream of how I could hurt myself badly enough to kill this child inside. I wish I wasn't pregnant, but I don't believe in abortion and I couldn't give it up for adoption.

Mom tells me I will have feelings for this baby when it begins to grow. Has anyone ever said this to you before? I will care for it, but I'm afraid that I will never love this baby. Scary, huh? What should I do? Help!

SCARED IN WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR SCARED: If you are having dreams about how you can "hurt" yourself enough to be rid of the baby you say you may never love, cannot support, and did not want in the first place — please talk with a professional counselor or a clergyman about giving the child up. There are many couples waiting (and praying) for a child to adopt. They would love and provide for it in a way that you cannot. Please consider that option. You need not feel guilty for facing reality. I think you are sensible and courageous. I wish you well.

DEAR ABBY: I am a delivery driver for a major pizza restaurant in Atchison, Kan. I've seen all kinds of things while delivering pizza, but one thing I've seen often, worries me. Many adults send their small children to answer the door and pay for the pizza. I've had children as young as 3 and 4 years old meet me at the door with no adult in sight. One woman sent her 5-year-old son to the door, and when there was a problem with the order, he had to get her from a second-floor bedroom!

One little boy even let me in the house, saying that he was the only one at home. I love children myself and don't have a problem dealing with them, but people don't know me. How do they know I won't try to abduct their child, or do something terrible to him or her? We read about things like that happening to children every day!

Abby, please tell people that if they want to let their kids "pay" for the pizza, that's fine, but they should be within a few feet of the child when the child opens the door. It could prevent a terrible tragedy.

A PIZZA DELIVERY DRIVER
DEAR DRIVER: Thanks for a valuable letter. You delivered something far more important than a pizza today.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's driving. Whenever another motorist breaks one of the highway courtesy rules and cuts in front of my husband, or passes him when another car is coming in the opposite direction, my husband has to get back at him. He'll pull up real close to him, or he'll immediately pass him to let him know that he is not going to let him get away with anything.

Sometimes he doesn't like the way a truck driver is driving, so he'll start playing games with him. I get scared half to death and beg him not to take such foolish chances, but he insists that he's going to "teach them a lesson."

We've had a few minor scrapes and several close calls, but nothing really serious yet. He argues that he is a safe driver, but to me, that's not safe.

What's the matter with this 33-year-old baby? How can I make him realize that that kind of driving is not safe?

WORRIED IN OREGON
DEAR WORRIED: Part of my definition for maturity is... "the ability to bear an injustice without wanting to get even." Your husband isn't mature. Just keep on nagging him to let the other guy have the road — unless he's trying to beat him to the cemetery, and take you with him.

DEAR ABBY: I am 29 years old, have seven kids and am pregnant again. I've never been married, but I've been engaged twice and I've been pinned several times. Don't tell me I should have been more careful because I was careful, but nothing seemed to work with me.

A doctor put me on birth control pills and I followed his instructions, but I turned up pregnant anyway. The doctor said it must have been the fault of the pills, so he put me on another brand, and the same thing happened.

I've used other methods including marking the calendar, but they all failed. I must be one of those super fertile types.

I don't want any more kids after this, at least not until I get married, but I don't want an operation to make me sterile because I might meet a guy who wants a kid of his own, and then what will I do?

Is there a method of birth control that is positively sure? Don't send me to a doctor. They're the ones who got me into this fix.

FERTILE MYRTLE

DEAR MYRTLE: When it comes to birth control, the only method that's 100 percent effective is self-control.

You don't say who's supporting all those kids, but if we taxpayers are, you owe it to your country to visit the Planned Parenthood people and turn off that baby machine.

DEAR ABBY: When I first heard about topless swimsuits for girls, I thought it was just a lot of talk, but yesterday I actually saw one for sale in a store!

If women would consider wearing a topless swimsuit in public, we have reached a new low in our civilization — even lower than the decadence that preceded the fall of the Roman Empire.

Topless swimsuits? Have we lost all sense of decency? Who cares if we are bombed back to the Stone Age? What's left to save?

MOTHER OF GIRLS

DEAR MOTHER: The bottoms.

What Is A Grandparent?

How do you describe a grandparent? There is really no stereotype. Some are younger, some are older; and they come in all shapes and sizes. A grandparent may be found driving a snappy new sports car or cruising in a vintage vehicle, lovingly washed and waxed every Saturday afternoon for the last twenty years. They may live in the city or in the country... in condos or in cottages.

Then, how do you describe a grandparent? Maybe she brought out well-worn family photo albums. There you spent hours in fascination and discovery. Maybe he was the best checker player you know, but yet, amazingly sometimes you won! (Certainly, he would never "let" you win. She made the smoothest gravy. (Sometimes, Mom's had lumps!) and he could whittle a twig into a toy. (Dad never did that!) Perhaps they let you snuggle closely between them at worship each week while Mom and Dad sang in the choir.

Significantly, grandparents have time... time for slow walks and long talks... time well earned after raising their own children... our parents.

So, how do you describe a grandparent? You don't. You just love them... a lot!

Each Wednesday at 7 p.m., a service of Holy Communion is also held in the church.

All are welcome to attend any of these classes or services. For further information, please call 444-LORD during office hours.

Synagogue prepares for New Year

LONGWOOD — As Jews the world over prepare to usher in the New Year of 5752, Seminole County's largest synagogue, Congregation Beth Am, 3899 Sand Lake Rd., finds itself in the midst of the frenzy of activity, the result of growth and increased interest in traditional values, according to Rabbi Merrill Shapiro.

In the month of Tishrei, the first of the Jewish New Year, the first 10 days are set aside as days of repentance. They begin with Rosh HaShannah, the New Year Holy Days and end with the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur on the tenth of the month. Reform Jews celebrate Rosh HaShannah one day while conservative congregations such as Beth Am and Orthodox communities celebrate for two days.

Rosh HaShannah is an event of mixed emotions and moods, said Rabbi Shapiro. On the one hand, it is the Day of Judgement — a solemn time of reconciliation and confronting the year past.

On the other hand, it is New Year's Day and, although not as frivolous as Jan. 1, it is still Yom Harat Olam, the Birthday of the World, a joyous remembrance of the creation.

The High Holy Days and the days between Rosh HaShannah and Yom Kippur are a time for gentleness, for reflection and for personal stock-taking. It is a time, too, for religious dedication.

Preparation for the sacred season traditionally starts 30 days in advance. The Shofar, or Ram's Horn, sounds in the synagogue throughout the month. Its call is a call for repentance, for introspection and self evaluation. Yom Kippur, the tenth day of Tishrei, is the holiest day of the year. It is a day devoted entirely to spiritual needs. Before the High Holy Days, Jews endeavor to make charitable contributions to the extent they are able. This is regarded as especially meritorious just prior to the Day of Atonement when the final judgment for the coming year is sealed.

The meal immediately before the Yom Kippur fast is big and joyous, and an important obligation taken seriously by all adult Jews.

During Yom Kippur, no food or drink is to be taken. Fasting helps us concentrate on our prayers and self examination.

The High Holy Day Prayerbook, called the Mahzor, urges us to reflect on the majesty of the Almighty, human weakness and on our own personal shortcomings. What is stressed is our capacity to improve our conduct and live a better life.

Following the closing service, a "break the fast" meal is eaten, prepared and served by the Congregation Beth Am Sisterhood. The festive completion of this season allows each Jew to return to normal activities having turned over a new leaf, with a clean slate for the coming year.

This column was contributed by Rabbi Merrill Shapiro of Congregation Beth Am, 3899 Sand Lake Road, Longwood.

Joyce Still, Evangelist
Located off 427, behind Play World, near at Victory
Square, off 1/2 mile on the left. Pastor Steve Rice

Joyce Still has been considered more dynamic than Kathryn Kuhlman. Just recently, a small child that was dying with cancer was healed and visibly changed immediately. In the presence of the congregation the child's eye which hung out of the socket was made normal, the child's hair began to grow which had been lost through medical treatment. Through the Word of knowledge, God gives her the name of the afflictions and things only that person and God would know.

Put a stop to any over-medication

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife has a lung condition that requires her to be on oxygen. She also takes Zantac, Ativan, quinine, Restoril, Darvon, Indocin and Tylenol. Would any of these medications cause her to perspire? She's very uncomfortable and needs relief.

DEAR READER: Serious lung disorders, even when treated with supplemental oxygen, can lead to inappropriate sweating because of the increased work of breathing. For example, patients with emphysema, a chronic lung disease marked by low blood oxygen, often find that the simple act of breathing at rest is strenuous; slight exercise may cause extreme breathlessness. Breathing can become a major physical activity, with sweating, fatigue and loss of stamina. Thus, your wife's problem could well be caused by the lung condition itself.

sleeping pill. It has many potential side effects, ranging from depression and confusion to drug dependency and impaired respiration. In my opinion, it should not be prescribed to patients with serious lung disorders, even when treated with supplemental oxygen, can lead to inappropriate sweating because of the increased work of breathing. For example, patients with emphysema, a chronic lung disease marked by low blood oxygen, often find that the simple act of breathing at rest is strenuous; slight exercise may cause extreme breathlessness. Breathing can become a major physical activity, with sweating, fatigue and loss of stamina. Thus, your wife's problem could well be caused by the lung condition itself.

Nonetheless, she appears to be over-medicated as well. Let's briefly analyze her medications one by one.

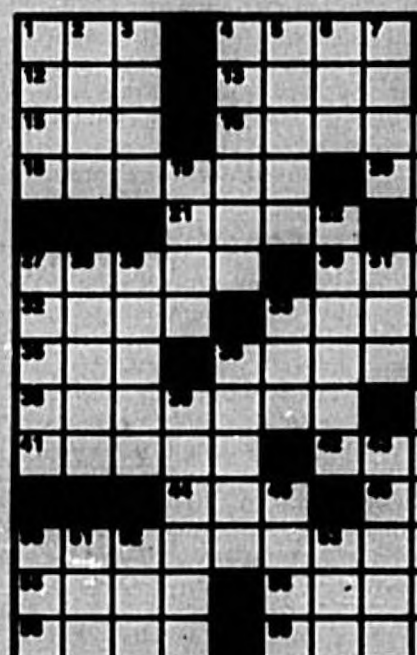

Zantac (ranitidine) is used to treat peptic ulcers. Usually administered twice daily, it is commonly given only at night for maintenance dosing. Zantac can cause side effects, such as headache, malaise, insomnia, rapid (or slow) pulse, nausea, diarrhea, sore joints and rash. The drug does not protect against ulcers caused by pain medication, such as Indocin.

Ativan (lorazepam) reduces anxiety. It can cause sedation, dizziness, weakness and loss of memory. It is habit-forming and may lead to withdrawal symptoms (convulsions, tremors, cramps) when suddenly discontinued. Ativan should be cautiously administered when given to patients with lung disease because it can depress respirations.

Quinine is a safe drug used for muscle cramps.

Restoril (temazepam) is a

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

If you think you are a good defender, cover the West and South cards in the diagram. Against four hearts, your partner leads the diamond nine. How do you plan to defeat the contract?

It is rare that a game is bid against a strong no-trump opening, but both South's and North's actions are reasonable.

You win the first trick with the diamond jack and continue with the diamond king and ace. South ruffs the third diamond with the heart jack, cashes the A-K of hearts, your partner following to both rounds, and leads the spade four: seven, eight, jack.

What do you do now?

You have won three tricks; you need one more. It is time to count declarer's hand. He is known to have started with seven red-suit cards: five hearts and two diamonds. That means he has six black-suit cards. However they are divided (unless he made a very strange two-heart bid with 5-5 in the majors), you will get the setting trick if you return a spade.

After cashing dummy's spade tricks, declarer must have two clubs left in his hand. You will therefore win a trick with the club king.

If instead you switch to a club, declarer will put up the queen and claim. A diamond return is fatal if South has only two spades, since he will ruff in hand and discard dummy's club loser. Then he will take a ruffing spade finesse. South cannot misguess either suit, as he knows from the bidding where the missing honor cards are located.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 7, 1991

Excitement within your social life could be in the offing in the year ahead. You might limit the size of your intimate circle to include only the cream of the crop.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
One-upmanship is a game you can play with considerable skill today. You might not be the instigator, but someone who attempts to outdo you is apt to come out second best. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
The opening you've been hoping for could suddenly present itself today, enabling you to put the finishing touches on a matter you've been unable to lock down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
The name of a close friend you've lost touch with might hover in your thoughts today. If this occurs, there could be good reason to contact this individual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Lady Luck tends to favor you today where both tangibles and intangibles are concerned. Happy experiences, both socially and financially, are possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Your greatest asset today is your ability to take the ideas of associates and turn them into something with far more potential. If you feel your thoughts are constructive, don't be reluctant to voice them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Imagination and resourcefulness in your commercial affairs should come naturally to you today. These dynamic assets could trigger profitable improvements.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You could be extremely lucky today in endeavors that require dedicated allies. Friends will be willing to do things for you that they wouldn't do for others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Something beneficial might suddenly develop for you in an unusual manner today. To reap its rewards, you must be able to identify it and act on it quickly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
There are indications that you're going to establish a dynamic relationship with someone new and exciting. There is a strong possibility this contact might be made today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Changes you'll have little or no control over could occur today. Fortunately, however, these developments will favor you and help you accomplish something you've had trouble completing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Just because the solution to a difficult problem suddenly flashes into your mind today with no apparent urging does not imply that it is without merit. Put it to the test.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You should be very adroit today at utilizing your expertise on behalf of others for substantial compensation. Everyone will get a healthy slice of the pie, including the man or woman who hires you.
